George Hackathorne Scores in Highly Dramatic and Human Preferred Picture

Reviewed by Sumner Smith

B. P. Schulberg's Preferred picture, "Capital Punishment," is a highly dramatic and human picture. Remarkable entertainment values drive home the opposition to the infliction of the death penalty with unmistakeable emphasis. When he wrote the story, Mr. Schulberg realized the need for strong drama and gripping human interest as well as clear illustration of the idea, and injected these very necessary ingredients in liberal measure. So deftly are the dramatic events handled by Director James P. Hogan and so fine is the acting of George Hackathorne, the leading player, that "Capital Punishment" develops a terrific kick which will set audiences thinking and talking about the death penalty.

The drama of the picture is enhanced in vividness by the device of a prologue. This briefly shows how a youth, wrongly convicted of murder, goes to his death in the electric chair while a governor frantically tries to get a telephone connection with the prison and reprieve him. These scenes are delicately handled, with only a distant view of the death chair, the final effect being attained by showing the electric switch pulled down and the current turned on.

Then the real story gets under way. The prologue has hinted forthcoming events and heavy drama is promised. Right here is where Schulberg and Hogan showed their showmanship. What in other hands might have developed morbidity, in their hands becomes light drama. The prologue had cast its shadow over the characters and that was enough for the present. The task was to

(Continued on page 370)

A Correction

Moving Picture World erred last week in its review of Universal's "Ridin' Pretty" by crediting Slim Cole instead of Frank Rice with carrying most delightfully the comedy burden of the picture. Cole's work was good, but it was Rice who was given most of the opportunities and who made the big hit. The mistake occurred because the character's name on the screen differed from that on the cast supplied by Universal.

THE PEP OF THE PROGRAM

NEWS AND REVIEWS OF SHORT SUBJECTS AND SERIALS

"The Sleep Walker"

(Fox—Comedy—Two Reels)

There is enough in this Fox two-reeler to supply several average comedies. Sid Smith has the title role. After getting all bunged up while sleepwalking he goes out in the country to try and cure his habit, but his precautions prove of no avail, for a storm takes his bed out of a window onto the wings of an aeroplane, after several perilous near-falls he finally does fall to earth and then has a time trying to return home as he is in his pajamas. Finally he lands on a train that has among its passengers a kicking mule and a company of chorus girls. Not content with the excitement that can be gotten out of a combination like this, an escaped convict boards the train and robs the heroine of jewels and there is another mix-up as Sid's pajamas resemble a convict's suit. Peace is finally restored and Sid wakes up and finds it all a nightmare. Gags, most of them new, follow each other in almost a bewildering succession and almost all of them are good for a laugh. "The Sleepwalker" should certainly go over big with slapstick fans who want a maximum of action, stunts, thrills and laughs in their comedies for they certainly get them in this two-reeler.—C. S. S.

"Animated Hair Cartoons"

(Red Seal—Cartoon—300 Feet)

Subject K shows the features of Charles Evans Hughes, whose whiskered countenance affords the cartoonist much opportunity for mirthful characterization. There also is a sketch of Agnes Ayres which cannot be recognized until the last bit of hair has flitted into place, and one of the Prince of Wales which many hero-worshipping flappers will recognize before completed. Subject L shows Louise Fazenda in a characteristic comedy role, Czar Nicholas 2nd of Russia, Maxim Gorky and Doug and Mary together. As usual, the work of Marcus, the cartoonist, is high-grade.—S. S.

"Cartoon Factory"

(Red Seal—Cartoon—One Reel)

This is one of the cleverest Out-of-the-Inkwell cartoons yet drawn by Max Fleischer—in fact, a wonder for imagination and skill with the pen. It purports to show that these cartoons are made by means of a system of push buttons, levers and electric current, but the "kidding" is intentionally obvious. The little clown and accompanying characters are drawn by a pen undirected by any hand, and then the artist sketches a fantastic machine which itself draws landscapes and houses for the clown to play in. The subject ends with a battle between two armies, one sketched by the clown and one by the artist. Your audiences ought to like this one particularly. —S. S.

"Shorts" Reviewed in This Issue

Animated Hair Cartoons (Red Seal)
Brain and Brawn (Pathe)
Cartoon Factory (Red Seal)
Good Spirits (Educational)
Hell-Roaring Range (Fox)
Honeymoon Hardships (Pathe)
Laugh That Off (Pathe)
Looking Down (Universal)
Motor Mad (Educational)
Mother Goose Land (Red Seal)
Pathe Review No. 4 (Pathe)
Rembrandt (Universal)
Sleeping Cutie, The (F. B. O.)
Sleepwalker, The (Fox)
Whip Hand, The (Universal)

"Laugh That Off"

(Pathe—Comedy—Two Reels)

The Spat family takes a transcontinental trip in a van of their own design in "Laugh That Off." The familiar Spat spats predominate and here and there are bits and situations which will encourage hearty laughs. The van is quite an innovation in its class. It has a bathroom, parlor, kitchen and bedroom "all in one." Slapstick stuff in the "bathroom" will get the chuckles. The two male Spats indulge therein in a verbal controversy which winds up in a broom fight. Then the van starts up again and all goes well until they reach a railroad crossing and narrowly miss connecting with a train. By this time the tires have reached the limit of their service and one of the spats conceives the idea of removing the remnants and placing the van on the tracks. Again the tour seems promising until a train comes along and sends the vehicle into oblivion. As a whole this is up to the standard of the Spat offerings and may be considered even better than that by some audiences. T. W.

The House of FEATURETTES

Week of Jan. 18th

Eastman, Rochester, Plays the second issue of "Marvels of Motion" — (Fleischer-Novagraph Process).
Newman, Kansas City, Plays "Animated Hair Cartoon" Subject "X."
Fox, Philadelphia, Plays "Animated Hair Cartoon" Subject "OO."

120 First Run Novelties 1924-1925

RED SEAL PICTURES CORP.

Edwin Miles Fadman, Pres.
1600 BROADWAY NEW YORK CITY

"Honeymoon Hardships"

(Pathe—Comedy—Two Reels)

This Mack Sennett comedy is great stuff. It is just packed with laughs and thrills and is without a single dull moment.

It has to do with a couple, just married, who find honey-mooning on a farm anything but bliss. Their farmer host meets them at the railroad station in a broken-down "lizzie." This car swirls around mountain tops, gets caught in a cloud-burst and finally rolls down hill into the barn door. The retiring scene is particularly funny. Hubby and the farmer occupy the same bed while the farmer's wife and the bride "turn in" another section. Relatives, waylaid by the storm, seek refuge in the farmhouse and this necessitates "three to a bed." The kicking, snoring and cothes pulling, in which both of the newlyweds get the worse end of the deal, is sufficient to get most audiences into convulsions of laughter. The comedy is mighty good and one of the best Mack Sennett offerings we have witnessed in a long time. The cast includes such fun makers as Alice Day, Raymond McKee, Billy Bevan and Sunshine Hart.—T. W.

"Pathe Review No. 4"

(Pathe—Magazine—One Reel)

The value of a yawn during the busiest time of the day is shown in the latest of the "Keep Fit" series. Under "Pathe Review No. 4" there is also an interesting view of how Japanese make wooden slippers. Scenes of the city of Pittsburgh comprises the Pathe-color on this week's issue of "Visiting Our Own America."—T. W.

"Brain and Brawn"

(Pathe—Sportlight—One Reel)

Grantland Rice endeavors to bring out in "Brain and Brawn" the point that schools of today are awake to the value of physical as well as mental development. For his subject he uses the Culver Military Academy. He shows the routine there from the athletic fields to the school room.—T. W.

"Hell-Roaring Range"

(Fox—Instructive—One Reel)

The title is apt to give the wrong impression of this Fox Educational Entertainment, as with the exception of one scene which shows how a peaceful mountain stream becomes a torrent with the spring freshets, the reel is devoted to showing in detail the mainfold studies of Uncle Sam's Forest Rangers, how they watch out for fires, pioneer roads, build bridges and even check up on the credentials of the herders who have flocks of sheep on government lands. There is a lot of attractive mountain scenery and views of vast herds containing thousands of sheep. Altogether, this reel is interesting and instructive.—C. S. S.

"Good Spirits"

(Educational—Comedy—Two Reels)

This Christie Comedy featuring Walter Hiers has to do with spiritualism. The opening develops Walter's superstition by means of incidents with a ladder and mirrors, then introduces his future mother-in-law, played by Rose Fore, as she is trying to communicate with her first, now deceased, husband. Her present husband, played by Jack Duffy, believes only in spirits of the bottled kind. The only raps Dolly (Duane Thompson) is interested in are Walter's. Little, mischievous Katie also is an unbeliever. William Blaisdell plays a crooked spiritualist intent on robbing the safe. A storm obliges everybody to spend the night in the house. Mischievous Katie is responsible for various bits of trickery that sets the household in a furore. A ghost fashioned of a balloon flies about, and frogs get in the beds and climb up people's legs. Flying from the place, Walter engages a taxi only to find that the driver is cross-eyed, another sign of bad luck, and a smash-up follows when the taxi circles about and crashes into the house Walter was trying to avoid. This subject is rich in slapstick humor and should please.—S. S.

"Looking Down"

(Universal—Comedy—Two Reels)

Gags and stunts follow each other in rapid-fire succession in this Century Comedy starring Wanda Wiley. First she has a wild ride on a bicycle in front of a fire engine, during which she picks up a traffic cop who lands in a vat of mortar when she stops suddenly. Wanda is thrown onto a beam that is being raised to the top of a steel skyscraper and has an exciting time getting back to earth. A young engineer invites her for a ride and she takes her bicycle along for emergencies. Engine trouble develops, a vamp appears and there is a general mix-up which lands all of them in a cabaret. The balky flivver starts off and lands in the swimming pool as Wanda falls in and the ending shows her and the hero running the flivver up out of the water and away together. It is the fastest and one of the most amusing of the recent Century Comedies.—C. S. S.

"Mother Goose Land"

(Red Seal—Cartoon—One Reel)

This subject should prove particularly entertaining to children. The various Mother Goose characters are drawn and the famous little clown meets each one in turn and has some sort of an exciting experience with them. For instance, he swipes the witch's broomstick and she makes it vanish with a pass of the hand while he is riding it in mid-air. Little Miss Muffett is shown and the clown becomes sentimental; he joins the three men in a tub, sees the old woman who lived in a shoe and her family, buys pies from the pieman for Simple Simon and then flees when he finds he hasn't the price.—S. S.

"Motor Mad"

(Educational—Comedy—One Reel)

This Jack White-Mermaid Comedy presenting Lige Conley is a corker for speed and sustained interest. It revolves around a motorcycle race and develops a surprisingly large number of daring stunts during a thrilling race. Undoubtedly, trick photography is responsible for many of these, but they are so cleverly executed that only the impossibility of the stunts gives them away. The routine slapstick stuff is effectively put over, and some of the characterizations are unusually good. Besides Conley, Ruth Hiatt, Jack Lloyd, Otto Fries, Blanche Payson and Hubert Blitz appear in "Motor Mad." As a thrill comedy this is a corker.—S. S.

"CAPITAL PUNSHMENT"

(Continued from page 368)

evenly build up the drama, meanwhile injecting comedy relief. This they did. The plot provided comedy opportunities and Hackathorne took splendid advantage of them.

This comedy continues, and legitimately, even in the early prison scenes. The character Hackathorne plays is depending on a criminologist to free him. He is self-assurance personified, taking rebuffs lightly.

All comedy touches are necessarily abandoned when the criminologist fails the imprisoned boy. Death stares him in the face, a doubly terrible fate because of its injustice. Here the chief character might have been made the familiar film hero with uplifted chin and smiling lips. But, fortunately, he isn't. He is just a terror-stricken boy overwhelmed by the injustice and the inevitableness of it all. And when the reprieve comes at the last moment, he does not pass his hand across his eyes, breath a sigh and begin calmly accepting congratulations. No, he's a wreck of a human being who must be petted and nursed and made to forget before he is again the former fun-loving boy. That final episode characterizes the humanness and realism of the picture.

Hackathorne, as we have said, gives a fine performance. In fact, he is head and shoulders above the other members of the cast, getting the most out of both the dramatic and comedy elements and dominating the picture. With the exception of Clara Bow, who plays his sweetheart, the other players are afforded few opportunities and necessarily give ordinary performances. Miss Bow is about satisfactory in her part. Apparently the drama was too swift and powerful for her and she missed the flapper roles with which she has been so adept.

In conclusion it may be said that "Capital Punishment" should please because it is human, it is funny, it is dramatic and it is sensational. Almost any audience can find in it that ingredient which they like best in a motion picture.

Cast

Delia Tate.....Clara Bow
Dan O'Connor.....George Hackathorne
Gordon Harrington.....Elliott Dexter
Mona Caldwell.....Margaret Livingston
Priest.....Alec B. Francis
Mrs. O'Connor.....Mary Carr
Harry Phillips.....Robert Ellis
Governor.....Joseph Kilgour
Warden.....George Nichols

From a story by B. P. Schulberg.
Adapted by John Goodrich.
Directed by James P. Hogan.
Length, 5,950 feet.

Story

Gordon Harrington bets with Harry Phillips that he can have an innocent man convicted of murder. He persuades Dan O'Connor, who has been in trouble with the police but reformed, to be the subject of the experiment. Dan needs the money for his mother and wants to marry Celia Tate. Phillips disappears and is reported murdered. Dan is arrested when he pawns articles bearing Phillips' monogram, and is convicted on circumstantial evidence. In the meantime, Harrington and Phillips have fought over Mona Caldwell and the latter was accidently killed. Mona persuades Harrington to let Dan pay the penalty rather than risk execution himself. Dan, Delia and a friendly policeman try to locate Harrington. At last the prison warden gets him on the 'phone. Dan is staggered when Harrington denies knowledge of any experiment. His death impends when Mona confesses to the governor and Harrington, repentant, beats at the prison gates. The governor saves him in the nick of time.

"Youth and Adventure"

F. B. O. Offers Peppy Richard Talmadge Picture Filled with Adventure, Stunts and Thrills

Reviewed by C. S. Sewell

A typical Richard Talmadge vehicle, the kind that his rapidly growing list of admirers like to see him in, one that is fast-moving, with an abundance of snappy action and a lot of chances to show his ability in athletic stunts, is "Youth and Adventure," his newest starring vehicle for F. B. O.

As a wealthy chap who squanders his fortune then makes a bet he can earn his own living and unsuccessfully tries out as a book agent, motorcycle cop and other things, finally ending by securing a position as manager of a newspaper and exposing the owner as a crooked politician and bootlegger, Talmadge certainly has a congenial role.

The picture lives up to its title, for it is youth and adventure personified. Even if the idea of the story has been used before and the action not always convincing, the speed at which it moves, the pep that has been injected into it, a pleasing romantic angle, the star's snappy personality and, above all, his athletic stunts more than make up for any shortcoming, for Talmadge gets into enough tight places and by fights, stunts or ingenuity manages to get out of them, to satisfy the most jaded seeker after adventure. There is also good comedy and plenty of villainy.

As usual, Talmadge is practically the whole picture, but we must not overlook the fact that Margaret Landis is attractive as the girl and Joseph Girard effective as the crooked politician.

This star's fans will eat it up, and as it will appeal to those who like speedy action and thrilling stunts it should prove a good box office attraction for the average theatre. It is one of Talmadge's best.

Cast

Reggie Dillingham.....Richard Talmadge
Joe Potts.....Pete Gordon
Clint Taggart.....Joseph Girard
Mary Ryan.....Margaret Landis
Red Mullin.....Fred Kelsey
Phyllis.....Katherine Lewis

Story and scenario by Howard Clark.
Directed by James W. Horne.
Length, Five Reels.

Story

Having squandered a million, all but a few thousand, Reggie upbraided by his old attorney bets he can support himself. He tries various jobs but fails and tries to give up but the attorney tells him the money was lost in bad investment. Seeing Taggart the political boss with a chorus girl he snaps his picture which is published in a rival paper and Taggart to silence him makes him manager of one of his own papers. Taggart soon finds he cannot hold Reggie down. Reggie becomes interested in Mary, Taggart's stenographer and they finally discover with the aid of a dictograph that Taggart is mixed up in bootlegging. While Mary gets the police, Reggie fights Taggaret's rough gang single-handed even following them on a boat while making a getaway. Taggart is finally arrested. Reggie wins Mary and his lawyer informs him that he has not lost the money but doubled it for him.

GEORGE O'BRIEN
Appearing in William Fox photoplays.

Florence Vidor Signed

Florence Vidor has returned to the familiar scenes of her first triumphs on the screen. Jesse L. Lasky, first vice-president of Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, in charge of production, confirmed rumors that he had signed Miss Vidor to a long-term contract to play featured leads in Paramount pictures.

Miss Vidor's first Paramount picture under her new contract will be "Are Parents People?" by Alice Duer Miller, in which she will play opposite Betty Bronson.

John T. Murray Engaged

John T. Murray, star of "Maytime" on the stage, who recently made his motion picture debut in "Madonna of the Streets," has been engaged for the chief comedian role in Al Christie's next production, "Stop Flirting," released by Producers' Distributing Corp. The new feature will start in production about January 15.

Charlie Ray's "Percy"

Charles Ray's latest production for Pathe. "Percy," adapted from "The Desert Fiddler," by J. G. Hawks, was highly praised at a recent review of the production at the Larchmont Theatre, in Los Angeles. This is tentatively scheduled for release by Pathe on March 1.

Entire "White List" to Be Shown Over U. B. O. Circuit

ARRANGEMENTS have been completed between W. C. Herrmann, general manager of the Big "U" Exchange, Universal's New York City distribution center, and A. G. Whyte, motion picture manager for the Universal Booking Offices, which includes the Keith, Moss and Proctor theatres in and around New York City, for the showing of the entire White List, Universal's group of twenty-one feature pictures scheduled for the first six months of 1925.

This is the first time on record that the entire Universal release schedule has been tied up for definite release in New York City as a block. Previously the U. B. O. circuit or other circuits have groups of Universal pictures, but due to prior first-run bookings have not taken them as a block.

The U. B. O., for instance, has played practically all of the big Universal pictures of the last half of 1924. "Butterfly" is now being shown to very good business in the various U. B. O. houses. In a week or so "The Tornado," which recently had its New York premiere in the new Piccadilly Theatre, also will be routed over the Moss, Keith and Proctor circuits.

The good results had by U. B. O. with Universal's 1924 Jewels was the deciding factor in causing Whyte to sign up for The White List, he reports. With hardly an exception, the Universal Jewels, from "The Signal Tower" down to "Butterfly," have exceeded expectations. A strong factor in the success of these pictures has been their exploitation value. Following Universal's summer announcements that its fall Jewels would be pictures with high exploitation value, the U. B. O. house managers have taken advantage of this angle to their Universal bookings. Unusual lobby displays, presentations and, in the case of the outlying houses, attention-getting stunts were used.

The U. B. O. houses which will show The White List in New York this winter and spring are Keith's 81st Street, Keith's Twin State, Union Hill; Keith's Columbia, Far Rockaway; Keith's Prospect, Brooklyn; Keith's Fordham, New York; Keith's Rivera, Brooklyn; Keith's State, Jersey City; Proctor's 23rd Street, Proctor's 58th Street, Proctor's 125th Street, Proctor's Yonkers, Proctor's Mount Vernon, Proctor's Greenpoint, B. S. Moss' Flatbush, Moss' Franklin, Moss' Regent, Moss' Coliseum, Moss' Jefferson and Moss' Hamilton, New York City. In addition, many of the pictures will be shown in Moss' Broadway.

Tom Mix in "Dick Turpin"

D'Artagnan and his famous henchmen, immortal wielder of the long thin blade, will pass into oblivion in the minds of many theatre patrons when they see the Fox film version of "Dick Turpin," recently finished by Director J. G. Blystone with Tom Mix in the title role. In making the picture, part of each day's work away from the camera was devoted to the instruction of the actors by a professional swordsman. Tom Mix is supported by Kathleen Meyers, Alan Hale, Lucille Hutton, Philo McCullough, James Marcus, Sid Jordan and Bull Montana.

Barbara LaMarr Souvenir

Associated Pictures Corporation has issued a handsome booklet in colors of Barbara LaMarr's latest Sawyer-Lubin production, "Sandra," released by First National Pictures. It contains twelve different portraits of Miss LaMarr in private life and as she appears in the role of Sandra in the picture. The portraits are in color in black frames surrounded by green, with a smaller black frame at the outer edge. The booklet has been sent to exhibitors and is an excellent souvenir book for use in connection with showings of "Sandra."

New Milwaukee Manager

A. G. Smith, formerly Paramount branch manager in Winnipeg, has been made branch manager of the Paramount Milwaukee exchange, succeeding O. J. Wooden.

Scenes from the Pathecomedy, "The Wages of Tin," featuring Glenn Tryon. This is a Hal Roach production.

Exploiting "Peter Pan"

NOW it can be told—

How the Division of Exploitation of Famous Players-Lasky Corporation conjured up its Grand Slam on "Peter Pan."

Months will elapse before all of the details are gathered, but the outstanding, overshadowing high spots are "in hand."

Claud Saunders, at the head of Paramount's exploitation, set his office staff to work long in advance of the now famous "December 28 opening." Leon J. Bamberger, Mr. Saunders' assistant, had actually perfected half a dozen national "tie-ups" three months before release, and the exploitation forces in the field had ample time to make connections throughout the United States for each of these tie-ups with the 250 houses that shared the honors of the first run.

Exhibitor reports on the valuable assistance of the field exploitation staff are contained in many telegrams and letters, some of which appeared in Moving Picture World's special "Peter Pan" section in last week's issue.

The newspaper size press sheet on "Peter Pan" is replete with helpful matter for the showmen, but among the most important suggestions were the tie-ups, "Bamberger's Battery," including Kid Clothes, Books, Song, Dresses, Cravats and Pens. To these the exploiteers added individual touches in their respective territories, and the theatre owners cooperated at every turn.

CLAUDE SAUNDERS

Exploitation Director of Famous Players-Lasky Corporation

The Field Forces

The Saunders aides in the exchange centers. who share honors in the big demonstration, are:

John Callahan, New Haven; William Danziger, Milwaukee; Curtis Dunham, Dallas; Harry C. Eagles, Seattle and Portland; George Eshenfelder, Jacksonville and Charlotte (N. C.); George Gambrill, St. Louis; Thomas Gavin, Kansas City, Mo.; Ernest Geyer, Atlanta; Jack Hellman, Minneapolis and Sioux Falls; Oscar Kantner, San Francisco; John McConville, Boston and Portland (Me.); William Mendelssohn, Cleveland; Russell B. Moon, Chicago; Kenneth O. Renaud, Detroit; Rick Ricketson, Denver and Salt Lake City; Maurice Ridge, Cincinnati; William Robson, Pittsburgh; Corbin Shield. New York and Albany; Harry Swift, Los Angeles; W. A. Taylor, Oklahoma City; P. A. Thomajan, Peoria, Ill.; Edward J. Wall. Washington, D. C.; Charles E. Wagner, Columbus, Ohio; Irvin A. Waterstreet, Indianapolis and Louisville; Leslie F. Whelan, Philadelphia, and James M. Wiest, Omaha and Des Moines.

McVickers', Chicago, Records Smashed

The visit of Betty Bronson to Chicago, a week prior to the showing of the picture, "Peter Pan," at McVickers Theatre, was developed by Ed Olmstead and Russell Moon, Paramount Exploitation Experts into one of the outstanding important elements of the advance campaign for the picture.

Every Chicago daily newspaper heralded the arrival for days in advance, and even though zero weather prevailed, a gigantic public reception was held at the station, where a host of photographers and reporters waited five hours for her train which was five hours late.

Both Pathe and International News Reels made motion pictures of this reception. During her stay in Chicago, Miss Bronson attended a reception given for her by The Junior League, Chicago's foremost society organization; broadcasted over Radio Stations WLS and WGN; made five personal appearances at McVickers Theatre. Special writers and photographers were assigned to the entire visit both by The Chicago Herald and Examiner and The Chicago Tribune. Pictures of the various events dominated Chicago papers during the two days of the visit.

The Chicago Tribune in connection with McVickers, staged the season's biggest Christmas party at the Coliseum on Tuesday, Dec. 23rd. Over 11,000 orphans and crippled children were entertained with "Peter Pan" shown on a 30′ screen as the major attraction "Peter Pan" buttons were presented to each child and The Tribune carried story after story about the picture and the event winding up with a front page article on Christmas day in which "Peter Pan" was called the wonder picture. It is of note that this is the first time that The Chicago Tribune has been identified with the showing of any motion picture.

The Chicago Daily News entertained 1,500 of its carriers and newsboys at McVickers on Tuesday, December 30th. Extensive publicity accompanied this unusual event and pictures showing the crowds at McVickers were used on page 3 of the main news section.

Among the campaign tie-ups for "Peter Pan" were 280 bookstore locations with window displays; six of the larger book stores in the Loop district; Peter Pan face powder advertised in conjunction with the showing of the picture; Peter Pan face powder advertisements in opposition theatre programs; Peter Pan cravats advertised in the windows of over 300 dealers; Peter Pan kid clothes extensively advertised by Mandel Brothers' Department Store and neighborhood dealers; Peter Pan fountain pen advertised by counter and window displays in over 750 drug stores; 150,000 samples Peter Pan biscuits with herald describing picture distributed in Chicago and 40 miles radius; Peter Pan dresses, featured by Mandel Brothers in connection with showing of picture at McVickers.

300 twenty-four sheet posters dominated the bulletin boards in Chicago for two weeks prior to the showing at McVickers.

In the outplying districts where Peter Pan is showing in 12 theatres tie ups have been executed with dealers in Peter Pan kid clothes, Peter Pan pens, Peter Pan dresses, the book and song. In practically every instance the dealer is carrying advertising space in the papers mentioning the picture and distributing roto sections and Heralds in packages through his store. The outlying districts received the benefit of publicity appearing in all local papers on the broadcasting of Peter Pan, many of these papers carrying headlines. The Rockford Star of Rockford, Ill., sent a boy reporter to interview Miss Bronson on her arrivel in Chicago This received a four column break on the front page. A like story was run when a boy reporter from the Kankakee Republican interviewed Miss Bronson the same day.

So tremendous has been the business at McVickers Theatre, that additional morning performances were found necessary, stores adjacent to McVickers complained about the crowds blocking their entrances All box office records at McVickers have been smashed, and the indications are that the new figure established can never be duplicated.

Washington, D. C. and Richmond, Va., Tie-Ups

FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY CORPORATION
Paramount Pictures
1101 North Capitol Ave., Washington, D. C.
Jan. 3, 1925.

Mr. Robert E. Welsh,
Editor Motion Picture World,
Dear Mr. Welsh:

Responding to your suggestion of the 30th ultimo for information relative to the exploitation of Peter Pan in Washington, be advised as follows:

Peter Pan was a huge success in Washington. It played for the week at Loew's Columbia, during one of the stormiest weeks of the year. It rained the early part of the week and snowed the latter part. In spite of this every matinee had the SRO sign. The evening business was up to the usual standard.

Through arrangement with WRC the story in serial form was broadcast by Miss Peggy Albion, famous children's story teller, for three days, commencing Xmas day. Advance notices of this were sent to every newspaper in Washington, Virginia and Maryland, so this feature covered the entire district included in the Washington exchange.

Through arrangement with the Washington Evening Star, 1,500 orphans and newsboys saw the picture, over a period of five days. Each day the Star carried a big story with photograph of the group attending the picture. The enthusiasm was always at the highest pitch.

Special showing to British Ambassador at British Embassy, from which exceptional testimonial was received.

Distribution of 10,000 rotogravures by Milton R. Ney, exclusive Peter Pan Dress dealer, with a contest for Peter Pan dresses. Distribution of 5,000 Heralds by Louis & Co., music dealers. Playing of Peter Pan on radio by orchestra.

Window tie-ups with leading stores, showing books, Peter Pan cravats, kid clothes, Peter Pan dresses, Peter Pan fountain pens and Peter Pan hats.

Every orphan attending the performance was given a box of candy by the Loew management and a toy airship by the Chapin-Sacks Ice Cream Co. Sixty sets of twins, members of an Uncle Pal club of the Washington News guests of theatre.

Newspaper ads, etc.

"Peter Pan" played an entire week at the Colonial Theatre, Richmond, Va., (Harry Bernstein, mgr.)

Through arrangement with the News-Leader, Richmond's leading newspaper, 1,000 orphans were guests of the theatre over a period of five days. Transported in worst weather of the year by Traction Company in big busses.

Radio story from Washington (WRC) for three days, by Miss Peggy Albion, telling story of Peter Pan.

Exceptional window tie-ups for Peter Pan kid clothes, Peter Pan dress, books and cravats.

Lobby display of dresses given away in contest. Excited unusual attention and interest.

1,000 Peter Pan buttons.

Extra heavy display of paper, including twenty-four sheets, rotos and photographs.

Exceptionally fine reviews, with daily story and photographs of orphan parties.

Critic in News-Leader in review advised everybody in Richmond to see the picture.

Business throughout the week was exceptional.

Yours very truly,
EDWARD J. WALL,
Exploitation Representative.

"Tongue Twisters" Are Aids in Ohio

In the Cincinnati territory, Bill Danziger, Paramounter, visited Cincinnati, Dayton, Hamilton, Middletown, Springfield, Lima, Findlay, Portsmouth and Chillicothe—these comprising the principal simultaneous release points on "Peter Pan."

Danziger followed one standardized campaign very closely. In almost every town—Lima, Portsmouth, Dayton, Springfield, Findlay and Middletown—he planned a Peter Pan tongue twister contest in the local paper. The stunt was to have readers write tongue twisters based on the two words, "Peter Pan." In the Springfield News contest alone there were 1,500 entries.

A feature of these contests was that the exhibitor paid very little—often as low as $10 and only once as high as $25 for scads of publicity. For second, third, fourth, fifth prizes Danziger got Peter Pan merchants in each town to donate Peter Pan dresses, kid clothes, cravats and books as prizes. These merchants, yanked into the newspaper editorial columns, were at once willing to provide window displays.

Another angle employed by Danziger in Findlay, Dayton, Middletown, Portsmouth, and Springfield was to sell the back page on the "Peter Pan" roto to some local advertiser. In these instances the advertiser paid for the cost of the roto. All that the theatre had to pay was the cost of imprinting.

In Cincinnati, in conjunction with Bill Clark of the Capitol Theatre, Danziger arranged with the Times-Star to give showings of "Peter Pan" to all orphanges. This netted a story each day for nine days prior to the opening with a total of 2,800 lines of free publicity. Besides this, Danziger and Clark obtained window displays from Dow Drug, McAlpin's Department Store and the Alms and Doepke Co.—three choice spots. The latter store distributed 10,000 imprinted Peter Pan rotos with bundles leaving their store.

In Cincinnati, "Peter Pan" broke the Capitol's house record.

Betty's Chicago Radio Heard in Oklahoma

SOUTHERN ENTERPRISES, INC.
514 W. Grand Ave.
Oklahoma City, Okla.
January 3, 1925.

Mr. Robert E. Welsh,
Editor Motion Picture World,
516 Fifth Ave.,
New York City.
Dear Mr. Welsh:

Your letter of December 30 just received and contents noted. Was indeed glad to hear from you. Following is a partial list of my activities in the Oklahoma territory on Peter Pan:

Four prints were booked to start on December 28:

Seven days at Criterion Theatre, Oklahoma City.

Seven days at Majestic Theatre, Tulsa.

Four days at Palace Theatre, Muskogee.

Four days at Cozy Theatre, Okmulgee.

I personally made each town, and tied up 7 windows at Oklahoma City, 15 at Tulsa, 6 at Muckogee, and 6 at Okmulgee. Newspaper page was sold at Oklahoma City, also at Okmulgee. All shows opened to capacity business; hundreds being turned away. The picture is conceded to be the biggest production seen in years; equally delightful and entertaining to the grown folks as well as the little ones. It has and will get nation-wide publicity.

The story was broadcasted by Miss Bronson from the Sherman Station, Chicago, on December 20 at 9.00 P. M. and was distinctly heard by a great many radio fans in the city of Tulsa, where I arranged for this stunt. Also the tie-ups arranged by Mr. Leon J. Bamberger, Asst. Mgr. Division of Exploitation, Famous-Players Lasky Corp., New York City, are the biggest, most varied and best that have ever been tied-up with any motion picture production.

The whole state of Oklahoma is talking about Peter Pan, and I predict that it gets away and maintains "record-breaking business everywhere."

With kind personal regards and best wishes, I am

Yours very truly,
W. A. TAYLOR,
Exploitation Representative,
Famous Players-Lasky Corp. of Oklahoma City, Okla.

"Kisses From Betty Bronson"

Harry Koch, manager of the Ohio Theatre, Indianapolis, and "Irv" Waterstreet, Paramount Exploiteer, last week gave the office help in Indianapolis a treat with "Kisses from Betty Bronson."

These were given out in many of the office buildings in the form of a candy kiss placed in a tissue bag labeled "A Kiss from Betty Bronson," coming to the Ohio Theatre in "Peter Pan," etc.

Something like 3,000 of these were distributed in this manner, and besides being a novelty, it proved a good advertising feature never before used there.

"Peter Pan" Sundaes in Terre Haute

"Peter Pan Sundaes" in drug stores and at soda fountains in Terre Haute, Ind., were part of the campaign. This was in the form of a new dish specially prepared by "Irv" Waterstreet, Paramount Exploiteer. Other special feature tie-ups were effected by Maurice A. Fox, manager of the American Theatre, and Waterstreet, which included two double page tie-ups with newspapers, feature windows with jewelry, department and music stores, were in abundance.

Exhibitor comment on "Peter Pan" was published exclusively in last week's issue of the Moving Picture World.

"So This Is Marriage" is Well Received by New York Critics

"SO THIS IS MARRIAGE" has been received at the Capitol Theatre, New York, without one dissenting voice among the Gotham critics as an absorbing and blithely entertaining comedy of married life. Hobart Henley directed this picture from the story by Carey Wilson, adapted to the screen by John Lynch and Alice D. G. Miller. Frederick and Fanny Hatton wrote the titles. Henley's direction and the performances of Eleanor Boardman, Conrad Nagel and Lew Cody have particularly pleased the critics in this film.

"Those clever three," writes Regina Cannon in the New York Graphic, "Eleanor Boardman, Conrad Nagel and Lew Cody, are responsible for the delightful bits of acting in the production. It is a blithe, entertaining and bright with plenty of laughs thrown in for good measure. A Biblical sequence in colors is very effective. Don't miss this picture. It is utterly delightful."

"Hobart Henley has done an excellent job," testifies George Gerhard in the New York Evening World. "The Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer director has handled the story with a deftness and a tempo that carry it evenly and logically to a perfectly convincing conclusion."

The New York Evening Post remarks—"Its getting to be so that when we see 'story by Carey Wilson' we can count on a plot which has some sense to it and which is pretty well within the range of the average person's own experience. This story is about married life, about kisses, tears and quarrels. It is chock full of honest laughter, due to the fact that Hobart Henley, who directed, evidently has a keen sense of humor which he allowed to percolate through every foot of the film. The picture is very adroitly handled from every angle. Eleanor Boardman and Conrad Nagel, as the married pair who battle every first of the month are delightful. Lew Cody is his usual good self in his usual home-wrecking part."

"Such an affably satirical photoplay as 'So This Is Marriage'," observes the New York Telegram and Mail, "is liable to make any wrangling couple laugh a little guiltily at their overwrought but inane bickering and drop all thought of consulting attorneys. Henley and the author of this story, Carey Wilson, have added to one's store of sophisticated wisdom because they both have a sense of unspoiled humor. It is never stereotyped. There is no maudlin, sentimental finish to flatten out this saucy production. To say that the acting is quite worthy of the story is to say that now and then an author's dream comes true. As the wife, Eleanor Boardman gives a charming portrait."

"The Boomerang" Cast

Many of the most important scenes in B. P. Schulberg's special production, "The Boomerang," from the David Belasco play, have already been completed by Gasnier who is directing this Preferred Picture. J. G. Bachmann, vice-president and general manager of distribution, has named March first as the release date. Telegraphic word came from the coast today that Mary McAllister has replaced Ruth Dwyer, previously announced to play one of the important roles. The complete cast now consists of Anita Stewart and Bert Lytell as the leads, supported by Arthur Edmund Carewe, Philo McCullough, Winter Hall, Francis Feeney and Mary McAllister.

"Woman-Handled"

Milton Sills will have the featured role in First National's production of "Woman-Handled," from Gerald Beaumont's new novel, "The Making of O'Malley." This will be his second picture in which he has appared at the company's New York studio, the first being "I Want My Man," from Struthers Burt's novel, "The Interpreter's House," in which Sills and Doris Kenyon production has been completed.

"Brummel" Heads List

The current issue of "The Check Up," a box-office guide to pictures made up from reports received from exhibitors all over the country, shows that ten productions have attained ratings of 90 per cent. or more during the year. The list is headed by Warner Bros. "Beau Brummel."

A WARNER "FIND"

Seventeen-year-old Caroline Deas, destined for a chance at stardom after Warner Brothers picked her from Hawaii's beauties, reaches the Hollywood studios and is seen with H. M. Warner (right) and Jack Warner (left).

"The Talkers" Rork's Next

Sam Rork's next production for First National release will be a screen version of Marion Fairfax's play, "The Talkers," produced some years ago with conspicuous success with Tully Marshall in the leading role.

The two leading players have been selected —Anna Q. Nilsson and Lewis Stone.

Warner Bros. Picture Captures a Record

Warner Bros. received this week the following telegram from the Franklin Film Co., Boston distributors:

"Haverhill, Mass., Jan. 3, 1925.

"Franklin Film Co.,

"36 Piedmont St., Boston.

"Congratulations. 'Lighthouse by the Sea' establishes new record for business in Haverhill.

"EDWARD M. FOLEY."

Some of the action in "Fighting Mad," one of "The Battling Cowboy" series featuring Billy Sullivan and released through Universal.

Scenes from "Never the Twain Shall Meet," a Cosmopolitan production released by Metro.

Scott on Selling Trip

Head of Pathe Features Department Leaves For Southern Tour

Harry Scott, Feature Sales Manager for Pathe, leaves this week for an extended trip through the Southern States to supervise the sales of Pathe's most recent feature-length productions which include "White Sheep," "Battling Orioles" and Harold Lloyd's "Hot Water."

Mr. Scott recently returned from a similar trip through the Middle West. Most of the biggest circuits in this section have been contracted on the Lloyd comedy. In the Chicago territory, Lubliner and Trinz with their fifteen theatres have contracted for "Hot Water," while Ascher Brothers (17 theatres), the Fitzpatrick and McElroy Circuit (10 theatres) and the Midwest Theatres Circuit (15 theatres) have also signed for the latest Lloyd comedy to play their showhouses.

In the East the most recent circuit contracts to be signed on the Lloyd picture are the Wilmer and Vincent Circuit of Pennsylvania and the Gordon Circuit of Boston.

"After Six Days" at Tudor

Big Campaign Planned for Weiss Brothers' Feature in New Orleans

J. Eugene Pearce, owner of the Tudor Theatre, New Orleans, one of the leading first run houses in the Gulf City, is conducting an intensive exploitation campaign on "After Six Days," Weiss Brothers' Artclass Pictures Corporation's super-feature of the Old Testament, which begins an indefinite run at that house on January 11.

Mr. Pearce made a special trip to New York just before the holidays to book this attraction and to consult with Weiss Brothers as to the best ways and means to put the feature over in New Orleans in the biggest possible manner.

In addition to big advance display space and a teaser campaign in the local newspapers, Mr. Pearce is billing New Orleans as it has never been billed before, over two hundred twenty-four sheets alone having been put up in advance of the initial showing, every available stand in the city and suburbs being leased for the purpose.

Great interest has also been aroused by the Bible question contests, inaugurated by Mr. Pearce among the Sunday Schools and church-going public, and the advance sale on the picture, he reports, already has outdistanced all previous records at the Tudor.

Los Angeles-Washington Hail "Dante's Inferno" a Film Classic

THE ever growing list of important first run cities to endorse in sensational terms the Fox Film Corporation screen version of "Dante's Inferno" add Los Angeles and Washington, D. C.

Harold Horne, managing director of the Criterion Theatre of Los Angeles in a telegram to local Fox exchange makes this attestation of the literary classic's drawing power when he says:

"Notwithstanding usual pre-Christmas decline "Dante's Inferno" still playing to capacity crowds. First Sunday holds record for attendance. Look forward to most effective run in history of house."

When it opened at the Rialto Theatre, in Washington, D. C., managed by that popular and capable showman Charlie Raymond, it elicited the following praise from the critics:

The Herald: "It is massive, spectacular, and moving—a picture that may well be compared to 'The Ten Commandments.' Indeed, it is 'The Ten Commandments' that Dante's Inferno' recalls more vividly than any other screen predecessors. Like that great spectacle, a modern story forms the thread of the continuity, and in both the theme of the modern story is the retribution, swift and terrible, that follows the breaking of Divine laws. The basis of the 'Inferno' is rather stronger than that of 'The Ten Commandments,' if anything, and the spectacular scenes are no less amazing."

The Star: "Spectacular, awe-inspiring and sometimes breath-taking is 'Dante's Inferno,' the Fox Film Co.'s version of the Italian poet's classic, which the Rialto Theatre is serving this week as the piece de resistance of its New York bill. The picture, as a whole, is a masterpiece of cinema photography."

The Post: "Seriously, 'Inferno' is one of the best things Fox has done since 'Monte Cristo.' The sets constructed for the infernal sequences are marvels of realistic and futuristic horror."

The Times: "The transcriptions of the Gustav Dore paintings of the Plutonian regions are excellent. Photographically the film version of the Dante masterpiece is a remarkable series of pictures in which a searing, literal realism is not attempted. The woes of the damned are eloquently given in composition based upon the work of Dore. The usual movie insistence upon detail is gratefully absent."

Willard Louis' Role

Two-fifths of all the Warner Bros. feature players have been cast in "The Man Without a Conscience" just completed at the Hollywood studio. The company boasts the services of Irene Rich, Willard Louis, June Marlowe and John Patrick. This is the first time so many contract stars have played in one picture.

"The Golden Cocoon"

Ruth Cross, author of "The Golden Cocoon," one of the season's best sellers, which Warner Bros. will produce next season, has gone to Texas where several scenes of her new novel to be published by Harpers early in 1925, are located. The author is putting the final touch to her book.

Battling over the details of a new contract just signed by Reed Howes with Harry J. Brown for a second series of Howes' releases. Seconding Howes is Dwight C. Leefer, and as second to Harry Brown is W. Ray Johnston, president of Rayart.

WALTER McGRAIL
Playing featured roles in two Fox productions, "Gerald Cranston's Lady" and the late release, "The Dancers."

"Crossed Words" Substituted

A change in the program for the coming season is announced by Producers Distributing Corporation in the substitution of "Crossed Words" for "The Unknown Soldier" as Renaud Hoffman's second production, to be released in April. It is Hoffman's intention to produce "The Unknown Soldier" later in the year. "Crossed Words" was written by George Patullo for the Saturday Evening Post.

Teachers See "Abraham Lincoln"

As a direct result of the showing of First National's Al and Ray Rockett production of "Abraham Lincoln" before the Louisiana State Teachers' Association in convention at Shreveport, La., that picture has been booked in Sherevport and two other towns. Salesman S. J. Stockard of the New Orleans branch arranged for the showing and made the booking.

"The Desert Flower"

First National Pictures has assigned "The Desert Flower," the current Broadway stage success, written by Don Mullally, the screen rights to which it recently bought, to Colleen Moore as her third starring vehicle for the corporation, "So Big" having been the first and "Sally," now in production, the second. The continuity is now being prepared and the art department will soon begin work for production. Director Alfred E. Green is making excellent progress on "Sally" and "The Desert Flower" will go into production soon after the completion of the picture being made from the musical comedy production.

ANDERSEN & LAMASURE
PEERLESS FILM CO.
MOTION PICTURE PRODUCERS
Specialists in
Commercial and Educational Subjects
Developing, Printing and Titling
MATHER BLDG.
Franklin 2698, 916 G St. N. W., Washington, D. C.

Paramount Seeks World's Most Beautiful Girls for New Film

ONCE again Hollywood is searching throughout the world for beautiful girls. The belief that loveliness is a drug on the market in the film capital was given a rude jolt when Jesse L. Lasky, First Vice-President of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, announced that Paramount had sent out a call for twelve girls declared the most beautiful in the world of beauty courts of 1924.

America, Europe and the Orient are to be combed for perfection of feminine beauty, declared the film executive. Famous artists have been invited to nominate their choice. Beauty contests from Atlantic City to Paris have been watched and the search will not be ended until twelve beauties, considered to be the most perfect in the two hemispheres, have been found and brought to Hollywood.

"The chosen dozen will cast as mannequins, offering the most lavish display of beauty and fashion which has never been screened," stated Mr. Lasky.

The production is "The Dressmaker from Paris," which Paul Bern will direct and in which Leatrice Joy will return to the screen after an absence of almost a year. Ernest Torrence will appear in one of the most important roles.

The twelve mannequins will have important roles, will receive screen credit and will be featured in all the advertising of the picture, so that those finally chosen will be established on the road to screen fame.

Every country will be given the opportunity to compete for position in array of beautiful women who will appear in this picture. Hollywood girls are not barred but they must compete with representative beauties from all over the world.

By special arrangements, Travis Banton, one of the foremost designers of the French capital, will create for the mannequins the most elaborate array of gowns and costumes ever designed for a single picture. Many of these designs were actually prepared for release next spring in Parisian shops, when Mr. Banton was secured by Paramount.

Big Tom Mix Picture Listed

"Dick Turpin" Most Ambitious of Actor's Productions to be Released by Fox January 18

Fox release for the week of January 18 will be featured by the special production "Dick Turpin," the picturization of the thrilling life of the celebrated English highwayman, with none other than Tom Mix himself in the title role.

"Dick Turpin" is the most expensive production in which Tox Mix has ever appeared and it will be given a Broadway presentation by Fox at the Central Theatre, where it will follow "The Dancers" on January 22. This is another important milestone in the life of Tom Mix marking as it does the first time he ever starred in a production to be honored with a New York premiere.

"Corsica, the Beautiful," an Educational short subject, and "Rough and Ready," a William Farnum re-issue, are the only other Fox releases for the week of January 18.

"Nothing to Wear"

Samuel Shipman has completed an original screen story for Metro-Goldwyn, titled "Nothing to Wear." Shipman's stage success, "Cheaper to Marry," has been made into a picture by Metro-Goldwyn.

Lew Cody and Eleanor Boardman in a scene from the Hobart Henley production, "So This Is Marriage," released by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

"Honeymoon Hardships" From Pathe on January 25 List

THE Pathe releasing program for the week of January 25 provides considerable diversity of screen entertainment. Heading the list are a Hal Roach and a Mack Sennett comedy and the sixth chapter of the Patheserial "Galloping Hoofs," the race track serial featuring Johnnie Walker and Allene Ray.

The title of the Mack Sennett comedy is "Honeymoon Hardships," seventh release of the third series of this brand of screen humor. The story, by Tay Garnett and Jefferson Moffitt, directed by Ralph Cedar, is that of a newly married couple who spend their honeymoon on the farm. The hardships of farming and farm life, coupled with the antics of an unruly automobile, give the young couple enough thrills on their honeymoon to last a lifetime. Alice Day as the bride barely survives the honeymoon, while her brand new husband, Raymond McKee, is not quite decided which is the most dangerous—war, or a wedding. Billy Bevan and Sunshine Hart as the farmers do everything in their power to make the honeymoon a success—from an insurance agent's point of view.

In the Hal Roach comedy, "Laugh That Off," the famous "Spat Family" start on a cross country tour in a specially designed automobile equipped with all the comforts of home. Frank Butler, Sidney D'Albrook and Laura Roessing finally reach their destination, but only after undergoing every trial and tribulation the road can exact from weary tourists. Jay A. Howe handled the direction of this production, seventh release of the third series of "Spats" pictures made by Hal Roach.

"Raging Waters" is the title of the sixth chapter of the Patheserial "Galloping Hoofs." This is one of the most thrilling chapters in the entire serial. The mysterious box has disappeared, and Johnnie Walker, one of the featured players, is leading a frantic search for it. The breaking of a giant dam is the climax of this chapter.

The Grantland Rice Sportlight scheduled for the week, "Brain and Brawn," is based on the method of military institutions in building up a youth's body at the same time that they are developing his brain.

Pathe Review No. 4 carries the final installment of the "Keep Fit" series of scientific setups. It shows how to apply the "Keep Fit" exercises to your daily life. Another interesting subject dealt with in this issue of the Pathe Review is "Kiri Clogs." It shows how the Japanese make wooden slippers. "Visiting Our Own America," a unique Pathecolor series on American cities, shows Pittsburgh.

"Hold That Thought" is the title of the Aesop's Film Fables for the week. "Topics of the Day" No. 4 and Pathe News Nos. 10 and 11 complete the program for the week.

Hot Water Closes Big Run

Harold Lloyd in "Hot Water" closed a five weeks' run at the B. F. Moss' Cameo Theatre last week following a three-week engagement at the Mark Strand Theatre on Broadway.

De Mille to Produce Father's Play

There is sentiment behind William DeMille's production of "Men and Women" for Paramount.

The original play from which the film adaptation was made was written by the producer-director's father, Henry C. DeMille, and David Belasco.

That was back in 1890 when William was in his 'teens and when he and his younger brother, Cecil B., used to play about the old Belasco offices or in the Twenty-third Street Theatre in New York during the rehearsals of the play.

Clara Beranger adapted the play to the screen.

For the cast the producer-director has assembled Claire Adams, Neil Hamilton, Flora Finch and Henry Stephenson to support Richard Dix.

Fox to Do Evans' Novel

"Once to Every Man," Larry Evans' popular novel, will be picturized by Fox as part of its 1925-26 program, according to an official announcement by that company. John Ford will direct the filming of the Evans story. George O'Brien will have the leading role. Production will be started shortly. The selection of the remainder of the cast is now progressing.

Hope Hampton in "Fifty-fifty"

Hope Hampton returns to the screen in "Fifty-Fifty" for Associated Exhibitors, work on which will be started next week. She is to be co-starred with Lionel Barrymore. This is the first screen production which she has made since she starred in "The Price of a Party" for the same releasing corporation.

Recently she appeared in the title role of the Charles Dillingham-Martin Beck stage production, "Madame Pompadour," in Philadelphia and was universally praised by the critics there. She did not, however, play this part in New York City though she had received since its opening at the Martin Beck Theatre several offers to return to the title role.

Diament Berger will direct "Fifty-Fifty." He is the most famous of all French directors, having made many productions abroad, including "Three Musketeers." "Fifty-Fifty" is his first production made in America.

Service!

Service is now, always has been, and always will be an absolute and important part of the

PATHE NEWS

You get the best pictures first!

You get them first because the best and most experienced news picture-gathering organization in the business is backed up by its own laboratories which work night and day to get out the prints first.

Then the Pathe News spares neither money nor effort to get the prints to you first.

When you book the Pathe News you have booked an incomparable service also.

Officials See Big Picture

Great Enthusiasm Aroused by "Charley's Aunt" Screening

The first print of "Charley's Aunt," Al Christie's big special comedy was received by Producers Distributing Corporation and according to the unanimous opinion of everyone in the releasing company present at its initial private screening the production is a "knock-out."

After the screening, F. C. Munroe, president of Producers Distributing Corporation sent a brief telegram to Al. Christie. It contained just ten words but they spoke volumes. The telegram read: "'Charley's Aunt' is the funniest farce in forty years. Ovations."—Signed, F. C. Munroe.

Paul Mooney, vice president in charge of distribution, Producers Distributing Corporation, says that he is willing to wager that there is not a critic on any newspaper, magazine or trade journal who will not laud this production to the skies when it is presented on the screen.

"Charley's Aunt" will be the first "big plum" on the coming season's schedule of releases through Producers Distributing Corporation and will be available on February 2.

Active in the East

First National to Start Three New Productions at Its Eastern Studios

Following the completion of "I Want My Man," from Struthers Burt's novel, "The Interpreter's House," featuring Milton Sills and Doris Kenyon, and "One Way Street," with Anna Q. Nilsson and Ben Lyon, First National will put three new productions into work at its Eastern studios. Photography will start within a week or ten days.

The three pictures are:

"Uriah's Son," from Stephen Vincent Benet's story, with Ben Lyon in the leading role. John Francis Dillon will direct. A new title will be given to this production.

"Chickie," Elenore Meherin's newspaper serial which has received wide publicity through its publication in the Hearst string of newspapers. Dorothy Mackaill has been selected for the role of Chickie. The director has not yet been decided upon.

"Womanhandled," from Gerald Beaumont's story, "The Making of O'Malley," with Lambert Hillyer directing and with Milton Sills in the leading role.

First National's Leader Group Productions Off to Fine Start

THREE of First National's Leader group of pictures for the new year have been completed and several others are well along in production, so that the distribution department has something substantial in the way of assurance to prospective customers that the Leader group will exceed in quality, the best of First National's past performances for the exhibitors of the country.

"A Thief in Paradise," Samuel Goldwyn and George Fitzmaurice's production based upon Leonard Merrick's novel, "The Worldlings," was completed a few weeks ago and is so compact of drama, novelty, picturesqueness and real human nature that the end of the year will surely find it standing high in the list of the best pictures of 1925. It easily ranks as the best of the series of Goldwyn-Fitzmaurice productions which First National has released.

Richard Barthelmess has also finished his next First National release, "New Toys," from the play by Oscar Hammerstein II and Edwin Milton Gropper. The star's wife, Mary May, is his leading woman.

Colleen Moore will be represented in the Leader group by "Sally," now far along in production under the direction of Alfred E. Green. June Mathis prepared the continuity for this picture from Guy Bolton's musical comedy success produced on the stage by Florenz Ziegfeld, with Marilyn Miller and Leon Errol. The latter has his original role in the film version with Miss Moore.

Corinne Griffith will be an early entrant in the Leader group with Zoe Akins' greatest stage success, "Declasse," in the Ethel Barrymore role. Robert G. Vignola is directing.

Milton Sills and Doris Kenyon are also First National players who will figure early in the list of Leader pictures. They co-featured in "I Want My Man," from Struthers' novel, "The Interpreter's House," now being edited and titled. Lambert Hillyer directed under the supervision of Earl Hudson.

"One Way Street" is also nearing completion at the company's Eastern studios, under the direction of John Francis Dillon. Anna Q. Nilsson and Ben Lyon are featured.

These are early releases in the Leader group and each holds such great promise for the exhibitor showing them that the distribution department finds itself closing contracts for the entire group of pictures at a faster rate than ever before in the history of the company.

Marie Prevost's Contract

Warner Brothers Are Expected to Renew Their Agreement With Screen Beauty

Every indication points to a renewal of the contract of Marie Prevost by the Warner Brothers. The actress' agreement with the firm expires soon and an option has been taken on the talented player's services.

Miss Prevost has done exceptionally fine work under Warner Brothers' banner and has come in for lavish praise from the public and critics. She stood out particularly well in "The Dark Swan" and it was on the occasion of its presentation in New York that the critics said Miss Prevost left her bathing girl days behind her and had emerged as an actress of talent.

Since Miss Prevost has come into her own under the Warner Brothers' management, it was indicated at the firm's office recently that the contract would be renewed.

Cortez Begins "The Spaniard"

With Ricardo Cortez in the title role, production has started on "The Spaniard" at Famous Players-Lasky's Hollywood Studio. This Paramount picture will give Cortez his big chance on the screen. Jetta Goudal arrived from New York a few days ago to play the featured feminine lead. Noah Beery is portraying an important characterization. Raoul Walsh is the producer.

Jack Pickford in "My Son"

With the addition of Jack Pickford as a featured actor to the cast of "My Son," Edwin Carewe announces that the player roster for this First National picture has been filled. Nazimova is the star and such artists as Hobart Bosworth, Ian Keith, Charley Murray, Mary Akin, Constance Bennett and Dot Farley enact the principal supporting roles.

Betty Compson in scenes from the Paramount production, "New Lives For Old," in which she appears with Wallace MacDonald.

President Albert E. Smith Reviews Vitagraph's Record

ALBERT E. SMITH, president of Vitagraph, in a statement to the MOVING PICTURE WORLD on the eve of the twenty-eighth anniversary of the birth of Vitagraph, in 1897, on his return last Sunday from Hollywood, reviewed the position of his company. In part, Mr. Smith said:

Twenty-eight years ago, in February, William T. Rock, J. Stuart Blackton and I organized Vitagraph. It was the first independent firm to produce motion pictures for the amusement world. Long before the business of producing and distributing became the involved industry it is today Vitagraph led in supplying films to the independent exhibitors.

The little fellows who set up projection machines in vacant storerooms in the crowded districts, where people thirsted for entertainment within their means, remember the Eagle—the brand of Vitagraph. Today those men stand at the top of the list of theatre owners in America. Their patrons and the sons and daughters of their patrons talk of Vitagraph with an open tongue. Vitagraph has stood for all that was good in entertainment and in business policy in pictures.

In an industry which has suffered the criticism to which motion pictures have been subjected, there are bound to be skyrocket advancements and plummet-like falls. It has been my pleasure to guide Vitagraph steadily forward, up the road to now, with but a single goal before me—permanency.

I take a pardonable pride in Vitagraph's steady sailing. Vitagraph has escaped the rocks of vanity and has weathered the seas of competition.

"Star" System Discarded

More than two years ago I discarded the so-called "star" system, a system burdened by little plots usually selected to fit the players. I decided the public was tired of having minor stories, indifferent direction and careless production shoved down its throat under the temptation of "star" billing.

I saw that the trashy, anaemic sex story was doomed. I instituted in Vitagraph production the making of big, vital, man's size stories; casts to fit the characters, directors selected because of their ability to film such dramas.

Human interest, cleanliness, action, punch—these were the standards by which Vitagraph was to select future stories.

I proved that I was right in the release of the very first picture, "The Ninety and Nine," filmed from the great old play of that name, in which the forest fire, as screened, became an actual part of the propaganda of the United States Government in its fight against fire carelessness in the wilderness.

"Masters of Men" was produced from the greatest sea story ever told, written by Morgan Robertson. It was hailed as the greatest American film since "The Battle Cry of Peace," which J. Stuart Blackton produced for Vitagraph. David Smith made "Masters of Men." He followed it with another story of equal breadth in entertainment, "Pioneer Trails."

Today Vitagraph stands at the head of producing companies on self-won merit.

"Captain Blood" Scores Success

"Captain Blood," produced by David Smith, is the outstanding picture smash of a decade. It has been hailed by the industry, by the public and by the exhibitors as the top-notch picture of the season of 1924-1925. My contribution to this success was but the confidence that I have always had in Vitagraph and the foundation of permamency upon which it has been built.

"The Clean Heart" or "The Cruelties of Life," produced by J. Stuart Blackton, followed "Captain Blood" and won the instant commendation of every lover of moving pictures for its sheer artistry. Blackton followed this with "The Beloved Brute," again proving that great stories can be made "differently" and be box-office attractions.

I announced less than a year ago a schedule of twenty-six releases by Vitagraph this season. Half of these have been finished and placed on the market, and they have been released to exhibitors. When I was tempted by my advisors—there are many advisors in this business—to hold "Captain Blood" for road shows and skim this picture of the gravy of exhibition values, I said:

"Vitagraph always has made pictures for exhibitors. It is not in the theatre business; it tries to control no man's entertainment. This policy will be continued by Vitagraph."

Vitagraph's Policy

"Captain Blood" has enjoyed more than 1,000 first runs to date, and, my friends, every one of these bookings has registered by exhibitors. It is an exhibitors' picture, made for exhibitors who want to give their public the best.

That is Vitagraph policy. It was Vitagraph policy in 1897; it is Vitagraph policy in 1925.

Good stories can be obtained only from good authors. In the 1924-1925 schedule of Vitagraph are Rafael Sabatini, A. S. M. Hutchinson, Booth Tarkington, Basil King, James Oliver Curwood, E. Phillips Oppenheim, Louis Joseph Vance, Leonard Merrick, Will E. Ingersoll and other men whose writings stand for clean, wholesome stories with a punch.

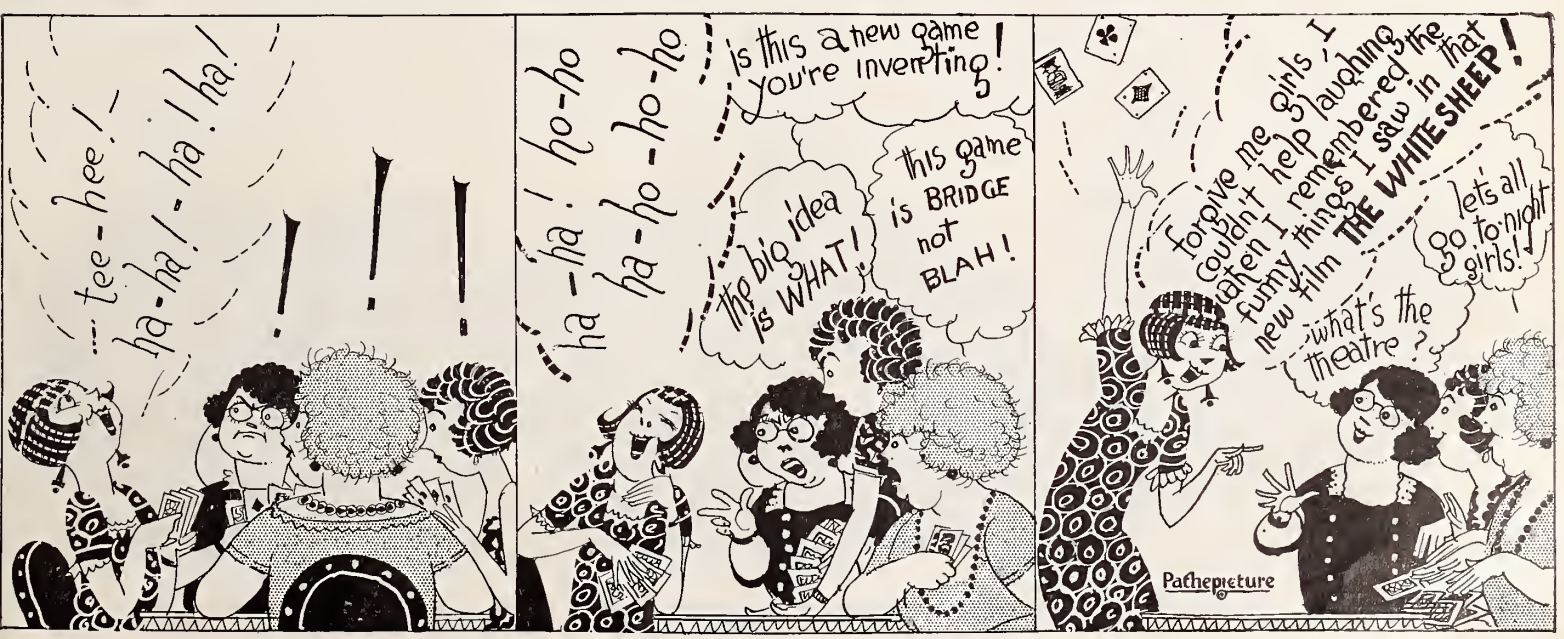
Vitagraph has not forgotten box office attractions in its casts. Nazimova leads with "The Redeeming Sin," which J. Stuart Blackton has just completed; Cullen Landis, one of the youngest and most likable stars, has the lead in "Pampered Youth," from the Pulitzer Prize novel, "The Magnificent Ambersons," by Booth Tarkington, now ready for booking; Percy Marmont, J. Warren Kerrigan, Marguerite de la Motte, Victor McLaglen, Irene Rich, Florence Vidor, Patsy Ruth Miller, Dustin Farnum, Pauline Frederick, Lou Tellegen, Marjorie Daw, Jane Novak, Kenneth Harlan and Alice Calhoun.

Twenty-seven years have passed since the late William T. Rock, J. Stuart Blackton and I organized the Vitagraph.

Vitagraph celebrates its twenty-eighth anniversary in February. In the time intervening it has released more than 15,000 motion pictures. Twenty-seven years of honorable service to the exhibitors lie behind it and it faces its coming years with but one aim—to continue to give clean, wholesome, healthful pictures to the public which has so long favored it with its patronage.

"Faint Perfume"

Preliminary work has begun on the screen version of Zona Gale's novel, "Faint Perfume" to be directed by Gasnier for B. P. Schulberg to release as a Preferred Picture. Eve Unsell is writing the script. "Faint Perfume" will be begun soon.



tee-hee!
ha-ha!-ha!-ha!
!!!
ha-ha! ho-ho
ha-ho-ho-ho is this a new game you're inventing!
the big idea is WHAT!
this game is BRIDGE not BLAH!
forgive me girls I couldn't help laughing when I remembered the funny things I saw in that new film THE WHITE SHEEP!
let's all go tonight girls!
what's the theatre?
Pathepicture

Jimmie Adams and Vera Steadman in a scene from "Step Fast," an Educational Christie comedy.

Ethel Clayton Returns

Popular Star Soon to Be Seen in a B. P. Schulberg Production

A mistake in a telegram was the cause of an erroneous announcement made last week to the effect that Katherine MacDonald would return to the screen in B. P. Schulberg's Preferred picture, "The Mansion of Aching Hearts."

The correct information is that Ethel Clayton will make her reappearance in films in this picture.

Mr. Schulberg is negotiating with Miss MacDonald to appear in another production to be started in the near future.

Miss Clayton is now at work in "The Mansion of Aching Hearts," under the direction of James P. Hogan, with Clara Bow, Cullen Landis, Sam de Grasse, Francis Feeney and Edward Gribbon.

Goulding Back from Trip

Edmund Goulding, Fox Film Corporation scenarist, has just returned to this country after an extensive tour of England and France for that company for the purpose of checking up on details for the scenario "Havoc," which he is writing. "Havoc" will be one of the special productions to be released by Fox Film Corporation for the 1925-26 season. It is an adaptation from the London stage success of the same name dealing with the physical and moral havoc wrought by the Great War.

"Thief of Bagdad" Is Given Notable Cleveland Premiere

CLEVELAND obtained its first view of Douglas Fairbanks in "The Thief of Bagdad" at the Stillman Theatre, beginning January 11. Under elaborate auspices this spectacular United Artists Corporation release opened to an unusually expectant public, the picture having been dated in a month earlier than originally planned, following many inquiries from motion picture public as to when it could be expected. The film showed at regular Stillman prices with a gala introduction consisting of an intensive advertising campaign and an ambitious presentation.

Besides a heavy newspaper campaign and numerous merchant tie-ups, the Stillman lobby was broken out with artistic atmospheric decorations. These included a lifesize mechanical elephant suggesting the spirit of the Orient. The marquee was built up with fantastic Bagdad spires. Inside over the main entrance was a huge shadow box containing a specially lighted presentation of the Enchanted Rug with Ahmed and the Princess on it. The interior lobby was draped in Oriental stuffs and rugs from a big Euclid avenue establishment, which also played up a Bagdad window display. Color was added to the lobby by thirty highly decorative Oriental fans, each twelve feet long, and grouped effectively against backgrounds of Persian and Chinese rugs. Specially designed art panels and Eastern vases and garden furniture among living palms carried out the Oriental scheme.

The stage presentation for Douglas Fairbanks in "The Thief of Bagdad" was in two parts. To a special overture by the Stillman orchestra, Maurice Spitalny, conductor, the plush curtains opened upon the Caliph's necromancer fortelling weird events over a caldron smoking with blue flames and clouds of incense. At the conclusion of his prologue another set of plush curtains behind him opened upon a scene in the clouds with the Enchanted Rug poised among them. The rug bore the characters of Ahmed and the Princess and had the appearance of speeding through space by reason of an effective use of a cloud machine playing upon the built-up scenery from a point just within the tabs of the parted drapery. Ahmed and the Princess, played by Fred G. True, a Cleveland baritone of prominence, and Miss Ruth Leigh, soprano, from a Broadway musical show, sang an effective love ballad, "Lovely Lady," composed by Carl Rupp. The words were adapted by Mr. True to be directly appropriate to the subject matter of "The Thief of Bagdad." At the conclusion of the song the second set of drapes were closed upon the Rug scene and the picture started on the plus, the latter opening again directly on the screen. The presentation was suggested by House Manager F. H. Cleary, and stage managed and developed by Production Manager G. W. Dumond of the Loew's Ohio Theatres Co.

Big co-operation with "The Thief of Bagdad" was provided among others by the Cleveland Public Library and a score of its branches with displays of stills and of literature and of plates bearing upon Bagdad, the Arabian Nights and the art of the East. During the engagement fifty northern Ohio editors were guests of the Stillman as special reviewers.

"Capital Punishment" Ready

Advertising Bombardment of New York Opens With 200 24-Sheets

A direct-to-the-public advertising campaign was begun this week in the New York territory in behalf of the Preferred Picture, "Capital Punishment," released this month as a special through B. P. Schulberg Productions.

Two hundred twenty-four sheets have already been posted in the business sections of the city. These are all lettered stands designed to give a big play to the title. Ten thousand one-sheets and an equal number of snipping cards are up throughout Greater New York, while fifteen thousand tags to be hung on doorknobs and automobiles have also been given out.

The picture is scheduled soon for a showing on Broadway. Its cast features Clara Bow, George Hackathorne, Elliott Dexter, Margaret Livtngston, Robert Ellis, Mary Carr and others.

Marion Completes Scripts

Frances Marion, noted scenario writer, has completed the scripts for the screen version of "Lightnin'" and "The First Year," two of the John Golden stage successes that will be produced by Fox Film Corporation as part of its 1925-26 program, according to an announcement by that company.

Scenes from "The Thundering Herd," produced by Paramount from the Zane Grey story; featuring Lois Wilson, Noah Beery and Raymond Hatton.

Colleen Moore Wins Critics In 1st National's "So Big"

WITH her impersonation of Selina Peake, the heroine of Edna Ferber's best-seller novel, "So Big," which First National has made into a picture under the skilful direction of Charles Brabin, Colleen Moore has won new artistic standing as a screen player. The picture had its New York premiere at the Strand Theatre last Sunday, and picture and star came in for high praise.

Morduant Hall in the New York Times wrote: "Colleen Moore, the young actress who has attained no mean success by her portrayal of flapper roles, delivers an astonishingly fine performance as Selina Peake DeJong. In the initial sequence Miss Moore is sympathetic, but she rises to eloquent histrionic heights in her characterization of the browbeaten wife of Pervus DeJong. Charles Brabin directed 'So Big.' His work is resourceful and imaginative. Wallace Beery plays the role of Klaas Pool. If any screen actor appeared to live a part, he does."

Harriette Underhill in the New York Tribune: "Miss Moore, we think, gives a remarkable performance. The styles of twenty-five years ago are strictly adhered to. Stars abound in the picture."

Mildred Spain in the Daily News: "If Colleen Moore doesn't get a huge slice of the movie melon for her Selina Peake, then there isn't any justice—that's all."

Joseph R. Fleisler in the Morning Telegraph: "Miss Moore's fans will be surprised and delighted at their idol's remarkable characterization. She reveals a depth and understanding of character that stamps her performance as certainly the finest of her career, and places her high among the screen's best actresses."

Dorothy Herzog in the New York Mirror: "Colleen Moore gives an interesting performance in the stages of youth, middle-age and old age. An excellent supporting cast flashed through sections of the feature."

Rose Pelswick in the New York Journal: "Colleen Moore is excellent. She shows remarkable dramatic ability. Colleen deserves a great deal of credit for the way in which she handled her part."

George Gerhard in the New York Evening World: "Colleen Moore does a wonderful job in 'So Big.'"

The Moviegoer in the New York Sun: "'So Big' at the Strand is raised to the stars by the beauty and the truth of the performance of Colleen Moore. There is no motion picture performance within the memory of the writer which is quite as excellent as the one that Miss Moore is giving."

Four Lloyd Pictures for First National

Frank Lloyd, independent producer and director, has just signed a contract to release four big productions through First National Pictures, Inc., during 1925. Announcement of the consummation of the new contract was made by Richard A. Rowland, general manager in charge of production for First National, who recently returned from Europe.

The new Lloyd pictures will feature casts of several internationally famous players rather than merely one or two stars, it is announced, and each release will be of a decidedly different nature. Mr. Lloyd states that he has read and analyzed more than one hundred stories, books and plays before making his selection for new picture plays.

Exhibitors Pleased with Four Star Series Plan of Century

THERE has been a decided response on the part of exhibitors in the United States and Canada to the recently announced policy of making four series of two-reel comedies with the four popular Century stars, Wanda Wiley, Edna Marian, Al Alt and Eddie Gordon, it is reported by Abe Stern, vice-president of the Century Film Corporation.

The new star series plan, made public by Stern several weeks ago, had a decided effect on sales, as confirmed by H. M. Herbel, sales manager of the Century corporation. Many of the exhibitors plainly stated that the outlook for a steady supply of comedies during the coming months, featuring the four stars, had much to do with their decision to sign up for the Century product.

One of the most outstanding examples of this swing to Century Comedies was on the part of the Saenger Amusement Company, the big theatre chain of the New Orleans territory, which has just made arrangements to show Century Comedies in ten of the theatres of that chain during 1925. The first picture to be shown under this arrangement will be "Looking Down," the Wanda Wiley two-reeler released January 7.

Among other theatres which have made arrangements during the last week or so for a 1925 presentation of Century Comedies, Herbel, names Proctor's Theatre in Albany. This theatre will show every Century Comedy released during the coming year. A similar arrangement also has been made with the Stratford Theatre, one of Chicago's high class houses.

Scenes from "The Greatest Love of All," an Encore picture starring George Beban, released through Associated Exhibitors.

Special Sales Staff to Handle Seven First National Pictures

THE new First National product to be marketed through E. A. Eschmann's special sales staff, consisting of his assistant, A. W. Smith, Jr., Stanley Hand, C. W. Bunn and A. Hickox, will include seven productions.

The pictures in this group are "The Lost World," "Quo Vadis," Norma Talmadge's two new pictures, now completed, "The Only Woman" and "The Lady," "Viennese Medley," "United States Flavor" and a new Frank Lloyd production.

"The Lost World" is having the finishing touches given to its editing and titling at First National's New York studios, under the supervision of Earl Hudson. Its world premiere will take place in Boston on February 2 at the Tremont Temple.

"Quo Vadis," the American and Australian rights to which were purchased by R. A. Rowland for First National on his recent trip to Europe, from the Unione Cinematographica Italiana, will have an early showing in New York City.

Frank Lloyd is now in New York, having completed "Her Husband's Secret," to confer with Mr. Rowland on his next picture, which will be a big production.

"Viennese Medley" will be a June Mathis production and "United States Flavor" an Earl Hudson special, in which Milton Sills and Doris Kenyon will be featured.

Mr. Smith and his staff of special salesmen will market these seven productions along lines similar to those used in handling the company's 1924 specials.

The staff of experienced exploitation men gathered by Allan S. Glenn, supervisor of exploitation, will be assigned to the key city showing of these productions and will give each of them extensive campaigns.

Begin on "Men and Women"

William De Mille is producing at the Long Island Studio for Paramount one of the big Belasco stage successes, "Men and Women," with a star cast headed by Richard Dix, Claire Adams, Neil Hamilton, Robert Edeson, Flora Finch and Henry Stephenson.

The original stage play, which was adapted to the screen by Clara Beranger, is one of the great group of dramas written by David Belasco and Henry C. De Mille, father of the Paramount producer, and shown in New York in 1890 at the time when Belasco was coming to the fore as a leading factor in stage production.

James P. Hogan Is Directing "Mansion of Aching Hearts"

WORKING well in advance of his schedule for the current season, B. P. Schulberg began production this week upon "The Mansion of Aching Hearts," listed for release in the early spring as a Preferred Picture.

James P. Hogan has been selected by Mr. Schulberg to handle the direction of this drama which carries a heart interest theme comparable to that in Hogan's productions "Where Is My Wandering Boy Tonight" or "Capital Punishment," a Preferred release which he recently completed for the Schulberg organization. "The Mansion of Aching Hearts" is the first of a series of pictures Hogan will direct for Preferred under a two-year contract which he signed following the completion of "Capital Punishment."

The leading role in "The Mansion of Aching Hearts" will be given to Clara Bow whose performance in a number of recent releases has placed her foremost among the young screen talent. A strong supporting cast is now being assembled and will be announced in the course of a few days.

The theme of one of the most popular songs ever written is woven into the entertaining story of "The Mansion of Aching Hearts." The ballad by that name composed by Harry Von Tilzer and Arthur J. Lamb, ran into an edition of millions and the tale of "the beautiful belle of the ball," of the young man who loved her, and of the secret of her life, will shape into a picture of strong box-office appeal. It is a cleverly constructed drama with strong emotional situations calling for lavish settings. It is built for a broad popular appeal.

Scenes from "Nero" of the Hysterical History comedies now being released by Universal.

Wesley Barry and Molly Malone in the Encore Pictures production, "Battling Bunyan," an Associated Exhibitor release.

Metro-Goldwyn Box-Office Results for 1924 Compiled

ACCORDING to a summary based on a week-by-week box-office estimate of business done in first-run houses in leading cities, 1924 records in the largest number of theatres were made by Metro-Goldwyn pictures, according to a statement from the latter company.

New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Los Angeles, San Francisco and Washington are the six cities represented in the summary, which numbers a total of 54 first-run theatres, including several "Broadway presentation" houses.

Eleven of those theatres, the largest number to have their high-water mark in a single week's receipts achieved by the product of one company, did their greatest business during the year with Metro-Goldwyn pictures.

These theatres, with the Metro-Goldwyn films that did the largest business in a single week during the year, and the amounts, are:

The Capitol, New York, with "He Who Gets Slapped" ($70,468); the Cosmopolitan, New York, with "The Great White Way" ($19,700); the Aldine, Philadelphia, with "Janice Meredith," ($16,000); the Arcadia, Philadelphia, with "The White Sister" ($7,000); the Stanley, Philadelphia, with "Fashion Row" ($30,000); the Stanton, Philadelphia, with "Little Old New York" ($14,000); the California, Los Angeles, with "Three Weeks" ($21,500); the Mission, Los Angeles, with "The White Sister" ($12,200); the California, San Francisco, with "The Shooting of Dan McGrew" ($23,000); the Strand, San Francisco, with "Three Weeks" ($14,300); and the Palace, Washington, with "His Hour" ($22,000).

At only two of these theatres, the Stanley and the Stanton in Philadelphia, were the amounts tied by Harold Lloyd and Valentino respectively, says a Metro-Goldwyn statement. No other company surpassed box office records in more theatres than these eleven.

An interesting feature of this summary is that Lillian Gish's "The White Sister" achieved the year's record business for theatres in Philadelphia and Los Angeles, while Eleanor Glyn's box-office value is established beyond question, with three Glyn productions among the high eleven. "Three Weeks" did the stunt in Los Angeles and San Francisco, and "His Hour" set the top pace in Washington.

Mrs. Glyn is now producing "Man and Maid" for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, while Lillian Gish, at present starring in Henry King's Inspiration production of "Romola," which features Dorothy Gish, is to star for Metro-Goldwyn in a special series presented by Charles H. Duell, Jr.

Marion Davies was the other Metro-Goldwyn star represented twice by "Janice Meredith" in Philadelphia and "Little Old New York," both in Philadelphia, but at different theatres.

Vitagraph Lists "Fear-Bound"

January 18 has been set as the official release date of "Fear-Bound," the thrilling Nigh-Smith production in which Marjorie Daw and Will Nigh have leading roles, an announcement from the Vitagraph executive offices says.

"Back to Life"

Associated Exhibitors to Release Whitman Bennett Special Based on War Story

The novel "Back from the Dead," written by Andrew Sartou, which has enjoyed tremendous popularity, has been screened under the title "Back to Life," and will be released by Associated Exhibitors on February 22.

"Back to Life" is a Whitman Bennett special production, made under the banner of H. Clay Miner. Patsy Ruth Miller is presented in the featured role. The theme of the picture revolves in part around the post-war period. The plot reveals a dramatic story of a case of mistaken identity, which takes its rise from the progress made in the field of facial surgery during and following the great World War.

Whitman Bennett, who handled the direction of "Back to Life," has surrounded Patsy Ruth Miller with David Powell, Lawford Davidson, Mary Thurman, George Stewart, Frederick Burton and Frankie Evans.

Edwards Joins Warner Staff

Warner Bros. announce another important addition to their studio staff this week in the appointment of Henry Edwards, for many years in charge of production of the Christy Comedies. According to word brought from the coast by H. M. Warner, Mr. Edwards is to be in charge of production during the approaching season.

O'Toole Heads Minneapolis

J. T. O'Toole has been appointed branch manager of Minneapolis exchange of Producers' Distributing Corporation, effective January 5, succeeding C. H. Feldman, who has taken charge of the Seattle branch.

Mr. O'Toole is one of the best known film men in the Northwest territory. Prior to his affiliation with Producers he had served for many years as branch manager for Selznick and Select organizations and is thoroughly in touch with the exhibitors' needs.

Scenes from "Sleeping Sickness," a Universal comedy.

THE CAVEMAN'S COFFEE

Conway Tearle seems quite tame when served his coffee by Alice Terry. From "The Great Divide," the Reginald Barker production for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

Pulitzer Prize Play of 1924 Bought by Warner Brothers

WARNER BROS. made another important buy this week, and what they regard as their biggest so far for next season, when they concluded negotiations pending for some time and purchased "Hell Bent for Heaven," the Pulitzer Prize Play that had a long run on Broadway in two houses and later met with considerable success on the road.

This play was put on under the direction of Marc Klaw and staged by Augustine Duncan, who also played the leading role. Mr. Klaw gave it several matinee performances in the Frazee Theatre at first to try it out. It was found to strike popular fancy sufficient to warrant him putting it into his own theatre late in 1923, where it enjoyed a six months' run into the spring of 1924, attracting considerable attention from the press and theatre goers.

It is an unusual play of the Blue Ridge Mountains, striking a blow at religious hypocrits, and contains none of the old mountain story hokum. In fact it is strong stuff, full of drama, and its most melodramatic parts are sincere and convincing.

After the New York engagement, which lasted about six months, the production was taken into several principal cities, and while on tour was adjudged the best play of 1924 by the men to whom is entrusted the duty of awarding the annual Pulitzer prize for the best play by an American playwright.

First of Harold Lloyd Reissues, "Now or Never"

ASSOCIATED Exhibitors announce this week the release of the first of the Harold Lloyd "Popular Demand Editions." This will be the comedy titled "Now or Never."

This was one of the most popular pictures made by the bespectacled star. An entire new line of paper, advertising and accessories, as well as a new campaign book, have been prepared in conjunction with the release.

The line-up of the producing staff is a collection of well-known film men who are responsible for the present success of Harold Lloyd. Hal Roach and Fred Newmeyer directed the picture. Sam Taylor and Harly M. Walker wrote the story and titles. Mildred Davis (the present Mrs. Harold Lloyd) is seen in the principal supporting role.

"Now or Never" is in three reels and carries the advertising paper generally carried by a feature-length production. A new line of paper consisting of a twenty-four sheet, two styles of one sheets, a six and a three sheet will be supplied the exhibitor.

Cross-Word Puzzle Films

Educational to Release One Brain Teaser Every Two Weeks—Each Will Be 500 Feet in Length

The crossword puzzle fad is due to hit the screen in a series of novelty reels to be released by Educational Film Exchanges. The new series will be known as "Judge's Crossword Puzzles" and will be produced by the Crossword Film Company in collaboration with "Judge," the famous magazine of humor. The reel will be edited by Norman C. Anthony, editor of "Judge" and the humor and novelty ideas incorporated in the reels will be originated by Judge's extensive staff of humorists.

The reels are distinctly humorous both in construction and in titling and in the action of the animation, which is from the pen of the well known cartoonist and animator. John C. Terry.

Prints of the subject are to be in all of the Educational Exchanges within a week or two and will be available for first run bookings immediately. Each subject will be about five hundred feet long and each will deal with one "puzzle." The subjects will be released at the rate of one each two weeks.

Extensive publicity plans are already under way and the greatest efforts will be made on the part of both the distributor and the producer to take the utmost advantage of the cross-puzzle fad which is sweeping the country.

"Black Caesar's Clan"

Seitz Pathe Serial Will Have Allene Ray in Leading Role

The selection of a featured player for the new Pathe serial, "Black Caesar's Clan," has been made in the person of Allene Ray. The company, headed by Director George B. Seitz, left New York for Florida Saturday, January 10, to begin production.

The story, in ten chapters, is laid in the Florida Everglades. In addition to Allene Ray the cast includes Walter Miller, Frank Lackteen, Ivan Linow and Charlie Fang. Horace G. Plimpton is in charge of the cameramen, under the direction of Spencer G. Bennett, assistant director.

Frank Leon Smith adapted the story from the Albert Payson Terhune book. Allene Ray and Frank Lackteen went from California to Florida.

C. A. P. Enters Field

Cinema Arts Will Feature Vera Gordon in "The Door Between"

Thelma Nurenberg, of the National Board of Review of Motion Pictures, has written a story, "The Door Between," the screen rights to which have been acquired by the Cinema Arts Productions, Inc., of 158 West 45th street, New York City.

C. A. P. further announces that Vera Gordon will be one of the featured players, and Charles Ascott, stage and screen comedian, will have a character role. Ascott was starred in a screen version of "Handy Andy," soon to be released.

The Cinema Arts Productions will, it is stated, screen Jennie Eddy's "Gateways of Life," a three-act drama based on the recent psychic theories of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle and Sir Oliver Lodge.

This company also has the screen rights to Edward O. Towne's "Too Rich to Marry," a sparkling comedy.

"Don Q" Fairbanks' Next

Work on New Production to Begin Soon—Will Be Ready in Early Spring

With the dawning of the New York, Douglas Fairbanks set the wheels of industry in motion at the Pickford-Fairbanks Studios by announcing that his next production will be "Don Q" built against a background of old Spain and serving as a sequel to "The Mark of Zorro," acclaimed by many as the most poplar picture ever filmed.

Donald Crisp has been engaged to direct Doug's new feature, and Jack Cunningham is rapidly bringing the scenario to completion.

Among others who have been added to the executive staff are Ted Reed, as production manager, and Francesco Cugat, celebrated Spanish artist, and Edward M. Langley, to the art staff.

"The art department is now working on designs," said Director Crisp, "and as soon as Douglas approves these we will begin building sets. From the appearance of things now I should judge we will be shooting by the middle of January."

Although casting is now under way for "Don Q" no one has yet been definitely engaged. Many of the best known players in the industry, however, are under consideration. At the present moment three very popular young women are being thought of to play opposite Doug, but it will probably not be decided for a week yet who the new leading lady is to be.

It is expected that "Don Q" will be ready for release in the early spring.

"The Crowded Hour"

Bebe Daniels in Her Third Starring Vehicle Directed by Hopper

Bebe Daniels started recently on "The Crowded Hour," the Selwyn-Pollock stage hit which is to be her third Paramount starring picture. This dramatic play, in which Jane Cowl appeared a few seasons ago, is being directed by E. Mason Hopper from a screen adaptation by John Russell.

The principal roles will be enacted by Kenneth Harlan, T. Roy Barnes, Frank Morgan and Helen Lee Worthing. The picture is being filmed at the Paramount Long Island studio.

"The Crowded Hour" tells a vital story, tracing the development of Peggy Laurence, a selfish girl in love with another woman's husband, whose character undergoes a great transformation through sacrifice and the warmest human sympathy and understanding.

The backgrounds for the story include the glittering activities of an exclusive night club in New York, and stirring scenes back of the lines in France during the World War.

The chief cameraman is J. Roy Hunt, assisted by George Hinners. George Cline is the director's assistant.

Foreign Sales by Wilson

Ten features, six two-reel comedies and twelve Red Head cartoon comedies, done in color, were sold to foreign markets by Sering D. Wilson & Company last week. These include five Westerns featuring Jack Perrin for England, three featuring Bill Patten for England and Scandinavia, "Ace of the Law" for Scandinavia, "The Lure of the Yukon" for England, six two-reel Lightning Comedies for Great Britain and all of Europe and twelve Red Head comedies, in color, for England and Holland.

Sering D. Wilson & Company maintains offices in London, Paris and Berlin.

Scene from the "Our Gang" comedy, "In New York," released by Pathe.

Independent Market Now Gets Best Acting Talent

IMPORTANT steps toward the improvement of quality in the independent picture have been taken by B. P. Schulberg in the casts he has assembled this season for his Preferred releases.

Not only has Schulberg supplied the independent market with stories of the calibre of David Belasco's play, "The Boomerang," but he has secured for the first time players whose names have never before appeared in independent releases.

Mae Busch, Alice Joyce, Anita Stewart, Bert Lytell and Ethel Clayton are five players whom Schulberg has introduced to the independent field this season.

Miss Busch, featured in his Gasnier production, "The Triflers," has heretofore appeared exclusively for Metro, Universal and First National.

Alice Joyce, who returned to the screen in Schulberg's "White Man," came to him with fame built from her earlier starring contracts and has now signed starring arrangements with Metro.

Anita Stewart and Bert Lytell, both appearing in the Schulberg special, "The Boomerang," have likewise played only for national organizations in the past.

Ethel Clayton, former Paramount star, is now working on the Schulberg lot in "The Mansion of Aching Hearts," in which she will make her reappearance on the screen after two years of retirement.

"These facts," says Mr. Schulberg, "are significant to the whole industry in general and to the independent field in particular. They prove that the independent producer no longer gets the leftovers which the national organizations do not want, but is now able to secure the best acting talent and the cream of box-office names that are big in every city of the country.

"The best in stores, the best in directors, the best in cast, the best in pictures can be the independent market's rightful claim in 1925."

Next Buck Jones Picture

"Timber Wolf," an original story by Jackson Gregory, will be Buck Jones' next starring vehicle for Fox Film Corporation. The story was written especially for the big Fox Western star and production on it will be started immediately after Jones completes "Wild Ridin'," his curren production, now reaching the finishing stages at the Fox West Coast Studios.

Unique Camera Effects

Pathe Cameraman Gives the Fans Something Novel to Marvel At

With the release of Pathe Review Nos. 1 and 7 are introduced a new form of motion picture photography. The work is the result of the "process camera," invented by Alvin V. Knechtel, a Pathe cameraman on the Coast. In the first release of this novelty, "The Phantom Ballet," the camera takes a dancing subject and makes her appear three times on the screen. In order to make it little more intricate, the camera then has the three figures dance in a different tempo. The camera then halts the figures in mid air and reverses their actions.

Pathe Review No. 7 takes a group of trained dogs as the subject of its camera innovation and puts the canine actors through tricks in which the laws of space and gravity are defied with mystifying effects.

Picking "The Five Best"

Metro-Goldwyn's "Greed" and "He Who Gets Slapped," are included by the critic of the New York Sun as among the five worthiest pictures of 1924.

Niblo Hopes to Complete Metro's "Ben-Hur" in Spring

FRED NIBLO cabled Marcus Loew this week that "Ben Hur" is progressing more than satisfactorily to its production staff, although it is not possible to state definitely at this time when the picture will be completed. Director Niblo, it is understood, has hopes of completing the production in the Spring.

Ramon Novarro, May McAvoy, Francis X. Bushman, Carmel Myers, Kathleen Key, Frank Currier, Anders Randolf, Nigel de Brulier and others are in the cast of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's screen version of Lew Wallace's novel and play, filmed by arrangement with A. L. Erlanger.

Niblo's cable stated that he was preparing to film the chariot race sequence, perhaps the most spectacular high-light in a production that already has what is said to be the most thrilling sea battle ever screened, in addition to other episodes of a spectacular nature.

It has not been possible to film the chariot race sequence before since it required more than six months to build the colossal structure of the Circus Maximus. The Circus is more than 1,000 feet in length. Three circuits of the track equal a mile. The track, 102 feet wide, is laid with a four-inch gravel foundation, drained by a system of piping and gratings at the side.

Fully 150,000 persons can be seated in the bleachers which form the sides of the great horseshoe. This capacity of seating is a record equalled only by that of the original Circus Maximus in Antioch, of which the "Ben Hur" set is a replica.

Crown Prince a Visitor

Umberto, Crown Prince of Italy, was the guest recently of the "Ben Hur" players in Rome. The Prince was escorted on a tour of inspection by Director Fred Niblo, accompanied by the members of the cast. When the Prince saw the colossal structure of the Circus Maximus he gasped in amazement and said:

"The 'Ben Hur' sets are the largest and most remarkable I have ever seen. They will serve as an added stimulus to the film industry of Italy. You Americans are thorough in your picture making, and I doubt if the Italian industry can ever offer the world such a masterpiece as 'Ben Hur.'"

Equal enthusiasm was expressed by the Prince on viewing the immense reproduction of the Joppa Gate in Jerusalem, used in several important sequences of the film. The privileged visitor was allowed glimpses of the film in the laboratory, and was fascinated by the pretentious naval battle scenes taken off Leghorn, Italy.

D'Annunzio's Keen Interest

The villa of Gabriel D'Annunzio, poet-warrior of Italy, has been turned over to the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer organization for the filming of a number of scenes in "Ben Hur."

In the famous gardens are cypress trees several hundreds of years old. Fountains and rare statues adorn the open spaces, and the pathways and garden effects are beautiful. It was in these gardens that Ramon Novarro as "Ben Hun" was presented with the wreath of honor from the emperor after his success in the thrilling chariot races. Here "Ben Hur" was crowned with the laurel, the greatest distinction of the ages, amid a setting that cannot possibly be found elsewhere in Italy or probably in all the world.

D'Annunzio's gardens are famous throughout the European continent for their exceptional beauty. Far up on the slopes of the Alban range, in the favorite suburb of Rome, Frascati, the villa commands an incomparable view of the surrounding country and the Eternal City itself. The villa and gardens were a gift to D'Annunzio by the people of Italy as an appreciation for his remarkable and valiant services at Trieste during the late war.

Gabriellino D'Annunzio, son of the poet-warrior, is a member of the "Ben Hur" company, and is one of the assistants being used in the handling of the thousands of Italian men, women and children in the Jerusalem, Joppa Gate and street scenes.

ALAN HALE

In Tom Mix's "Dick Turpin," the last screen appearance Alan will make before becoming a director for Wm. Fox.

New Ernst Lubitsch Production Started With Blue and Prevost

ACTUAL work on the new Warner Bros. production directed by Ernst Lubitsch got under way at the Hollywood studio of the company after several weeks of careful preparation on the part of the director and his staff.

It is announced as an original story by Mr. Lubitsch and Hans Kraely, who asisted in the preparation of the script of "The Marriage Circle," and many other of the Lubitsch stories. It will mark the director's fifth production in the United States and his third under his Warner Bros. contract.

No title has been selected for the picture, and it probably will not be named until its completion. The only information forthcoming from Lubitsch concerning the story is that it is written around a big theme with which everyone is familiar, and it will be given a big production.

Monte Blue and Marie Prevost have been assigned to two of the principal roles. They were picked for this important picture because of their excellent work in "The Marriage Circle" under Lubitsch, and subsequent pictures in the Warner Bros. program.

"Dance Madness"

S. Jay Kaufman's "Dance Madness," an original screen story, has been purchased by Metro-Goldwyn.

Scenes from Harold Bell Wright's "The Re-Creation of Brian Kent," a Sol Lesser production and a Principal Pictures release.

KATHERINE MacDONALD
Who is returning to the screen in "The Mansion of Aching Hearts," a Preferred picture presented by B. P. Schulberg.

Leases Paragon Studios

Wilson-Wetherald Inc., has leased the Paragon Studios in Fort Lee and will begin production next week of "The White Mice" by Richard Harding Davis. This production will be the first feature length picture made in color with the Kelley Color Process.

E. H. Griffith, formerly with Cosmopolitan, will direct. Sering D. Wilson, president and Clayton B. Davis, production manager, leave New York shortly for Havana where they will arrange for locations. All of the exteriors will be made in Cuba. The story is a romance of Central America and the tropical backgrounds will provide splendid opportunity to reveal the exceptional colored photography that is possible with the Kelley Process.

Wilson Films in Key Cities

Sering D. Wilson & Company have placed their three short color features, Red Head Comedies, Karlo Kolor Komico and The Wonder Book in 60 per cent of the key cities. Independent exchanges are handling these exquisite color features which are one reel in length. G. Lang Cobb covered the key cities for Sering D. Wilson & Company.

Exhibitors Write, Praising New Vitagraph Production

"SOMETHING for Vitagraph to crow about, and crow hard," is the opinion of an Ohio exhibitor respecting Vitagraph's "The Beloved Brute," a J. Stauart Blackton production which is growing strong in every section of the country. "We must compliment Vitagraph on this picture. We predict a great run for it," says an Illinois manager.

The point is that these exhibitors voluntarily wrote letters of praise and appreciation to two of the Vitagraph branch managers, and the missives were forwarded to the company's executive offices, arriving there almost simultaneously. The letters were appreciated the more because they were entirely unsolicited, it being contrary to Vitagraph policy to seek commendations from exhibitors.

Writing to J. E. Beck, branch manager in Cleveland, E. E. Bair, resident manager of the State Theatre, Uhrichsville, O., said:

"It is very seldom, if ever, that I wrote to an exchange, setting forth my opinions on pictures, either pro or con, but I'm here to tell you this, that in my estimation you are to be highly complimented for your subject, 'The Beloved Brute'—one of the finest pictures I've ever shown. Its title isn't so much for 'pulling power,' but when word of mouth advertising pulls 'em you know you've got something. Vitagraph has something to crow about, and crow hard. I trust the rest will be in a class with 'The Beloved Brute.'"

To J. A. Steinson, Vitagraph branch manager in Chicago, William A. Clark, head of the Clark Enterprises, owner of the Castle Theatre, Havana, Illinois, wrote:

"We have completed the run of 'The Beloved Brute' and must compliment your company on this picture. When a house caters to a trade that likes action this picture fills the bill, and at the same time pleases the softer sex. Victor McLaglen, if kept in pictures for a while, will prove a card. And we must pass a few flowers to J. Stuart Blackton. His direction is perfectly smooth and continuity very good. We had to buck Tom Mix in 'The Lone Star Ranger' Saturday night and yet did a good business.

"We push the Vitagraph product with all our force and enjoy doing business with the Chicago exchange. The Castle Theatre can recommend 'The Beloved Brute' to any show house that does not cater to sex pictures, and we predict a great run for this picture.

All Season's Pictures Now In Work at Warner Studios

IN getting under way the final pictures of this season's program at Warner Bros.' Hollywood studio this week, a number of players were assigned to new roles and several engagements are announced. All pictures for the current season are now in production.

The most important was the assignment of Monte Blue and Marie Prevost to play the leads in the new Lubitsch production, as yet unnamed, which started on Monday.

This was followed by the engagement of William (Buster) Collier, Helene Chadwick and Clive Brook to appear in "The Easiest Road," an adaptation of "The Eleventh Virgin," by Dorothy Day, adapted for the screen by Hope Loring and Louis Lighton.

Roy Del Ruth, recently put under contract by Warner Bros., has been assigned to direct "Eve's Lover," the novel by Mrs. W. K. Clifford, and Bert Lytell has been engaged to play the lead. The adaptation is by Darryl Francis Zanuck.

Mal St. Clair has started work on "My Wife and I," the Harriet Beecher Stowe novel, and John Harron, after three days' work in the production, made such an impression that he was signed for an important role in "Eve's Lover."

Scenes from the Warner Brothers picture, "A Lost Lady," starring Irene Rich.

Ludwig Erb, Pioneer, Always Insists On Big, Clean Dramas

AMONG the motion picture celebrities now on the West Coast, who will return East early in January, is Ludwig G. B.Erb, who for the past seven months has been supervising productions for Associated Arts Corporation at the Hollywood Studios. In addition to his activities in producing, Mr. Erb has other large business interests.

Avoiding publicity, he is, nevertheless, one of the big men in the industry today, and is known to his many business friends and intimates as "The Wizard of the Film Industry." Mr. Erb is a man who has done big, worth-while things in film matters, and is one of the few in the business at its inception who has remained in the front ranks during the last twenty-five years. He has always been just a few thoughts ahead in all matters pertaining to laboratory work.

When motion pictures were in their infancy, Mr. Erb, who is a chemist, decided that he would devote the major part of his time to this technical department of the business. He founded what today is known as the Erbograph Laboratories located in New York City. In this position he was constantly in touch with every development in the entire industry. Under his skillful management, the Erbograph expanded, and when, a few months ago, it was merged into the Consolidated Laboratories, it was regarded as one of the best and most perfectly equipped laboratories in the world. The Erbograph has scores of inventions to its credit, most of them conceived by Mr. Erb, while others were fostered and brought to perfection under him and in many instances backed by him financially.

It was Mr. Erb's broad vision that brought about his success. He retained the utmost faith in motion pictures despite the heartbreaking changes encountered by the pioneers.

In the early days when one-reelers were the only pictures being made, Mr. Erb produced them, and since then has kept pace with the rapid changes as the industry developed. He maintained studios in connection with his laboratories and in this way his finger was always on the production pulse, as well as on the technical end of business.

He has stood from the outset, consistently for the clean picture, and has never deviated from this point. The first Associated Arts production that he supervised on the Coast, "On the Stroke of Three," proves that he still adheres to the same standards.

This picture is a high type of drama, with a clean healthy story, a flash of small town and a dash of big city, with pathos, love, interest and humor, all blended to the proper point. The New York critics were unanimous in acclaiming this, a picture above the average and just about what the public will want. In the cast are Kenneth Harlan, Mary Carr and Madge Bellamy.

Mr. Erb has the second picture for Associated Arts Corporation practically finished, and will have the third one underway by the time he leaves New York. The second picture is "Druscilla with a Million." It is a good, wholesome interesting story and the cast includes Kenneth Harlan, Mary Carr and Priscilla Bonner.

Praises "Captain Blood"

"Greatest spectacle ever shown here!" declared C. A. Hartman, managing director, of Vitagraph's "Captain Blood," which had just started a run at his new Airdome Theatre, St. Petersburg, Fla. Despite stormy weather, this David Smith production stood 'em up and then some, and Mr. Hartman was so enthusiastic he wired as follows to Ira P. Stone, Vitagraph's branch manager at Atlanta:

"Opened last night to capacity business. Although weather was stormy to-night we turned them away. Every one says 'Captain Blood' is the greatest spectacle ever shown here."

Buys Rights to Big Novel

Fox has just purchased the screen rights of the novel "Sisters of Jezebel," by Harold P. Montonye, for release under the title "Tainted Souls," according to an announcement by that company. Preparation of the continuity is now being rushed by the scenario department and a set is being put in readiness at the Fox West Coast Studios to begin immediate production when it is finished. Emmett Flynn will direct. An all star cast will be featured in the picture. "Sisters of Jezebel" was first published as a serial in "Reel Life."

LUDWIG G. B. ERB

Special Casts in Two Pictures

"The Man Without a Conscience," by the European playwright, Max Kretzer, directed by James Flood, has been finished at the Warner Bros. Hollywood studio. It features Willard Louis and Irene Rich. Supporting them are Helen Dunbar, June Marlowe, John Patrick, Robert Agnew, William Orlamond, Kate Price, Charles McHugh and Sally Long.

The complete cast of "On Thin Ice," an adaptation of "The Dear Pretender," which will be released this month by Warner Bros., includes Tom Moore, Edith Roberts, William Russell, Theo. von Eltz, Wilfred North, Gertrude Robinson, Jimmie Quinn and Herbert Spencer Griswold. Mal St. Clair directed the picture.

Opens Milwaukee Branch

A new exchange has been opened by Producers' Distributing Corporation at Milwaukee, Wis., with C. R. Lundgren as branch manager.

Mr. Lundgren took charge January 5, and his promotion is in keeping with the policy of the company to fill the higher offices of the company from the ranks.

Pollard Signed by "U"

Universal has just signed a long term contract with Harry Pollard, well known director of high class screen comedy dramas, it was announced this week at the home office of Universal. Pollard has been with Universal several years. The new contract assures at least two years more of Harry Pollard productions on the Universal program.

Scenes from one of the Hysterical History comedies, "Olympic Games," a new series of Universal comedies.

Constance Talmadge and Antonio Moreno in a scene from First National's production, "Learning to Love."

Mix Starts on New Play

Tom Mix has started production on "The Rainbow Trail," Zane Grey's sequel to "Riders of the Purple Sage," at the Fox Film Corporation West Coast Studios. Lynn Reynolds prepared the scenario for this one and will also hold the megaphone.

Anne Cornwall is Tom's leading lady. Others in a capable supporting cast are George Bancroft, Lucien Littlefield, Mark Hamilton, Vivian Oakland and Steve Clements.

Fox Release for January 25

"The Hunted Woman," is the Only Production Scheduled for That Week

"The Hunted Woman," a picturization of James Oliver Curwood's celebrated novel of the Hudson Bay country, is the sole release of Fox Film Corporation for the week of January 25.

Seena Owen and Earl Schenck have the leading roles in this production with Diana Miller and Cyril Chadwick cast as "heavies." Francis McDonald, Edward Piel and Victor McLaglen have important roles.

John Conway directed the filming of the Curwood story from a scenario prepared by Robert N. Lee. All the outdoor sequences were shot in the Yosemite Valley.

"The Wizard of Oz" to Be Road Showed by Chadwick

AN announcement was made this week by I. E. Chadwick, president of Chadwick Pictures Corporation, that "The Wizard of Oz," starring Larry Semon, will be road showed in the course of a few weeks.

"The Wizard of Oz" is a screen version of the famous stage play by L. Frank Baum, which created a furore years ago at the Park Theatre, now known as the Cosmopolitan. It was this play that started Montgomery and Stone, famous comedians, on their way to fame and fortune. Fred Stone, it will be remembered, played the part of the strawman. In the screen version this well-known role is portrayed by Larry Semon, whose eccentric antics make him well fitted for this particular comedy part.

"The Wizard of Oz" is a comedy fantasy and has been truthfully reproduced in detail. The production is built on spectacular lines and boasts of a supporting cast of eminent players including Bryant Washburn, Mary Carr, Dorothy Dwan, Charlie Murray, Virginia Pearson, Josef Swickard and Oliver Hardy.

"The Wizard of Oz" is booked for a Broadway run prior to its road show schedule. State right franchises are now being lined up among the leading independent exchanges. Road show tours are also being booked with the foremost road showmen in the country.

A special exploitation department has been added to the general advertising department at the Chadwick offices to concentrate on a special advertising and exploitation campaign that has been mapped out for "The Wizard of Oz."

Of the numerous mediums of advertising and exploitation that will be utilized will be syndicated newspaper feature stories, national newspaper and magazine advertising, tie-ups with national products, trade paper advertising, novelty tie-ups and general exploitation stunts. A press book of an entirely radical nature is being prepared that will facilitate co-operation of local advertisers and local newspaper editors with the exhibitors playing this picture.

An arrangement has been made with Bobbs Merrill Publishing Co. to publish a photoplay edition of "The Wizard of Oz."

Betty Bronson Welcomed By New Jersey Governor

ONE of the greatest home-comings ever staged for a young woman will be given in Trenton next Tuesday. The Governor of New Jersey, the Mayor of Trenton, former governors and prominent citizens are going to unite to pay honor to Betty Bronson, the "Peter Pan" girl, when she goes back to her birthplace.

It will be a day of excitement, beginning at the Pennsylvania Railroad station in the morning, where Miss Bronson and her mother will be received by a committee of prominent citizens. Later they will be formally received in the State Capitol by Governor George S. Silzer and in the City Hall, where Mayor Frederick W. Donnelly will give her the freedom of the city.

Seldom, if ever, has a girl so young been paid such honors. At a banquet in the evening the toastmaster will be James Kerney, managing editor of the Trenton Times, and former friend and adviser of President Wilson, and the speakers will be Governor Silzer, Mayor Donnelly, C. Edward Murray, Quartermaster-General of New Jersey, and John E. Gill, head of Rider College. About 500 guests are to be present.

Miss Bronson has been invited to her home town by a committee in charge of a drive to raise $500,000 for St. Francis Hospital.

Norman Kerry in a sequence of scenes in Universal's "The Phantom of the Opera."

Scenes from Josef von Sternberg's "The Salvation Hunters," a United Artists release.

Three Pathe Features Play Day and Date in Philadelphia

THREE Pathe feature productions in as many of Philadelphia's first run theatres was the unusual record hung up by Pathe Exchange during the week of December 29.

The productions shown during New Year's week and the houses presenting them were as follows: Charles Ray in "Dynamite Smith" at the Victoria; Harold Lloyd in "Hot Water" at the Stanton; and "The Battling Orioles" at the Earle Theatre.

The Pathe features were uniformly well received by the local newspaper critics. The Philadelphia Inquirer writing of "The Battling Orioles" described that feature as a "hilarious comedy picture," while Charles Ray's appearance in "Dynamite Smith" was hailed by the same publication as marking the return of the star to the "role of a bashful, timid hero, such as he did some years ago." Of Harold Lloyd in "Hot Water" the Philadelphia Inquirer comments as follows:

"The bespectacled comedian has rarely been seen to better advantage than in this his latest offering. There are some thrilling moments in which Lloyd is seemingly staggered, but he manages in his suave way to extricate himself and give the audience a laugh."

"The Battling Orioles" again wins favor with the critic of the Public Ledger, who says that the comedy "is even funnier than the vaudeville—high praise; it is a riot of hilarity from start to finish." The Public Ledger also describes "Dynamite Smith" as the vehicle bringing Ray "back to his old familiar role of the gawky, earnest, bashful youth." The North American reviewer writes in the same vein of Charles Ray's part in "Dynamite Smith," and the Philadelphia Record expresses the opinion that Ray's depiction of the fear-stricken man "is one of the best things that Ray has done." "The Battling Orioles" also scores with the critic of the Philadelphia Record, who among other things declares: "There is hardly a foot of it from start to finish that hasn't a laugh or a thrill in it."

"Yak" Canutt, champion cowboy, in "A Two-Fisted Sheriff," an Arrow production.

"A Broadway Butterfly"

Newest Warner Bros. Picture, Screened at Home Office, Very "Broadwayish"

A print of "A Broadway Butterfly" has been received at the New York office of Warner Bros and screened for the home staff. "Very Broadwayish" was the verdict, and meaty with audience value. Particularly interesting are the scenes in the White Light district, "back stage" with plenty of chorus girl atmosphere, and other snappy treatment that goes to make audience entertainment.

This is the bright and particular story that Warner Bros. had selected Mrs. Pearl Keating to write and it was so announced. But owing to her absence on a cross country jaunt in the interest of the firm, it was turned over to Darryl Francis Zanuck, who gave it such skillful treatment that after the showing, Mrs. Keating wired the young author her congratulations.

William Beaudine directed the picture and featured in the cast are Dorothy Devoree, Williard Louis, John Roche, Louise Fazenda and Lilyan Tashman.

"Galloping Hoofs" Campaign

A national newspaper campaign of unusual proportions ushers "Galloping Hoofs" before the public. Display ads covering a circulation of more than six millions have been inserted in various papers around the country. Pathe will handle the distribution of "Galloping Hoofs" in the same way that they handled the recently released serial "Into the Net," written by Richard E. Enright.

Roosevelt Statue in Cuba

Grateful Cuba unveiled a statue to Theodore Roosevelt, hero of San Juan Hill, recently and Fox News had the exclusive pictures of this historic ceremony in Vol. 6, No. 26, released December 27. Mrs. Roosevelt, wife of the late President, made the trip to Cuba especially for this event. She was photographed by the Fox News cameraman at the unveiling ceremony with President Zayas, who paid a wonderful tribute to the "Rough Rider," acknowledging the debt of gratitude the island republic owes his memory. Ex-Governor Henry Allen of Kansas, friend and admirer of the dead chief executive, was also present and was among those picturized. General Crowder entertained the visiting Americans.

Enlarges Cleveland Branch

Following the enlargement of its Pittsburgh branch, Producers Distributing Corporation announces the removal of its Cleveland branch to larger quarters at 500-501 Film Exchange Building, the location formerly occupied by Metro. This move was made necessary by the rapidly developing business of the Cleveland branch of J. J. Mooney.

Borrowing Warner Stars

Beverly Bayne will be missing from the Warner Bros. lot for a short time. Miss Bayne, who has been working steadily since her return to the screen, has been loaned to Universal and will be seen in support of Frank Mayo in "The Passionate Youth." Warner Bros. have big plans for the talented actress during the season ahead, and she will be seen in several stories adapted from the biggest novels. Louise Fazenda is another Warner Bros. star who has been loaned to Universal to play in support of Reginald Denny in "I'll Show You the Town."

Ford in Leading Role

Harrison Ford will have a leading role in King Vidor's next Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production of "Proud Flesh." Pat O'Malley has already been announced for a part in the screen version of Lawrence Rising's best-seller.

Stars in "Screen Snapshots"

Rudolph Valentino, Reginald Denny, Claire Windsor, Douglas McLean and Anne Cornwall are on the list of screen stars appearing in the latest issue of "Screen Snapshots," and among the many others are Evelyn Peirce, Jack Pickford, Bert Lytell, Anita Stewart, Bill Russell, Matt Betz, Lloyd Hughes, Alice Terry, John Gilbert and Tito Schipa.

Scenes from Metro-Goldwyn's "He Who Gets Slapped."

Opposition Warner Films

The respective merits of two of Warner Bros. pictures as drawing cards is having a tryout this week in Los Angeles when "The Dark Swan" and "This Woman" are playing opposition to each other at the Mission and Rialto theatres. These two theatres are in the same block, play to about the same capacity and to the same patronage. The Mission was taken over by Warner Bros. about six weeks ago, and the Rialto only recently.

"On Thin Ice"

Warner Bros. have decided to release another picture this month, in addition to those already announced. The added attraction will be "On Thin Ice," an adaptation of "The Dear Pretender," by Alice Ross Colver, directed by Mal St. Clair. Tom Moore is featured and supporting him is an all start cast of favorites, including Edith Roberts, William Russell, Theodore Von Eltz, Wilfred North and William Norris. The scenes are laid in San Francisco and there are several gorgeous sets, among them an ice palace and a skating carnival.

Two Schulberg Pictures

Things are stirring on the B. P. Schulberg lot in Los Angeles, where two Preferred productions are in the making. The first of these, "The Boomerang," is a special Schulberg release based on David Belasco's play by Winchell Smith and Victor Mapes. Gasnier is directing the cast headed by Bert Lytell and Anita Stewart. The second unit is headed by James P. Hogan directing Clara Bow and an all star cast in "The Mansion of Aching Hearts" based upon the song by Harry Von Tilzer and Arthur J. Lamb.

Loew Has "Peter Pan"

The Loew circuit in Greater New York played "Peter Pan" immediately following the Rivoli and Rialto premiere.

Big Production Activity At Mack Sennett Studios

PATHE anounces that the passing of the Christmas season finds a decided increase in production activity at the Mack Sennett Comedy Studios. Three troupes are busily engaged in the making of current pictures, and two units have just completed work on their respective comedy numbers. The scenario department is busily engaged in preparation of new stories.

Director Eddie Cline is finishing a new comedy of the Ralph Graves series, with Alice Day and "Fat" Lobach portraying prominent supporting characterizations. Harry Langdon begins a new offering this week under the guidance of Director Harry Edwards, with pretty Natalie Kingston playing the feminine lead and Vernon Dent the heavy. Del Lord is in the midst of a new Sennett "Star" comedy which presents Lillian Knight, who was chosen "Miss Los Angeles" of 1924 in the leading feminine role. Billy Bevan, Andy Clyde and J. J. Richardson are also cast in important parts.

The Harry Langdon Company has just completed work on "Plain Clothes," the story of which was written by Arthur Ripley and Frank Capra. Harry Edwards handled the direction. In able support of Langdon in this laugh-getter are Claire Cushman, Jean Hathaway, Vernon Dent and William McCall.

The Ben Turpin unit has finished the final "shots" for "A Wild Goose Chaser," Turpin's newest fun-maker produced under the supervision of Lloyd Bacon, son of the famous star of the Broadway success "Lightning." Other screen players assisting the wavy-eyed comedian in this comedy include Trilby Clark, Jack Cooper and Eugenia Gilbert.

New Script by Ade Ready

Thomas Meighan has received a wire from George Ade on the Coast, saying that the script of "Old Home Week," the next Meighan picture to follow "Coming Through," is finished and Ade is leaving California for Florida, by way of New Orleans.

Ade will join Meighan in Florida the last week in January, and the two will combine a vacation with the pleasant task of journeying through Florida cities, looking for locations for the picture.

Chaney to Play Dual Role

Lon Chaney will return to the underworld type of characterization he made famous, when he appears in a leading role of Tod Browning's first Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production, "The Unholy Three."

Matt Moore has been engaged for the hero role, opposite Mae Busch.

"The Unholy Three" has been adapted by Waldemar Young from C. A. Robbins' well known story of the underworld, published in a magazine several years ago. It gives Chaney the dual role of Professor Echo and Mrs. O'Grady, the leader of "the unholy three" of the title, the other two being a giant and a midget.

Striking scenes from "Janice Meredith," Cosmopolitan production starring Marion Davies.

Scenes from "The Wizard of Oz," a Chadwick Pictures Corporation production starring Larry Semon.

Laudatory Comment Accorded "The Greatest Love of All"

ASSOCIATED EXHIBITORS' feature, "The Greatest Love of All" with George Beban, which recently received its Broadway screening at the Rivoli Theatre, was accorded much laudatory comment on the part of prominent New York motion picture critics in the columns of their respective dailies. As a result of its Metropolitan triumph many additional big key-city bookings have already been secured for the production.

The reviewers were unanimous in their praise of the Beban offering. Following are excerpts from several criticisms: Louella Parsons writing for the New York American said: "'The Greatest Love of All' is a sentimental tale of mother love that is obviously filled with first-class hokum. But it is the kind of hokum we all like. George Beban is an artist when it comes to portraying these Italian roles, and no one will deny his Joe the Iceman is a classic."

Harriette Underhill of the Herald Tribune remarked: "There is nothing obscure, nothing symbolic and nothing dull about George Beban's silent-spoken melodrama which he is presenting this week at the Rivoli under the title 'The Greatest Love of All.' 'The Greatest Love of All' is novel and entertaining. Be sure to see it."

The critic of the Daily news writing in the same vein commented: "Beban is neither beautiful nor dumb, so he makes the audience sit up and cheer for him in the courtroom scene, where he yells to the jury that 'his mama is good. And if the whole dam' world say she is bad, then they are dam' liars.'"

The New York Bulletin said: "'The Greatest Love of All' is a comedy drama and holds the interest of the audience throughout. Whether the players are in person or are acting on the silver screen, the audience never loses a bit of the plot."

"Rose of the World"

Warner Bros. to Make Kathleen Norris' Novel as First For Next Year

An announcement from the office of H. M. Warner at the Hollywood studio of Warner Bros. states that "Rose of the World," by Kathleen Norris has been decided upon as the first story to be made in next year's program, and that production of this story will be underway soon in order that the company may get a good start on the 1925-26 product. Harry Beaumont will direct and Dorothy Farnum is putting the finishing touches to the adaptation.

No formal announcement of next season's complete program has been forthcoming, but following a conference of all the Warners at the New York office next week, it is understood that production plans and other matters of interest to exhibitors will be made public.

Two companies are scheduled to start work on the Warner Bros. lot this week. These are "How Baxter Butted In," the famous old stage play, which will be directed by Mal St. Clair, and "My Wife and I" from the famous novel by Harriet Beecher Stowe.

Big Opening for Metro Film

"He Who Gets Slapped" Plays to Capacity Business in Minneapolis

A huge opening greeted the showing of "He Who Gets Slapped" at the Lyceum Theatre in Minneapolis recently, according to a telegram received by Metro-Goldwyn from Len S. Brown, managing director of this new and popular Minneapolis house. Mr. Brown's wire in part reads as follows:

"Huge opening. Audiences willing to wait in line for over an hour to witness 'He Who Gets Slapped.' All critics unanimous in opinion that picture is one of the six best of 1924. Picture is the talk of entire city."

Carlton Miles in the Minneapolis Journal said of the picture— "'He Who Gets Slapped' is one of the worthiest pictures of the year. It is amazingly good. It is an achievement of the screen. The scenarist and more particularly the director, Victor Seastrom, have given us something which if not perfect yet has a semblance of such completeness. 'He Who Gets Slapped' is the most thrilling adventure we have had in the films since 'The Cabinet of Dr. Caligari.'"

"My Wife and I"

The Harriett Beecher Stowe novel, "My Wife and I," which was purchased by Warner Bros. for one of their "20" in this season's product, has been assigned to Millard Webb, who directed "The Dark Swan," and casting is under way with the idea of going into production within a week.

Author Writes Scenario

Adele Buffington is the author of E. P. Schulberg's Preferred Picture, "Free to Love," now being directed by Frank O'Connor. Miss Buffington, who has many screen successes to her credit.

Al St. John in "Lovemania," an Educational-Tuxedo comedy.

CURRENT and ADVANCE FILM RELEASES

Containing in compact, comprehensive form, the title, star, kind of picture, date of review in Moving Picture World, and footage on past, present and future releases

ALLIED PRODUCERS AND DISTRIBUTORS

	Kind of Picture	Review.	Feet
Loving Lies (Monte Blue)	Drama	Feb. 2..	6,526
No More Women (Moore-Bellamy)	Comedy-drama	Feb. 2..	6,186
Hill Billy (Jack Pickford)	Drama	Mar. 22..	5,734
End of the World (J. Pickford)	Comedy-drama		6,500

ARROW

Western Fate (Hatton-Gerber)
Whirlwind Ranger (Hatton-Gerber)
Notch No. One (Ben Wilson)	Western drama		4,746
Models and Artists (B. Dunn)
Oh, Billy (West)
Come On, Cowboys (Hatton)	Western drama	May 24..	4,700
Mysteries of Mah Jong	Novelty	May 24..	2,000
Two After One (West)	Comedy	May 24..	2,000
Western Feuds	Western drama	July 26..	4,908
Riders of the Plains	Western serial
Lash of the Whip (Dearholt)	Stunt drama		4,820
Cowboy Prince (Dearholt)	Stunt drama		4,410
Diamond Bandit (Dearholt)	Stunt drama		4,698
Lash of Pinto Pete (Dearholt)	Stunt drama		4.437
Two Fisted Sheriff (Canutt)	Western drama	Dec. 6..	4,625
Sell 'em Cowboy (Hatton)	Western drama		4.821
Ridin' Mad (Canutt)	Western drama		4.927
Desert Hawk	Western drama		4,828
Horse Sense (Hatton)	Western drama		4.648
His Majesty the Outlaw (Wilson)	Western drama		4,069
Romance and Rustlers (Canutt)	Western drama	Nov. 15..	4,939
Rip Snorter (Hatton)	Western	Nov. 22..	4,998
The Fugitive (Ben Wilson)	Western dr.	Nov. 29..	4.920
Lost Chord (Powell-Lake-Binney)	Heart interest dr.	Dec. 20..	6,300

ASSOCIATED EXHIBITORS

Yankee Consul (MacLean)	Feature comedy	Feb. 23..	6,148
When A Girl Loves (all-star)	Modern drama	May 3..	5,876
Lone Wolf (Holt-Dalton)	Crook drama	May 10..	6,000
Cheechahcos (all-star)	Northern epic	May 17..	7,000
Spitfire (all-star)	Modern drama	July 5..	6,109
Racing Luck (Monty Banks)	Comedy-drama	July 26..	6,000
Never Say Die (MacLean)	Comedy of thrills	Sep. 13..	5,803
East of Broadway (O. Moore)	Police drama	Nov. 22..	5,785
Price of a Party (H. Ford)	Modern drama	Oct. 18..	5,315
Barriers Burned Away	Spectacle	Dec. 27..	6,236
Is Love Everything?	Sex melo.	Nov. 15..	6,000
Adventurous Sex (C. Bow)	Flapper drama
Children of the Whirlwind
Great Air Mail Robbery
Battling Bunyan (Barry)	Comedy-dr.	Dec. 27..	4,718
Greatest Love of All (Beban)	Drama	Jan. 17..	6,486
Bad Company (Tearle)	Society drama
Introduce Me (Douglas MacLean)	Comedy thrills
Sky Raider (Logan)	Drama
Back to Life (Patsy Ruth Miller)	Drama

EDUCATIONAL FILM CORP.

The New Sheriff	Tuxedo comedy	Mar. 8..	2,000
Under Orders	Clyde Cook	Mar. 15..	2,000
Midnight Blues	Lige Conley	Mar. 22..	2,000
Family Life	Jack White prod.	Mar. 29..	2,000
Bargain Day	Sid Smith	Mar. 29..	1,000
Barnum Jr.	Juvenile comedy	Mar. 29..	2,000
The Fly	Scientific	Apr. 5..	1,000
Killing Time	Lloyd Hamilton	Apr. 5..	2,000
Dusty Dollars	Cameo comedy	Apr. 5..	1,000
Dandy Lions	Neal Burns	Apr. 12..	2,000
Safe and Sane	Jimmie Adams	Apr. 12..	2,000
There He Goes	Mermaid comedy	Apr. 19..	2,000
Heart Throbs	"Sing Them Again"	Apr. 19..	1,000
Realm of Sport	Hodge-Podge	Apr. 19..	1,000
Fold Up	Cameo comedy	Apr. 19..	1,000
Going East	Lloyd Hamilton	Apr. 26..	2,000
The Fun Shop	Humor reel	Apr. 26..	1,000

How to Use This Chart

First—Booking! Get accurate footage and look up date review appeared in Moving Picture World. Then you can decide if the picture will suit your audience.

Second—Play date! When you set your play date, consult this Chart to set the picture on a date that will not conflict with preceding and following pictures; avoid a sequence of similar type of story; space out your specials.

Third—Laying Out Program! This chart shows star and kind of story as well as accurate length; you can lay out a balanced program easily, avoid over—and under-length program.

Fourth—Exploitation! Through this chart find the review in Moving Picture World; this will give a good synopsis, the all-important cast and a fine line on exploitation possibilities as well as the things you'll want to soft-pedal.

Always! Turn to this Chart when you want accurate information in simple form and easy to get at a glance. AND—

File Your Moving Picture World

$1 for Your Time

Many exhibitors tell us that Moving Picture World Guide to Releases is the most accurate available to them. We know it is the most complete in that it is the only chart containing names of stars, type of picture, and all necessary information to the exhibitor.

We want it to be absolutely accurate—Moving Picture World recognizes the importance of accurate footage information, etc.

If you notice an error in FEATURE footage, or any other major error, we will pay you $1 for the effort on your part of writing us a letter telling us the correct facts.

In many territories local censorship cuts alter the footage to a minor extent. Don't write to tell us of these unimportant variations. But in any case where you feel that our figures will work a real hardship on the exhibitor following them—shoot us the word and we will shoot the dollar for your trouble.

Moving Picture World is willing to back up its complete confidence in the accuracy of its chart with its money.

We can't do more. No one else does as much. We thank you.

	Kind of Picture	Review.	Feet
The Trader Keeps Moving	Bruce scenic	Apr. 26..	1,000
The Lady-Bird	Instructive	Apr. 26..	1,000
Cornfed	Bobby Vernon	May 3..	2,000
Out Bound	Cliff Bowes	May 3..	1,000
The Fun Shop	Humor reel	May 3..	1,000
Powder Marks	Cliff Bowes	May 3..	1,000
Lost Chords	"Sing Them Again"	May 3..	1,000
The Junior Partner	Juvenile comedy	May 10..	2,000
The Bonehead	Tuxedo comedy	May 10..	2,000
Flowers of Hate	Wilderness Tale	May 17..	1,000
Nerve Tonic	Christie comedy	May 17..	2,000
Tiny Tour of U. S. A.	Hodge-Podge	May 17..	1,000
Air Pockets	Mermaid comedy	May 17..	2,000
Lunch Brigade	Cliff Bowes	May 24..	1,000
Dizzy Daisy	Mermaid comedy	May 24..	2,000
Good Morning	Lloyd Hamilton	May 24..	2,000
Tootsie-Wootsie	Christie comedy	May 31..	2,000
Just Waiting	Robert Bruce series	May 31..	1,000
Echoes of Youth	"Sing Them Again"	May 31..	1,000
Hot Air	Lee Moran	June 7..	2,000
In a Drop of Water	"Secrets of Life"	June 14..	1,000
Grandpa's Girl	Kathleen Clifford	June 21..	2,000
The Chase	Alps Novelty	June 21..	2,000
Snapshots of the Universe	Hodge-Podge	June 21..	1,000
The Farewell	Bruce Scenic	June 21..	1,000
Wedding Showers	Jack White prod.	June 28..	2,000
The Ex-Bartender Retires	Bruce scenic	June 28..	1,000
Family Fits	Cameo comedy	June 28..	1,000
His First Car	Tuxedo comedy	July 5..	2,000
Pardon Us	Cameo comedy	July 5..	1,000
Melodious Moments	"Sing Them Again"	July 5..	1,000
Pigskin	Mermaid comedy	July 12..	2,000
Heads On	Cliff Bowes	July 12..	1,000
Jumble in the Jungle	Hodge-Podge	July 12..	1,000
Never Again	Tuxedo comedy	Aug. 2..	2,000
Turn About	Cameo comedy	Aug. 2..	1,000
Frozen Water	Novelty	Aug. 9..	1,000
Savage Love	Jimmie Adams	Aug. 9..	2,000
Good News	Cliff Bowes	Aug. 9..	1,000
Oh, Teacher	Juvenile comedy	Aug. 23..	2,000
Boneyard Blues	Earl Hurd cartoon	Aug. 23..	1,000
Drenched	Cliff Bowes	Aug. 23..	1,000
Wild Game	Mermaid comedy	Aug. 30..	2,000
Don't Fail	Cameo comedy	Aug. 30..	1,000
Jonah Jones	Lloyd Hamilton	Sep. 6..	2,000
Hazardous Hunting	Hodge-Podge	Sep. 6..	1,000
Rough and Ready	Lige Conley	Sep. 13..	2,000
Cheer Up	Cliff Bowes	Sep. 13..	1,000
Stupid but Brave	Al St. John	Sep. 20..	2,000
Dirty Hands	Juvenile comedy	Sep. 20..	2,000
Short Change	Hiers comedy	Sep. 27..	2,000
Bright Lights	Vernon comedy	Sep. 27..	2,000
Her Boy Friend	Larry Semon	Sep. 27..	2,000
Court Plaster	Neal Burns	Oct. 4..	2,000
The Hoboken Nightingale	Hurd cartoon	Oct. 4..	1,000
Crazy-Quilt of Travel	Hodge Podge	Oct. 4..	1,000
Fast and Furious (Conley)	Comedy	Oct. 11..	2,000
No Foolin' (Bowes)	Comedy	Oct. 11..	1,000
Sawmill Four	Hurd cartoon	Oct. 18..	1,000
Why Hurry? (Adams)	Comedy	Oct. 18..	2,000
Kid Speed (L. Semon)	Comedy	Oct. 25..	2,000
Crushed (L. Hamilton)	Comedy	Oct. 25..	2,000
Empty Heads (Bowes)	Comedy	Oct. 25..	1,000
High Gear (Vernon)	Comedy	Nov. 1..	2,000
The Mosquito	Instructive	Nov. 1..	1,000
Artist's Model	Hurd cartoon	Nov. 15..	1,000
Poor Butterfly	Mermaid comedy	Nov. 15..	2,000
Watch Your Pep (Bowes)	Cameo comedy	Nov. 15..	1,000
Easy Pickin's	Christie com.	Nov. 22..	2,000
Cut Loose (Dynham-Vance)	Cameo comedy	Nov. 22..	1,000
A Fat Chance (W. Hiers)	Comedy	Nov. 29..	1,000
Go Easy (Bowes)	Cameo com.	Nov. 29..	1,000

(Continued from preceding page)

	Kind of Picture	Review.	Feet
Low Tide (J. White prod.)	Comedy	Dec. 6..	2,000
Little People of the Garden	Instructive	Dec. 6..	1,000
Earth's Oddities	Hodge-Podge	Dec. 13..	1,000
Goat Getters	Juvenile com.	Dec. 13..	2,000
French Pastry (Vernon)	Christie com.	Dec. 20..	2,000
Broadcasting	Hurd cartoon	Dec. 20..	1,000
Lovemania (St. John)	Tuxedo comedy	Dec. 27..	2,000
Mad Rush (Bowes)	Cameo comedy	Dec. 27..	1,000
Step Lightly (Lige Conley)	Mermaid com.	Jan. 3..	2,000
Hi-Fliers	Hodge-Podge	Jan. 3..	1,000
Hooked (Hamilton)	Comedy	Jan. 17..	2,000
Weak Knees (Bowes)	Cameo Com.	Jan. 17..	1,000
Have A Heart (Ruth Hiatt)	Cameo Com.	Jan. 17..	1,000

FILM BOOKING OFFICES OF AMERICA

Week-end Husbands (Rubens)	Society drama	Feb. 9..	6,700
White Sin (Bellamy)	Rural drama	Feb. 23..	6,237
Telephone Girl (Vaughn)	Series	Feb. 23..	2,000
Damaged Hearts (all-star)	Florida drama	Mar. 3..	6,154
When Knighthood Was in Tower (Vaughn).	Tel. Girl	Mar. 8..	2,000
North of Nevada (F. Thomson)	Western	Mar. 15..	5,000
Galloping Gallagher (F. Thomson)	Western	Mar. 22..	4,700
Money to Burns	Tel. Girl	Mar. 29..	2,000
Sherlock's Home	Tel. Girl	Mar. 29..	2,000
Yankee Madness (all-star)	Thrill-com.-dr.	Apr. 5..	4,680
His Forgotten Wife (all-star)	Drama	Apr. 12..	6,500
Silent Stranger (Fred Thomson)	Western	Apr. 19..	5,000
Beloved Vagabond (Blackwell)	Romantic drama	Apr. 26..	6,217
William Tells	Tel. Girl	May 3..	2,000
Girl of the Limberlost (Grey)	Rural drama	May 10..	6,000
Untamed Youth (Lewis)	Gypsy drama	May 10..	5,000
For the Love of Mike	Tel. Girl	May 17..	2,000
Danger Line (Hayakawa)	Japan drama	May 24..	5,000
Spirit of the U. S. A. (Johnson prod.)	Patriotic drama	May 31..	8,312
Dangerous Coward (F. Thomson)	Western	May 31..	6,000
Napoleon and Josephine (all-star)	Hist. romance	June 7..	6,591
Fighting Sap (F. Thomson)	Western	June 14..	5,138
There's Millions In It (all-star)	Romantic thriller	June 28..	6,000
Bee's Knees	Tel. Girl	June 28..	2,000
Swords and the Woman (DeCordoba)	Romantic drama	July 12..	6,000
Fools in the Dark (Patsy R. Miller)	Melo. farce	July 26..	7,002
Neglected Women (Seena Owen)	Society drama	Aug. 9..	6,265
Messalina	Italian spectacle	Sep. 6..	8,473
American Manners (R. Talmadge)	Thrill-com.-dr.	Sep. 6..	5,200
Desert Sheik (Hawley)	Sheik picture	Sep. 20..	5,044
Vanity's Price (A. Q. Nilsson)	Society drama	Sep. 20..	6,124
Woman Who Sinned (Busch)	Society drama		6,102
Thundering Hoofs (F. Thomson)	Western	Dec. 6..	5,033
Stepping Lively (R. Talmadge)	Comedy drama		5,317
Life's Greatest Game (J. Walker)	Baseball epic	Oct. 11..	7,010
Millionaire Cowboy (M. B. Flynn)	Western		4,841
Broken Laws (Mrs. W. Reid)	Drama
Quemado (F. Thomson)	Western
Cheap Kisses (all-star)	Jazz-drama	Nov. 15..	6,538
Go-Getters Series	Thrill comedy	Oct. 18..	2,000
Dangerous Flirt (Evelyn Brent)	Drama	Dec. 6..	5,297
Miss in the Dark (Vaughn)	Go-getters	Dec. 6..	2,000
On The Stroke of Three (Harlan)	Drama	Dec. 13..	6,767
Trigger Fingers (Bob Custer)	Tex. Ranger	Dec. 13..	4,775
Going of Cumming	Go-Getters	Dec. 13..	2,000
Laughing at Danger (R. Talmadge)	Thrill drama	Dec. 20..	5,442
Air Hawk (Al Wilson)	Airplane dr.	Dec. 20..	5,000
Who's Hooligan?	Go-getters	Dec. 20..	2,000
Heebie Jeebies (Aubrey)	Comedy	Dec. 27..	2,000
Silk Stocking Sal (Brent)	Underworld dr.	Jan. 3..	5,367
West of Hot Dog (Stan Laurel)	Comedy	Jan. 3..	2,000
No-Gun Man (Lefty Flynn)	Outdoor melo.	Jan. 17..	4,522

FIRST NATIONAL

Song of Love (N. Talmadge)	Drama	Jan. 19..	8,000
Love Master (Strongheart)	Drama	Jan. 19..	6,779
Painted People (C. Moore)	Comedy	Feb. 9..	5,700
When a Man's a Man (J. Bowers)	Drama	Feb. 12..	6,910
Flowing Gold (all-star)	Drama	Mar. 1..	8,005
Lilies of the Field (C. Griffith)	Drama	Mar. 22..	8,510
Galloping Fish (Ince prod.)	Comedy	Mar. 22..	6,000
Secrets (N. Talmadge)	Drama	Apr. 5..	8,345
Enchanted Cottage (R. Barthelmess)	Drama	Apr. 19..	7,120
Abraham Lincoln (G. A. Billings)	Drama	Feb. 2..	9,759
Cytherea (all-star)	Society drama	May 21..	7,603
Why Men Leave Home (J. M. Stahl prod.).	Comedy-drama	May 3..	7,400
Woman on the Jury (all-star)	Drama	May 17..	7,145
Son of the Sahara (all-star)	Melodrama	May 24..	7,990
Sea Hawk (all-star)	Romantic drama	June 14..	12,045
Marriage Cheat (all-star)	Drama	June 14..	6,622
Those Who Dance (Ince prod.)	Drama	June 21..	7,312
White Moth (LaMarr)	Drama	June 21..	6,571
Perfect Flapper (C. Moore)	Comedy	June 28	7,000
Self-Made Failure (B. Alexander)	Comedy	June 28..	7,345
For Sale (all-star)	Drama	July 5..	7,840
Born Rich (C. Windsor)	Society drama	Dec. 20..
Single Wives (C. Griffith)	Society drama	Aug. 9..	7,526
Girl in the Limousine (Semon)	Farce comedy	Aug. 30..	5,630
Flirting With Love (C. Moore)	Comedy	Sep. 6..	6,920
In Hollywood With Potash and Perlmutter (all-star)	Comedy	Sep. 2..	6,700
Husbands and Lovers (all-star)	Dom. drama	Nov. 8..	7,882
Madonna of the Streets (Nazimova)	Drama	Oct. 25..	7,507
Tarnish (all-star)	Comedy-drama		6,907
Her Night of Romance (C. Talmadge)	Comedy	Dec. 6..	7,211
In Every Woman's Life (all-star)	Drama	Nov. 15..	6,298
Sandra (LaMarr)	Drama	Dec. 6..	7,794
Classmates (R. Barthelmess)	Drama	Nov. 29..	6,983
Christine of the Hungry Heart (Vidor)	Drama	Nov. 1..	7,500
Silent Watcher (Glenn Hunter)	Drama	Oct. 18..	7,576
Love's Wilderness (Griffith)	Drama	Dec. 20..	6,900
So Big (C. Moore)	Drama	Jan. 17..	8,501
If I Marry Again (Doris Kenyon)	Drama
Idle Tongues (Marmont)	Comedy-drama	Dec. 27..	5,300
Sundown (all-star)	Western epic	Oct. 25..	9,000
The Only Woman (N. Tadmadge)	Domestic dr.	Nov. 8..	6,770
Inez from Hollywood (Nilsson-Stone-Astor)	Heart interest	Dec. 13..	6,919
Frivolous Sal (O'Brien-Busch-Alexander)	Western melo.	Jan. 17..	7,307

FOX FILM CORP.

	Kind of Picture	Review.	Feet
Just Off Broadway (Gilbert)	Drama	Feb. 2..	5,444
Not a Drum Was Heard (Jones)	Drama	Feb. 9..	4,323
The Net (Castleton)	Drama	Feb. 9..	6,000
Shadow of the East (all-star)	Drama	Feb. 16..	5,874
Ladies to Board (Mix)	Comedy-drama	Feb. 23..	6,112
Blizzard (all-star)	Northern drama	Mar. 1..	5,800
Frogland	Novelty	Mar. 1..	1,000
Love Letters (Mason)	Comedy-drama	Mar. 8..	4,749
Wolf Man (Gilbert)	Drama	Mar. 15..	5,145
Vagabond Trail (Jones)	Drama	Mar. 22..	4,562
Arizona Express (D. Butler)	Railroad drama	Mar. 29..	6,316
Plunderer (Mayo)	Drama	Apr. 5..	5,000
A Man's Mate (Gilbert)	Drama	Apr. 5..	5,812
New England Farm	Instructive	Apr. 12..	1,000
Circus Cowboy (Jones)	Western drama	May 3..	6,400
Slippery Decks	Card expose	May 3..	1,000
Trouble Shooter (Mix)	Western drama	May 17..	5,702
He's My Pal	Imperial comedy	May 17..	2,000
Lone Chance (Gilbert)	Western drama	May 24..	4,385
When Wise Ducks Meet	Comedy	May 24..	2,000
Western Luck (Jones)	Comedy-drama	June 28..	5,000
Magic Needle	"Etching"	June 28..	1,000
Romance Ranch (Gilbert)	Comedy-drama	July 12..	4,471
Heart Buster (Mix)	Comedy-drama	July 19..	4,500
Beaten Gold	Educational	July 19..	1,000
Against All Odds (Jones)	Comedy-drama	Aug. 9..	4,899
Pain as You Enter (Moran)	Comedy	Aug. 9..	2,000
That French Lady (Mason)	Comedy-drama	Aug. 16..	5,470
Man Who Came Back (special)	Drama	Sep. 6..	8,273
Desert Outlaw (Jones)	Drama
Wolves of the Night (W. Farnum)	Drama
It Is the Law (all-star)	Drama	Sep. 13..	6,895
Dante's Inferno (special)	Drama	Oct. 11..	5,480
Cyclone Rider (all-star)	Drama	Sep. 20..	6,672
Last of the Duanes (Mix)	Drama	Aug. 30..	6,942
Iron Horse (special)	Railway drama	Sep. 13..	11,400
The Hunt	Van Bibber com.
Conquerer (W. Farnum)	Reissue
The Fight (all-star)	Drama
Oh, You Tony (Mix and Tony)	Comedy-drama	Sep. 27..	6,302
Winner Take All (Jones)	Comedy-drama	Oct. 25..	5,949
Hearts of Oak (all-star)	Drama	Oct. 11..	5,336
Great Diamond Mystery (Mason)	Comedy-drama	Nov. 1..	5,096
Warrens of Virginia (all-star)	Drama	Nov. 1..	6,535
The Race	Van Bibber com.
End of the Trail (W. Farnum)	Drama
Rambles of a Raindrop	Instructive	Sep. 27..	1,000
Daughters of the Night (all-star)	Modern drama		5,701
Painted Lady (Mackaill)	Modern drama	Oct. 4..	6,936
Jerusalem Today	Instructive	Oct. 4..	1,000
Last Man on Earth	Novelty special	Dec. 27..
Gold Heels	Race track dr.		6,637
Flames of Desire	Love drama		5,438
The Dancers	Drama
The Folly of Vanity	Dramatic fantasy
Teeth (Mix-Tony Duke)	Western drama	Nov. 15..	6,190
Tainted Souls	Modern drama
Darwin Was Right	Monkey novelty com.	Nov. 8..	4,992
Everyman's Wife	Modern mystery-drama
In Love With Love	Comedy drama	Jan. 3..	5,677
Hunting Wild Animals in Hollywood	Novelty
Honor Among Men (E. Lowe)	Romance-drama	Oct. 18..	4,960
Unreal News 4	Novelty	Oct. 11..	2,000
Van Bibber Series	Polite com.	Oct. 25..	2,000
Age of Oil	Educational	Nov. 1..	2,000
Deep Sea Panic (Parrott)	Comedy	Nov. 1..	2,000
Nickle Plated West	Sunshine comedy	Nov. 15..	2,000
The Bull Fight	Educational	Nov. 15..	1,000
My Husband's Wives (Mason-Washburn)	Comedy-dr.	Nov. 22..	4,509
Paul Jones, Jr.	Van Bibber com.	Nov. 22..	2,000
Finger Lakes	Instructive	Nov. 22..	1,000
Brass Bowl (Edmund Lowe)	Adventure dr.	Nov. 29..	5,861
Stolen Sweeties (Monkeys)	Comedy	Nov. 29..	2,000
Salt of the Earth	Educational	Nov. 29..	1,000
Gerald Cranston's Lady (James Kirkwood).	Domestic dr.	Dec. 6..	6,074
Masked Marvel (Parrott)	Comedy	Dec. 6..	2,000
The Roughneck (George O'Brien)	Melodrama	Dec. 13..	7,619
The Burglar	Van Bibber	Dec. 13..	2,000
Man Who Played Square (Jones)	Western drama	Dec. 20..	6,700
Deadwood Coach (Mix)	Western drama	Jan. 10..	6,346
Troubles of a Bride	Melodrama	Dec. 27..	4,915
Dick Turpin (Mix)	English drama
Hunted Woman	Melodrama
Arizona Romeo (Jones)	Western drama
Curlytop (Mason)	Melodrama	Jan. 10..	5,828
Stardust Trail (Mason)	Melodrama
Scuttlers (W. Farnum)	Western drama		4,686
Movie-Mad Maid (Babe London)	Slapstick	Dec. 20..	2,000
Roaring Lions at Home	Sunshine com.	Jan. 3..	2,000
Uncommon Clay	Educational	Jan. 3..	1,000
Up On the Farm (Lee Moran)	Comedy	Jan. 3..	2,000
The Violin Speaks	Educational	Jan. 10..	1,000
Dangerous Curves	Comedy	Jan. 10..	2,000
Milk Bottle Bandits	Comedy	Jan. 10..	2,000

METRO-GOLDWYN

Through the Dark (Moore)	Drama	Jan. 29..	7,999
Yolanda (Davies)	Romance-dr.	Mar. 1..	10,125
Wild Oranges (all-star)	Drama	Mar. 15..	6,889
Nellie, Beautiful Cloak Model	Melodrama	Apr. 5..	6,598
Three Weeks (Pringle-Nagel)	Romantic dr.	Apr. 12..	7,483
Janice Meredith (Davies)	Romantic dr.	Aug. 23..	10,655
Rejected Woman (Rubens-Nagel)	Drama	May 3..	7,761
Heart Bandit (Dana)	Comedy-dr.	Jan. 19..	4,909
Fool's Awakening (Ford)	Drama	Feb. 16..	5,763
Man Life Passed By (Marmont)	Drama	Mar. 1..	6,459
Thy Name Is Woman (LaMarr)	Drama	Mar. 1..	9,087
Uninvited Guest (Tolley)	Drama	Mar. 8..	6,145
Happiness (L. Taylor)	Comedy-dr.	Mar. 8..	7,414
Women Who Give (all-star)	Sea drama	Mar. 22..	7,500
Boy of Flanders (Coogan)	Comedy-dr.	Apr. 5..	7,018
Shooting of Dan McGrew (all-star)	Drama	Apr. 12..	6,318
Mademoiselle Midnight (Murray)	Drama	May 17.	6,778
Sherlock, Jr. (Keaton)	Comedy	May 17..	4,065
Arab (Novarro-Terry)	Drama	July 12..	6,710
Bread (all-star)	Drama	Aug. 2..	6,726
Tess of D'Urbervilles (Sweet)	Drama	Aug. 9..	7,736
Little Robinson Crusoe (Coogan)	Comedy-dr.	Aug. 16..	6,126

(Continued from preceding page)

	Kind of Picture	Review.	Feet
Broken Barriers (all-star)	Drama	Aug. 16..	5,717
True As Steel (all-star)	Drama	Jun. 28..	6,454
Revelation (Dana)	Drama	July 5..	8,752
Recoil (Blythe-Hamilton)	Drama	July 12..	7,089
Wine of Youth (all star)	Drama	July 26..	6,805
Along Came Ruth (Dana)	Comedy-dr.	Aug. 2..	5,161
Red Lily (Bennett-Novarro)	Drama	Aug. 16..	6,975
Sinners in Silk (Menjou-Boardman)	Drama	Aug. 30..	5,750
Circe, The Enchantress (Murray)	Drama	Sep. 13..	6,882
His Hour (Pringle)	Drama	Sep. 20..	6,300
One Night in Rome (L. Taylor)	Comedy-dr.	Sep. 27..	5,883
Navigator (Keaton)	Comedy	Sep. 13..	5,550
Bandolero (all star)	Drama	Oct. 11..	6,000
Great Divide (all star)	Drama
The Snob (all star)	Drama	Nov. 8..	6,513
He Who Gets Slapped (Chaney)	Drama	Nov. 15..	6,613
Rag Man (Coogan)	Comedy-dr.
Silent Accuser (Peter, the Great)	Dog drama	Nov. 22..	5,883
So This Is Marriage (all star)	Comedy-dr.	Jan. 3..	6,300
Beauty Prize (Dana)	Comedy-dr.	Oct. 11..	5,750
Ben Hur (special cast)	Drama
Merry Widow (Murray)	Comedy-dr.
The Scandal (Novarro)	Drama
Seven Chances (Keaton)	Comedy
Sporting Venus (Sweet)	Drama
Married Flirts (all-star)	Drama	Oct. 25..	6,765
Temptress (Cosmopolitan)
The Square Peg
Zander, the Great (Cosmopolitan)
Romola (Lillian Gish)	Famous novel	Dec. 13..	12,974
Greed (Von Stroheim prod.)	Special	Dec. 20..	10,067
Chu-Chin-Chow (B. Blythe)	Spectacle
Wife of the Centaur	Drama	Jan. 17..	6,586
Dixie Handicap (Windsor-Keenan)	Drama	Jan. 10..	6,905
Cheaper to Marry (All Star) ..	Drama
A Man's World (Joyce-Marmont)	Drama

PARAMOUNT

Ten Commandments (all star)	Spectacular dr.	Jan. 5..	12,000
Icebound (Dix-Wilson)	Rural dr.	Mar. 15..	6,471
Society Scandal (Swanson)	Society dr.	Mar. 22..	6,433
Fighting Coward (Cruze prod.)	Satirical dr.	Mar. 29..	6,433
Dawn of a To-morrow (Logan)	Slum dr.	Apr. 5..	6,084
Singer Jim McKee (W. S. Hart)	Western	Apr. 12..	7,008
Breaking Point (all star)	West-Metropolitan	Apr. 19..	6,664
Confidence Man (Meighan)	Romance dr.	Apr. 26..	6,500
Moral Sinner (Dalton)	Crook melo.	Apr. 26..	5,489
Triumph (C. DeMille prod.)	Theatrical dr.	May 3..	8,292
Bluff (Ayres-Moreno)	Drama	May 10..	6,504
Men (Negri)	Society dr.	May 17..	6,700
Wanderer of Wasteland (Holt-Technicolor)	Western	May 31..	6,086
Code of the Sea (LaRocque-Logan)	Sea melodr.	Jun. 7..	6,550
Bedroom Window (W. DeMille prod.)	Mystery dr.	Jun. 21..	6,550
Guilty One (Ayres)	Heavy mystery	Jun. 28..	5,365
Tiger Love (Melford prod.)	Modern dr.	Jun. 28..	5,325
Changing Husbands (Joy)	Dual role dr.	July 5..	6,799
Unguarded Women (Daniels-Dix)	Society dr.	July 5..	6,051
Enemy Sex (Compson)	Romantic dr.	July 12..	7,861
Side Show of Life (Torrence)	Clown dr.	Aug. 2..	7,511
Manhandled (Swanson)	Comedy-dr.	Aug. 9..	6,908
Man Who Fights Alone (W. Farnum)	Drama	Aug. 9..	6,337
Monsieur Beaucaure (Valentino)	Spectacle melo.	Aug. 23..	9,932
Empty Hands (Holt)	Forest Melo.	Aug. 30..	6,976
Lily of the Dust (Negri)	Drama	Sep. 6..	6,811
The Female (Compson)	Society dr.	Sep. 13..	6,167
Merton of the Movies (Hunter)	Travesty	Sep. 20..	7,655
Sinners in Heaven (Daniels-Dix)	Drama	Sep. 20..	6,621
Open All Night (all star)	Demestic dr.	Sep. 20..	6,881
Feet of Clay (C. DeMille prod.)	Drama	Oct. 4..	9,741
Alaskan (Meighan)	Drama	Sep. 27..	6,167
Her Love Story (Swanson)	Romance dr.	Oct. 11..	6,736
Story Without a Name (Ayres-Moreno)	Prize title.	Oct. 18..	5,912
Dangerous Money (Daniels)	Comedy-dr.	Oct. 25..	6,864
Border Legion (Moreno)	Drama	Nov. 1..	7,048
Worldly Goods (Ayres)	Drama	Nov. 15—	6,055
Fast Set (Compson-Menjou)	Domestic dr.	Nov. 29..	6,574
Forbidden Paradise (Negri)	Drama	Nov. 29..	7,000
Sainted Devil (Valentino)	Drama	Dec. 6..	8,633
City That Never Sleeps (Cruze prod.)	Mother-love melo.	Oct. 11..	6,097
Manhattan (Dix)	Romantic com.	Nov. 8..	6,415
Garden of Weeds (Compson)	Drama	Nov. 15..	6,230
Wages of Virtue (Swanson)	Drama	Dec. 6..	7,093
Tongues of Flame (Meighan-Love)	Melodrama	Dec. 27..	6,763
North of 36 (Torrence-Holt-Wilson)	Historic romance	Dec. 13..	7,908
Argentine Love (Daniels-Cortez)	Spanish romance	Jan. 3..	5,970
Peter Pan (Betty Bronson)	Barrie classic	Jan. 3..	9,593
Locked Doors (Compson)	Original story		6,221
Tomorrow's Love (Ayres)	Divorce com-dr.
East of Suez (Negri)	Drama	Jan. 17..	6,716
Miss Bluebeard (Daniels)	The stage success
Golden Bed (LaRocque)	Drama of classes
Man Must Live (Dix)	Newspaper romance		6,116
Coming Through (Meighan)	New type Meighan story
The Devil's Cargo (Starke)	Drama of Old California
Lord Chumley (Dana-Griffith-Roberts)	Stage success
Top of the World (Nilsson-Kirkwood)	Africa and England		7,167
The Swan (Menjou-Howard)	Stage success
Contraband (Wilson-Noah Beery)	Bootleg drama
Madame Sans Gene (Swanson)	World Famous drama
Thundering Herd (Holt-Wilson)	Buffalo stampede

PATHE

Zeb Versus Paprika	Stan Laurel	Mar. 15..	2,000
Why Mice Leave Home	Terry cartoon	Mar. 15..	1,000
Wolfe and Montcalm	Chronicles of America	Mar. 22..	3,000
Scarem Much	Sennett comedy	Mar. 22..	2,000
Fields of Glory	"Sportlight"	Mar. 22..	1,000
Hunters Bold	"Spat Family"	Mar. 22..	2,000
From Rags to Riches and Back Again	Terry cartoon	Mar. 22..	1,000
Don't Forget	Charles Chase	Mar. 22..	1,000
King of Wild Horses	Rex (horse)	Mar. 29..	5,000
Big Moments From Little Pictures	Will Rogers	Mar. 29..	2,000
Fraidy Cat	Charles Chase	Mar. 29..	1,000
Shanghaied Lovers	Harry Langdon	Mar. 29..	2,000
The Champion	Terry cartoon	Mar. 29..	1,000
Dirty Little Half Breed	Frontier series	Mar. 29..	2,000
Seein' Things	"Our Gang"	Apr. 5..	2,000
Birds of Passage	Bird Novelty	Apr. 5..	3,000

	Kind of Picture	Review.	Feet
Running Wild	Terry cartoon	Apr. 5..	1,000
Friend Husband	Snub Pollard	Apr. 5..	1,000
The Swift and Strong	"Sportlight"	Apr. 5..	1,000
Girl-Shy	Harold Lloyd	Apr. 12..	7,457
Our Little Nell	"Dippy Doo Dads"	Apr. 12..	1,000
Medicine Hat	Frontier series	Apr. 12..	2,000
Brothers Under the Chin	Stan Laurel	Apr. 12..	2,000
Gateway of the West	8th Chronicle	Apr. 19..	3,000
The Hollywood Kid	Sennett comedy	Apr. 19..	2,000
Hit the High Spots	"Spat Family"	Apr. 19..	2,000
One at a Time	Earl Mohan	Apr. 19..	1,000
If Noah Lived Today	Terry cartoon	Apr. 19..	1,000
A Trip to the Pole	Terry cartoon	Apr. 26..	1,000
Sun and Snow	"Sportlight"	Apr. 26..	1,000
Get Busy	Snub Pollard	Apr. 26..	1,000
Highbrow Stuff	Will Rogers	Apr. 26..	2,000
Flickering Youth	Sennett comedy	Apr. 26..	2,000
Commencement Day	"Our Gang"	May 3..	2,000
An Ideal Farm	Terry cartoon	May 3..	1,000
Homeless Pups	Terry cartoon	May 3..	1,000
Sporting Speed	"Sportlight"	May 3..	1,000
Publicity Pays	Charles Chase	May 3..	1,000
When Winter Comes	Terry cartoon	May 10..	1,000
Near Dublin	Stan Laurel	May 10..	2,000
North of 50-50	"Dippy Doo Dads"	May 10..	1,000
The Fortieth Door	Allene Ray—serial	May 17..
April Fool	Charles Chase	May 17..	2,000
The Pilgrims	Chronicle series	May 17..	3,000
Fishin' Fever	"Sportlight"	May 17..	2,000
Black Oxfords	Sennett comedy	May 17..	2,000
Bottle Babies	"Spat Family"	May 17..	2,000
Going to Congress	Will Rogers	May 24..	2,000
Position Wanted	Charles Chase	May 24..	1,000
The Cat's Meow	Sennett comedy	May 24..	2,000
Cradle Robbers	"Our Gang"	May 31..	2,000
Building Winners	"Sportlight"	May 31..	1,000
Before Taking	Earl Mohan	May 31..	1,000
Rupert of Hee-Haw	Stan Laurel	June 7..	2,000
Yukon Jake	Ben Turpin	June 7..	2,000
Up and At 'Em	"Dippy Doo Dads"	June 7..	1,000
The Flying Carpet	Terry cartoon	June 7..	1,000
Declaration of Independence	"Chronicles"	June 14..	3,000
Fast Black	Mohan-Engle	June 14..	1,000
Lion and the Souse	Sennett comedy	June 14..	2,000
On Guard	"Sportlight"	June 14..	1,000
Suffering Shakespeare	"Spat Family"	June 14..	2,000
Young Oldfield	Charles Chase	June 21..	1,000
His New Mama	Sennett comedy	June 21..	2,000
Don't Park There	Will Rogers	June 21..	2,000
Her Memory	Will Nigh Miniature	June 21..	1,000
Solitude and Fame	"Sportlight"	June 28..	1,000
Stolen Goods	Charles Chase	June 28..	1,000
Jubilo, Jr.	"Our Gang"	June 28..	2,000
Jeffries, Jr.	Charles Chase	July 5..	1,000
The Wide Open Spaces	Stan Laurel	July 5..	2,000
The Body in the Bag	Terry cartoon	July 5..	1,000
Yorktown	Chronicles of America	July 12..	3,000
Why Husbands Go Mad	Charles Chase	July 12..	1,000
Desert Sheiks	Terry cartoon	July 12..	1,000
Radio Mad	"Spat Family"	July 12..	2,000
Maud Miller	Special	July 19..	2,000
Our Congressman	Will Rogers	July 19..	2,000
A Woman's Hour	Terry cartoon	July 19..	1,000
A Ten-Minute Egg	Charles Chase	July 19..	1,000
It's a Bear	"Our Gang"	July 26..	2,000
The Sport of Kings	Terry cartoon	July 26..	1,000
Our Defenders	"Sportlight"	July 26..	1,000
Seeing Nellie Home	Charles Chase	July 26..	1,000
Into the Net	Mulhall-Murphy serial	Aug. 2..
Romeo and Juliet	Sennett comedy	Aug. 2..	2,000
Flying Fever	Terry cartoon	Aug. 2..	1,000
Short Kilts	Hal Roach comedy	Aug. 2..	2,000
A Hard Boiled Tenderfoot	"Spat Family"	Aug. 9..	2,000
The Puritans	"Chronicles" series	Aug. 9..	3,000
Amelia Comes Back	Terry cartoon	Aug. 9..	1,000
The First Hundred Years	Sennett comedy	Aug. 16..	2,000
A Truthful Liar	Will Rogers	Aug. 16..	2,000
The Battling Orioles	Special	Aug. 23..	5,000
East of the Water Plug	Sennett comedy	Aug. 23..	2,000
High Society	"Our Gang"	Aug. 23..	2,000
The Prodigal Pup	Terry cartoon	Aug. 23..	1,000
Hoofbeats	"Sportlight"	Aug. 23..	1,000
House Cleaning	Terry cartoon	Aug. 23..	1,000
Alexander Hamilton	"Chronicles" series	Sep. 6..	3,000
Lizzies of the Field	Sennett comedy	Sep. 6..	2,000
Barnyard Olympics	Terry cartoon	Sep. 6..	1,000
South of the North Pole	"Spat Family"	Sep. 6..	2,000
One Third Off	Cobb-Rice comedy	Sep. 6..	2,000
The Happy Years	"Sportlight"	Sep. 6..	1,000
Why Men Work	Charles Chase	Sep. 6..	1,000
Message From the Sea	Terry cartoon	Sep. 6..	1,000
Luck of the Foolish	Harry Langdon	Sep. 13..	2,000
Outdoor Pajamas	Charles Chase	Sep. 13..	2,000
Three Foolish Weeks	Ben Turpin	Sep. 13..	2,000
In Good Old Summertime	Terry cartoon	Sep. 13..	1,000
Danger Lure	Sportlight	Oct. 11..	1,000
Dixie	Chronicles	Oct. 11..	3,000
Goofy Age (Glenn Tryon)	Comedy	Oct. 11..	2,000
10 Scars Make a Man (Allene Ray)	Serial	Oct. 18..
Black Magic	Terry cartoon	Oct. 18..	1,000
Sporting Rhythm	Sportlight	Oct. 18..	1,000
Riders of the Purple Cow	Sennett com.	Oct. 18..	2,000
Every Man for Himself	Our Gang	Oct. 18..	2,000
Hot Water (Harold Lloyd)	Feature com.	Oct. 18..	5,000
On Leave of Absence	Detective	Oct. 25..	2,000
Bungalow Boobs (Chase)	Comedy	Oct. 25..	1,000
Sky Plumber (Arthur Stone)	Comedy	Oct. 25..	2,000
Galloping Bungalows	Sennett com.	Nov. 1..	2,000
Stunts	Sportlight	Nov. 1..	1,000
Hot Stuff	Spat family	Nov. 1..	2,000
Cat and the Magnet	Terry cartoon	Nov. 1..	1,000
Fast Company	Our Gang	Nov. 15..	2,000
She Knew Her Man	Terry cartoon	Nov. 15..	1,000
Gridiron Glory	Sportlight	Nov. 15..	1,000
Love's Sweet Piffle (R. Graves)	Comedy	Nov. 22..	2,000
Are Blond Men Bashful? (Stone)	Comedy	Nov. 22..	2,000
Out of the Storm	Detective	Nov. 22..	2,000
Good Old Circus Days	Terry cartoon	Nov. 22..	1,000
All Wet (Chase)	Comedy	Nov. 29..	1,000
Deaf, Dumb and Daffy	Spat Family	Nov. 29..	2,000
Cannon-Ball Express	Sennett com.	Nov. 29..	2,000

	Kind of Picture	Review.	Feet
Champions	Sportlight	Nov. 29..	1,000
Lumber Jacks	Terry cartoon	Nov. 29..	1,000
White Sheep (Glenn Tryon)	Special dr.	Dec. 6..	6,091
Feet of Mud (Seunett cast)	Comedy	Dec. 6..	2,000
Meet the Missus (Tryon)	Comedy	Dec. 6..	2,000
Bucking the Bucket Shop	Detective series	Dec. 6..	2,000
She's In Again	Terry cartoon	Dec. 6..	1,000
Mysterious Mystery	Our Gang	Dec. 13..	2,000
Off His Trolley (R. Graves)	Sennett com.	Dec. 13..	2,000
Noah's Athletic Club	Terry cartoon	Dec. 13..	1,000
Just a Good Guy (Stone) ..	Comedy	Dec. 20..	2,000
Royal Razz (Chase)	Comedy	Dec. 20..	1,000
Mysteries of Old Chinatown	Terry cartoon	Dec. 20..	1,000
Nature's Rouge	Sportlight	Dec. 20..	1,000
Rubber Neck	Spat Family ..	Dec. 27..	2,000
Bull and Sand	Sennett comedy	Dec. 27..	2,000
Invaders	Sportlight	Dec. 27..	1,000
Down on the Farm	Terry cartoon	Dec. 27..	1,000
The Sea Squawk	Sennett com.	Jan. 3..	2,000
On the Ice	Terry cartoon	Jan. 3..	1,000
Galloping Hoofs (Allene Ray)	Serial	Jan. 3..
Wages of Tin (Tryon)	Comedy	Jan. 3..	2,000
Rat's Knuckles (Chase)	Comedy	Jan. 10..	1,000
Rough and Tumbling	Sportlight	Jan. 10..	1,000
Our Game Pup	Terry cartoon	Jan. 10..	1,000
The Big Town (Our Gang)	Comedy	Jan. 10..	2,000
Plumber (Graves)	Comedy	Jan. 10..	2,000
Wild Goose Chaser (Turpin)	Sennett Com.	Jan. 17..	2,000
Hello Baby (Chase)	Comedy	Jan. 17..	1,000

PRINCIPAL PICTURES

Listen Lester (all-star)	Comedy-drama	May	10..	6,242
Daring Youth (Daniels)	Comedy drama	May	17..	5,975
Daughters of Pleasure (Prevost)	Drama	May	24..	6,000
Masked Dancer (H. Chadwick)	Mystery drama	May	31..	4,987
Good Bad Boy (Joe Butterworth)	Comedy-drama	June	7..	5,198
Captain January (Baby Peggy)	Sea story	July	12..	6,194
Helen's Babies (Baby Peggy)	Comedy-drama
Mine With Iron Door (all-star)	Adventure drama	Dec.	27..	7,800
Re-Creation of Brian Kent	Drama
Resurrection	Tolstoi novel

PRODUCERS DISTRIBUTING CORP.

Grit (G. Hunter)	Crook dr.	Jan.	12..	5,500
Love's Whirlpool (Lee-Kirkwood)	Drama	Mar.	22..	6,605
Hoosier Schoolmaster (Hull)	Drama	Mar.	29..	5,556
His Darker Self (L. Hamilton)	Comedy	Apr.	5..	5,000
Try and Get It (Washburn)	Comedy-dr.	Apr.	12..	5,607
Not One to Spare (all star)	Pathos dr.	Apr.	19..	5,000
Wandering Husbands (Lee-Kirkwood)	Drama	May	10..	6,300
Hold Your Breath (Devore)	Thrill com.	Jun.	7..	5,900
Miami (Compson)	Drama	Jun.	14..	6,317
Night Hawk (Carey)	Western	Jun.	14..	5,115
Lightning Rider (Carey)	Western	Jun.	21..	6,000
What Shall I Do? (Mackaill)	Drama	Jun.	28..	8,000
Legend of Hollywood (Marmont)	Drama	Jan.	10..	5,414
Wise Virgin (Miller)	Drama			5,951
Welcome Stranger (Vidor)	Comedy-dr.	Oct.	25..	6,618
Ramshackle House (Compson)	Comedy-dr.			6,257
Barbara Frietchie (Vidor)	Civ. War dr.	Oct.	11..	7,179
Chalk Marks (M. Snow)	Drama
House of Youth (Logan)	Drama			6,669
Roaring Rails (Carey)	Railway dr.	Oct.	25..	5,753
Another Scandal (Lois Wilson)	Sex theme	Nov.	1..	7,000
Another Man's Wife (Lee-Kirkwood)	Drama			5,015
Trouping With Ellen (H. Chadwick)	Comedy-dr.			6,452
Reckless Romance	Comedy feature	Nov.	22..	5,530
Siren of Seville (Dean)	Drama	Nov.	29..	6,724
Girl on the Stairs (Miller)	Comedy-dr.			6,214
Chorus Lady (Livingston)	Comedy-dr.			6,020
Cafe in Cairo (Dean)	Drama			5,656
Flaming Forties (Carey)	Western			5,770
The Mirage (Vidor)	Drama
Let Women Alone (O'Malley-Hawley)	Drama
Soft Shoes (Carey)	Western
Off the Highway (Logan)	Drama

B. P. SCHULBERG PROD.

Breath of Scandal (Blythe)	Society drama			6,940
White Man (Joyce)	Jungle romance	Nov.	22..	6,370
Triflers (Buscb-Mayo)	Paris soc. dr.	Dec.	27..	6,626
Capital Punishment (Clara Bow)	Modern dr.
Boomerang (Clara Bow)	Comedy-dr.

SELZNICK

(Through Associated Exhibitors)

Woman to Woman (Compson)	Drama	Apr.	26..	6,304
$20 a Week (Arliss)	Drama	Jun.	21..	5,900
White Shadow (Compson)	Drama
Passionate Adventure (Joyce-Daw)	Society dr.			5,665
Bowery Bisbop	Slum dr.
Greatest Love of All (Beban)	Drama

(Through F. B. O.)

Nell Shipman Little Dramas
Featurettes
Jimmy Aubrey Comedies
Col. Heeza Liar Comedies

UNITED ARTISTS

Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall (Pickford)	Romantic drama	May	17..	9,351
America (Griffith prod.)	Historical drama	Mar.	8 ..	11,442
Isn't Life Wonderful? (Dempster)	Realism	Dec.	13..	8,000
Thief of Bagdad (D. Fairbanks)	Fantasy	Mar.	29..	12,000

UNIVERSAL

Hats Off (Morrison)	Drama	Feb.	9.	2,000
Down in Jungle Town (Joe Martin)	Monkey [illegible]y	Feb.	9 .	1,000
Fast Express (W. Duncan)	Railway serial	Feh.	5..	...
Jack o' Clubs (Rawlinson)	Western dr.	Feh.	16..	4,717
Lone Larry (Sedgwick)	Comedy	Feb.	16..	2,000
You're Next	Century co[illegible]	Feb.	16..	2,000
The Jail Bird (Edwards)	Comedy	Feh.	16..	1,000

	Kind of Picture	Review		Feet
Ride for Your Life (Gibson)	Western	Mar.	1..	5,310
Society Sensation (Valentino)	Reissue	Mar.	1..	2,000
Very Bad Man (Edwards)	Comedy	Mar.	1..	1,000
Peg of the Mounted (Baby Peggy)	Comedy	Mar.	1..	2,000
Law Forbids (Baby Peggy)	Feature dr.	Mar.	8..	6,263
Swing Bad the Sailor	Leather Pushers	Mar.	8..	2,000
Sons-in-Law	Century com.	Mar.	8..	2,000
Should Poker Players Marry (Edwards)	Comedy	Mar.	8..	1,000
Fool's Highway (Philbin)	Drama	Mar.	15..	6,800
Big Boy Blue	Leather Pushers	Mar.	15..	2,000
The Oriental Game (Pal)	Century com.	Mar.	15..	2,000
Keep Healthy (Summerville)	Comedy	Mar.	15..	1,000
Phantom Horseman (Hoxie)	Western	Mar.	15..	4,889
Stolen Secrets (Rawlinson)	Drama	Mar.	22..	4,742
Young Tenderfoot (Messinger)	Comedy	Mar.	22..	2,000
Nobody to Love (Edwards)	Comedy	Mar.	22..	1,000
Night Message (Hulette)	Drama	Mar.	29..	4,531
Ship Ahoy (Dunn)	Comedy	Mar.	29..	1,000
That's Rich (Trimble)	Comedy	Mar.	29..	2,000
Galloping Ace (Hoxie)	Western	Apr.	5..	4,561
Hit Him Hard (Earle)	Comedy	Apr.	5..	2,000
Marry When Young (Edwards)	Comedy	Apr.	5..	1,000
Checking Out (Pal)	Century com.	Apr.	12..	2,000
Spring of 1964 (Edwards)	Comedy	Apr.	12..	1,000
Excitement (LaPlante)	Comedy-dr.	Apr.	19..	4,913
Storm Daughter (Dean)	Drama	Apr.	19..	5,203
Racing Kid (Messinger)	Comedy	Apr.	19..	2,000
Forty Horse Hawkins (Gibson)	Western	Apr.	26..	5,140
One Wet Night (Edwards)	Comedy	Apr.	26..	1,000
Pretty Plungers (Follies Girls)	Century com.	Apr.	26..	2,000
Riders Up (Hale)	Race drama	May	3..	4,904
Politics (Summerville)	Comedy	May	3..	1,000
Green Grocers (Dunn)	Comedy	May	3..	1,000
A Lofty Marriage (Earle)	Comedy	May	3..	2,000
Taxi, Taxi!	Comedy	May	10..	2,000
Pigskin Hero (McCoy)	Comedy	May	10..	2,000
Bulltosser (Lyons-Moran)	Reissue	May	10..	1,000
Dangerous Blonde (LaPlante)	Comedy-dr.	May	17..	4,919
Fast Steppers (New Series)	Race dr.	May	10..	2,000
Ridgeway of Montana (Hoxie)	Western	May	17..	4,843
My Little Brother (Summerville)	Comedy	May	17..	1,000
The Lone Round-Up (Dougherty)	Short Western	May	17..	2,000
The Signal Tower (Super-Jewel)	Drama	May	24..	6,714
Tired Business Man (Alt-Follies Girls)	Comedy	May	24..	2,000
Honor of Men (N. Hart re-issue)	Western	May	24..	2,000
Reckless Age (Denny)	Drama	May	31..	6,954
Fighting American (all star)	Drama	May	31..	5,251
Case Dismissed (Summerville)	Comedy	May	31..	1,000
Boss of the Bar-20 (Lawrence)	Western	May	31..	2,000
Delivering the Goods (Pal)	Comedy	May	31..	2,000
The Gaiety Girl (Philbin)	Drama	Jun.	7..	7,419
High Speed (Rawlinson)	Drama	Jun.	7..	4,927
Fearless Fools (McCoy)	Century com.	Jun.	7..	2,000
Rest in Pieces (Roach)	Comedy	Jun.	7..	1,000
Powerful Eye (Morrison)	Short Western	Jun.	7..	2,000
Sailor Maids (Follies Girls)	Comedy	Jun.	14..	2,000
Winning a Bride (Ridgeway)	Comedy	Jun.	14..	2,000
Family Secret (Baby Peggy)	Comedy-dr.	Jun.	21..	5,076
Back Trail (Hoxie)	Western	Jun.	21..	4,615
Figbt and Win (Jack Dempsey)	Fight series	Jun.	21..	...
Please Teacher (Messinger)	Comedy	Jun.	21..	2,000
Miners Over 21 (Summerville)	Comedy	Jun.	21..	1,000
Blue Wing's Revenge (Lawrence)	Western	Jun.	28..	2,000
Dark Stairway (Rawlinson)	Drama	Jun.	28..	5,000
Iron Man (Albertini)	Serial	Jun.	28..	...
Behind the Curtain (Bryson)	Drama	July	5..	4,875
A Royal Pair	Century com.	July	5..	2,000
Why Be Jealous? (Roacb)	Comedy	July	5..	1,000
Young Ideas (LaPlante)	Comedy-dr.	July	12..	4,005
Her Fortunate Face	Century com.	July	12..	2,000
Little Savage	Short Western	July	12..	2,000
Sawdust Trail (Gibson)	Western	July	19..	5,500
Cry Baby (Summerville)	Comedy	July	19..	1,000
Starving Beauties (Wiley)	Comedy	July	26..	2,000
Flying Eagle (Lawrence)	Short Western	July	26..	2,000
Patcbing Things Up (Roach)	Comedy	July	26..	2,000
Fighting Fury (Hoxie)	Western	Aug.	2..	4,491
Kid Days (Snooky)	Comedy	Aug.	2..	1,000
Her City Sport (Wiley)	Comedy	Aug.	2..	2,000
The Gun Packer (Morrison)	Western	Aug.	2..	2,000
Big Timber (Desmond)	Forest dr.	Aug.	9..	4,650
Paging Money	Century com.	Aug.	9..	2,000
King's Command (Lawrence)	Short Western	Aug.	9..	2,000
Love and Glory (all star)	Drama	Aug.	16..	7,084
Hit and Run (Gibson)	Baseball dr.	Aug.	16..	5,504
Wolves of the North (Duncan)	Serial	Aug.	16..	...
Wine (C. Bow)	Drama	Aug.	23..	6,220
Hysterical History (Z Series)	Novelty	Aug.	23..	1,000
Sagebush Vagabond	Western	Aug.	23..	2,000
Butterfly (LaPlante)	Comedy-dr.	Aug.	30..	7,472
The Blow Out (Messinger)	Comedy	Aug.	30..	2,000
K—Tbe Unknown (Valli-Marmont)	Drama	Sep.	6..	8,146
All's Swell on the Ocean (Dempsey)	Fight and win	Sep.	6..	2,000
So This Is Paris (Dempsey)	Fight and win	Sep.	6..	2,000
Scared Stiff	Century com.	Sep.	6..	2,000
Mind the Baby (Pal)	Comdey	Sep.	13..	2,000
College Cowboy	Western	Sep.	13..	2,000
Traffic Jams (McCoy)	Comedy	Sep.	13..	2,000
Tempest Cody Gets Her Man (Walcamp)	Western	Sep.	13..	2,000
Tbat's the Spirit (Roacb)	Comedy	Sep.	13..	1,000
Measure of a Man (Desmond)	Drama	Sep.	20..	4,979
Fast Worker (Denny-LaPlante)	Drama	Sep.	20..	6,506
Low Bridge (Messinger)	Comdey	Sep.	27..	2,000
Game Hunter (Roacb)	Comdey	Sep.	27..	1,000
Between Fires	Western	Sep.	27..	2,000
Rose of Paris (Philbin)	Drama	Oct.	4..	6,362
Rip Van Winkle	Hysterical Hist.	Oct.	4..	1,000
Trouble Fixer	Century com.	Oct.	4..	2,000
Western Wallop (Hoxie)	Ex-convict dr.	Oct.	11..	4,611
Hello, Frisco (Summerville-Dunn)	Comedy	Oct.	11..	1,000
Snappy Eyes (Wiley)	Comedy	Oct.	11..	2,000
An Eyeful (Sullivan)	Short drama	Oct.	11..	2,000
Pocahontas & John Smith	Hysterical hist.	Oct.	18..	1,000
What an Eye	Comedy	Oct.	18..	2,000
Ridin' Kid From Powder River (Gibson)	Western	Oct.	25..	5,727
Riddle Rider (Desmond-Sedgwick)	Serial	Nov.	1..
Robinson Crusoe	Hysterical hist.	Nov.	1..	1,000
Some Tomboy (Wiley)	Comedy	Nov.	1..	2,000
The Tornado (H. Peters)	Melodrama	Nov.	15..	6,375
Sweet Dreams	Century comedy	Nov.	15..	2,000
Antony and Cleopatra	Gysterical History	Nov.	15..	1,000
Speed, Boys (Trimble, Bobbles)	Century (kid)	Nov.	22..	2,000
Oh, Doctor (R. Denny)	Comedy	Nov.	29..	6,587
Omar Khayyan (Hysterical bistory)	Comedy	Nov.	29..	1,000

(Continued from preceding page)

	Kind of Picture	Review.	Feet
Double Cross (Sullivan)	Drama	Nov. 29..	2,000
Smouldering Fires (Frederick-LaPlante)	Drama	Dec. 13..	7,356
Hurricane Kid (Gibson)	Western	Jan. 3..	5.296
Secrets of the Night (Kirkwood-Bellamy)	Drama	Dec. 20..	6,138
Mad Whirl (May MacAvoy)	Comedy-dr.	Dec. 27..	6,184
Price of Pleasure (Valli-Kerry)	Drama
Saddle Hawk (Gibson)	Western dr.
Raffles (House Peters)	Drama
Eyes of Fools (Rubens-Marmont)	Society dr.
Fifth Avenue Models (Mary Philbin)	Drama
Up The Ladder (Valli)	Drama
Love Cargo (House Peters)	Drama
Let 'Er Back (Gibson)	Western	Jan. 3..	5,500
Dangerous Innocence (LaPlante-O'Brien)	Drama
Ridin' Thunder (Jack Hoxie)	Western
Man in Blue (Rawlinson-Bellamy)	Drama
Meddler (Desmond)	Drama
Taming the West (Gibson)	Western
Don Dare-Devil (Hoxie)	Western
Red Clay (Desmond)	Drama
Paul Revere	Hysterical histy.	Dec. 20..	1,000
Border Maid (Ed Cobb)	Drama	Dec. 20..	2,000
Family Row (Messinger)	Comedy	Dec. 20..	2,000
Present Arms (Wiley)	Comedy	Dec. 27..	2,000
Red Age (Sullivan)	Drama	Jan. 3..	2,000
Ponce de Leon	Hysterical history	Jan. 3..	1,000
Prehistoric Man	Hysterical history	Jan. 3..	1,000
Sign of the Cactus (Hoxie)	Western	Jan. 10..	4,938
Ridin' Pretty (Desmond-Forrest)	Western com.-dr.	Jan. 17..	4,812

VITAGRAPH

Between Friends (Tellegen-Nilsson)	Society dr.	Apr. 26..	6,936
Virtuous Liars (Allen-Powell)	Society dr.	Apr. 19..	5,650
One Law For The Woman (Landis)	Mining camp		6,000
Code of the Wilderness (Bowers-Calhoun)	Modern west.	July 12..	6,480
Behold This Woman (Rich)	Movie romance	Aug. 2..	6.425
Captain Blood (Star Cast)	Sabatini romance	Sep. 20..	10,680
Clean Heart or Cruelties of Life	Modern dr.	Sep. 27..	7,950
Greater Than Marriage (Tellegen-Daw)	Theatre dr.
Beloved Brute (De La Motte)	Melodrama	Nov. 22..	6,719
Two Shall Be Born (Novak-Harlan)	Drama
Pampered Youth (Landis-Calhoun)	Drama
Redeeming Sin (Nazimova-Tellegen)	Apache dr.
Barree, Son of Kazan	Special
Fearbound (Daw-Welch)	Melodrama
Steele of Royal Mounted	Special
In the Garden of Charity	Special
Happy Warrior	Special
Alibi	Special
Road That Led Home	Special
Unknown Story	Special

WARNER BROTHERS

Conductor 1492 (Hines)	Comedy-drama	Feb. 23..	7,080
Daddies (Belasco)	Comedy-drama	Feb. 23..	7,228
George Washington, Jr. (Barry)	Comedy-drama	Mar. 22..	5.674
Beau Brummel (J. Barrymore)	Romantic drama	Apr. 12..	10,930
Broadway After Dark (Menjou)	Comedy-drama	May 31..	7,019
Babbitt (all-star)	Character drama	July 1..	7,900
Being Respectable (all-star)	Society drama	Aug. 16..	6,040
Three Women (all-star)	Society drama	Sep. 27..	8,200
How to Educate a Wife (star cast)	Society drama		6,000
Her Marriage Vow (all-star)	Society drama		7,100
Cornered (all-star)	Society drama		7,300
Lovers' Lane (all-star)	Character drama	Nov. 29..	5,100
Tenth Woman (all-star)	Society drama		6.250
Find Your Man (Rin-Tin-Tin)	Melodrama	Oct. 4..	7,300
Lover of Camille (all-star)	Romantic drama	Nov. 29..	7,180
This Woman (Rich)	Society drama	Nov. 1..	7,100
Dark Swan (Prevost-Blue-Chadwick)	Drama	Dec. 6..	6.800
Her Marriage Vow (Blue)	Family life dr.	Dec. 20..	7,100
Lighthouse by the Sea (Rin-Tin-Tin)	Melodrama	Jan. 10..	6.700
Narrow Street (D. Devore-Matt Moore)	Light comedy	Jan. 17..	6,700

MISCELLANEOUS

ARTCLASS PICTURES CORP.

Rough Ridin' (B. Roosevelt)	Thrill dr.	Apr. 26..	4,670
Rarin' to Go (Buffalo Bill, Jr.)	Thrill dr.	Aug. 2..	5.000
Battling Buddy (B. Roosevelt)	Thrill dr.	Sep. 13..	4,000
Biff Bang Buddy (B. Roosevelt)	Thrill dr.	Sep. 20..	4,500
Hutchison Series	Stunt dramas
Fast and Fearless (Buffalo Bill, Jr.)	Thrill dr.	Sep. 27..	4,500
Walloping Wallace (B. Roosevelt)	Thrill western	Oct. 11..	4,700
Hard Hittin' Hamilton (Buf. Bill, Jr.)	Thrill western	Oct. 18..	5.000
Rip Roarin' Bobert (B. Roosevelt)	Thrill dr.		4,600
Cyclone Buddy (B. Roosevelt)	Thrill dr.		4,650
Gold and Grit (B. Roosevelt)	Thrill dr.		4,650
Bringing Home the Bacon (Buffalo Bill)	Thrill dr.		4,650
After Six Days	Biblical spec.		10,000
Woman Who Believed (Ann Luther)			5,700
Deerslayer (J. W. Kerrigan)			5,000

BANNER PRODUCTIONS

Truth About Women (Hampton)	Society drama	Oct. 25..	5,600
Man Without a Heart (Harlan)	Society drama		6,000
Those Who Judge (P. R. Miller)	Society melo.		5,700
Daughters Who Pay (all-star)	Society drama		5,800
Empty Hearts (all-star)	Society drama		5,860

C. B. C.

Innocence (Nilsson)	Theatrical dr.		5,923
Discontented Husbands (J. Kirkwood)	Marriage dr.		5,421
Pal o' Mine (Rich)	Romance		6.070
Traffic in Hearts (R. Frazer)	Social uplift		5,549
Battling Fool (R. Fairbanks)	Prize fight		4,975
Foolish Virgin (E. Hammerstein)	Social drama		5,900
Price She Paid (A. Rubens)	Marriage dr.		5,957
Fight for Honor (Fairbanks-Novak)	Railroad dr.		4,570
Midnight Express (Hammerstein)	Railroad melo.	Dec. 6..	5,967

C. C. BURR

	Kind of Picture	Review.	Feet
Speed Spook (J. Hines)	Thrill drama	Aug. 30..	6,000
New School Teacher (Bennett)	Drama		5,900
Average Woman (Pauline Garon)	Drama	Feb. 9..	6,400
Lend Me Your Husband (Kenyon)	Drama		6,700
Youth for Sale (S. Holmquist)	Drama	Oct. 18..	6.500
The Early Bird (Hines)	Comedy	Dec. 27..	7,000
Cracker Jack (Johnny Hines)	Drama		6,500

CHADWICK PICTURES CORP.

Fire Patrol (all-star)	Melo. of Sea	May 24..	6,600
Meddling Women (L. Barrymore)	Dom. melo.	Oct. 18..	6,400
Painted Flapper (all-star)	Comedy-drama	Oct. 25..	5,600
I Am the Man (L. Barrymore)	Dom. melo.	Nov. 1..	7,600
Flattery (Bowers)	Political dr.	Nov. 8..	6.000
Tomboy (Devore-Rawlinson)	Melodramatic com.	Jan. 3..	6,000

J. J. FLEMING PROD.

Shackles of Fear (Ferguson)	Melodrama		5,000
Trail of Vengeance (Ferguson)	N. W. Police		5,000
Phantom Shadows (Ferguson)	Melodrama		5,000
Scarlet and Gold (Ferguson)	N. W. Police		5,000

INDEPENDENT PICTURES CORP.

Border Justice (Bill Cody)	Western dr.	Nov. 8..	5,452
Barriers of the Law (Desmond-Holmes)	Bootlegging dr.	Nov. 29..	4,960
Dangerous Pleasure
Bill Cody series of eight	Stunt dramas
A Desperate Adventure (F. Farnum)	Western dr.		4,880
Two-Fisted Tenderfoot (F. Farnum)	Western dr.		5,050
Baffled (F. Farnum)	Western dr.		4,940
Bandit Tamer (E. Farnum)	Comedy west.		5,240
Barriers of the Law (Desmond-Holmes)	Society dr.		4,980
Billy, The Kid (F. Farnum)	Western		4,790
Blood and Steel (Desmond-Holmes)	Society dr.		5,000
Calibre 45 (F. Farnum)	Western dr.		4,950
Courage (F. Farnum)	Western dr.		5,020
In Spider's Web (Alice Dean)	Melodrama		6,000
Moonshine (B Cody)	Western		4,980

LUMAS FILM CORP.

Black Lightning (Thunder, the dog)	Dog dr.	Nov. 8..	5,500

RAYART

Midnight Secrets (Larkin)	Drama
Street of Tears (Santschi)	Drama
For Another Woman (Harlan)	Drama
Pell Street Mystery (Larkin)	Drama
Trail Dust (Dunbar)	Drama
Lightning Romance (Howes)	Drama
Battling Brewster (Farnum)	Drama
Easy Money (All-Star)	Drama
Butterfly Comedies (Gloria Joy)

RED SEAL PICTURES CORP.

Marvels of Motion	Slow motion	Nov. 1..	650
Animated Hair Cartoons	Novelty	Nov. 1..	300
Vaudeville	Cartoon	Nov. 1..	1,000
Film Facts	Magazine	Nov. 1..	750
Peeps Into Puzzle-land	Novelty	Nov. 1..	750
Out of the Inkwell series	Cartoons
Vacation (Out of Inkwell)	Cartoon	Nov. 22..	1,000
Animated Hair Cartoons	Marcus cartoon	Nov. 22..	1,000
Should a Husband Tell	Gems of screen	Nov. 22..	1,000
Film Facts	Magazine	Nov. 22..	2,000
League of Nations (Out of Inkwell)	Cartoon	Nov. 29..	1,000
The Cure (Out of Inkwell)	Cartoon	Dec. 13..	1,000
Zoo's Who's Who	Gem of the screen	Dec. 27..	1,000
Film Facts	Magazine	Jan. 10..	1,000
Marvels of Motion (Issue B)	Magazine	Jan. 17..	1,000

RUSSELL PRODUCTIONS

Passing of Wolf MacLean (All-Star)	Western melo.	Nov. 29..	4,712
Courageous Coward (Jack Meehan)	Western	Dec. 6..	4,052

WM. STEINER PROD.

Payable on Demand (Maloney)	Western dr.		4,667
Lawless Men (N. Hart)	Western dr.		4,816
Black Gold (Morrison)	Western dr.		4,697
Poison (Hutchison)	Stunt dr.	Sep. 13..	5,000
Turned Up (Hutchison)	Stunt dr.	Sep. 27..	4,900
Riding Double (Maloney)	Western dr.		5,008
Tucker's Top Hand (N. Hart)	Western dr.		4,618
Rainbow Rangers (Morrison)	Western dr.		4,982
Perfect Alibi (Maloney)	Western dr.		5,108
Left Hand Brand (N. Hart)	Western dr.		4,884
Pot Luck Pards (Morrison)	Western dr.		4,927
Virtue's Revolt (Thornton)	Stage melodrama	Oct. 11..	5,175
On Probation (Edith Thornton)	Drama	Dec. 13..	5,000
Across the Dead Line	Western		5,000
Always Ridin' to Win	Western		5,000
Hidden Menace	Stunt dr.		5,000
Branded a Thief	Western		5,060
Verdict of the Desert	Western		4,745
Valley of Vanishing Men	Western		4,652

USLA COMPANY

Crown Productions
Ermine Productions
W. D. Russell Productions
Sable Productions
Seal Productions

M. J. WINKLER

Alice Cans the Cannibals	Novelty com.	Jan. 3..	1,000

PROJECTION

EDITED BY F. H. RICHARDSON

Very Interesting

While looking through some old papers just now I came across a letter from Chauncey L. Greene, Minneapolis, Minn., which ought to have been published long ago. Just why it was not I don't know, as it is very interesting. As I remember it the letter came some time in the early part of last summer. The interesting part reads:

Now, do not get the idea that I am trying to hold myself up as the only progressive in this great city. Far from it, as our screen results will bear witness. We have projection installations where the utilization factor exceeds thirty-five (35) lumens per ampere—clear, uninterrupted light. These are neither high intensity nor reflector type installations, but just plain hand-fed carbon arcs.

On the morning of November 12, 1923, at the invitation of Brother Bradford, projectionist at the Palace Theatre of this city, he and I spent an hour taking readings of screen brilliancy at the Palace.

First a 7/8-inch positive was used, with 75 amperes, and burned long enough to insure a stable arc and a normal crater. The screen illumination was then measured with a Macbeth illuminometer, and was found to be 6.6-foot candles. A 3/4-inch positive was then substituted for the 7/8, and after a sufficient time of burning the illumination of the screen was read, and found to be 7.6-foot candles, or an increase of fifteen per cent.

I then reset the illuminometer at 6.6-foot candles, and Projectionist Bradford commenced decreasing the amperage a step at a time. The idea was to see how far the current would be reduced before the screen brilliancy would drop back to 6.6-foot candles. At sixty amperes, the lowest we could go, it still was perceptibly more than 6.6-foot candles.

Impressions of the two craters were made on graph paper, to determine the area of the crater, and thus approximate the current density in the two. Of course the assumption that the crater area would be equal to the area of the impression introduces error, but at the least the results afford a basis for intelligent comparison. They are as follows:

With the 7/8-inch carbon, current density in crater equals 290 amperes per square inch.

With the 3/4-inch carbon it equals 410 amperes per square inch.

I am unable to understand this. Certainly the crater would be smaller, if anything, with the 7/8-inch carbon. The amperage remains, as I understand it, the same (75) in both cases. Where, then, is the large increase of current density in the crater of the larger carbon? Can any of you answer that?

As to the difference in illumination per ampere, it is of importance as illustrating the loss which occurs by using a carbon which is unnecessarily large. I would be glad to have comments on this.

His First Set

Somewhat to my surprise the following letter was received from brother G. W. Kalkhoff, Milwaukee, Wisconsin. The surprise was caused by the fact that the fair city of Milwaukee, in which are a number of able projectionists, has, so far as this department is concerned, just dropped off the map for lo these many years. Don't know why. Milwaukee refused to arrange for a lecture when I was on the big trip in 1917. She just simply seemed, for some unknown reason, to have developed a bad case of anti-Richardson.

Oh, well, anyhow, I'm glad to hear from the city which made the name Milwaukee famous again. Friend Kalkhoff says:

Dear Friend Richardson: Am sending herewith my first list of answers to the Bluebook School, which same I hope will meet approval. While there are many words copied directly from the Bluebook, still a person finds it very difficult to put things more plainly and simply than they are put in that book. Let that be my excuse.

The Bluebook certainly is a "masterpiece," because it contains everything the projectionist, theatre manager or student of projection could require. I imagine, however, that you receive many letters in which it is spoken of highly. It surely is by far the best book of reference the motion picture industry has.

The Bluebook School is wonderful. I trust it will be continued. I guess that even though comparatively few send in answers, there are many reaping the benefits.

No book ever written could or ever did contain "everything needed." The Bluebook does not, BUT as I have said, through the four editions, of which many, many, many thousands have been sold, NOT ONE PURCHASER HAS EVER EXPRESSED DISSATISFACTION, whereas hundreds upon hundreds, if not thousands, of letters of commendation have been received, some of them extravagant in their expressions of appreciation.

As to using the wording of the Bluebook in answering the "school" questions, I thoroughly appreciate that not every one is able to express his thoughts on paper. That, like everything else, usually requires long training. I do not condemn an answer because it uses the Bluebook wording, BUT I like even a poorly worded original reply better, because if the answer is copied out of the Bluebook I have no means of knowing whether the man really understands the matter or not. Even copying, however, does show and prove that he has read the text, and has presumably made some effort to digest it.

As to the Bluebook being "by far the best reference book the motion picture industry has," well perhaps that is evenly and exactly true, because I would like to look over any other book pretaining to the motion picture industry on which the author put in three years of actual hard work before it was ready for the printer. And let me tell you it was a very real struggle to so fix things that it could be sold for six dollars.

Bluebook School

Question No. 201—Into what three general classes may screen surfaces be grouped?

Question No. 202—Explain how you would employ the knowledge gained from tables 12 to 17 of Bluebook in actual practice.

Question No. 203—Name the good diffusing surfaces in table 14.

Question 204—Give us your idea as to what constitutes a "glare spot" in a motion picture theatre.

Question No. 205—What is considered the limit of brilliancy of any spot of light, other than picture light, visible to the audience?

And now suppose some more of you Milwaukee chaps see what you can do in the Bluebook School. Men who send in replies to the questions not only help themselves, but also HELP THEIR BROTHER PROJECTIONISTS AND THE PROFESSION OF PROJECTION. Don't bother questioning or disputing that last, for it is true.

Mazda Condenser

B. A. Aughinbaugh, Superintendent Public Schools, Lewistown, Ohio, writes:

Dear Mr. Richardson: It has been something like three years since I wrote concerning any projection matters, and then I was in Mingo, Ohio. I have nevertheless been reading the Projection Department all the while.

Today I came across an article in the December 27 issue headed "Mazda." I note that you spoke of an improvement in the condensing system which permits the use of Mazda up to as much as 120 feet projection distance.

We have two Simplex projectors here, and use Mazda equipment. Our projection distance is 70 feet and we get fair results, using a 32 volt Delco plant for current. If there is any way of improving our results, however, we would like to know it. Purchased some of the new Simplex reflectors, which same helped quite a bit. We have not heard of anything but the regular plano convex condensing system which is supplied with the projector, however. Use a 900 watt, 32 volt lamp. If you have anything new on your mind, please let us have it.

What I have is not so exceedingly new. However I will have you advise, straight from headquarters, as to the very latest things available. Look for a letter from the General Electric company soon. There is a condenser which is a big improvement on the old prismatic lens. Just how it compares, as to results, with the plano convex I am not certain.

Lower Prices ON Pipe Organs

SPECIAL Proposition to Theatre Owners.

DIRECT from factory to you, at dealer's prices.

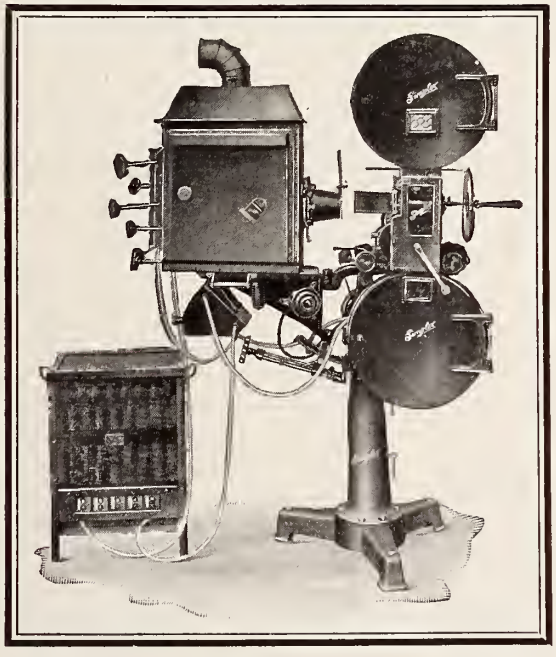
THE last word in Modern Organ Construction.

Write for full particulars.

The PAGE ORGAN CO.
LIMA, OHIO

Used Organs, Fotoplayers, etc., at Bargain Prices.

THE Simplex PROJECTOR AND SERVICE



Type S Special with Multiple Coil Type Rheostat

Could you draw the plans for a building or would you consult an architect?

Do you understand law or do you consult a lawyer?

It is almost impossible to be proficient in every business and profession, nor can you have expert knowledge of everything you buy.

The thing to do, therefore, is to buy from men who are experts.

Every Simplex Distributor, and there is one near you, will tell you what is good and what is best for you. You can place the fullest confidence in his judgment in all projection matters.

The Simplex Distributor is a dependable man. He succeeds only in your success. Try him.

THE PRECISION MACHINE CO. INC.
317 East 34th St. New York

Projection

(Continued from page 398)

Well Argued

(Note.—This article should be read and considered in conjunction with one published herewith, titled "Reflector Lamp Data," also by John Griffith.—Ed.)

John Griffith, Ansonia, Conn., hands us an article entitled: "My Impressions of the Reflector Arc." It reads as follows:

I wish it to be clearly understood that I submit this article as based wholly upon theory. For that reason any comments concerning its correctness will be very welcome.

First let us analyze the light beam projected by a concave mirror, such as is used with reflector type lamps having an electric arc as the light source. We shall find that each point of the mirror is receiving and projecting a complete image of the crater, as viewed from that particular point of the mirror surface.

How do we know that, you ask? A fair question, which we will try to answer and to do it in a way which will make the matter understandable to the non-technical man or the machine operator as well as to the expert projectionist.

I think you will all agree that if we perforate the mirror with a pin hole at any point of its surface, that pin hole will project, back of the mirror, an image of the light source (crater), which will be exactly the same as what we would see were we able to look through the hole with our eye at the crater itself.

Reasons

This being true you will readily understand and see that EVERY POINT OF THE MIRROR IS PROJECTING TOWARD THE SPOT A COMPLETE, SEPARATE IMAGE OF THE CRATER, but that each image differs slightly from every other image, since it will be an image of exactly what any particular point of the mirror "sees" from the point of its location.

The mirror is so designed that all the vast number of images so formed and projected, focus at one plane, and as the mirrors are corrected for spherical aberration, all the rays which strike its surface from the center of the crater will be reflected to a single point in the center of the plane where all images are focused. (I don't like the word "corrected" as here used. Of course it is true that mirrors are so made, or formed that there is no spherical aberration, and maybe this really is a "correction." However, it seems to me the word don't quite fit.—Ed.)

Owing, however, to the fact that each pin point of the mirror surface projects a slightly different view of the crater, the spot will not appear as a sharp, clear image thereof. Rather the sum total of all the images will be a round spot having a fairly even distribution of light, thus producing the soft, brilliant light for which this type of lamp is noted.

And thus we see that the beam of light from the mirror of a reflector type lamp is made up of a vast number of individual diverging beams, all of which are concentrated at the projector cooling plate, where they form the "spot."

Referring Back

Referring back to the hole in the mirror, it will readily be seen that the size of image it would project to the rear of the mirror would depend entirely upon the distance of the crater from the hole, and the distance from the hole at which the intercepting screen is placed. Exactly the same thing holds true of the mirror and size of spot. The size of the spot is to the crater, as the distance of the crater from surface of mirror is to the distance of mirror surface from the spot.

In making a chart for this type of lamp we have not the handicap of making allowance for spherical aberration, true, but we still must contend with the possibly too-small diameter projection lens. My own contention is that the most efficient point at which to locate the plane of focus of the images is at the film plane, but when it is necessary to overcome the handicap of a too small projection jection lens diameter, we may set up according to the chart, and then advance the entire lamphouse until the whole beam enters the projection lens.

Take Note

Take note that the 2.25 inch focal length mirror is too short for heavy amperages, as is indicated by the very short Y distances.

Well Argued

All of which is very well argued indeed, or at least so it seems to me. However, John failed to make note of the fact that, as I see it anyhow, the images from the outer zones of the mirror will be smaller than those of the more central zones of the mirror. This because of the fact that the outer zones are a bit nearer to the aperture than the more central ones. True, the net results on the screen would probably not be altered, because any difference in brilliancy of spot would fall at the outer edges of the spot, hence outside the aperture and on the cooling plate. While we are at it, however, it is well to be exact, and to undestand the matter in even its more unimportant phases.

The only objection to advancing the point of focus beyond the aperture, as I see it, is that the diameter of the spot is thus increased, which means added light loss. It certainly is better to lose it there than on the lens side of the aperture, however, since the latter could not but mean unevenness of screen illumination.

Reflector Lamp Data

John Griffith sends the table herewith reproduced. It is made for reflector type lamp with a mirror having a focal length of 2.25 inches. In the left hand column is the number of times the diameter of the crater will divide into a spot 1½ inches in diameter. The center column gives the Y distance, which is the distance from center of the mirror to projector aperture. The right hand column gives the X distance, which is the distance from any point on the concave surface of the mirror to the arc crater. The table is founded on the optical law that when both object and image are distant from the mirror by twice its focal length, object and image will be of equal size.

Focus of Mirror 2.25 inches

of times crater diameter will divide into 1½" spot	Y distance equals center of mirror to spot	X distance equals any point of mirror to crater
1	4.5"	4.5"
2	6.75"	5.37"
3	9.	3.
4	11.25"	2.81
5	13.5"	2.7
6	15.75"	2.63"
7	18.	2.57
8	20.25"	2.53
9	22.5"	2.5"
10	24.75"	2.47"

Examining the table, you will observe that the X and Y distances are equal; also that each is equal to exactly twice the focal length of the mirror. The enlargement ratio therefore is as one to one, and the image and object are of equal size.

In the second line we find that Mr. Griffith has added 2.25 inches, the focal length of the mirror, to the Y distance, as against the Y distance in line one. This decreases distance X to 3.375 inches. Each time we increase the Y distance by the focal length of the lens we automatically alter the proportion between the diameter of the crater and the diameter of the spot by one. Therefore instead of the spot being of equal diameter with the crater, as in line I, the spot now is twice the diameter of the crater.

Knowing the Y distance in line 2, and knowing that the image will be twice the diameter of the light source, it is only necessary to divide the Y distance by two to ascertain the crater distance. This is true because of the fact that the X and Y distances are always in the same proportions as the crater and spot diameters. In line 3 we find another mirror focal length added, and divide the Y distance by 3 to ascertain the X distance, and so on until we have filled up the table to the end of practicable limits.

To Use Table

To use the table, divide the desired spot diameter (The 1½ inch spot diameter used in table is merely suggestive) by the diameter of the crater, using the Y distance nearest the result thus obtained, as found in the center vertical column.

Important

If, owing to small diameter projection lens, it is found that the light does not all enter the lens, advance the entire lamphouse toward the aperture, without altering relative position of mirror and crater, which will have the effect of bringing the narrowest portion of the light beam nearer the projection lens.

This is all very well, and is a good start, BUT it seems to me the thing of value is to start with a minimum X distance, because as in the case of the crater and the collector lens of a condenser, the further away from the mirror the lamp is located, the less light it will pick up, therefore the X distance minimum is of prime importance, though the notation as to advancing the lamphouse is of very real importance. In this, mind you, I merely voice my impressions. How about it, John?

Later: Sent carbon copy of foregoing to Griffith for his inspection and possible comment. He says:

With reference to your comments, we have no control over the mimimum X distance unless we change the focal length of the mirror or use a different diameter spot at aperture. The Y distance absolutely determines the X distance for a given ratio of enlargment with a mirror of given focal length, and I understand from Brother Greene's article that all mirrors are the same focal length.

I have just got into touch with the Morlite folks, and have from them the attached letter, which I think we may take as representative of the practice of all the makers of reflector type lamps. It is of course very important that the mirror of a focal length appropriate to the amperage be used. If you were using thirty amperes, with a mirror suitable to that amperage, and changed to ten, amperes without changing the mirror you would be working at heavy disadvantage, because such a weak arc could be placed much closer to the mirror than could the thirty amper one. On the other hand if you use a ten ampere arc as close to the mirror as is practicable, and then change to a thirty ampere arc, without increasing the X distance, you would just naturally burn the surface of the mirror up, and that very quickly too.

My Position

During the past few years I have, upon several occasions, been asked by a union, or by union officials, to express an opinion concerning the merits of cases where some member of the local has badly bent, fractured or busted some one of the laws, rules or regulations, "made an' pervided," wide open.

Such a request recently came from the officers of a Canadian local, and only two or three weeks previously one arrived from a large city on the West Coast. In both cases it was evidently expected that I would express an opinion which could be shown the officers with the idea of inclining them to leniency. The Canadian case was merely a request by local officers, but the West Coast was an official request by the union itself.

I suppose I am now being called bad names by the men in both cities, because in neither case was I able to give the aid desired, for the reason that, insofar as the facts were laid before me, the officers were at least pretty darned close to right—the officers of the law, I mean.

My Position

Such things as this place me in a most unpleasant position. Naturally my personal inclination is to render aid to the union, even though I may believe its position to be wrong; also it is very greatly to my immemediate benefit to do so. Such a course would, however, be dishonest; also in the end it would cause both projectionists and the officials to cease to respect or to value my opinions. That is precisely why they ARE respected. My opinions are HONEST. They represent an honest judgment, based upon what information I have at hand, regardless of immediate consequences to myself.

When such a case comes to me I can almost 'smell' it before I open the envelope, and from the first sentence I read with a prayer that the union may be right in its position, for it then becomes a real pleasure to extend to them any aid within my poor power. When, as sometimes happens, the balance is even, then any influence I may be able to wield would always be on the side of the men. You may gamble on that. Where the man or the union is obviously wrong, however, or is wrong insofar as they have told me the facts, I cannot and will not lend aid to either man or union by helping in the endeavor to overturn a just official decision.

Want Respect

I know full well that such refusal may make the man, or the union angry with me. However I also know that neither a worth while man nor a worth while body of men could or would long have respect for the man who, knowing himself to be consulted as an "authority," deliberately prostituted his opinion through fear of offending someone.

As a matter of fact, in the Canadian case just disposed of I would have given much to have been able to give aid, because the very men who made the request are men whose friendship I value very highly. Fortunately, however, they are men of high calibre and I am sure will understand. In fact I really believe they only underlook to overturn the decision of the officers through just pure (though I think mistaken) loyalty to a brother union man. If this is true, may I direct their attention to the fact that it is an error for a union to give its protection in any degree to a member who is in the wrong? If a man does wrong, and through that wrong gets himself in bad, let him take his punishment like a man, without squawking.

On the Other Hand

On the other hand, accidents (fires, etc.) sometimes happen for no other reason than that the theatre management has failed or refused to honor requisitions by the projectionist for repairs for equipment, or for needed equipment. In such cases it is not unusual for the officers to take the position that the projectionist is responsible because he had no right to use equipment in an unsafe condition. Not infrequently the officials do not hesitate to suspend, or even to revoke the license of the projectionist under these circumstances. In my opinion the officers are entirely wrong to inflict punishment upon the projectionist under those circumstances.

Theoretically, it is all very well to blame the projectionist. It is usually a perfectly legal procedure, BUT law and common sense are not always on speaking terms. It sounds very reasonable to say that the projectionist must not use equipment which is in unsafe condition, even though he has tried to get the needed repairs or new equipment. Dear me, yes! Perfectly lovely way out of it—for the officials, BUT THOSE SAME OFFICIALS VERY WELL KNOW, just as the projectionist knows, that the moment he, the projectionist, reports to the said officials the unsafe condition of his equipment, or refuses to use it, he right then and there kisses his job a long, last farewell, AND AFTER HE IS FIRED, WILL THOSE SAME OFFICIALS DO ONE SINGLE, SOLITARY THING TO COMPEL HIS REINSTATEMENT? They will NOT!! Also will the officials in any degree punish the theatre officials responsible for the failure to supply what was needed? They will NOT! And darned well every one knows they will not.

It is my opinion that where an accident occurs which can be traced to the failure or refusal to furnish repairs for equipment, or to supply needed equipment, then if any license is to be suspended or revoked, it should be the license of the theatre, or if any one is to be punished it SHOULD BE THE ONE RESPONSIBLE FOR THE FAILURE TO SUPPLY THE THINGS NECESSARY TO SAFE PROCEDURE IN PROJECTION.

Power's Roller Pin

A projectionist in Chicago, who asks that his name be not published, asks for directions for installing an intermittent sprocket in a Power Roller Pin intermittent. For his benefit, and the possible benefit of others, I shall quote verbatim the directions as set forth by the Designing Engineer of the N. Power Company, at my request, when a projectionist asked the same question a while back:

In removing the group "F" assembly from the framing carriage it is necessary first to remove the oil case cover and the cam, after which the group "F" assembly can be removed as a unit. When removing the group "F" assembly you should take care that the rollers on the pin cross are not removed from the pins, for if these rollers are interchanged from pin to pin it may cause the picture to be unsteady after the movement is reassembled. The rollers after the movement has been run for a considerable time are not interchangeable.

In removing the pins from the sprocket the sprocket should be laid on a V block or supported in some way in order that there with the

Play Your Organ With Rolls as Well as Manually

PAGE ORGAN PLAYER

Can be attached to any organ. The only player that will select the Solo and Obligato from a regular piano roll (also other rolls) and play the organ as an organist plays it. Always ready to fit the picture with the proper music. Almost unbelievable.

Write for particulars.

THE PAGE ORGAN CO.
LIMA OHIO

"You want Phelco!"

Smooth and quiet burning
Bright light
Steady arc
Slow burning rate
Long Condenser life

Charles W. Phellis & Co.
Incorporated
130 West 42nd Street New York
For Canada: Keystone Trading Co., Ltd., 10 Ste. Sophie Lane, Montreal

ROLL—Machine—Coupon
TICKETS

QUALITY—Second to none!
SERVICE Unexcelled—our
LOWEST PRICES will be mailed to you on request.
State your requirements by mail—Today!

TRIMOUNT PRESS
LARGEST AMUSEMENT TICKET PRINTERS IN NEW ENGLAND FOR 17 YEARS.
119 ALBANY ST., BOSTON, MASS.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISEMENTS
Help and Situations Wanted Only

3c per word per insertion
Minimum charge 60c
Terms, Strictly Cash with Order

Copy must reach us by Tuesday noon to insure publication in that week's issue.

SITUATIONS WANTED

PROJECTIONIST, experienced since 1906, wants position. Any equipment. New York license. Age 40. Married. Box 357, Moving Picture World, New York City.

ORGANIST of excellent attainments wishes to hear from theatre managers desiring the services of theatre organist of highest calibre. Union. Address Hugh MacDonald, 708 East 4th Street, Duluth, Minn.

ORGANIST desires permanent position, first-class theatre, with good modern organ. Experienced. Expert picture player and feature soloist. Complete library. Union. Organist, Room 226, Princess Hotel, Atlantic City, New Jersey.

WELDED WIRE REELS
For Sale by
Howells Cine Equipment Co.,
740 7th Ave., New York

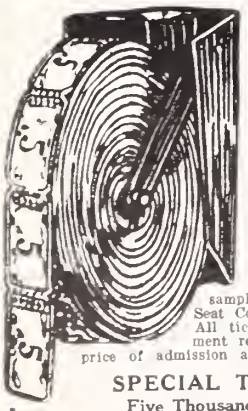
FOR SALE
WURLITZER THEATRE ORGAN
slightly used. Cost $2,500 new. $1,100 cash takes this bargain. It contains piano, violin, flute, bass and snare drums, tambourine, mandolin attachment, and many other effects. Can be played by hand, or electrically. For full particulars, address
THE HAYES MUSIC CO.
422 SUPERIOR STREET TOLEDO, OHIO

Motion Picture Cameras and the World's largest market of second hand and new instruments, priced from $50.00 up.
Send for big catalogue and bargain list.
BASS CAMERA COMPANY
109 NORTH DEARBORN CHICAGO

MAILING LISTS
MOVING PICTURE THEATRES

21,776	Moving Picture Theatres, per M.....	$5.00
3,674	Legitimate Theatres, per M.....	7.50
327	Colored Moving Picture Theatres.....	5.00
1,059	Film Exchanges	10.00
162	Manufacturers and Studios.....	3.00
411	Moving Picture Mach. & Sup. Dealers.	4.00

A. F. WILLIAMS
166 W. Adams Street CHICAGO



SPECIAL ROLL TICKETS

Your own special Ticket, any colors, accurately numbered; every roll guaranteed. Coupon Tickets for Prize Drawings; 5,000 for $7.00. Prompt shipments. Cash with the order. Get the samples. Send diagram for Reserved Seat Coupon Tickets, serial or dated. All tickets must conform to Government regulation and bear established price of admission and tax paid.

SPECIAL TICKET PRICES

Five Thousand	$3.50
Ten Thousand	6.00
Fifteen Thousand	7.00
Twenty-five Thousand	9.00
Fifty Thousand	12.50
One Hundred Thousand	18.00

National Ticket Co. Shamokin, Pa.

will be no danger of springing the pin cross spindle. You will find a file mark on the sprocket hub between the pins. This file mark indicates the large end of the pin holes. After removing the pins the sprocket can be pulled from the spindle.

Mark on Body

You will find a punch mark on the body of the pin cross between two of the arms. This punch mark indicates the large end of the pin holes in the pin cross spindle, and when installing the new sprocket this mark should correspond with the file mark on the hub of the sprocket.

The intermittent bushing is equipped with a set collar which rests against the sprocket. This set collar is for the purpose of taking up end play in the pin cross spindle and this set collar should be loosened before installing the new sprocket.

On the new sprocket you will find a scratch mark inside the rim at one end of the sprocket near the center. This scratch mark indicates the large end of the bearing and the sprocket should be placed on the pin cross spindle, this end first. The diameter of the pin cross spindle and the diameter of the sprocket bore fit very closely and there is a taper on each of these parts of one ten thousandth of an inch. If you find that the sprocket fits the spindle too tightly work the sprocket back and forth on the spindle a few times with a little oil and you will find that it will very soon work itself into place.

Be Careful of Marks

After lining up the pin holes, being careful that both the mark on the sprocket and the mark on the pin cross correspond, the pins should be forced into place with a pair of pliers. Do not drive the pins with a punch, as they will set much more firmly if you will pull them into place with a twisting motion using a pair of pliers. After the pins are tight they can be cut off and filed smooth on the ends.

After the sprocket is in place the set collar should be tightened in position so that there is no end play of the pin cross spindle and at the same time you should be able to spin the pin cross freely in the bushing.

Replacing

When replacing the group "F" assembly in the framing carriage care should be taken that the sprocket teeth line up evenly with the intermittent idler roller. You will find that you can slide the bushing from side to side a trifle in order to line up the teeth with this roller. The rollers should be adjusted up against the outside of the cam ring after replacing the cam. The rollers should at no time be adjusted against the inside of the cam ring. In making this adjustment a long pin, which fits in the holes in the eccentric bushing, should be used and care should be taken that the rollers do not bear too firmly against the cam ring. Always adjust the movement upward, never downward.

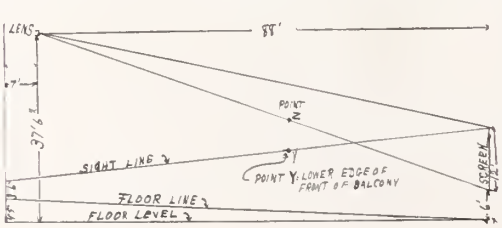
When handling the pin screw be careful at all times that the rollers are not interchanged from pin to pin. This is very important as the change in the location of these rollers will very likely cause an unsteady picture.

Insufficient Data

W. H. Carroll, Rivoli Theatre, Douglas, Ga., says:

We are remodeling our theatre, and are puzzled to know what the elevation of the machines in the operating booth—(Heavens, what names.) You mean height of projectors in the projection room, don't you?—Ed.) to prevent interference of heads of the audience in the balcony in the light beam.

The house is 38 feet 8 inches wide by 95 feet long. Projection distance is approximately 88 feet. Balcony is 55 feet long, including the operating booth. (Say, brother, what is this? A hospital, or a theatre?—Ed.)



The slope of the floor is 4 feet 9 inches, and the bottom of the screen is six feet above the orchestra pit. The question is: What distance from ceiling to lower level of front of the balcony in order to clear the light beam from the heads of audience in the balcony?

Gosh, my dear Mr. Carroll, we don't have "operating booths" now. We've resigned them to the hospitals, where they operate. We now have a projection room in a theatre, from which pictures are projected. So much for that.

More Information

Your data is very inadequate, but I have laid the thing out as well as time permits and as well as I am able to. From what you have told me, using a 1/8 inch to the foot scale.

Assuming that the orchestra floor is six feet from point X, and that the bottom of the picture is six feet above that and that the back of the orchestra pit is even with the screen, and that the picture will be 12 feet high, we must first establish a line from the eyes of a person seated in the back row of seats to the top of the picture. I have established it at 3 ft. 6 in. from the floor at the rear wall. This may be reduced somewhat if the rear seats are away from the wall by the width of an aisle. This automatically establishes point Y at the lowest the balcony may be at a point 55 feet from the rear wall. We then measure up six feet from point Y (I have made no allowance for thickness of floor) to point Z. We then draw a line from the BOTTOM of the screen to and past point Z, and find that at 88 feet the lens must be at the height shown, or 37 feet 6 inches from the floor LEVEL line, to insure that the head of a tall man passing along the balcony front won't appear on the screen.

Of course all this is a bit crude. I am intending more to show you how to do it than to spend a lot of time making exactly accurate drawings, when after they are made I don't know whether they will fit or not, because you have not given me nearly all the data necessary to accurate work.

Out of the Past

Of course we all now know about the possibility of the blades of a 3-wing shutter getting into synchronism with the alternations of 60-cycle A. C.

In looking through the "Operator's Column" of April 9, 1910 issue, Moving Picture World, I ran across a title, "Wilkesbarre, and Something Unique." Curiousity caused me to glance through it, only to discover that it was, so far as any one knew, the first discovery of the fact that synchronization of the projector shutter blades with the alternations could or did occur. It was the waving effect in the light which General Manager Walkenshaw of Lyman Howe had encountered, and had sent to New York City for me to come down and try to locate the trouble which had all their goats.

It had mine too, for an hour, or two, but while Walkenshaw and I were at dinner, after some while spent in failure to discover the reason for such an effect, I grabbed an idea out of thin air, did a little figuring and informed friend Walkenshaw, as he may recollect, that I had the answer.

How simple all those things seem to us now. Well, they were anything but simple then, lemme inform you.

Bluebook School—Answers 171-175

Question No. 171—What is meant by "Interfering light?" "Name its various sources and causes."

This question was acceptably answered by Arthur H. Gray, Boston, Mass.; Daniel Constantino, Easton, Pa.; A. F. Fell, Collingswood, N. J.; Karl H. Sommermeyer, Marietta, Minn.; S. F. Cooley, Manchester, N. H.; Francis Dinty Moore, Taunton, Mass.; P. E. Thomas, Creston, Iowa; R. H. Romans, Cuyhoga Falls, Ohio; Wm. A. Burnett, Newton, Iowa; C. H. Hanover, Burlington, Iowa and C. L. Atkinson, Minneapolis, Minn.

Harry Dobson, Toronto, Ontario; G. W. Bennewitz, Sioux Falls, S. D. and a a few others will kindly extend their open hands, palm up, to receive introduction to the brass-edged ruler—that is, unless they would prefer that I retire to the privacy of the woodshed with them and a slipper. Busy? Sure, I know you are—but so am I. I don't side step though, darn ya.

There were an unusually large number of really excellent replies to this one. All replies agree as to what interfering light is, but some go very much more into detail than do others, and that, after all, is what counts since not only is it informative, but also it shows the real grasp of the matter possessed by the one who is replying.

Gray says:

Any light striking the surface of the screen except that which passes through the projection lens and rotating shutter openings is "interfering light," within the meaning of the term as here used. Such light may have its source in the orchestra pit, in wall fixtures, aisle lights, or it may be sunlight or artificial light outside the theatre. It may have its source in the projection room, or from some shiny object which reflects light from a source not directly visible from the screen.

Any light eminating from sources similar to those above named, which have sufficient intensity to produce visible reflection on the surface of the screen, exercises a deleterious effect upon the contrast, apparent brilliancy and appearance of the picture as a whole.

Cooley says:

Interfering light is that light which reaches the screen other than the light from the projection lens. It may come from orchestra lights, clock light, improper auditorium lighting (That last includes both the previous citations.—Ed.), from a door or window improperly covered, or from the projection room itself, though this latter is improbable, since there is small chance of extraneous light from the projection room reaching the screen with modern projectors and the construction of projection rooms as now carried out.

Romans says:

Interfering light is any light, other than picture light, which strikes the screen. It may come from the condenser; from the improperly located and shaded auditorium light fixtures or from daylight or bright light outside the theatre which is permitted to reach the screen by improperly guarded entrance or windows, musicians very often permit the lights to reach the screen from their stands.

In some theatres where "operators" are employed instead of projectionists, there is a great deal of light in the "booth" itself, and more interfering light leaves it (the "booth") than picture light. The fact that such conditions do still exist is the excuse for retaining the words "Operator" and "Booth" until they finally cease from troubling.

Hanover says:

Interfering light is any light other than picture light which is permitted to reach the screen surface during propection, or any spots of light which have a too great brilliancy as compared with their immediate surroundings, particularly if such glare spots be located directly within range of the eyes of the audience as it gazes at the screen.

Light, other than picture light, which reaches the screen has the effect of injuring the contrast between whites and blacks, hence has the effect of making the picture "dull" in proportion to its amount or brilliance.

I perhaps am wrong in including glare spots under the title of this question, but the fact remains that the effect is measurably the same as the light which actually strikes the screen surface. It, through action upon the eyes of the audience, dulls the picture.

Hanover then enumerates the sources already named by several, plus light reflected by too light-colored screen surroundings. He is wrong in including glare spots, yes, but as he says, their general effect is much the same, so far as the picture be concerned, therefore it is well that attention be called to that fact at this time. I have printed several answers, because this is an important matter, and merits the setting forth of the views of several men on the subject.

Question No. 172—Explain how you would test your screen for interfering light.

All the foregoing, I think, have made answers which "get by," though I had to glance at one or two of them with charity. Gray and Romans have what I believe to be the best answers. Gray says:

Test as follows. With the same orchestra pit and auditorium, adjacent rooms and lobby lights burning as are used in the show, and with doors, windows, curtains and drapes arranged the same as during the show, cause an opaque object to be placed several feet away from the screen, and cause it to be interposed between the screen surface and all sources of light visible from the screen or stage, and then examine the screen for a visible shadow. (Well, perhaps. What do you other chaps think of that scheme?—Ed.) Then, in turn, eliminate all those light sources by turning off the lights, or by effectively covering the sources themselves. Continue this until all visible shadows on the surface of the screen have disappeared. Any light source which can be seen from the stage, or screen location, in the same general direction as the screen faces, is a potential source of this sort of trouble.

This particular editor would like the opinion of his readers as to this plan. I'm not so sure, but it's as simple, easy of application and effective as any.

Romans says:

To test the screen for interfering light coming from outside the theatre, such as daylight, or bright artificial lights, all lights inside the theatre should be turned off. Any interfering light from outside will make itself manifest better under this condition, of course. It may then easily be traced to its source, and means provided for its elimination. This test must be made both during daylight and at night, in order to get the effect of daylight and artificial lights—especially the entrance lights at night. The doors should be opened, of course, during the test, to see what the effect is upon the screen.

For interior light source interference, turn on all lights used during the show, and study the surface of the screen. Standing in front of the screen no unshaded light source should be visible to the eye. With the projector arc struck, but with the automatic projector aperture fire shutter closed, any interfering light eminating from the condenser or projection room may be readily detected.

When testing any one suspected source of interfering light, if all other lights be turned off the detection is made much easier and more certain.

J. W. Rainwater, Projectionist Princess Theatre, Albany, Alabama, I. A. Local Union No. 533, Motion Picture Projectionists. Starts with question 181—starts again, that is to say. Hope he will STICK this time.

Question No. 173—Explain to us your ideas as to why the projectionist should make a close study of screen surfaces.

All the before-named made answers which express the view that the projectionist should and must study screen surfaces because screen surfaces are an integral and important part of projection, having directly to do with the results of the work of the projectionist. Gray, I think, gave the most comprehensive reply. He says:

Let me sum up much that might be said on this particular question with an answer of fundamental truth: an answer that is applicable to every phase of projection, whether it be projector, light source, screen surface or any other factor. IF A PROJECTIONIST IS TO ATTAIN A STANDING OF RESPECT IN HIS PROFESSION; AND THE PROFESSION, IN TURN, IS TO ATTAIN THE STANDING OF RESPECT THAT IT DESERVES IN THE MOVING PICTURE INDUSTRY; THEN THE PROJECTIONIST, BY REASON OF HIS SKILL; HIS ABILITY TO EFFICIENTLY AND INTELLIGENTLY APPLY LABORATORY AND RESEARCH DATA TO THE PRACTICAL PROBLEMS OF PROJECTION, AND HIS TECHNICAL KNOWLEDGE OF THE PROFESSION, MUST BE THE ONE MAN IN THE THEATRE,—MANAGER AND OWNERS INCLUDED—THAT IS BEST QUALIFIED TO JUDGE AND PASS UPON ALL MATTERS PERTAINING TO PROJECTION. He MUST have these qualifications if he is going to command respect for himself and for his profession. Furthermore, it is my firm opinion that the inability, or the unwillingness of many men thus employed to acquire these qualifications, is the BASIC reason why the proper and general recognition of our profession has not been long heretofore attained.

Which comes pretty nearly being a 100 per cent. answer, if you ask me.—Ed.)

Romans says:

The screen is a part of the projection equipment, and while it perhaps requires less constant attention than any other part thereof, it still is an indispensable item of the outfit. The projectionist who makes no attempt to study so vital an element of his equipment is falling down on his job as much as is the "Operator" who punches holes in film. If for no other reason than to be able to give the boss intelligent advice the projectionist should study screen surfaces.

Hanover says about what Gray said, and adds this bit of pertinent matter: "Another reason the projectionist ought to study screen surfaces is that he should know just what may be accomplished in the way of keeping the surface at its highest reflection value by intelligent cleaning methods.

Thomas says:

The Projectionist should make a close study of screen surfaces, because the man who is truly competent must have a thorough understanding of the functionings of everything connected with his craft or profession. The projectionist who understands screen surfaces, and applies his knowledge of same in his work, can attain results superior to those attained by the one who lacks such knowledge.

There are many classes and types of screen surfaces, each one of which is best suited to some especial condition, but to understand the principles involved in making a selection which will meet the individual requirements requires close and somewhat extensive study.

Question No. 174—Name the chief fundamental requirements of a screen surface.

Every one before named came through very well on this one. I am first going to print brother Gray's answer—not because I am certain that some of his dope on this is or is not right, but what he says ought to bring out some very excellent discussion, which can hardly be other than of large value. Gray says:

(A) That of having a superficial film of high reflecting power covering the material or structure of which the screen coating is composed; thus affecting a high percentage of total reflected light. (B) That the shape and size of these minute irregularities, underlying the covering of film, will cause the light to be reflected in the desired direction; thus affecting an efficient distribution of the light that is reflected. (C) That this reflecting film be equally impervious to light of all wave lengths; thus affecting the reflection of a pure white light. And, if the underlying structure of the screen permits this coating to be presented to the light beam in a flat unwrinkled plane, then we have provided conditions for a brilliant and faithful reproduction of the projected image. In addition, the surface should attract and catch a minimum amount of dust; it should permit an easy removal of such as does adhere to it, and if the coating is of a material that requires occasional complete removal, then it should possess the property of easy removal should occasion require.

Hanover says:

The fundamentally important functions of a screen surface are (a) To reflect the greatest possible proportion of the picture light incident upon its surface (b) to reflect the light incident upon its surface in the proper direction for the auditorium in which it is used, or as nearly as may be the proper direction. (c) To be not unreasonably expensive. (d) To be capable of being cleaned, and thus returned to an approximation of its former brilliance. (e) To "stand up" for at least a reasonable time without serious deterioration of its reflective properties. (f) To be and remain perfectly flat and without wrinkles. (g) To "tone" or soften the light, though this latter is not favored by many projectionists.

Question No. 175—What kind of material should be used for a cloth screen, and tell us why even this material is not good for a screen surface as compared to other materials.

Every one before named expressed an opinion on this which justifies their inclusion in the list of winners, except Thomas, and I think one sheet of his answer got lost. If so it was the sheet this reply was on.

Hanover, however, wins for publication, without serious question. He says:

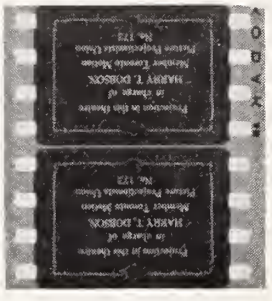
The best strictly cloth screen (which I take it is what is meant by the question. There are many substances which are cloth as to foundation, but really, insofar as the reflection surface be concerned are not really cloth at all) I have even heard of it as a fine, closely woven very whitely bleached muslin, similar to the muslin high grade bed sheets are made of.

The reason cloth is not equal to other substances, is that its reflective power is comparatively very low, and because of the further fact that a cloth screen is suitable for use only in an auditorium where the very highest possible power of diffusion is required.

Another reason why cloth screens are not efficient, is that the cloth catches dust very readily and tends to turn yellow quickly. It is very difficult to wash so large a piece of cloth and washing so loosens the fabric texture that its already low reflective powers are still further impaired.

Fine

Our old friend, Harry Dobson, Toronto, Ont., who is projectionist at the Palace Theatre, of that beautiful city, hands me a clipping of the leader he attaches and runs at the beginning of each show, together with the following remarks:



Attached find film clipping. Think I am the only projectionist in Toronto who puts his name on the screen. My manager thinks it a good idea. Like Thomas, I have been playing hooky from the Bluebook School. It was a case of a lot of extra work, which there was no one else to do but me, and it made answering the questions almost impossible. However I'll be back on the job soon now.

By the way, recently you credited a drawing to me of which I was not guilty. Guess probably the "Irishman" out in Sioux Falls did it. I did not answer that question at all.

So Brother Thomas, of Creston, Iowa, was in Toronto, and visiting at 87 Godfrey Ave. —just two blocks from where I live? Queer how close we were. Hope to see him when he visits our city next time anyhow.

Confirmation of S. M. P. E.

And now here is confirmation of the wisdom of the S. M. P. E. adopting 80 feet per minute as the projection speed, instead of sixty. Dentlebeck was in my projection room recently and we were talking about projection speed. He asked had I ever tried a 2-wing shutter on the projectors. We talked it over, with result that I now use a two-wing shutter and run 80 feet per minute, with no flicker, and acceptable naturalness of action on the screen.

Best wishes for yourself and the "Bluebook Class" for the year of 1925.

You're Forgiven

Well, brother Dobson, we'll forgive you for the truancy, provided you do not delay your return to "the job" in the Bluebook School too long. Really, Old Timer, we need such men as yourself. There are men who COULD probably fill your place, but while many of them profit by the work you and I and the rest of the faithful ones of the Bluebook School are doing, at no small expense of effort and time, They DON'T fill any one's place excepting their own. I have lots of patience with the one who is studying the questions and feels he has not the ability to answer the questions acceptably. He is bashful about about letting even myself know that he really doesn't know. I am very, very glad that he IS studying the questions, even though he won't take a chance on replying, BUT the many who are abundantly able to help and WON'T—either because they are just plain too lazy, or because they don't care Adam about the profession as a whole, or about their brother projectionist—rather get my angora.

As to the drawing—why errors will occur. I'm sorry, but they will, and all I can do is try to prevent them as much as I can.

As to the change in projection speed, I have been trying to get that old sixty-feet-to-the-minute standard; or recommendation for practice, overturned for several years. Now, however, I am on the Standards and Nomenclature Committee of the S. M. P. E., and can get somewhere on things of this sort. I had the backing of my committee and of Mr. Earl Dennison, of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation on this matter so it was put over at last.

Film Damage?

What's the Real Cause?

By F. H. RICHARDSON

(The photographs shown on the opposite page were made in the Famous Players-Lasky laboratories under the supervision of Earl K. Dennison. The captions to the pictures are by Mr. Dennison.)

Plate No. 14 is not altogether plain, in so far as has to do with Friend Dennison's markings. I have lettered the various items for my own comments: A is a splice which is altogether too wide, including two full sprocket holes and more. It is evidently a hand-made splice, as you can see the utterly punk matching of sprocket holes. You can imagine what will happen to the picture when it goes over the intermittent sprocket, especially if, in addition to its other faults, it happens to be an especially stiff splice, such as excess of cement or scraping produce, or such as some cements produce, even though used sparingly. What will occur when it strikes an old worn out lower sprocket on a projector which has twice the take-up tension it should have, I leave to your imagination. At B is another too wide splice, with badly matched sprocket holes; also it is a perfectly rotten job of scraping off the emulsion, as you may see by the ragged edge. X is another example of, presumably, "Jimmie-the-Usher's" splicing. See the wonderfully accurate job of scraping (?) A is a two-hole splice, though the sprocket holes at least are well matched. D—well, look at it yourselves and understand why words fail me. The letter stands for what I'd like to say. F shows where some stem-winding genius actually made two splices in or on one frame. Why offer comment?

Plate 15 illustrates the results of using too much cement, excessive scraping of base, or both. That is the diagnosis of Friend Dennison, to which I would add that certain wrongly compounded cements will do exactly the same thing.

Of course such splices will cause trouble. They will cause an inevitable jump in the picture when they pass the intermittent, and a blur on the screen, probably accompanied by movement of the screen image, when they pass the aperture. They may jump either of the sprockets, thus causing loss of one of the loops—probably the lower, of course, as the jump will most likely be at the lower sprocket—with possibility of serious damage to the film.

No projectionist would make such a splice. Even a machine attendant (machine operator) would not tolerate such crudity as is displayed in Plate 15. And I believe that Jimmy-the-Usher would turn his abbreviated nose up at some of these examples.

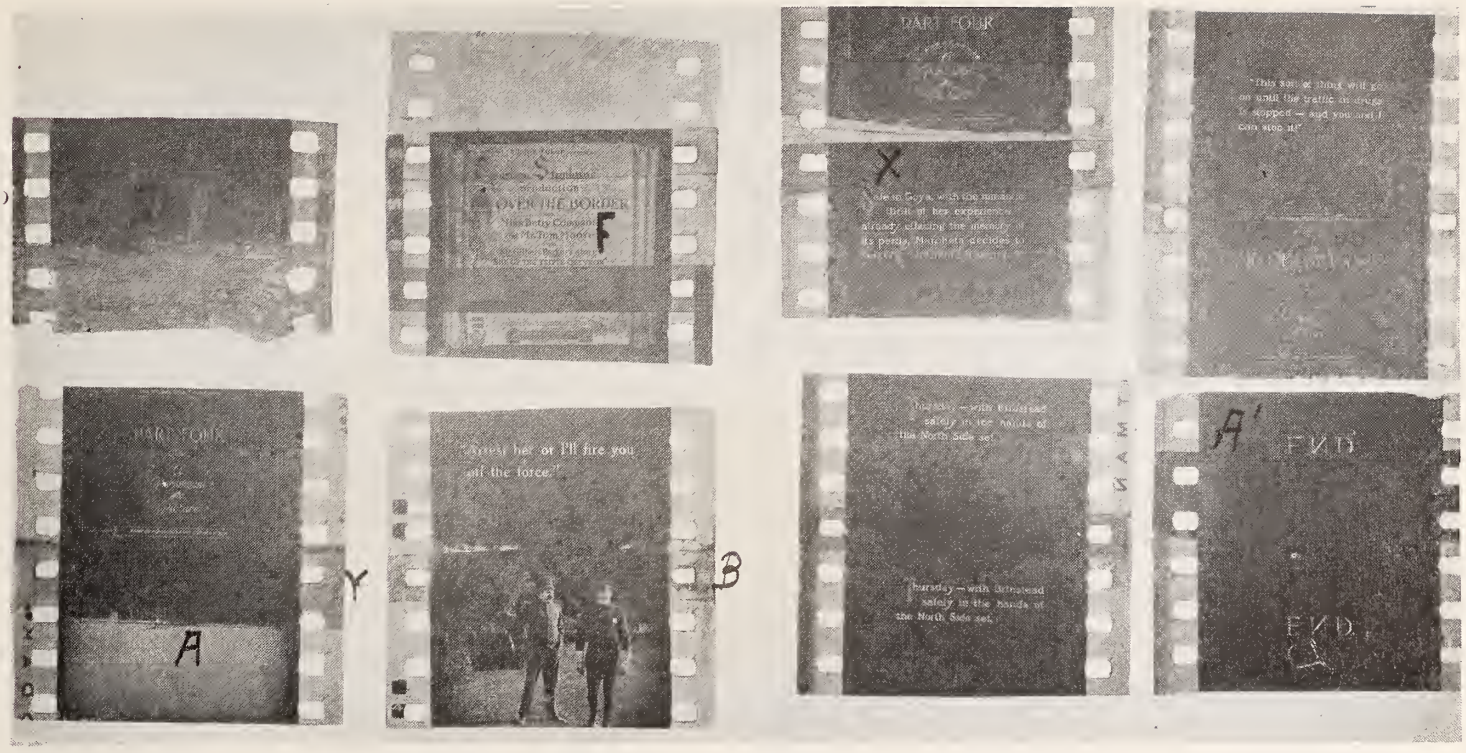


PLATE 14

Dennison says: This plate shows various examples of bad splicing, as follows: Splices too wide. Emulsion not entirely removed. Splices not scraped at all. Splices over-scraped. Two splices in one frame. Splices out of register. Splices lapped two perforations.

PLATE 15

Dennison says: Cupped and buckled splices. Results of using too much cement. Excessive scraping of base, or both. This kind of splice invariably causes damage.

EASTMAN POSITIVE FILM

Nowadays theatre audiences make a definite demand for good photography—for pictorial quality on the screen—nothing else will do.

Eastman Positive Film is made to fit this demand—it must carry quality from studio to screen. And it does.

Look in the transparent film margin for the identification "EASTMAN"
"KODAK" in black letters.

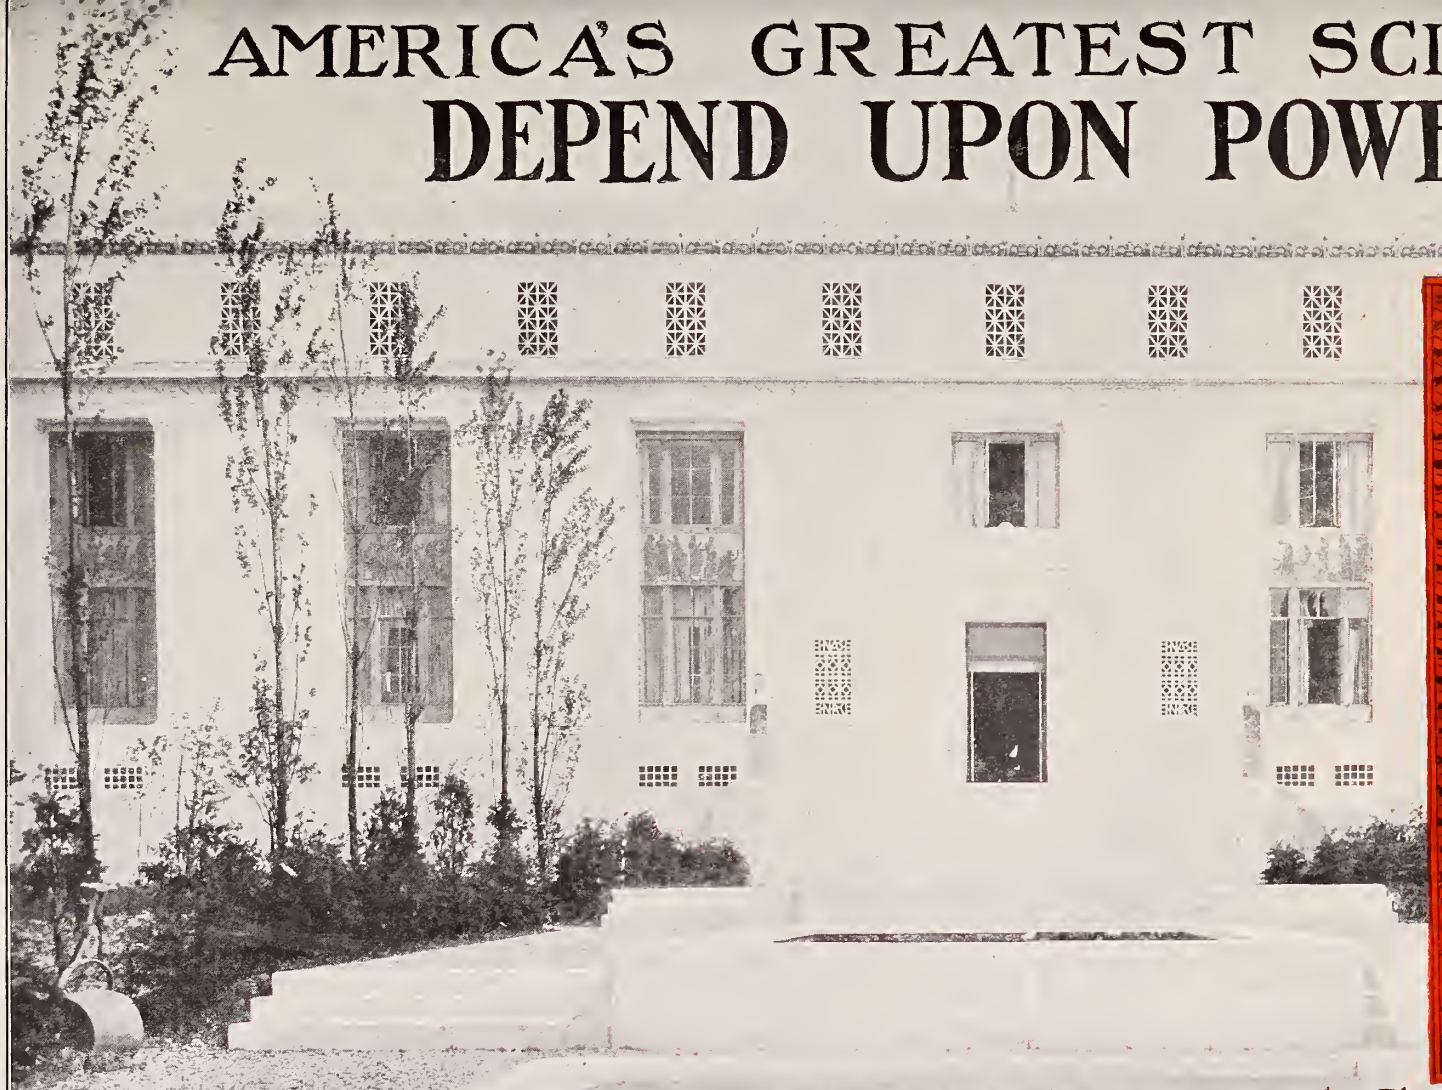
EASTMAN KODAK COMPANY
ROCHESTER, N. Y.

AMERICA'S GREATEST SCIENTISTS
DEPEND UPON POWER'S



BETTER PROJECTION PAYS · POWER'S PROJECTOR ·

MANY NOTABLE INSTITUTIONS USE POWER'S PROJECTORS

This is one of a long list of important installations of Power's Projectors which includes Yale and Harvard Universities, General Electric Company, Edison Lamp Works, Cass Technical High School and General Motors Co. Building, Detroit, New York Central and Pennsylvania Railroads, The Winchester Arms Co., The Leviathan, and hundreds of public and private institutions throughout the world.

NATIONAL ACADEMY OF SCIENCES
WASHINGTON, D. C.
EQUIPPED WITH
POWER'S PROJECTORS

NICHOLAS POWER COMPANY
INCORPORATED
NINETY GOLD ST. NEW YORK, N.Y.

SYRACUSE EVENING TELEGRAM — MONDAY, DECEMBER 8, 1924 pen ow

OMENT

EP
the Syracuse on bridge.

w 'My Kid'
t Rosie ady'
RLY bashful-
s being inter-

M'IN

Bahn Calls 'Death Ray' at Strand Biggest Scientific Feature Ever Shown in City

By CHESTER B. BAHN, S.E.
Dramatic Editor of The Syracuse Telegram and The Sunday American.

STRAND—Buster Keaton in "The Navigator;" H. Grindell-Mathews' "The Death Ray" in pictures, presented by Pathe.

• • •

THERE'S a real laugh at the Strand.

Ditto a real shudder.

And, as between the two, it's this movie reporter's opinion that the shudder has the call.

Not that "The Navigator," Buster Keaton's very funny comedy feature, is not entitled to commendation. For it is. But we have had comedies ere this. And "The Death Ray," a cinematic exposition of Dr. H. Grindell-Mathews' researches, is entirely new.

CHESTER B. BAHN, S.E.

"The Navigator" will make you laugh—some parts more than others.

"The Death Ray," however, will make you THINK.

Yes, and THINK as you never have thought before.

And as between mere amusement and mental food—which is thought—give me the latter.

"The Death Ray," which takes the Grindell-Matthews discoveries in the electrical field, applies them to the science of warfare, is perhaps the most unusual argument for peace that has ever come to my attention.

• • •

GRANTED that Grindell-Matthews is on the right track, then the next war—if and when it comes—will be the most terrible slaughter of human beings in the history of the world. Men, women and children will die by the hundreds of thousands. Cities will disappear in flames—armies will become dust.

Of course, it may be that Grindell-Matthews still has far to go before his invention can accomplish the destruction that is pictured in "The Death Ray." Members of the War College take that position, I may say as a word of re-assurance.

But there is no denying that in his laboratory, using his ray which is electrical energy traveling along a beam of light, Grindell Matthews lights an electric light with no current connection, fires a pan of gunpowder puts a running motorcycle out of commission and instantly kills a rat.

• • •

WHAT does all this mean?

Simply this, as the film visualizes:

Air planes may be put out of commission in the air.

Zeppelins, with their gas-filled bags, may be blown up while above the clouds.

Bombs carried by bombing planes may be exploded in the air, tearing the carrying craft to bits.

Ammunition dumps and arsenals may be exploded.

Cities, towns, villages and hamlets may be incinerated.

Armies may be mowed down like so much grain before the reaping machine.

That is why I say, with all due respect to Buster Keaton's "The Navigator," that the Grindell-Mathews "The Death Ray" is the real attraction on the current Strand program. Indeed, it's the biggest scientific feature that any Syracuse theatre has ever presented.

Yet, in spite of that, I'll bet that the Syracuse movie morons will yawn as they sit through it. That explains why they are morons.

AS for "T[illegible]
Jam[illegible]

CLARA KIMB[illegible]

H. Grindell-Matthews'

Sensational Discovery in a Sensational Short Picture

"The Death Ray"

Two Reels

The Fastest Booking Novelty in Many a Month

Among the bookings are Rialto, New York
Strand, Syracuse
Adams, Detroit
Victory, Providence
Imperial, San Francisco
Temple, Toledo
Casino, Spokane
Dome, Youngstown
Strand, Canton
Columbia, Seattle
Missouri, St. Louis
Mary Anderson, Louisville
Southern, Columbus
Colonial, Dayton
Walnut, Cincinnati and Southern Enterprises houses in 41 cities

Pathé
Distributors

First in the Field!

Moving Picture WORLD

Vol. 72, No. 5 JANUARY 31, 1925 PRICE 25 CENTS

Fortunate FAMOUS 40 Exhibitors!

Now comes to you another great popular entertainment:

CECIL B. DeMILLE'S "The Golden Bed"

Screen play by Jeanie Macpherson — From Wallace Irvin's novel
A drama of 1925 American marriage and morals

And in the 2nd Famous 40 also,
Paramount has the REAL ONES!

Published by CHALMERS PUBLISHING COMPANY 516 FIFTH AVE. NEW YORK CITY

Entered as second class matter June 17, 1906, at the Post Office at New York, N. Y., under the act of March 3, 1879. Printed weekly. $3 a year.

He gave her one wonderful week of life— of playing with love!

Then she gave him— an astounding surprise!

To be presented
Carl Laemm

The Price of Pleasure

starring VIRGINIA VALLI and NORMAN KERRY

with Louise Fazenda, T. Roy Barnes, George Fawcett, Kate Lester and Ward Crane

Story by Marion Orth and Elizabeth Holding - Directed by Edward Sloman - Universal Jewel

Another Box Office Bet on Universal's White List

Hundreds of Paramount Exhibitors will break all records in February and March!

FEBRUARY

THE DEVIL'S CARGO. Victor Fleming's crashing melodrama with Pauline Starke, Wallace Beery.

FORTY WINKS. Iribe-Urson comedy riot with Viola Dana, Theodore Roberts, Raymond Griffith.

TOP OF THE WORLD. By Ethel M. Dell. Geo. Melford drama with Anna Q. Nilsson, James Kirkwood.

THE SWAN. Famous stage sensation produced by Buchowetzki with Adolphe Menjou, Ricardo Cortez, Frances Howard.

CONTRABAND. Alan Crosland's action-drama with Lois Wilson, Noah Beery, Raymond Hatton, all-star.

SALOME OF THE TENEMENTS. Sidney Olcott's gorgeous production with Jetta Goudal, Godfrey Tearle.

Zane Grey's THE THUNDERING HERD. Jack Holt, Lois Wilson, Noah Beery. Directed by Wm. Howard.

MARCH

NEW LIVES FOR OLD. Starring Betty Compson. French love hit. Directed by Clarence Badger.

TOO MANY KISSES. Starring Richard Dix. Flaming Spanish romance with Frances Howard. Directed by Paul Sloane.

SACKCLOTH AND SCARLET. Henry King's production of the famous novel with Alice Terry.

THE AIR MAIL. Irvin Willat (who made "North of 36") production with a great all-star cast.

MEN AND WOMEN. William de Mille production of the Belasco-de Mille play with Richard Dix and big cast.

THE DRESSMAKER FROM PARIS. Big fashion-show picture just before Easter! Paul Bern production with Leatrice Joy, Ernest Torrence, 14 International Beauty Models.

THE GOOSE HANGS HIGH. The greatest James Cruze hit ever! From the popular Broadway play.

2nd FAMOUS FORTY Paramount Pictures

OVER WITH W

HERE'S THE PROOF!

"SHORT CHANGE" went over here with a wow from start to finish. Unusual audience reaction on this. Keep up the good work.

---Harry B. Watts, Rialto Theatre, Omaha, Neb.

"SHORT CHANGE" was a corking good comedy and certainly entertained them at all shows. Here's hoping you give us some more as good."

---Milton H. Feld, Newman Theatre, Kansas City, Mo.

"YOU will be glad to know that Walter Hiers has been a sensational success in his personal appearance and on the screen in 'A Fat Chance' at the Aldine Theatre in Pittsburgh this past week, from every angle including the box office and a pleased public."

---Louis K. Sidney, Division Manager Loew's Theatres

"YOU would have been highly elated if you had attended the opening of the new Senator Theatre at Sacramento and witnessed the way the Walter Hiers comedy 'Short Change' went over. Mr. Charles Thall was told to scour the exchanges and select the best comedy for the opening, and he selected 'Short Change' after reviewing comedies in all San Francisco exchanges.---G. C. Blumenthal, San Francisco

"WANT to let you know 'Short Change' went over great here. Clean, fast and funny."

---Willard G. Patterson, Metropolitan Theatre, Atlanta, Ga.

"Short Change"

"HIERS' first start in two reel comedies bids fair to make him a star in this new field."

---S. L. Hull, Happy Hour Theatre, Jasper, Minn.

"WALTER HIERS in 'A Fat Chance' sure knocked them cold. The audience was in a continuous uproar from the time it started. It has been many and many a day that a comedy has gone over as big as this one did on every show."

---Manager Kentucky Theatre, Lexington, Kentucky

A BANG!

WALTER HIERS COMEDIES

---are being hailed by enthusiastic exhibitors as instantaneous hits. Walter Hiers has caught on in such short time that his series is the talk of the two-reel field.

Hiers is the one and only fat man on the screen who appeals to men, women and children alike. From any angle Walter Hiers is the biggest buy you can get on the two-reel market today.

The fact that real exhibitors are spreading the good news of Walter Hiers' success is positive proof that these comedies are bets to book.

GET THE SERIES OF SIX
"Short Change" directed by Archie Mayo
"A Fat Chance" directed by Scott Sidney
"Good Spirits" directed by Archie Mayo

NOW READY
EDUCATIONAL FILM EXCHANGES, Inc.

Educational Pictures

"MIDNIGHT MOLLY"

Evelyn Brent

in her greatest crook melodrama is coming soon from F.B.O.

Presented by Gothic Pictures

Directed by Lloyd Ingraham

Have You Played the First Two BRENT Pictures?

"Dangerous Flirt"

and

"Silk Stocking Sal"

Two box-office winners already playing in hundreds of theatres.

Distributed by
F. B. O.

723 7th Ave., New York.

Sales Office United Kingdom, 26-27 D'Arblay Street, Wardour St., London, W.1, England.

Produced at the F. B. O. Studios, Hollywood, Calif.

Herbert Rothschild on Von Stroheim's

MAY I convey to you our thanks and appreciation for the privilege of exhibiting to the San Francisco public Erich Von Stroheim's "Greed". This picture at the Imperial Theatre absolutely shattered all records for attendance in a house that has been shattering records for the past year. Our doors opened at nine o'clock and the ever-coming spectators compelled our running the picture until one o'clock this morning. During that time anxious hundreds were constantly in line. The critics today in all of the San Francisco papers are unanimous, not alone in their praise of the picture, but in their wholehearted approval of the splendid portrayal of a phase of life that must be of interest to everyone. The approval of the critics was evidenced by the intense interest of the audiences.

(Signed) HERBERT ROTHSCHILD
San Francisco, Jan. 3, 1925

Erich Von Stroheim's production adapted from the great American novel "McTeague". The story of real life, two years in picturization.

What 10 Critics Say about Von Stroheim's

1. "Most moving dramatic and powerful thing we have ever seen on the screen."
R. W. in Herald - Tribune.

2. "I have seen 'Greed' and I am conquered. 'McTeague' has been made into one of the most conspicuous pictures of all time."
—Mildred Spain in Daily News.

3. " 'Greed' is a masterpiece."
—Dorothy Herzog in Daily Mirror.

4. "Undoubtedly among the ten best pictures of the last year. Erich Von Stroheim's 'Greed' is great."
—Sam Comly in Morning Telegraph.

5. "Cunningly dramatic."
—Mordaunt Hall in N. Y. Times.

6. "Here is a great director who knows life and is not afraid of picturizing his knowledge."
—Louella O. Parsons in N. Y. American.

7. " 'Greed' is a truly great picture. In truth it is life. It will be high up in the list of the season's masterpieces."
—George Gerhard in Evening World.

8. "A remarkable picture. I have never seen such a portrayal of human conflict. Forceful, gripping, colossal. An extraordinary achievement."
—Rose Pelswick in Evening Journal.

9. "It is a masterpiece."
—Frank Vreeland in Eve. Telegram and Mail.

10. "The high water mark in the history of the motion picture. 'Greed' is beautiful, human. You are bound to admit that it is one of the best photoplays you ever saw."
—The Sun.

A Metro Goldwyn Picture

A MASTERPIECE

" 'Isn't Life Wonderful' is a wonderful picture viewed from any angle. As a masterpiece of a master producer it is bound to create a sensation. There will be found in this simple story of human life and suffering the touch that will arouse the sympathy and compassion of people everywhere. The picture ought to run for years."

Regina Canon, N. Y. Eve. Graphic.

D.W.GRIFFITH

Presents

"ISN'T LIFE WONDERFUL"

A Simple Romance of Love and Potatoes

NOW BOOKING

UNITED ARTISTS CORPORATION

Mary Pickford — Charles Chaplin

Douglas Fairbanks — D.W. Griffith

Hiram Abrams, President. — Joseph M. Schenck, Chairman, Board of Directors

Sixty Five Minutes of Perfect Entertainment

The TRIFLERS

A GASNIER Production
Presented by B. P. Schulberg
with
Mae Busch, Frank Mayo
Elliott Dexter, Walter Hiers,
Eva Novak, Lee Moran.

By Frederick Orin Bartlett
Adapted by Eve Unsell & John Goodrich

FIRST run theatres in every part of the country are reporting turn-away business with this latest Gasnier winner. It's that combination of drama and comedy that the fans can't resist!

Preferred Pictures - Distributed by B. P. Schulberg Productions, Inc.
1650 Broadway, New York — J. G. Bachmann, Vice-Pres.

Foreign Distributors: Export and Import Film Co., 729 Seventh Avenue, New York City. Cable Address: Eximfilm, New York.

"The PARASITE"

A GASNIER Production

Presented by B. P. Schulberg

A SURE-FIRE DRAMA OF SOCIAL IDLERS

From the novel by Helen Martin
Adapted by Eve Unsell
with

Owen Moore, Madge Bellamy,
Bryant Washburn,
Lilyan Tashman,
Mary Carr,
Bruce Guerin

Preferred Pictures Distributed by B. P. Schulberg Productions, Inc.
1650 Broadway, New York J. G. Bachmann, Vice-Pres.

Foreign Distributors: Export and Import Film Co., 729 Seventh Ave., New York City. Cable Address: Eximfilm, New York

Do you care for novelty, laughs, class, speed, dash, divertissement, jollity, mummery, jocosity, wit, buffoonery, jeu de mots, plaisanterie, double entente, espieglerie with your dinner?
Do you like to be allured, charmed, diverted, captivated, fascinated, bewitched, entranced, tickled, transported, regaled, enkindled, stimulated, enlivened, immediately following the demitasse?
Do you then care for the dance, rigadoon, cancan, waltz, shindig, mazurka, strathspey, quadrille, ballet, cotillon, allemande, ridotto, fete champetre?
In short—are you in the motion picture business—or have you a friend who is?
Then write S. Charles Einfeld, First National, 383 Madison Ave., New York, for tickets to the fifth annual ONLY 950 TICKETS AVAILABLE $10- EACH
GRIDIRON REVEL AND
NAKED TRUTH DINNER DANCE
UNDER THE AUSPICES OF
A. M. P. A.
LADIES TOO (AND ESPECIALLY)
HOTEL ASTOR • FEB. 7 - AT 7 P.M.

The Third Group of 5 from associated exhibitors

"Bad Company"
(Conway Tearle and Madge Kennedy)

"Back to Life"
(Patsy Ruth Miller and David Powell)

"The Sky Raider"
(Jacqueline Logan and Capt. Nungesser)

"The Adventurous Sex"
(Clara Bow, Earle Williams, Herbert Rawlinson)

"Now or Never"
(Harold Lloyd)

Compare them with the best, independent or otherwise!

"Battling Bunyan"
"Barriers Burned Away"
"The Greatest Love of all"
"White Sheep"
"Is Love Everything?"
Second 5

"Never Say Die"
"The Price of a Party"
"East of Broadway"
"The Battling Orioles"
"Dynamite Smith" first 5

Associated Exhibitors

ARTHUR S. KANE, President

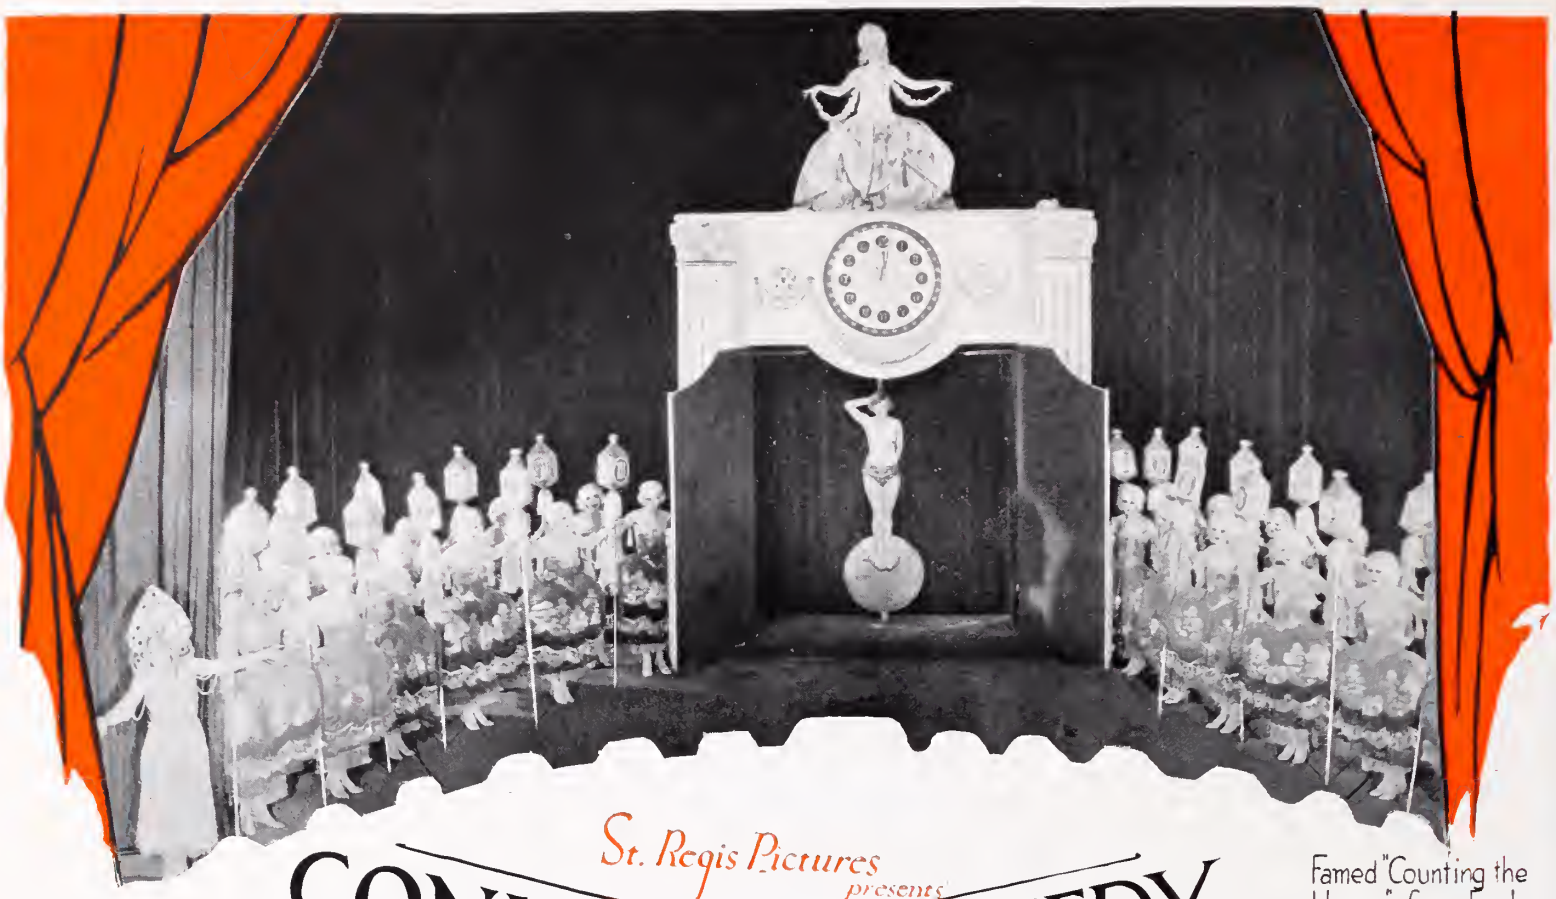
Physical Distributor
Pathe Exchange, Inc.

Encore Pictures

Foreign Representative
Sidney Garrett

32 from associated exhibitors 1924-1925



St. Regis Pictures presents

CONWAY KENNEDY
MADGE TEARLE
in

"Bad Company"

By J. C. Brownell

Directed by E. H. Griffith

Famed "Counting the Hours" from Earl Carroll's Vanities of 1924,

Encore Pictures

The romantic adventure of a girl who was willing to make the GREATEST SACRIFICE to save one she loved from the toils of—bad company!

The outstanding exploitation title of the year!

—and a cast of artists including Lucille Lee Stewart, Charles Emmett Mack, Bigelow Cooper, the Chorus of the Greenwich Village Follies and "Counting the Hours" from Earl Carroll's Vanities, with Kathryn Ray, the Pendelum Girl.

Associated Exhibitors

ARTHUR S. KANE, President

Physical Distributor
Pathe Exchange, Inc.

Foreign Representative
Sidney Garrett

Whitman Bennett
presents

"BACK to LIFE"

Based on the Novel "Back from the Dead" by Andrew Soutar

with

PATSY RUTH MILLER and DAVID POWELL

Could a wife know her husband even if his face had been changed?

Would the voice, the figure, the mannerisms make her know him?

Would the intimacy of years of married life reveal to her the true identity beneath a stranger's face?

Modern surgery has made the thing possible. The war gave to men new faces for old. Here was a man whose face was made over by skilled surgeons. He came from a German prison camp to find his wife the bride of another! DID SHE KNOW HIM? What did he do?

Directed by Mr. Bennett

Pathe Exchange, Inc
Physical Distributor

Associated Exhibitors

ARTHUR S. KANE, President

Foreign Representative
Sidney Garrett

Encore Pictures

Gilbert E. Gable
presents

"The SKY RAIDER"

with

JACQUELINE LOGAN

and

Capt. NUNGESSER

Jacqueline Logan, everyone's favorite.

And Capt. Nungesser! Ace of aces; Officer of the Legion of Honor; French Military Medal; Croix de Guerre, 30 citations, 2 stars; U. S. Distinguished Service Cross; British Military Cross; Knight of the Order of Leopold; Belgian Croix de Guerre with Silver Palm, etc., etc. Seventeen wounds; destroyer of 105 German War Planes!

The beauty and talent of the United States, allied with the greatest war hero of France, in a thrilling romantic melodrama, showing the renowned Nungesser as King of the Air!

From the story by Jack Lait, "The Great Air Mail Robbery"

A T. Hayes Hunter Production

Physical Distributor
Pathe Exchange, Inc.

Foreign Representative
Sidney Garrett

Associated Exhibitors

ARTHUR S. KANE, President

Encore Pictures

HER LIPS A LURE TO EVERY MAN

Howard Estabrook
presents

"The ADVENTUROUS SEX"

with

CLARA BOW, EARLE WILLIAMS, HERBERT RAWLINSON, HARRY MOREY and FLORA FINCH

HER BEAUTY A PREY TO THE DESIGNING

A fast-moving, realistic story of the spoiled girls of today,—those to whom the "Don'ts!" of father and mother no longer appeal.

Presenting the truth that those who venture too near the flames are apt to be scorched.

A cast with names that really count.

Directed by Charles Giblyn

Associated Exhibitors

ARTHUR S. KANE, President

Physical Distributor
Pathe Exchange, Inc.

Encore Pictures

Foreign Representative
Sidney Garrett

Associated Exhibitors
presents

Harold Lloyd

in

"NOW or NEVER"

The First of The Popular Demand Series (Reissued)

Harold Lloyd is the greatest attraction in pictures today.

His name means crowded houses.

"Now or Never" is a feature attraction of the kind that you want and must have, full of laughs, with fun fast and furious.

Show it and you can't keep the crowds away!

Produced by Hal Roach

Associated Exhibitors

ARTHUR S. KANE, President

Physical Distributor
Pathe Exchange, Inc.

Encore Pictures

Foreign Representative
Sidney Garrett

The Aristocratic Series of the Year!

B. Berger Presents

RICHARD HOLT

in

"TEN DAYS"

by Arthur Hoerl

A DUKE WORNE Production

Hazel Keener
Victor Potel
Joseph Girard
Hal Stephens
Lloyd Potter
Carmelita Tellos in the great cast

"TEN DAYS"

is the first of a series of thrill comedy dramas franchised on the independent market!

The first 4 are ready for screening:

"Too Much Youth"
"It Can Be Done"
(Temporary Title)
"The Canvas-Kisser"

Coming!

"Once in a Lifetime"
"Going the Limit"

Grab this series while it's still open in your territory—and get a winner!

Gerson Pictures Corp.

Office: 723-7th Ave., New York, N. Y.
Studio: 1974 Page St., San Francisco, Calif.

B. BERGER, Gen'l Mgr.

Foreign Rights
RICHMOUNT PICTURES

First National Pictures Inc. presents

"AS MAN DESIRES"

with

Milton Sills and Viola Dana

From GENE WRIGHT'S novel PANDORA LACROIX
adapted and supervised by EARL HUDSON
Directed by IRVING CUMMINGS
Scenario by MARION ORTH
Editorial Direction MARION FAIRFAX
Art Director MILTON MENASCO
Photography ROY CARPENTER
Film Editor CHARLES HUNT

Thrills and Romance

Here's the greatest combination of masculine and feminine appeal your box-office has ever known

Foreign Rights Controlled by First National Pictures Inc. 383 Madison Avenue, New York

FIRST NATIONAL PICTURES

You'll wonder where your competition is if you have FIRST NATIONAL'S LEADERSHIP pictures

Members of Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America Inc.—Will Hays President

Right you are, Boys!

the first reviews — and — the first box-office reports

For if ever there was a picture that was designed to crack box office records, that has a hundred points of appeal, that is in possession of that much desired "everything," "A Thief in Paradise," is it.

Motion Picture News

eight reels of gorgeous entertainment.

We can only urge you to get into immediate touch with First National and arrange for the most convenient booking.

Moving Picture World

As a Whole....A BOX OFFICE HIT IF THERE EVER WAS ONE. BEAUTIFULLY MOUNTED PRODUCTION, EXCELLENT CAST, CORKING GOOD STORY. THIS SHOULD WORK OUT.

Film Daily

Strand, Hartford, Conn.

"Opened Sunday to phe — nomenal business. The picture was received most enthusiastically."—

Strand, Albany, N.Y.

"Very well received and the subject of comment. Business healthy and satisfactory. We were very well satisfied."

Samuel Goldwyn
presents
The George Fitzmaurice
PRODUCTION
"A THIEF IN PARADISE"

Adapted From FRANCES MARION
LEONARD MERRICK'S novel "THE WORLDLINGS"
with
Doris Kenyon, Ronald Colman, Aileen Pringle,
Claude Gillingwater, Alec Frances

Foreign Rights Controlled by First National Pictures Inc 383 Madison Avenue, New York

FIRST NATIONAL PICTURES

First National Pictures lead in Prestige with your patrons just as they lead in Box-Office returns!

Members of Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America Inc.—Will Hays President

Drawing Power

"Any house in the land can show this one and be proud of it. It should do real business."

Motion Picture News

First National Pictures Inc. presents

COLLEEN MOORE in "SO BIG"

by EDNA FERBER

Adapted and supervised by EARL HUDSON

Directed by CHARLES BRABIN

Scenario by ADELAIDE HEILBRON
Editorial direction . MARION FAIRFAX
Art Director . MILTON MENASCO
Photography . . T. D. McCORD
Film Editor . . ARTHUR TAVARES

Foreign Rights Controlled by First National Pictures Inc. 383 Madison Avenue, New York

FIRST NATIONAL PICTURES

Leadership without a struggle—with a FIRST NATIONAL CONTRACT

Members of Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America Inc.—Will Hays President

The MOVING PICTURE
WORLD
Founded in 1907 by J. P. Chalmers

The Editor's Views

SO much real news happening these days that even a pompous editor feels a bit bashful about his self-constituted job of prognosticating, advising and commenting. Dull days are an editor's delight; he can fan the air to his heart's content and almost convince himself that someone—somewhere—is hanging upon every word. When the word "finis" has been attached to a news event he can also reap enjoyment, for comment is a simple and safe matter. But in the face of news that is in the making he retires chagrined—it is so easy for developments of "the next day" to show him up completely.

Cecil DeMille holds the limelight. Simultaneously with the passing of Thomas H. Ince, Mr. DeMille steps forward in his true light as an individual, independent producer of ability and resources.

The protecting, but at times enveloping, mantle of Paramount has been withdrawn. And it must be stated that the organization to which Mr. DeMille now lends the strength of his name and productions stands to gain considerably both in prestige and in fact.

United Artists, Universal, and Producers Distributing Corporation have been mentioned—with the latter reaching more concrete phases.

No greater tribute could be written to the ability, personality, and character of John Flinn than the fact of serious and lengthy conferences over a prospective alliance between Cecil DeMille and the one-time—but long since forgotten—Hodkinson organization.

* * *

DE MILLE holds the limelight because pictures and their makers are the bread, butter and cake of this industry. But for possible future significance the important news of the week is the definite and authoritative statement of plans by the new Railway Express Film Transport Company—a name that will probably never be used in the colloquialisms of the industry which will prefer to know it as "the American Express proposition."

It is difficult to believe that the promoters of a plan for combined physical operations of exchanges have reached this stage in the proposition without definite assurances of interest and cooperation on the part of some present national distributors.

Because that is the nub of the matter.

What companies are ready to take the plunge?

There is little of theory, and a great deal of sound fact, logical reasoning, and straight business thought in the prospectus issued by the new organization. One must search for fine hairs to find reason for the slightest quarrel.

So there we are, with a perfect plan, the backing of real people, and back to the original question:

What companies are ready to take the plunge?

* * *

THE water is going to appear cold to the man on whose shoulders rest the responsibility of making the decision.

Despite all the agitation, the generation of complaint with present distributing methods, that has preceded the launching of the new plan, most of us, when faced definitely with the necessity of DOING SOMETHING will confess to a case of shivers.

We will all admit, in general terms, that present duplication of physical distribution effort is wrong. But with few exceptions most of our bigger executives can declare that they are at present skirting so close to the line of hundred per cent. efficiency that they want to be SHOWN how anyone else is going to do any better.

Pathe, for example, with the bulk of its operations a volume business, with a volume of shipments and physical steps that is staggering, could never have carried on as smoothly and successfully as it has with many loose threads in the scheme of things.

Yessir—there's room for heavy thinking, and considerable arguing. Without, of course, forgetting that considerable of both have already been expended.

Robert E. Welsh

Moving Picture WORLD

EDITOR - - - - - - - - - - - - - - - ROBERT E. WELSH

Published Weekly by CHALMERS PUBLISHING COMPANY, 516 Fifth Avenue, New York, N. Y. Telephone: Murray Hill 1610-1-2-3. Member Audit Bureau Circulation. John F. Chalmers, president; James P. Chalmers, Sr., vice-president; Alfred J. Chalmers, vice-president; Eliza J. Chalmers, secretary and treasurer, and Ervin L. Hall, business manager.

Branch Offices: 5434 Glenwood Avenue, Chicago; W. E. Keefe, 1312 Stanley Avenue, Hollywood, Cal.

Managing Editor—John A. Archer. Advertising Manager—Ben H. Grimm. Circulation Manager—Dennis J. Shea.

Subscription price: United States and its possessions, Mexico and Cuba, $3.00 a year; Canada, $3.50; foreign countries (postpaid) $10.00 a year.

Copyright, 1925, Chalmers Publishing Co. Copyright throughout Great Britain and Colonies, under the provisions of the Copyright Act of 1911. (All rights reserved.)

Other publications: Cine Mundial (Spanish). Technical books.

VOLUME 72 NUMBER 5

To Keep You Posted

Editorial 423
What Do You Say About Prices When a Patron Asks Why Admission Prices Are High? 425
A Model Theatre Newspaper with a Circulation of 8,500 426
Opening One Theatre, Cooneys Plan Another in Chicago 428
Railway Express Distribution Plan Under Producers' Consideration 429
Harry O. Schwalbe Resigns as Secretary of First National 430
2,500 Film Folk Make Merry at Brilliant T. O. C. C. Ball 430
All Legal Censorship Condemned in Films' Committee Resolution 431
M. P. T. O. of Canada Now Affiliated with Hays Organization 431
Cole Backed by Texas M. P. T. O. in Non-Theatrical-Distributor War 433
Walker Declines and Independents Seek Another for Post 433
Drastic "Blue" Measure Now Before Indiana Legislature 434
New York Censors Seek More Power; Would Charge "Good" Producer Less 435
Buffalo Exhibitors Discuss Block Booking and Juveniles 436
Showmen Meet in Boston to Agree on Sunday Situation 436
New York Censorship Repeal Depends Upon the Exhibitors 437
Exhibitors' News and Views 467
Projection 506

To Sell Your Seats

Selling the Picture to the Public (Department) 438
Highlights on "Peter Pan" Stunts as Reported from First Run Houses 438
Production Hints from Edward L. Hyman 439
Stock Shadow Box Has Possibilities 440
A Mounted "Merton" Made a Good Display 441
Hart Gives a Tree to a Visiting Tabloid 442

To Aid Your Bookings

Reviews 446
Pep of the Program 449
Straight from the Shoulder Reports 475
Current and Advance Film Releases 500

4 out of every 5 motion picture theatres in the United States are reached by a copy of MOVING PICTURE WORLD!

First in the Field!

What Do You Say When a Patron Asks Why Admission Prices Are High?

Jack Roth Argues That Films Are Cheapest of All Popular Amusements

By FRANK C. TRUE

"WHY are your admission prices so high?"

"When a patron asks me that question I look upon him or her with almost pity," asserted Jack Roth, manager of the Isis Theatre, the largest suburban theatre in Kansas City. "But, while I look upon the patron with pity, I feel as though I would like to chastize the exhibitor whose reply is that he is forced to charge the amount he does because the producers charge him so much for film rental.

"How any intelligent exhibitor can excuse himself for the amount of admission price charged by pointing an accusing finger at the producer is more than I can comprehend. Don't misunderstand me, I have no reason to become a champion of the producer. I am speaking as a theatre owner. Exhibiting motion pictures is my only business. Did you ever stop to realize just how cheap an entertainment the average first-run or suburban motion picture theatre is? If you haven't, just compare the price you charge with what a patron would spend during the same length of time in the corner billiard parlor, dance hall, bowling alley, or at the baseball park or football field. When you make that comparison, does your admission price still seem high?

"Then, again, let us compare the cost of producing a good picture with that of getting together a major or minor league ball club. Mind you, your theatre has a different picture each week, in some cases more often, and each one of those pictures represent a big expenditure. Does the personnel of your ball club change each week? Certainly not. Do fans who pay $1 and more to witness a ball game go to the club owners and complain if the game happens to be poorly played? I'm a baseball fan and I never did. Yet if I were to charge half that price for a poor picture I certainly would hear about it in a most hostile manner.

"It costs about $200 a day to operate my theatre—and it's no less during dull periods. What is a dance hall proprietor's overhead expense? What is the expense of the average minor league ball club? To build the Isis Theatre cost about $500,000. I can buy you all the minor league baseball franchises, dance halls, bowling alleys or billiard parlors you could want for less than half that amount. Then tell me, if you can, why an institution which requires far less initial investment has any right to take in more at the box office?

"My patrons want all good pictures. Yet they can go to the football field or the baseball diamond and enjoy a mediocre game. They don't expect all ball games to be good, yet they put up a 'perfect' standard for me to shoot at. The cost of producing pictures is much more than it was a few years ago, yet the proportionate increase in cost of production is not near reflected as it should be in admission prices. Why not? Simply because you, Mr. Exhibitor, have not educated your patrons up to a point where they understand the situation.

"Why couldn't exhibitors use trailers to educate their patrons along such lines? If not trailers, why not the house organ? I have found it successful and before long I am going to have my patrons believing my way. But one exhibitor can't boost his prices unless his fellow theatre owners do. That would be suicide. We should all work together, either through trailers or house organs, or even slides. In Kansas and Missouri trailers were used to obtain the elimination of the admission tax and other objectionable things in the industry. The same thing could be done in regard to admission prices in every town in America. Few theatres in Kansas City actually are making money, the amount they should make in accordance with the investment. Mark my word, sooner or later a change must come. It must!

"I challenge any of my patrons to tell me where they can obtain entertainment of equal value for the same price. They can't do it. Neither can your patrons. There may be many forms of entertainment which cost less, but not of equal value. That is the point I desire to emphasize.

"Theatre patrons are so accustomed to seeing the theatre held up for a 'public punching bag' that any action or change in admission prices on the part of the theatre commands much more attention than most forms of amusement. If the proprietor of a bowling alley changes his prices, along with most of the other bowling alley proprietors of the town, little comment is heard and the difference in price soon is forgotten. He tells his patrons his overhead expenses require the boost in price, they believe him and that's all there is to it. The same can be said of the dance hall or the ball park.

"But let an exhibitor boost his admission price and I'll guarantee that every patron who buys a ticket at the box office will make some adverse comment about it. Many will accuse him of 'getting rich too fast,' while others will threaten to cease coming to the theatre. That's what we're up against, fellow exhibitors. It's up to us to create a change in the attitude of our patrons. The average picture fan is a sane, reasonable person and can be made to see the true condition of affairs. The big fault is that we have made no organized effort to educate our patrons.

"I'm not a radical, and am not advocating any radical movement, but before closing let me say this: If 70 per cent. of the exhibitors of the country would use trailers, slides or house organs in informing our patrons just what a bargain they are getting at our theatres, the time soon would come when we could, without any fear whatever, fix our admission prices at a point where we could realize a good, sound 6 per cent. interest, at least, on our investments. The producers are not our enemies. Stop battling them and do your duty towards your patrons."

The Proof Positive

This is Jack Roth's comparative amusement schedule. His Isis Theatre charges a top admission of 25 cents. The following figures show the cost per person per hour of various amusements:

One and one-half hour Isis show	$0.17½
Bowling—25c per person—5 games per hour	1.25
Dancing—10c per couple per dance, 12 dances per hour	.60
Pool—5c per cue per person, 12 games per hour	.60
Baseball—lowest admission 50c for one and one-half hours	.33 1-3
Football—lowest admission $1.00 for one hour	1.00

A Model Theatre Newspaper with a Circulation of 8,500

Fairmont, W. Va., Fans Like Linn's "Sheet" So Well They'd Pay for It

By SUMNER SMITH

CAN you imagine a motion picture fan complaining bitterly because an exhibitor wouldn't accept a paid subscription for a free, four-page movie newspaper whose primary purpose was to advertise the theatre? That sounds a bit like the millenium; most theatre owners go into hysterics of happiness if one-half of their advertising matter isn't deposited in the yawning maw of an ash can or wastepaper basket. Yes, in this instance the fan raised the dickens of a ruckus because the paper was free. You see, he figured that a paid subscription would make certain his getting it. It wasn't enough for him just to be put on the mailing list.

That's a true story from the mining town of Fairmont, W. Va., population 18,000, where Managing Director Russell Linn of the Virginia Theatre and Editor E. E. Meredith get out Movie News once a month.

What is this Movie News like—this little four-page sheet that has captured the hearts of Fairmont people? Of how much real, practical value is it to the theatre? Why don't the local newspapers regard it as something of a potential competitor, since it carries news items, features and paid advertising?

Mr. Linn has managed the Virginia Theatre since it opened on Christmas, 1922. Early in 1924 he conceived the idea of a monthly newspaper, and with Mr. Meredith as editor the first issue came off the presses on June 1 last. Since the beginning it has maintained the same size and the same style, testifying to the thought which preceded its appearance. It is 17½ inches long, 12½ inches wide, printed on fine stock and a very neat piece of work typographically, as the accompanying illustration shows.

Previously Mr. Linn conducted a house-to-house distribution of heralds, but now the cost of printing and distributing heralds is put into Movie News. Copies to the number of 8,500 are printed. These are mailed to every box-holder on rural routes out of Fairmont and adjacent towns. The first issue handed out was the Christmas anniversary number, and Mr. Linn and Editor Meredith were gratified to find that not one copy was thrown away. That sounds almost incredible, doesn't it?

"You would be surprised to know how much interest this little paper creates," Mr. Linn writes. "Many call and want to subscribe. We have contributors from all classes of theatre-goers—adults and children, native and foreign-born. We send out two tickets for every contribution used. Of course, we only use a small percentage of those contributed. So far we have answered all letters from people on rural routes and have sent two tickets with the announcement that we 'planned' to use their contribution, feeling that the tickets were well placed out in the country. We inclose copies of the paper since it was first gotten out. You will note effort for continuity of interest by having articles which keep people interested."

Before we go further it may be well to note that the Virginia seats 1,000 and runs First National, Paramount, United Artists, Vitagraph, Associated Exhibitors, Warner Brothers and open market pictures.

Why It Appeals

Now let's see what the text is that so attracts the Fairmont reading public.

The first number featured a story under the cross-page heading, "Movies Chief Topic of Conversation," which reported that Fairmont people talk more about motion pictures than anything else. A subheading read, "Old Women Talk About Bobbed Hair and 'Movies'; Young women About the Boys and 'Movies'; Young Men About Baseball and 'Movies,' and Old Men About Business and 'Movies.'" This conclusion was drawn from a survey of local social events. One gathering discussed, according to Movie News, pictures, marriage, jazz music, Reno (Linn was to show "Reno" the next week), dancing; another talked cards, dancing, pictures, weather, eats; another, pictures, boobed hair, young men, clothes, babies and house cleaning. That was a clever way of proving the popularity of motion pictures and the necessity for a motion picture paper.

RUSSELL LINN

Other headings ran: "People on Rural Routes Kept Home by Rainy Spring Weather," "Methodists Can See Movie Shows," "Big Pictures Are Seen Here First," "Plant a Melody in Your Heart," this last story calling attention to song slides and community singing at the theatre. The second and third pages were taken up with program announcements, carrying the synopses of the films to be shown; a boost for National Music Week, a contest of identification of movie stars and some Red Cross publicity. On the fourth page was a real news story titled, "Natural Gas Is Responsible For Increased Taxable Wealth," answers to queries and the sleeping car schedule to and from Fairmont. All of this copy was extremely well written.

More on Bobbed Hair

Now let's see what the July issue presented. The crosspage headline reads, "Bobbed Hair Women Score Big Victory!" and the subhead, "Effort Is Made to Bar From Theatres Older Women Adopting Latest Style. National Society For the Perpetuation of Old Women Seeks to Line Up Popular Theatre as Its Aid."

This issue continued the discussion of what Fairmont people talk about. It listed moving pictures first with 41 per cent and bobbed hair second with 17 per cent. Among the scattering were sports, autos, Ku Klux Klan, religion, radio and vacations. It certainly was a bobbed hair issue. Colleen Moore was reported as telegraphing her advocacy of short hair, and Constance Talmadge as supporting the "boy bob." The local angle was brought in by stories on "Thirty Women Bob in One Shop in Half a Day," "Barbers Bobbing Goose Laying Golden Egg" and "$5 Gold Keepsake For Oldest Bobber," this last story being a prize offer by a local

SECOND XMAS 1924 ANNIVERSARY

MOVIE NEWS

SECOND XMAS 1924 ANNIVERSARY

VOL. I. No. 8. FAIRMONT, W. VA., DECEMBER 25, 1924 CIRCULATION 8,500

SECOND ANNIVERSARY POPULAR VIRGINIA THEATER

To be Observed as Chief Event Of Holiday Season in Fairmont

THEATER OPENED ON XMAS DAY IN 1922 WITH JACKIE COOGAN AND THOMAS MEIGHAN STARTS THIRD YEAR

Many Notable Attractions Have Been Offered On Screen and Stage and Pick O' Pictures Are Coming

Nazimova Back To Activity On Stage

COMING IN ASSOCIATION WITH MILTON SILLS IN "MADONNA OF THE STREETS."

The New Year will bring a r[illegible]

This gives an idea of the physical make-up of Linn's newspaper.

merchant for a picture of the oldest "bobbed hairess in the county." Then there were several letters from proponents and opponents, one of the latter writing, "I suggest that the barber shops install the Ladies Home Journal instead of the Police Gazette and we men will shave with safety razors." This issue also began a series of letters from fans on "Why I Like to Live in Fairmont," offering passes as prizes, and running more of the "Bits of State History" statistics started in the initial issue. And now—perhaps you've guessed it—the reason for all this bobbed hair stuff was the coming of Colleen Moore in "The Perfect Flapper."

In the August issue the lead story was "Pick of All Picture Productions Coming to the Virginia," with a secondary but still strong play on the bobbed hair stories, these having been found to have captured the public fancy. Home town patriotism was encouraged by more letters on "Why I Like to Live in Fairmont" and a new department, "Virginia Verses," which are described as "jingles of two or more lines up to eight." There also was home town news, including the biography of a well known man.

Back went the center of interest in the September issue to bobbed hair, with the cross-page headline, "Women Monopolizing Fairmont Barber Shops! League of Long-Haired Men Proposed as Protest Against Bobbed Hair Craze." In this number the readers began voting for their favorite star, and the "Virginia Verses" began coming in strong. There also was a rotogravure supplement on "The Covered Wagon." Furthermore, "Uncle John" invited readers to confide their troubles to him, one responding with a query whether he, a man of 51 years, should marry a girl of 22. There are other queries which are obviously legitimate.

The October issue featured a letter from Colleen Moore to a local boy, inclosing an autographed photograph. This naturally added to the prestige of Movie News. The bobbed hair argument, having served as a wonderful attention-getter, was dropped. The other departments continue to thrive.

In the November number we find, "Will Hays Boosts the Virginia Theatre; Thanks Russell Linn For Co-operation in Effort to Encourage Better Films," "Dandy Christmas Gift Is Coupon Book," "A Good Theatre Means Much to a City" and "Price Concession of the Virginia Praised," this last being praise from a newspaper editorial writer because the Virginia maintained the usual prices while presenting super-features. Both "Virginia Verses" and the voting contest prospered exceedingly, while "Uncle John" disappeared. A photograph of Colleen Moore with a copy of Movie News was featured, together with a letter from her.

E. E. MEREDITH

The December issue really epitomized the enterprise of Movie News. In this we find "Doug Fairbanks Headliner of Income Tax List" and a list of the taxes paid by sixty big theatrical people. Thomas H. Ince's death was reported with a brief history of his career, and there was a follow-up story on how "The Covered Wagon" was awarded a medal by Photoplay Magazine, designed to convince patrons that the Virginia shows the best pictures. There also was a two-column cut, six and a half inches deep, of the front page of the Fairmont Free Press, issue of October 23, 1902, stirring reminiscenses with the caption, "Do You Remember When?" The November departments were continued.

Now we come to the December 25 special issue, the last at hand. This featured, "Second Anniversary Popular Virginia Theatre." The shorter news items, which had been exceptionally well selected in all the issues, in this it dealt with Gene Stratton Porter's death, Charlie Chaplin's marriage, etc. A new surprise was evolved in "Real Photographs of Movie Stars Obtainable Now at Quality Shop or From Movie News at 10 Cents Each." The "Do You Remember" series was a facsimile of an 1897 issue of the Fairmont Republican, accompanied by such "Do You Remember" items as, "When Grandma smoked a pipe," "When the men wore ear muffs in the winter," etc. The voting contest showed Harold Lloyd leading, with Milton Sills and Colleen Moore second and third, respectively.

This, then, gives you an idea of how Linn and Meredith have put over Movie News. But no word description of this sort can adequately present the appeal of the paper to the Virginia's clientele, and that is the why and wherefore of the accompanying illustration. This will show just how

(Continued on page 434)

Opening One Theatre, Cooneys Plan Another in Chicago—Trade Active

National Theatres Corp. Opens New 3500-Seat Capitol; Plan Another Big House—Live News of Other Building Enterprises

BACK in 1921 two brothers, J. J. Cooney and B. J. Cooney decided there was an opportunity on Chicago's south side for another moving picture theatre. They opened the Chatham Theatre at 75th street and Cottage Grove avenue and this house was successful from the start, so they added the Hamilton theatre at 71st and Paxton to their circuit and began the building of the Cooney circuit of moving picture theatres. Three years later they added the big Stratford Theatre at 63d and Halsted to their chain and by giving their patrons first class movies as well as the best of musical programs, further established their prestige as wideawake moving picture exhibitors.

On the night of January 19th they opened the magnificent Capitol Theatre of 3,500 seats at Halsted and 79th street to the moving picture public of the south side and staged an elaborate stage show titled the "Birth of a New Theatre" that was a masterpiece.

A cast of fifty were used in the big spectacle and House Peters in "The Tornado" was the opening picture that showed to packed houses at all three of the opening shows. The managing director of the Capitol Theatre is Francis A. Mangan, formerly with Victor Herbert; Albert E. Short is musical director, formerly with the Balaban & Katz circuit, and Harry A. Turrell, formerly of the Tivoli Theatre, is house manager. Ambrose Larsen presided at the Wurlitzer console and the Capitol Grand Orchestra under the baton of Albert E. Short gave a wonderful performance. The officers of the National Theatres Corporation, owners of the new theatre, are J. J. Cooney, president; B. J. Cooney, secretary-treasurer, and Clement Mahon, vice-president.

The company is having plans prepared for another fine house of 2,200 seats to be erected at 71st and Stony Island avenue and work will be started soon on the Avalon Theatre, by which name the house will be known.

Lubliner & Trinz have leased the Grove Theatre to be included in the business block now under construction at the southwest corner of 76th and Cottage Grove. The term is fifteen years but the rental has not been disclosed. James J. Redding & Co. state the building will be completed about January 1, 1926. The property is owned by the Beacon Theatres Corporation. Shapker, Stuart & Co. and Bristol & Co. have underwritten a $475,000 bond issue.

Two new movie theatres with an aggregate cost of more than $2,000,000 are planned for early construction, one for the north and one for the south side. The north shore project, which will cost about $1,500,000, will be built on Sheridan road near Devon avenue by Marks Brothers Theatres, Inc. It will be a three-story brick and terra cotta structure containing stores and offices in addition to the theatre. Levy & Klein are the architects. The south side project will be built at the southwest corner of Archer avenue and 35th street by the Ambassador Building Corporation. It will contain eleven stores, a 2,000-seat theatre and a number of apartments. Neil J. Ruppert is the architect. Lewis L. Harris, Carl E. Meeks and I. Fox are incorporators of the new project. It will cost $650,000.

The Orpheum Circuit at the meeting of the directors last week increased the dividend on the common stock of the company from 12½ cents to 15 cents monthly and declared three months' dividend in advance covering February, March and April, to stock of record on the 20th of the month preceding.

The Journal of Commerce reports the 1,500-seat theatre, offices and stores at the southwest corner of Roosevelt and Western have been transferred from Isador Shorr and Albert Ellis to Dr. J. M. Abelio and Nathan Lavin for $50,000, subject to $35,000. M. Barancik and M. M. Grossman were attorneys and the Ellis Realty Company was broker in the sale.

The new State Theatre building that is going up for the Lubliner & Trinz circuit at 5814 to 5834 West Madison street is being financed by the sale of $350,000 worth of 6½ per cent bonds by the State Bank of Chicago, according to their announcement. They say the site is 225 by 140 feet and the building will be two stories, of brick and stone construction. The theatre will seat 2,000 and be the last word in modern construction. The house will be operated by the Oak Park Theatre Corporation, of which Harry M. Lubliner is president and Joseph Trinz secretary..

Paul E. Niles, well known south side realtor, has acquired a site at the southwest corner of Cornell and 53rd street and plans to build a 2,500-seat movie house from plans by C. W. and George L. Rapp, and a sixteen-story hotel. It is reported that he paid $277,000 for the site.

The 2,200-seat Beacon Theatre that is being erected at 79th and Cottage Grove avenue has been leased by the Lubliner & Trinz circuit for fifteen years at an average rental of $42,000, or a term rental of $630,000. Leo Spitz handled the legal details for the Lubliner & Trinz circuit.

The 1,400-seat Adelphi Theatre building, formerly part of the Ascher circuit, located at Clark and Estes streets in Rogers Park, and at present under the management of Newell & Retchin, has been sold by Charles Levy to I. Lipcowitz. The building has four stores and a bowling alley besides the theatre. The theatre will continue under the present management, as they have a lease on the structure.

This Week!

Turn to Pages 451 to 466.

Last week we promised you a complete press book in one issue of our paper.

Sixteen pages of this issue are devoted to the presentation of a press book on "The Fighting Ranger," Universal's adventure picture in fifteen episodes.

Into the making of this special feature there has gone a maximum of thought, based on years of experience by trained men who have followed showmanship through the years. Some recognized helps will be found, together with new material—all in all, well worthy of deep study by every theatre owner who feels himself showman enough to "play up" his booking.

We suggested, last week: Give a thought to the GOOD serial!

Study each one of the sixteen pages (beginning with Page 451), and try to find some GOOD reason for sidestepping a booking on "The Fighting Ranger."

—R. E. W.

Paramount Now Has 46 Foreign Units

The opening of three new European exchanges for the distribution of Paramount Pictures is announced this week by E. E. Shauer, director of the foreign department of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation. These new offices will be located at Athens, Greece; Sofia, Bulgaria; and Constantinople, Turkey; and will be in operation within sixty days with S. T. Stephens as manager.

The new offices, which will be under the jurisdiction of John C. Graham of London, general European representative of Famous Players-Lasky, increase the number of Paramount exchanges throughout the world to forty-five, not including which Paramount Pictures are distributed in a number of countries.

Railway Express Distribution Plan Now Under Producers' Consideration

New Organization to Begin Operations When Four Companies Sign Up—No Provision For the State-Right Exchanges

By SUMNER SMITH

THE Railway Express Film Transport Company, Inc., organized to greatly reduce distribution costs within the motion picture industry, announces that it is prepared to begin operations when four national distributing companies sign with it. These contracts would run for a period of five years. No statement or provision is made for the new Railway Express to handle individual state-right exchanges in specific territories, and it would appear that they are ruled out.

The only intimation that any producer has already been lined up is contained in a letter by Robert E. M. Cowie, chairman of the board of directors addressed to producers and distributors. This states that "several producers have already signified their desire to have their distribution conducted by this method." At the present time "several" would include all the national distributors functioning.

The expense of operation is to be divided on a "per print" basis, which means that the distributor of short reels will be taxed the same amount on each subject as the distributor of features.

The following are the officers and directors of the Railway Express:

Chairman of the board of directors, R. E. M. Cowie; president, Walter W. Irwin; treasurer, John W. Newlean; controller and secretary, Ralph Blaisdell; disbursing agent, American Express Company. Directors, Mr. Cowie, president of the American Railway Express Company; Mr. Newlean, vice-president and treasurer of the American Railway Express Company; Mr. Irwin, formerly general manager and treasurer, Vitagraph-Lubin-Selig-Essanay, Inc., and vice-president of Famous Players-Lasky Corporation; Mr. Blaisdell, formerly treasurer of the United States Railroad Administration at Washington, D. C.; A. D. Naylor, formerly superintendent of the American Railway Express Company and president of the Knickerbocker Cement Company.

Exhibitors who have consistently advocated cheaper rentals will be hugely interested in this revolutionary distribution experiment. According to Mr. Cowie, the Railway Express's plan "possesses neutrality and equality to the fullest extent." It establishes an economically sound foundation for the industry as a whole and thus enhances its financial standing and credit. It eliminates millions of dollars of waste through doing away with the multiplicity of film exchanges and their respective organizations. It entirely relieves all sales managers of non-productive duties and creates a degree of efficiency hitherto unknown. The business and contractual relations of sales organizations selling for various producers are not affected.

Producers and distributors who elect to use this medium will be called to a meeting within the near future for the signing of uniform contracts, the election of the producer members of the operating committee, which is to supervise operating expenses, and for the acquisition of the following information:

Whether the producers desire an exchange established at various exchange centers in addition to the exchange centers specified in the uniform contract and if so, where.

The exact geographical territory to be served by each exchange.

The average number of reels now carried by each producer in each of his present exchanges.

The location of such exchanges and the approximate territory which each is now serving.

An average inventory of advertising accessories carried by each producer in each of its present exchanges.

The operating committee will consist of eight members annually appointed by the board of directors and four of them will be the nominees of producers utilizing the Railway Express's distribution.

The company's plan provides that the salaries of the corporate officers, the chairman of the board of directors and the general counsel shall not exceed $125,000. For each print shipped the charge will be a flat 10 cents. The producer also will be charged 3 per cent. of the gross revenue derived from all sales of his advertising accessories. It is announced that "this is not a plan in which the saving by centralized operation enures to the benefit of the company," but that "it goes where it belongs—to the producers."

It is estimated that the present salaries and traveling expenses of salesmen amount to about 30 per cent. of the total expense of an exchange system. These two items are practically all of the present expense which the producer would directly continue to bear under the new plan.

Film salesmen who want to know what it all means will be especially interested in the following:

"The plan will not affect any existing producing organization or sales force, except in respect of benefitting them. Those producers who employ their own sales force will continue to do so. Those sales forces which sell under contract for various producers will likewise continue as heretofore.

"As the producer will continue to conduct its own sales, it will have for each exchange territory a sales manager instead of the present branch manager. Such sales manager will not be as high a salaried man as the present branch manager for the reason that he will not have to be a combination executive and salesman. He will merely be a chief salesman with the title of sales manager."

The statement stresses the allegation that through employment of the new distribution plan the companies can free themselves from embarrassing financial obligations, "for whenever they get into financial difficulties they can stop the tremendous production requirements until their existing product has had a chance to work, and thus refill the treasury through the fact that all the rest of the industry will keep down their distribution cost. There has never been any recognized producing company in financial trouble, which if it had had a practical and cheap way of getting the money out of its pictures already produced, could not have paid its creditors in full and had left a large balance for its stockholders or with which to continue to produce."

The final argument asserts that by its ability to temporarily curtail production a company may reduce production cost by "correcting, to some extent, the much talked of evil of the fabulous salaries of stars and directors." The point is made that competition for the stars will not be so "ruthless" and that their salaries will "drop to a somewhat more reasonable figure."

Bandits Rob Tiffin

The Tiffin Theatre in Chicago lost $3,400 on January 20 in a daring robbery cleverly executed by six bandits.

They entered the theatre unnoticed and lined up eight employes at the point of the gun, then locking them in the office.

Vincent Lynch, owner of the Tiffin, was forced to open the safe and hand over the money.

The bandits escaped in an automobile and thus far the police have no clue as to their identity.

A LOS ANGELES ROBBERY

The second theatrical hold-up within a week on Broadway, Los Angeles, with the streets lined with people took place this week when Tally's Broadway Theatre, now belonging to the West coast chain, was robbed. The robbery took place shortly after 9 o'clock in the evening.

W. M. Slater, assistant manager, had just taken $50 from the cashier and went to his office upstairs in the theatre. As he sat down at his desk he was confronted by a bandit who thrust a pistol in his face and told him to open the safe. The hold-up man was unmasked and made no attempt to conceal his features.

Slater, although he knew the combination, told the robber that he was unable to open the safe. The bandit then grabbed the $50, which was in small change, and fled from the building.

Condemn Pictures

Apparently there is no closed season on the "movies." Reformers and educators are free to go gunning for them whenever the spirit moves. It did this past week.

Trailing in the wake of the New York censors' attack came the county judges in Brooklyn, who obtained generous newspaper space by condemning motion pictures as crime-breeding while commenting on the report of criminal cases in Kings County for 1924 and the censors' report. The judges declared that the trouble extended beyond the screen to the stage in New York City, which they said outrivaled that of Paris for indecency.

"Most of the moving pictures are salacious and vicious," said County Judge George W. Martin. "The modern picture is sensual," was the opinion of County Judge Franklyn Taylor. County Judge Alonzo G. McLaughlin said that most modern pictures should never be seen by children. He did not think that the remedy lay in censorship.

2500 Film Folk Make Merry at Brilliant T. O. C. C. Ball

By TOM WALLER

"BILL" BRANDT, overseer of the entertainment, tells us that exactly 2,500 persons—and no fraction thereof—were admitted past the "gate" into the spacious Astor ballroom where the T. O. C. C. held its annual frolic on the night of January 17. At midnight, however, it seemed to us that the number present would be sufficient to populate a third class city. And there were almost as many on the outside trying to look in. It is safe to say that not one lining the Astor lobbies or the White Way got more than a peep into the place even after the moon modestly retired and the sun commenced its brazen ascent.

Needless to talk about success after such statistics on attendance. The affair was one of the most brilliant of the many brilliant of its kind the Theatre Owners Chamber of Commerce has tendered the industry. Charley O'Reilly, Sam Moross and all the "boys" of the chamber were out in full regalia and saw to it that each and every one had the maximum of fun, food and frivolity.

The musicians tuned up their instruments about ten o'clock, when dancers swayed forth in plentiful numbers. There were some magnificent spotlight effects. These were provided by a huge chrystal which filled the ballroom one moment with vividly hued butterflies and the next with delicately tinted roses and orchids. In the midst of one of these special numbers thousands of inflated toy balloons were wafted over the heads of the dancers. As they descended they were grabbed by eager hands which introduced the game of seeing how many one could "bust."

The highlight of the event was the crowning of Tom Meighan and Bebe Daniels as the king and queen, respectively, of the carnival. Senator James J. Walker did the "crowning" on a platform especially erected for the occasion which led up to an elaborate throne and a background of silver sheeting.

"Billy" Brandt used this platform later on to introduce the celebrities, among whom were Dorothy Mackaill, Richard Barthelmess and Mary Hay, Lillian Rich, Marguerite de la Motte, Kenneth Harlan and Marie Prevost (who postponed her departure for the Coast to attend the affair), Ann Pennington, Virginia Lee Corbin, Maurice Costello, Richard Dix, Viola Dana, Alice Lake, Aileen Pringle, Cecil B. DeMille and Adolph Menjou.

The king and queen were recipients of silver loving cups, presented to them by the Duncan Sisters from the "Topsy and Eva" show. Supper was served shortly after midnight, when additional entertainment was enjoyed. Motion pictures of the dancing were taken earlier in the evening and developed, returned and projected before the closing.

Harry O. Schwalbe Resigns As Secretary of First National

IN order that he may devote more time to his personal business interests and private affairs, H. O. Schwalbe, secretary and treasurer of First National Pictures, Inc., has tendered his resignation to take effect at the end of the fiscal year, April, 1925. Mr. Schwalbe's resignation has been accepted with the deepest regret by President Robert Lieber.

Under the new arrangements, Samuel Spring, head attorney for First National Pictures, has been elected assistant secretary, and in that capacity, in co-operation with General Manager Richard A. Rowland, will take over many of the duties heretofore performed by Mr. Schwalbe.

Following is Mr. Schwalbe's letter of resignation, and Mr. Lieber's reply. Mr. Lieber says that he will take occasion, before long, to express in his own way his appreciation of Mr. Schwalbe's long and faithful services to the organization:

January 15, 1925.

My Dear Bob:

It is with the deepest regret that I herewith tender my resignation, becoming effective at the next annual meeting. In writing this letter, severing my connections with the company, I am prompted by the thought that the affairs of First National are now in such shape that you will readily pardon me for feeling that I can now properly devote my entire time to looking after my personal affairs, that were more or less neglected during my seven years of service with the company.

A business doesn't happen—it is made. A great measure of the success of the company is due primarily to the many excellent suggestions made by the original franchise holders to the officers of the company. Such advice has always been sought and freely given, based on the business experiences of the various franchise holders unselfishly and without reserve.

In tendering this letter it is only just that acknowledgment be given to every department in the home office, for the constructive work has fully kept pace with the company's activities and expansion.

My personal friendly relations with you and each individual franchise holder require no comment from me, because you all know how pleasant they are and always have been. I am certain that the mutual friendships so established between us will be permanent and lasting.

In conclusion, please bear in mind that the distance as measured by time from our home to New York is only two hours, and that my time is unreservedly placed at the disposal of the company, its officers and department heads, for such aid as I may be able to render, until the time comes that brings home the conviction that this is no longer necessary. Under your guidance and care a greater future for First National seems assured.

Sincerely yours,
(Signed) H. O. SCHWALBE,
Secretary-Treasurer.

January 15, 1925.

My Dear Harry:

It is with the sincerest regret that I have your letter of resignation, which becomes effective with the date of our next annual meeting.

It has been through all of these years that we have worked together with the assistance which you mention in your communication, for the benefit of First National, and yet I have full appreciation of the reasons which you have given in your communication for your action and you have brought them to my attention so often that I feel that I have not the right to insist that you further sacrifice your time, and consequently I am obliged to meet with your wishes, and accept the resignation which you have tendered.

Above all this, I appreciate the kindly expressions of friendship which you have given, and you know full well that these friendships exist between us. And also do I appreciate the very generous offer to help us in the further guidance of this company, and I know that I shall often have occasion to call on you.

Sincerely yours,
(Signed) ROBERT LIEBER,
President.

MUSIC GALORE FOR A. M. P. A. FETE

Music of the best will not be lacking at the Naked Truth Dinner of the Associated Motion Picture Advertisers to be held at the Hotel Astor on Saturday evening, February 7. The combined orchestra of the Rivoli, Rialto and Criterion theatres, numbering 159 musicians, conducted by Hugo Riesenfeld in person, will supply the music during the dinner. A fourth famous orchestra will supply the dance music following the dinner and the other entertainment features. This is the Nassau Country Club Orchestra.

De Mille's Plans

Late this week the trade was discussing rumors that Cecil De Mille, who resigned from Famous Players-Lasky, will join the production staff of the Producers Distributing Corporation and take a large financial interest in that concern.

No verification could be obtained from Producers Distributing Corporation and it is impossible to get in touch with De Mille, his secretary constantly reporting that his time is wholly taken up by conferences with his lawyers.

All Legal Censorship Condemned in Better Films Committee Resolution

Minnesota Planning Drastic Laws

Curtailment of motion picture theatre passes among the members of the Minnesota Legislature has aroused the ire of the lawmakers and legislation aimed at motion picture houses is being concocted.

State legislators received tickets a few days ago. Senators scorned to accept them and members of the House declared they had been insulted, belittled and shorn of dignity, Moving Picture World's Minneapolis correspondent also advises.

As a result legislation aimed at the theatres is being drawn up. One bill, making it a misdemeanor for a theatre to oversell the seating capacity of a house and to keep a line waiting, was filed last Friday, it is said. Other bills being drawn up call for rigid censorship, Sunday closing and the stationing of firemen in every theatre for emergency.

M. P. T. O. of Canada Now Affiliated with Hays Organization

The present year has been a noteworthy development with the Motion Picture Distributors Association of Canada in that the Canadian organization is now directly affiliated with the Will Hays organization in the United States. Previously the Dominion association conducted its own activities in its own sphere without particular reference or co-operation from any similar body. It now comes directly under the New York office of the Motion Picture Producers Association.

Canadian headquarters have been opened in the Lumsden Building, Toronto, and Col. John A. Cooper of Toronto is the Canadian secretary of the organization. Membership in the Motion Picture Distributors Association is limited to those exchanges which hold connection with producing or distributing companies in the United States, it is stated.

Practically all of the leading moving picture distributors of the Dominion, having branch offices from Coast to Coast, are active members of the Motion Picture Distributors Association of Canada. These include Canadian Universal Films, Limited, Famous-Lasky Film Service, Limited, Fox Film Corporation, Associated First National, Regal Films, Limited, Canadian Educational Films, Limited, Producers Distributing Corporation, Film Booking Offices, United Artists Corporation, and others.

Draft Analyzes Film Restriction, Decrying it as Evil—Endorsed by Over 1000—De Mille Says Young Directors Will Prevail

By TOM WALLER

AT the largest attended and most enthusiastic conference in the history of its existence, the National Committee for Better Films, affiliated with the National Board of Review of Motion Pictures, drafted and unanimously adopted a resolution opposing all legal censorship of motion pictures. The resolution, urging the New York Legislature to support Governor Smith in his anti-censorship stand and condemning the Upshaw Bill as an "unwise and reactionary measure," is one of the most vehement expressions against film restriction which has ever been promoted by any organization. The full text of this document appears at the close of this story.

Expressions of the keenest optimism for the future of the industry might be incorporated into the keynote of most of the messages of the speakers, many of them brilliant in the collegiate and philanthropic world and others representative of authoritative positions in filmdom.

The speakers at the luncheon on January 17, which terminated the three-day conference at the Waldorf-Astoria, New York City, included: Everett Dean Martin, of Cooper-Union Institute; Samuel Rothafel, Capitol Theatre; Dr. James J. Walsh, Cathedral College; Director William DeMille; Robert Sherwood, critic; M. J. O'Toole, president of the M. P. T. O. A.; Irwin Wheeler, theatre owner of Rye, N. Y., and New Canaan, Conn.; Joseph Dannenberg, Film Daily editor; Christopher Morley, writer.

Among the honor guests seated at the speakers' table were: Betty Bronson, Johnnie Walker, Col. Jason Joy; also representatives of the mayors of Boston, Providence, Milwaukee and Birmingham. In the neighborhood of 1,000 persons or over were present.

"Quantity of production" and "silly censoriousness" are, in the estimation of Dr. Martin, two of the things which are most injurious to the welfare of the industry. The speaker said that a new and better spirit is invading the film world; that the public is becoming educated to want good film entertainment and that the producer does not now have to "talk down to the public so much."

Professor Walsh, admitting that he rarely attended the "movies," said, however, that he could not help but feel that "pictures are here to stay." In condemning censorship he stated that it may be due to a certain characteristic possessed by some who "like to hold on to people making a lot of money."

As an instance why censors should become extinct and why producers should be exacting in their aim to present good film entertainment, Professor Walsh presented some figures. Close to 1,000,000 persons each year visit New York's Metropolitan Museum and close to 1,000,000 persons daily attend the film theatres throughout the country, he declared.

The artistic pays better than the inartistic, but the public objects to the substitution of art for entertainment. In making this statement William DeMille practically gave the reason for the figures presented by the preceding speaker.

"The worst pictures I have ever made have been made while I was trying to keep an eye on the box office," was this well known director's assertion. He quickly added that some of his greatest successes were accomplished when the "gate" was not part of his vision for a goal. If a motion picture producer in making a production is prompted by his soul and not by the box office he stands a better chance of financial success, the speaker said.

As to the outcome of pictures, most producers expect 100 per cent triumph, despite the fact that the industry is in its infancy, when compared with other arts, DeMille said. The number of successful pictures is conspicuously large when compared to achievements in other and older fields of art. In substantiation of his point DeMille said that during a year about four per cent of the novels turned out meet with financial recognition, with the same percentage for paintings and musical compositions. As to plays for the speaking stage, DeMille said that the total of the successes in a year does not exceed ten per cent.

Younger directors are going to supplant many of the older directors within the next five or six years, DeMille prophesied. This younger group is already under way and at the present is most promising, he maintained. Some of them today, he declared, are already doing better work than a few of the star directors. He urged his audience to familiarize its public with the names and works of directors and to watch for the fulfillment of his prediction. He also said that the committee could aid the film industry by prevailing upon the exhibitor not to project pictures so rapidly.

There is no money in salacious pictures, he declared. The cleanest pictures, artistically and entertainingly presented, pay best on the screen.

"The censor of today, if he is allowed to, will ruin the picture of tomorrow. Censorship fails because it considers only one thing. The law is sufficient."

"Hokum" and pictures was Dannenberg's

(Continued on following page)

Ascher Bros. Form New Corporation

The Ascher brothers have formed a new theatre corporation, according to advices received from Chicago this week. It is reported that this unit may supercede their present company. The corporation offices are at 509 Wabash street and the incorporators include: Nat, Harry E. and Max Ascher, Gus M. Greenbaum, Ben J. Altheimer and Lewis P. Newhafer. The capital is listed as 1,000 shares of stock of no par value.

Censorship Condemned

(Continued from preceding page)

topic. His humorous vein was appreciated, as was attested by the number of "laughs" many of his comments provoked. He did not hesitate to name names and cite pictures.

Robert Sherwood, critic for Life, maintained that the salvation of the picture lies in the development of the original story, forgetting most of the exaggerated embellishments.

"Roxy," of Capitol and radio fame, said that weekly he receives as many as 30,000 letters from fans.

"The audience of today is not the audience of yesterday," he declared. "There isn't a thing, no matter how subtle, that they won't get. The pictures have been getting better but I should like to see directors display a little more imagination, more subtlety, and get away from the obvious, giving treatment in a more intelligent manner."

Rothafel an Optimist

Rothafel hailed himself as an optimist. Decent pictures prevail by all means over the others, he maintained. The exhibitor, he said, is making every effort to get ahead and the elimination of censorship, in his belief, is not far off.

M. J. O'Toole declared censorship to be dangerous and opposed to the Constitution. As to censorship and the films he declared: "There are some Governors going wrong. Do we want a censorship for Governors? There are some Congressmen going wrong, according to the daily press. Do we want a censor board for Congress?"

Irwin Wheeler attacked block booking and told of the hardships it wreaks upon smaller exhibitors. He said that in order to get "Peter Pan" it was necessary under that system to book about 39 other Paramount pictures. He mentioned several other pictures in this category. Wheeler, in answer to DeMille's assertion about projectionists excessively speeding up pictures, said that from his own experience motion picture machine operators out of town did not operate anywhere near as fast as those in the Capitol and Loew projection booths. With him it was not a matter of speed but of poor prints, he stated.

As to pictures and the type of story, Wheeler maintained that it was not so much the salacious as the fact that many pictures were not successes because they were "plain dull."

Earlier in the conference a plan for the establishment of motion picture study clubs throughout the country was adopted. These will study phases of the motion picture as laid down by the National Committee. They will praise good pictures and ignore the ones which they may consider objectionable.

The resolution opposing legal censorship of the motion picture and adopted by the committee is as follows:

Whereas, the question of legal censorship of motion pictures having been brought to the attention of the delegates, the nature of motion pictures having already been discussed by them, and methods approved which are compatible with American theories of democratic practice, and which look toward the attainment of the best in motion pictures, it is the sense of this Conference that legal censorship of motion pictures is both ineffectual and injurious, and therefore undesirable, for the following reasons:

(1) It is political in its nature and arises from the demand of the organized minority who are desirous of imposing their interpretation of motion picture values in the matters of morals and of good and evil, on the opinion of the vast majority.

(2) It presupposes that the American public are willing to patronize an entertainment which is vicious in its tendencies and likely to corrupt their morals—a state of mind in the individual American picture-goer that this Conference does not believe exists, unless one is ready to admit that the whole nation is already corrupt and decadent.

(3) It seeks to shift personal responsibility and the responsibility of parent toward child to the shoulders of politically appointed public guardians, who are no more likely to have special qualifications for the exercise of such guardianship than the ordinarily intelligent man or woman; and such shifting of moral responsibility, this Conference believes, makes for slovenly spiritual habits both in the individual and in the nation.

(4) It is a makeshift at best, in nowise securing the end sought (that of improving motion pictures), and tending psychologically to invent the alleged reason for its existence, as well as to perpetuate as an alleged necessity what is in reality a politically paying institution—legal censorship.

Not for the Immature

(5) It has never taken into consideration the fact that the motion picture is primarily not an entertainment for children, but that at its best it is directed at an adult audience and that it must be recognized and supported as a form of expression for mature minds if it is to fill its possibilities both as an art and as an educator; at the same time, in its aim to make all pictures harmless for children, legal censorship has failed to provide alike for any recognition of those pictures suitable to young people and those pictures suitable to adults; again, because of the small fraction of the public who are weakminded or vicious it would distort or mutilate a great popular form of expression which can safely be left to the great majority of virile, wholesome people, young and old, of normal reactions; and in the opinion of this Conference it is spiritually weakening to the healthy majority to attempt to protect them by concealment of those things which are deleterious only to society's sick few.

(6) It has often resulted in the mangling or destruction of that which is essentially wholesome rather than unwholesome, because it has failed consistently to grasp the real causes of psychological reaction to what the eye sees, and has often confused what may be a stimulus to good with what may be a stimulus to bad—in other words, it has failed, and always will fail, since it is whimsical rather than thoughtful and scientific, to apprehend the psychological laws of suggestion.

(7) It has gone on the assumption—largely because the very justification of legal censorship rests on that assumption—that there is continuously running through motion pictures an element of the vicious, whereas in the opinion of groups who have studied the great proportion of motion pictures over a long period of time, this element can be said to exist but sporadically and can be discovered as in nowise inherent in the medium itself.

(8) It has failed to recognize, and dare not recognize, because it is based on the theory that there are final, unchanging universal standards of good and evil and of good and evil influences, that fundamental in the whole question of the motion picture is a legitimate and inevitable difference of opinion between sections, communities, groups and individuals of equal intelligence and moral integrity; and has sought to define, often with lamentable discrepancy in the actions of different legal censorship boards upon the same given picture, interpretations and opinions to apply arbitrarily to all minds and all tastes—interpretations and opinions that are nothing but the individual pronouncements of the censors themselves, arising out of their own feelings and notions.

(9) It has tended, through fear, on the part of screen writers, artists and creators, of its arbitrary dictums and misconceptions, to pervert rather than to benefit the nature of the motion picture; it has created a state of mind in these individuals that has often resulted in the befuddling and corruption in narration on the screen of what has gone not only unchallenged but appeared in literature and on the stage; it has been a powerful aid in the distortion of even the best literature and drama transferred to the screen and in the distortion of life that legitimately has a place on the screen, and should have a place there, if motion pictures are to become an art, albeit a popular one; it has thus been a partner in responsibility for much that is false, shoddy and insincere in motion pictures, and has been a prominent factor in the discouragement of such authors and artists as are necessary to bring to the motion picture the truth and beauty of great art.

Defeats Own Plan

(10) Legal censorship, for the above reasons, may be said to have defeated the very thing that, in the alleged circumstances, it was supposed to do (improve the motion picture); it has destroyed and not remedied; it has won neither the support nor the confidence of the masses nor of the great proportion of thoughtful people; it has been defeated at the polls when the question has been put to the test; it strikes at the common decency of the individual; it spurns the intelligence; it corrupts the imagination; it is a tool to prejudice and to political contrivance; it can never be made different, because the fallacy is inherent in the institution.

With all of the above in mind, it is the sense of this Conference, composed of private disinterested citizens, most of whom have been active in studying the motion picture over a long period of time and in dealing with the social problems it has raised in their several communities, and who at present have at heart the best interests of the several groups and communities they represent, and are engaged in a constructive and unified effort to procure for the motion picture screen all that is wholesome and best and most desirable for the American people, that the foregoing be set forth as evincing this Conference's convictions in the matter; therefore

Be It Resolved, that the members of the Legislature of the State of New York be petitioned to support the Governor of that state in his effort to repeal the existing New York State censorship of motion pictures law; and that this Conference go on record as opposing Federal Bill No. 6821, H. R., known as the Upshaw bill, which seeks to set up a Federal censorship of motion pictures, as being an unwise and reactionary measure, tending to perpetuate in national legislation those undesirable features found in existing state censorship laws, and as such incompatible alike with American institutions and with intelligent and progressive forces now at work throughout the country to develop the best in motion pictures; and

Be It Further Resolved, that a copy of this resolution be sent to the Governor and the members of the Legislature of the State of New York, and to the members of the House of Representatives in the National Congress; and this the secretary of this Conference is hereby instructed to do.

HARTFORD THEATRE BURNS

Fire destroyed the Lyric Theatre in Hartford, Conn., causing a loss of approximately $75,000. The cause of the destructive blaze, which occurred early in the morning, is unknown.

Cole Backed by Texas M. P. T. O. in Non-Theatrical-Distributor War

Visual Education

Fifty miles of motion picture films are being sent out from Raleigh weekly by the Visual Education Department of the North Carolina Department of Public Schools to the 75 schools in the state which are equipped with motion picture machines, according to James P. Williamson, director of this division.

"These films," said Mr. Williamson, "are sent free of all charges except transportation. They include various subjects, some of them purely educational and others designed to amuse. Each film is thoroughly censored before being sent out. I believe in good, wholesome motion pictures.

"These pictures go larely to the rural districts where there are no motion picture shows and reach people who could not otherwise enjoy motion picture entertainment. We buy many films already produced and make many films ourselves. We do not consider our work any opposition whatever to legitimate picture theatres."

Nothing "Blue" for Missouri and Kansas

The legislative guns in Missouri and Kansas have opened and exhibitors are marking time under the direction of the M. P. T. O. Kansas and Missouri. Thus far nothing in the form of radical measures has made its appearance. But that did not keep President R. R. Biechele, C. E. Cook, business manager, and various other officials of the organization from being on the scene of the inauguration of Governor Ben S. Paulen of Kansas at Topeka, Kas., this week.

It was Governor Paulen who received staunch support from the screens of the M. P. T. O. K. and M. during his campaign and it was he who was one of the principal speakers at the last exhibitors' convention. Therefore, the early mission of Mr. Biechele and his associates in Topeka was one of pure friendship.

As Missouri exhibitors are represented in the state legislature, little fear of blue laws exists in the "Show Me" state.

FAIR SUSPECTS UNDER ARREST

Kansas City police believe they have under arrest four men who participated in the recent $15,000 hold-up of the Newman Theatre. They are Tony Gulotta, Manuel Toyer, Charles School and William Johnson. All are youths. Gulotta was found, police say, in possession of a revolver taken from a detective, who was serving as a bodyguard for Gus Eyssel, treasurer of the theatre, when the hold-up occurred at the door of the bank to which the money was being transferred.

MANAGER BOWES IS MAJOR

Edward Bowes, managing director of the Capitol Theatre, New York City, has been appointed a major in the officers Reserve Corps of the United States Army. His work will consist of advice as a specialist in the new department of entertainment and motion pictures which is to be organized.

Allege Paramount Booked to Schools Injuring Exhibitor—Owners Asked Not to Discuss Grievance Until Properly Adjusted

IN the language of its secretary, the M. P. T. O. of Texas is going to "carry this fight on until proper adjustments have been made." Rumblings and threats of such agitation have emanated from other exhibitor organizations but the out in the open culmination of these is first officially recorded in Texas. It has to do with a distributor alleged to have been making non-theatrical bookings to the injury of several Lone Star state theatre owners. The charge is preferred against Famous Players-Lasky, according to letters received by Moving Picture World this week from Secretary H. G. McNeese of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of Texas.

Efforts to learn whether the adjustment was being effected through the medium of the Hays office resulted in word that Charles Pettijohn and Mr. Wilkinson of the legal staff would be out of town for the week.

Two letters bearing the signature of H. A. Cole, president of the Texas organization, are in the hands of its members. They are dated December 13, 1924, and January 8, 1925, respectively. The first reads:

"You will remember that at the convention held in Dallas last May a resolution was adopted providing that whenever any distributor makes non-theatrical bookings to the injury of an exhibitor, the M. P. T. O. will thereafter decline to request any of its members to sit on any board of arbitration discussing any grievance of such distributor.

"Recently the Famous Players-Lasky, distributors of Paramount pictures, demanded high rental payment from P. Q. Rockett of the Waxahachie Amusement Company, Waxahachie, Texas, for 'The Covered Wagon,' and also with blocks of pictures tied on. Mr. Rockett declined to pay the amount demanded in connection with the block buy, and the distributor thereupon sold the picture to the city schools.

"In accordance with the resolution, I take this opportunity to inform you that the M. P. T. O. of Texas, Inc., will not request any member to sit upon a board of arbitration where the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation is concerned."

The second communication submitted to his following by President Cole refers to the above letter and also states:

"The action of the president was necessarily taken on his own responsibility and without consultation with the directors and other members of the association. As soon as practicable a meeting was called of the directors and a number of exhibitors and the meeting was held in Dallas December 22, at which about twenty-five were present.

"The action taken by the president was unanimously and enthusiastically endorsed at that meeting. Other similar cases, notably one at Greenville, were presented to the board, such situations involving the Famous Players-Lasky.

"This information is passed along to you in order that you may be informed as to the present status of the affair. The M. P. T. O. makes no recommendations and there has been no agreement to take any action; but each exhibitor will of course be entirely at liberty to consider the unfairness and unfriendliness of the Famous Players-Lasky, in so far as he may wish to do so."

Walker Declines and Independents Seek Another for Post

Senator James J. Walker will not head the I. M. P. P. D. A., the association this week made known in a statement. In part this states:

"Senator Walker made it clear that his present duties as the minority leader of the Senate of the State of N. Y. made it impossible to accept any position or duties at this time, that he was confining his every moment and every activity to his legislative duties.

"Meanwhile, fully conscious of the need for immediate action, a committee was appointed consisting of Messrs. Oscar A. Price, Whitman Bennett, W. Ray Johnston, Joe Brandt and Dr. W. E. Shallenberger, to interview men of national prominence and high attainments with respect to the proposed leadership, who might now be able to devote their entire time to the work of this organization."

Need of Mutuality Is Stressed by O'Toole

That most American communities suffer a tremendous loss in money, time, energy and opportunity because of a lack of mutuality, understanding and cooperation and that these destructive phases are easily avoided was the message National President M. J. O'Toole, of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America, delivered to the members of the Gloucester, N. J., Chamber of Commerce.

O'Toole was one of the speakers of the annual banquet of the Chamber of Commerce and the special guest of Benjamin Shindler, a theatre owner of Camden and a member of the Board of Directors of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of New Jersey.

In his address O'Toole pleaded for a more general utilization of the newspaper, the pulpit, motion picture theatre screen and other publicity elements for the advancement of the community.

Drastic "Blue" Measure Now Before Indiana Legislature

SUNDAYS in Indiana would be "bluer" than indigo under the provisions of a bill that has been introduced in the lower house of the Indiana general assembly by William H. Kissinger, of Columbia City, representative from Allen and Whitley counties, on behalf of a group of reformers heralded as the Lord's Day Alliance. The measure is now in the hands of the house public morals committee.

According to Representative Kissinger, the bill was handed to him by "the Reverend Johnson," of Ft. Wayne, who is head of the Lord's Day Alliance in Indiana. This is the same Thomas J. Johnson who has sponsored other "blue law" measures in previous sessions of the legislature. He registered this week as a lobbyist for the organization which he says he represents.

The bill, which would repeal the present "blue law" statute, would make it "unlawful for any person to labor or employ any person to labor or to pursue any trade or secular business" on "the first day of the week, commonly called Sunday or the Lord's Day." It contains a provision that persons who recognize any other day as a day of rest shall not be held to have violated the provisions of the section "if they observe as a day of rest one day in each seven," and provided further "that works of necessity and of charity and religion" are expected under the terms of the bill.

Under the second section of the bill, it would be unlawful to keep open and use "for secular purposes" on this day "where a fee is charged directly or indirectly" theatres, moving picture shows, dance halls, saloons, bowling alleys, billiard parlors, poolrooms, soft drink establishments "or other places of public amusement or assembly."

Another section of the proposed law would prohibit any person or concern from compelling its or his employes to do any work of necessity or charity "except in household service" unless the person or concern within the following six days gives the employes a complete day of rest.

The amusement centers that are barred from being open on the day are declared by the bill to be public nuisances if they remain open and the operators would be guilty of a misdemeanor, for which the bill prescribes a penalty of not less than $100 and not more than $500 and imprisonment may be added from one to six months. It provides further that the building or establishment may be made subject to a lien for the payment of the fines and may be sold to pay them. No bond is required for the person who brings the nuisance proceedings, under which the place may be closed for a year. For any violation not specifically prescribed the bill makes the penalty from $5 to $50 for the first offense and from $25 to $500 for the second, to which may be added the imprisonment.

There was some talk following the introduction of the "blue Sunday" bill that the Ku Klux Klan forces, which have prepared a combined Sunday regulation and movie censorship bill, may not introduce their measure but may seek to have some of its features incorporated in the Kissinger bill while it is in the hands of the morals committee. It is considered quite likely that the bill as it now stands will be subject to several amendments by the morals committee before it is reported back to the house.

If the Kissinger bill, as it now stands, is passed by both houses and signed by the Governor, it would mean the closing of practically every form of business in the state on Sundays. It also would put a stop to Sunday baseball, which was legalized in Indiana by the legislature of 1909. William C. Smith, president of the Indianapolis baseball club of the American Association, says if the bill becomes a law Indianapolis will be without a ball team the coming season.

According to Johnson, the organization which is supporting the bill has been active in Indiana about three years. The national organization, he said, has been active for thirty-five years. Officers of the Indiana branch are the Rev. Jean Strachm, president; the Rev. C. O. Shirey, vice-president; the Rev. F. P. Overmire, secretary, and W. B. Gutelius, treasurer. All of the officers are Ft. Wayne men.

Johnson says one of the main purposes of the bill is to strengthen, broaden and put "teeth" in the present blue law statute. Under the existing law the maximum penalty is a fine of $10 and costs and there is no provision to close offending business houses as public nuisances. There are some places in the state, advocates of the new bill say, where theatre managers pay a $10 fine every Monday morning for violating the Sunday closing law. In this way, they say, the fine is in reality a license to violate the law and should be increased.

Mrs. David Ross, president of the Indiana Endorsers of Photoplays, has indicated that this organization will interest itself somewhat in the measure and will seek a conference on the subject with Representative Kissinger at an early date. Mrs. Ross did not explain just what attitude the organization would take but it is believed it will oppose the measure. The Indiana Endorsers have vigorously opposed moving picture censorship legislation.

As to Sad Endings

Happy endings in motion pictures will not necessarily be the rule ten years from now, according to Robert Keable, author of "Recompense," a sequel to his famous novel, "Simon Called Peter," which the Warner Bros. are producing for the screen. He is in New York for a short visit.

"While I appreciate the public demand at present for happy endings, and realize that producers of pictures must live up to that demand," said Mr. Keable, "I feel that the day will come when life can be shown on the screen as it really is."

Mr. Keable's comments came after he had looked over the stills of "Recompense," and learned that in the screen adaptation of his book, Peter marries Julie.

New Rules in Ohio

Revised regulations governing the use of films in churches, schools and other public places have been put into effect by Herman Witter, Ohio state director of industrial relations.

Pictures cannot be shown in any frame building, nor above the second floor of a fireproof building. Standard width films of a slow-burning type only must be used. Exhibit rooms must have two exits for each 400 spectators. Doors must open outward and never be locked during exhibitions.

Model Theatre Paper

(Continued from page 427)

neat and thoroughly attractive a publication Movie News it.

One thing more. Local newspapers not only tolerate Movie News, despite its advertising columns, but encourage it. Linn and Meredith have been careful not to tread on the editors' toes and have played fairly by giving the two newspapers prominence in the "Do You Remember?" department.

When a copy of Movie News found its way into Moving Picture World's office recently, we wrote Mr. Linn and asked a lot of questions. Among them was the query how it was that the newspapers didn't object to the advertisements. Well, Linn plays fair and they don't, that's all. And in comparison to what the ads might be, they are rather insignificant.

"The advertising does not more than pay for the editorial work on the paper," Mr. Linn wrote. "We have not tried to get advertising. We feel that space is worth too much to us. The charge is one dollar an inch."

On that basis the revenue for the December 26 issue was $37.50. The advertisements were from business colleges, restaurants, barber shops, optometrists, tailors, etc. But the ads have this definite value—they make Movie News look like a real newspaper; they are sort of the finishing touch to a newsy publication.

Selling Your Seats

Some of the stunts that sold Peter Pan.

Harry Storin advises insurance on hired perambulators.

Hyman shifts for Saturday for his opener at the Mark-Strand.

Built-up billboards interest Los Angeles.

Ties Dempsey series to Y. M. C. A.

Harmonica contest has great possibilities.

Here's a good stock shadow box.

Used strong man to pull for The Reckless Age.

Merton on horseback rides them in.

J. M. Edgar Hart pulls a Christmas niftie.

Presidents help sell a co-op page.

How Great Britain is advertising The Covered Wagon.

Good advertising examples on The Red Lily, The Narrow Street, The Tenth Woman, The Painted Lady, Sandra and The Only Woman.

Just a few pages further over you'll find these and many other spot cash ideas in Selling the Picture to the Public. Read them. Use them.

New York Censors Seek More Power; Would Charge "Good" Producer Less

Actors Well Behaved

Actors and actresses, motion picture and otherwise, were a mighty well behaved lot in New York State last year. In fact, they were far ahead of members of other professions. The annual report on crime, just submitted to the New York State Legislature, discloses that among the 8,514 persons convicted in courts of record during the year, there was just one solitary actress, just one chorus girl, and nine actors in place of fifteen who had featured the year before.

All in all, that's a pretty good record, especially when the report shows that 23 blacksmiths wandered forth from beneath the spreading chestnut tree and landed in the clutches of the law; that 145 cooks dished up the wrong sort of a mess, and that even two dentists had pulled something other than teeth.

The report shows that seven lawyers were not slick enough to keep out of trouble, and as for musicians, thirty played the wrong tune. Writers didn't fare so very well, two of their number being convicted, not including one reporter and one editor. But then one undertaker did no better, so why worry?

Worcester Reviewers May Have Pastor Sit on Board

An echo to the complaint of the exhibitors of Worcester, Mass., that censoring of their pictures should be made "more uniform," was that of the action of the Worcester Ministers' Union in electing a representative to serve with the Worcester Board of Motion Picture Review. The board of review, composed of 57 representatives from 19 welfare organizations of the city, has the power of banning pictures from the city's screens and recently decreed that "A Woman of Paris," one of the three best pictures of 1924, could not be exhibited in any Worcester theatre.

The Rev. Benjamin F. Wyland, pastor of the Union church, who was leader of the attack upon the reviewing board, was the minister chosen to join it without its knowledge. The board had not sought a member of the Ministers' Union to sit with it in judgment on the film features. At a meeting of the ministers' organization, the Rev. Mr. Wyland said that the censorship board was a close corporation and apparently did not want the aid of the clergymen.

Robert K. Shaw, president of the board of review, said that the board members probably would pass upon the matter of having a ministerial representative, provided a communication telling of the action of the union was received before its next meeting.

Arbiters Want to Punish Cruelty to Animals, Ban Notorious Players—At Loss for a Definition of Educational Film

THE New York State Motion Picture Commission, in its annual report, seeks from the legislature certain amendments designed to broaden the present censorship law in the Empire State. The commission makes the following recommendations:

Added power to the end that it may ban pictures in which there is unjustifiable cruelty to animals, or in which the actors are criminals or persons recognized as of a debased character.

A clarified definition in the law as to what constitutes educational, charitable or religious film, and authority to issue permits for industrial film without the payment of fee.

Two scales of fees, a high one for producers whose pictures generally require censorship, and a lower one for those whose pictures are invariably clean and do not violate the censorship law.

The report shows that from August 1, 1921, when censorship became effective in New York State and when the present commission started to function, producers have paid to the commission a total of $656,937.51, the last year being the biggest in the point of receipts in the history of the commission, the receipts amounting to $180,704.45. During that time the commission has been run at a cost of $283,971.64, leaving a profit to the state of $372,965.87. Expenses last year were the heaviest of any year since the commission was organized, and amounted to $83,683.36.

During the past year a total of 3,780 eliminations were made by the New York State Commission, 34 pictures being condemned in their entirety. Eliminations were made from 627 films. The eliminations were made from 3,214 scenes, while 566 titles were of a type that did not please the commission and were ordered to be changed.

"Tending to incite to crime" is a favorite expression among members of the New York State Commission and is given as the reason for 1,318 eliminations. There were 924 eliminations on the grounds that scenes were "inhuman," while 816 scenes were declared to be "immoral or tending to corrupt morals," with 624 as "indecent," 66 as sacrilegious" and 32 as "obscene."

Dramas suffered the most from the politically appointed censors, no less than 328 of these having been forced to suffer eliminations because scenes did not quite measure up to the self imposed regulations of the board. Eliminations were made from 115 comedies, 101 serials, 61 comedy-dramas, 11 news reels, seven miscellaneous, three educational and one cartoon. A total of 83 appeals were taken during the year by producers.

The report covers many typewritten pages. In part, it says:

"It will be observed that our jurisdiction is confined to the character of the film. On several occasions, actors who are prominent in the profession have become involved in scandals, which created a demand that the pictures in which they appeared be prohibited from the screen.

"While the statute does not clearly cover a case of this kind, the commission has felt that if the persons involved were convicted of crime, or their characters were bad, that it would be justified in deciding that the mere exhibition of the film in which they were shown would tend to corrupt morals, and in that respect would come within the inhibitions laid down by the statute. The majority of the pictures presented are not objectionable and reputable producers recognize their obligations to society and are responsive to public opinion.

"There is, however, a class of producers who apparently care nothing for anything except the returns which they receive from their product. This class attempts to appeal to the sex instincts and are continually depicting crime and educating the youth in the vices of the human race."

The report concludes by saying that "no good pictures have been suppressed, and art has not been curtailed in its expression."

NEW HAMPSHIRE BILL WOULD LESSEN SEATS

Theatres of the state of New Hampshire would be affected by the bill, which now is being prepared by a Manchester representative in the State Legislature. The measure relates to the position of moving picture screens and designates a distance, which must be maintained at all times, between the front row in the theatre and the screen upon which the picture is shown. The representative, who is fostering the bill, will seek its passage on the grounds that some of the patrons of the film theatres are obliged to view the pictures from a most disadvantageous position within a few feet of the screen. This is bad for the people's eyes, the representative asserts. Many of the New Hampshire exhibitors declare that if the bill becomes a law they will be forced to remove several rows of front seats.

PARAMOUNT LOANS CRITERION TO FRENCH COMPANY

It was announced this week by Famous Players-Lasky Inc., that the Criterion Theatre, N. Y. C., will be placed at the disposal of the Societe Francais de Romans Films for the exhibition of that company's production "The Miracle of the Wolves" for an indefinite period. The French company, will get not only the highly efficient personnel of the theatre, but will have the counsel of the entire Paramount advertising and exploitation corps in order to insure the debut of this French production on Broadway being on a par with the introduction of the best American films now being exhibited.

Buffalo Exhibitors Discuss Block Booking and Juveniles

BLOCK booking and the law which prohibits the admission of children under 16 to picture houses unless accompanied by parent or guardian came in for some heated discussion at the meeting of Buffalo Zone, Motion Picture Theatre Owners of New York, in the Hotel Statler, Friday, January 16. J. H. Michael, chairman of the zone presided. Walter Hays, president of the state organization, and Jules Greenstone, president of the Rochester Exhibitors' League, were guests of honor and spoke briefly.

Mr. Michael voiced the opinion that there is hope of having the present children's law amended at the present session of the legislature so that the young folks can be admitted when the shows do not interfere with school hours. He said that Buffalo's chief of police had gone on record for a modification of the law and that Judge Judge of the children's court was of the same mind, but that as long as the statute was on the books he had no choice but to fine exhibitors arrested on the charge of violating the measure. It seems that Rochester, Syracuse, Albany and other cities of the state do not have much trouble in this matter.

Mr. Greenstone hoped soon to see the Rochester body join the Buffalo Zone 100 per cent. He drew attention to the necessity of every exhibitor paying his dues promptly and pointed to Rochester as a model town in this matter and one of the reasons why that city was able to get what it went after.

Mr. Hays also predicted that Rochester would soon be lined up with the exhibitors of the Buffalo Zone and the state organization. He declared that every exhibitor should feel that he was "president" of the state body and should feel the same responsibility as himself for the good of the organization. He paid tribute to Mr. Greenstone by adding that one of the reasons the Rochester men always get what they want was due to their live-wire president, Mr. Greenstone.

Howard J. Smith was calld upon to discuss block booking, which many of the smaller exhibitors claimed to be one of the biggest problems now confronting them, especially with the coming of the chain organizations into their towns. Mr. Smith said it was impossible to break up block booking unless the individual exhibitor refused to buy. He declared the chain houses do not buy in blocks but pick what they want. Each individual exhibitor has got to take a determined stand on this question, said Mr. Smith, and buy for himself regardless of competition, personal feeling toward salesmen and so forth.

Mr. Hays suggested that exhibitors insist that it be specified on contracts that pictures must be available on certain dates, and if they are not then the contract would be null and void. He pointed to the experience of one Buffalo neighborhood theatre which found itself last summer with 75 pictures a year and a half old on which there were no dates. Mr. Michael said that when a date is given in a contract the picture must be delivered on that date so that exhibitors can easily arrange their buying by purchasing only those features on which distributors are able to give them dates.

There was an appeal for all to "kick in" with their dues so that the work of the zone could go ahead unhampered, and before the meeting was over most of those present had handed in their checks to Miss Marian Gueth, office secretary. Luncheon was served before the meeting. There was an unusually good attendance, exhibitors being present not only from Buffalo, but many of the surrounding towns.

Buffalo exhibitors in attendance included J. H. Michael, Walter Hays, Arthur L. Skinner, Frederic Ullman, Vincent R. McFaul, John Carr, Henry Carr, Fred M. Shafer, Morris Slotkin, Joseph A. Schuchert, Jr., Barney Vohwinkle, James Cardina, Al Teschmacher, Frank Nowak, Mrs. Behling, Jake Rappaport and James Wallingford. Out-of-town exhibitors included Judge John W. Schatt, Gowanda; Fred Peters, Hornell; Andy Geitner, Silver Creek; Sid Allen, Medina, and Mr. Peterson, Jamestown.

Coming and Going

Francis G. Conklin, receiver for Preferred Pictures, left this week for Los Angeles where he will confer with the creditors of this concern, and hold a general conference regarding all its interests there.

Rupert Hughes arrived recently in New York from the coast with his wife, Patterson Dial. He will probably remain until the following week.

M. H. Hoffman, Vice-President of the Tiffany Productions leaves for Europe on the S.S. Olympic on Saturday, January 24, on a business trip.

E. Bruce Johnson, manager of the First National Foreign Department, and Louis Brock, foreign sales manager for that organization, returned this week from Cuba where they spent the previous week looking over motion picture conditions in Havana and surrounding cities.

Omaha Houses Gross $5,000 Each Day

Picture houses in Omaha take in a gross of around $5,000 a day from box office receipts, according to a survey just completed by T. Earl Sullenger, professor of sociology at the University of Omaha. The professor has just made an exhaustive study of the social situation in Omaha and has found that every night 20,000 Omahans attend the thirty-five leading picture houses in the city.

He finds the character of this type of entertainment is of average wholesomeness and the general conditions of cleanliness, ventilation and sanitation are generally satisfactory. He lists three Omaha theatres as of the "higher class" and says they "are patronized by the public, especially the aristocratic class of society."

Showmen Meet in Boston to Agree on Sunday Situation

THAT there might be a better understanding of the state laws governing Sunday shows in Massachusetts was the main purpose of a meeting of managers and theatre owners from all parts of the state in the Boston Theatre in Boston. Major Sydney H. Cliffe of the State Department of Public Safety, which regulates the Sunday shows, was the speaker. He explained in detail all the rules and regulations concerning Sunday performances. Through the work of a large number of "spotters," violations of the Sunday laws have been discovered, Major Cliffe stated. In some cases, he said, these violations have been caused through the ignorance of house managers, who have come from other New England states or outside of New England. Major Cliffe stated that several Sunday licenses recently had been suspended because it was found that some managers were attempting to evade the law in the hope that they would not be caught.

"Sunday is the big day in this territory just as well as elsewhere," said Major Cliffe. "To violate Sunday rules would be like trying to kill the goose that laid the golden egg." Co-operation of the theatre men was asked with a view to putting an end to violations of the Sunday rulings.

The closing of theatres on Sunday following violation of the laws is the penalty imposed by the state officials. Some of the provisions of the state laws on the Sunday shows are as follows:

"Entertainments shall not commence before 1 o'clock p. m. No entertainment shall terminate later than 11 o'clock p. m., except by special permission of the commissioner."

"Persons shall not be permitted to attract the attention of the public by oral announcements at the entrance of any place of entertainment nor shall any musical device or instrument be played at such entrance."

"Articles or refreshments of any kind shall not be offered for sale and no smoking shall be permitted in a theatre or hall during an entertainment."

"Change of scenery shall not be permitted during any performance, provided that nothing in the foregoing shall be construed as prohibiting the raising and lowering the curtain or suitable and appropriate drops and drapes."

"Performers appearing upon the stage shall wear street or evening dress or such costumes of a refined nature as the commissioner may approve. Females shall not appear in male attire. Males shall not appear in female attire, except by special permission of the commissioner. Comedy, tramp or similar or ridiculous costumes shall not be permitted."

"Dancing in any form and contortion acts will not be permitted."

"The violation of any of these regulations will be considered sufficient cause for the disapproval of subsequent entertainments."

These regulations, excerpts from which appear above, supersede the regulations issued April 25, 1922.

DIRECTOR FISCHBECK DIES

Fred Fischbeck, a well known comedy director, passed away at his home in Los Angeles recently. Fred was stricken about a year ago, but continued to work up until the end. Before the doctors ordered him to his bed, Fred was making Lloyd Hamilton's comedies, and previous to that was on the Mack Sennett lot. Fred began his career as a cowboy on the old Ince Ranch in 1912.

New York Censorship Repeal Depends Upon the Exhibitors

POLITICAL leaders at the State Capitol, in Albany, N. Y., appear to be what might be termed "up in the air" at the present time on the question of motion picture censorship repeal. This is but natural in view of the fact that the repeal bill has not as yet been introduced and also by reason of the fact that the leaders in both houses of the legislature are new to their positions, while a third reason lies in the fact that there are many new members in both the Senate and the Assembly whose viewpoint on censorship is not yet clearly known.

If the exhibitors of New York State follow the program that has been tentatively mapped out by Walter Hays, president of the New York State M. P. T. O., and will each and every one get behind the coming campaign to influence senators and assemblymen to vote in favor of the repeal bill, the measure will stand a fair chance of passage. The trouble in the past has been that many of the exhibitors are inclined to simply shrug their shoulders and have done little or nothing, leaving the great burden of the work to a few. As a direct result, some members of the legislature were deluged with letters and telegrams, asking for the repeal of censorship, while others received absolutely nothing as indicative of the sentiment in their localities.

The New York Motion Picture Commission is already laying its plans for the fight to retain its existence. George H. Cobb, chairman of the commission, visiting his home city of Watertown, gave out a statement much along the line followed in past years, saying that there was a widespread demand for the retention of the commission and the continuance of the work.

The annual report made by the commission also is given over to a large extent in an argument for censorship, declaring in one place that "it is strange but true that many apparently intelligent people insist that the statute providing for the regulation of motion pictures is unconstitutional. The fallacy of this argument becomes apparent when it is known that both the Court of Appeals of New York State and the United States Supreme Court have decided that the motion pictures is a spectacle with a peculiar appeal rather than a medium of opinion, and therefore that the constitutional provision with reference to the free press and free speech has no application whatever."

Continuing in its argument for retention, the commission, in its report, says:

"The repeal of the statute in this state will not solve the problem. Motion picture censorship is backed by the moral sentiment of the world and misrepresentation, misstatement, ridicule and abuse will never eradicate the evil, but will only tend to incite a great majority of people to greater activity in the correction of the abuses which exist."

The introduction of the censorship repeal bill is being awaited with much interest at Albany. Just when it will come and just who will be the sponsors are not certain, but it will be the center of the biggest fight during the present session of the New York State Legislature.

Plan Fewer Houses

The fourth annual building survey and forecast of the Architectural Forum has been completed and indicates that 1925 will be another five billion dollar building year. A chart indicates that the percentage of public demand for new theatres in the United States is 3.2 per cent. as compared with 3.8 per cent. for 1924.

Especially noticeable is a falling off in theatre building in the southwestern states, the chart listing 6.9 per cent. for 1924 and 2.7 per cent. for 1925. This sectional decrease is responsible for the total decrease, for the North Atlantic, southeastern and western states show increases, while the decreases reported for the northeastern and middle states are slight.

Another chart indicates the money value of prospective new theatre building construction for the United States as $135,981,000, divided as follows: northeastern states, $24,450,000; North Atlantic, $36,495,000; southeastern, $4,944,000; southwestern, $8,484,000; middle, $40,512,000; western, $21,096,000.

Indict Famous Players For Film Explosion in Boston Subway

The Famous Players Lasky Corporation and three individuals have been indicted by the Suffolk County, Massachusetts, Grand Jury in connection with an explosion of motion picture films which caused a panic in a subway car January 3.

Counsel for the corporation notified Judge Bishop in Superior Court that a representative would be sent to Boston to plead to the indictment.

The corporation is charged with the unsafe removal and disposition of inflammable motion picture films and with unlawful delivery of explosives for transportation.

Timothy A. Doherty of Roxbury pleaded not guilty to similar charges and was held in $600 for trial. John C. Bowdin was arraigned previously and held for trial. Shirley Phanus, who had charge of the film when it exploded, is still in the hospital suffering from burns.

MILWAUKEE CENSOR VACANCY

J. H. Silliman, who conducts a string of Milwaukee houses including the Downer, is being boomed to fill a vacancy on the motion picture censorship commission in Milwaukee resulting from the departure of Leo A. Landau, former director of the Alhambra and Garden theatres. A committee of showmen is making plans to visit Mayor Hoan with a formal request that Silliman be appointed.

News on Every Page

Moving Picture World is the first trade organ to publish a complete producer's press book. This in the interests of a betterment of exhibitor selling aids. Our staff wrote it. Don't miss giving it the once-over. Turn to page 451.

J. J. Cooney and B. J. Cooney opened their second Chicago picture theatre in 1921 and it was so successful that they continued adding to their holdings. The latest acquisiton is the Capitol Theatre of 3,500 seats, and it was an elaborate opening that they staged on Jannary 19. See page 428.

Another blow for censorship is contained in a Better Films Committee Resolution decrying it. Yon'll find this on page 431. Why not clip ont the resolution? It will come in handy sometime when the proper arguments against censorship aren't on the tip of yonr tongue.

Yes, sir, the Texas M. P. T. O. is determined to stamp ont non-theatrical competition. Their last move is to involve Paramount in the controversy. It looks as though war impends. Read about it on page 433.

Those Blne Laws will associate with legislatures like colds with wet feet. And they're jnst as welcome. Now there is a drastic "indigo" measure before the Indiana Legislature. The story on page 434 tells you about it.

Censorship, did we say? Well, the New York censors have published an annual report designed to retain the members' jobs. There is a slim possibility that the new legislature will oust them. Read the report—on page 435—and see how the world is—or isn't—progressing. We're a bad lot, he humans, we are.

Massachusetts Laws on Films Cause Hot Debate

The move to amend the general statutes of Massachusetts concerning the qualifications for motion picture films and their showing, which was commenced during the 1923 session of the legislature, is to be continued this year. The present laws provide that the only exemption from the requirements imposed upon theatres—fireproof booth for projection machine, etc.—is in a case where the film is of cellulose acetate (non-combustible), not more than 100 feet in length nor more than one inch in width.

According to the proponents of the proposed bills, this gives one company, Pathe, a monopoly of supplying films to churches, schools and groups which desire to exhibit motion pictures but which lack the standard theatre equipment.

The standard size film being more than one-inch wide, it is claimed that many of the subjects desired for exhibition by non-theatrical organizations are not obtainable on the small size film as required. The bill is to be referred to the public health and safety committee.

THEATRE WINS $7,300 SUIT

Suit brought by the United Artists exchange in Detroit for $7,300 against the Regent Theatre, Grand Rapids, was lost. The litigation resulted from the United Artists attempting to enforce a contract for two pictures signed by the former manager of the Regent and which were refused by the new management.

State Rights Sales

Jack Weil, head of the newly organized Jack Weill Pictures, Inc., of 3320 Lindell boulevard, St. Louis, Mo., has purchased the Eastern Missouri and Southern Illinois territory on "After Six Days," Weiss Brothers' Artclass Pictures Corporation's big Biblical attraction feature, according to an announcement made by Louis Weiss, the Artclass executive head.

SELLING the PICTURE to the PUBLIC

EDITED BY EPES WINTHROP SARGENT

Highlights on Peter Pan Stunts as Reported from the First Run Houses

PLAYING a picture first run in 258 theatres is bound to be productive of a number of goods stunts, though from the earliest reports it would seem that most of the theatres had relied upon the newspaper work or the numerous tie-ups arranged by Leon J. Bamberger and covering almost every conceivable article of use or wear.

About the best report comes from Cincinnati, where I. Libson, manager of the Capitol Theatre, worked with Bill Danziger.

Here stress was laid upon the showings to institutional children, and the Times-Star assigned a special writer to cover this feature. The newspaper announced that it had arranged with Mr. Libson to show the picture to all institutional children.

All showings had to be arranged through the paper, and seven institutions applied for the showings.

Instead of the usual arrangement whereby the children are taken to the theatre, the situation was reversed and the picture was taken to the children.

Stretching It Out

Two portable projectors were used, and these and the film were taken to the institution in a truck heavily bannered: "We are on our way to show Peter Pan to the Catholic Orphanage of Cincinnati," the name of the institution being changed to match the destination.

This lacked the ballyhoo feature of carloads of children on their way to the theatre, but this was offset by the fact that the showings were distributed over seven mornings, and carried seven stories in the newspapers instead of one. Also it kept the children away from the theatre, where the capacity was being taxed by paying child patrons.

Hopper Helped

De Wolf Hopper was in town with his company, and he made a formal request that he be considered an orphan, entitled to a free showing of the picture, but he offered to pay his way by helping to entertain. This was good for a double story—before and after—and at the same time helped the Hopper show.

Weighing up the two styles of stunt, the institutional showing is the better, since it lasts longer and carries more newspaper mention.

The single showing is all over the next day. This ran for a full week.

In Peoria, Ill., the picture was hooked to the Peter Pan clothes. In return for a special morning showing the store bought 10,000 of the rotos and printed the blank sheet with a coupon entitling the child to enter a parade and see the picture without cost.

As these were distributed well in advance, it held the heralds in the home for about a week before they were used. About 600 children went into the parade and many more were added at the theatre. The store also did much newspaper advertising.

Omaha has a Peter Pan bread, and the company took four quarter pages to announce a drawing contest, with prizes aggregating $35.

It was arranged that the drawings were to be presented at the theatre on a certain morning when the drawing would serve in lieu of an admission ticket to the special performance at the Strand. This special was given the morning of the opening to send the kids out to advertise the regular run.

The pictures were made the basis of a lobby display before the award of the prizes.

In addition to the four quarter pages, the company gave 22 bannered windows and 27 bannered trucks.

Had a Dog Nurse

In Minneapolis the Garrick Theatre gave a special morning showing to 1500 children, and the big flash was the borrowing of a huge mastiff, who was to impersonate Nana, the dog nurse in the play. The location and borrowing of the largest dog in the city made several good stories in the cooperating newspaper.

Many other cities gave parties, mostly with a newspaper angle, and Jamestown, N. Y., had a boy in Peter Pan dress distribute heralds and buttons.

Many cities used cooperative pages with merchants handling Peter Pan goods, but in Rockford, Ill., Russell Moon, Paramounteer, found that most dealers had planned to use larger spaces than they would need in a double truck, so he lay off and let the individual advertisements pile up.

Peter Pan is a picture that needs to be sold intensively to get the best results. The more you do, the more you make.

Get Insurance

Harry F. Storin, in describing a street stunt, adds the valuable suggestion that if you rent a car you take out liability insurance. It's just one of those little things that you are apt to overlook. You may get by a hundred times and kill a man on the hundred and first stunt.

Here's the big idea. If you rent a car and run it through the streets, you are responsible for any damage done by that car while under lease to you. The actual owner of the car may have a policy, but that policy does not protect you from suits for damage done while the car is under your operation, though the car may be driven by the owner. The casualty company may refuse to defend any suit or make any payment, and very probably will.

This is a nice legal point that is known to comparatively few. It costs something to take out a one-day policy, but it's the only safe way. See your lawyer about it.

Sloganizing

No matter what the general style of advertising on the attractions at the Grand Theatre, Tiffin, Ohio, if it is a First National the line is carried: "A First National Picture. You'll be sorry if you miss one." It has created an unrealized but real feeling that all should be seen, and in this way it makes money for the house.

A Paramount Release

A GOOD DRESSING UP OF THE CUTOUT IN A WINDOW

Giving this extra attention to the cutout makes for a better impression, and this in its turn is transferred to the goods, in this instance the Peter Pan clothes. Worked by Ollie Brownlee, of the Palace Theatre, Muskogee, Okla.

Starts Saturday

Edward L. Hyman, of the Mark Strand Theatre, Brooklyn, has changed his policy to open his week on Saturday instead of Sunday. So far as we know he is the first of the big theatres to follow the example of the western managers, and break the age-old theatrical tradition that the week must end on Saturday.

For several years practically all of the large western houses have opened their runs with the Saturday matinee and have found it very profitable to make the change. No matter how good the newspaper advertising, the picture in any house is sold largely upon the verbal advertising of pleased patrons. Saturday and Sunday are the best days of the week. Opening on Saturday gets the two big days the first two days of the run and virtually doubles the volume of verbal advertising.

This is particularly valuable to a house like the Brooklyn Mark-Strand where the general program is almost certain to win commendation, even though the film feature may be a trifle light. We compliment Mr. Hyman on the change. It should add considerably to the volume of business done on the so-called off nights.

Production Hints from Edward L. Hyman

Managing Director, Mark-Strand Theatre, Brooklyn

FIVE musical incidents, the Mack Sennett comedy, "The Sea Squawk," and the Topical Review, together with the feature photoplay, Thomas Meighan in "Tongues of Flame," made up a show of two hours and 12 minutes. One hour and 14 minutes of this was required for the Meighan picture, while the comedy ran 18 minutes and the topical review took up its accustomed eight minutes. This left 32 minutes for the musical presentations.

Of the five musical numbers, three required special sets, the other two being the overture and a soprano who sang on the apron of the orchestra stage.

Each of the four de luxe performances of the day was opened with Offenbach's "Orpheus" overture, in which the Concert Master has an effective cadenza. The lights for this was as follows: Four arch spots, two of which were orange and two of light blue, reflecting on the pleats of the silver draw curtains which were closed across the production stage; two orange floods of 160 amperes on the musicians from the dome; borders and foots of large stage in blue; light blue and orange spots crossing on the ceiling drapes; 2 white floods from the booth added to the final measure of the overture. Eight minutes for this presentation.

The Mark Strand Mixed Quartette followed in Burleigh's "Deep River." Atmosphere for this was provided by using a blue neutral back-drop upon which was projected from the booth a water ripple and moonlight film, augmented by a water ripple effect from a 40 ampere arch lamp from the side. The quartette in costumes of the 1830 period with the two women seated and the men standing behind them were placed to the right upstage. The only lighting was two light blue floods from overhead falling on the singers. Four minutes for this song.

A coloratura soprano sang Delioes' "Bell Song" from "Lakme" on the apron of the large stage. The lights for this were as follows: Two light blue Mestrum floods of 160 amperes on the musicians from the booth; entrance spots of light blue and orange crossing on the ceiling drapes, light pink spot on the singers from the dome. Four minutes for this number.

The ballet number programed as "A Bowl of Roses," was presented to the music of Liszt's "Liebestraum." The setting included a neutral blue back-drop, upon which were thrown deep blue open box lamps from the sides; a hollow silver pedestal, four feet high, center stage, upon which was a large basket six feet in diameter. At the opening six dancers in classical drapes were seen in various poses around the base of the pedestal. Part of the business was for the dancers to take the bowl from the pedestal and replace it, this being done about three times. This made the close very effective, as the premiere danseuse made her appearance through the bottom of the basket, giving it a sort of Houdini atmosphere which went over very nicely. The lights for this number consisted principally of straw and amber floods from the booth, with a pale blue upon the musicians. Four minutes for this dance.

Sandwiched in between the Topical Review and the feature was the popular Melange introducting five selections now in vogue. The setting was a very ornate cabaret, there being a raised platform down stage, upon which were three cabaret tables with full properties. The numbers in the order of their presentation were as follows: "Shadowland," by the Mixed Quartette; "Until Tomorrow," by a soprano; "Rockabye Baby Days," tenor; "My and the Boy Friend," a dance pantomime by the premiere danseuse and male dancer; "Put Away a Little Ray of Sunshine," by the ensemble All artists were in evening dress. This numbr required 13 minutes.

Makes Hook-ups Sell Additional Tickets

One of the managers who are strong for trade hookups is Earl Settle, of the Capitol Theatre, Oklahoma City, and it's a darned cold day when he cannot find enough helpful stills in what they send him.

Take "So This is Marriage" as an example. One window give him Eleanor Boardman with a bed covered with a specified brand of blankets. Lew Cody was wearing a Stetson, and that got another window. A third came from a kiddie shop and was tied to the Babylonian episode with the remark that this sequence demonstrated that even then mother love was one of the six best sellers, or words of similar import. A toy store tied in with a nursery scene and an interior gave a furnishing shop opportunity to tell that Eleanor Boardman says that home is incomplete without pretty sofa and bed pillows.

A picture of Conrad Nagel putting a slipper on Miss Boardman's foot was good for one shoe store and a larger establishment was tied to the cinderella stunt.

Settle had to do some newspaper advertising in order to get readers, but there are no half pages in his while the stores still have windows.

A Paramount Release

THREE OF THE EIGHT THEATRES IN MEXICO CITY PLAYING THE TEN COMMANDMENTS DAY AND DATE

On the left is the Monumental Cinema, with Palacio next and the Lux on the right. Combination runs seem to be the usual thing in Mexico City, where most attractions get a six house play and the record is twelve houses with a single title the same day. It is evident from all three fronts that the pictorial is the chief appeal and even the commandments have to be illustrated.

A Paramount Release

A USEFUL SHADOW BOX ON VALENTINO IN A SAINTED DEVIL

This rather deep box was flooded with blue light to carry out the effect of a night scene. The cutout was placed in the centre, with a painted back and drapery sides. The back was lettered for the coming attraction to get the departing patron.

Stock Shadow Box Has Possibilities

Getting a shadow box on Valentino in A Sainted Devil, D. Roscoe Faunce, of the Strand Theatre, Birmingham, Ala., built one that can be used repeatedly with a little repainting.

It is about four feet deep and for the original showing it carried a cutout of Valentino on horseback, taken from the lithographs. This was backed by an original landscape in night colors with a transparent moon. The front lighting was deep blue, to suggest moonlight, and stills were placed on either side of the opening, though these do not show up very clearly in the cut.

A novelty was the fact that the back of the display was lettered for the following attraction, to get the attention of the audience as it leaves the theatre. With a collapsible structure this can be stored in a small space and can be used repeatedly.

Other extra advertising was 200 window cards and 2000 heralds in addition to mention on the menus of a tea room. This was sufficient to get an additional thousand dollars.

Harmonica Contest

Hooking an harmonica contest to Buster Keaton in The Navigator, the Palace Theatre, Corona, L. I., held elimination contests a week before the showing and the finals two days ahead of the opening. Miniature harmonicas about the size of a lead pencil stub were given a limited number of women patrons the night of the finals.

If you have not tried a contest of this sort, go to it. They were a Rotary Club stunt during Boys Week, and a lot of the big men proved that they had not forgotten how. Only lately we heard Mayor Kendrick, of Philadelphia, play the harmonica, and he is almost good enough to get a stage engagement.

Which reminds us that if the winner is good enough, you might book him for a week. That will add to the money the stunt can be made to yield.

Los Angeles Boards Had Effective Copy

Getting out special block 24-sheets for In Every Woman's Life for its opening at Loew's State Theatre, Los Angeles, the sheets were done in the new Los Angeles style, with prominent lettering. In this instance the boards merely read, "It Happens in Every Woman's Life."

These were first posted undated, and as the ground was dark green with orange lettering for the first two words and the title in white, it was not easy to overlook the appeal.

For the interior stunt they used a trailer with short sentences telling about the picture. This is nothing more than the old series slide, but it's so old that it is nearly new again. Some idea of the copy may be gleaned from the concluding lines, which run:

"Every woman knows the man she could have married.

"Knows the man she should have married.

"But the man she did marry—

"Oh, well, that guy's sitting alongside her right now."

Launching a Serial

R. M. Kennedy, of the Royal Theatre, Birmingham, Ala., worked hard to get the Jack Dempsey series of stories over, advertising with slides for a full month before the first chapter was due. He put out plenty of distributed matter and used a bannered trolley and a Ford perambulator, as well. He even managed to get announcements of the Fight and Win series into the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium and of course tied up the sporting goods stores.

As a net result when the first issue came along it was not just a program filler but an event, and it got over to business that has been keeping up on the later chapters.

Proved It

Many of the Southern Enterprises managers enlarged the telegram sent from the home office on North of 63, but it remained for R. P. Newton, of the Capitol Theatre, Little Rock, Ark., to prove it genuine by pasting the original telegram to the giant enlargement.

The only trouble is that the enlargement shows a Western Union "send" blank, while the actual message is on a Postal Telegraph blank.

He handled better a private pre-view of the picture the Sunday before the opening. One of the papers made this special showing the basis of an editorial argument in favor of Sunday opening for picture theatres, so Newton cut both ways with one knife.

A Metro Goldwyn Release

TWO SETS OF RUBES FOR MARRIED FLIRTS IN BIRMINGHAM

Two men and a girl were put out by Loew's Theatre, Birmingham, Ala., to advertise Married Flirts. The two men ran different beats, but are shown together here to give the front and back views. The sign reads, "What's your hubby doing?"

Dental Sampson at the Reckless Age

Evidently arguing that anyone who pulls automobiles around with his teeth must be at The Reckless Age, Charles Morrison, of the Imperial theatre, Jacksonville, tried it out with the Buick company.

They had a man going around to demonstrate the easy rolling qualities of the Buick and were glad to hitch into the greater interest in the theatre by letting "Reckless Jack" Larue help the Universal's Reginald Denny picture.

Both on the Saturday before the opening and the Monday of the run a demonstration was given in front of the Imperial after a preliminary ballyhoo along the streets which had the performer on top of a demonstration car with the coach he was to tow hooked on behind and bannered with the announcement of the big demonstration.

As an appetizer Larue bent iron bars and drove spikes with his bare fist in approved sideshow fashion, and while he played to two big crowds in front of the theatre, he advertised to ten times as many through the perambulations.

As the automobile people paid all the costs, Morrison's extra receipts were all velvet.

A Donated Bally

Jack T. Turner, of the Galax Theatre, Birmingham, Ala., did not have to worry about his ballyhoo on Find Your Man. He got it free, and not from an exploiteer, either.

Just before the run a World War Veteran drifted into town with a police dog. The veteran was touring the country, giving lectures on his experiences during the war, with the intention of writing a book on his travels and donating the proceeds to the fund for disabled veterans.

He perambulated the streets with his blanketed dog and did a brief lecture at each show. As the newspapers gave him very ample space, Turner got a real star at no cost as the lecturer handed out postcards which the patrons, if so disposed, bought at any price they saw fit.

With a lobby display costing $10 as the only extra expense, the picture went to much above the average.

A First National Release

ANOTHER NICE DISPLAY FROM THE LIBERTY, SEATTLE

This time it is for Glenn Hunter in The Silent Watcher and shows the banner nicely pointed up with electric lights. Save for an occasional cold snap, Seattle has a delightful winter climate and the house is decorated with growing plants all year

Trip Tickets

In addition to the usual thorough campaign on all pictures, Howard Price Kingsmore, of the Howard theatre, Atlanta, worked a couple of extras on The Forbidden Paradise.

As Thanksgiving fell within the week, there was a "Trip over Thanksgiving" on the Scenic Railway of Paradise, the ticket being 3 by 20 inches. It was printed on safety paper with a fairly close approximation of the railroad style and the date margins were hand punched with the playing dates. As 5,000 of these tickets were used and there were eight punches to the ticket, it can be seen that the ushers must have been busy in their spare time.

A library book mark was used. The play has not been novelized, so the library suggested a general list of fiction.

And the captive balloon, which seems to be on the Howard payroll was flown at a football game.

A Mounted Merton Made Good Display

In addition to using the studio questionaire on Merton of the Movies, D. Roscoe Faunce used a very effective animation in the lobby of the Strand theatre, Birmingham, Ala.

This was a cutout of Merton coming over a fence, head on, mounted upon the trusty old grocery nag. The figures were more than life size and a simple connection to a motor caused the cutout to move up and down as though the horse actually was galloping, the mechanism being masked in by the fence.

Eight stills were placed upon the fence as well as a sales legend and to jazz this section up a little a small dog was painted in, apparently streaking it across the landscape to escape the thundering hoofs.

A profile book was made from compo board and supplied two of the stores selling copies of the story, and this helped the sales of both books and tickets. Special menus were supplied a local tea room, but this seems to be a regular stunt with Mr. Faunce.

A Paramount Release

THIS WAS A SPECIAL ANNIVERSARY WEEK STUNT

Howard Price Kingsmore, of the Howard Theatre, Atlanta, had this thirty-foot painting made for North of 36 to emphasize the house's fourth anniversary, but once the frame is made it can be used repeatedly. Try a simple frame in 24-sheet size.

Wagon's Third Trip

As The Covered Wagon had already twice been shown in Oklahoma City, Earl Settle, who had it at the Capitol for third run, put it over with the suggestion that it was brought back at a lowered price for the benefit of the school children.

To this end special tickets were supplied the schools, good for a matinee admission for ten cents, and where the child was too poor to afford even the dime, a limited number of passes were supplied, to be used at the discreation of the teachers.

It gave him verbal announcements in every classroom above the second grade, and framed insert cards in every school lobby. The returns from these ten cent tickets did not amount to a great deal, but the children told their parents, and the latter paid the full prices.

It did a better business than any previous picture on a four-day run.

A First National Release

WHERE A VACUUM FILLS A LONG FELT WANT

George Wallace, of the Fifth Avenue Theatre, Nashville, tied up with the electric company on cleaners with the idea that if your wife married for happiness you are a marriage cheat if you make her chase the broom over the floors.

Used Presidents on a Co-op Page

Using the presidents of the United States to sell a co-operative page is the good idea of the Strand Theatre, Madison, Wis. The picture was America, which gave a real reason for this use, and one president was shown in each co-operating space. The stunt was to tell who he was, his birthday, when he served and for how long. Some hint, such as his birthplace, his wife's given name or his native state was embodied in the advertising copy to serve as a clue and to ensure the reading of the advertisement; which was the real aim.

With $50 in cash and 100 tickets for prizes, the entire town got busy, and since they knew that America was in town, they went to see it.

It takes a pretty good idea to sell a co-operative page these days. This is better than "pretty good" for any patriotic picture.

Hart Gives Tree to a Visiting Tabloid

We told you that when J. M. Edgar Hart got settled in his new job he would start something. He did. He pulled a human interest stunt that made business for him in the deadest week of the year.

For Christmas week the film program at the Opera House, Augusta, Maine, was to be strengthened with the Jimmie Evans Musical Review, an ambitious tabloid carrying more than the usual number of players and chorus.

The organization is in high favor in Northern New England, and is familiar to playgoers in that section.

Mr. Hart knows from his own experience that the player's Christmas is not apt to be cheerful, so he decided to do some good and make some money at the same time.

He procured a fine tree, interested the lighting company in its decoration, and announced that it would be dedicated to the players. For the week prior to their arrival it was stood in one of the rest rooms, fully lighted, and so many people came to see the tree that business held up much better than usual.

Plenty of Space

He got nearly a column story in the Kenebeck Journal, telling about the tree, and adding that if anyone desired to send a gift to some favorite player, he would see that it was held until the proper moment. There was no hint of solicitation or suggestion of charity. It was just to be a tribute to the players. If the local residents wanted to kick in, well and good.

The suggestion had its effect. Christmas Eve, after the last night show, the tree was taken to the stage and set up back of the screen line. The players worked until three in the morning to dress it, and some 400 packages were disposed about the base of the tree. Not all of these were local in their origin, for all packages from friends were held for the tree, the distribution coming after the Christmas matinee.

The stunt got three long and readable stories in a paper none too kind to the theatres, and attracted the attention of practically the entire town. Not the least of the returns was a story in which the star told how Augusta was the most hospitable town he had ever visited. The entire town swelled up with pride, though the idea was wholly Hart's.

For the week he got out a special three-color four-pager, the cost being wholly defrayed by the bank, which took the back page for its advertisement. Another good stunt was the fake telegram, advertising the big January drive. These were printed on the regulation Western Union holiday forms, also in three colors. The blanks were donated, and the only cost was for their printing.

He also got out a special calendar for the month, with the shows itemized. These were inserted in all programs. He uses a good form in which each week is held well separated from the rest. He added a window card, and some of these were tacked to lath and stuck into the snow banks along the main streets.

Edgar seems to be hitting his stride.

Sober Sue Stuff

Both the Princess Theatre, Fairmount, W. Va., and the Gillis Theatre, Clarksburgh, apparently a sister house, offered $5 to anyone who could sit through The Navigator without laughing. In neither instance was the prize collected, but a good dog story was worked by the Princess, which told how a farmer had claimed the prize, only to be informed that he had been watching the performance of Tess of the d'Urbevilles. According to the story, he thought the offer applied to any story.

The Princess worked another good stunt by putting a navigator on a raft anchored in a stream which runs through Fairmont. As most persons cross the bridge daily, they could not help seeing the unusual river decoration. If you have a little river of your own, try this stunt. It's by no means original, but it always is good.

A Metro Goldwyn Release

THE HAVE-A-KISS GIRL FROM LOEW'S VENDOME, NASHVILLE

Old stuff, but the girl was so attractive that she sold a lot of tickets for Circe the Enchantress. She even helped to swing an election at the Rotary Club. The costume is white with the exception of the sash, socks and shoes.

Played Up a Short

Raymond B. Jones, advertising man for the Palace Theatre, Dallas, Tex., figured that there was no particular need to stunt His Hour, so he turned his attention to Lunacy, the third dimension picture which was on the same program.

He had cards printed up reading "I may be a nut, but I'm going to see Lunacy, the third dimension novelty which will be shown in conjunction with etc." The upper right hand corner of the card was left blank and here a peanut was slipped through a slit in the card.

It brought in a lot of people who do not care particularly for the Glyn style of passionate panting.

A Paramount Release

HOW THE BRITISH CINEMAS HANDLED THE COVERED WAGON

1—Shepherd's Bush Pavilion, the largest theatre in Europe. 2—Kingsland Empire, Stoke-Hewington, London. 3—Imperial Theatre, Lee Green, London. 4—West Ken Theatre, Kensington, London. 5—Golden Domes Cinema, London. 6—Pavilion Theatre, Lavender Hill, London. 7—Premier Super Cinema, London. 8—Central Cinema, Wood Green, London. 9—Theatre Royal, Manchester. 10—Palladium Theatre, London. 11—Grand Palace Theatre, London.

Limited Reverse is Fairly Effective

This five thirteens on The Red Lily comes from the Lyceum Theatre, Minneapolis. It's chief interest lies in the use of a limited area of reverse around the star and title. The hand work in between is not good, and the display value would have been better had this material been set in type. The same thing applies to the lettering above the star's name. Type would not only have been more legible, but it would have given better display to the two reverse strips. These strips are differently treated, the star being outlined in black while the title carries a fairly regular outline. The former appears to be the more effective. Most of the selling is done in the matter directly below the cut. This is a six line paragraph describing the situation pictured and incidentally telling the crux of the story. If it is read, the chances are that it will effect a sale, but it is blanketed by the black mass of the cut above and the heavy rule below, which makes still more forbidding those closely-set lines in a small eight point rather too long to be read with ease. That cut might have been cropped for two inches without hurting either the picture or its appeal, and a white space not more than fifteen ems wide, set in leaded

STARTS TODAY
A NEW NOVARRO IN A TALE OF A DESPERATE TINGLING LOVE
THE SCREEN'S MOST PERFECT LOVER
RAMON NOVARRO
with
ENID BENNETT and WALLACE BEERY
FRED NIBLO'S PULSATING STORY OF LOVE, PASSION AND ADVENTURE IN THE APACHE UNDERWORLD OF PARIS
The RED LILY
A METRO-GOLDWYN PICTURE
LYCEUM
THE HOME OF DIVERSIFIED ENTERTAINMENT
DIRECTION CLINTON and MEYERS

A Metro-Goldwyn Release

A GOOD REVERSE

eight point italic would have caught the eye of all readers. Sales talk has been sacrified to the non-selling portion of a cut that will not sell much at best. This may scarcely be called a well-displayed advertisement, though the novelty of the reverse idea gives a certain distinction.

Sinks Sales Lines Into Shaded Space

There is not much sales appeal to this advertisement from the Metropolitan Theatre, Baltimore on The Narrow Street. The best selling line is the continuation of "If you were a bashful bachelor." This runs into "and you found some strange beautiful girl asleep in your apartment." Most of this is sunk into the meaningless circle which is used to give display to the title—and that title means three degrees less than nothing unless you have read the book. Even this selling line lacks the merit of completeness, and cutting the two sections apart does not help any. It looks like a good advertisement when you see it, but if you study the appeal you'll find that it is an unusually poor one, and yet there are cuts and stills on this comedy that will sell the story at a glance. Even that little cut down at the bototm could have been raised into a seller were it larger. There is nothing to that circle that will fill the reader with a desire to hustle down to the theatre and shove his money through the window. This is nearly a three elevens, but space alone does not help and a clever comedy is lost to a lot of people thrugh lack of advertising appeal.

A Warner Brothers' Release

AN ECLIPSED SELLER

Classmates Sang

During the run of Classmates at the Palace Theatre, San Antonio, which is headquarters for the Eighth Corps Area, with Fort Sam Houston, Camp Stanley and Camp Travis, a special section was reserved for the numerous Army officers, some of whom were so recently graduated that they took part in the scenes made at West Point.

Lieut. Davidson, who arranged for this special reservation, supplied the leader with the songs regarded by the Army as its own, and these were woven into a medley. At almost every performance the reserved section supplied the words to the songs, and provided an impromptu prologue.

If you are near an Army post you can at least get the songs if not the singers.

This Nice Space is From Los Angeles

Now and then a good display comes from Los Angeles. Sometimes it is in type, but more generally it is from a hand lettered design. Here is a space from the California Theatre that uses both type and hand lettering to advantage, employing each where it will serve the best, and using little hand work. Such hand work as is done closely approximates type, but they used that panel just below the signature to get a contrast that a limited display of type faces would not permit. It almost seems as though the larger the newspaper office the more limited the styles of type. This is partly due to the fact that the large offices use casting machines where the smaller papers run job departments with a better layout of faces, but it is hard on the big town man who wants to do good advertising. Here the effect is largely obtained through the hand lettering, backed by an open layout. Had the lettering come closer to the figure of the girl, practically all of the display value would be lost. She would be just one of the crowd, and no more important than the others. Whoever made this layout is deserving of

California
MAIN at 8TH
DIRECTION WEST COAST THEATRES INC.
She was a law unto herself—a madcap of fancy,—headstrong—unconventional—flinging herself against the rocks of prejudice until··· Nine out of ten are alike, but
THE Tenth WOMAN
with is different!
BEVERLY BAYNE
JUNE MARLOWE AND JOHN ROCHE.
A WARNER BROS. SCREEN CLASSIC from HARRIET T. COMSTOCK'S celebrated American Novel CARLI D. Elinor AND HIS CALIFORNIA CONCERT ORCHESTRA
and
HAL ROACH presents YOUR OLD FRIEND WILL ROGERS
in
"High Brow Stuff"
A Pathe Comedy
PRICES 45¢, 65¢ CHILDREN 15¢
FREE PARKING SPACE FOR CALIFORNIA PATRONS

A Warner Brothers' Release

A NICE COMBINATION

compliment, for he did an artistic job as surely as though he had filled the space with pretty, but wholly unnecessary, pictures.

Dressed His Boys

Using two boys to pass out his throwaways on The Sea Hawk, Al Lever, of the Isis Theatre, Houston, Texas, dressed them as pirates, and the bills were easier to dispose of and the message stuck better. He also dressed his girl ushers in "semi-pirate costumes," whatever that is, but we presume that the girls wore skirts instead of the flapper trousers and bare legs. Probably Lever wanted the patrons to see the picture.

He printed up special passes and sent them to every school teacher in the city. It was bread on the waters that came back buttered and spread with jam.

Hot Water

Hot water for Hot water was H. H. Snell's idea on the Lloyd comedy at the Imperial,

Gadsden. Most managers were content with painted kettles, but Mr. Snell offered the real goods. On a table covered with red crepe paper and backed by a sign in red on black, he set an electric stove with a kettle atop that spouted steam right at the title. To help the effect, he trained a red spotlight on the display.

Partly in recognition of this stunt, the electric company permitted him to tack card all of their poles, which are posted against posting.

Not to be left in the cold, the gas company reproduced the same design in their store window with a gas stove instead of an electric heater, Mr. Snell supplying the painted sign.

Unusual Cut Sells This Fox Release

Most of the appeal in this three tens from the Hippodrome Theatre, Cleveland, lies in the poster style cut, which seems to be a

Reades
HIPPODROME
Cleveland's Greatest Amusement Value
Continuous Daily 10 A.M. to 11 P.M.
Commencing Today
LARRY EVANS
Saturday Evening Post Story
"THE PAINTED LADY"
WITH
GEORGE O'BRIEN
DOROTHY MACKAILL
Harry Morey and Lucille Ricksen
The Story of a Love that Went the Limit—
FOX SUNSHINE COMEDY "The Nickel Plated West"—Topics of the Day—Reade's Current Events.
MAMMOTH BILL OF ALL STAR VAUDEVILLE
BARGAIN HOUR MORNINGS 10 to 11 10c All Bal. | 2000 Second Bal. Lady Seats 15c Elevator Service at Prospect Entrance
NEXT WEEK VAUDEVILLE FESTIVAL - 7 BIG ACTS -
PRISCILLA DEAN in "The SIREN of SEVILLE"

A Fox Release

AN ATTRACTIVE CUT

house product and not a plan book mat. It is different, it is interesting, and it gives the suggestion of these two values to the title, the latter being displayed where it will most surely be read. The only sales line is "The story of a love that went the limit," but not many will consider the sales angle. They will be sold on the idea that the play is good because it is so attractively announced. And the artist has ensured a good reproduction by working in line with black and benday instead of cross hatching. It would be difficult to get a really poor impression from this cut.

A Conventional Cut Carries an Appeal

This cut on Sandra is about the same general style that First National supplies on all stories in the three column width, but it is better than some of them in that the chief appeal of the central figures is not spoiled by the introduction of a secondary cut. Those figures below merely carry out the idea, they do not intrude on the main

BEGINNING TOMORROW
RIVOLI
CONTINUOUS 12 NOON TO 11.30 P.M.
"The Woman Who Toys With Hearts"
"SANDRA"
The Temptress
—WITH—
BARBARA LA MARR
—AND—
BERT LYTELL
By Day a beautiful wife—accepting a husband's humble love, his humble home, his humble pleasures.
By Night a glittering butterfly yearning for the wine of life and tossing all to the winds when the glamour of romance calls.
The story of a woman who left all behind in the mad pursuit of adventure and romance. It carries you to the pleasure places of Europe.
From the Novel by Pearl Doles Bell
SPECIALTY! Rivoli Presentation BILLY and EDDIE GORMAN
RIVOLI SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA, FELICE IULA CONDUCTING

A First National Release

A STRONG CUT

pose as some of the cut material does. The result is that interest is centered upon the two figures who suggest the main point of the story, while the background merely strengthens the idea. The text is particularly good in that it tells what the story is without revealing the plot, the talk merely serving to emphasize interest created by the suggestion of the pose. This is taken from the space of the Rivoli Theatre, Baltimore.

The First Red Ink

T. Bidwell McCormick sends in a copy of the Longmont, (Col.,) Daily Times with the first red ink fudge ever used in that town. The paper runs the theatrical advertising at the bottom of the front page, and Mr. McCormick took the usual space and then ran a two column heading in bright red, reading merely "Another Scandal." Naturally the town figured that a scandal calling for a red ink heading must be something big so they started in to read, only to find that it was the title of the attraction at the Longmont Theatre. Mr. McCormick writes that it cost him $8.75 for overtime and a few passes. We don't believe that he ever made a more profitable investment in advertising. Has your local paper a fudge attachment for printing in color? Try it some time, but follow Mr. McCormick's intelligent scheme and do not use too much. One red line is better than six-or eight. The latter will look like an advertisement.

Except for Caps This Ad is Nice

Three banks of all capital letters hold this three tens from the Palace Theatre, San Antonio from being an exceptionally good one. The layout is all that could be desired, for the supplied cut works nicely with the signature, because the black background matches with the reverse cut. The balance might have been better preserved by dropping the signature to the bottom of the space, but it works well either place. This seems to be a plan book cut and a very nice piece of drawing, but we feel pretty certain that First National did not contribute those all capitals. Two of these banks are eight point Roman and the other is a ten. None is opened with leads, which might have made it a trifle easier to read. In the ten point the printer has made O'Brien "remain" instead of "retain" his manhood. Evidently he is not a cross word puzzle fan or he would know that the words have different sense-values, but then a printer who will set all cap banks, probably because they are on the machine, will not care much about definitions. If you don't care whether lines are read or not; if you put them in just to fill up, use white space and achieve

The PALACE
TEMPLE OF THE ALLIED ARTS
A Kaleidoscopic Spectacle of Scenic Beauty and Enthralling Romance
A Melodrama of Rare Strength and Unusual Thrills! A Picture That's Different!
A STORY OF The ELEMENTAL EMOTIONS THAT FILL THE BREAST OF EVERY WOMAN SCENES OF FRANCE, SOUTH AFRICA — THE RAGING SEA AND AMERICAN SOCIETY LIFE — VIE FOR FAVOR IN THE SPECTATOR'S EYE.
Joseph M. Schenck presents America's supreme artiste
Miss Norma Talmadge
in
"The Only Woman"
A Greater NORMA with EUGENE O'BRIEN in Support
HOW ONE OF SOCIETY'S PAMPERED PETS MAKES GOOD IN A CRISIS — REMAINS HIS MANHOOD — AND SHOWS THE ONLY WOMAN THE KIND OF LOVE THAT FILLS HIS HEART.
At the PALACE-GRAND W. A. Sading Plays "The Wedding of the 'Possum and the Coon" With Slides
DON FELICE Conducting PALACE UNRIVALED ORCHESTRA

A First National Release

A PLEASING LAYOUT

a better effect. If you wish them to be read, set them in readable form.

Dazed Boston

Eddie Bonns reports that the big noise in Boston for He Who Gets Slapped was the use of forty boy scouts who carried lobby paintings almost as large as themselves through the business section.

They did not parade as sandwich men. Apparently they were delivering the picture somewhere, but they were all over town and even into the office buildings, and persons who would have passed a sandwich unnoticed even went to a little trouble to see what it was the kid was carrying.

They made frequent stops to rest, for the the boys were small and the pictures large, and wherever they parked they gathered an audience—and the police could say nothing.

NEWEST REVIEWS and COMMENTS

EDITED BY CHARLES S. SEWELL

"The Golden Bed"

Typical Gorgeous Cecil B. DeMille Production for Paramount Looks Like Box Office Winner

Reviewed by C. S. Sewell

In "The Golden Bed," his newest production for Paramount, Cecil B. DeMille presents the story of a modern Lorelei, a woman of the siren type, utterly heartless and selfish, whose one idea in life was to satisfy her vanity and craving for beautiful clothes and social success. How after being the direct cause of two men going to their deaths she brought ruin and prison to a third and how this one was enabled to start all over again, guided by the unselfish love of her sister, who was her direct opposite, building up where she destroyed, furnishes the story.

There is nothing risque or sensational about the story and no bedroom scenes, as might be inferred from the title, which has a direct significance from the fact that the pampered heroine slept in a magnificent golden bed adorned with swans, the gift to her family from royalty in generations past. The title is also symbolic of this woman's character.

This picture contains all of the attributes which the motion picture public have learned to expect in a Cecil B. DeMille production, such as costly mountings, lavish sets, gorgeous gowns, beautiful lighting, and a big dazzling and spectacular sequence, making the picture a treat to the eye. There is also the usual DeMille allegorical flashback. This time, however, it is quite short, picturing the fabled Lorelei on the rocks luring men to destruction.

One of the most effective scenes in the picture is where the heroine's husband after finding her in the arms of another man brings about a situation where the two fight on a snow-covered ledge at the top of a crevasse in a glacier; the husband cuts the rope and both dash thousands of feet to destruction. This is a thrill, although the effect falling of the bodies is rather unconvincing and stagy.

The big spectacular scene this time is a candy ball, with the costumes of the ballet, the chains of the slaves, the decorations of the room, etc., all supposed to be made of candy. The result is striking and novel and there are some very clever touches in the designing of the costumes.

Good human interest is injected into the story in the character of the heroine's sister, who remains uncomplaining and steadfast in her love for the hero even through his term in prison. Many of the scenes are not only pictorially but dramatically effective, one of the best being the final scene where the heroine, a wreck of her former self, returns to the old home, now a boarding house, and dies in the arms of the hero at the side of the golden bed, now battered and broken.

Of especial interest in connection with this picture is the fact that it marks the debut of Lillian Rich in a DeMille cast. This young lady has made a good impression in other pictures, but she is a positive revelation here. She is ideal in the leading role, bringing to it not only ability but making a gorgeous picture with her striking beauty and gorgeous gowns. Certainly her costumes will prove a delight to the women.

Rod LaRocque gives a fine performance as the hero and Vera Reynolds is excellent and has really the only sympathetic role in the production as the sister. Warner Baxter, Julia Faye and Robert Edeson are effective in smaller roles.

With all of the angles that have built up a big following for DeMille productions, "The Golden Bed" ranks well up among this director's pictures and should abundantly satisfy his fans and prove a box office success.

Cast

Flora Lee Peake.....Lillian Rich
Margaret Peake.....Vera Reynolds
Col. Peake.....Henry Walthall
Admah Holtz.....Rod LaRocque
Marquis.....Theodore Kosloff
Bunny.....Warner Baxter
The Duc.....Robert Caln
Mrs. Thompson.....Julia Faye
Amos Thompson.....Robert Edeson
James Gordon.....Charles Clary

Based on novel by Wallace Irwin.
Screen play by Jeanie Macpherson.
A Cecil B. DeMille Production.
Length, 8,584 feet.

Story

Even as a child golden-haired Flora Lee Peake attracted the other sex, for little Admah Holtz, peddling candy, insisted on giving her some of his wares. When she grew up, her father used his last dollar to bring about her marriage to the Marquis, while her sister Margaret went to work as assistant to Admah who now owned a candy store. Soon after, the Marquis found Flora submitting to the embraces of the Duc and on a mountain climb cut the rope so that the two fell to their death. Flora returned home and soon has ensnared Admah, now a wealthy man. Her extravagance brought him near to ruin, but to satisfy her vanity, Admah has a ball where all the decorations were made of candy, using some of the firm's money. Admah was arrested for this and sent to prison for five years, while Margaret who loves him remained true, bought his old store and started all over again. Flora, had gone off with Bunny, but he threw her down and a wreck of her former self she returned to the old home, now a boarding house, and went to her room which contained the famous golden bed. Admah, leaving prison also wandered to the house and Flora, delirious died in his arms. Going to the store he found Margaret waiting for him and together they started life anew.

Features Reviewed in This Issue

As Man Desires (First National)
Arizona Romeo, The (Fox)
Broken Laws (F. B. O.)
Golden Bed, The (Paramount)
Parasite, The (Schulberg)
Redeeming Sin, The (Vitagraph)
Up the Ladder (Universal)

FREE LANCE CAMERAMEN!
SEPT OWNERS!
A Limited Amount of
EASTMAN NEGATIVE STOCK
For Sale at Reduced Prices
Sept Magazines Reloaded for 75c

FILMLAB Inc

203 WEST 40th STREET
NEW YORK CITY
Phone—Penn. 2373
NEGATIVE, PRINTING AND TITLES

"Up the Ladder"

Virginia Valli Gives Fine Performance in Universal Domestic Drama

Reviewed by Sumner Smith

The Universal Jewel, "Up the Ladder," starring Virginia Valli, is a very good audience picture. Director Edward Sloman has taken the not unusual plot of Owen Davis' stage play and, aided by the expert co-operation of a fine cast, treated it in effective, realistic fashion. The story deals with a matrimonial crisis due to an erring husband. A flagrant violation might at least have been hinted at through the use of innuendo, and some of the scenes between man and wife might have been made melodramatic, but Sloman has handled them with admirable restraint. They do not lose one iota of their drama because of his treatment.

The picture should especially interest the women because it deals with a familiar marital problem and because its psychology is true. They can appreciate the drama of a woman who gives up her all to marry a struggling inventor and then must fight to retain his affection when he becomes successful; a woman who adjures jazz for domesticity only to see her husband, once as steady as she was joyous, give up the pursuit of success to visit cabarets and flirt.

Then there are highly interesting scenes of a purported invention, the Tele-Vision-Scope, which allows people to see each other while telephoning. These are worked out in a highly realistic fashion and do much to add both conviction and novelty to the story. The discovery of the erring husband's philandering, of course, comes about through the invention and a conveniently placed mirror.

Virginia Valli is uniformly excellent as the wife, getting a great deal of warmth and sincerity into her portrayal. Forrest Stanley is effective as the husband except that perhaps he makes the character a little too weak. Margaret Livingston is satisfactory as the vamp, George Fawcett as the judge, and Priscilla Moran wholly charming as the child.

Cast

Jane Cornwall.....Virginia Valli
James Van Clinton.....Forrest Stanley
Helene Newhall.....Margaret Livingston
Robert Newhall.....Holmes Herbert
Judge Seymour.....George Fawcett
Peggy.....Priscilla Moran
Dancer.....Olive Ann Alcorn
Housekeeper.....Lydia Yeamans Titus

Adapted by Grant Carpenter from Owen Davis' stage play.
Scenario by Tom McNamara.
Directed by Edward Sloman.
Photographed by Jackson Rose
Length, 5,922 feet.

Story

Jane Cornwall, wealthy heiress, marries James Van Clinton, struggling inventor, to help him on toward success. In five years he is rich. He falls victim to the wiles of Mrs. Helene Newhall and neglects his business. The time comes when his business partner, whom he believed to be Judge Seymour, must sell to save it. He is astounded to learn that it was his wife who invested in the business, not the judge, when the money gave him his start. She refuses to sell and bankers take over the business, with Van Clinton as a subordinate employe. Having lost his wife and child, he settles down to hard work and makes good. They appear unexpectedly as witnesses to his promotion to the head of the firm, and a reconciliation is effected.

"Broken Laws"

Mrs. Wallace Reid's New Picture is Dramatic And Impressive and Should Register at Box Office

Reviewed by C. S. Sewell

With a dedicatory subtitle in which she presents this picture to the mothers of America as a protest against unlawlessness and a reminder that the foundation of all law and order lies in the home, and a final title in which she states that the situations surrounding the children in the picture are those which the children of today face, Mrs. Wallace Reid presents "Broken Laws" her second production, which is being distributed by F. B. O.

As in her other picture "Human Wreckage" which dealt with the dope evil, Mrs. Reid here combines excellent entertainment with the message she seeks to deliver. In a story filled with human interest and tense drama, and situations that will strike home to many, there is shown the effect of the bad example set by parents of today with their flouting of the law such as dealing with bootleggers and violating speed regulations; and coupled with this is pictured the baneful influence of the misguided mother who is too indulgent with her children.

In a straightforward and well constructed story, this theme is worked out to a powerful and logical conclusion in the person of a boy who grew up selfish, pampered and spoiled, with no respect for constituted authority at home or in the law. Speeding home after getting drunk in a questionable roadhouse he crashed into a wagon, killed an old woman and was convicted of manslaughter. Paralleling the story of the boy is that of his childhood sweetheart whose mother's one thought was jazz, and she is shown coming under the influence of the lad who led her on until she, too, became intoxicated in a road house and was saved by the timely arrival of her father.

Early in the footage this picture starts you to thinking when the two children, imitating their elders who are indulging in a wild party, stage one of their own as near like it as possible. You become absorbed as you watch the mother continue to save the boy from merited punishment and see how this creates in him contempt for law as she pays his fines in court, and follow with strong interest as the story works up to a tremendous punch in the scene that will tug at the heart-strings where the mother realizes after son's conviction that she is the one that is really guilty and begs to be punished in his stead.

While all the force of the story and its message is maintained, the picture is saved from an unhappy ending by having the later events as a dream, and there is an additional wallop, literally as well as figuratively, where the mother awakening, calls the wilful boy, takes him across her knee and gives him a good old-fashioned spanking. This makes an unusual ending and comes as a source of intense satisfaction for he richly deserved it.

Mrs. Wallace Reid is very fine in this picture, appearing as the indulgent mother. Her work is sincere and real; she does not seem to be acting but makes the role a living one and gets right down under your skin, she retains your pity and sympathy even though you would condemn the way she is spoiling her child. Percy Marmont is excellent in a somewhat subordinate role as the girl's father. Ramsey Wallace is good as the boy's father and Jacqueline Saunders as the girl's jazzy mother. Little Pat Moore is excellent as the self-willed spoiled child and Arthur Rankin carries on the character with entire satisfaction. Little Jane Wray is effective as the little girl, and Virginia Lee Corbin makes her decidedly attractive when she grows up into a flapper.

The direction of R. William Neill is excellent and the sincerity and human touches are impressive. There is no attempt at creating false sympathy for the characters on the other hand their shortcomings are stressed to bring out the point of the story, but never is this overdone; consequently while the story is intensely dramatic at times, it is never melodramatic.

Here is a picture that offers fine opportunities for effective exploitation and one which should enable you to secure the cooperation of the very best elements in your community. It is a picture that children as well as parents should see and one that will impress and please your patrons, for it has the rare combination of being vastly entertaining, putting over a forceful lesson and making you think, and you will continue to think of it long after you have seen the picture.

We believe that "Broken Laws" is an even better picture than "Human Wreckage" and properly handled, it should be a box office clean-up.

Cast

Joan Allen.....Mrs. Wallace Reid
Richard Heath.....Percy Marmont
Ralph Allen.....Ramsey Wallace
Murnel Heath.....Jacqueline Saunders
Bobby Allen (age 16).....Arthur Rankin
Patsy Heath (age 16)....Virginia Lee Corbin
Bobby (age 8).....Pat Moore
Patsy (age 8).....Jane Wray

Story by Adele Rogers St. John.
Adapted by Marion Jackson and Bradley King.
Directed by R. William Neill
Length, 6,413 feet.

Story

Christmas Eve finds Ralph Allen breaking the speed laws and eluding the police. In his car is his son, Bobby, and Patsy, daughter of a neighbor. The Allens go to a jazz party at the Heaths. Bobby, who has declared his belief there is no Santa Claus and wrecked the tree, is left behind. He climbs out and sneaks over to watch the party and he and Patsy are trying to imitate the grown folks when discovered. Bobby is taken back home; he exposes himself to the rain for spite and becomes ill. When he recovers his mother spoils him and he gets in trouble at school. At eighteen, his mother buys him a car and he begins to lead a wild life, exerting a bad influence on Patsy, until finally his mother and Patsy's father go to rescue them from a questionable roadhouse. Speeding home Bobby runs into a wagon and kills an old woman. He is tried and convicted of manslaughter and his mother realizes she is really guilty as she has indulged him and not taught him to respect law or authority. Suddenly the mother awakes and finds the killing is all a dream. Calling Bobby to her she gives him a sound spanking and sends him back to school to apologize.

"As Man Desires"

Milton Sills and Viola Dana Featured in Entertaining First National Melodrama

Reviewed by Tom Waller

Audiences liking Far Eastern backgrounds will have their interest further aroused in "As Man Desires" since it features Milton Sills and Viola Dana. The picture as a whole should be generally satisfying to most fans.

Sills has a virile role, something similar to that in "The Sea Hawk." In "As Man Desires," however, he captains a pearl fishing smack instead of a pirate galleon. On two occasions he is enabled to resort to fistic prowess. The first scores a knock out for him by a single blow but the second lasts much longer and is a lively contest with a notorious sea bully in a lowly den on a picturesque South Sea Isle.

As Major Craig Sills is of the one-woman-lover type. This characteristic is used to emphasize the story's contention that some women would mould their own characters to cohere with that of the man they love. Two women are thus influenced by this circumstance in "As Man Desires." One is a beautiful white woman and the other is a swarthy complected native—a risque dancing girl. In the latter role Viola Dana is vivaciously cute and attractive. Her acting as a whole is commendable and will surely entertain. As the white woman, Ruth Clifford is seen only in the opening and closing footage but both of these appearances are highly dramatic, making her part an important one and one which should stand out in any general impression the picture may make.

The story on the screen is comparatively easy to follow, although considerable in the early footage is then left to be taken for granted. Some of this is explained towards the end but there also are a few incidents which may not be construed by all spectators as meaning the same thing. These conditions might be easily adjusted by inserting one or two additional sub-titles or by making clearer a few of the existent ones.

Cast

Major John Craig.....Milton Sills
Pandora Le Croix.....Viola Dana
Gloria Gordon.....Ruth Clifford
Evelyn Beaudine.....Rosemary Theby
Major Singh.....Irving Cummings
Col. Carringford.....Paul Nicholson
Gorilla Bagsley.....Tom Kennedy

Adapted from Gene Wright's novel, "Pandora Le Croix," by Earl Hudson.
Directed by Irving Cummings.
Length, 7,649 feet.

Story

Craig knocks out Carrington when he finds Gloria, his fiancee, untrue to him. Carrington is then murdered by a servant and because Evelyn Beaudine, a married woman of unsavory reputation, accuses him of the crime, Craig is forced to flee from his British army post in India. Craig procures a fishing smack and amasses wealth from pearl beds in the South Seas. He tenders Gorilla, a poacher, a beating when he finds his annoying Pandora. She feels that Craig is now "her man" and to spite the memory of the other women, he marries her. A seaman identifies Craig and notifies the British government. Gloria comes with the representative who informs Craig that Gloria had sacrificed her own reputation to prove his innocence. Gorilla, bent upon killing Craig, levels his gun at his back but Pandora jumps in the way. Craig and Gloria are thus finally united.

"The Redeeming Sin"

Vitagraph Offers Nazimova in Blackton Picture of Paris Underworld That Is Heavily Dramatic

Reviewed by C. S. Sewell

J. Stuart Blackton turns to the underworld of Paris for the locale of his latest production for Vitagraph, "The Redeeming Sin," and with Nazimova as the star presents the story of a girl thief who tried to get out of her sordid surroundings and become a lady, and shows how her jealousy nearly led to tragic consequences.

It is an interesting character study of a type of Parisian girls who though they may not be really true to life are popular in fiction and fascinating on the stage and screen. The story is rather heavy drama, and the atmosphere is somewhat sordid, for most of the characters are of the Paris underworld.

Due to the fact that there is an abundance of action in this picture that continually holds the attention and advances the plot, and that it is plentifully supplied with drama, pathos, human interest and comedy touches, and especially to the excellent characterization of Nazimova, the picture furnishes interesting though heavy dramatic entertainment.

Mr. Blackton has finely directed this picture and succeeded in making the story impressive and the atmosphere of Paris, with the cellar dive, the artist's studio and the sewer scene and sequences in the cathedral, convincing.

As already stated, Nazimova's work is excellent, and she gives an interesting and sympathetic role of the vivacious little girl thief who wanted to be a lady, holding your sympathy at all times. Lou Tellegen in a role different from his usual heroic ones does good work as the leader of the thieves who redeems himself in the end through love. Otis Harlan is effective in a character role.

The significance of the title is not clearly brought out and the ending is decidedly out of the ordinary. A dramatic episode is the theft of a jeweled crown and a pearl necklace from a statue of the Madonna in the cathedral.

Even though it is not a really pleasant story, its action, strong drama and human interest angles, together with the fine work of star and director, should make it a satisfactory attraction for the majority of theatres.

Cast

Joan.....Nazimova
Lupin.....Lou Tellegen
Paul Dubois.....Carl Miller
Papa Chuchu.....Otis Harlan
Mother Michu.....Rositta Marstini
Gaston.....William Dunn
Marquise.....Rose Tapley

Based on story by L. V. Jefferson.
A J. Stuart Blackton production.
Length, 6,227 feet.

Story

Joan, member of a band of Apache thieves in the Paris underworld, resents the attentions of Lupin, their leader, and leaves, going to Papa Chuchu's cafe, when a bunch of aristocrats see her dancing. One of them, Paul, is attracted to her. Lupin, jealous, waits outside to take her back, but she remains all night in the cafe. The next morning she meets Paul and tells him she wants to be a lady; he facetiously suggests things that will help her and she takes them seriously. Later he is impressed by her earnestness and really becomes interested in her, and she falls in love with him. One day she sees him attentive to a woman and becomes so jealous she returns to Lupin and tells him of a statue and pearl necklace Paul's mother is giving to a church, and makes him promise he will get the pearls and kill Paul. She is to give the signal, but finds that the girl is Paul's sister. It is too late to stop Lupin. For days she broods, and Lupin, who loves her blindly, takes back the pearls but is wounded by his followers. In the church Joan sees Paul, who was only slightly injured, and is overjoyed, but the sight of Lupin wounded brings to her the realization that it is he, Lupin, that she really loves.

"The Arizona Romeo"

Buck Jones' Newest for Fox Is Entertaining Film with Good Comedy but Less Action Than Usual

Reviewed by C. S. Sewell

How a pretty girl from the East, masquerading as a manicure, overcame his prejudice and finally won the love of a big westerner furnishes the theme for Buck Jones' new picture for Fox "The Arizona Romeo."

The hero discovered the truth of the adage that true love does not run smooth, and he was of the self-sacrificing type for when he found the girl had come West to marry another fellow, he did his best to bring this result about. Of course, however, he got the girl at last.

An interesting angle of human nature is played upon in this picture, for the girl really does not love the man she is to marry and her father plays upon the idea that if you want a woman to do anything, tell her not to do it, so he opposed the match and this made the heroine more determined to marry the chap. It was the discovery of this ruse by the hero that brought about the happy ending.

There is a good sequence of a familiar type in the climax where Buck on horseback rides behind a train and takes the girl off. This is well done, there is also a good fight scene, but for the most part this picture has not as much action as the usual Buck Jones story. There is however, in its place quite a lot of amusing comedy centering around the way the cowboys all rush to have their hands manicured, and this picture should prove pleasing entertainment for the star's fans although it is not one of his best.

Buck gives a thoroughly satisfactory performance and Lucy Fox is pretty and capable as the girl. Harvey Clark and Hank Mann furnish some amusing comedy as a rube sheriff and his assistant, and the remainder of the cast is satisfactory.

Cast

Tom Long.....Buck Jones
Sylvia Wayne.....Lucy Fox
Richard Barr.....Maine Geary
John Wayne.....Hardee Kirkland
Mary.....Marcella Daly
Martha.....Lydia Yeamans
Sheriff.....Harvey Clark
Deputy.....Hank Mann

Story by Charles Kenyon.
Scenario and direction by Edmund Mortimer.
Length, 4,694 feet.

Story

The more violent the opposition on the part of her father, the more determined is Sylvia Wayne to marry Richard Barr, so she slips away with her maid and arranges for Richard to meet her in Arizona. Tom Long is disgusted to find that his cowboys are all getting manicured and learns that Sylvia and her maid who are posing as manicures in the local shop are responsible. In seeking to save Sylvia from the attentions of a tough he looses his heart to her. Richard appears on the scene and Sylvia tells Tom why she came to Arizona. Tom agrees to help her and leads the sheriff off the track by posing as Richard. Sylvia and Richard make a getaway and Sylvia's father reveals that his opposition has been a ruse. Tom rides after the train, takes Sylvia off and she gladly agrees to marry him.

Review on "The Parasite" is published on page 450.)

Buck Jones, Fox western star, giving Pal, his dog, a few pointers in the "gentle art."

THE PEP OF THE PROGRAM

NEWS AND REVIEWS OF SHORT SUBJECTS AND SERIALS

"Boobs in the Wood"

(Pathe—Comedy—Two Reels)

The title of this two reel Mack Sennett comedy distributed by Pathe, with Harry Langdon in the stellar role, indicates the nature of the picture, which is a travesty on the type of vigorous northwoods and logging camp melodramas. Harry appears as a mild mannered chap who accidentally gets the best of the camp bully in a fight over the girl. He and the girl leave. She gets a job as cashier in a restaurant and gambling hall and he gets a job as waiter. Through her spreading propaganda that he is a regular "killer" he manages to cow the desperadoes and is promoted to bouncer. All goes well until the camp bully reappears and when Harry is about to be shown up, the girl puts out the lights, the roughnecks fight each other and Harry is the only one not knocked out. He finishes the bully with a bottle. Harry Langdon is extremely amusing in this characterization, even his appearance being good for laughs and he has been given some mirth-provoking gags, quite a number of which are out of the ordinary. Marie Astarie is entirely satisfactory as the girl. Altogether it is a comedy that should please a large majority of patrons in any type of house.—C. S. S.

"Sea Legs"

(Educational—Comedy—Two Reels)

This Christie Comedy directed by Gil Pratt and featuring Neal Burns opens with scenes of newlyweds on a boat bound for Honolulu. The wife has a first-class passage, the husband's ticket reads steerage; hence complications. Most of the action has to do with the man's efforts to see his wife, involving chases by ship's officers. One gag occurs when he hails his wife in endearing terms and every old maid on the vessel responds; another when a colored porter blackmails them for tips by interrupting when they try to kiss. The subject has an average amount of humor, is well acted and is a neat piece of work technically. Vera Steadman has the feminine lead and Jack Duffy a comedy part as captain of the boat. Robert Hall wrote the story.—S. S.

"Hold That Thought"

(Pathe—Cartoon—One Reel)

With all his wealth of vivid imagination, Paul Terry handles in an amusing satirical vein the idea that will power and concentration will accomplish anything, that all that is necessary is to hold the thought. The subject is introduced with a jungle vaudeville show that will get the laughs, one of the acts is the will power stunt and the animals all go out and proceed to try it. A hen almost kills herself trying to lay eggs the size of an ostrich egg. The familiar cat succeeds better than the others and literally walks on the air. The old farmer tries it with fair success until he encounters a lion, the "thought" goes glimmering and he falls into a pool of water. This is well up to Terry's standard.—C. S. S.

"Shorts" Reviewed In This Issue

Aggravatin' Kid, The (Universal)
Boobs in the Wood (Pathe)
Corsica, The Beautiful (Fox)
Fighting Fluid (Pathe)
Hold That Thought (Pathe)
Judge's Cross Word Puzzle (Educational)
Paris Creations (Educational)
Pathe Review No. 5 (Pathe)
Pistol-Point Proposal, A (Universal)
Rembrandt (Universal)
Sea Legs (Educational)
Sleeping Cutie, The (F. B. O.)
Whip Hand, The (Universal)

"Judge's Cross Word Puzzles"

(Educational—Instructive—One Reel)

The hold which the cross word puzzle has upon the nation is illustrated by the appearance of this novel motion picture subject animated by John C. Terry. The method is simple in the extreme. The diagram is shown together with the definitions, and the audience seeks to supply the synonyms before a hand comes on the screen and writes them in. This first puzzle is easy to solve.—S. S.

"Corsica the Beautiful"

(Fox—Instructive—One Reel)

Of especial interest in connection with this scenic reel, one of the Fox Educational Entertainments, are the views of the birthplace of Napoleon in Ajaccio, and other spots connected with his life, as well as a house in which the Corsicans claim Columbus was born. This reel shows Corsica to be an island with unusually striking and beautiful rugged mountainous scenery, with picturesque houses and inhabitants. It is not only pleasing to the eye but entertaining and instructive as well.—C. S. S.

The House of FEATURETTES

Week of January 19th

Loew's State, Newark—Plays "Peeps Into Puzzleland." (A Gem of the Screen.)
Fox, Philadelphia—Plays "Animated Hair Cartoon." Subject "O."
Newman, Kansas City—Plays "Animated Hair Cartoon." Subject "V."

120 First Run Novelties 1924-1925

RED SEAL PICTURES CORP.

Edwin Miles Fadman, Pres.
1600 BROADWAY NEW YORK CITY

"The Aggravatin' Kid"

(Universal—Comedy—Two Reels)

Buddy Messinger in this comedy appears as a young man who seeks to prevent the marriage of his sister. He bounces vases off her head and when her fiance puts a ladder in his auto in order to reach the window, Buddy dives into the car and drives away with the other chap at the top of the ladder. It all proves of no avail, and when they go on a honeymoon, Buddy hides in a handbag. Their uncle suddenly appears with an offer of $30,000 if hubby is prosperous so they take a swell house and hubby poses as the butler and the maid. The truth comes out, but uncle is so pleased that he found his old sweetheart who owns the house that he gives them the money anyway. This comedy is filled with slapstick and improbable situations. Buddy Messinger has a somewhat subordinate role as it is the actor who portrays the husband who has most to do. The situations while not new are amusing and this comedy is up to the standard of the remainder of the series, in fact it has much more of a connected theme. It should prove satisfactory for the average slapstick fans.—C. S. S.

"The Sleeping Cutie"

(F. B. O.—Comedy—Two Reels)

While the title of this number of "The Go-Getters" series refers to a dream sequence in the first reel where Alberta Vaughn appears as an Oriental beauty and George O'Hara as a suitor for her hand, most of the action deals with a basket ball game in which Kit Guard and Albert Cooke substitute. As usual, they know nothing about the game and succeed in making errors that will get laughs, especially Cooke who plays to the gallery. Kit accidentally makes a good play and Ted's side wins. Ted's invention which figured in the earlier issues is also referred to with the inference that the father of Van Cleve, the villain of the series is becoming interested in his proposition. These two reels are up to the average of the series as laugh-getters and should please.—C. S. S.

"A Pistol Point Proposal"

(Universal—Western—Two Reels)

This is a reissue of a Universal two-reeler, with Eddie Polo as the star and Aileen Sedgwick in the opposite role. Polo appears in his familiar character of Cyclone Smith, a regular whirlwind with the men but meek as can be with the ladies. The story shows how he is too bashful to propose, so the boys frame him by kidnapping the girl. Eddie goes to the rescue, they corner him and thinking his end is near he confesses his love. They reveal the ruse and with drawn pistols make him kiss the girl. This introduces a refreshing comedy element, and the frame-up provides for plenty of action and snappy fighting. It should prove pleasing to Western fans on account of this angle.—C. S. S.

"The Whip Hand"

(Universal—Drama—Two Reels)

This is another of the series of two-reel Western dramas starring Billy Sullivan in the role of a young Australian who has difficulty in controlling his fiery temper. It is in the nature of a sequel to "The Red Age" reference being made to the indicents covered by that subject. This number shows Billy getting a job on a ranch and falling in love with a girl. His jealousy leads him into a fight during which the villain tries to tempt him to use a gun. He conquers the impulse but becomes so enraged that he thrashes the villain, apologizes to the girl for creating a scene and leaves. There is good drama, and effective scenes in which he is shown as an expert with using an Australian whip instead of a gun as a weapon. While it is interesting, the fact that the romantic angle is not worked out to the usual conclusion will probably prove disappointing to some.—C. S. S.

"Fighting Fluid"

(Pathe—Comedy—One Reel)

Charles Chase's recent single reel comedies for Pathe have been excellent and in this one he continues to hit on all cylinders. Aside from being decidedly amusing there is unusual pep and spontaneity in this series. This time he appears as a bashful clerk in love with the boss' daughter. Accidentally partaking of gin that has been dumped into an old water cooler to hide it, he becomes a scrapper, ready to lick everyone in sight, and of course ends by getting the girl even though gasoline vapors have sobered him and restored him to his bashful self. There are several cleverly handled gags introduced that will get the laughs, especially one where he mistakes a dummy for the girl and when the dummy loses a leg he tries to give it to the lady. There is also some good by-play in the office. This single reeler is a hummer and you will make no mistake in booking it for your patrons.—C. S. S.

"Rembrandt"

(Universal—Comedy—One Reel)

Straight burlesque is this issue of Universal's Hysterical History series which deals with the celebrated Dutch painter Rembrandt. Victor Potel appears in the title role and is shown first as a porter in a studio who tries his hand and finding he can paint, establishes his own place. An amusing and cleverly devised sequence shows his former employer stealing his masterpiece. Rem starts out with the blank canvas left in its place, but stops on the way several times, a writer flings ink on the canvas, a drinker spills some wine on it, then a sign painter daubs it up, while a ditch digger smears it with earth. When Rem reaches the exhibition he is told it is wonderful and all it needs is a sunrise, this his rival accidentally supplies when he strikes it with a ripe tomato, so Rem wins the contest and the girl. It is an amusing travesty that should entertain the average patron.—C. S. S.

"Paris Creations"

(Educational—Fashions—One Reel)

Women should rave over this McCall Color Fashion News. Hope Hampton displays Paris creations by Poiret, Lanvin, Worth, Boue, Jenny and Doucet, all leading arbiters of style in the French capital. Never has Hope looked prettier than she does in this color film, and we do not recall any similar subject which displayed really modern fashions with such striking effect. No effort was made to cater to the bizarre; the scenes of gowns and wraps constitute legitimate fashion news. They will be envied—and talked about.—S. S.

"Pathe Review No. 5"

(Pathe—Magazine—One Reel)

Of particular interest in connection with this issue of Pathe Review is the fact that it contains the first installment of the Roy Chapman Andrews expedition to Mongolia to try and discover the origin of man. This section is really introductory for it shows only the oldest type of man now known, the Neanderthal man of Java, and the beginning of the expedition, how they journeyed to the centre of Asia with autos and a score or more of pack camels. It promises well for interesting disclosures in coming installments. Other items of interest are Pathecolor views of Chattanooga, Tenn., in the Visiting Our Own America series, and striking and unusual studies of the hummingbird.—C. S. S.

"The Parasite"

Dramatic Situation Paralleling One in Real Life Furnishes Punch in Newest Schulberg Picture

Reviewed by C. S. Sewell

The big punch in B. P. Schulberg's Preferred Picture "The Parasite" comes when the heroine, injured and unable to obtain aid, cuts her arm with a piece of glass so that the small child in her care may be saved from thirst and starvation by partaking of her life blood. This scene is dramatic and would seem overdrawn but for the fact that it closely parallels a case in real life that recently was given much space in the daily papers.

"The Parasite" belongs to the type of pictures where sympathy is directed against the heroine at the beginning and built up as her real character is revealed. In this instance the heroine has the title role and is characterized as a parasite by the other woman because she lives off of her friends, you find however that this is due to her mothe's pride.

Aside from the big situation, the story is not one of especial strength, some of the situations are apparently built up for effect and not altogether convincing, as for example, the readiness of both hero and heroine to so readily believe the worst of each other.

Madge Bellamy gives a very good portrayal of the leading role and Lilyan Tashman does well with the unsympathetic character of the divorced wife. Little Bruce Guerin is fine as the child. Neither Owen Moore as the hero nor Bryant Washburn as a doctor show to advantage, at times they do not seem entirely sure of themselves.

There is a thrill in an auto smash-up and good human interest developed by the heroine's love for the child. "The Parasite" should prove a picture of average entertainment value.

Cast

Arthur Randall	Owen Moore
Dr. Brooks	Bryant Washburn
Mrs. Laird	Mary Carr
Joan Laird	Madge Bellamy
Laura Randall	Lilyan Tashman
Bertie	Bruce Guerin

Story by Helen Martin.
Adapted by Eve Unsell.
Directed by Gasnier.
Length, 5,140 feet.

Story

Laura Randall, the divorced wife of Arthur Randall tries to win him back when he becomes prominent. She especially hates Joan Laird whom she calls a parasite because she imposes on her friends, due to her mother's pride which prohibits her from earning her living. Randall's son becomes ill and insists that Joan remain with him, so Randall brings Joan and her mother to his home. Though Laura shrunk away from the boy when she thought he has small pox, she persists in trying to win Randall back. Randall sees Joan with a friend Dr. Brooks and begins to believe she is an adventuress. Laura kidnaps the boy and Joan follows. Laura and Brooks are killed in an auto accident, but Joan finds the boy. She injures her foot and unable to go for aid, they are about to starve when Joan cuts her arm so that her own life blood may sustain the boy. Randall finds them and realizes by Joan's sacrifice that she is true blue. Soon after, Joan and Randall are married.

Scene from Johnny Hines' latest, "The Crackerjack," now in production at Miami, Fla. Produced by East Coast Films, Inc.

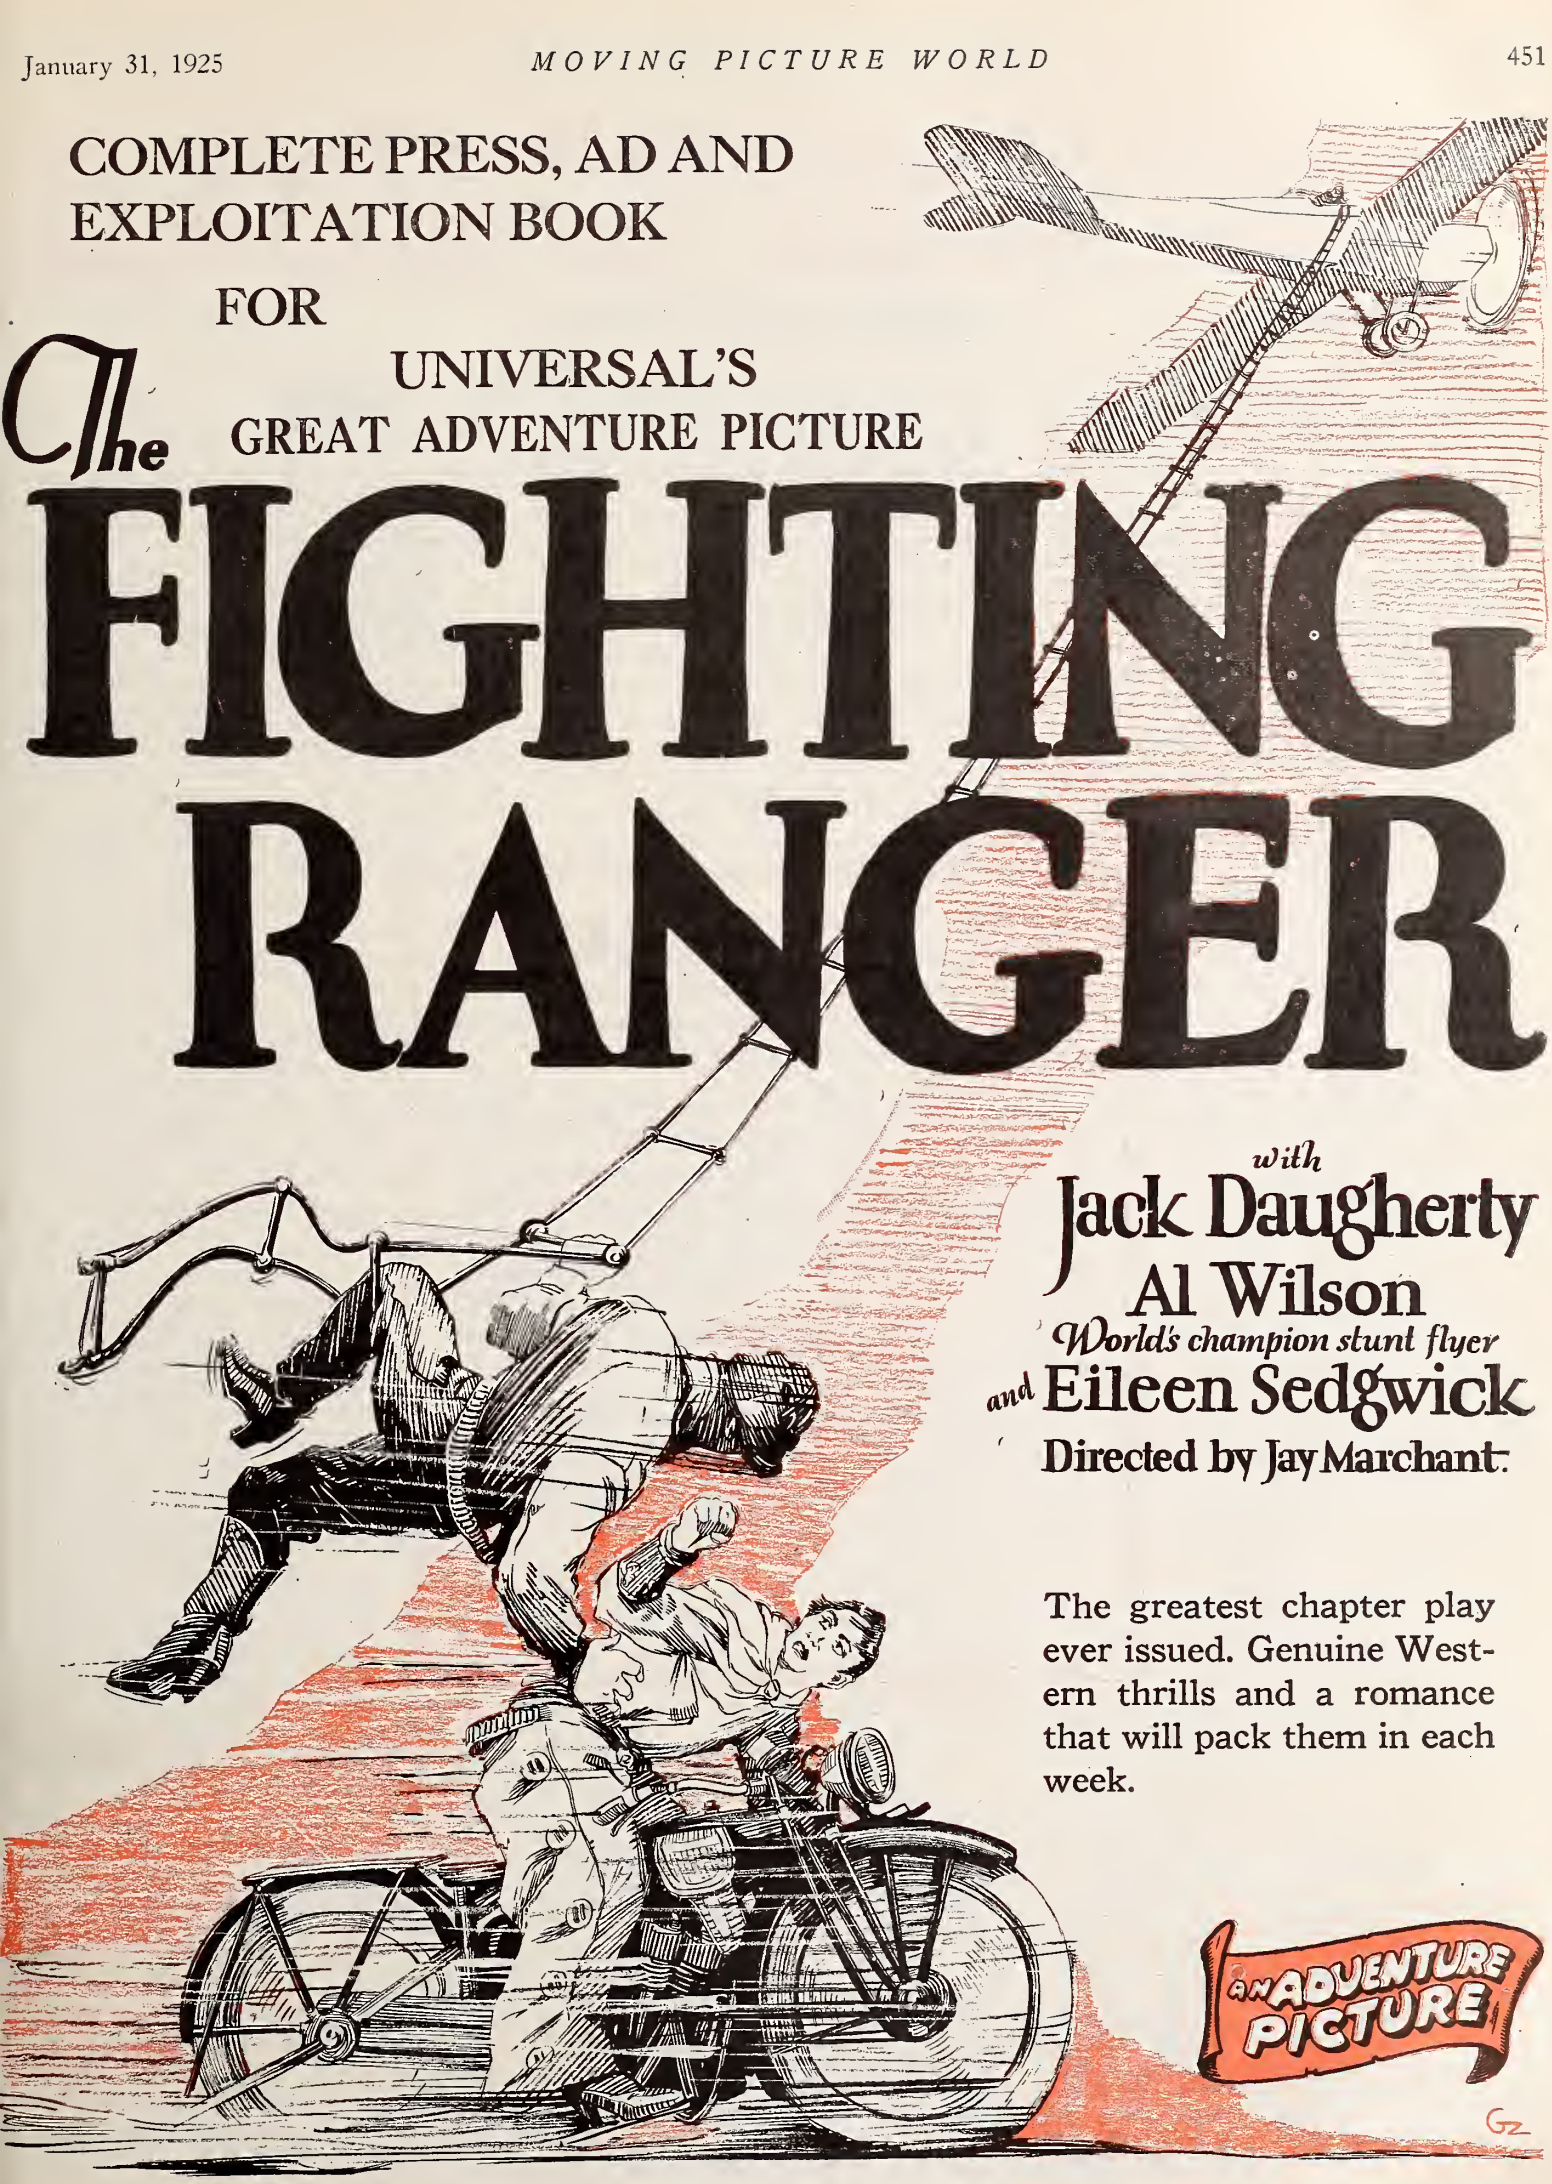
COMPLETE PRESS, AD AND EXPLOITATION BOOK

FOR

UNIVERSAL'S

GREAT ADVENTURE PICTURE

The FIGHTING RANGER



with

Jack Daugherty

Al Wilson

World's champion stunt flyer

and Eileen Sedgwick

Directed by Jay Marchant

The greatest chapter play ever issued. Genuine Western thrills and a romance that will pack them in each week.

AN ADVENTURE PICTURE

GZ

Exploit the Chapter Play and You Collect Not Once—But Fifteen Times

BY EPES WINTHROP SARGENT

THE ideal theatrical program is, or should be, very much like a well-edited magazine. It should carry something of interest to everyone, and no editor would omit from his contents page at least one continued story, to hold the reader-interest from issue to issue.

Editors are keenly alive to the circulation-holding interest in the continued story, but too many exhibitors appear to regard the serial and its cousin, the chapter play, as a necessary evil or a concession to convention, feeling that the feature will carry the show.

Nothing ever was less true than this widespread reliance on the drawing power of the long feature, and the manager who does not sell, and sell intensively, every item of his program, is losing that proportion of his prospective receipts. He cannot make the most money until he sells every program item.

The trouble is that the patron comes into a theatre and buys a ticket good for the entire entertainment. He does not specify that he wants especially to see the comedy, the news reel or the chapter play. He just pays for a ticket, goes inside, sees what he desires and either enjoys or endures the rest.

As a result the entire receipts are credited to the feature by the short-visioned manager. He does not realize that an aged news reel or an inferior chapter play may be the reason for lessened ticket sales rather than the failure of the feature to draw.

The chapter play is as much of an asset as the eight reel super-feature, IF IT IS HANDLED RIGHT. More than that, the chapter play will bring in business week after week, once it is launched. It is not an appeal of the moment. The effort expended in putting it over does not become void when the reels are returned to the exchange. Properly sold in its first chapters, the chapter play will hold business over from week to week, regardless of the appeal of the feature.

In this respect the chapter play is much like the local stock company. A well handled company of fairly good players will make money. A really good company can fight the strongest visiting opposition, because the players are all old friends; each with his or her loyal following.

And so it comes that the same players, week after week, will draw to the theatre a steadier patronage than the star who may come perhaps every six or eight weeks.

"The Fighting Ranger," an Adventure Picture, released through the physical distributing system of Universal, offers two favorites in Eileen Sedgwick and Jack Daugherty, with a by no means secondary star in Al Wilson, a stunt aviator.

There is no necessity for advertising these players. They are known. But there is real reason for advertising their appearance in a new romantic series and advertising to the limit, remembering that the same effort used to put over a feature will work here for nearly four months, for once the chapter play is started the remaining advertising need be slight. Reversing the old phrase, it is not the upkeep that costs, and so it will pay the alert manager to give intensive handling to the first two or three chapters, and particularly to the first.

Advertising should commence on "The Fighting Ranger" several weeks ahead of the first showing, with slides and newspaper items as well as pictorial paper.

Get over the idea of the story you will have to offer, and sell all of the angles. Cash in on the popularity of the stars, but don't give it all to them. There are plenty of others in the main cast who are favorites of the fans. Use all of the names. If you can identify them with some of your earlier hits, just tell that this man was with this picture and that with some other.

Then start in to lay the foundation for the story itself. You'll have plenty of material in this press book. Tell of the border location, where the desperados gather, ready to flee into Mexico or back into the States according to which law officer is in sight.

Tell of John Marshall's long hide out, not from justice, but from the injustice of the political pull and biased jury. Tell of his hidden retreat in the fastness of the border mountains, and of his villainous foreman, who deliberately plans to ruin him, knowing that he dare not cross to the American side to check up.

And play strong on the hidden treasures of the Indians. One of the big features of the story is a long-hidden Aztec treasure, hidden in the days of the Incas and now guarded jealously by Komi, the last of his race.

Incidentally tell that this role is played by Frank Lanning, the first player to gain fame as an impersonator of Indians in the days when he was a member of the old Kalem stock company, and the anxious inquirer used to write in to ask if he really was an Indian. Lanning plays a small but important part, and he is worth a special mention in most of your stories.

But the story is the main item, and here you have a well developed story, working to a climax at the end of each chapter. In one episode, the fifth, there is a splendidly realistic break in a huge irrigation dam that will appeal to even the most exacting seeker after thrills. In another crisis a brush fire starts from the neglected camp fire of the rustlers. It not only makes an exciting chapter end, but if you work in with the scout masters—and with forest rangers, if you are so situated—you can get an extra advertising kick out of this and work up a real fire prevention stunt that will bring in late comers and mean that much more money to you. This comes sufficiently early in the play to do you some good, and outside of the large cities you will find the fire wardens more than willing to co-operate with you.

Of course you will not overlook the aeroplane stunting that runs through the picture. The plane is not dragged in. An ex-aviator is working for Marshall. He salvages a wrecked plane, and thereafter he puts it to good use.

Don't work too hard on the stunts, sell them through their natural occurrence in the play.

And if you have not tried the attendance card, you are overlooking one of the best bets. Issue cards to all who attend the first showing. The cards have spaces for each of the additional chapters, and your doorman punches each date as the holder presents his card. Cards fully punched at the end of the run are good for souvenirs, generally a pass to the first chapter of the next play and some small gift. The cost of the latter need not be large and you can well afford the cost in exchange for the regular attendance. Call it "The Fighting Ranger's Club." Now and then you can advertise that "members" can attend some other performance at a reduced rate. It will all help to put it over.

But unless you work the chapter play as hard as the feature, you are losing money.

Note:—The newspaper ads in this section were prepared under the supervision of Ben H. Grimm, advertising manager of Moving Picture World.

The fifty exploitation suggestions were prepared under the supervision of Tom Waller, of Moving Picture World's staff.

The newspaper publicity stories were prepared under the supervision of Charles Hastings, of Moving Picture World's staff.

THE end and aim of the motion picture trade publication should be to help sell seats for the the exhibitor. We would welcome the day when every single page of text, and every page of advertising, were devoted to no other aim.

Herewith we believe we are helping to bring about that day. And the co-operation of Universal Pictures Corporation is playing an important part. Universal has contracted for the space necessary, the services of our staff have been contributed, to an end that marks a radical step in the scope of film trade papers—the publication of a COMPLETE CAMPAIGN BOOK as an integral part of the publication.

Moving Picture World's staff has worked with a free hand, an enthusiasm inspired by the idea, and a sincere desire to be of service. We leave the result in your hands with confidence.

Robert E. Welsh

50 WAYS TO BOOST BUSINESS FOR "THE FIGHTING RANGER"

1. BLOTTERS

Select a good action cut from the press book and have a quantity of inexpensive blotters printed in red with copy similar to the following: "This is just one of the many thrills in 'THE FIGHTING RANGER,' the Adventure Picture of Thrills. See it at the CAMEO THEATRE every Tuesday and Wednesday." These blotters should be placed in banks, schools, offices, etc.

2. MILK BOTTLE TAGS

Small size shipping tags printed up like this: "Purebest milk is healthy. Use plenty of it! Also try our Meadowgold butter and other dairy products. For good, thrilling entertainment see 'The Fighting Ranger,' Cameo Theatre, Tonight." Arrange with a local dairy to attach these tags so that they will appear the morning of your showing.

3. TELEPHONE TAG

A similar tag only in bright colors can be easily hung over the mouth piece of telephones. Copy as follows: "The voice with the smile wins. A show full of thrills pleases —see 'The Fighting Ranger,' Cameo Theatre, Now."

4. LIGHT HANGER

Light-weight cardboard with a hole punched in one corner for string. Print the copy so that the whole card, when hung up, will appear in "diamond shape." The copy should be short, like: "If you want all the thrills of the West see 'The Fighting Ranger,' Cameo Theatre, Tuesday and Wednesday of each week."

5. STREET BALLYHOO

A cowboy dressed in true western style with large hat, chaps, revolver belt and loud red flannel shirt should be engaged to distribute circus heralds on each day you have an episode of "The Fighting Ranger" playing in your theatre.

6. THRILLS OF THE EPISODES

Episode 1.	Airplane wreck. Fall over cliff of horse and wagon.
Episode 2.	Fight on side of mountain. Dynamiting entrance to gap.
Episode 3.	Drop by rope ladder from airplane to motorcycle.
Episode 4.	Fight on rocks and fall into river. The arrest of the rustlers.
Episode 5.	The trial of Marshall. The stolen check.
Episode 6.	Getting the secret service man out of the way. The cattle theft.
Episode 7.	Parachute jump from crippled airplane. Cabin pushed over precipice into water.
Episode 8.	The cattle stampede.
Episode 9.	The map to the hidden mine is found. Trapped in the well.
Episode 10.	The map is stolen again. The topaz in evil hands.
Episode 11.	Discovery of treasure. Airplane wreck.
Episode 12.	The fight in the cave. The capture.

7. PAPER NAPKINS

An old stunt but it never fails to ring the bell. The paper napkins are very inexpensive and every drug store, soda fountain and small confectioner will be glad to get them; also small restaurants.

8. LAWN STICK-UPS

Print cards about 10x5 inches with the following copy: "'Good Morning!' see 'The Fighting Ranger' at the Cameo Theatre tonight." Tack these cards on a sharp pointed stick and have them stuck on lawns at night.

9. PAPER SACKS

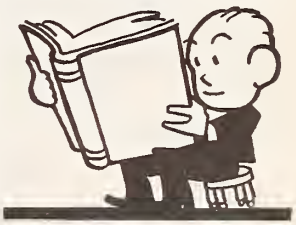
The small grocer and fruit dealer will be glad to get paper sacks and furthermore will use them. A pair of tickets will see to that. Print the sacks with billing of "The Fighting Ranger," play date, and also use a good thrill ad-cut from press sheet.

10. AUTO STICKERS

A small sticker about 2 inches square printed in red can be sniped on windshields of autos that are parked along the streets. This sticker should read: "A Summons! — to see 'The Fighting Ranger' at the Cameo Theatre Tonight."

11. MISSPELLED WORDS

Arrange a tie-up with your local newspaper to run a misspelled word contest. A special page of ads with one or two misspelled words in each merchant's ad will make the readers root out the words to win free tickets. Run your ad in the center. The newspaper will be glad to cooperate, as they will get to sell the extra space.



12. HERALDS IN NEWSPAPERS

Get all your newsdealers to insert heralds in the papers they have for sale on the day of your showing. This can be fixed, usually, for a pairs of tickets. Arrangements with the circulation manager of your daily paper might also furnish an opportunity to insert them in all locally delivered papers.

13. LAUNDRY BOARDS

The cheapest grade of pasteboard cut 17½ x 8½ inches is used by most laundries to wrap shirts around before returning them to the owner. Offer to furnish these boards for the privilege of the ad. Use a scene cut or thrill cut from the press sheet with complete billing. Copy: "Our good work no doubt thrills you, but for real western thrills see 'The Fighting Ranger' at the Cameo on Tuesdays and Wednesdays of each week."

14. KODAK TIE-UP

Take some of the best stills to stores selling kodaks and offer to help them arrange a good window display. A card should accompany the display, reading: "These pictures were taken by an Eastman Kodak. They are the thrills from 'The Fighting Ranger,' Now Playing, Cameo Theatre."

15. RED OVERPRINT ON NEWSPAPER

Get a quantity of old newspapers and have them overprinted in large red type: "EXTRA! EXTRA! AUTOMOBILE GOES OVER CLIFF! AIRPLANE WRECK! CABIN FALLS OVER PRECIPICE WITH GIRL INSIDE! See All These Thrills in 'The Fighting Ranger,' Now Playing, Cameo Theatre."

(Continued on page 455)

(Adv)

(The exploitation suggestions in this campaign book were prepared under the supervision of Tom Waller, of Moving Picture World's staff.)

"Fighting Ranger" Has 15 Treats In Each of 15 Exciting Episodes

"The Fighting Ranger" An Excitement Picture

Dashing Jack Daugherty and the Dazzling Eileen Sedgwick Are Featured in Fred McConnell's Story of the Southwest Cattle Country

AT A GLANCE

Title	"The Fighting Ranger"
Brand	An Excitement Picture
Stars	Eileen Sedgwick, Jack Daugherty
Type of Story	Vigorously Dramatic Story of Romance and Intrigue of Southwest Cattle Country
Directed by	Jay Marchant
Story by	Fred J. McConnell and Geo. W. Pyper
Scenario by	Henry Goodman
Photography by	Howard Oswald
Time	The Present
Locale	Arizona Along Mexican Border

Thumb Nail Theme

Fifteen years before the story opens, John Marshall, a prosperous cattle raiser had shot a man. He knows the act justifiable, but because of the political influence of his victim he felt that his only recourse is to flee. Taking his little daughter he hides himself in a fastness of the mountains that constitute part of his great ranch. The only man he trusts in the outside world is "Topez" Taggart, a political boss and all-around tricky citizen, who really is trying to get Marshall's ranch because of knowledge that on it is buried a fabulous treasure guarded by an aged Yaqui, last of his tribe. "Bud" Hughes, one-time aviator now a tramp, has attached himself to Marshall's hiding place personnel which included also, Miguel, a faithful Mexican. Into the hiding place there drops one day Terrence O'Rourke, a forest ranger with a double mission, who because of a wound, had lost control of his aeroplane. Marshall's daughter, Mary, grown to young womanhood nurses the young man back to health and from then on he becomes her father's and her protector in a long series of disheartening experiences at the hands of Taggart and his tools.

The Cast

Terrence O'Rourke	Jack Daugherty
Mary Marshall	Eileen Sedgwick
John Marshall	William Welsh
"Topaz" Taggart	Bud Osborne
Miguel Cordero	Charles Avery
Bud Hughes	Al Wilson
Komi	Frank Lanning
Ramon	Sam Polo
"Buck"	Slim Cole
Stella Montrose	Gladys Roy

Editor's Note—Charles E. Hastings, veteran New York newspaperman, and member of Moving Picture World's staff, has supervised the preparation of all newspaper and program readers for this campaign book on "The Fighting Ranger."

SCENE FROM
THE FIGHTING RANGER
AN ADVENTURE PICTURE
with JACK DAUGHERTY
(Scene Cut No. 4)

Play Up These Stars In Your Section

MISSOURI—JACK DAUGHERTY

Our own Jack Daugherty has achieved stardom in the movies and manager ..... of the ..... theatre promises the first episode of a fifteen chapter adventure picture, "The Fighting Ranger, beginning next .... at the ..... theatre. Eileen Sedgwick and Al Wilson, the foremost stunt aviator, are in the cast.

TEXAS, GALVESTON—EILEEN SEDGWICK

Our Eileen Sedgwick, one of the original "Five Sedgwicks," co-stars with Jack Daugherty in the ..... theatre, next ..... according to manager ..... who has booked the fifteen episode adventure picture, "The Fighting Ranger." Al Wilson, famous stunt aviator, and a number of other favorites support.

CALIF., LOS ANGELES—AL WILSON

Al Wilson again takes to the air, and promises some of his finest thrills, beginning next ..... at the ..... theatre, when "The Fighting Ranger," an adventure picture opens. Jack Daugherty and Eileen Sedgwick co-star. Fred J. McConnell, noted serial supervisor ,is one of the authors.

MINNESOTA—FRED J. McCONNELL

Not content with supervising some of the biggest serials made in recent years, our own Fred J. McConnell has turned author and has colaboratted in writing "The Fighting Ranger," a fifteen episode adventure picture, the first episode of which will be seen at the ..... theatre next ..... Jack Daugherty and Eileen Sedgwick co-star. Al Wilson, famous stunt aviator, also is in the cast.

(Adv)

(Continued from page 453)

16. This is exploitation still No. 65, which can be obtained at your exchange. It is a tie-up with Crisco, which is sold by every grocery store under the sun.

17. A tie-up still No. Ex. 64 shows Eileen Sedgwick mixing cake batter with Aunt Jemima pancake flour.

18. Exploitation still No. 67 is a tie-up with "LUX," and will get into drug windows as well as groceries.

19. Vacuum cleaners are sold in furniture, hardware and department stores. Exploitation still No. 60 shows Eileen Sedgwick operating a "Royal" Vacuum.

These four stills are to be had in a special exploitation set. Ask your exchange.

20. CATCHLINES

Thrills—nothing else but.

Fifteen episodes of two reels each—one episode each week.

A great all-star cast including Jack Daugherty, Eileen Sedgwick and Al Wilson, world's champion stunt aviator.

A double action serial of the Western plains.

A novel adventure picture of the big West.

Each episode contains new thrills.

Start at the beginning and see each episode.

21. AUTO STREET BALLYHOO

Arrange with a local automobile dealer to send out a new car with three-sheet cut-outs of the Fighting Ranger on each side. The banner to read: "Here is the newest model Chevrolet. The newest Western Serial, 'The Fighting Ranger,' is now playing at the Cameo Theatre."

22. SHADOWBOX

Obtain a large box and insert a set of lobby cards in the back. Cut a large hole in the front of box and place box in a vacant window with a card on front. The card copy to read: "Stop! Look at the thrills encountered by the 'Fighting Ranger,' now playing, Cameo Theatre."

23. MAIL CARD

Send out regulation 1 cent Government postal cards printed on back to your regular mailing list. These cards should carry short copy like following: "T*H*R*I*L*L*S (in very large type) (in small type) 'The Fighting Ranger,' the greatest Western adventure picture ever shown at the Cameo Theatre. Every Tuesday and Wednesday."

24. DANCE HALL

Tie-up with a dance hall to pull off a "Fighting Ranger" ball, where every one is to come in real wild west costume. Offer a suitable prize for the best costume and several pairs of tickets for honorable mention prizes. Decorate the hall with "Fighting Ranger" paper.

25. STETSON HATS

Arrange with men's stores selling Stetson hats to make a neat display of same, and place a large Western hat in center with a photo of Jack Daugherty and thrill still. Card copy: "This is the kind of a hat that is worn by Jack Daugherty in 'The Fighting Ranger,' Cameo Theatre, Now."

26. SIDEWALK STENCIL

Have a local sign painter make up a stencil about the size of a No. 11 shoe, and stencil the sidewalks of your town with all the tracks from each direction leading to your theatre. The curious public will soon find where they are leading to. You can tie-up with the stunt by mentioning it in your ads.

27. MILK BOTTLE TOPS

Obtain round gummed stickers and get the permission of a local dairyman to paste them on top of the paper tops of his milk bottles. Copy: "Order an extra bottle of milk! See more good shows! See 'The Fighting Ranger' at the Cameo Tuesdays and Wednesdays of each week."

28. CHILDREN'S CARDS

Print up a small card with fifteen numbers on the sides and billing in the center. Offer a suitable reward to every child who sees every episode of "The Fighting Ranger." Each time they come to see an episode they are to bring the card, which is punched by the doorkeeper.

29. KID'S COWBOY —INDIAN PARADE

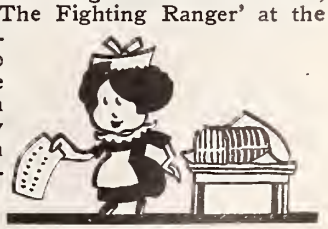
Offer the grade school boys a prize for the best cowboy or Indian makeup, which must be of his own origin. Assemble the crowd at your theatre in the morning, take their picture (for paper), then parade them through the main streets with banners announcing "The Fighting Ranger." Offer a toy cowboy suit as first prize and an Indian suit as second prize, and let the gang see the show free.

30. UMBRELLA BALLYHOO

A man dressed as a cowboy should be seen on all the principal streets, with an umbrella lettered in white paint: "Rain or shine 'The Fighting Ranger' is the best Western Adventure Picture ever shown at the Cameo Theatre. Every Tuesday and Wednesday."

31. INSERT IN BREAD

Insert a slip in every loaf of bread turned out by some large baker. The insert should read as follows: "Let the children eat plenty of Bakeright bread—it is good for them. Also, let them see 'The Fighting Ranger' at the Cameo Theatre. This slip will admit one child free when accompanied by a parent with paid admission."



(Continued on Page 457)

Sky Stunts Make Snappy Newspaper "Copy"

Al Wilson Prefers Studio to Sky

When a man has the ability to be an actor, wants to be an actor, and just an actor, but cannot find any one who will be satisfied by his "just acting," because of the fact that he has established a reputation for unusual daring and skill as a stunt aviator—then it is tough!

At least, so believes Al Wilson, one of the cast in "The Fighting Ranger," an adventure picture starring Jack Daugherty, Eileen Sedgwick, coming to the ..... theatre next .....

It is true, Wilson has an "acting" part, but his straight character personations is made more or less incidental to the risks he takes in the air, performing some stunts conceived for this particular picture. Asked by friends why he does not quit stunting, Wilson said he is afraid to because folks might believe he has lost his nerve, and he hasn't nerve enough to combat this impression—so he keeps on doing things on an airplane thousands of feet in the air that most persons would find difficulty in doing on the ground, all the while pining to do straight acting.

"The Fighting Ranger" is a story of love, intrigue and desperate adventure in the cattle country of the Southwest. Jay Marchant, director of "The Ghost City" and "The Iron Man," was director, and the exteriors were made in and around Warner Hot Springs, a small town of romantic history in the mountain region of San Diego County.

Others in the cast are William Welsh, Bud Osborne, Charles Avery, Frank Lanning, Sam Polo, Slim Cole, and Gladys Roy.

SCENE FROM
THE FIGHTING RANGER
AN ADVENTURE PICTURE
with JACK DAUGHERTY
(Scene Cut No. 5)

Dare-Devils Promise Many Unique Thrills

Rounding up cattle by motorcycle is the daring expedient to be seen in "The Fighting Ranger," an adventure picture to be screened in the ..... theater commencing ....., with Jack Daugherty and Eileen Sedgwick co-starred.

Slim Cole, the famous motorcycle stunt rider is the man who injected this new thriller into the chapterplay. In these days of a modern West, Cole insists, "flivvers" replace the old time buckboard, tractors replace plows, and—the motorcycle replaces the horse for the modern rancher.

He ranged hills, dashed over deserts and plains, and lassoed cattle, rounded them up, and even bulldogged a steer from his motorcycle. He attempted some phases of this in "The Ghost City," in which he made a sensational ride that crashed through a fence, and fought a batle with another man on a careening motor.

Since then he has practiced every phase of a cowboy's work while mounted on his gasoline steed.

Al Wilson, celebrated stunt aviator, added thrills of the air to thrills of the earth, making a change from one plane to another, staging a battle in a plane, and performing several rescues from the air.

Others in the cast which portrays this thrilling story of love, intrigue and adventure in the cattle country of the Southwest are William Welsh, Bud Osborne, Charles Avery, Frank Lanning, Sam Polo and Gladys Roy. Jay Marchant directed.

Advance Notes

Plant One Week Before

Manager ..... of the ..... promises an adventure picture of fifteen episodes, to begin next ..... at his ..... theatre, titled "The Fighting Ranger." Jack Daugherty co-stars with Eileen Sedgwick. A series of swift thrills are promised, dealing with the Southwestern cattle country. Al Wilson, daring stunt aviator, also has an important role in this series which was written by Fred J. McConnell and George W. Pyper.

Three Days Before

William Welsh, who has had 500 screen children, adds another to his film family in "The Fighting Ranger," a fifteen episode Adventure picture starring Jack Daugherty and Eileen Sedgwick. Welsh is remembered even to this day for his portrayal of the father in "Over the Hill." "The Fighting Ranger," a thrilling story of life in the Southwest cattle country, will open with its first episode at the ..... theater commencing .....

The Day Before

Eileen Sedgwick, co-starred with Jack Daugherty in "The Fighting Ranger," fifteen episode adventure picture, coming to the .... theater next ..... was on the stage when she was three years old, a member of the "The Five Sedgwicks." "The Fighting Ranger" is a stirring story of life in the cattle country of the Southwest.

Follow With One of Each Before Future Episodes

Fred J. McConnell, noted chapter play director, and George W. Pyper collaborated in writing "The Fighting Ranger," the ..... episode of which will come to the ..... theater next ..... Jack Daugherty and Eileen Sedgwick are co-starred in this romantic drama of life in the cattle country of the Southwest.

Al Wilson is one of the cast of "The Fighting Ranger," an adventure picture, the next episode of which comes tomorrow. Jack Daugherty and Eileen Sedgwick are co-starred. Wilson is one of the country's most famous stunt aviators, and is remembered for his daring in "The Ghost City." "The Fighting Ranger" is a thrilling story of romance and adventure in the Southwest cattle country. Jay Marchant directed. The cast includes William Welsh, Bud Osborne, Charles Avery, Frank Lanning, Sam Polo, Slim Cole and Gladys Roy.

Slim Cole, one of the cast of "The Fighting Ranger," adventure picture chapter play co-starring Jack Daugherty and Eileen Sedgwick, is known far and wide as "The Demon of the Motorcycle," because of the recklessness he has displayed, both before the camera and in exhibitions. Another episode is promised next .....

Gladys Roy, so far as is known the only woman stunt aviator, is one of the cast of "The Fighting Ranger," an adventure picture, the next episode of which will come to the .... theater next ..... week with Jack Daugherty and Eileen Sedgwick co-starring. Miss Roy began her air career by parachute jumping. She soon acquired fame as a wing-walker, plane change expert and other feats of similar hazardousness.

Jay Marchant, director of "The Fighting Ranger," picture the ..... episode of which will come to the ..... next ..... with Jack Daugherty and Eileen Sedgwick as co-stars, made many chapters of the picture while suffering from a broken knee cap as the result of an automobile accident on location. Miss Sedgwick was slightly injured in the same accident. Al Wilson stunt aviator is one of the cast.

Eileen Sedgwick, who co-starred with Jack Daugherty in "The Fighting Ranger," an adventure picture, the ..... episode of which comes to the ..... theater next ....., is famous in the Hollywood motion picture colony for her skill in embroidery. In her numerous location trips to the wild places Miss Sedgwick finds ample opportunity to indulge in her favorite sport.

Jack Daugherty, co-starred with Eileen Sedgwick in "The Fighting Ranger," the ..... episode of which will be screened at the .... theater commencing ....., has evolved a new system of exercising. He uses a horse for "apparatus," and while the animal is galloping limbers himself into all manner of positions using arms, legs and back for leverage.

Sam Polo, brother of Eddie Polo, serial star, plays one of the supporting roles in "The Fighting Ranger," adventure picture co-starring Jack Daugherty and Eileen Sedgwick, which will be screened in the ..... theater next ....Ray Marchant directed.

(Adv.)

(Continued from page 455)

32. SPECIAL NEWSPAPER SHOWING

Get your local newspaper men steamed up on this great adventure serial. Show them a couple of episodes or more, give them a little smoker and get real chummy with the whole gang. Incidently think up a few news angles and have them ready for the boys so that you can get a story out of them.

33. WANT AD DEPARTMENT

Get in touch with the promotion man of the Want Ad Department of your daily paper and plan a stunt whereby you will admit a certain number of people daily and the people are to be notified through the Male Help and Female Help Wanted columns. The newspaper will give publicity to the stunt. The want ad should read: "Wanted—Miss Elizabeth Murphy is requested to call at the Cameo Theatre Box Office and Receive Two Tickets to 'The Fighting Ranger'."

34. TELEPHONE CALLS

Make arrangements to have a girl call up residential numbers on the phone and simply say: "You must see 'The Fighting Ranger' at the Cameo Theatre." More girls can be employed if necessary — it is just a question of how extensively you may wish to use this stunt. One girl can call many numbers in two or three days.

35. TOY DEPARTMENTS

Tie up with 5c. and 10c. stores, toy stores and toy departments of department stores to make displays of cowboy and Indian play suits, toy guns, etc. Card to read: "Boys will need this equipment to play 'The Fighting Ranger.' See 'The Fighting Ranger' at the Cameo Theatre every Tuesday and Wednesday." Use stills from the picture also.

36. AMERICAN BOY

The American Boy magazine will carry National Advertising on "The Fighting Ranger," advertising the games and the picture. Place a copy of this ad in your lobby and get your newsdealer to make a display in his window alongside of stills from the production. Card copy: "'The Fighting Ranger,' advertised in The American Boy, is now being shown at the Cameo Theatre."

37. PUNCH LINES

A thrill a minute.

The greatest serial adventure picture ever made.

Each episode better than the one preceding it.

Tonight is "Fighting Ranger" Night at the Blank Theatre.

Are you a "Fighting Ranger" Fan?

Every thrill in "The Fighting Ranger" is a new one.

Take the family — tonight is "Fighting Ranger" Night.

38. SNIPES

Have snipes printed about the size of ½ sheet dates or about 18 inches long and 7 inches high. Copy: "'The Fighting Ranger,' Cameo Theatre. Every Tuesday and Wednesday." Snipe these on fences, lumber, building material, back ends of wagons, along curbs, or any small available space.

39. BOYS' CONTEST

Offer a suitable prize for all boys in the grade schools who can make the best lariat and who can show the most skill in its use. Hold a separate contest in each school and then an elimination contest to see who is the winner. It will be an easy matter to get some one to judge this contest that understands the use of the lariat. This contest will furnish you no end of material from which you can get good, live newspaper stories, for this is real news. Most newspapers will also run a cut of this stunt.

40. GIRLS' CONTEST

A special prize for the best original story about a horse, not to exceed 500 words, can be offered to girls in the grade schools. Appoint a committee of teachers and one newspaper man to act as judges and you will get some good publicity. It will be a good idea to run a picture of the winner as well as the story in the newspaper.

41. REWARD

Have plain hand bills printed, black ink on white paper; use scene cut showing Daugherty's head. Copy: "$1,000 reward for the capture of John Marshall, fugitive from justice; also for half portion of map showing road to hidden gold mine. For further particulars see 'The Fighting Ranger,' Cameo Theatre."

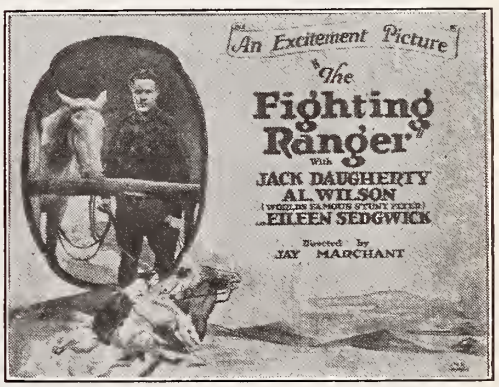
42. TOOTHPICK CARDS

Have small cards printed with three toothpicks tipped on with glue; distribute to small restaurants. Copy to read: "Pick out a good show for tonight. See 'THE FIGHTING RANGER,' Cameo Theatre."

43. DRINKING CUPS

Distribute a quantity of paper drinking cups of the cheaper kind to offices and public places with this copy printed on them: "Drink up! Then go to see 'The Fighting Ranger,' Cameo Theatre."

44. SLIDE



45. RAILWAY TICKET OFFICE

Arrange with your city ticket office to place a large card in their window with stills of "The Fighting Ranger" and folders of their line. Copy: "If you are going West take the Mo. Pac. Line. If you want to see a good Western picture of thrills, see 'The Fighting Ranger,' Cameo Theatre, Now."

46. SPECIAL NIGHTS FOR ADVENTURE PICTURES

Play "The Fighting Ranger" on the same night each week so that you can plug that night in the people's mind. Let the night be known as "Fighting Ranger" night.

(Continued on page 463)

POSTERS AND LOBBY

STOCK THREE SHEET
The FIGHTING RANGER
WITH
JACK DAUGHERTY
AL WILSON World's Champion Trick Flyer
EILEEN SEDGWICK
"The Fighting Ranger"
THRILL posters with a sure seat-selling smash—paper with a box-office wallop that warrants your using every available inch of space. Put real showman's pressure on with posters — they'll sell every seat you have.
"The Fighting Ranger"
With JACK DAUGHERTY
AL WILSON
EILEEN SEDGWICK
JACK DAUGHERTY
AL WILSON
EILEEN SEDGWICK
"The Fighting Ranger"
STOCK ONE SHEET

(Adv)

SMASHES TO PUT IT OVER

A GREAT LOBBY DISPLAY ON EPISODE NO. 1

YOUR lobby is your sample case. Show 'em what you've got! Give them samples of the world of action, thrills, speed, romance, ADVENTURE that you have to sell. They'll buy—and you'll profit!

Newspaper Ads that

THE FIGHTING RANGER
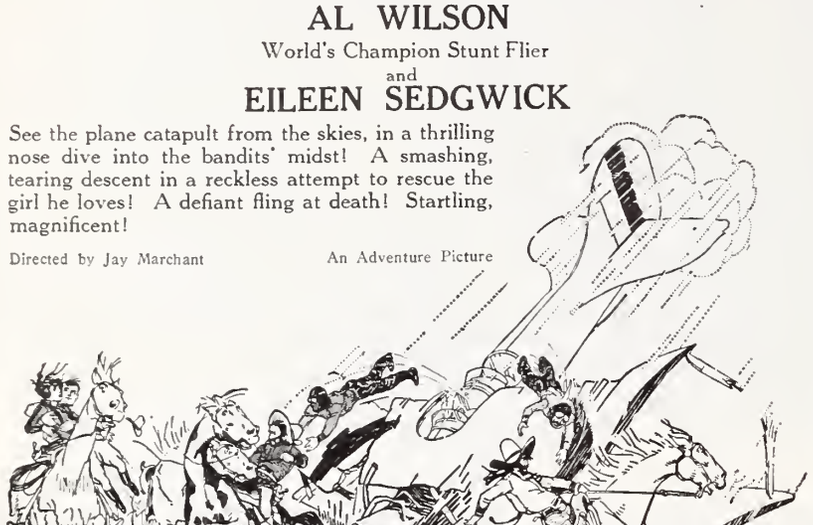
featuring
JACK DAUGHERTY
AL WILSON
World's Champion Stunt Flier
and
EILEEN SEDGWICK

See the plane catapult from the skies, in a thrilling nose dive into the bandits' midst! A smashing, tearing descent in a reckless attempt to rescue the girl he loves! A defiant fling at death! Startling, magnificent!

Directed by Jay Marchant An Adventure Picture



Ad Cut No. 10 (3 COLUMN) Cut 60c.; Mat 20c.

THE
FIGHTING RANGER

Packed With Thrills!

Suspended in mid-air, hanging by a slender ladder from the racing plane, comes the sudden jump to the man on the motorcycle! See this stern, ruthless chase, with men mad with courage, done as only Al Wilson,-the world's champion stunt aviator, can do it.

with an all-star cast featuring
JACK DAUGHERTY
AL WILSON
World's Champion Stunt Flier
and
EILEEN SEDGWICK
Directed by Jay Marchant

An Adventure Picture

Ad Cut No. 7 (2 COLUMN) Cut 50c.; Mat 15c.

Caught in the Raging Forest Fire!

Falling trees—scorching ground-relentless, mounting flames—and but one avenue of escape in sight! Can he make it—with life and love at stake? One of the most exciting moments in this absorbing thrilling serial.

Directed by Jay Marchant

Ad Cut No. 1 Cut 25c.; Mat 10c. (1 COLUMN)

Hanging by sheer grit from a steep cliff!

With the full weight of the girl clinging desperately to him, he hangs by the grasp of his fingers alone! It is a precarious moment, tense, thrilling. A slip and down they plunge into the ravenous canyon! See this breath-taking scene, one of many, in a serial packed with action and throbbing excitement

featuring
JACK DAUGHERTY
AL WILSON
World's Champion Stunt Flier
and
EILEEN SEDGWICK
Directed by Jay Marchant

THE
FIGHTING RANGER

Ad Cut No. 3 Cut 25c.; Mat 10c. (1 COLUMN)

The FIGHTING RANGER
featuring
Jack Daugherty
Al Wilson
World's Champion Stunt Flier
and
Eileen Sedgwick

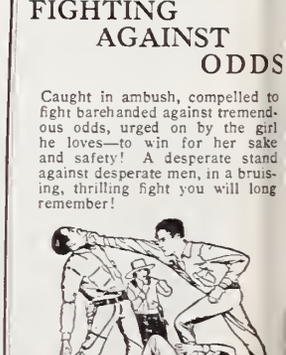
Directed by Jay Marchant

Ad Cut No. 9 Cut 25c.; Mat 10c. (1 COLUMN)

Order cuts by number from your Universal Exchange!

FIGHTING AGAINST ODDS

Caught in ambush, compelled to fight barehanded against tremendous odds, urged on by the girl he loves—to win for her sake and safety! A desperate stand against desperate men, in a bruising, thrilling fight you will long remember!



Directed by Jay Marchant

Ad Cut No. 8 Cut 25c.; Mat 10c. (1 COLUMN)

(Adv.)

NOTE: The ads as reproduced above are but two-thirds in standard column widths of 2 in. for single column vill fight for business!

THROW HIM, COWBOY!

The tougher they come the harder they fall—that's the Fighting Ranger's slogan. And they come tough in this thrilling serial. Never has a man had to go through more adventures, more scathing fire to win his way through almost insurmountable obstacles. A fast, glorious tale of the vast West, in which the World's Champion Stunt Aviator, Al Wilson, makes you gasp at his recklessness.

THE FIGHTING RANGER

featuring

JACK DAUGHERTY

AL WILSON

World's Champion Stunt Flier

and

EILEEN SEDGWICK

Directed by Jay Marchant An Adventure Picture

Ad Cut No. 5
Cut 50c.; Mat 15c.
(2 COLUMN)

Ad Cut No. 2
Cut 30c.; Mat 15c.
(2 COLUMN)

A Smashing Western!

The cliff gives way—over it the auto speeds at breakneck pace down, down it falls with its human baggage! What can save them? One of the tense moments in this thrill-crammed serial.

The Fighting Ranger

With an all-star cast featuring

JACK DAUGHERTY and AL WILSON

World's Champion Stunt Flier

and

EILEEN SEDGWICK

Directed by Jay Marchant An Adventure Picture

Type Ads

COMING!

like a breeze
from the vast West to thrill and delight you!

THE
FIGHTING RANGER

featuring

JACK DAUGHERTY
AL WILSON

World's Champion Stunt Flier
and
EILEEN SEDGWICK

Directed by Jay Marchant

Not one idle moment in this exciting chapterplay! There's action from the word go—sustained and thrilling to the very last episode! Chock full of daring, packed with wild riding and hair-raising aviation stunts! ACTION—and plenty of it!

There's plenty of ACTION in

THE FIGHTING RANGER

featuring

JACK DAUGHERTY and AL WILSON

World's Champion Stunt Flier

and

EILEEN SEDGWICK

Directed by Jay Marchant

MAGNIFICENT! THRILLING!

Wild with rage and fright the horses are headed straight for the cliff, carrying the girl he loves! The plunge means death, oblivion! Stop them he must! Faster he goes! They are on the brink! Can he save her? See this harrowing, daring ride, the most thrilling you have ever seen!

Ad Cut No. 4 Cut 25c.; Mat 10c. (1 COLUMN)

The FIGHTING RANGER
featuring
Jack Daugherty
Al Wilson
World's Champion Stunt Flier and Eileen Sedwick
Directed by Jay Marchant
AL WILSON
JACK DAUGHERTY
EILEEN SEDGWICK
Great Stars! Daring Action!
Three of the greatest stars of all Westerns are here combined to make this thrilling, daring chapter-play. It is replete with thrills of almost impossible daring, and throbs with eloquent heart-interest. Just bubbling over with suspense and excitement!
An Adventure Picture

Ad Cut No. 6 (2 COL.) Cut 60c.; Mat 20c.

their actual size. The cuts, themselves, come in. for double, and 6 in. for three column ads!

(Adv)

Newspaper Stories With a Real Punch

Aeroplane Crashes and Rare Treasure in "Fighting Ranger"

Desperate riding, an airplane thriller and the beginning of a love affair, are some of the outstanding features of "The Fighting Ranger," adventure picture, the first episode of which was screened in the ..... theater yesterday. Jack Daugherty and Eileen Sedgwick are co-starred in this story of plotting and desperate adventure in the cattle country of the Southwest.

The one as the daughter of a man who is hiding in the seclusion of a mountain fastness from his enemies, and the other as a man sent by accident to become a potent factor in their lives, and trouble for their enemies. The stars are supported by a strong cast, which includes aviator-stuntster Al Wilson and "Slim" Cole, the motorcycle fiend.

Fear that he would not be accorded a fair trial for shooting a man in self defense has driven the father and daughter to this seclusion. Unsuspectingly, the father is the victim of the plottings of a man he trusts, the object of the plot being to obtain a treasure buried by a virtually extinct tribe of Yaqui Indians on the ranch owned by the father.

The story opens with Marshall, the rancher, portrayed by William Welsh, veteran father of the screen, fleeing from some of his enemies. He escapes and is telling his daughter of his troubles when the ranger, wounded and barely able to control his airplane, makes a disastrous landing in the canyon hiding place.

SCENE FROM "THE FIGHTING RANGER AN ADVENTURE PICTURE with JACK DAUGHERTY

(Scene Cut No. 2)

Gladys Roy Flying Now with Al Wilson

When Gladys Roy, one of the cast in "The Fighting Ranger," adventure picture soon to be screened in the ..... theater, was a high school girl in Minneapolis she accepted an invitation to take a ride in an airplane. Several thousand feet up she advanced the opinion that it wouldn't be a very dangerous thing to drop overboard attached to a parachute. The flyer dared her to do it, and the next Sunday, despite protestations of friends, "she dared."

The experience whetted her desire for more of the same. Then she met Ruth Law, famous aviator, and, encouraged by her, decided to become a professional stunt flyer. After appearing in a number of thrills at carnivals and fairs in the Middle West Miss Roy came to Los Angeles where she appeared at beach resorts. The idea was conceived of teaming Miss Roy and Al Wilson as a daredevil pair in air thrills.

"The Fighting Ranger," has as co-stars Jack Daugherty and Eileen Sedgwick. Others in the cast are William Welsh, Bud Osborne, Charles Avery, Frank Lanning, Sam Polo and Slim Cole.

EARLY BOOKING OF
"THE FIGHTING RANGER"
MEANS A LONGER
NEWSPAPER CAMPAIGN
IN YOUR LOCALITY

First Release of "Fighting Ranger" Promises Well for Adventure Series

"The Fighting Ranger," an adventure picture which unfolded its first episode on the screen in the ..... theater ....., and promises fourteen more has Jack Daugherty and Eileen Sedgwick as co-stars. Both are favorites of screen fans but this is the first time they have been cast in the same vehicle and the result is so satisfactory that it will probably continue.

The supporting cast is a strong one, the work of several having established them in a firm position in the screen world. Such names as Al Wilson, William Welsh, Bud Osborne, Charles Avery, Frank Lanning, Sam Polo and Slim Cole mean something, especially to those who have a longing for westerns. Jay Marchant directed.

Miss Sedgwick is cast as the daughter of a cattleman, who, by reason of a shooting in self defense years before the story opens, was forced to flee taking his little girl with him. He found haven in a secluded canyon on his vast range property. The only man of the outside that he trusts is really plotting against him, the object being to gain the range property on which is buried treasure, hoarded for generations by a Yaqui tribe.

One day, just after the father has escaped from some of the plotters and is telling his daughter something of his past, there comes falling into the canyon an airplane, the pilot of which collapses after making a forced landing. The daughter and this man, a forest ranger with a dual mission, fall in love, but the ranger as he leaves, promises to forget Paradise Canyon.

Shortly after this departure the daughter starts for a town to deliver to her father's supposed friend the money necessary to stave off temporarily, ruin. By arrangement of this supposed friend she is held up by bandits but the horses run away. There is some fine scenic photography, and the first episode stimulates desire to see the next.

Film Director Only Member Badly Hurt

" 'S all right boys—just a busted kneecap!"

"That's what Jay Marchant, film director, said to "the gang" that greeted the return of the Marchant chapterplay unit to Los Angeles, the chief feature of which was a terrific automobile smash from which Marchant, Jack Daugherty and Eileen Sedgwick, co-stars, emerged with nothing more serious than Marchant's fractured knee, and bruises for the others.

Marchant came limping into the studio with a smile and two crutches. The doctor's examination showed he had a double-fractured knee cap plus a series of cuts, welts and swellings.

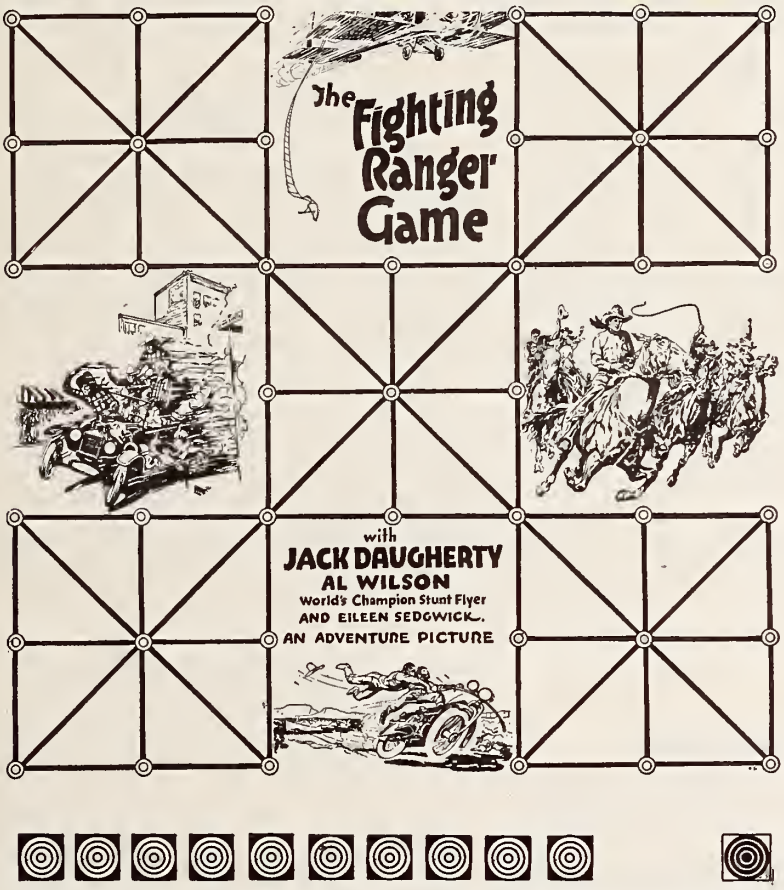
Miss Sedgwick had a few plasters to show for the tumble, which carried the three leaders of the troupe into the bottom of a deep, rocky ravine, while Daugherty merely registered "stiffness." The Marchant unit went to Warner Hot Springs for scenes of "The Fighting Ranger," an adventure picture, the first episode of which will be shown at the ..... theater next .....

However, as soon as the picture was finished the young director had to go into a hospital for several weeks; have the knee put in a cast and learn to be philosophical, as Al Wilson, famous stunt aviator, who plays in the series, suggested to him. (Adv.)

Complete Mat and Electro Service is Ready at Your Exchange

(Continued from page 457)

47 A "FIGHTING RANGER" GAME NOVELTY



HERE is one big novelty that will put over "The Fighting Ranger" with the kids. This game has been carefully prepared by a game expert and is one that furnishes much amusement to those playing it. At the same time it keeps "The Fighting Ranger" idea in front of the players. Cuts of some of the thrills illustrate the front as well as the title and complete billing. The game is about the size of the circus herald and is easy to distribute.

If you give out a few of these around the schools in the afternoon it will not be long before you have a mob of children coming to your box-office asking for them.

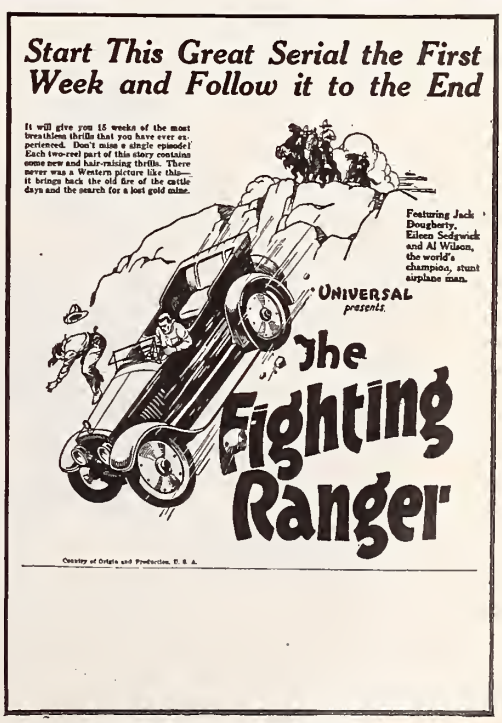
Your exchange will be supplied with these games in ample time for your distribution. The price is $3.00 per thousand.

48 A CIRCUS HERALD WITH A WALLOP!

The FIGHTING RANGER
With Al Wilson, the world's champion stunt flier, and a great cast
Starring
JACK DOUGHERTY
and EILEEN SEDGWICK
A breath-taking drama of the great West. A picture that will stir your blood and fire your enthusiasm. The thunder of pounding hoofs over mountain trails, crashing down hillsides, airplane thrills, explosions, fights, cattle thefts, discovering the lost gold mine and a love story as fresh as the great open country in which the action takes place.
Directed by Jay Marchant
A great serial
Fifteen episodes
Of Two Reels Each.

AS a good showman you know what you can do with a circus herald. Here is one that packs an awful wallop. Some of the real big thrills have been illustrated with all their speed and action. The size is 8x11½ and the herald is printed in two colors. Order enough of these heralds to cover your entire city. The copy sells them on the idea that this is a chapter-play and that they should follow it through from the start; it is therefore advisable to cover your city well in advance of the showing of First Episode.

Get these heralds from the nearest Universal Exchange. The price is $2.50 per thousand.



Start This Great Serial the First Week and Follow it to the End
It will give you 15 weeks of the most breathless thrills that you have ever experienced. Don't miss a single episode! Each two-reel part of this story contains some new and hair-raising thrills. There never was a Western picture like this—it brings back the old fire of the cattle days and the search for a lost gold mine.
Featuring Jack Dougherty, Eileen Sedgwick and Al Wilson, the world's champion stunt airplane man.
UNIVERSAL presents
The Fighting Ranger

(Continued on page 466)

(Adv)

Front Page Stuff for Your Newspapers

Movie Camera Capturing All Our Beautiful Spots

The camera is a hungry, artistic instrument. One by one the choicest spots in the country are captured, and brought to the discriminating eyes of the movie fans.

The most recent "captive" is the beautiful valley of Warner Hot Springs in the mountain region of San Diego county, California, off the famous Butterfield stage coach line, the one time only route between San Francisco and New Orleans.

To this district came director Jay Marchant with Jack Daugherty, Eileen Sedgwick, Al Wilson, the stunt aviator, and sixty others to film "The Fighting Ranger," a fifteen episode adventure picture written by Fred J. McConnell and George W. Pyper.

The crumbled ruins of one of the relay stables, an adobe structure, are existent at Warner's which is off the railroad, and in time of rain, virtually inaccessible by reason of the sticky soil. There were several occasions when it was necessary for the Marchant company to send and receive messages or material by airplane.

Once there lurked behind the boulders and in the rugged defiles of the old trail, the old time bandit who scorned to molest the chance woman passenger and who ran the risk consequent upon trying to obtain the treasure box and the valuables of the men passengers without undue violence. And using these same boulders and defiles the cast of "The Fighting Ranger," portrayed the characters of the story that the camera might record it on the screen.

"The Fighting Ranger," tells the story of an attempt to wrest from a falsely prosecuted man a vast ranch on which is buried the treasure of an extinct Yaqui tribe, and of the dangers encountered by this man's daughter and the man she loves in frustrating the plotters.

Others in the cast are William Welsh, Bud Osborne, Charles Avery, Al Wilson, Frank Lanning, Sam Polo, Slim Cole and Gladys Roy.

Stunt Airmen Supersede Robin Hood and Dick Turpin

"The modern aviator is our greatest hero!

"Robin Hood, Dick Turpin, and other notable heroes of romantic history have not accomplished all the great deeds which appeal to popular imagiation," announces Fred J. McConnell, one of the co-authors of "The Fighting Ranger," a fifteen episode adventure picture which opens at the ..... theatre, next ....., according to manager .....

"And of all the daring aviators, Al Wilson is energetically the best, because he will take any kind of a startling risk," McConnell explained.

Wilson has an important role in this series which is directed by Jay Marchant. Jack Daugherty and Eileen Sedgwick co-star. Such well known favorites as William Welsh, Charles Avery, Frank Lanning, Slim Cole and Gladys Roy support; the latter being one of the most famous feminine aviators in the country.

The story reveals the trickery of a gang of rustlers who take advantage of a man's misfortune and carry away most of his cattle. This gang also seeks to find a fabulous treasure which Indians have buried upon his ranch.

An unknown aviator drops in on the ranch, and is aided by the owner's daughter. Daugherty plays the part of the young aviator. Eileen Sedgwick is the ranch owner's daughter, and Wilson is a tramp aviator who repairs the plane and aids in the mystery.

Scene from "THE FIGHTING RANGER"
AN ADVENTURE PICTURE with JACK DAUGHERTY
(Scene Cut No. 1)

Current Notes

The old Butterworth Trail, famous in the history of the West shortly after the discovery of gold in California, or a section of it at least, constitutes the background for some of the thrilling scenes in "The Fighting Ranger," adventure picture, co-starring Jack Daugherty and Eileen Sedgwick, with Al Wilson, now being screened in the ..... theater. Warner Hot Springs, in Southern California, not far from San Diego is the spot in question, and here pony express riders and later stage coaches swirled to and fro from the East to Los Angeles and San Francisco.

"Life here is tough," Eileen Sedgwick, co-starred with Jack Daugherty in "The Fighting Ranger," adventure picture now being shown in the ..... theater, wrote to her father in Hollywood while she was on location at Warner Hot Springs, making the picture. The weather was cold and the sixty persons working under direction of Jay Marchant were living in rough cabins and tents during the filming.

Hurled from a buckboard careening along behind frightened horses a girl is thrown into a brawling river, from which she is saved by the rider of a racing horse, who throws his lariat just in time. This is one of the thrilling scenes in "The Fighting Ranger," adventure picture now being shown in the ..... theater with Jack Daugherty and Eileen Sedgwick as co-stars. Others in the cast are William Welsh, Bud Osborne, Charles Avery, Al Wilson, Frank Lanning, Sam Polo, Slim Cole and Gladys Roy.

Gladys Roy, blithesome and responsible for some of the airplane thrills in "The Fighting Ranger," adventure picture being shown at the ..... theater, became an aviatrix as the result of a dare when she was a school girl. She dropped from an airplane via the parachute route and liked the sensation so well that she became a professional stunt woman. "The Fighting Ranger," co-stars Jack Daugherty and Eileen Sedgwick.

Jack Daugherty, co-starred with Eileen Sedgwick in "The Fighting Ranger," adventure picture being screened at the ..... theater, was on the speaking stage before he entered pictures. Others in the cast of this thrilling story of love, intrigue and hazard in the cattle country of the Southwest are William Welsh, Bud Osborne, Charles Avery, Al Wilson, Frank Lanning, Sam Polo, Slim Cole and Gladys Roy.

Slim Cole, who does the motorcycle thrills in "The Fighting Ranger," adventure picture being shown at the ..... theater, with Eileen Sedgwick and Jack Daugherty co-starring, believes he is a pioneer in substitution of the motorcycle for the cowpony in handling range cattle.

Al Wilson, remembered by reason of the airplane stunts in "Ghost City," is one of the cast of "The Fighting Ranger," adventure picture now being screened at the ..... theater, to which he contributes some more air thrills. Eileen Sergwick and Jack Daugherty are co-starred.

(Adv.)

Stories for Big Cities and Small Towns

In your current newspaper advs., be sure that type for "The Fighting Ranger" is as large as the type for your feature.

Readers

(For programmes and newspaper ads.)

Watch your dates on "The Fighting Ranger," at the ..... Theatre. Don't miss a single episode of this excitement picture.

More than 30,000 feet of the most acute suspense awaits you in "The Fighting Ranger," the excitement picture at the ..... Theatre, every ..... night.

A new type of action story in films is showing at the ..... Theatre every ..... night. Jay Marchant, in producing "The Fighting Ranger," directed Al Wilson and Gladys Roy, aerial daredevils, in various airplane thrills. Don't miss it!

Catch Lines

See the air stunts in "The Fighting Ranger" at the ..... Theatre.

See the dynamite blast in "The Fighting Ranger" at the ..... Theatre.

See Eileen Sedgwick and Jack Daugherty in "The Fighting Ranger" at the ..... Theatre.

See how Jay Marchant, the action director, screens his air stunts with Al Wilson and Gladys Roy in "The Fighting Ranger" at the ..... Theatre.

If you like rough riding and gun-play, see "The Fighting Ranger" at the ..... Theatre tomorrow night.

SCENE FROM
"THE FIGHTING RANGER"
AN ADVENTURE PICTURE
with JACK DAUGHERTY
(Scene Cut No. 2)

(Adv)

Big Adventure Film Booked for Strand

How she was rescued, the events that led up to her perilous adventure, and the subsequent events that menaced the girl, Mary Marshall, her father and their friends make "The Fighting Ranger," adventure picture, the first episode of which will be shown at the ..... theater next .....

Eileen Sedgwick and Jack Daugherty are co-starred in "The Fighting Ranger," which was directed by Jay Marchant, who made "The Ghost City" and "The Iron Man." Others in the company are William Welsh, Bud Osborne, Charles Avery, Frank Lanning, Sam Polo, Slim Cole, Al Wilson and Gladys Roy. The last two are world famous stuntsters of the air.

The scene of the story is laid in the cattle country of the Southwest. John Marshall, the father, has been in hiding for fifteen years as the result of a shooting in self defense. His daughter, then a child, and two retainers live with him. The man he trusts to attend to his business affairs, really is plotting against him.

On Marshall's ranch is buried a treasure guarded by an aged Yaqui chief, last of his tribe. An airplane accident brings a young forest ranger into their lives, complicating matters.

Sacred Treasure in Old Chief's Custody

Komi, aged Yauqi chief and last of his tribe, lived solely for one thing, to guard the sacred treasure that had been accumulated through generations of endeavor on the part of those so long dead. In a mountain fastness he held daily strange religious rites before an altar created by his ancestors of a day many hundreds of years gone by.

White men knew of this treasure, but did not know the place of its concealment, except vaguely, and it was because of this knowledge that Komi became a vital factor in a situation fraught with grave danger for a woman and two men he had learned to trust and to consider his friends.

Such is the intriguing theme of the story told by "The Fighting Ranger," an adventure picture to be screened in the ..... theatre beginning next ..... with Jack Daugherty and Eileen Sedgwick co-starring.

"The Fighting Ranger" was directed by Jay Marchant, the exteriors having been filmed in the mountainous country of San Diego county. Miss Sedgwick and Daugherty are supported by William Welsh, Bud Osborne, Charles Avery, Al Wilson, Frank Lanning, Sam Polo, Slim Cole, and Gladys Roy.

A Story of "Home" and—This One Is True

"Home ties," unheard of in the life of the stage, mean much to the actors of the screen. Freed from the hurry and flurry of the theatrical world, they adopt homes when they become permanent citizens of filmland, and are more attached to home life than most people.

Eileen Sedgwick, starring with Jack Daugherty in "The Fighting Ranger," adventure picture, the ..... episode of which comes to the ..... theater directed by Jay Marchant for Universal on a rough and isolated location near Warner Hot Springs, gave the prize exhibition of what home ties mean, when she drove home for dinner each night.

Jack Daugherty co-stars in this story which was written by Fred J. McConnell and George W. Pyper. Al Wilson, famous stunt aviator, Gladys Roy, also famous as a flyer, and Slim Cole, motorcycle speedster, are in the supporting cast.

New Action Stories Playing at Capitol

Unscrupulous determination to deprive a man of land on which is buried a treasure of fabulous value motivates one set of characters in "The Fighting Ranger," adventure picture, the first episode of which is playing at the ..... theater. The victim of this plot is a man who for fifteen years has been a fugitive from justice.

In a secret canyon this man and his daughter and a few trusted retainers make their home. One day a disabled airplane, its pilot wounded, makes a landing in the canyon, and while the daughter nurses the pilot back to health, love came to them both.

Eileen Sedgwick has the part of the daughter, and Jack Daugherty, as the forest ranger whose airplane accident made him aware of the existence of the hiding place, is co-starred with her. Others in the cast are Bud Osborne, William Welsh, Charles Avery, Al Wilson, Frank Lanning, Sam Polo, Slim Cole and Gladys Roy.

WHAT TO TELL YOUR PATRONS

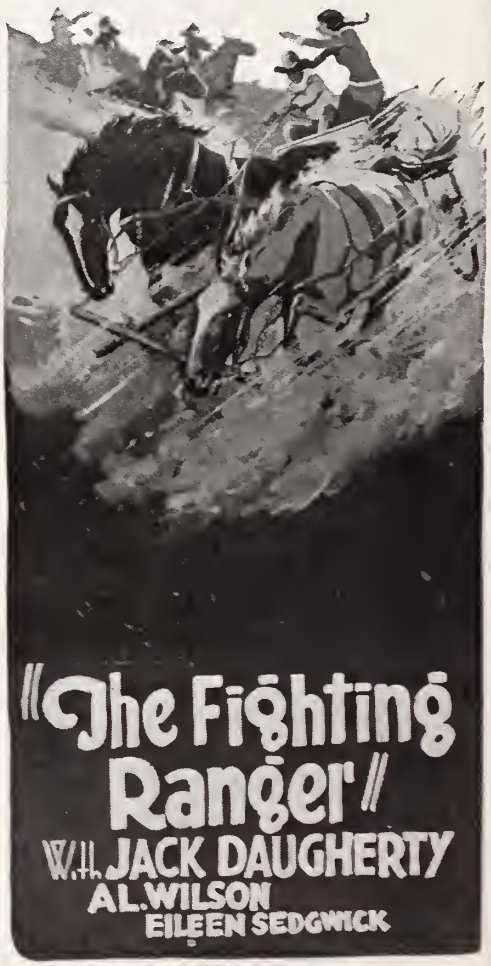
With two recognized "stunt" aviators in "The Fighting Ranger," and with Jay Marchant directing, tell your patrons that several outstanding "thrills" await them. The pursuit of the motorcyclist by the airman, and the recovery of the stolen map as a result of this incident, has been done with startling disregard to human life. Jack Daugherty, the hero, drops from the plane to the motorcycle. Don't let your patrons overlook this remarkable scene—just one of many in this production.

(Continued from page 463)

49 A SIX-SHEET CUT-OUT THAT'S NEW

THIS special cut-out will pull customers into your lobby and sell them the thrills that they are to see in the Fighting Ranger. It has been adapted from one of the smashing six-sheets showing the great explosion thrill. Cut this poster out and mount on beaver board or similar material. Place a strong electric light back of flame effect and let it flash by simply attaching a "Skiddoo" flasher which can be obtained at any electric store. The whole thing will look like a series of explosions. You may also cut out the flames as much as possible and insert red tissue paper so that the light will show through.

50 THREE-SHEET CUT-OUTS



(Adv)

EXHIBITORS' NEWS AND VIEWS

EDITED BY SUMNER SMITH

Troy, N. Y., Showman in Elks; Apple Cheerily Begins Again

Walter Roberts, manager of the Troy Theatre, acquired a couple of new teeth last week. Not that Mr. Roberts is cutting his "eye teeth" these days, for he has been an exhibitor for several years, coming to Albany from Buffalo when the Mark Strand opened, and later on being given the management of the Troy Theatre. The new teeth came to Mr. Roberts through the fact that he joined the Elks Lodge in Troy on Thursday night. The first tooth presented Mr. Roberts came from the employes of the theatre and will be worn as a watch charm. The second tooth was a whoppin' whale's tusk and one that had been included in a collection of articles from many lands made by a brother of Al LeMay, projectionist at the Lincoln Theatre, who had sailed the world over.

According to all accounts the men around the Troy Theatre had plenty of fun with Walter during the week, informing him that the goat's horns were being shined for the occasion. To make matters worse, Uly S. Hill, managing director of the Strand group of houses, which includes the Troy, told of having read in the newspaper of some resident of Brooklyn who was so badly used up after an Elks' initiation in that city that he was obliged to go to a hospital. Just what occurred Thursday night is, of course, a secret, but at any rate Mr. Roberts was on the job Friday.

Still maintaining the same smile and spirit of optimism that carried him up the ladder of success, year after year, Benjamin Apple, who was recently forced to surrender the American Theatre in Troy because of financial difficulties, is back where he started fifteen years ago, handling the little King Theatre and taking tickets at the door. Mr. Apple built the King Theatre and secured his start there. As for the American, it may be managed by the owner, Michael Apple. During the past week representatives from both the Fox and the Universal companies have been dickering for the theatre, while Oscar Perrin, the Schines and the Strand interests have also been showing a disposition to take over the house if it could be acquired at the right figure.

Two or three theatres in Northern New York have just closed for the winter. The Strand in Schroon Lake, run by Mr. Hollinwell; the Community house in Lisbon, and the theatre in St. Regis Falls are among the number.

The past week brought a change in ownership of the Columbian in Rensselaer, E. H. LaMont taking over the house from E. L. Griffin, who has been running it for some time.

Saturday, January 24, can't help being a big day for both Mr. and Mrs. Walter Roberts of the Troy Theatre. Each has a birthday anniversary that day. Ever since Mr. Roberts was 4 years of age he has been given a birthday cake with candles and all the trimmings made by an aunt residing in Louisville, Ky. As might be expected, the cake has grown in size as the years have passed. Since leaving Louisville Mr. Roberts has resided in Texas, Louisiana and elsewhere, but never once has the cake failed to reach him. Mrs. Roberts also comes from Louisville and the two are planning a little gathering of friends when the cake is cut this year.

C. H. Moyer, who runs the Liberty in Herkimer, and who looks more like a banker than an exhibitor, is now combining vaudeville with his pictures and doing well.

Louis Buettner, who lost his theatre in Mechanicsville the other night by fire, has decided to remodel the old Star and continue there until such time as another house replaces the one burned.

Albany Wise Cracks

Are exhibitors in and near Albany, N. Y., making money these days? Well, Jules Berinstein, of the Palace in Troy, is sporting a Buick coupe and a Buick roadster, and, furthermore, he is living at the Hotel Ten Eyck in Albany where they get a dollar a slice for roast beef, and the good old fashioned pie comes at 20 cents a slice. Then again, Oscar Perrin, of the Ls-Jand in Albany, is planning to turn in his Buick limousine for a Cadillac.

"Say something about my brother, if you care to, but leave me out of the picture," remarked Margaret Sullivan, of the San Souci in Watervliet, the other day. All right, here goes. Mr. Sullivan has been in the business as an exhibitor for eleven years, runs a 10 and 15-cent house, and does a bang-up good business. How's that, Margaret?

What do you think constituted the best vacation Maurice Silverman, of the Pearl and Happy Hour theatres in Schenectady, ever had? Three weeks in bed last spring. Mr. Silverman declares such to be the case, and there can be no disputing him.

What does J. B. Hart, a well known exhibitor in Bennington, Vt., care these days if country roads are blocked by drifts and the mercury drops to 10 below? Not a thing, for Mr. Hart is receiving his mail these days in Florida.

"Pop" Linton, who is building a new theatre in Utica to be known as the Olympic, is hustling things along and it now looks as though he will be in position to open by February 25. It will be a big night in Utica.

Moe Mark, one of the heads of the Strand chain of theatres, in town the other day, paid a visit with Walter Hays to the Troy Theatre. It so happened that the lobby was all dolled up in connection with a picture being shown. Mr. Mark was visibly pleased and remarked that the lobby "looked very nice."

William Smalley, who has a house in Catskill and which used to bear the name of the Irving, has changed the name to Smalley's Catskill.

Painters and paperhangers are still at work in the quarters that will later on be occupied by the New York State M. P. T. O., when it moves from New York City to Albany. Judging from appearances, it will be a matter of two or three weeks before the state organization is located in Albany and before the Zone Committee will also take over rooms in the same building.

Oscar Perrin has gained just 283 seats in the Leland Theatre in Albany and furthermore he gets 25 cents for each one of these. He brought this about by taking out the old benches in the gallery and replacing them with comfortable seats, repainting the gallery, adding additional lights and making it so attractive that it's no trouble at all to get patrons to occupy these seats when the main floor and balcony are filled.

One doesn't hear much along Film Row of Mike and Joe Kallet, but they are sawing wood all the while, and instead of running down to Albany for their pictures they let the exchange managers and salesmen chase them up. Mike, who has a house in Oneida, has been ill but is now better. Joe has a house in Rome.

The Kodeco Realty Company, which is really Kornblite and Cohen of Binghamton, just taking over the Lyric in Endicott, practically controls the motion picture situation in both Binghamton and Endicott.

Coming
Florence Vidor
in
"The GIRL of GOLD"
With Malcolm MacGregor, Claire Du Brey, Alan Roscoe, Bessie Eyton and Charles French
Directed by . . . . . John Ince
Released by
~ PRODUCERS ~ DISTRIBUTING ~ CORPORATION ~

Constance Talmadge and Antonio Moreno in a scene from "Learning to Love," a First National picture.

Massachusetts Exhibitor News

According to a recent announcement, the new Capitol Theatre on Tremont street in Boston will have an orchestra of from 65 to 70 musicians. The orchestra is to be on an elevator arrangement. The seating capacity of the new Capitol will be approximately 4,395. Construction work is progressing.

David Zermoskey, operator of a film delivery truck, was killed when his machine and a touring car collided on the Reading-Andover boulevard on Saturday, January 10. Zermoskey, whose home was in Lawrence, was delivering films which he had obtained at various exchanges in Boston to theatres in Lawrence.

C. W. Dimick of the Lancaster Theatre in Boston provided the entertainment features at a recent meeting of the Film Club.

D. Kiley is the new manager of Gordon's Fields Corner Theatre in Dorchester. The Fields Corner has two special nights, Monday, opportunity night, and Thursday, professional night. On the former night there are six or eight amateur acts and on the other night four acts of vaudeville are added to the double feature bill. E. M. Loew's Dorchester Theatre, which is the nearest opposition to the Fields Corner, presents amateurs on Tuesday night and has just inaugurated a bargain night on Thursday when five acts of vaudeville are presented as an added attraction.

Louis Gordon has taken active charge of Gordon's Codman Square Theatre in Dorchester, Mass.

Ralph R. Larsen, a member of the managerial staff of the Keith theatres in Boston, is a talented fellow in more ways than one. For he is an inventor as well as a rising young theatrical manager. He invented the funny wooden ducks (a toy for tiny tots) and has started to manufacture them. Mr. Larsen made the first one for his little daughter. Then he made a large number of them and they were turned over to one of the Boston newspaper's Christmas fund department and given to poor children.

An involuntary petition in bankruptcy has been filed in United States District Court, Boston, against the Eastern Feature Film Corporation of Boston by George B. Curtis of Arlington and others. Their claims are given as $1,157.

John A. Doyle, for many years connected with the management of various Boston and Lynn theatres, died on January 2 at his home in Lynn. He was 82 years old. Mr. Doyle retired from active theatrical work about ten years ago.

Mary K. O'Connor, representing Moe Mark, owner of the Strand Theatre interests in Lynn, has purchased the Waldorf Theatre, Lynn, from Mrs. Fannie Gerrish, administratrix of the estate of Samuel Gerrish. Mr. Mark has held a lease on the theatre for three years. The sale price is reported to have been approximately $90,000.

The American Legion Post in Concord will present picture programs throughout this year in the Veterans' Building.

Victor Morris, manager of Marcus Loew's Orpheum Theatre in Boston, enacted the role of a regular P. T. Barnum during the week of January 12 when Loew's Circus was the attraction. Vic turned the lobby into a veritable "big top" and it certainly was a corking flash for the Washington street shopping throng.

January 8 was the forty-second anniversary of the opening in Boston of what now are the B. F. Keith theatres. On January 8, 1883, B. F. Keith opened his first place of amusement in a small store. Now the Keith Circuit has the Boston, Bijou and B. F. Keith's theatres, and a new house is under construction.

Buffalo, N. Y.

Alfred R. Sherry and Jacob Lavene, former operators of the Academy Theatre in lower Main street, Buffalo, have filed a petition in bankruptcy, listing liabilities of the co-partnership as $8,453.14 and assets as none. In addition, Sherry's personal petition shows liabilities of $587.60 and no assets. Lavene swears he owes nothing and has nothing. Lavene and Sherry are not connected with the Pennant Amusement Company, a New York concern, which is now operating the theatre, with pictures and vaudeville under the management of Harry Howe.

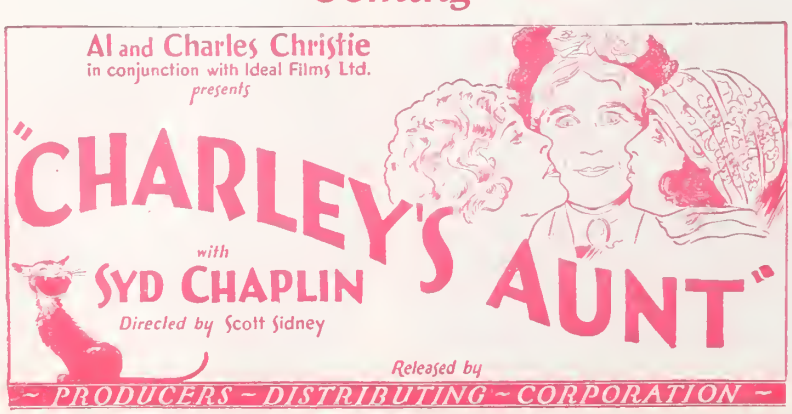
Sidney Allen has completed plans for a new theatre to be built on the site of the old Scenic Theatre in Medina, N. Y. Work will begin this spring.

The Lumberg Theatre, Niagara Falls, N. Y., has been leased by Allan S. Moritz, recently associated with the Buffalo Metro-Goldwyn exchange as sales representative.

A. C. Hayman, president of the Cataract Theatre Corporation, Niagara Falls, announces the signing of a contract for the presentation of Pantages vaudeville as an added attraction at the Strand in the Cataract City.

Irene Rich, Warner Brothers star in "A Lost Lady."

Coming



Cincinnati

Recent theatre changes throughout this region include the Waldo Theatre at Fredericksburg, which has been taken over by R. G. Searight, the house having previously been operated by F. W. Wallam. At Lisbon, Ohio, the Opera House has passed from the hands of Harry Moranz into possession of Mrs. Sara Robinson, who also has the Angella Theatre, Cleveland. The house has been renamed the Lisbon Theatre. The McKinley Theatre, at Canton, Ohio, has been reopened with J. A. Burris at the helm, Burris being a brother of the owner of the building. Charlie Brill, who recently acquired the Winter's Theatre at Akron and renamed it the Rex, has again changed the name to the Standard Theatre. The Strand Theatre, Columbus, has been taken over by S. R. Devoer. Over at St. Albans, W. Va., the Reel Theatre is now being looked after by Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Moore, instead of the previous owner, C. M. Sines. Batavia, Ohio, reports that the partnership between H. J. Smith and W. O. Kirk, joint owners of the Capitol Theatre, has been dissolved. Smith retains the Capitol, while Kirk will continue with the Opera House.

The Ashtabula Amusement Company, Ashtabula, Ohio, has been incorporated for $200,000 by Fred R. Moseley, A. B. Coursen and others.

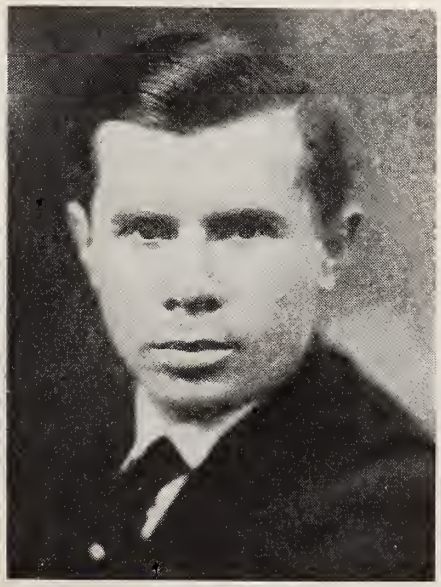
Mrs. W. F. Warneford, Lawrenceburg, Ind., adjacent to Cincinnati, has assumed the management of the Gem Theatre there, to succeed her husband, who recently died.

About the utmost in service was noted at the Rialto Theatre, Hamilton, Ohio, recently during a heavy snow storm. Manager Schwalm stationed an usher in the front of the lobby with a whisk broom, which the usher wielded vigorously whenever a patron entered. Schwalm explained that not only did this make a big hit with the patrons, it also saved the seats considerably.

Maine

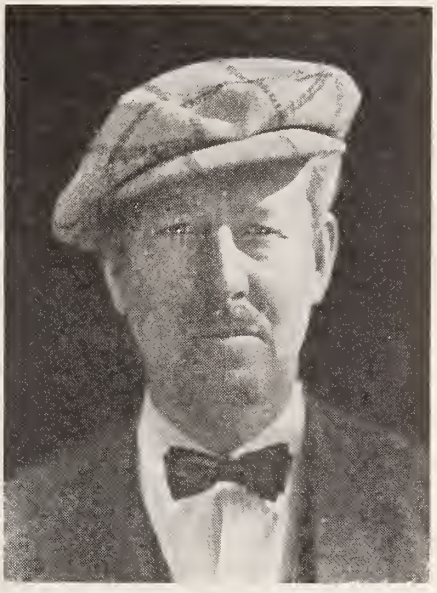
The Priscilla Theatre in Lewiston, Me., has changed its policy and a dramatic stock company has been installed. The opening took place January 12.

It is expected that there will be a bill presented at this session of the State Legislature encouraging the use of motion pictures for educational purposes in schools.



E. M. LOEW
Owner of a string of New England theatres and a real hustling exhibitor.

Wm. Collier, Jr., Pauline Starke and Wallace Beery in Paramount's "The Devil's Cargo."



Jack Harvey has just completed directing Rayart's "The Right Man," starring George Larkin.

Rhode Island

Ivan Productions, Inc., of Providence, has been incorporated for the purpose of producing motion pictures. The capital stock amounts to $60,000. The incorporators are: W. H. Draper of Providence, Ivan Abramson of New York City and Henry Gorshel of Dorchester, Mass. The company plans to produce four pictures a year.

Connecticut

C. M. Maxfield of the Star Theatre in New Hartford is a rapidly growing exhibitor, for he has just commenced to present film shows in Grange Hall, Rocky Hill. Mr. Maxfield has been an exhibitor for twelve years and is operating shows in New Hartford, Collinsville, Farmington, Cheshire and Avon.

Vermont

L. W. Carroll, manager of the Majestic Theatre in Burlington, is one of the live-wire exhibitors of Vermont. He is seeking advertising ideas—that's what he calls 'em. He wants his patrons to write some jingles and he offers two free tickets for each one that is adopted.

ALICE JOYCE
Appearing in Preferred picture, "White Man."

Florida

It's a bad day when there does not come at least one announcement of new building operations in Florida, either complete new theatres or remodeling of old ones. In the small town of Vero a new and elaborate house has recently opened, the Vero, taking the place of the old Strand, which for many years was the mecca for all theatregoers of the town. The old theatre was a wooden structure, and replacing it is a large concrete and brick structure, 75 feet additional depth having been added to make the theatre larger. A completely appointed stage 50 feet wide and 23 feet deep, with full equipment, loft, scenery and electrical effects, is a part of the new theatre, and the entire new investment is around $100,000. William Atkin, vice-president of the Vero Corporation, is manager.

Construction has commenced on what will be one of the most elaborate theatres in Miami, Fla., to be completed by the end of February, owned by A. R. Enos and to be called the Hollywood. It is located on Hollywood boulevard between Second and Third streets, will be a two-story structure of concrete and tile, 50 by 100 feet. Two rooms on the front, each about 20 by 32 feet, will be used for stores. Eight offices are located on the second floor. The capacity to begin with will be 600 but arrangements are made for an additional gallery later.

The Williamson Theatre, Winter Haven, Fla., is being built by F. E. Williamson, who already has two houses there. It will seat 1,000.

Michigan

Announcement was made the past week that W. S. Butterfield, president of the Bijou Theatrical Enterprises, with headquarters in Detroit, has taken over the Regent Theatre at Jackson and would completely redecorate the house, which will be added to his Michigan chain of picture theatres. This theatre will make the thirteenth now under the control of the Butterfield organization. The Regent was originally called the Bijou and was under the Butterfield management for a short time several years ago. Kenneth Hoel has been dispatched by Mr. Butterfield to take charge of the Jackson house.

Mr. Butterfield, with Mrs. Butterfield, will leave early in February to make an extended trip through European countries, returning early in the summer. During his absence Edward C. Beatty, general manager, will be in charge of theatre operations.

Claude Hurd, general manager of the Consolidated Theatres, Inc., of Grand Rapids, has taken the stump to smooth over difficulties with women's organizations in his city. He addressed the Parent-Teachers Association of the Furniture City a few days ago and won many friends for the industry.

George W. Sampson, general manager of the Cinderella Theatre, Detroit, announces the appointment of Russell Keller, formerly a salesman with Vitagraph, as house manager. Keller was manager of the Madison Theatre for John H. Kunsky at one time.

George Guise, general manager of the Charles H. Miles theatres, announces that both the Orpheum and Ferry Field theatres have changed their policies from split weeks to full week stands on picture attractions.

Lew Cohen of the Colonial Theatre and Phil Kaplan of the Theatrical Advertising Company, Detroit, will leave early in February to attend the Mardi Gras in New Orleans.

Dr. P. A. Callahan announces that he plans to build a 1,000-seat house at Charlevoix and Mt. Elliott streets, Detroit, work to start February 1. It will be devoted to both pictures and vaudeville.

A new theatre is soon to be erected on Michigan avenue in Dearborn, which is Henry Ford's home town. It will be called the Ford Temple and will seat 1,700. Later a balcony will be added, bringing the capacity to 2,500.

The Herrick Educational Film Company, with offices in the Film Building, has gone into bankruptcy. A first meeting of the creditors will be held soon. Assets of the company are to be sold at public auction.

Louis D. Golden has started construction on a theatre located on Gratiot avenue between the Six and Seven Mile roads. The theatre will be modern in every respect and will have approximately 1,200 seats. It will open April 15.

ETHEL CLAYTON
Appearing in Preferred picture, "The Mansion of Aching Hearts."

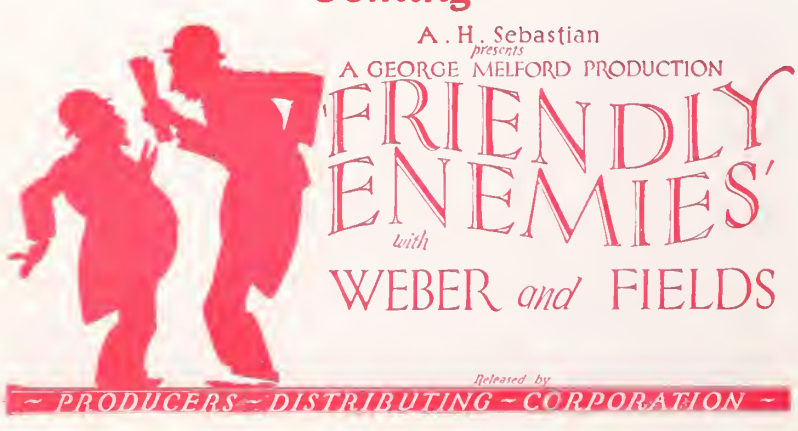
Kansas

Ensley Barbour, an exhibitor of Pittsburg, Kans., has been found guilty by a jury on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses and faces a sentence of from one to five years in the penitentiary. He will appeal, it is understood. A wild scene ensued in the courtroom when, by mistake, the jury foreman started reading the wrong verdict—that of not guilty.

Among the out-of-town exhibitors in the Kansas City market last week were: W. G. Kirkland, Strand Theatre, Hays, Kans.; William Parsons, Pershing Theatre, Joplin, Mo.; William Sears, Lyric, Boonville, Mo.; William Reinke, Orpheum, St. Joseph, Mo.; C. B. Storey, People's, Pleasant Hill, Mo.; Charles Sears, Star, Nevada, Mo.; C. M. Pattee, Pattee Theatre, Lawrence, Kans.; S. E. Wilhoit, Jefferson, Springfield, Mo.; William Cuff, Strand, Chillicothe, Mo.

Office space has been leased at Nineteenth and Main streets by Samuel Harding, president of Capitol Enterprises, which has extensive theatre holdings in the Kansas City territory. The home offices formerly were located in the Davidson Building, Seventeenth and Main streets.

MAE BUSCH
Appearing for the first time on the independent market in B. P. Schulberg's Preferred picture, "The Triflers."



BERT LYTELL

Appearing for the first time on the independent market in B. P. Schulberg's Preferred picture, "The Boomerang."

The Southeast

Atlanta's Rialto Theatre has recently undergone extensive renovations, and new drapes, a transformed box office and many other improvements are evident. Draperies both on the first and second floors are all new and many new and elaborate lighting fixtures have been installed. The theatre did not close while this work was being done.

The Howard Theatre, Atlanta, broke all existing records for attendance at their Saturday morning matinee sponsored by the Atlanta Better Films Committee, when they put on "Peter Pan" on the closing day of its regular Atlanta run at that theatre. Candy kisses were given to the children as a special treat, also tickets for refreshments at Nunnally's. More than 3,000 children attended the performance.

Roy Williford, growing South Carolina theatre owner, now controls houses in Chester, Union, Gaffney, Lourens, Newberry, Rock Hill, Spartanburg and Greer, S. C., also Charlotte, N. C.

Sig Samuels, owner of the Metropolitan, Atlanta, is back home after a business trip to New York.

Eleanor Boardman and Conrad Nagel in a scene from the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture, "So This Is Marriage."

Chicago

Theatre owners on the West Side of Chicago now have competiton from the West Park Board, according to the Evening Post, which reports that the board has signed for a series of pictures to be given every evening in the recreation centers of the various parks. Three shows are to be given each evening, the first for girls, the second for boys and the third for adults. Among the pictures reported booked are "Quo Vadis," "Deliverance," "Paul Revere's Ride."

The new Jeffrey Theatre, Chicago, under the management of Goldberg and Severn, will open early in February and show pictures and vaudeville. The house is located at 71st and Jeffrey avenue and will seat about 2,000.

Frank Thielen, Clifford R. Trimble and M. L. Haack have organized the Elgin Theatre Company at Elgin, Ill., with a capital of $100,000 to conduct picture theatres. The main office of the new company is located at 57 Main street, Aurora, Ill.

Louis Laemmle, Michael Broderick and Eileen M. Lynch have organized the Prairie Theatre Company with offices at 831 South Wabash avenue, Chicago, to own and conduct a picture theatre. The new firm has a capital of $40,000.

The Lincoln Belmont Building Corporation has been formed by Harry M. Lubliner, Joseph Trinz and Leo Spitz to own and operate the new Belmont Theatre that is going up on Belmont avenue, Chicago. The new firm has a capital of $300,000.

Edward W. Rowland, formerly of the old-time theatrical firm of Rowland & Clifford, is behind the movement to build a new million dollar theatre in Hollywood, and his partner is expected to link up soon with Frank Gazzolo of the Studebaker Theatre of Chicago.

Mrs. Peck Collins has sold her interest in the Peck Theatre at La Salle, Ill., and the house is now under the management of Roy Cummings.

Tony Sabick has sold his Elmwood Theatre at Oak Park, Ill., to A. B. Clarke.

Los Angeles

There are many rumors along the Rialto that the new Forum Theatre will soon pass into the control of West Coast Theaters but this could not be confirmed. At the present writing the Forum is the only first-run theatre in Los Angeles with open bookings. It is not located in the downtown theatrical district but rather in the suburban section on Pico boulevard. Manager Johnson is holding "Smouldering Fires" over for the fourth week at the Forum. He says it is pulling more money into the box office than any other picture since the house opened.

Claire Windsor and her son, Billy. This picture was made in the garden of their Hollywood home. Miss Windsor is one of the featured players in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer pictures.

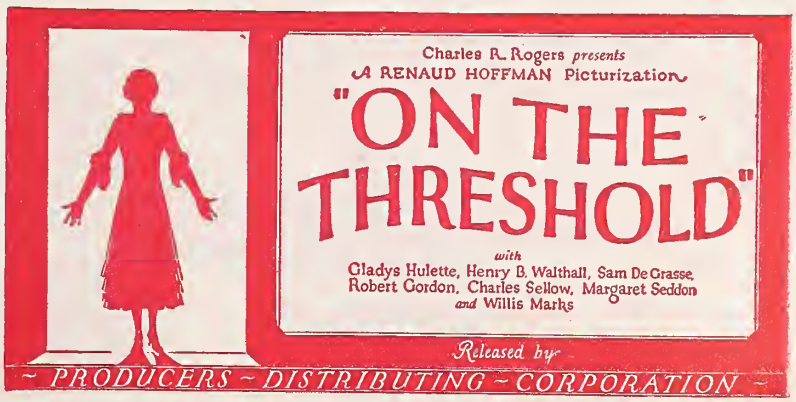
Cleveland

During the last few weeks Cleveland has been the scene of some unusual happenings in the film theatre business. For instance, "The Thief of Bagdad" started a run at popular prices. The top is 75 cents evenings, while you can see the picture for 40 cents afternoons at the Stillman Theatre.

It is reported that this is the first time a first run on this picture has been played less than $1.65. "The Thief" played in Akron and Youngstown, two nearby smaller cities, at $1.65. The reason it is showing in Cleveland at these prices is because the Loew management refused to increase their prices or install a reserved seat policy. And the public is taking advantage of this situation, for on the opening day every record at the Stillman was broken and all week the crowds piled up a big box office gross.

The State Theatre has switched from straight pictures to the Loew policy of six acts of vaudeville and a feature picture. The change forced Reade's Hippodrome, also a combination house, to cut prices and later go to two changes of program weekly.

Coming



Director-General Fred Niblo studies types for Roman bits in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's big production, "Ben Hur."

Unleased St. Louis Theatre Is Now Near Completion

Sohm Brothers, architects, St. Louis, are completing a picture and vaudeville theatre on Pershing avenue just off Clara avenue which to date has not been leased to any exhibition organization. The theatre has been offered to a number of local exhibitors but to date all have declined to close for the new house, it is said. It is in the immediate vicinity of the Delmonte, a first-run house, and the Pageant Theatre, owned by the St. Louis Amusement Company, and it is believed the competition for patronage might prove too keen.

Steve Farrar, the genial and wide-awake manager of the Orpheum Theatre at Harrisburg, Ill., was the recent recipient of a unique present from Tom Mix. Farrar has the distinction of having shown every picture that Mix has made and in appreciation of this Tom expressed Steve a big white Stetson hat. Farrar was so proud of the hat he placed it on display in the Rathbone & Brown store.

Herschel Stuart, managing director of the Missouri Theatre, Grand boulevard at Lucas avenue, the big Paramount first-run house of St. Louis, has arranged with the Rotary Club of St. Louis to give a special show for 3,000 crippled children of the city at the Missouri on February 23.

The Kozy Theatre, Pocahontas, Ark., is now under the management of James L. Needham, Jr.

J. B. Hawl has sold the Star Theatre in Wheatland, Ind., to P. M. Buzan.

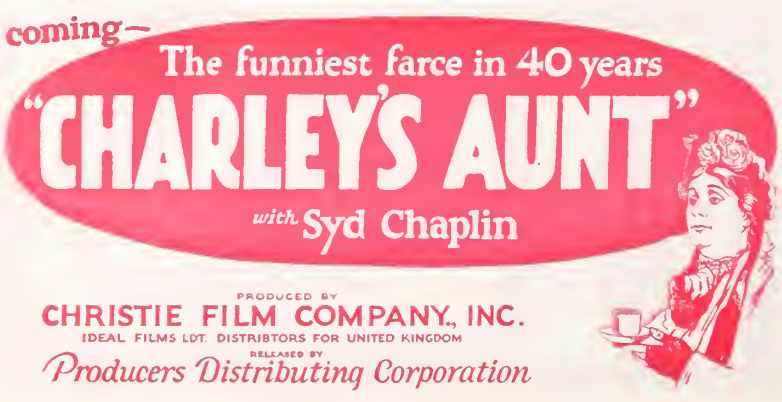
Theatres in the St. Louis territory reported to be closed include houses in Cabool, Mountain View and Winona, Mo.; Opera House, Loogootee, Ind.; New Haven Theatre, New Haven, Mo.; houses in Essex, Dudley and Gray Ridge, Mo., operated by W. D. Martin; Cantwell and Isis theatres in Brunswick, Mo.; Little Egypt Theatre, Gorham, Ill.

Rose Marie is the name given to the beautiful daughter that arrived at the home of Dominic Frisina, owner of the Elks Theatre, Taylorville, Ill., on the morning of January 5.

J. Frailey has changed the name of the Gem Theatre, Herrick, Ill., to Palace Theatre. He recently took over the house.

The Grand Theatre, Macon, Mo., has had its projection machine and booth remodeled.

On account of lack of power and light in the town due to a blizzard, the Olympic Theatre, Clarksville, Mo., was forced to close for a few days.



Ben Schwartz has sold the Lowell Theatre, 5039 North Broadway, St. Louis, to Steve Chulick. The deal became effective on January 17. The Lowell seats 700. The price paid was not made public.

L. S. Haven has taken over the Rex Theatre, Brinkley, Ark. He also operates the Opera House, Forrest City, Ark.

Charley Sears of Nevada, Mo., has acquired the Lyric Theatre at Boonville, Mo.

Tom Ballas of the American Theatre, Memphis, Tenn., has purchased the Rex Theatre building in that city and upon the expiration of the lease of Clarke Porter, who now conducts the Rex, on March 15, he will entirely remodel, redecorate and enlarge the theatre. When it reopens in July or August Ballas will take over the management of the house. It now seats 600. Ballas plans to increase the capacity to 850.

Tom Reed of Duquoin attended the inauguration of Governor Small at Springfield, Ill., last week.

Out-of-town exhibitors seen along Picture Row during the week were: Bob Cluster, Johnston City, Ill.; S. E. Pertle, Jerseyville, Ill.; Tom Reed, Duquoin, Ill.; Mrs. I. W. Rodgers, Cairo, Ill.; Joe Lynam, Whitehall, Ill.; C. E. Brady, Cape Girardeau, Mo.; Joe Hewitt, Robinson, Ill.; Henry Imming, Newton, Ill.; Jim Reilly, Alton, Ill.; Frank Leitz, Mascoutah, Ill.; John Lieber, Pacific, Mo.

Pittsburgh

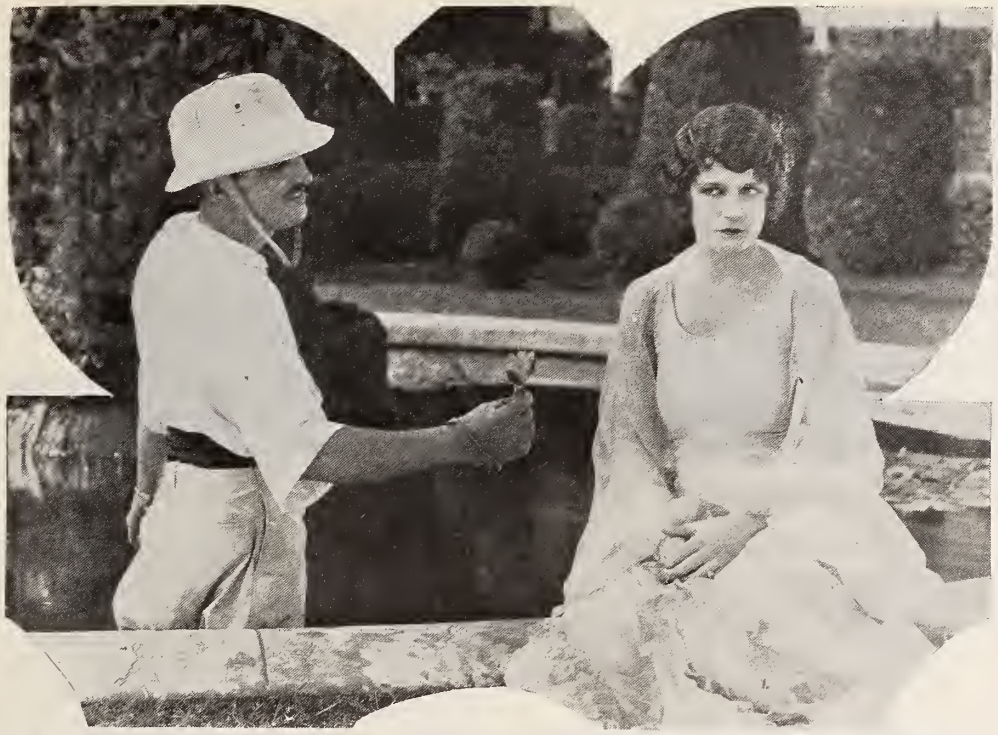
The Moose Theatre, Hastings, opened last November 1, has been sold by the local Moose Lodge to W. P. Gray, who took charge on January 12. M. G. Rhoades, who managed the house until taken over by the new owner, is now employed at the Pathe exchange in Pittsburgh where he is in charge of the inspection department.

Frank Feri, for six years manager of Sam Gould's theatres on the North Side, Pittsburgh, passed away on January 13, at the age of 32 years, after three days' illness of pneumonia. Deceased is survived by his widow and a 2-year-old son. The baby is also suffering from pneumonia.

Professor Leo Gerechter, old-time local theatre owner, for ten months in New York City, is back in Pittsburgh once more and says he is looking for a picture theatre to purchase.

Out-of-towners seen on Film Row the past week included Charles John, Republic; Walter Silverberg, Greenville; C. B. Pascoe, Somerset; H. R. Murray, Cambridge Springs.

Viola Dana, in Metro-Goldwyn's "Along Came Ruth," is playing for the howling canine co-star.



Raymond Griffith and Viola Dana in a scene from "Lord Chumley," a Paramount release.

Canadian Exhibitor Personals

N. L. Nathanson, managing director of Famous Players Canadian Corporation, Ltd., Toronto, and H. M. Thomas of Winnipeg, Manitoba, western division manager of the corporation, are attending the exhibitors' convention at Atlanta, Ga., at which Will Hays is taking a prominent role. During his absence from Winnipeg Mr. Thomas is being temporarily supplanted as manager of the Capitol Theatre there by H. A. Bishop, formerly of Calgary, who was recently appointed assistant manager of the theatre. Messrs. Nathanson and Thomas are also visiting New York City for important conferences with Famous Players officials and others.

Walter Deering, manager of the Walker Theatre, Winnipeg, Manitoba, for many years, has been appointed manager of the College Theatre, Winnipeg, one of the three local houses owned by A. R. McNicol of Winnipeg. Mr. Deering, who is a veteran showman, succeeds William White.

Bert Brouse, son of the late Harry Brouse of Ottawa, Ontario, and manager of the Imperial Theatre until recently, has recovered from a serious attack of scarlet fever and is convalescing nicely.

Ken Hill has been appointed manager of the Paramount Theatre at Hanover, Ontario. Intimation has been given that Louis Bach, Canadian district manager of Associated First National, is personally and directly interested in the Paramount Theatre.

H. N. Jernberg, manager of the Province Theatre, Winnipeg, Manitoba, opened a barber shop in the ladies' waiting room during the week of January 12 when the current attraction was "The Family Secret," starring Baby Peggy. Announcement was made that a "Baby Peggy Bob" would be given to all children between the ages of 2 and 8 years during the presentation of the feature without charge when accompanied by their mothers as patrons of the house. Proficient barbers were engaged by Manager Jernberg for the occasion and there was a remarkable invasion of towsy-headed youngsters for the dual purpose of seeing the show and getting a free hair cut.

The Playhouse, East Market street, Winnipeg, Manitoba, which has been dark for a considerable period, has been reopened by Tom Copeland, formerly of Glasgow, Scotland, who announces that British interests have provided the finances for the operation of the house. Mr. Copeland recently headed a road show that toured Eastern Canada, but he has now settled in Winnipeg.

West Virginia

Asserting that the terms of the verbal lease of Frank W. Rogers for the Arcade Theatre, Morgantown, W. Va., were violated and that the owners of the property and their agents were fully within their rights in taking over the property, the answer of George M. John and others to the suit of Frank W. Rogers has been filed in court at Morgantown.

The suit is an action brought by Mr. Rogers to recover damages incurred when the defendants seized the Arcade Theatre on the landlord's distress warrant, and continued in charge until the court issued a restraining order enjoining them from interfering with the operation of the theatre.

Mr. Rogers asks that the theatre be placed back in the condition it was when seized, and that an accounting be made for funds collected during the time Roy Garee as manager for John was in charge of the property.

City Council at Clarksburg, W. Va., has refused to issue a license to the Reese Shows to hold a carnival here on May 18. Permission was also refused for a Sunday show in a local theatre for the benefit of the West Virginia Tuberculosis Association.

San Francisco

West Coast Theatres, Inc., has plans prepared for five large houses to be erected in the San Francisco territory during 1925. Money has been appropriated for these, sites have been selected and plans prepared, so that work can be launched on short notice. Officials of this circuit are expected from Los Angeles at an early date, when formal announcements of sites will be made.

H. W. Sherbourne, manager of the Senator Theatre, Sacramento, Cal., one of the new units of the West Coast Theatres chain, started the new year right by taking unto himself a bride, Miss Helen Gilmore. Ralph Graunuer, of the Los Angeles staff of West Coast Theatres, Inc., has also stepped forth into the matrimonial limelight and recently brought his bride to San Francisco.

Herman Wobber, who has long had extensive theatre interests at San Francisco, in addition to his duties as western manager for Famous Players-Lasky, is making a business trip to New York.

The Cameo Theatre, San Francisco, conducted under the able direction of R. R. Boomer, will shortly present the Memphis Minstrels, a colored troupe of thirty.

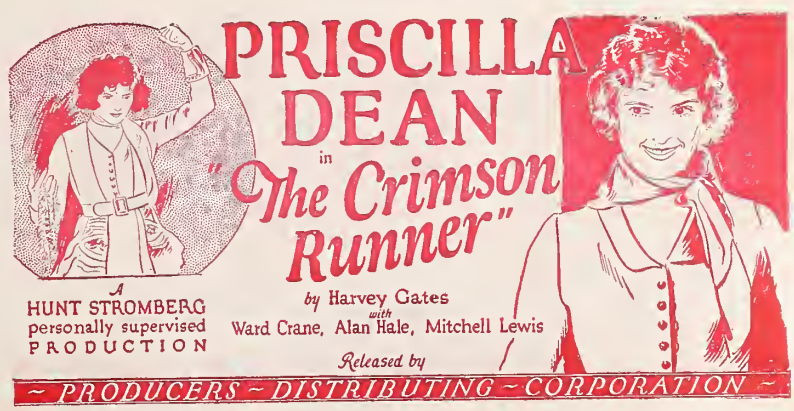
Leading officials of the Orpheum Circuit gathered recently at San Francisco in conference on theatre improvements in the local field. Joseph Finn, vice-president of the company, stated that the meeting was held for the purpose of completing arrangements for the remodeling of the Fox Theatre in Oakland and the disposal of property held by the circuit in that city. He denied the rumor that the Orpheum Circuit had secured an option on a site at Market and Larkin streets, San Francisco, for a new house.

The National Theatres Syndicate of California recently announced the payment to stockholders of its sixth dividend of 8 per cent. President L. R. Crook reports that the syndicate now has seventeen theatres in San Jose, Modesto, Porterville, Madera, Woodland, Marysville and Chico.

Charles M. Pincus, manager of the Imperial Theatre, San Francisco, recently announced a special midnight showing of "Greed" for the benefit of the actors of the city.

Mrs. C. Muir, who formerly conducted the Class A Theatre at 1749 Fillmore street, San Francisco, has fitted up a theatre in Sutter street, near the old house, and has opened this under the name of the New Class A Theatre. The old house has been taken over by other interests, remodeled and reopened as the Temple Theatre.

Among the exhibitors who have visited San Francisco's Film Row of late have been: A. Sifuentes, of the Airdome Theatre, Atwater; Frank Parker, of Modesto and Stockton; George S. Jones, of the Lyric Theatre, San Jose; W. J. Clark, of the Palace Theatre, Dixon; R. Tacherssy, of the Point Theatre, Point Richmond, and the Byard Brothers of Arcata.



Vivid moments in Pola Negri's latest vehicle, "East of Suez," a Paramount release.

Seattle

The new Liberty Theatre, Olympia, Wash., a half block from the State Capitol, was chosen for the scene of the maugural ceremony incident to inducting into office Governor-elect Roland H. Hartley and other state officials, Wednesday noon, January 14. A public reception for the new state officials was held in the lobby of the theatre following the program.

It is anticipated that state censorship, new forms of taxes and Sunday blue laws will come up during the session of the legislature. Legislative committees from the M. P. T. O. will keep in close touch with the activities at Olympia.

The Tacoma exhibitor association, which functioned for several years before the organization of the state M. P. T. O., held its election of officers last week. L. A. Drinkwine, of the Palace Theatre, was elected president, succeeding H. T. Moore of the Moore Amusement Company, and J. W. Spear of Everybody's was named secretary, succeeding Bob McKinnell of the Rose and Paramount.

Mr. Hewitt of Hillman City enjoyed his biggest Sunday in many moons with "The Navigator."

A special ten o'clock Saturday matinee for children under 12 for "Oh, Doctor," was arranged by Manager Robert Bender at a 5-cent admission, with the announcement that a wire from Reginald Denny had requested that all Seattle kiddies be permitted to see the show for half price. It filled the house.

Monday was "Eagle Night" at the Heilig during the showings of "White Man." A large delegation was present, accompanied by the fifty-piece band in full uniform. A special section was set aside for the band, which played for the 9 o'clock show.

Straight From the Shoulder means a square deal on picture reports from exhibitors. Read and profit.

Newark's Mayor at Studio

Mayor Breidenbach, of Newark, N. J., was the guest of Herman F. Jans at the studio last week. His Honor watched the making of the last scenes for "The Mad Dancer," with Ann Pennington and Johnnie Walker, and had a dance or two to the tunes of Vincent Lopez.

BRYANT WASHBURN
As he appears in "The Wizard of Oz," a Chadwick Production.

Are you helping the exhibitors of your state by sending reports on the pictures you run—to the dependable tip department, Straight From the Shoulder? The department is as helpful as Exhibitors News and Views is intimate and newsy. Both departments are conducted for you. You can show your interest by sending picture reports.

Montana

"Billy" Sullivan, manager of the Rialto and American theatres, Butte, has gone to the West Coast where he will spend several weeks resting. He has been ill for several days and confined to his home with grippe. Mr. Sullivan expects to visit at Tacoma, Portland, San Francisco and Los Angeles before returning to Butte some time in February.

Mrs. G. M. Stow, known to hundreds of Butte people as Helen Roberts, former organist at the American Theatre, died in Seattle recently. Mrs. Stow had been in ill health for several years and had undergone two operations. She left Butte about a year ago.

The Temple Theatre, which was completed last June and is one of the most modern theatres of the Northwest, has a sign in the office window, "No Show This Week." Rumor has it that this beautiful showhouse is to be closed. W. Wisner has had charge of the theatre and he claims that it has been too difficult to get contracts for his house of the right attractions to make it a paying proposition.

Mr. Gavin has recently been appointed publicity director for the Silver Bow Amusement Company and in the absence of Manager W. J. Sullivan will have charge of the two theatres, the Rialto and American.

Mr. O'Keefe of Billings and E. F. White of Livingston have been visitors to Film Row during the week.

EDNA RICHARDSON AND MAURICE COSTELLO
In "The Fast Pace," an Arrow Special.

STRAIGHT from the SHOULDER REPORTS

A DEPARTMENT FOR THE INFORMATION OF EXHIBITORS

EDITED BY A. VAN BUREN POWELL

Associated Exhibitors

(Includes Selznick)

COMMON LAW. (8 reels). Star cast. The majority agreed that it was a good show, but it wasn't strong at the box office. City of 110,000. Admission 10-20. Al. C. Werner, Royal Theatre, Reading, Pennsylvania.

CRICKET ON THE HEARTH. Star cast. A fair picture that will do to tie up with church or school but cannot be called a real entertainment to draw a crowd back the second night. It follows the story closely and the story is a one climax affair that makes the picture drag. Tone, fine. Sunday, yes. Intelligent class appeal. Universal class town of 3,200. Admission 10-20-30. Charles Lee Hyde, Grand Theatre, Pierre, South Dakota.

DEFYING DESTINY. Star cast. A fair production that pleased the majority. City of 110,000. Admission 10-20. Al. C. Werner, Royal Theatre, Reading, Pennsylvania.

EAST OF BROADWAY. (5,783 feet). Star cast. Extra good. Splendid story and cast pleased our class of audience. Tone, good. Sunday, yes. Audience appeal, ninety per cent. Middle and working class twn of 26,000. Admission 10-25. Ed. C. Curdits, Bijou Theater (365 seats), Greenville, South Carolina.

GOING UP. (5,886 feet). Star, Douglas MacLean. A very fine comedy drama that will please any audience. Clean, clever and thrilling. Grand heatre, Pierre, South Dakota.

HARBOR LIGHTS. Star, Tom Moore. Watch your step on this one. Another foreign made picture. Better look before you book. All classes in big city. Admission ten cents. Stephen G. Brenner, Eagle Theatre (298 seats), Baltimore, Maryland.

LONE WOLF. (6 reels). Star cast. Had some very good comments on this one, although similar stories have been served up in similar disguises. Had fair attendance. City of 110,000. Admission 10-20. Al. C. Werner, Royal Theatre, Reading, Pennsylvania.

RACING LUCK. (5 reels). Star cast. People here thought this a knockout and they haven't stopped talking about it yet. It was surely very pleasing hokum. City of 110,000. Admission 10-20. Al. C. Werner, Royal Theatre, Reading, Pennsylvania.

SPITFIRE. (7 reels). Star cast. A piece of cheese, lay off it by all means. Tone, none. Sunday, no. No audience appeal. Oil and farm class town of 1,000. Admission 10-25. H. E. Schlichter, Liggett Theatre (600 seats), Madison, Kansas.

UNSEEN HANDS. Star, Wallace Beery. A very good program picture. Star and supporting cast very good. Print good. Tone okay. Sunday, yes. Good audience appeal. All classes in big city. Admission ten cents. Stephen G. Brenner, Eagle Theatre (298 seats), Baltimore, Maryland.

WHEN A GIRL LOVES. (5,867 feet). Star cast. Was rather surprised at the good comments we had on this one and it brought fair attendance. City of 110,000. Admission 10-20. Al. C. Werner, Royal Theatre, Reading, Pennsylvania.

WIFE IN NAME ONLY. Star cast. Passable program picture and pleased fairly well. City of 110,000. Admission 10-20. Al. C. Werner, Royal Theatre, Reading, Pennsylvania.

YANKEE CONSUL. (6,148 feet). Star, Douglas MacLean. This was a scream and people were eager to tell me they were pleased. City of 110,000. Admission 10-20. Al. C. Werner, Royal Theatre, Reading, Pennsylvania.

These dependable tips come from exhibitors who tell the truth about pictures to help you book your program intelligently. "It is my utmost desire to serve my fellow man," is their motto.

Use the tips; follow the advice of exhibitors who agree with your experience on pictures you both have run.

Send tips to help others. This is your department, run for you and maintained by your good-will.

F. B. O.

AMERICAN MANNERS. (5,200 feet). Star, Dick Talmadge. Mighty fine for patronage wanting actionful pictures. Tone good. Sunday, yes. Audience appeal ninety per cent. Small town class, town of 500. Admission 10-25. C. C. Klutts, Mgr. Glades Theatre (200 seats), Moore Haven, Florida.

AMERICAN MANNERS. (5,200 feet). Star, Richard Talmadge. An excellent program picture that pleased one hundred per cent. No need for exhibitors to block book while there are pictures like this one that can be spotted in. F. B. O. program pictures are especially suitable for small and medium sized towns. Tone good. Sunday, yes. Excellent audience appeal. Residential class, town of 1,200. Admission 10-25. John McGill, Liberty Theatre (250 seats), Port Orchard, Washington.

DANGEROUS COWARD. (6 reels). Star, Fred Thomson. My first Thomson and he "sold" himself to my patrons who like action. Clean and clever and stunts never forced over. Tone good. Sunday, no. Big audience appeal. Small town class, town of 500. Admission 10-25. C. C. Klutts, Glades Theatre (200 seats), Moore Haven, Florida.

DANGEROUS COWARD. (6 reels). Star, Fred Thomson. This is absolutely the poorest picture I ever ran, and my patrons told me so. I bought the Thomson pictures on account of seeing so many good reports on them in the Moving Picture World, but they sure did not please my people. This goes for all. Not suitable for Sunday. No audience appeal. Town and country class, town of 1,000. Admission 10-25-35. Sam Brooks, Liberty Theatre (400 seats), Hailey, Idaho.

DANGEROUS FLIRT. (5,297 feet). Star, Evelyn Brent. A program that proved fairly entertaining. Has no big draft but just gives you a nice little show with short subjects added. Tone good. Sunday, yes. Fair audience appeal. General class, town of 3,000. Admission 10-20. William A. Clark, Castle Theatre (400 seats), Havana, Illinois.

FIGHTING SAP. (5,138 feet). Star, Fred Thomson. A fair picture for this type even a little worse. Tone, okay. Sunday, yes. Fair audience appeal. Mixed class town of 3,000. Admission 10-20. Charles Martin, Family Theatre (300 seats), Mt. Morris, New York.

FIGHTING SAP. (5,138 feet). Star, Fred Thomson. Our first Thomson and people liked him. It is just a light entertaining offering. Tone, good. Hardly suitable for Sunday. Good audience appeal. Small town class and farmers town of 800. Admission 10-25. Welty & Son, Mid-Way Theatre (500 seats), Hill City, Kansas.

FOOLS IN THE DARK. (7 reels). Star, Patsy Ruth Miller. One of the best comedy pictures of the year and enjoyed by all. Tom Wilson is the real star. Mostly miners and railroad trade, town of 3,300. Giles Master, Strand Theatre, Gallup, New Mexico.

GALLOPING GALLAGHER. (4,700 feet). Star, Fred Thomson. Just fine, as all Thomson's are. Our audience like him very much. Small town class and farmers town of 800. Admission 10-25. Welty & Son, Mid-Way Theatre (500 seats), Hill City, Kansas.

GIRL OF THE LIMBERLOST. (6,500 feet). Star, Gloria Grey. Gave us a nice business for Christmas and the picture pleased. The picture is not out of the ordinary but has good drawing power and that is what we want. General class, town of 3,000. Admission 10-20. William A. Clark, Sr., Castle Theatre (400 seats), Havana, Illinois.

HIS FORGOTTEN WIFE. (6,500 feet). Star, Madge Bellamy. An excellent show for our crowd, with everybody pleased. We played this on a Saturday night and we had no kicks. This is better than "The White Sin." Tone good. Good audience appeal. Better class, town of 4,500. Admission 10-15. C. A. Anglemire, "Y" Theatre (404 seats), Nazareth, Pennsylvania.

LIFE'S GREATEST GAME. (7,010 feet). Star, Johnny Walker. This is a fair feature, but no drawing power. Not the picture that the other Johnson pictures are. Tone, good.

Sunday, yes. Not much audience appeal. Small town class town of 250. Admission 10-25. Roy E. Cline, Osage Theatre (200 seats), Osage, Oklahoma.

LIGHTS OUT. (6,938 feet). Star cast. Somehow my patrons raved about this picture and thought it great. Fair puller. Admission 10-20. Al. C. Werner, Royal Theatre, Reading, Pennsylvania.

MAIL MAN. (7,160 feet). Star, Ralph Lewis. If your audience likes action, give them this one and they will be satisfied. The plot is rather weak and overworked but the picture is full of hokum and thrills and that is just what small towns eat up. Tone, okay. Sunday, yes. Good audience appeal. Mixed class, town of 3,000. Admission 20-25. T. L. Barnett, Finn's Theatre (600 seats), Jewett City, Connecticut.

MASK OF LOPEZ. (4,900 feet). Star, Fred Thomson. Just another good Thomson that everyone seemed to like. Tone, good. Sunday, no. Good audience appeal. Small town class and farmers, town of 800. Admission 10-25. Welty & Son, Mid-Way Theatre (500 seats), Hill City, Kansas.

MICKEY. Star, Mabel Normand. Reissue. Recent notoriety did not seem to hurt here. Full house. Tone splendid. Sunday, yes. Audience appeal ninety per cent. Small town class, town of 500. Admission 10-25. C. C. Klutts, Glades Theatre (200 seats), Moore Haven, Florida.

MILLIONAIRE COWBOY. (4,841 feet). Star, Lefty Flynn. Not much satisfaction to this one. "Lefty" will have to have better stories and direction to get very far in his westerns as pictures like this one will not add or detract from his success. Tone okay. Sunday, yes. No audience appeal. General class, town of 3,000. Admission 10-20. William A. Clark, Sr., Castle Theatre (400 seats), Havana, Illinois.

ON THE STROKE OF THREE. (6,757 feet). Star, Madge Bellamy. Very good. Suits ninety-five per cent of patrons. Tone okay. Sunday, yes. Best show we have had for a year. Audience appeal ninety-five per cent. J. M. Blanchard, Lone Rock, Iowa.

PERILS OF PARIS. Star, Pearl White. People thought this was a foreign picture by the title. This is one of the best pictures that I have had for some time. It is the only picture that has pleased everyone that saw it. Sunday, yes. Audience appeal ninety-nine per cent. Farm and city class, town of 9,500. Admission 15-30. Robert W. Hines, Mgr. Hines Theatre (250 seats), Loyalton, South Dakota.

SPIRIT OF THE U. S. A. (8,312 feet). Star, Johnny Walker. The majority said it was a fine picture, while a few considered it cheap melodrama and hokum. Still it brought them in. City of 110,000. Admission 10-20. Al. C. Werner, Royal Theatre, Reading, Pennsylvania.

SPIRIT OF THE U. S. A. (8,312 feet). Star, Johnny Walker. A dandy. Part of the tale in World War action. That pleased all. Tone okay. Sunday, yes. Good audience appeal. Rural and small town class, town of 450. Admission 10-30. A. F. Thomas, Pastime Theatre (250 seats), Almyra, Arkansas.

THUNDERING HOOFS. (6,915 feet). Star, Fred Thomson. Good. Thomson a good drawing card. Went over fine on Saturday night. Should please most any audience.

Between Ourselves

A get-together place where we can talk things over

Since this dependable tip department started its helpful mission, I have always put things squarely up to you at all times.

That's the way things are still going and will go as long as I have anything to do with gathering and broadcasting these tips.

So this week I am giving you a letter on the next page, from one of our good friends whose tips used to come in from Grand Island, New York.

Friend Conery is a "different kind of exhibitor" now, but I personally think his tips are fully acceptable, as long as you know the circumstances under which they come in.

Read his letter and then you'll see what I mean. The tips will come along as soon as they get into type. VAN

Good action. Tone good. Sunday, yes. Good audience appeal. All classes, town of 3,000. Admission 10-25. A. F. Affelt, Liberty Theatre, St. Louis, Michigan.

UNTAMED YOUTH. (5 reels). Star cast. Seemed rather amateurish and audience spoke of crudeness in direction; storm scene at end saved the picture. Tone okay. Sunday, no. Audience appeal negligible. Small town class, town of 500. Admission 10-25. C. C. Klutts, Glades Theatre (200 seats), Moore Haven, Florida.

WHITE SIN. Star, Madge Bellamy. A good show of its kind, but it has no action in it for the youngsters. It did not draw us enough business to pay expenses of show. The print was in fair shape. Tone, good. Fair audience appeal. Better class town of 4,500. Admission 10-15. C. A. Anglemire, "Y" Theatre (404 seats), Nazareth, Pennsylvania.

First National

ASHES OF VENGEANCE. (10 reels). Star Norma Talmadge. One of the best costumed pictures ever made a part of French history. Showing to advantage the superiority of Norma Talmadge on the screen. Good attendance two days. Fair tone. Sunday, yes. Good audience appeal. All classes town of 2,900. Admission 10-20-30-40. A. E. Andrews, Opera House (500 seats), Emporium, Pennsylvania.

ENCHANTED COTTAGE. (7,120 feet). Star, Richard Barthelmess. A picture which is bound to cause a lot of discussion. Here the more intelligent class appreciated it and the less learned wanted to know what it was all about. Tone, okay. Sunday, yes. Good audience appeal. Mixed class town of 3,000. Admission 20-25. T. L. Barnett, Finn's Theatre (600 seats), Jewett City, Connecticut.

HER TEMPORARY HUSBAND. (6,723 feet). Star cast. People were delighted and anxious to tell me how glad they were to have seen it. Sorry to say that attendance was only average. City of 110,000. Admission 10-20. Al. C. Werner, Royal Theatre, Reading, Pennsylvania.

JEALOUS HUSBANDS. (6,500 feet). Star cast. Had some very favorable comments on this and satisfactory business. City of 110,000. Admission 10-20. Al. C. Werner, Royal Theatre, Reading, Pennsylvania.

LILIES OF THE FIELD. (8,500 feet). Star, Corinne Griffith. I ran this one on Christmas Day and it more than satisfied. It is one of the best pictures I have shown this year. A very good plot and the acting of Miss Griffith is wonderful. Tone, okay. Sunday, yes. Good audience appeal. Mixed class, town of 3,000. Admission 20-25. T. L. Barnett, Finn's Theatre (600 seats), Jewett City, Connecticut.

LILIES OF THE FIELD. (8,500 feet). Star, Corinne Griffith. Nine reels and every reel good. It pleased everyone and sent them away in a good humor and it gave me the first full house in a long time. Boost this one. A. Mitchell, Dixie Theatre, Russellville, Kentucky.

LOVE MASTER. (6,779 feet). Star, Strongheart (dog). Wonderful picture of the snow country but too much footage was given to the race. Beautiful scenery and the acting was excellent. The picture is a treat as it is quite a novelty. Well worth playing in any house. Tone, good. Sunday, yes. Good audience appeal. General class, town of 1,000. Admission 10-25, 15-35. H. H. Hedberg, Amuse-U Theatre, Melville, Louisiana.

MADONNA OF THE STREETS. (7,507 feet). Star, Milton Sills. A good program picture and if anything a little better than the ordinary. Tone, good. Conservatory class, city of 22,000. Admission twenty-five cents. S. J. Adams, Auditorium Theatre (1,100 seats), Concord, New Hampshire.

MADONNA OF THE STREETS. (7,507 feet). Star, Nazimova. This is an excellent program picture that should satisfy the most skeptical fan. Both stars do full justice to their parts with good photography and an excellent supporting cast. A picture for both small and large communities. Tone, good. Sunday, yes. Audience appeal, ninety per cent. Mixed class, city of 500,000. Admission 10-20. William T. Meeks, Silliman's Murray Theatre (740 seats), Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

MARRIAGE CHEAT. (7 reels). Star cast. The worst picture from a moral standpoint I've run in twenty years. And to think the Thomas H. Ince name on it. Pulled after first day. Tone, rotten. Not suitable for Sunday. Appeals to roughnecks only. Family and student class, town of 4,000. Admission 10-25. R. J. Relf, Star Theatre (600 seats), Decorah, Iowa.

MEANEST MAN IN THE WORLD. (6,500 feet). Star, Bert Lytell. The poorest picture for us in six months. Nothing to it. Title is too misleading. Small town class and farmers, town of 800. Admission 10-25. Welty & Son, Mid-Way Theatre (500 seats), Hill City, Kanses.

MEANEST MAN IN THE WORLD. (6,500 feet). Star cast. Was considered very good entertainment by those who came to see it, but alas not enough came. City of 110,000. Admission 10-20. Al. C. Werner, Royal Theatre, Reading, Pennsylvania.

ONLY WOMAN. (6,700 feet). Star, Norma Talmadge. While this is a splendidly acted picture it does not compare with "Secrets." Norma's previous production undoubtedly will please high class audiences. Small towns look out. Tone, good. Sunday, yes. Audience appeal, fair. Suburban class town of 2,000. Admission 10-30. H. Warren Rible, Mayfield Theatre (210 seats), Mayfield, California.

PAINTED PEOPLE. (5,700 feet). Star cast. People told me it was a very pleasing picture and when you give them a happy hour what more can they ask. City of 110,000. Admission 10-20. Al. C. Werner, Royal Theatre, Reading, Pennsylvania.

PENROD AND SAM. (6,275 feet). Star, Ben Alexander. This is one of the best audience pictures we ever had. Young and old liked it. Benny is so appealing. Tone, good. Sunday, yes. Very strong audience appeal. Welty & Son, Mid-way Theatre, Hill City, Kansas.

PERFECT FLAPPER. (7,000 feet). Star, Colleen Moore. Some picture. Certainly draws the ladies. One of the kind that gives you a satisfied and pleasant feeling after the day's business. Book it. Good box office. Tone, fair. Not suitable for Sunday. Audience appeal, ninety-five per cent. All classes town of 6,000. Admission 10-20-30. Frank H. Watton, Park Theatre (600 seats), Lebanon, New Hampshire.

SELF MADE FAILURE. (8 reels). Star, Ben Alexander. A very pleasing comedy which will cause a great deal of comment from the kids. Lloyd Hamilton is also in the cast and introduces a number of comedy situations. Suburban class town of 2,000. Admission 10-30. H. Warren Rible, Mayfield Theatre (210 seats), Mayfield, California.

SONG OF LOVE. (8,000 feet). Star cast. Considered a good picture by the discriminating ones and indifferent by some of the others. Poor at the box office. City of 110,000. Admission 10-20. Al. C. Werner, Royal Theatre, Reading, Pennsylvania.

SONG OF LOVE. (8,000 feet). Star, Norma Talmadge. In spite of bad weather this picture did a fair business. People here liked it better than any of Norma's pictures since "Smiling Through." In fact all of the others have flopped hard. But she came back in this one. Tone, okay. Good audience appeal. All classes town of 3,000. Admission 10-30. M. W. Larmour, National Theatre (450 seats), Graham, Texas.

TARNISH. (6,821 feet). Star cast. Very good comedy drama which will please nearly all types of audiences. Not a special but just an exceptionally good production. Tone, good. Sunday, yes. Very good audience appeal. Suburban class town of 2,000. Admission 10-30. H. Warren Rible, Mayfield Theatre (210 seats), Mayfield, California.

TORMENT. (6 reels). Star cast. Very good for small town people liked it and said so. Should appeal to the large majority of picture goers. Tone, fair. Not suitable for Sunday. Good audience appeal. All classes town of 2,900. Admission 10-20-30-40. A. E. Andrews, Opera House (500 seats), Emporium, Pennsylvania.

WHEN A MAN'S A MAN. (6,910 feet). Star cast. Very good. The first picture I got from First National this year to make any real money for me. "Trilby," "Torment," "Black Oxen," Thundergate," "Ashes of Vengeance," "Anna Christie," and a few other "good" pictures from this firm nearly put me out of business. No audience appeal. Town and country class. Admission 10-25-35. Sam Brooks, Liberty Theatre (400 seats), Hailey, Idaho.

Fox

HELL'S HOLE. (6 reels). Star, Buck Jones. This is well acted but the fact that it was a drama seemed to displease the audience. Tone, okay. Sunday, yes. Fair audience appeal. Rural and small town class town of 450. Admission 10-30. A. F. Thomas, Pastime Theatre (250 seats), Almyra, Arkansas.

END OF THE TRAIL. Star, William Farnum. Just a conglomeration of rosarys and sisters and fathers and cross-my-self's. I didn't see the picture so can't say much about it, but my bunch walked out on it and hollered their heads off. A few more like this and I will have to leave town. No audience appeal here. All classes town of 3,000. Admission 10-30. M. W. Larmour, National Theatre (450 seats), Graham, Texas.

MAN'S MATE. (6 reels). Star, John Gilbert. A fair picture of Apaches of Paris with a lost memory as its theme, could do for houses that change every day, but no other. Tone okay. Sunday, yes. Audience appeal, seventy per cent. Admission 15-25. David W. Strayer, Mt. Joy Theatre, Mt. Joy, Pennsylvania.

Mr. Conery's with Us Again

"VAN, and Gang: I am sorry if I seemed negligent in sending in reports. Truth is, I have been in no position to do so until now. I will do my best from now on.

"You will notice on the accompanying report blank that I am not reporting for any one theatre. I sign, CONOAT PROJECTION SERVICE. I am running a company by that name which specializes in presenting pictures any place where there is no motion picture apparatus. With each showing, we should be able to send in a report and I will do my best. It might interest you to know that I do the bulk of my booking guided by your department and I want to thank you for the way the department has helped me.

"Please keep on sending the reports and I will do my best to help you." Sincerely, Mitchell Conery.

Metro-Goldwyn

DON'T DOUBT YOUR HUSBAND. (5,510 feet). Star, Viola Dana. This is a real picture. Very clever acting, comedy, and pleases everyone. Makes a good first of the week offering. Tone, okay. Sunday, yes. Audience appeal, very good. Town and country class, town of 1,000. Admission 10-25. C. R. Seff, New Radio Theatre (250 seats), Correctionville, Iowa.

SHOOTING OF DAN McGREW. (6,318 feet). Star cast. A good program picture with a very good cast, good for any kind of a house. Tone, okay. Sunday, no. Appeals to all classes. Jos. Angros, Jr., Palace Theatre, Leechburg, Pennsylvania.

SHOOTING OF DAN McGREW. (6,318 feet). Star cast. The best I ever got from the above firm and one of the best box office attractions I have run this year, in fact, the only one from Metro-Goldwyn this year we could smile at our patrons the next day. Tone, good. Sunday, yes. Good audience appeal. Town and country class town of 1,000. Admission 10-25-35. Sam Brooks, Liberty Theatre (400 seats), Hailey, Idaho.

SPOILERS. (8,020 feet). Star cast. A picture that can't be beat, a much far better picture than the "Covered Wagon." Very good audience appeal. Mixed class town of 800. Admission 15-25. Jerry Wertin, Winter Theatre (240 seats), Albany, Minnesota.

THREE WEEKS. (7,500 feet). Star, Conrad Nagel. Booked for three days. First day record business other two days dropped. Picture not up to expectations. Most people disappointed, a few thought okay. Censors cut it to pieces. Tone, doubtful. Not suitable for Sunday. Should appeal to all classes. All classes town of 4,500. Admission 25-35. Jos. Angros, Jr., Palace Theatre (400 seats), Leechburg, Pennsylvania.

THROUGH THE DARK. (7,999 feet). Star, Colleen Moore. Best "Boston Blackie" yet. Had lots of good comments on this one. It will stand in any kind of a house used as a program better than lot of specials. Tone, okay. Sunday, yes. Appeals to all classes. Jos. Angros, Jr., Palace Theatre, Leechburg, Pennsylvania.

UNDER THE RED ROBE. (12,000 feet). Star cast. I am still wondering why it was I ever bought Goldwyn's with, the following lemon costumes, etc., "Palace of the King," "Day of Faith," "Slave of Desire." Mixed class, town of 3,000. Admission 10-20. Charles Martin, Family Theatre (300 seats), Mt. Morris, New York.

UNINVITED GUEST. (6,145 feet). Star cast. A nice little picture for houses that change every day. One reel colored, but the photography in this reel is very bad. Tone, fair. Sunday, no. Audience appeal, sixty-five per cent. Admission 15-25. David W. Strayer, Mt. Joy Theatre, Mt. Joy, Pennsylvania.

UNSEEING EYES. (8,500 feet). Star cast. Rotten, rotten, smells bad. If you have to run it, pay for it and don't show it. You'll be ahead. No appeal. Jos. Angros, Jr., Palace Theatre, Leechburg, Pennsylvania.

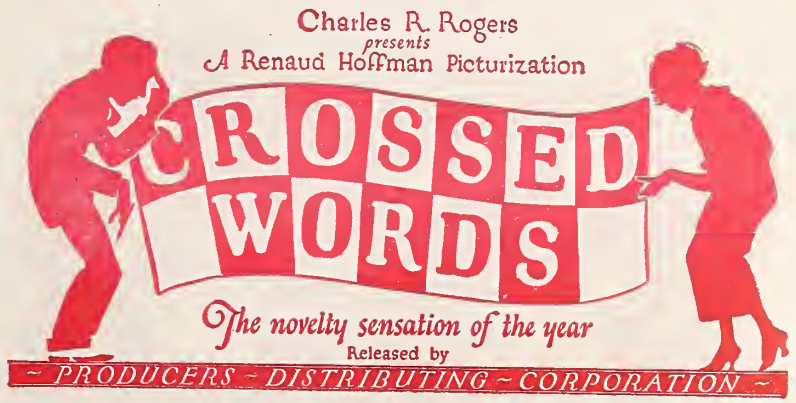
WHITE SISTER. (10,400 feet). Star, Lillian Gish. The majority was highly impressed with this production and lavish in their praise. Admission 10-20. Al. C. Werner, Royal Theatre, Reading, Pennsylvania.

WOMEN WHO GIVE. (7,500). Star cast. Very good program picture. Good comments on this one. Don't be afraid of this one. It will stand up better than some specials. Tone, okay. Sunday, yes. Appeals to all classes. Jos. Angros, Jr., Palace Theatre, Leechburg, Pennsylvania.

WOMEN WHO GIVE. (7,500 feet). Star cast. A very good picture of the sea. Good acting, a fair story. Will please any audience. Tone, good. Sunday, yes. Good audience appeal. All classes town of 3,000. Admission 10-25. A. F. Affelt, Liberty Theatre, St. Louis, Michigan.

Paramount

ALASKAN. (6,167 feet). Star, Thomas



Meighan A good northern story containing thrills, action, sentiment and romance. Tone, good. Sunday, yes. Audience appeal, eighty per cent. Mixel class, city of 500,000. Admission 10-20. William T. Meeks. Silliman's Murray Theatre (740 seats), Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

ALASKAN. (6,738 feet). Star, Thomas Meighan. A fair northern picture that should please the folks. Not worth the extra super rental they ask for it for there are many just as good for one-third the money. But it will do. Tone, very good. Sunday, yes. Fair audience appeal. Society class, city of 10,000. Admission 10-30. Ned Pedigo, Pollard Theatre, Guthrie, Oklahoma.

ALASKAN. (6,738 feet). Star, Thomas Meighan. One of Meighan's best. Do not be afraid to advertise as it will please one hundred per cent. Tone, good. Sunday, yes. Appeals to all. Mixed class, town of 1,800. Admission twenty-five cents. Fred S. Widenor, Opera House (492 seats), Belvidere, New Jersey.

ARGENTINE LOVE. (5,970 feet). Star, Bebe Daniels. Played this Christmas to good business first night and very poor the second, which goes to show that if the picture don't please it won't draw the second night. Bebe will draw if they cast her right, but this one did not satisfy. Mixed class. Joe Hewitt, Strand Theatre, Robinson, Illinois.

BEDROOM WINDOW. (4,550 feet). Star, May McAvoy. A good show with a good title to draw them in. Made a good show for a Saturday night. This print had a very bad splice in it that caused trouble. Tone, good. Fine audience appeal. Better class, town of 4,500. Admission 10-15. C. A. Anglemire, "Y" Theatre (404 seats), Nazareth, Pennsylvania.

BIG BROTHER. (7,080 feet). Star cast. This one was a satisfactory picture and pleased nearly all who saw it although it is only a program picture. Tone, good. Sunday, yes. Fair audience appeal. Town and country class, town of 900. Admission 10-25-30. Charles L. Nott, Opera House (300 seats), Sutherland, Iowa.

BLUFF. (6 reels). Star, Agnes Ayres. A good comedy drama. Classifies as an average picture. Star's nothing extra but direction and story good. Charles Lee Hyde, Grand Theatre, Pierre, South Dakota.

BREAKING POINT. (5,788 feet). Star cast. Had several flattering comments on this one and no kicks. Still it didn't show up at the box office nearly in proportion to the expectations aroused. Admission 10-20. Al. C. Werner, Royal Theatre, Reading, Pennsylvania.

BREAKING POINT. (5,788 feet). Star, Matt Moore. Here's an unusually fine picture. Cast A-1. Picture contains plenty of action. Pleased everyone. Tone, okay. Sunday, yes. Audience appeal, very good. Town and country class town of 1,000. Admissin 10-25. C. R. Seff, New Radio Theatre (250 seats), Correctionville, Iowa.

CHANGING HUSBANDS. (6,799 feet). Star, Leatrice Joy. Here's one that beats some of DeMille's bigger pictures. Will keep you laughing all the time. Leatrice Joy good in both roles. Tone, okay. Sunday, yes. Audience appeal, very good. Town and country class town of 1,000. Admission 10-25. C. R. Seff, New Radio Theatre (250 seats), Correctionville, Iowa.

New Blanks

As you will recall, L. O. Davis made some suggestions for changes in our report blank, among them being to add information as to whether a picture is suitable for running as a "special."

Among others, H. Warren Rible, Mayfield Theatre, Mayfield, California, has said "I think that Brother Davis' suggestion is a very good one and will be a great help to exhibitors."

The new blank has been prepared. Friend Davis has seen it and says it is now practically perfect and complete.

You'll get them this week. Let's hear if you like them.

CITY THAT NEVER SLEEPS. (6,087 feet). Star cast. This is above the average comedy drama. Name is all right, but I still think they change the name as they do not cling to the story as closely as many pictures. Tone, good. Perhaps suitable for Sunday. Universal audience appeal. Town of 3,200. Admission 10-20-30. Charles Lee Hyde, Grand Theatre, Pierre, South Dakota.

CODE OF THE SEA. (6,038 feet). Star, Rod LaRocque. Good picture but the coward stuff was carried too far. Tone, okay. Sunday, yes. Small town class town of 3,000. Admission 10-30. Star Theatre, Weiser, Idaho.

CODE OF THE SEA. (6,038 feet). Star cast. Was refreshingly different and appreciated as such. Had some flattering comments on it. City of 110,000. Admission 10-20. Al. C. Werner, Royal Theatre, Reading, Pennsylvania.

CONFIDENCE MAN. (6,500 feet). Star, Thomas Meighan. Just a good program picture. Did not draw as well as others we ran before. Tone, good. Sunday, yes. Good audience appeal. All classes town of 3,000. Admission 10-25. A. F. Affelt, Liberty Theatre, St. Louis, Michigan.

COVERED WAGON. (9,407 feet). Star, J. Warren Kerrigan. What a picture. So our crowds thought and that's all that counts. Had a banjo player and a fine male singer. Sang "Suzanne" several times. Strong audience appeal. Welty & Son, Mid-Way Theatre, Hill City, Kansas.

COVERED WAGON. (9,407 feet). Star, Ernest Torrence. This is the picture of the year. Lots will say they liked some other picture best, but no one has yet said to me that they did not like this, which shows that every one thinks it is so good that they use it to measure their favorite by. Town of 3,200. Admission 10-20-30. Charles Lee Hyde, Grand Theatre, Pierre, South Dakota.

DANGEROUS MONEY. (6,864 feet). Star, Bebe Daniels. Good program picture. Star well liked here. Tom Moore and his smile also helped. Story good, and all comments favorable. Tone, good. Sunday, yes. Audience appeal, seventy-five per cent. All classes town of 6,000. Admission 10-20-30. Frank H. Wotton, Park Theatre (600 seats), Lebanon, New Hampshire.

EMPTY HANDS. (6,976 feet). Star, Jack Holt. A good program picture, better than some pictures Paramount ropes you in for specials. Poor title and paper hurt business. Tone, okay. Sunday, yes. Audience appeal, all classes. Jos. Angros, Jr., Palace Theatre, Leechburg, Pennsylvania.

EMPTY HANDS. (6,976 feet). Star, Jack Holt. A real audience picture that will please just about all the folks. We liked it very very much, so did the congregation. Come on with another good one. Tone, all okay. Sunday, yes. Audience appeal, good. Society class city of 10,000. Ned Pedigo, Pollard Theatre, Guthrie, Oklahoma.

ENEMY SEX. (7,861 feet). Star, Betty Compson. All right of its kind but not a small town show. A shock to the family trade. Just another reason why movies are dying out. Tone, poor. Sunday, no. Doubtful audience appeal. Family and student class town of 4,000. Admission 10-25. R. J. Relf, Star Theatre (600 seats), Decorah, Iowa.

FAST SET. (6,995 feet). Star cast. Good picture failed to draw, yet it is worth seeing. Tone, good. Sunday, yes. Good audience appeal. Farmers and merchants town of 1,650. Mrs. J. B. Travelle, Elite Theatre, Placerville, California.

FEET OF CLAY. (9,746 feet). Star cast. Some people walked out on this one, mostly men, and panned it, while others boosted it most highly. I myself thought it was a big picture, but not worthy the money; it's not a drawing card as book was bad. Tone, good. Sunday, yes. Fair audience appeal. All classes town of 2,900. Admission 10-25. A. E. Andrews, Opera House (496 seats), Emporium, Pennsylvania.

FEET OF CLAY. (9,746 feet). With an all-star cast. A fairly good show which did not do ordinary business, possibly due to very poor advertising matter. Whatever it was, the public didn't come for it. Fair tone and appeal; no for Sunday. Draw mixed class, city of 35,000. Admission 25-35. C. D. Buss, Strand Theatre (700 seats), Easton, Pennsylvania.

FEET OF CLAY. (9,746 feet). Star cast. One great picture. The after death scenes are wonderful. It is a typical DeMille picture and so as usual, abounds in extravagant and luxurious scenes. Tone, okay. Sunday, yes. Fine audience appeal. Mixed class town of 3,000. Admission 20-25. T. L. Barnett, Finn's Theatre (600 seats), Jewett City, Connecticut.

FEET OF CLAY. (9,746 feet). Star cast. The only thing that saves the small town exhibitor on this one is the fact that Cecil B. DeMille made it, and uses his trade mark. Many walked out panning it. A few liked it. Small attendance on two-day run including Christmas. Tone, excellent. Sunday, yes. Very weak audience appeal. All classes town of 2,900. Admission 10-20-30-40. A. E. Andrews, Opera House (500 seats), Emporium, Pennsylvania.

FEET OF CLAY. (9,746 feet). Star cast. Not up to the DeMille class; disappointing. Fair business considering local conditions. Don't pay very much for this one. May go better in larger towns. Tone, okay. Not suitable for Sunday. Better class. Jos. Angros, Jr., Palace Theatre, Leechburg, Pennsylvania.

FORBIDDEN PARADISE. (7,000 feet). Star Pola Negri. By far the best thing Pola has ever done, with the aid of Ernst Lubitsch she has made one of the most delightful comedy dramas of the season. Adolphe Menjou is a scream throughout, while Rod LaRocque is the leading man. Advise all high class exhibitors to grab it and advertise it. It will pay. Don't forget the fact that Lubitsch directed it. It counts also. Tone, okay. Sunday, yes. Very good audience appeal. Suburban class own of 2,000. Admission 10-30. H Warren Rible, Mayfield, California.

GARDEN OF WEEDS. (6,250 feet). Star, Betty Compson. A very fine picture. Would have pleased everyone a whole lot more had it had a different ending. The picture ended too abruptly. Tone, good. Sunday, yes. Pleased majority. Mixed class town of 1,800. Admission twenty-five cents. Fred S. Widenor, Opera House (492 seats), Belvidere, New Jersey.

GARDEN OF WEEDS. (6,250 feet). Star, Betty Compson. A very entertaining story that is greatly different from the ordinary run of pictures. It is a story dealing with crook methods employed by a "shark" who runs a country estate and has a bunch of bathing girls to fleece his victims, he finally runs amuck. Tone, okay. Sunday, yes. Good audience appeal. Suburban class town of 2,000. Admission 10-30. H. Warren Rible, Mayfield Theatre (210 seats), Mayfield, California.

GO GETTER. (7,771 feet). Star, T. Roy Barnes. Played this dandy picture New Year's, and it sure went a hundred per cent. Mixed class town of 800. Admission 15-25. Jerry Wertin, Winter Theatre (240 seats), Albany, Minnesota.

HER LOVE STORY. (6,736 feet). Star, Gloria Swanson Another Swanson fluke. I wonder what Paramount is up to. Looks as though they want to kill this star. A poor story, picture and cast in this one. Doubtful tone. Not suitable for Sunday. No audience appeal. All classes town of 4,500. Admission 25-35. Jos. Angros, Jr., Palace Theatre (400 seats), Leechburg, Pennsylvania.

MANHANDLED. (6,998 feet). Star cast. While the comments were very favorable this Swanson story didn't show up as well at the box office as her previous pictures. City of 110,000. Admission 10-20. Al. C. Werner, Royal Theatre, Reading, Pennsylvania.

MAN WHO FIGHTS ALONE. (6,337 feet). Star cast. Rather too much agony for nothing at all and hadn't it been for the cast the picture wouldn't have done anything. City of 110,000. Admission 10-20. Al. C. Werner, Royal Theatre, Reading, Pennsylvania.

MERTON OF THE MOVIES. (7,655 feet). Star, Glenn Hunter. Good comedy, but who ever knows Hunter outside of New York? Would fit in okay on a double bill. Small towns lay off on this one. Tone, okay, Sunday, yes. All classes town of 4,500. Admission 25-35. Jos. Angros, Jr., Palace Theatre (400 seats), Leechburg, Pennsylvania.

MERTON OF THE MOVIES. (7,655 feet). Star, Glenn Hunter. One of the best comedies we have ever had the pleasure of showing. Pleased everyone. Tone good. Sunday, yes. Appeals to all. Mixed class town of 1,800. Admission twenty-five cents. Fred S. Widenor, Opera House (492 seats), Belvidere, New Jersey.

MONSIEUR BEAUCAIRE. (9,932 feet). Star, Rudolph Valentino. A fair costume picture that fails miserably at the box office. Paramount wants a million dollars for it on account of Rudy besides, wants to split on the average which isn't. No tone. Not suitable for Sunday. No audience appeal. All classes town of 2,900. Admission 10-20-30-40. A. E. Andrews, Opera House (500 seats), Emporium, Pennsylvania.

PETER PAN. (9,593 feet). Star, Betty Bronson. Have had my fingers crossed ever since contracting for this one, but now that it's all over I am glad to say it proved one of the year's surprises. Everyone except the Jazz hounds (boys) praised it to the skies, and it's drawing power is "extra good," despite very bad weather, icy and almost impossible to walk or drive cars. Betty Bronson fits the part of "Peter" to a farethewell and my guess is that it is going to make some money for most exhibitors. Mixed class. Joe Hewitt, Strand Theatre, Robinson, Illinois.

Mr. Mauger Pleased

"I have read the Jan. 10th issue and am greatly pleased with it.

"I don't know how an exhibitor could do without it.

"It saved me running a bad picture, for I read in Straight From the Shoulder reports of one I had booked and the theatre that played it said it was 'rotten' so I didn't play it.

"I shall send in reports for the benefit of others." Edgar C. Mauger, Blue and White Theatre, Annville, Pennsylvania.

PETER PAN. (9,593 feet). Star, Betty Bronson. Majority of patrons were delighted with it. Acting of Betty Bronson was perfect. One of the highest glass productions ever shown. Town of 1,800. I. B. Thomson, Ideal Theatre, Montrose, Pennsylvania.

SIDE SHOW OF LIFE. (7,511 feet). Star, Ernest Torrence. Tie up on this one boys. It's a winner. The best Torrence ever put out, and that's saying a great deal. Louise Fazenda, a new one is in fine support to the star, and then there is Anna Q. Nilsson too. You can't go wrong on this picture. Everybody liked it. City and country class. George W. Walther, Dixie Theatre, (500 seats), Kerrville, Texas.

SINGER JIM McKEE. (7 reels). Star, William S. Hart. This was forced on me although I had seen so many bad reports and so many people who told me it was the poorest thing they had ever seen I did not try to get anyone to come, and am glad I did not, although if I had known just how really rotten it was I would have paid them for the picture and left it in the exchange rather than pay express on it. Tone, none. Sunday, no. No audience appeal. Town and country class town of 1,000. Admission 10-25-35. Sam Brooks, Liberty Theatre (400 seats), Hailey, Idaho.

SINNERS IN HEAVEN. (6,881 feet). Star, Bebe Daniels. Good program picture. Tone, okay. Not suitable for Sunday. Appeals to all classes. Jos Angros, Jr., Palace Theatre (400 seats), Leechburg, Pennsylvania.

SINNERS IN HEAVEN. (6,881 feet). Star, Richard Dix. This picture proved very popular. Everyone liked it. The scenes are romantically beautiful. It has adventure, action, heart interest, and several spicy scenes. The men were wild about Bebe Daniels in grass clothing and the ladies liked Dix. All classes town of 3,000. Admission 10-30. M. W. Larmour, National Theatre (450 seats), Graham, Texas.

SINNERS IN HEAVEN. (6,881 feet). Star cast. This was voted good entertainment, and while it rather disappointed at the box office it pleased those who saw it. City of 110,000. Admission 10-20. Al. C. Werner, Royal Theatre, Reading Pennsylvania.

SINNERS IN HEAVEN. (6,881 feet). Star, Bebe Daniels. Was supposed to be my Christmas picture but never arrived. Now do you think the exchange will pay for my loss. I'll tell you later. Mixed class town of 3,000. Admission 10-20. Charles Martin, Family Theatre (300 seats), Mt. Morris, New York.

SINNERS IN HEAVEN. (6,881 feet). Star, Bebe Daniels. This will appeal to all. Story of a petted society girl who for the sake of the thrill leaves her finance for a trip in an aeroplane with a handsome pilot; plane is wrecked and they are cast on a cannibal island. Then the excitement and romance commence and ends only at final fade out. Book and guarantee it is a sure winner. Tone, fair. Sunday, yes. Audience appeal, one hundred per cent. Mixed class city of 500,000. Admission 10-20. William T. Meeks, Silliman's Murray Theatre (740 seats), Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

STORY WITHOUT A NAME. (7,912 feet). Star, Antonio Moreno. Just a fair program picture. Can't say much for this one. Tone, okay. Sunday, yes. All classes town of 4,500. Admission 25-35. Jos. Angros, Jr., Palace Theatre (400 seats), Leechburg, Pennsylvania.

STORY WITHOUT A NAME. (7,912 feet). Star, Agnes Ayres. They should have named it as it is a real good feature. Has everything, aeroplanes, battleships, steamboats love story and suspense, a dandy program picture, and it was a good show. Tone, fine. Sunday, yes. Audience appeal, seventy-five per cent. All classes town of 6,000. Admission 10-20-30. Frank H. Watton, Park Theatre (600 seats), Lebanon, New Hampshire.

TONGUES OF FLAME. (6,763 feet). Star, Thomas Meighan. The best one Meighan has made in some time. Pleased majority. Did good business for me. Tone, good. Sunday, yes. Good audience appeal. All classes city of 90,000. Admission 40-50. Guy O'Kenimer, Arcade Theatre (1,151 seats), Jacksonville, Florida .

TO THE LADIES. (6,268 feet). Star, Theodore Roberts. Ran this New Year's night for a free show to everybody and they enjoyed it. Roberts sure is great in character parts. More power to him. Tone, good. Good audience appeal. Better class town of 4,500. Admission 10-15. C. A. Anglemire, "Y" Theatre (404 seats), Nazareth, Pennsylvania.

TO THE LADIES. (6,268 feet). Star cast. Just a good program picture. Tone, good. Sunday, yes. Fair audience appeal. Farmers and merchants, town of 1,650. Mrs. J. B. Travelle, Elite Theatre, Placerville, California.

UNGUARDED WOMEN. (6,051 feet). Star, Richard Dix. Very good producion. Acting of Richard Dix excellent. Tone, good. Sunday, yes. Good audience appeal. Farmers and merchants town of 1,650. Mrs. J. B.

Travelle, Elite Theatre, Placerville, California.

WAGES OF VIRTUE. (7,083 feet). Star Gloria Swanson. If they don't soon put Gloria in something good the people are going to quit coming to see Gloria. A poor picture all way around. Tone, no good. Sunday, no. No audience appeal. All classes town of 4,500. Admission 25-35. Jos. Angros, Jr., Palace Theatre (400 seats), Leechburg, Pennsylvania.

WAGES OF VIRTUE. (7,083 feet). Star, Gloria Swanson. Score another for Gloria. Still another for Allan Dwan. This director, and star pair have done it again. This is a delightful comedy drama of royal life in a small European country. Tone, good. Sunday, yes. Very good audience appeal. Suburban class town of 2,000. Admission 10-30. H. Warren Rible, Mayfield Theatre (210 seats), Mayfield, California.

WORLDLY GOODS. (6,085 feet). Star, Agnes Ayres. A good comedy drama but Agnes doesn't mean anything to my box office and it is hard to get in a good crowd to just see a picture. They seem to wish to have some personal contact such as a favorite star to bring them out. I think the radio is awfully strong competition in this town. Charles Lee Hyde, Grand Theatre, Pierre, South Dakota.

Pathe

GIRL SHY. (7,457 feet). Star, Harold Lloyd. One of the most entertaining pictures of the year and one that will draw people back the second night. I had one man drive sixty miles two days in succession to bring his friends over to see this and guess more people stayed to see my second show after seeing the first than any other picture I ever ran. Those who like Lloyd like this lots. Tone, good. Sunday, yes. Universal audience appeal. Town of 3,200. Admission 10-20-30. Charles Lee Hyde, Grand Theatre, Pierre, South Dakota.

Principal

MINE WITH THE IRON DOOR. (Principal). Star, Pat O'Malley. (7,800 feet). This is truly a great production and may be easily classed as a special. Better even than "When A Man's a Man." In advertising mention Harold Bell Wright's name. It helps a lot. Tone, okay. Sunday, yes. Audience appeal, excellent. Suburban class town of 2,000. Admission 10-30. H. Warren Rible, Mayfield Theatre (210 seats), Mayfield, California.

Producers Dist. Corp.

HIS DARKER SELF. (5 reels). Star, Lloyd Hamilton. Good Saturday picture. Lots of laughs, especially for the kids. Story of bootleggers, and revenue men and amateur detectives. No kick coming. Tone, fair. Not suitable for Sunday. Audience appeal, one hundred per cent. All classes town of 6,000. Admission 10-20-30. Frank H. Watton, Park Theatre (600 seats), Lebanon, New Hampshire.

Old Friend Back

"Dear Van and 'Gang,' I have been 'cheating,' I have been taking advantage of the other boys' reports: but, believe me! from now on I'm going to be one of THE GANG and I'm going to shoot this blank at you very often, in the future, for Straight From the Shoulder reports have helped me greatly.

"I believe this department of Moving Picture World means more to small town exhibitors than all the trade papers put together.

"Have more to say but am pushed for time—but you'll hear from me again, soon." Jos. Angros, Palace Theatre, Leechburg, Pennsylvania.

HOOSIER SCHOOLMASTER. (5,536 feet). Star cast. Good picture. Have not read the book so don't know how they compare. Dark in spots but worth showing. Tone, good. Sunday, yes. Good audience appeal. Small town class and farmers town of 600. Admission 10-2, 10-30. H. W. Batchelder, Galt Theatre (175 seats). Galt, California.

LIGHTNING RIDER. (6 reels). Star, Harry Carey. About the best Carey we ever ran. Enjoyed by every one. Small town class and farmers town of 800. Admission 10-25. Welty & Son, Mid-Way Theatre (500 seats), Hill City, Kansas.

MIAMI. (6,317 feet). Star cast. Ran two days as special, nothing extra, patrons not satisfied. Really nothing in it to make it a special, maybe okay for society, but not good for mining town. Paid twice what it was worth. Jno. A. Greve, Princess Theatre, Oak Creek, Colorado.

NIGHT HAWK. (5,115 feet). Star cast. Patrons well pleased with the new Carey pictures. This one good. A. R. Powell, Highland Theatre, Guthrie, Oklahoma.

RAMSHACKLE HOUSE. (6,287 feet). Star, Betty Compson. A good mystery drama. Betty has a captivating part in this picture and keeps audience as well as the detectives guessing. Scene laid mostly in the Florida Everglades. Excellent program that will please. Tone, good. Sunday, yes. Audience appeal, eight per cent. Mixed class city of 500,000. Admission 10-20. William T. Meeks, Silliman's Murray Theatre (740 seats), Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

WANDERING HUSBANDS. (6 reels). Star cast. People thought it a fair picture and it brought fair attendance. City of 110,000. Admission 10-20. Al. C. Werner, Royal Theatre, Reading, Pennsylvania.

United Artists

GARRISON'S FINISH. (8 reels). Star, Jack Pickford. This is Pickford's best. A fine absorbing story with real dramatic situations and realistic "shots" of horseracing taken at Belmont Park and the Kentucky Derby at Louisville. Madge Bellamy is a sweet foil for Jack and the cast good. Get it and you'll be getting something good. City and country class, town of 3,000. Admission 10-30. George W. Walther, Dixie Theatre (500 seats), Kerryville, Texas.

HILL BILLY. (5,734 feet). Star, Jack Pickford. Played it when kids were not in school and it went over fine. One of Pickford's best jobs. Conservative class city of 22,000. Admission twenty-five cents. S. J. Adams, Auditorium Theatre (1,100 seats), Concord, New Hampshire.

LITTLE LORD FAUNTLEROY. Star, Mary Pickford. This is a beautiful Christmas picture which I ran as a second run to a fair business against the awful competition of Christmas time in a small churchy town. It is old, but so is the story and they all know of it and they all enjoy it. Charles Lee Hyde, Grand Theatre, Pierre, South Dakota.

NO MORE WOMEN. Star, Matt Moore. Very nice little comedy drama which pleased a Christmas Day audience. Madge Bellamy is very good in this, and it makes a very pleasant program picture. Tone, good. Sunday, yes. Very good audience appeal. Residential class town of 1,200. Admission 10-25. John McGill, Liberty Theatre (250 seats), Port Orchard, Washington.

ROSITA. (8,800 feet). Star, Mary Pickford. Played two days to fair attendance. The second night it rained and spoiled everything. The picture is fairly good. Pickford is not as good a Spanish dancer as Negri. Tone, good. Fair audience appeal. Better class town of 4,500. Admission 10-15. C. A. Anglemire, "Y" Theatre (404 seats), Nazareth, Pennsylvania.

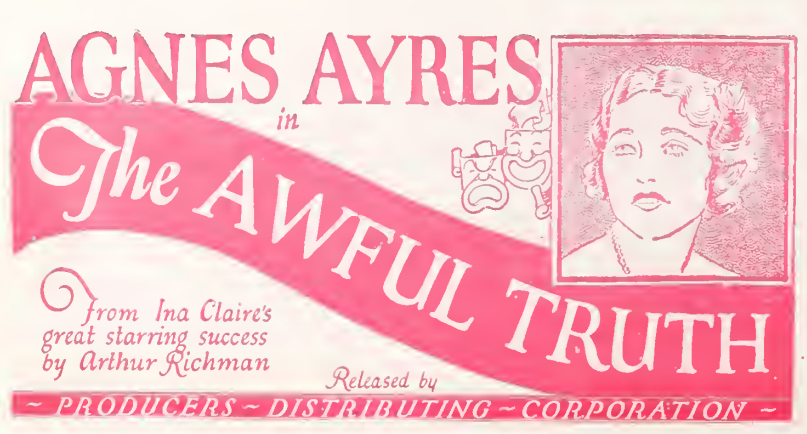
Universal

FAST WORKER. (6,506 feet). Star, Reginald Denny. A farce comedy that is pleasing in its amusing situations. I did think Denny was a wonder when featured in "Leather Pushers," but somehow he lacks personal magnetism in pictures of this sort. A mischievous little girl carries the picture through to the excitable automobile chase in last reel. Tone, good. Sunday, yes. Audience appeal, seventy per cent. Mixed class city of 500,000. Admission 10-20. William T. Meeks, Silliman's Murray Theatre (740 seats), Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

FORTY HORSE HAWKINS. (5,148 feet). Star, Hoot Gibson. Orthodox Hoot Gibson western that drew fairly well and pleased those who came. Gibson no longer draws for us as he once did. Probably due to the fact that he made so many that were not westerns. Tone, okay. Sunday, yes. Good audience appeal. All classes city of 14,000. Admission 10-35. E. W. Collins, Grand and Liberty Theatres (700-500 seats), Jonesboro, Arkansas.

HIT AND RUN. (5,508 feet). Star, Hoot Gibson. A great entertainment. Everybody liked it and said so. What's the use of spending big money on great big subjects when a little picture like this gives one hundred per cent satisfaction and above all we can make money with such as these. Tone, great. Good for Sunday. Great audience appeal. Mixed class city of 35,000. Admission 25-35. C. D. Buss, Strand Theatre (700 seats), Easton, Pennsylvania.

HUNCHBACK OF NOTRE DAME. (11,000 feet). Star, Lon Chaney. One of the greatest pictures I have ever shown; business fair, due to cold weather. Acting of Chaney and Torrence great. Tone, okay. Sunday, yes.



Audience appeal, good. Town and country class town of 1,000. Admission 10-25. C. R. Seff, New Radio Theatre (250 seats), Correctionville, Iowa.

JACK O' CLUBS. (4,717 feet). Star, Herbert Rawlinson. A fair little program and entertaining all through. Tone, good. Hardly suitable for Sunday. Pretty good audience appeal. Welty & Son, Mid-Way Theatre, Hill City, Kansas.

LOVE AND GLORY. (7 reels). Star cast. This was sold to me "A Universal super jewel"; no doubt it may be Universal's jewel, but to this exhibitor it's a lemon. A French war picture with a lot of "love and glory" all right and that's about all. This picture may go over in a French town, but not with the Irish and the Dutch. Flopped both nights. Poor audience appeal. Admission 10-20. P. A. Preuss, Arvada Theatre, Arvada, Colorado.

MEASURE OF A MAN. Star, William Desmond. Big timber pictures never get money. I believe that Desmond would go good in western, but evidently Universal doesn't agree with me. Masses city of 200,000. Admission 10-20. R. M. Kennedy, Royal Theatre (350 seats), Birmingham, Alabama.

MERRY-GO-ROUND. (9,178 feet). Star cast. Was somewhat disappointed in this picture as it had been raed so highly in various reports. Did not please the majority. Agricultural class town of 1,200. Admission 10-25. L. M. Zug, Rialto Theatre (280 seats), Jerome, Idaho.

MERRY-GO-ROUND. (9,178 feet). Star cast. One of the biggest and greatest of pictures, but simply out of place in a small town. Too few appreciate it. Tone, fair. Not suitable for Sunday. Pretty good audience appeal. Small town class and farmers town of 800. Admission 10-25. Welty & Son, Mid-Way Theatre (500 seats), Hill City, Kansas.

NIGHT MESSAGE. (4,591 feet). Star cast. Good little picture of program variety. Tone, okay. Sunday, yes. Good audience appeal. All classes city of 14,000. Admission 10-35, 10-25. E. W. Collins, Grand and Liberty Theatres (500-700 seats), Jonesboro, Arkansas.

RAMBLING KID. (6,395 feet). Star, Hoot Gibson. Good outdoor picture. Pleased the patrons. Tone, good. Sunday, yes. Good audience appeal. Farmers and merchants, town of 1,650. Mrs. J. B. Travelle, Elite Theatre, Placerville, California.

RED WARNING. (4,750 feet). Star, Jack Hoxie. This is a good western with good riding and action. Will please all that like westerns. Tone, fair. Not suitable for Sunday. Good audience appeal. Country and town class. Admission 10-20. W. F. Denny, Electric Theatre (250 seats), Lowry City, Missouri.

RIDERS UP. (4,904 feet). Star, Creighton Hale. Just a good program picture. A race horse story; not much plot. Tone, okay. Sunday, yes. Small town class town of 3,000. Admission 10-30. Star Theatre, Weiser, Idaho.

RIDGEWAY OF MONTANA. (4,842 feet). Star, Jack Hoxie. I have run better Hoxie's than this one; is more on a north mounted than western. Tone, good. Sunday, yes. Good audience appeal. All classes town of 6,000. Admission 10-25. R. L. Cochran, Judia Theatre (402 seats), Cisco, Texas.

SPORTING YOUTH. (6,712 feet). Star, Reginald Denny. One of the best pictures Universal ever made. Is an especially good picture for small towns. Tone, good. Sunday, yes. Audience appeal, one hundred per cent. Farmers town of 800. Admission 10-25. E. F. Gick, Pastime Theatre (250 seats), Moundridge, Kansas.

Vitagraph

BELOVED BRUTE. (6,719 feet). Star, Bill Russell. We did not do business on a two day engagement with this picture and attribute the fact to the "unknown" idea. Our people want some known stars. The photoplay made very big. Many ladies have requested us to arrange a return date. Mixed public. Admission 15-30. Herbert C. Shaw, Metropolitan Theatre (1,300 seats), Morgantown, West Virginia.

ANITA STEWART
Appearing in Preferred picture, "The Boomerang."

BELOVED BRUTE. (6,719 feet). Star, Victor McLaglen. A western picture that is different and will please the women as well as the men that like only he man stuff. You can step on this one with all your weight as it is out of the ordinary. McLaglen will prove a good card if shown a few times. Vitagraph is furnishing us better pictures all the time, they are a trying bunch and deserve a lot of credit. Sunday, yes. Good audience appeal. General class town of 3,000. Admission, 10-20. William A. Clark, Castle Theatre (400 seats), Havana, Illinois.

BETWEEN FRIENDS. (6,900 feet). Star, Alice Calhoun. A picture that will please with discriminating audiences, who enjoy the higher type of screen entertainment. Tone, good. Sunday, yes. Good audience appeal. Residential class town of 1,200. Admission 10-25. John McGill, Liberty Theatre (250 seats), Port Orchard, Washington.

CAPTAIN BLOOD. (10,680 feet). Star, J. Warren Kerrigan. Can be made the feature of the year with proper playing up. We played to 8,000 people on three days and advanced top price to fifty cents, doing $2,600. "The Sea Hawk" had been seen here previously. Mixed public. Regular admission 15-30. Herbert C. Shaw, Metropolitan Theatre (1,300 seats), Morgantown, West Virginia.

Warner Bros.

BEAU BRUMMEL. (10 reels). Star, John Barrymore. A great picture. Don't be afraid to advertise this one. It will stand up for anything for Barrymore is great in this one, did fine business on this one. Tone, good. Sunday, yes. Appeals to all classes. Jos. Angros, Jr., Palace Theatre, Leechburg, Pennsylvania.

COUNTRY KID. (6,300 feet). Star cast. The grown-ups considered it passable but the kids simply ate it up. The results were satisfactory. City of 110,000. Admission 10-20. Al. C. Werner, Royal Theatre, Reading, Pennsylvania.

FIND YOUR MAN. (7,300 feet). Rin-Tin-Tin (dog). Voted by my patrons to be the best picture I have had for a year. Warners did not hold me up for it either, so I feel just as pleased as my patrons. Has a splendid trailer on it. Tone, all right. Sunday, yes. One hundred percent audience appeal. Residential class town of 1,200. Admission 10-25. John McGill, Liberty Theatre (250 seats), Port Orchard, Washington.

HER ACCIDENTAL HUSBAND. Star cast. Rather a sad mess, this story and no comedy relief. Fair program picture is the best that could be said about it. City of 110,000. Admission 10-20. Al. C. Werner, Royal Theatre Reading, Pennsylvania.

LOVER OF CAMILLE. (7,180 feet). Star, Monte Blue. Take your hats off to the Warner boys again. This is truly the finest piece of dramatic action I have ever witnessed. The adaptation from the stage success by David Belasco is perfect in every way. The direction is by Harry Beaumont, which makes it perfect. In appreciative audiences this picture my be classed as a super special. Tone, questionable. Sunday, yes. Very good audience appeal. Suburban class town of 2,000. Admission 10-30. H. Warren Rible, Mayfield Theatre (210 seats), Mayfield, California.

LUCRETIA LOMBARD. (7,500 feet). Star cast. People here considered this a good picture and while the title may not have been the most fortunate it went over fairly well. City of 110,000. Admission 10-20. Al. C. Werner, Royal Theatre, Reading, Pennsylvania.

TIGER ROSE. (8,000 feet). Star, Lenore Ulric. This was considered one of the best pictures of its kind by the vast majority and the attendance was fairly good. City of 110,000. Admission 10-20. Al. C. Warner, Royal Theatre, Reading, Pennsylvania.

Comedies

ALL NIGHT LONG. (Pathe). Star, Harry Langdon. This is positively a knockout. Langdon great drawing card here. A few more like this and we shall see Langdon up where Lloyd is now. Tone, good. Sunday, yes. Audience appeal, one hundred per cent. Suburban class town of 2,000. Admission 10-30. H. Warren Rible, Mayfield Theatre (210 seats), Mayfield, California.

DIZZY DAISY. (Educational). Star, Louise Fazenda. Gets a few laughs, the second reel is very good. Worth running. Sunday, yes. Admission 15-25. David W. Strayer, Mt. Joy Theatre, Mt. Joy, Pennsylvania, Pennsylvania.

DIZZY DAISY. (Educational). Star, Louise Fazenda. Another great Jack White special.

This was an A-1 laugh producer in our house. You don't need to be afraid of this comedy. Tone, good. Good audience appeal. Better class town of 4,500. Admission 10-15. C. A. Anglemire, "Y" Theatre (404 seats), Nazareth, Pennsylvania.

DONE IN OIL. (Christie). Star, Jimmy Adams. This one is a real comic, laughs all the way through. You can book this and not be afraid of it. Sunday, yes. Admission 15-25. David W. Strayer, Mt. Joy Theatre, Mt. Joy, Pennsylvania.

DUMB AND DAFFY. (Fox). Star, Al St. John. A good comedy but received a bad print. No use complaining to exchange if you complain as to condition of prints. They will send good prints for about a month and then just as, bad as ever. No tone. Sunday, yes. Good audience appeal. All classes in big city. Admission ten cents. Stephen G. Brenner, Eagle Theatre (298 seats), Baltimore, Maryland.

FAST AND FURIOUS. (Educational). Certainly named appropriately, for it starts off with a whizz and never lets up till the end. A very good comedy to book. Action, speed, thrills, etc., all there. Tone good. Sunday, yes. Good audience appeal. Suburban class, town of 2,000. Admission 10-30. H. Warren Rible, Mayfield Theatre (210 seats), Mayfield, California.

GOING EAST. (Educational). Star, Lloyd Hamilton. There is no getting away from it, this is a humdinger of a comedy. The best Hamilton ever made, to my estimation. It sure is full of laughs. Tone okay. Good audience appeal. Better class, town of 4,500. Admission 10-15. C. A. Anglemire, "Y" Theatre (404 seats), Nazareth, Pennsylvania.

HANDY MAN. (Educational). A simply no good comedy, and it sure is not worth the running. Not suitable for Sunday. Mixed class, town of 800. Admission 15-25. Jerry Wertin, Winter Theatre (240 seats), Albany, Minnesota.

IN TWENTY-FOUR HOURS. (Reel Craft). An old but pleasing comedy. Tone okay. Sunday, yes. All classes in big city. Admission ten cents. Stephen G. Brenner, Eagle Theatre (298 seats), Baltimore, Maryland.

JUST A GOOD GUY. (Pathe). Star, Arthur Stone. This is a riot. Business and farming class town of 2,200. Admission 10-25. A. F. Jenkins, Community Theatre, David City, Nebraska.

KID SPEED. (Educational). Star, Larry Semon. This old boy has made another knock out. Best thing from this active little fellow for a long time. Everyone liked it. and it is plain to see that it cost a barrel of money to produce it. It has everything a big comedy should have. Best class city of 10,000. Admission 10-20. Ned Pedigo, Pollard Theatre (800 seats), Guthrie, Oklahoma.

MAGIC CARPET. (Pathe). A real good fable. Lots of laughs . Sunday, yes. All classes town of 2,800. Admission 15-25. D. W. Strayer, Mt. Joy Theatre (250 seats), Mt. Joy, Pennsylvania.

MEET THE MRS. (Pathe). Good comedy. Admission 10-30. N. Russell, Russell's Theatre, Barnesboro, Pennsylvania.

Boosts It

"Well, Van and 'Gang,' here are a few new ones for the boys to look over." (You'll find them this week and next among the reports).

"Would like to see every high class exhibitor who takes pride in selecting his pictures, play 'Forbidden Paradise' (Paramount). It's positively a knock-out to my way of thinking.

"If you haven't seen it, have a look at it. You'll agree with me." H. Warren Rible, Mayfield Theatre, Mayfield, California.

Short Subjects

FOX NEWS. (Fox). Put a little more slow motion stuff in this news and it will go above the other news reels on the market. Sunday, yes. Audience appeal, very good. All classes in big city. Admisison ten cents. Stephen G. Brenner, Eagle Theatre (298 seats), Baltimore, Maryland.

GO-GETTERS NO. 1. (F. B. O.) Star, Alberta Vaughn. Started off fine and I believe they will be better than "The Telephone Girl" series. Tone, okay. Sunday, yes. Audience appeal, okay. Oil and farm class town of 1,000. Admission 10-25. H. E. Schlichter, Liggett Theatre (600 seats), Madison, Kansas.

HOBBIES. (Pathe). These Sportlights are what I call "Highbrow Fillers," and then I pat myself on the back because I like them. However, I notice that the people who mention them are the more particular kind. They fill with a comedy drama such as "Girl Shy" one hundred per cent. Town of 3,200. Admission 10-20-30. Charles Lee Hyde, Grand Theatre, Pierre, South Dakota.

Independents

BRANDED A THIEF. (State Right). Star, Neal Hart. We have always heard of lemons, but this must be the real lemon at last. No action, no pep, nothing. One hundred per cent rotten. No audience appeal. Small town class town of 250. Admission 10-25. Roy E. Cline, Osage Theatre (200 seats), Osage, Oklahoma.

DANGER AHEAD. (State Right). Star, Richard Talmadge. A very good story and much better than former releases under Goldstone banner. Should please all star's followers. Print new. Tone, okay. Sunday, yes. Audience appeal, ninety per cent. All classes in big city. Admission ten cents. Stephen G. Brenner, Eagle Theatre (298 seats), Baltimore, Maryland.

DANGER RIDER. (State Right). Star, Art Mix. A fair western. nothing extra, but will do for anyone that likes action. Good audience appeal. Working class city of 14,000. Admission 10-20. G. M. Bertling, Favorite Theatre (187 seats), Piqua, Ohio.

GIRL WHO CAME BACK. (State Right). Star cast. Fair picture. Average entertainment, that's the verdict. Admission 10-20. Al C. Werner, Royal Theatre, Reading, Pennsylvania.

IN HIGH GEAR. (State Right). Star cast. Fine. One of the best complete stories and lost of action. Admisison 10-30. N. Russell, Russell's Theatre, Barnesboro, Pennsylvania.

INNOCENCE. (State Right). Star cast. This was sent as a substitute and was a fairly good offering, but people are always critical on a substitute picture. Tone, good. Sunday, yes. Fair audience appeal. Small town class and farmers town of 800. Admission 10-25. Welty & Son, Mid-Way Theatre (500 seats), Hill City, Kansas.

LOST IN A BIG CITY. (State Right. Star, John Lowell. Some thought this wonderful, others less impressed with it and thought it a rather crude production. Below the average at the box office. Admission 10-20. Al. C. Werner, Royal Theatre, Reading, Pennsylvania.

OUT OF THE DUST. (State Right). Star, Roy Stewart. An old picture but a good one. Tone, good. Hardly suitable for Sunday. Strong audience appeal. Small town class and farmers town of 800. Admission 10-25. Welty & Son, Mid-Way Theatre (500 seats), Hill City, Kansas.

PALS IN BLUE. (State Right). Star, Tom Mix. This is disgusting paying out good money for trash like this. Absolutely no good. An old reissue. Leave it alone. Not suitable for Sunday. No audience appeal. Small town class town of 250. Admission 10-25. Roy E. Clines, Osage Theatre (200 seats), Osage, Oklahoma.

PARTED CURTAINS. (State Right). Star cast. Just a good little program picture. Tone, good. Sunday, yes. Fair audience appeal. Farmers and merchants town of 1,650. Mrs. J. B. Travelle, Elite Theatre, Placerville, California.

RACING FOR LIFE. (Independent). Star, Eva Novak. Good program picture. If bought right will make you a fair profit. Title good. Paper just fair. Tone, none. Sunday, no. Good audience appeal. All classes town of 2,900. Admission 10-25. A. E. Andrews, Opera House (496 seats), Emporium, Pennsylvania.

RECKLESS RIDING BILL. (Independent). Star, Bill Mix. This picture is no good; stay off from it. It will draw well but all the better element will pan it. Paper excellent, and exciting. Tone, none. Sunday, no. No audience appeal. All classes town of 2,900. Admission 10-25. A. E. Andrews, Opera House (496 seats), Emporium, Pennsylvania.

SOUTH OF SANTA FE. (State Right). Star, Art Mix. Whoever this star is he don't mean much to me. He should play extra with some real western star until he learns something about acting. Print new. Tone, okay. Sunday. no. Fair audience appeal. All classes in big city. Admission ten cents. Stephen G. Brenner, Eagle Theatre (298 seats), Baltimore, Maryland.

VERDICT OF THE DESERT. (State Right). Star, Neal Hart. Neal Hart needs some pep; if he was with Fred Thomson in one of his pictures he would get run over. He is so slow. Tone, good. Sunday, no. Not much audience appeal. Small town class town of 300. Admission 10-25. Roy E. Cline, Osage Theatre (200 seats), Osage, Oklahoma.

WAY OF TRANSGRESSOR. (Independent). Star, George Larkin. Another good program picture made by the Independents. Good, clean entertainment. Print good. Tone, okay. Sunday, yes. Audience appeal, eighty per cent. All classes in big city. Admission ten cents. Stephen G. Brenner, Eagle Theatre (298 seats), Baltimore, Maryland.

DONALD KEITH
B. P. Schulberg's New Screen Find Featured in "The Boomerang," the David Belasco Play

Schulberg Signs Youth

Donald Keith Considered One of the Likely Youngsters in Filmdom

Answering the demand for new screen faces, B. P. Schulberg lays claim to having discovered a youth who, he says, will be one of the sensational finds of the year. The boy's name is Donald Keith and Mr. Schulberg has substantiated his faith in the young actor's future by giving him a contract.

"The Boomerang," a film version of the David Belasco play, will serve as Donald Keith's introductory vehicle. In it he is now playing one of the leading roles in support of Anita Stewart and Bert Lytell. Director Gasnier shares the producer's enthusiasm for the quality of the boy's work.

Mr. Schulberg has brought forward several unknown players from obscurity to a place in the sun. He sponsored Katherine MacDonald's advent as a star and was responsible for the discovery of Clara Bow who since her affiliation with the Schulberg organization has become one of the outstanding film artists of today.

He asserts, however, that in all his experience he has never been so confident of a player's latent ability as he is in that of young Keith. Keith is nineteen years old. He has been in pictures a little over a year. Mr. Schulberg first observed him enacting a minor role in another studio. He sent for him the following day and his new contract is the result.

Miss Thornton's Third Picture

Charles Hutchison Directing the Steiner Star; Earl Williams in Cast

Edith Thornton, who won instant favor with the public in "Virtue's Revolt" and "On Probation," has started work, under the direction of Charles Hutchison, on her third picture of the new series for William Steiner.

She will have, as her principal support, Earl Williams, one of the best known stars. The story is by a famous author, and will be announced later, with the balance of the supporting cast.

Cranfield & Clarke Have a Fine Array of Productions

CRANFIELD & CLARKE have not been in the business long, but they certainly have made themselves felt. They recently re-organized and took over Hepworth product, among which are some wonderfully good films. They commenced by releasing "Lily of the Alley," which was followed by "Strangling Threads," and finally, "A Soul's Awakening," starring the beautiful little Flora le Breton, who is making such a big hit in "Lass O' Laughter" at the Comedy Theatre, N. Y. Miss le Breton, as described by the daily papers as 'winsome and pretty,' has a charm on the screen which is all her own, and is nightly captivating New York, hence, the reason for the big success of "A Soul's Awakening" whenever or wherever it is exhibited.

Cranfield and Clarke have also procured the American right for the picture made from Helen Mather's most famous novel, "Comin' Thru' the Rye." This picture abounds in charming settings. In addition to this, the story is a sweetly pretty one, and has a very great heart appeal, especially to the women.

Then, there is a Phillips Oppenheim story, "The Amazing Quest"; a Hornung Raffles yarn, "Justice Raffles"; and an Edgar Wallace society thriller, "Crimson Circle." There is also to come, "Pipes of Pan"; "Speak No Evil", "Mist in the Valley", and many other splendid productions, which will appeal to the American and Canadian audiences. Cranfield and Clarke features are handled by the following exchanges:

New York, Aywon, 729 7th Ave., N. Y.; Chicago, Ill., Security, 808 S. Wabash Ave.; Pittsburgh, Standard, 1030 Forbest St.; Detroit, Rex Film, 338 Ins. Exch. Bldg.; Philadelphia, Imperial, 1302 Vine St.; Minneapolis, Advance, 306 Film Exch. Bldg.; Boston, Cosmopolitan, 14 Piedmont St. and St. Louis, United Film Ex., 3314 Lindell Blvd.

Cranfield and Clarke are also releasing, through the Red Seal Corp., a series of novelty single reels, which are first shown at the Rialto and Rivoli Theatres, and afterwards, in all the first run houses throughout the country. They include: "Peeps Into Puzzleland," "Zoo's Who's Who," "Magic Hour," "If Matches Struck," "Should a Husband Tell?" "D'You Remember," "A Day With the Gypsies," "Stratford-on-Avon," "Bubberneck in London," "Along the Devon Coast," "Up the River With Molly," "Up the River Conway."

"Capital Punishment" Opens February 1 at the Cameo

J. G. BACHMANN, vice-president and general manager of distribution for B. P. Schulberg Productions, has announced that the world premier of the Schulberg special, "Capital Punishment," is scheduled for February first, when it will begin its Broadway engagement at B. S. Moss's Cameo Theatre.

The management of the house, anticipating that the picture will be an unusual drawing card, has placed no time limit on the run.

"Capital Punishment" has created considerable advance interest on account of the appeal of its theme. Critics of the New York dailies and the trade press who previewed the feature last week when it was screened at Sing Sing Prison, emphasized the entertainment values of this dramatic story.

James P. Hogan directed "Capital Punishment" from the story written by Mr. Schulberg. Featured in it are Clara Bow, George Hackathorne, Elliott Dexter, Margaret Livingston, Robert Ellis, Mary Carr, Alec B. Francis, Joseph Kilgour, Eddie Phillips and Edith Yorke.

Chicago Gets World Premiere of Christie's "Charley's Aunt"

AARON JONES of Jones, Linick and Schaefer and Paul C. Mooney of Producers Distributing Corporation closed a deal this week whereby the world premiere presentation of "Charley's Aunt" will be made at the Orpheum Theatre, Chicago, immediately following the current run of "The Thief of Bagdad." This will probably be on or about February 15th and will continue for an indefinite period.

Before starting negotiations for the booking of the big Al. Christie feature, Mr. Jones personally viewed the subject in his private projection room, which is a severe test for any picture and particularly unfavorable for a comedy subject, but after seeing the screen version of the world famous farce, Jones seconded the preview opinions of the Los Angeles critics, and booked the feature into the Orpheum ahead of several big subjects already available and that had been tentatively set to follow "The Thief of Bagdad."

Elaborate preparations are now being made for an especially auspicious presentation of "Charley's Aunt" to Chicago audiences and it is confidently expected that the picture will establish a new box office record.

Pauline Frederick, Conrad Nagel, Huntley Gordon and Mae Busch in "Married Flirts," a Robert G. Vignola production for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

World Wide Publicity Given Fox Special, "Iron Horse"

FOLLOWING the most intensive exploitation campaign ever prepared for the Broadway showing of a motion picture, Fox Film Corporation is now spreading the fame of "The Iron Horse" in every country of the world where the Fox product is distributed. A large number of clippings from foreign newspapers, and English papers published abroad, are being received every day.

More newspaper advertising space was used for the engagement of "The Iron Horse" at the Lyric Theatre than was used before for any photoplay. This New York campaign also included skywriting by day and night flying with a mammoth electric sign, together with a billboard and sniping campaign that covered the suburban district within a radius of fifty miles.

Large pictorial layouts in the rotogravure sections of the chief metropolitan newspapers throughout the country have augmented the thousands of columns of news stories. Editorials, special articles and pictorial lay-outs have appeared in national magazines. In addition to this publicity there was a vast amount of material in the national fun magazines. One of the latest clippings coming to the Fox office from foreign points is the following notice from the China Weekly Review of November 15th, Shanghai, China.

"A romance of the East and West, 'The Iron Horse,' a new film, has made its premiere in New York. It depicts the building of the transcontinental railroads during the Civil War period and the completion following the close of the Civil War. This film is a product of three years of intensive work with the co-operation of the United States government and of the great American railroads.

"The two particular railroads concerned are the Union Pacific and the Central Pacific, which are now, of course, part of the great Union Pacific system.

"The American public has little appreciated the part taken by Chinese coolies in the building of the Western coast and transcontinental railroads, and this new film forcibly brings that historic fact to light."

ANDERSEN & LAMASURE
PEERLESS FILM CO.
MOTION PICTURE PRODUCERS
Specialists in
Commercial and Educational Subjects
Developing, Printing and Titling
MATHER BLDG.
Franklin 2698, 916 G St. N. W., Washington, D. C.

C. B. C. Preparing Big Feature

Advices from the west coast studios announce that C. B. C. is preparing its seventh Columbia Picture, which will be released under the title of "Fighting The Flames." It is to be the second action melodrama of the series, the first of which was "The Midnight Express." The cast will be headed by Dorothy Devore.

"Escape"

Josef von Sternberg, who conceived, wrote, directed, named, cut and titled "The Salvation Hunters," will direct "Escape" for Metro-Goldwyn.

"So Big" Quickly Establishes Itself As a Big Money Maker

FIRST NATIONAL'S stellar production for Colleen Moore, "So Big," from Edna Ferber's novel, is arousing a sensation wherever it is shown. It has established itself as a big money maker in a remarkably short space of time.

It finished a week's run at Loew's State Theatre, Los Angeles, to the third biggest week in the history of the theatre, first place being held by "Flaming Youth" and second place by "Black Oxen"—both First National productions, "Flaming Youth" having also been a Colleen Moore picture. West Coast officials stated that, in their opinion, the only thing that prevented "So Big" from breaking all house records was the length of the picture, the long prologue which they used with it and the added features shown on the same bill. It has been switched to Miller's Theatre in Los Angeles where the big business keeps up.

"So Big" played at the New York Strand last week and stood the people out in the street, waiting a chance to buy a seat. It opened in St. Louis on Saturday, January 3, at the New Grand Central Theatre, to remarkable business. On January 7, S. P. Skouras telegraphed R. A. Rowland as follows:

"'So Big' opened last Saturday and in face of the inclemency of the weather it did tremendous business. Audiences acclaimed it as one of the best pictures they have seen and they are amazed with Colleen Moore's artistic performance."

The picture did a great business at the Capitol Theatre, Des Moines, last week and is showing this week at the Circle Theatre, Indianapolis, the Metropolitan, Atlanta, the Capitol, Cincinnati, the Chicago in Chicago and the Strand in Dayton. Reports received the middle of the week from these theatres stated that it was drawing big business in all of them and that the reviews were of a highly laudatory nature.

Start on New Rayart Play

Adele Buffington, well known author of many comedy-dramas, has written a new one entitled "The Courageous Fool." This is now in work and marks the fourth Harry J. Brown production for Rayart release starring Reed Howes. Carmelita Geraghty, who played opposite young Howes in "Geared to Go," the second of the Rayart-Howes series, will again have the leading feminine role in "The Courageous Fool." Albert Rogell will again direct. "The Courageous Fool" is a spook story.

Doug Picks Mary Astor

Douglas Fairbanks has selected Mary Astor as leading woman for his picturization of "Don Q.," according to an announcement just issued from the Pickford-Fairbanks studios.

In "Don Q" Miss Astor will be seen as a Spanish Senorita whose beauty and charm urge the hero through many thrilling and romantic adventures.

Viola Dana, Raymond McKee, Tully Marshall and DeWitt Jennings in "Along Came Ruth," a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production.

Georgeous Gowns, in Colors, On Educational Program

EDUCATIONAL Film Exchanges, Inc. announce the release date of the first color films, presenting Hope Hampton in Paris Creations, as January 18th, under the title of "McCall Fashion News."

An early release date has been set in order that the timeliness of the styles presented will be of the highest value to the big first run houses who have already contracted for the series.

The first release will present the latest creations of such internationally known designers as Poiret, Jenny, Boué, Worth, Lanvin and others whose names are familiar to every woman in America.

In this series, for the first time on the screen, motion picture patrons and exhibitors will see the Eastman Color Process, developed at the great Eastman laboratories at Rochester and proclaimed by experts as the finest color process yet offered to the motion picture industry.

So faithfully does the new process reproduce color that flesh tints are absolutely natural. Various shades of red, impossible with the old hand-processes of color, are reproduced, as well as all of the primary, secondary and tertiary colors, shades and tints.

Johnny Hines in "Early Bird," Attracts Western Program

Johnny Hines' latest feature, "The Early Bird," which played in Minneapolis recently, struck a responsive chord in the heart of H. I. Nordby, President of the Franklin Co-operative Creamery Association, of Minneapolis, who wrote the comedian as follows: "After seeing 'The Early Bird,' at the State Theatre, I want to express to you my appreciation of this film. It was of special enjoyment and interest to me because the Franklin Creamery was founded under pretty much the same circumstances as the 'Independent Milk Company.' In fact, when the film is shown in Minneapolis again in the next two or three weeks, it is our intention to distribute tickets to our employees, so that they may all enjoy it. I would very much like to have the history of this film—that is, who wrote the scenario and if there were any special reasons that led up to the filming of this picture. I trust this will not be encroaching on your good nature. I am enclosing our 1923 Year Book setting forth the early struggles of the Franklin Creamery and its phenomenal growth to the largest distributor of dairy products in the Northwest, and hope you may find time to read it.

(signed) H. I. Nordby."

In view of the interest shown by Mr. Nordby, C. C. Burr's advertising department has already entered into negotiations with the Franklin Co-operative Creamery Association for a Middle West exploitation tie-up on "The Early Bird."

Cross-Country Star

Jacqueline Logan Starts Fourth "Hollywood to New York" Trip in Year

Jacqueline Logan, screen star, bids good-bye to Hollywood this week for the fourth time in less than a year, again to enact the leading role in a picture to be produced at one of New York's studios.

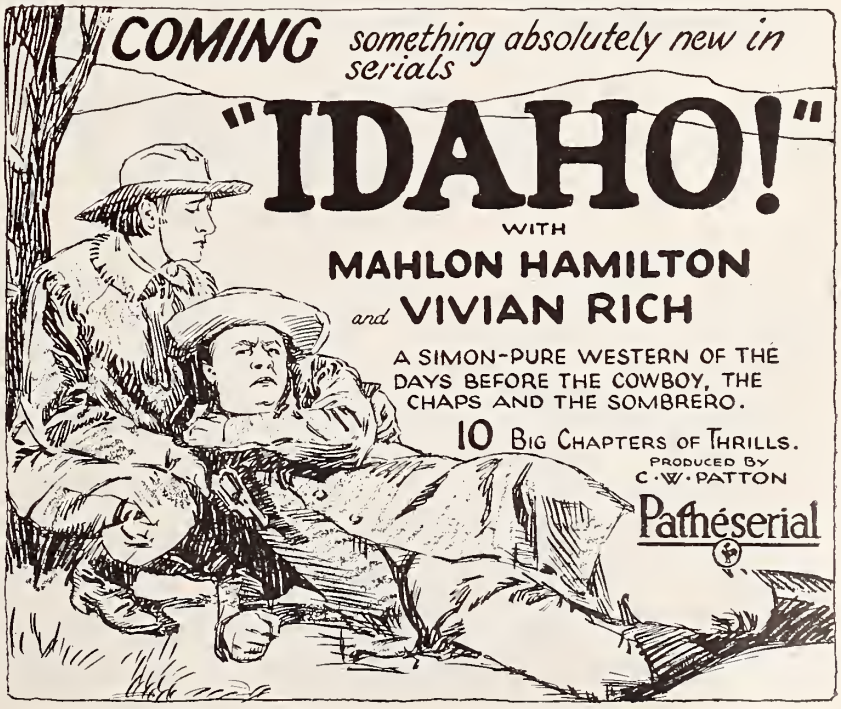
Miss Logan, since severing her association with Famous Players, has been much in demand, and has kept steadily at work between the Eastern studios and those in Hollywood.

The latest production to call her East is a picturization of Richard Harding Davis' "White Mice," the interiors of which are to be made in a New York studio, and the exteriors in Cuba. The picture is to be filmed largely in color, the first of its kind in which Miss Logan has worked, and she is looking forward expectantly to seeing herself "color-processed."

E. H. Griffith is to direct "White Mice," which will keep Miss Logan in the East for about five weeks.

"Iron Horse" in Sixth Month

"The Iron Horse," the William Fox picturization of the building of the first transcontinental railroad, which is in its sixth big month at the Lyric Theatre, is attracting larger audiences now than during the first weeks of the engagement. There is every indication that "The Iron Horse" will continue through the Spring.



Bobby Vernon in his latest Educational-Bobby Vernon comedy, "French Pastry," with Anne Cornwall in the lead.

Educational Releases for February Has New Feature

TWO Mermaid Comedies, one Hamilton, one Juvenile and one Christie Comedy will head the Educational Film Exchanges, Inc., releasing schedule for the month of February with a selection of single reel comedy and novelty reels forming the support.

The month will also mark the inauguration of a new series on Educational's program, in "Judges Crossword Puzzles" which will be released, one each week.

The first week of the month will present the Mermaid Comedy "Step Lightly" with Lige Conley in the leading role and with Ruth Hiatt, Otto Fries and Peg O'Neill in support. "Weak Knees," a Cameo Comedy with Cliff Bowes and Virginia Vance, is the single reel comedy for the week.

"Hooked," starring Lloyd Hamilton, will lead the releases for the week starting February 8. This is one of the most pretentious comedies Hamilton has made this season. It was filmed, for the most part, aboard an ocean liner, and many novel and original gags have been incorporated in the two reels. "He who Gets Socked," one of the releases of the Earl Hurd Pen and Ink Vaudeville series in cartoon, will be the single reel for the week.

The week of February 15 will present two two-reel comedies, a Christie and a Juvenile. The Christie Comedy will be "Sea Legs" with Neal Burns and Vera Steadman in the leading roles. "Wild Cat Willie," with Jack McHugh and the popular Juvenile cast will be the other two-reeler for the week, while "Have a Heart," a Cameo Comedy with Cliff Bowes and Virginia Vance will complete the week.

The last week of the month will see "His High Horse," a Mermaid Comedy in two reels scheduled for release. Lee Moran is the featured player and many familiar faces of the Mermaid Company will be seen in support. A release of the Lyman H. Howe Hodge-Podge series, as yet untitled, will complete the week.

"Kinograms," Educational's news-reel, will be released twice a week in addition to the above.

COMING
A THEME AND A TIME NEVER BEFORE SHOWN IN PICTURES
"IDAHO!"
WITH MAHLON HAMILTON
AND
VIVIAN RICH
WHAT THE WEST WAS LIKE BEFORE THE COMING OF THE LAW
NEW! EXCITING! CARRIES YOU OFF YOUR FEET!
Pathéserial

To Produce in East

Mary E. Hamilton, Woman Police Chief, Will Make Melodrama for F. B. O.

For the first time since their inception three years ago, Film Booking Offices of America, Inc., are preparing to produce a picture in the East, according to an official announcement by Major H. C. S. Thomson, president and managing director of the company.

The story, a big underworld melodrama, as yet untitled, will deal with the dangers of bad associations in a big city, will be made by Belban Productions, in which Samuel Briskin and George H. Davis are financially interested, and will be personally supervised by Mrs. Mary E. Hamilton, the only woman police chief in the United States. The production will rank with the biggest specials on the F. B. O. program for 1925, and an exploitation campaign is being planned by Nat. G. Rothstein.

The title of the picture and supporting cast will be announced shortly.

Dillon to Direct "Chickie"

John Francis Dillon has been selected by First National Pictures to direct the picture which it will make at its New York studios from Elenore Meherin's novel, "Chickie," which has been serialized in the Hearst string of newspapers and many others, totalling a circulation of more than twenty million. Production is scheduled to start this week.

Prominent members of the cast are Dorothy Mackaill, Gladys Brockwell, Hobart Bosworth, Myrtle Stedman, John Bowers, Marguerite De La Motte and Paul Nicholson.

Director-Author Busy

James P. Hogan, who is making a series of productions for B. P. Schulberg, is the latest director to undertake the filming of one of his own stories. Hogan is author of "The Mansion of Aching Hearts," based on the famous song by Harry Von Tilzer and Arthur J. Lamb. Its cast includes Ethel Clayton, Barbara Bedford, Cullen Landis, Sam de Grasse, Priscilla Bonner, Philo McCullough, Edward Gribbon, Eddie Phillips and Charles Delaney.

Change in Release Date

As a result of a recent revision of the Associated Exhibitors' release program, the George Beban feature production entitled, "The Greatest Love of All," which was originally scheduled for January 11, is finally to be made available by the Associated organization on February 1.

"Our Gang" in "The Big Town," a Pathe comedy.

Jack White in New York

Producer of Mermaid-Educational Comedies on Vacation

Jack White, head of White Productions, Inc. and producer of Mermaid Comedies for Educational release, arrived in New York a few days ago for his annual vacation and conference with E. W. Hammons President of Educational Film Exchanges, Inc.

Production of the 1924-25 series of Mermaid Comedies is so far advanced that Mr. White was able to leave Los Angeles much earlier than usual.

The conference between Mr. White and Mr. Hammons this year is dealing not only with plans for the pictures to be released next year but with possible new studio facilities for a number of the comedy companies producing for Educational.

The White units and the Associated units, including those producing Hamilton Comedies, Juvenile Comedies and Cameo Comedies, have so increased their activities during the last season that it is becoming necessary to acquire greater facilities than those provided by the Fine Arts Studio, where these units are now working. Especially in view of the fact that it is likely that several well known Broadway stars will be signed up for work with these producing units, Mr. Hammons and Mr. White are considering the advisability of taking over a larger producing plant.

New Century Comedy Completed

Word has just come from the Hollywood studios of Century that Charles Lamont, one of the leading directors of Century Comedies, has just completed work on "A Rough Party," a new two-reeler featuring Al Alt, supported by Hilliard Karr and Beth Darlington.

"A Rough Party" is a grown-up take off on a kid's party and is filled with laughs and comedy gags. It is one of the twelve Al Alt pictures to be released under Century's new star series plan.

Lois Weber Engaged

Lois Weber, one of the best known women in the industry and a producer and director in her own right, has been engaged by Carl Laemmle, president of Universal, to handle scenarios at Universal City. Miss Weber will not be a newcomer at the Universal studio plant. She has been connected with that company several times. Several years ago she directed a series of highly successful features for Universal. The most successful of them was "Jewel."

Walter Hiers' Third Comedy, An Educational Release

THAT Walter Hiers would forge to the front rank of two-reel comedy stars this season was predicted early last summer by E. W. Hammons, president of Educational, who signed the fat star for his first series of short comedies. Hiers will be seen in "Good Spirits," his third comedy, this month and it is said to be his funniest so far, following such pictures as "Short Change" and "A Fat Chance."

The new comedy, "Good Spirits" was given an audience preview at the Larchmont theatre in Los Angeles, when completed two weeks, ago, and Al Christie in whose studio the Hiers series is being made, is authority for the statement that Hiers' third picture is the funniest audience picture which he has seen this year.

"Good Spirits" was directed by Archie Mayo who has gagged the story, written by Keene Thompson, in such a manner that one laughing sequence is carried practically through the picture resulting in fifteen minutes of laughter.

Experience!

Nothing can take its place in producing quality

It takes more than one picture to make a Griffith.

It takes more than a few cameramen and a title to make a news reel.

Pathe invented the news reel. Pathe has been producing the Pathe News for thirteen years. For thirteen years the work of developing the world wide Pathe News news-getting force has been going on.

The editor of the Pathe News has been its editor for ten years. His assistant has been serving the News for twelve. Records of eight, nine, ten and eleven years of service among its cameramen are common.

A novice cannot make a watch. Neither can green men secure great news pictures. The Pathe News staff is made up of specialists, men whose fitness has made them survive a hard game. There is no substitute for the

PATHE NEWS

Scenes from "Two Shall Be Born," a Whitman Bennett production released by Vitagraph.

Hudson Completes Two First National Pictures in 7 Weeks

EARL HUDSON is receiving the congratulations of his First National associates for an achievement which the film industry has been following with close interest, the success of which demonstrates the efficiency to which photoplay production has been brought.

This achievement is the completion in seven weeks by the Hudson units, recently transferred from Hollywood to First National's studios in New York, of the filming of two featured dramas.

These are "I Want My Man," co-featuring Milton Sills and Doris Kenyon, and "One Way Street," in which Ben Lyon and Anna Q. Nilsson are co-featured. The negatives of both plays passed into the laboratory the past week.

Among those expressing gratification was Richard A. Rowland, First National's general production manager, who conceived the plan of bringing the Hudson units to New York. This transfer of an entire unit, with all its personnel and considerable studio equipment was considered an arduous project, and such quick adjustment to the new environment was more than Rowland expected, he said.

In commenting upon the new conditions Hudson declared his belief that in the near future he will be able to reduce the average time of producing regular program features by fully a week.

"One Way Street" was directed by John Francis Dillon, and photographed by Arthur Edeson. "I Want My Man" was directed by Lambert Hillyer, with James Van Trees handling the camera.

"A Fool and His Money"

C. B. C. announce that it has received the fifth of the Columbia series "A Fool and His Money" which is the film version of George Barr McCutcheon's best seller of the same title. Crossett and Dunlop are putting out a special movie edition of the book which will be illustrated with stills from the picture. The cast includes William Haines, Madge Bellamy, Stuart Holmes and Alma Bennett supported by a number of other well known players. Directing was by Erle C. Kenton.

Elaborate Press Book for Herman Jans' "Mad Dancer"

WITH a cover in colors, showing Ann Pennington in an alluring pose, Herman Jans has issued a most elaborate press book for his latest production, "The Mad Dancer."

Among the many stories provided, and all written by experienced newspapermen, there is one on how a scene from "The Mad Dancer" was broadcast, the first time such a thing has been done. Then there is a matrimonial story on Johnnie Walker, who plays the leading male role opposite Miss Pennington and an article on the debut of Vincent Lopez and his famous jazz orchestra in the movie.

The cover already mentioned makes a most attractive window or lobby card when properly mounted and there are ten specially designed lobby display stills done in full colors and six unusually beautiful paintings. The twenty-four sheet and the six sheet as well as the two threes and two ones are illustrated together with a wide variety of scene and star cuts available in either mat or stereo form.

There are two pages devoted to prepared advertisements and two pages to exploitation stunts, among them being the nation wide tie-up with the makers of the Ann Pennington Rosette Hose.

The press book on "The Mad Dancer" is compact, contains no bunk and wasted space but at the same time provides the exhibitor with everything necessary to put the picture over profitably.

Charles Mack, Madge Kennedy and Conway Tearle in "Bad Company," a St. Regis picture for Associated Exhibitors' release.

Ralph Graves in "The Plumber," a Mack Sennett comedy; a Pathe release.

Four Comedy Companies at Work at Century's Hollywood Studio

PRODUCTION at the Hollywood studios of Century is booming, according to advices just received from Julius Stern, president of the corporation, who now is directing the making of Century Comedies on the Coast. Four comedy companies are now at work making films starring the four Century stars who are slated to make pictures under Century's new star series plan.

These four stars are Wanda Wiley, Edna Marian, Al Alt and Edward Gordon. The four directors now at work are Edward I. Luddy, William Watson, Charles Lamont and Noel Smith.

Luddy is directing Wanda Wiley in a two-reeler entitled "Her Lucky Leap." Whitney Raymond, Joe Bonner and Max Ascher are in the cast. This picture will be completed in a few days and the Wanda Wiley company will be ready to start on that star's next picture, "Met by Accident."

William Watson is putting the finishing touches on the Edna Marian comedy, "Plain Luck," a hilarious two-reeler which shows the little blonde comedienne in a series of new screen mishaps.

Charles Lamont is just beginning work on a new Al Alt comedy with Hilliard Karr, Century's fat comedian, in the chief supporting role. It is called "A Leadpipe Cinch" and will be a take-off on a plumber's adventures. The humorous situations are promised to appeal to people who own their homes and who have plumbing difficulties in their apartments.

The fourth Century company now at work is the Noel Smith unit. That director is handling Edward Gordon in a new comedy called "For Hire." Eddie Gordon is the latest star added to the Century release program. He is a recruit from the vaudeville field and his first work for Century was so promising that he was signed up as a star. "For Hire" promises to be a laugh riot, according to reports from the Coast.

Filming of "Who Cares" Started

Columbia Pictures have been advised that David Kirkland has started the filming of their sixth Columbia feature "Who Cares" a social drama adapted from Cosmo Hamilton's novel of the same name. The cast which has a number of well known names includes Dorothy Devore, William Haines, Beverly Bayne, Wanda Hawley, Vola Vale, Charles Murray, Ralph Lewis, Lloyd Whitlock, Vera Lewis, William Austin and Carrie Clark Ward.

Begins on "Fashions for Men"

After several weeks of preparation John M. Stahl has started production of "Fashions For Men" at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio. Mr. Stahl, collaborating with Benjamin Glazer, wrote his own scenario for this picture, which will have a notable cast including Lewis Stone, Percy Marmont, Alma Rubens, Raymond Griffith, Eileen Percy and William V. Mong. Louis B. Mayer is producing this feature for First National.

Miss Miller Remains

Upon ocmpleting her leading feminine role in "Overboard," this week, Patsy Ruth Miller will remain at Universal for another super-Jewel feature, "Lorraine of the Lions," under the direction of Edward Sedgwick. She will play a female Tarzan role and share starring honors with Norman Kerry.

Gladys Hulette Signed

Renaud Hoffman has selected Gladys Hulette to play the feminine lead in his picturization of George Pattullo's story, "The Ledger of Life," to be produced under the title, "Crossed Words." Mill Hulette, who also starred in Hoffman's recent production, "On the Threshold," is considered the ideal type for this producer's specialties of rural American life.

Miss Johnston Honored

Julanne Johnston, now starring in "City of Temptation," and Sir Phillip Gibbs, the author of the story, were guests at a dinner tendered the company by members of the English and Turkish legations, in Berlin, Germany, where interior scenes are now being filmed after two months of exteriors in Constantinople.

COMING
A SUPERB DRAMA OF THE OLD GOLD RUSH DAYS IN THE WEST
WHERE HONEST MEN HAD TO FIGHT NOT ONLY FOR THEIR PROPERTY BUT THEIR LIVES
"IDAHO!"
WITH MAHLON HAMILTON
AND
VIVIAN RICH
WHO WERE THE VIGILANTES? SEE THIS EPIC OF THRILLS AND LEARN!
Pathéserial

Whitney Williams Reviews New Nazimova Production

DECLARING the picture a masterpiece, describing Nazimova's characterization the most powerful she has ever done, and predicting that it will prove the beginning of a new era for the great tragedienne, Whitney Williams publishes in the Los Angeles Sunday Times a long appreciation of Vitagraph's new special, "The Redeeming Sin," J. Stuart Blackton's latest production.

"Once again Nazimova is playing the role of guttersnipe," wrote Mr. Williams. "Producers had deluged her with offers, and after considering them all she decided upon the play J. Stuart Blackton had in store for her—and went to work over on the Vitagraph lot. She became a child of the Paris streets, an Apache spitfire of unknown moods, one of which was apt to run rampant without a moment's warning. In other words, the studio act transported her to the lower quarters of the French capital, where she lived her role as faithfully as though she really dwelt there.

"Originally titled 'The Pearls of the Madonna,' the picture has been changed to bear the name, 'The Redeeming Sin.' Although at times purely melodramatic, the role of Joan, the Apache, allows a powerful characterization, one which Nazimova is particularly well fitted to play. It bears a striking resemblance to the part the Russian actress portrayed in 'Revelation,' made several years ago. The same frivolous, fierce and wilful child of that play is again pictured, but this time she is a thief.

"Playing the part of her Apache lover is Lou Tellegen. This is a new role for Tellegen. Heretofore, he has always been the well-tailored, suave man of the world. In 'The Redeeming Sin' he is called upon to wear the ill-fitting garb of the Paris gangster, used to the slime and filth of the sewers—an uncouth savage when aroused. From all indications Tellegen should succeed in creating a character that will be somewhat of a shock to those who know him only by his gentle appearance.

"The story is a simple one—of an Apache girl who renounces her life as a thief and determines upon something better. She meets the son of a marquis, falls in love with him, discovers him in the arms of another woman, and decides to go back to the old life, with two purposes—to steal a priceless pearl necklace and to have the marquis's son killed.

"Her gang is successful in its attempt on the jewels, but only stun Paul, whom Joan intended to be murdered. Just before the robbery, however, Joan discovers that the woman she saw embracing Paul was his sister, and, filled with remorse and dread at what she has planned, she tries to stop them, but too late.

"In the role of Paul, Carl Miller, who achieved favorable notice in 'A Woman of Paris,' plays a part not so different from that of the Chaplin success. Otis Harlan and Rosita Marstini are each cast in parts which enable them to give finely-drawn characterizations. Harlan as Papa Chuchu, romantic restaurant-keeper, and Miss Marstini as Mother Michu, leader of the Apaches, vicious, vengeful and mercenary, make the most of their opportunities and their performances are most colorful, to say the least.

"For this production, J. Stuart Blackton is injecting a new technique of direction. It hinges about the reaction from the acting of certain characters, and from results already derived from a former picture help to make the picture a masterpiece of its kind. L. V. Jefferson is the author of the story, and Marian Constance adapted it to the screen.

"Greatest of all contemporary Russian tragediennes, the tendency that is now in vogue should offer Nazimova unlimited field for expression, and her characterization in 'The Redeeming Sin' should prove the beginning of a new era for her."

Leatrice Joy returns to the screen in Paramount's "The Dressmaker from Paris."

Picked for Leading Roles

Chadwick Selects Lila Lee and Gareth Hughes for "Midnight Girl,"

Lila Lee and Gareth Hughes have been selected by Chadwick Pictures Corporation to play the leading roles in "The Midnight Girl" his next production—the sixth in the Chadwick 9 series—which is to go into production within the next few days at studios in Long Island, under the direction of John Gorman.

"The Midnight Girl" is the new and permanent title of production hitherto announced as "The Street Singer," the scenario for which was prepared by Garrett Fort.

The cast for "The Midnight Girl" also includes Dolores Cassanelli, Charlotte Walker, Frank Andrews and several other prominent players who will be announced within the next few days.

"The Midnight Girl" is the second John Gorman production to be included in the Chadwick 9 series this season, the first being "The Painted Flapper," with James Kirkwood and Pauline Garon in the leading roles.

Rapid Booking on "The Lady"

First National's new Norma Talmadge picture, "The Lady," from Martin Brown's stage success, is being rapidly booked for first run showings, according to information given out by the company's distribution department.

Its premiere will be in New York at the Colony Theatre, following the showing of "The Thief of Bagdad" at that house.

Other important first runs just closed are at the Hippodrome in Buffalo, the Eastman in Rochester, the Strand in Syracuse, the Avon in Utica, the Circle in Indianapolis, the Metropolitan in Atlanta, the Rialto in Fort Worth and others.

Herbel Visiting Exchanges

H. M. Herbel, sales manager for the Century Film Corporation, left New York this week for a tour of various Eastern and Midwest Universal exchanges. He will spend a day or so in each exchange, outlining the new Century star series plan to the Universal salesmen and sales executives. He expected to be on the road for several weeks.

Mabel Julienne Scott, in Hobart Henley's production, "So This Is Marriage," for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

Warners Keep Monte Blue

Also Renew Their Contract With Director William Beaudine

His splendid work in the season just closing has resulted in Warner Bros. renewing the contract of Monte Blue, who stepped to the front in several of the firm's outstanding pictures of the last year. His work in "The Marriage Circle," "The Lover of Camille" and "The Dark Swan" won high praise from the critics, and Warner Bros. intend to make good use of this player during the new season.

Mr. Blue is now playing Peter in Robert Keable's "Recompense," a sequel to "Simon Called Peter," and his first picture under the new contract will be in Warner Bros. new Lubitsch production, he having been personally selected by the director.

The Warners state that the team of Monte Blue and Marie Prevost, a combination that has been wonderfully successful, is now too valuable to use in picture after picture, and that following the new Lubitsch picture, they will be seen in separate productions surrounded by important casts with the best stories and the best directors.

One of their directors in whom Warner Bros. have always had a lot of confidence is William Beaudine, and the pleasant relations that have existed between the firm and Mr. Beaudine promise to last some time as Warners exercised their option on his services this week by renewing his contract for a long term. The director is responsible for "Cornered," "The Narrow Street," and the early Wesley Barry series.

Glaum Comes East

Louise Glaum is en route east from the West Coast to appear in the picturization of "Fifty-Fifty," which Henria Diamant Berger, the famous French director, is about to produce for Associated Exhibitors release.

Newspapers last week carried the erroneous report that Miss Glaum was en route to New York to play the lead in a picture for another company, and while it may be true of some other picture at some future date, she is coming primarily for work in the Berger drama.

Tom Mix Renews Contract With Fox Film Corporation

ASSURANCE of the continuation of Tom Mix, popular Fox Film Corporation cowboy star, in the virile outdoor pictures that have made him one of the best box-office attractions in the industry, the "rent-man" of the exhibitors and the idol of millions of fans, is contained in the announcement by the Fox company that the star has renewed his contract.

The contract calls for Mix's exclusive services by the company which introduced him to the public and made him a favorite of worldwide renown and extends to the summer of 1928. Tony, Mix's wonder horse, also a familiar figure throughout the motion picture world, is included in the deal.

The transaction contains the stipulation that the star's vehicles will be the work of well-known authors, depicting life in Western America.

The remarkable feature of this renewal of contract is the briefness with which the business was dispatched. Mix, just returned to Hollywood from a picture making expedition in Arizona, entered his home to be told that New York was trying to get him on the long distance telephone. A connection was perfected, and William Fox was on the New York end of the line. The producer stated briefly his proposal; Mix agreed. Within two minutes after the proposition was discussed lawyers at either end of the wire arranged the drawing of the contract. Copies were signed in Hollywood by the principals and dispatched to each other by registered mail.

Mix, the highest paid and best known of cowboy film stars, by this contract is revealed to be in a class by himself as regards earning capacity and although no compensation figures were divulged by the principals it is safe to assume they would offer a startling contrast with the first arrangement made between the Fox company and Mix, reported to have called for a weekly wage of $100.

Mix has been a star under the Fox banner for ten years, starting as a comedian in two-reel pictures. His first feature attraction was "Cupid's Roundup," a Western romance, released in 1918. Since that time he has produced fifty-five features.

The current season witnessed mix's elevation to the rank of star in all special productions with such a proportional increase in his popularity that his latest production, "Dick Turpin," will be given an elaborate Broadway presentation on January 26.

Mix's other releases for the 1924-25 season are: "The Last of the Duanes," from a popular Zane Grey story; "Oh, You Tony," a sparkling comedy about a cowboy in Washington society; "The Deadwood Coach," an adaptation from James Clarence Mulford's widely read novel "The Orphan"; "Riders of the Purple Sage," and its sequel "The Rainbow Trail," both from the pen of Zane Grey.

As a bonus and reward for his ten years of excellent service in the Fox studios it has been agreed that Mix, wearing his mammoth cowboy sombrero, will tour Europe this coming Spring. This is the first extensive vacation the Fox star has had since he became a film star and the announcement of it to him, it is said, sent him into a paroxysm of joy.

Mix was born in Texas and knows thoroughly the life he depicts in his screen productions. Before entering the pictures he was a Deputy United States Marshal in his home State, and spent his early life on the plains as a cowboy. He is married and has one child.

Louise Fazenda and Matt Betz in a scene from Warner Brothers' production, "The Lighthouse by the Sea," with Rin-Tin-Tin.

On the parade ground at West Point. A scene in "Classmates," t he current Richard Barthelmess success for First National release.

Cast for "Timber Wolf"

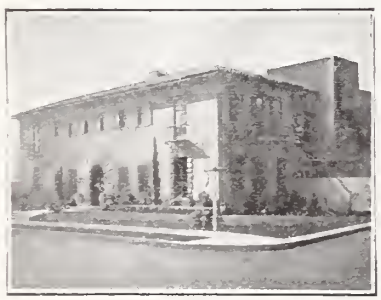
Selection of the cast to support Buck Jones, Fox Film Corporation on Western star, in his latest vehicle "The Timber Wolf" from an original story by Jackson Gregory, has just been announced by that company. It includes such well known players as Elinor Fair, who will have the leading feminine role, Dave Dyas, who is cast as a "heavy." W. S. Van Dyke will direct this production. John Stone wrote the continuity.

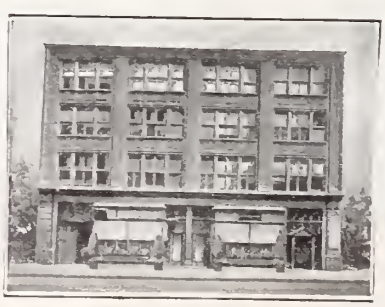
Latest "Van Bibber"

"The Detective" is the title for the latest Richard Harding Davis "Van Bibber" comedy to go into production at the Fox Film Corporation West Coast Studios. Robert P. Kerr is directing this comedy from a scenario written by himself. As in the other Van Bibber comedies, Earle Foxe and Florence Gilbert have the leading roles, with the principal support being supplied by Lynn Cowan and Frank Beal.

"Certified Prints" an Integral Part of the Industry

CERTIFIED Prints, the product of the laboratories of the Consolidated Film Industries, Inc., of which Herbert J. Yates is managing director. are backed by an organization that has become an institution of the motion picture industry. Herewith are pictured four of the "stones" that help form the solid foundation on which is builded certified Prints' claim to first honors on "quality, price and service"—four plants that individually represent the latest in laboratory efficiency, and collectively present a strength to be considered.





"Best Pictures" of 1924

Mae Tinee, Chicago Critic, Includes "Captain Blood" and "The Clean Heart" in Her List

With two of its attractions, "Captain Blood" and "The Clean Heart," included, Vitagraph fares well in Mae Tinee's always eagerly-awaited "Best Pictures of the Year," just printed in the Chicago Sunday Tribune.

"The pictures listed are those that made the deepest impression upon me in 1924," Miss Tinee, one of the most influential critics in Chicago explains. "They are the ones that, considered from every viewpoint, seem most worthy to have blue ribbons pinned on them."

Almost simultaneously, the reviewer of the Chicago American, in an article expressing deep appreciation of "The Clean Heart," says: "The chances are this picture is among the dozen or so best presented in the course of the year."

Start Work on New Play

"Beauty and the Bad Man" by Peter B. Kyne, the first of the new series of Frank Woods productions through Producers Distributing Corporation, went into production this week in Los Angeles where a number of the exterior scenes will be made before the company is brought to the Peninsula Studios at San Mateo for the interior sequences.

The six principal characters are being played by such well known artists as Mabel Ballin, Forrest Stanley, Russell Simpson, Andre de Beranger, Edna Mae Cooper, and James Gordon. William Worthington is directing the production under the personal supervision of Frank Woods and Producers Distributing Corporation has scheduled it for release on March 9.

Nilsson and Lyon Signed

Anna Q. Nilsson and Ben Lyon have been signed by Frank Lloyd Productions for leading roles in Mr. Lloyd's next picture for First National, "The Winds of Chance," from Rex Beach's Alaskan novel of that title. Mr. Lloyd expects to begin filming "The Winds of Chance" about the middle of February.

Bull's Eye!

Even the thought of a Bull's Eye Comedy, the new brand of one-reel comedies to be released by Universal Exchanges, hits the bull's eye. Knocks the eye right out of the bull, in fact. That may be the reason why the account of the new Brand names sent out by Universal last week erroneously referred to the Bull's Eye Comedies as "Bull's Comedies."

LEONARD K. BRIN
Head of Kwality Pictures and Warner Brothers franchise holder in Seattle and Butte.

"Don't Blame Radio," Says Brin, "The Public is Picture Wise"

"DON'T blame the radio, the public is getting picture wise," according to Leonard K. Brin, head of Kwality Pictures, of Seattle and Butte, who has the franchise in the northwest for Warner Bros. pictures, and is now visiting New York for the purpose of talking over next season's program with the Werners.

This thought was conveyed by Mr. Brin in stating that business in the northwest had been particularly good during the past year, and it was getting better all the time, because the people in his territory knew what they wanted, insisted upon getting it, and just as long as they get it, business is at top notch.

"Neither radio or any other side amusement line will interfere with pictures to any extent as long as producers give the public the entertainment it wants. In our territory business goes along on an even tenor, and the exhibitors make money, just as long as we have the right pictures. But let one or two bad pictures slip in, and the result is felt immediately.

"I am happy to state that Warner Bros. pictures are more than holding their own, and are head and shoulders above the average output in our territory. The exhibitors find it a pleasure to play them, and the public likes them. This may sound like an old bromide, but I look for the best year we ever have had in our territory. Big ship yards are being built, the lumber interests are going ahead with big propositions, a new $5,000,000 hotel is being built in Seattle and people are pouring into the extreme northwest from everywhere. Our own people are prosperous, and everything surely points to a wonderful year ahead.

"We do not do much outside exploitation in our territory. The exhibitors use their advertising appropriations for straight newspaper space, and find they can get the best esults from that source. Even then if they have a bad picture, the public seems to instinctively know it, and all the advertising and ballyhooing in the city can't bring in the business.

"Yes sir, the public is getting picture wise, and the sooner the producers and exhibitors realize it, the sooner will the old 'capacity' report start to float in from the front line."

C. C. Burr Inaugurates New Policy to Help Showmen

C. C. BURR, managing director of East Coast Films, has inaugurated a policy of cooperation and service with the independent exchanges handling "The Speed Spook," "The Early Bird" and "The Cracker Jack," starring Johnny Hines, that is at once a radical departure and an innovation that augurs well for the producing company and those handling the popular features.

This policy, first tried in conjunction with "The Speed Spook," entails the supplying of all exchanges with free printed matter, such as broadsides, circulars, teaser cards, exploitation sheets and mailing matter in quantities sufficient for each exchange to cover its exhibitor lists on the Johnny Hines features.

Each piece of copy originated by Burr's advertising and publicity department, and put on the press, is so designed as to have both exchange and exhibitor appeal, with the result that the bookings already in on the three Hines pictures supercede that of any other series made by Hines for C. C. Burr.

It was Burr's intention originally to supply this printed matter gratis on "The Speed Spook" alone, but so well did the policy work out on this feature that the producer decided to make this service an established policy on all of the Johnny Hines features. The exchanges handling the Hines product have nothing but praise for Burr's far-sighted policy, since it has been the means of lining up exhibitor dates in quicker time than has ordinarily been the case on any other series made for the independent market.

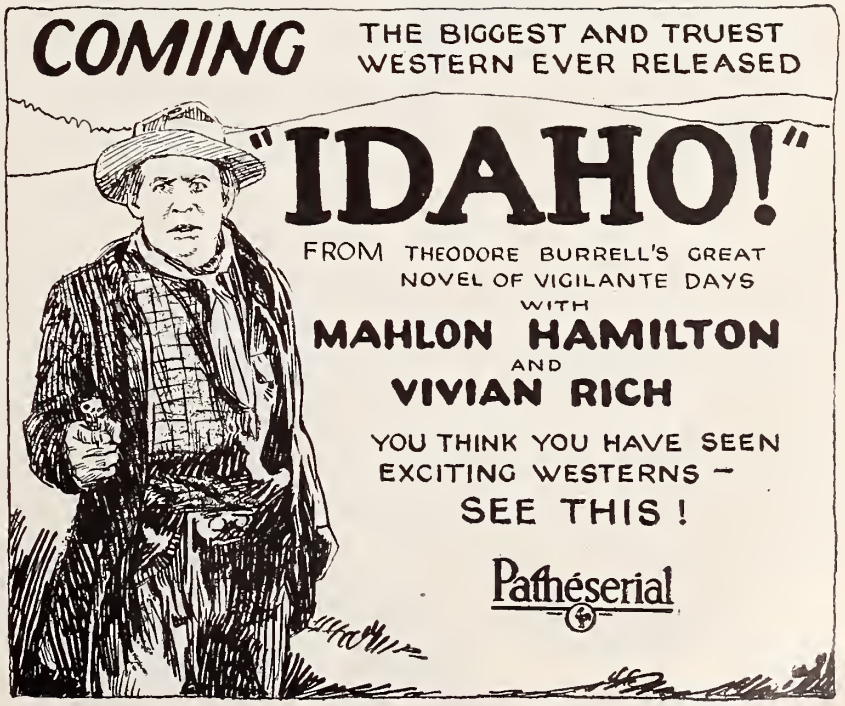
To date, each of the exchanges has received six pieces of mailing matter on "The Speed Spook," five on "The Early Bird" and three on "The Cracker Jack" with at least three more to come on this latter feature, now in production at Miami.

Reports from Miami on Johnny Hines' latest, "The Cracker Jack," indicate that the entire cast, including C. C. Burr, will remain in the South for an additional two weeks until all the exteriors on the production are completed. Prior to going into production, it was expected that the trip South would take, not longer than four weeks, but it will be impossible for the company to return before February 10.

More than 12,000 feet of film has been forwarded to the New York office. Particularly imposing are some of the scenes picturing Johnny Hines mixed up with an army of revolutionary peons. The large number of extras used for these sequences give an impression of bigness to "The Cracker Jack" that is undeniable, and this sequence, according to Burr, will prove to be one of the funniest sequences of the production.

Chadwick Pictures Moves

The Chadwick Pictures Corporation has removed its offices from the seventh to the twelfth floor of 729 Seventh Avenue. The advertising, publicity and exploitation departments have been reorganized under the direction of Charles Reed Jones. Associated with Mr. Jones is Albert A. Karten. The Merit Film Corporation, of which I. E. Chadwick is president, will also occupy offices in the same suite.



"The Lost World" to Be Shown at the Astor Feb. 8

THE New York showing of First National's special, "The Lost World," from Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's novel of romantic adventure in South America, made in association with Watterson R. Rothacker, will take place at the Astor Theatre, beginning February 8.

The run will be of indefinite duration; there will be two showings a day and the price of seats will be scaled to the usual "legitimate" theatre admission rates. Work on this production has been under way for seven years for it was that long ago that Mr. Rothacker acquired the screen rights to the novel. He at once set about experimenting for ways and means of bringing to life on the screen the prehistoric monsters that roamed the earth millions of years ago which are found still living on a high plateau in South America by the expedition whose wonderful adventures are depicted by Sir Arthur in his novel.

Last spring First National began work on the photoplay soon to be shown at the Astor Theatre, under the supervision of Earl Hudson, with Harry O. Hoyt directing. A cast of commanding screen personalities was assembled for the picture. Bessie Love, Lewis Stone, Wallace Beery, Lloyd Hughes and Arthur Hoyt have the principal roles.

One of the most ambitious exploitation and advertising campaigns ever put back of a feature picture shown on Broadway has been worked out for the New York showing of "The Lost World," by Mark Kellogg, director of advertising and publicity for First National, and Allan S. Glenn, supervisor of exploitation.

Syd Chaplin as "Charley's Aunt" in the Christie-Ideal picture for Producers Distributing Corporation release.

Protect Exhibitors on Showing First National's "Quo Vadis"

EXHIBITORS who play First National's new screen version of Sienkiewicz's famous novel, "Quo Vadis," the American and Australian rights to which were purchased by Richard A. Rowland while in Europe, will be protected against opposition theatres showing any further picturization of the story.

George Kleine, who purchased the American rights of the first film version of "Quo Vadis" in 1913, has relinquished all rights in that film to the Unione Cinematographica Italiana, which made the new version, and to First National Pictures, Inc., which purchased the film for America and Australia.

By the terms of the legal document which Mr. Kleine has signed he conveys to the Unione Cinematographica Italiana all right, title and interest in the former picturization; the motion picture film negative of the early picture, as edited and used by him; the copyright of the former version; all positive prints made from the negative of "Quo Vadis" now in his possession or under his possesion or under his control; and all glass negatives, still photographs and posters which he used in exploiting the picture.

Mr. Kleine further vests in First National Pictures, Inc., and the Unione Cinematographica Italiana the right, as his irrevocable attorney, to take all necessary steps to prevent the use of all such motion picture prints not turned over to them and to obtain possession of the same.

Pathe February 1 Releases

Comedies and Chapter of Patheserial "Galloping Horses" Offer Diversity of Thrills

Thrills and comedy are the main features of the Pathe program of releases for the week of February 1.

The comedy is represented by two subjects. One of them is a two reel Mack Sennett comedy featuring Harry Langdon under the title of "Boobs in the Wood," and the other is a Hal Roach single reel comedy entitled "Fighting Fluid" with Charley Chase in the featured role. For thrills and pathos the Pathe program for the week offers the seventh chapter of the George B. Seitz serial "Galloping Hoofs" in which Allene Ray and Johnnie Walker are co-featured.

Pathe Review No. 5 marks the first installment of the "Origin of Man" which is a "picture log" of the famous Roy Chapman Andrews expedition into Mongolia.

"Biting the Dust" is the title of the Aesop's Film Fables for the week, with "Topics of the Day" No. 5 and Pathe News Nos. 12 and 13 completing the Pathe program for the week.

Lubitsch Signs Players

Ernst Lubitsch made three important selections this week for roles in the new picture he is directing for Warner Bros. He was able to secure Clara Bow, John Roche and Willard Louis. The latter won wide praise for his splendid acting as the Prince of Wales in "Beau Brummel" with John Barrymore.

Verschleiser Getting Ready

Ben Verschleiser has purchased the film rights to "Peggy From Beason Hill," the popular novel by Maysie Greig. Production of this fourth of Verschleiser's features for Banner release will start at the end of this month at the Principal Pictures studio.

Moves Into Larger Quarters

The Minneapolis Exchange of the Film Booking Offices, of which M. J. Weisfeldt is district manager, moved on January 1 into larger quarters. They will occupy the entire second floor of the new Film Exchange Building, Minneapolis.

Albert E. Smith, president of Vitagraph, speaking over the radio telling thousands of movie fans of the early days of picture making.

"Greed" in San Francisco

Has Done Record-Breaking Business at the Imperial

Erich von Stroheim's "Greed" has done record-breaking business at the Imperial Theatre in San Francisco. A telegram received by Metro-Goldwyn from its San Francisco office reveals that receipts for Thursday, the day which concluded the run, ended a series of record-breaking day and night performances.

The week's receipts exceeded the gross of any previous attraction in the history of the theatre with the exception of von Stroheim's "Foolish Wives," whose totals exceeded those earned by "Greed."

It is pointed out, however, that advanced special prices prevailed when "Foolish Wives" was shown, and that, accordingly, "Greed" has drawn a larger attendance, indicating that the later von Stroheim production is exceeding by far the earlier record-breaking film in point of popularity.

No Change in Title

Warner Bros. have decided finally to keep the title "The Eleventh Virgin," the novel by Dorothy Day, now being made at their Hollywood studio. Last week it was announced that it had been changed to "The Easiest Road." Further consideration resulted in Warner Bros. being convinced that "The Eleventh Virgin" was a perfect motion picture title, with a big box office pull, and advertising angle and they decided to retain it.

Lloyd Hughes Engaged

First National has engaged Lloyd Hughes to play the leading male role opposite Colleen Moore in her next production, "The Desert Flower," from the stage play by Don Mullally. Miss Moore has completed her work in "Sally" and expects to start on the new picture the latter part of January.

Miss Short Cast

Although only half finished with her role as one of the three principles in "Beggar on Horseback," James Cruze's feature production for Paramount, Gertrude Short has been signed by the veteran stage and screen producer, Sam Rork, to play a featured flapepr role in his forthcoming production of "The Talker."

Thalberg Visits New York For Series of Conferences

IRVING G. THALBERG, associate Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio executive, arrived in New York Saturday, January 17, from the west coast.

It is Mr. Thalberg's first trip to the East since the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer merger, last Spring.

Recently, in the absence of Louis B. Mayer and Harry Rapf, he was in complete charge of the studios, which are in the midst of the greatest production program in the company's history.

Mr. Thalberg has five current productions under his immediate supervision, Victor Seastrom's "Confessions of a Queen," King Vidor's "Proud Flesh," the special production of "The Merry Widow" directed by Erich von Stroheim, Tod Browning's "The Unholy Three," and Elinor Glyn's "Man and Maid."

Josef von Sternberg's first Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production, "Escape," and Reginald Barker's next production will also be supervised by Mr. Thalberg.

His present trip to New York is to confer with Metro-Goldwyn executives regarding the future product of the company, which has plans under way which are the most ambitious attempted by a picture organization. Mr. Thalberg said he would also look around for material which would fit into his company's production program. His stay, he said, would be indefinite, but will probably extend several weeks.

Jack Perrin a Rayart Star; "The Knockout Kid" His First

ADDED this week to the fast-growing roster of Rayart stars is Jack Perrin.

Perrin is well-known for his work as the hero of half a dozen serials, including "The Santa Fe Trail," "The Fighting Skipper," "Riders of the Plains," etc., as well as the star of countless Westerns.

Perrin will do a series of pictures for Rayart release which will be known as "Rayart's Whirlwind Westerns." There will be six pictures in the first group, to be released at intervals of one a month, beginning March 1st. The productions will be made by Harry Webb at the Harry Webb Studios, Universal City, Cal. The first release of the series has been named "The Knockout Kid," and will be a fast-action Western fight picture.

W. Ray Johnston, president of Rayart, announces that in making up its program Rayart will secure stars who will become permanent attractions.

"For this reason," says Mr. Johnston, "we have signed a long-term contract for the services of Jack Perrin which calls for his appearance not only in the initial group of six pictures, but six also in the 1925-26 Rayart program.

Norma Talmadge and Wallace McDonald in a scene from First National's "The Lady."

"Big Five" Features From Metro-Goldwyn in February

FIVE important features that are looked upon as sure box-office hits are scheduled for February releases by Metro-Goldwyn. Robert Z. Leonard's "Cheaper to Marry" starts the list on February 2, with Jackie Coogan's "The Rag Man" coming after on February 16. Three productions are set to reach exhibitors on February 23, Cosmopolitan's big special, "Never the Twain Shall Meet," Monta Bell's "Lady of the Night," and Hugo Ballin's "The Prairie Wife."

Much is looked for from these pictures. Interest in the Coogan picture is the greatest of any of the Coogan series, coming as it does on top of the tremendous publicity that accrued to the boy star as a result of his Near East Relief drive and European trip. All this is expected to contribute toward putting "The Rag Man" over with a wallop.

Cosmopolitan's "Never the Twain Shall Meet," directed by Maurice Tourneur from the best-seller by Peter B. Kyne, is a special that is regarded as highly as Cosmopolitan's last-season film, "The Great White Way." A large part of "Never the Twain Shall Meet" was filmed in Tahiti and other points of the South Seas. Anita Stewart and Bert Lytell have leading roles, with Huntly Gordon, Justine Johnstone, George Siegmann, Lionel Belmore and others in the cast.

Monta Bell's "Lady of the Night" film, adapted by Alice D. G. Miller from an original Adela Rogers St. Johns story, is another "sure thing," from the box-office standpoint. Monta Bell's remarkable rise has made his name a definite asset to a picture, aside from the fact that Bell's direction packs an audience punch. With Norma Shearer heading the cast opposite Malcolm McGregor, "Lady of the Night" is assured, Metro-Goldwyn believes, of the greatest success of Bell's pictures to date.

"Cheaper to Marry" is a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picturization of the Samuel Shipman stage success, directed by Bob Leonard with Conrad Nagel, Marguerite de la Motte, Lewis Stone, Paulette Duval, Louise Fazenda and Claude Gillingwater in the featured roles. Alice D. G. Miller has written the scenario and Frederick and Fanny Hatton have made the adaptation.

"The Rag Man," a story written specially for Jackie Coogan by Willard Mack and directed by Eddie Cline under the personal supervision of Jack Coogan, Sr.

Dorothy Devore, Herbert Rawlinson and Gibson Gowland have leading roles in Hugo Ballin's production of "The Prairie Wife." Director Ballin adapted the Arthur Stringer story to the screen.

This ambitious program has been unexcelled by any previous month of Metro-Goldwyn releases. The company is convinced that all of these five features are predestined for immense box-office popularity.

Helen D'Algy, Spanish beauty, in the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer stock company.

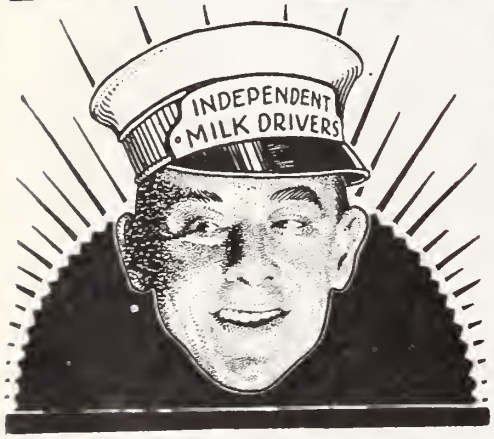
Two Warner Casts

Casts have been completed for two new Warner Bros. pictures. They are "My Wife and I," directed by Millard Webb, and Robert Keable's "Recompense," a sequel to "Simon Called Peter," directed by Harry Beaumont. In "My Wife and I" are Irene Rich, Huntly Gordon, John Harron, John Roche, Constance Bennett and Tom Ricketts. Monte Blue and Marie Prevost head "Recompense," supported by George Siegmann, Charles Stevenson, William C. Davidson, John Roche, Etta Lee, Virginia Browne Faire, John Patrick and Katherine Lewis.

"The best picture Hines has made." —Harrison's Reports

C. C. BURR presents

JOHNNY HINES IN



The EARLY BIRD

Produced and Distributed by
EAST COAST FILMS INCORPORATED
C. C. Burr, Managing Director
135 West 44th Street, New York, N. Y.

Foreign rights controlled by Simmons-Kann Ent., Inc.,
220 West 42d St., New York City.

Doris Kenyon, Ronald Colman, Alec Francis and Claude Gillingwater in Samuel Goldwyn's production, "A Thief in Paradise," a First National picture.

"The Man Without a Country" to Have Premiere at Central

"THE Man Without a Country," the new William Fox production glorifying Edward Everett Hale's immortal classic, will have its Broadway premiere on the eve of Lincoln's Birthday, February 11, at the Central Theatre, N. Y. After the opening, this new production will be presented twice daily at 2:30 and 8:30 p. m. It is expected to stay at the Central the remainder of the season.

The "first night" audience at the opening of "The Man Without a Country" will be one of the most representative ever gathered together at a Broadway film premiere. The boxes will be occupied by high-ranking officers of the Army and Navy. Included in the audience will be representatives of virtually every national, civic and patriotic organization, prominent educators, financiers, leaders of industry and members of New York's "400."

The new Fox production is the result of nearly three years of effort. Six months were spent in research work before the actual production began. In selecting Rowland V. Lee to direct the picture, Mr. Fox gave this widely-known director carte blanche to build a photo-drama that would not only faithfully visualize the Hale story, but would glorify it. No expense has been spared in the production of the picture. According to officials of the Fox Studios, it is one of the costliest films, if not the costliest, ever produced under the Fox banner.

That the new production will have a prosperous Broadway run is forecast by dramatic reviewers of Springfield, Mass., where, as has long been Mr. Fox's custom, the picture was given a prerelease showing. Springfield is a city of intermediate size and furnishes a typically American audience, a bit blase, perhaps, because of the many openings in that city. "The Man Without a Country" not only passed the "Springfield test" of approval but was acclaimed as a picture "overtopping them all" by Ray Wynans in the Springfield Union.

The new production of "The Man Without a Country" is the third screen version of the famous story, two others having been produced years ago. No plans have been announced for the general release of the new production, although it is understood that the New York showing will be the only presentation during the current season.

"School for Wives" Ready, Vitagraph Announcement

VICTOR Hugo Halperin has finished production work on the Vitagraph special, "School for Wives," and is now busy cutting the film. The picture was made in New York under the supervision of Edward R. Halperin, while his brother directed.

"School for Wives" is a picturization of "The House of Lynch," by Leonard Merrick, the fiction-writer of whom Sir James M. Barrie said: "There is no one with a greater art of telling a story, if that art consists in making us forever wonder what we are to find on the next page. A new novel by Leonard Merrick is to me one of the events of the year."

This particular novel of Leonard Merrick's has to do with the old question whether it is moral to accept "tainted money"—money that has been made by questionable methods. A struggling young artist refuses to marry the daughter of a New York multi-millionaire unless she agrees to renounce her father's fortune. She consents, and the difficulties arising when she is plunged from wealth into poverty form the basis of an engrossing tale.

The scenes are laid in New York, in London and in rural England. Conway Tearle has the role of Richard Keith, the artist, who refuses to abandon his principles, while Sigrid Holmquist plays Betty Lynch, the luxury-bred girl who sacrifices wealth for love. Arthur Donaldson is Jordan B. Lynch, the magnate who is much criticized because of alleged unscrupulous methods in the acquirement of his fortune.

The others in the well-balanced cast are: Peggy Kelly, as Lady Atherton; Allan Simpson, as Howard Lynch, Betty's spoiled brother; Jill Lynn as Dardy Waldehast, Betty's best friend, a society leader; Orlando Daly (Harold Waldehast), Brian Dunlevy (Ralph), Dick Lee (Tomlinson), Dorothy Allen (Muggins), Gerald Oliver Smith (Ronald Van Stuyvesant), Emily Chichester (Kitty Dawson), and Alyce Mills (Mary Wilson).

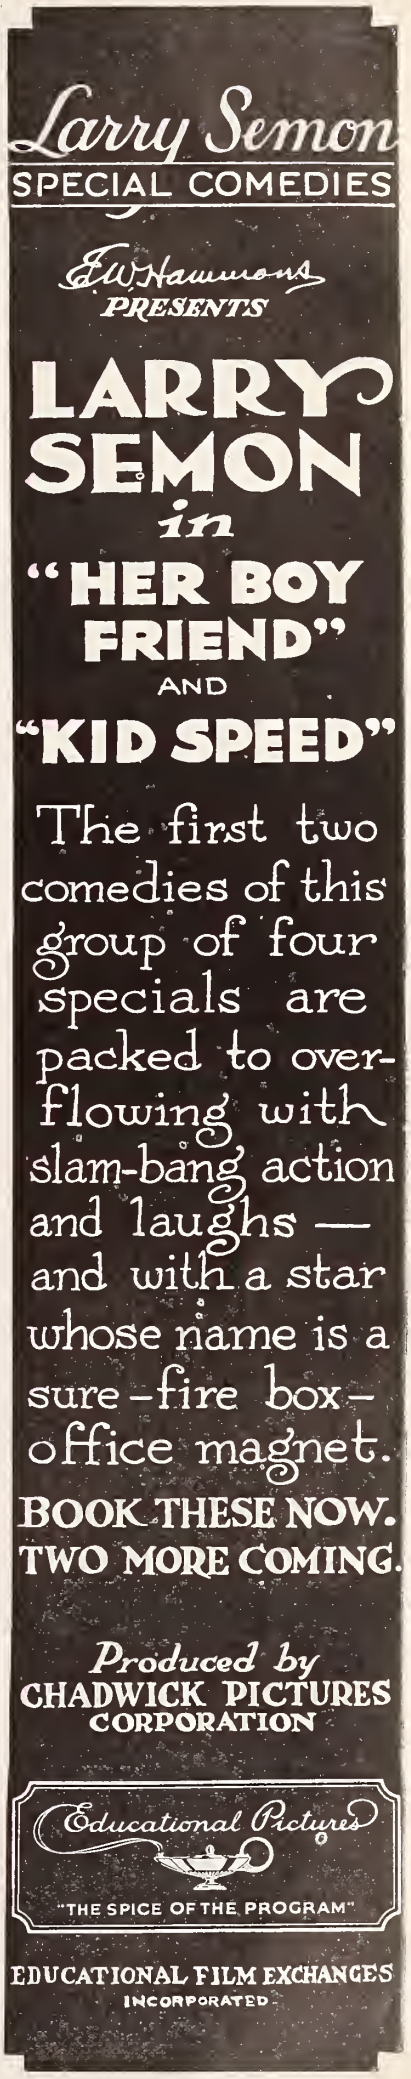
World Premiere in Chicago

Associated Exhibitors announces that its feature release, "Barriers Burned Away," adapted from E. P. Rowe's world-famous story of the great Chicago fire of 1871, has been booked for an indefinite run at the Randolph Theatre in Chicago, opening there on February 8. This will mark the world's premiere of this spectacular screen production.

The Historical Society of Chicago took a prominent part in the filming of the picture, which was produced by Arthur F. Beck and directed by W. S. Van Dyke.

"The Limited Mail"

Warner Bros. added another play this week to their list that will be made into pictures on the new 1925-26 program when they purchased "The Limited Mail," by Elmer Vance, dear to the hearts of theatre-goers when popular price drama flourished over the Stair & Havlin circuit. Produced in 1899 at the old Star Theatre on Broadway below Fourteenth street, New York City, it was contemporaneous with Barclay Campbell's "The White Slave," and kindred thrillers, and is still being played in stock houses.



"The Phantom of the Opera," Universal's Biggest Picture, To Be Heavily Exploited

WHAT is probably the most elaborate campaign of advertising, publicity and exploitation ever completed has been arranged for Universal's "The Phantom of the Opera," with Lon Chaney for its star. Five thousand are in the cast, and the sets include complete reproductions of the Paris Opera House, interior and exterior.

The national advertising campaign in the Saturday Evening Post has already been started, and "Phantom" advertisements will appear every week, reaching an audience of 7,000,000 readers weekly. One of the Post advertisements is a prize contest offer, in which $500 will be given away for the best slogans descriptive of the picture.

An extensive billboard teaser campaign has already been started on "The Phantom of the Opera" in New York. This campaign begins with a single red figure of "The Phantom" on one side of a twenty-four sheet board, without any type or explanatory matter. After this has been up for two weeks other sheets announcing the picture will be added.

Five of the largest electric signs on Broadway at the present time are devoted to "The Phantom," as well as two of the largest painted signs. One of these latter is the much talked of "giant-newspaper." The sign 90 by 60 feet in dimensions, is a reproduction of a newspaper front page. This is probably the most unusual and most-discussed sign in New York today.

In book form "The Phantom of the Opera" was the most successful mystery story published since the advent of Sherlock Holmes, and Universal has arranged through Bobbs-Merrill, the publishers, to supply the serial to newspapers free of charge.

Tie-ups with national advertisers on "The Phantom of the Opera" are numerous and this number is being added to daily.

Special window displays, showing a selection of stills and containing an advertisement for the picture, are being prepared by the C. Bruno Company of New York, Victor distributors for the Eastern States who supply five hundred dealers. These elaborate window displays will be run in advance of the showing, and they will be duplicated in other territories.

The Djer-Kiss Company, manufacturers of one of the most popular and most widely-advertised perfumes, are preparing special cut-out window displays for a thousand dealers throughout the country. The central panel of the display will be a reproduction of the Grand Staircase scene from the picture, showing the masked ball in progress. A Djer-Kiss tie-up with Mary Philbin is also being arranged.

Another important tie-up is with Fownes gloves. Window displays and national advertisements showing Miss Philbin wearing Fownes gloves and giving full credit to the picture will be distributed on a large scale.

Lon Chaney will be a prominent figure in the new Durham Duplex razor campaign, which is starting immediately, and which will be conducted on a scale of enormous value to the picture.

The National Cash Register Company are co-operating in a very unusual display in the window of their five hundred branch offices. Five hundred crack National Cash Register salesmen are to visit Universal City and will be photographed on the grand opera house set for "The Phantom of the Opera." Reproductions of these photographs will be displayed in all the National Cash Register windows.

The Landay Company, who have a series of chain stores in N. Y. C. and the Eastern States, are running special displays including 18 by 22 enlargements of some of the stills from the Phantom, together with appropriate advertising material. And for the first time in its history the Aeolian Company will include a motion picture still in its enormous 42nd street window, showing a 30 by 40 enlargement of one of the grand opera scenes from "The Phantom."

A national tie-up has been arranged for both Mary Philbin and Norman Kerry with Zanol products. Miss Philbin's photograph being used to advertise Zanol Emulsified Cocoanut Oil Shampoo and Kerry's for Zanol Eau de Quinine. Another Mary Philbin tie-up is with Evanson's Cold Cream Soap.

Other tie-ups with prominent national advertisers are being arranged daily, and it is expected that fifty or more will be cooperating with the advertising of the picture before it is released. All of these tie-ups include window displays in the windows of local dealers during or preceding the showing of the picture, and all of the manufacturers cooperating are instructing their dealers to work in every way with exhibitors and Universal representatives.

New York was already talking about "The Phantom of the Opera" even before any advertising had been started, due to an opportune advertising stunt which tied up the "Phantom" with one of the biggest news stories of the day. Some days ago a sculptured head was found in the Hudson River by a dredger, who took it to experts. They pronounced it to be a portrait of Augustus

(Continued on page 499)

The grand staircase of the Paris Opera House in Universal's "The Phantom of the Opera."

Pick Players for Feature

Christie Signs Big Cast For "Stop Flirting," to Follow "Charley's Aunt"

When Al. Christie's next feature-length comedy, "Stop Flirting," goes into production next week it will have an exceptional cast of farceurs in the leading roles. As already announced John T. Murray, stage star, will have the leading role. Opposite him will be Wanda Hawley.

Hallam Cooley has been signed for another big part in "Stop Flirting." George Stewart will also be in the cast. Jack Duffy will play the flirty Italian Count, while David James and Lucien Littlefield complete the lineup of men in the new feature.

Ethel Shannon will also have one of the feature roles in "Stop Flirting," and Vera Steadman, long known for her work in the Christie short comedies, will have her first opportunity in a role in a feature.

The new picture will be the third in the series of Al. Christie features being released through Producers Distributing Corporation, and will follow "Charley's Aunt."

Get "Full Speed" Print

Buffalo Bill, Jr.'s Latest Feature Reaches Weiss Brothers From Coast

The first print of "Full Speed," sixth of the series of eight "Thunderbolt thrillers" featuring Buffalo Bill, Jr., and released by Weiss Brothers' Artclass Pictures Corporation, has arrived in New York and according to Louis Weiss is a knockout, setting a new high mark for this popular young, ridin' star in action and thrills.

"Full Speed" is sponsored by W. T. Lackey and Lester F. Scott, Jr. the directing heads of Action Pictures, Inc. and was directed by Richard Thorpe from a story by Frank L. Inghram. Ray Ries did the camera work, which is said to be unusually good.

Buffalo Bill, Jr. is supported by a cast of favorites, well known to "Western" fans, headed by Nell Brantley and including such oldtimers as Harry Todd, Lew Meehan, Lafe McKee and H. Alfred Newston.

Prizes Distributed

Century Officials Send Checks to Winners of Sales Contests on Their Product

I. Sweeney, a salesman in Universal's Pittsburgh exchanges, is the first prize winner in the sales contest conducted in all Universal exchanges during the months of October, November and December by the Century Film Corporation. For his high standing in selling Century Comedies, Baby Peggy Specials, and the three feature productions released by Universal, "The Darling of New York," "The Law Forbids," and "The Family Secret," Sweeney has just received a check for $250 from Abe and Julius Stern, officials of the Century Film Corporation.

R. Funk, a Universal salesman in the Chicago branch exchange, won second prize in the Century Comedy contest, getting a check for $150. Third prize, $100, won by G. Schaeffer, a salesman in Universal's Buffalo office.

Fox Signs Madge Bellamy

As the result of her excellent work in "The Iron Horse" and "The Dancers," two current Fox Film Corporation Broadway productions, Madge Bellamy, well known and popular screen beauty, has signed a long term contract to appear in Fox pictures.

"Quo Vadis" Booked at the Apollo

"Quo Vadis," the new screen version of Henry Sienkiewicz's famous novel, made in Italy by the Unione Cinematographica Italiana, which Richard A. Rowland, general production manager for First National Pictures, purchased on his recent trip to Europe, will have its first showing at the Apollo Theatre, New York, beginning February 15. Contracts have been closed for an indefinite run at that theatre, with two performances a day, at increased admission prices. The showing will be preceded by a big advertising and exploitation campaign which is now under way. The bill posting, in particular, will be unusually heavy.

"Contracts for the showing of 'Quo Vadis' are now being closed for all key city points," said E. A. Eschmann, distribution chief for First National. "It will be released nationally following its opening on Broadway. Exhibitors will be given an opportunity to play it before September 1.

"Contracts have already been closed with Eric Clarke of the Eastman Theatre, Rochester, N. Y., Robert Lieber of the Circle Theatre, Indianapolis, and Sig Samuels of the Metropolitan Theatre, Atlanta."

David Torrence Signed by Cohn

C. B. C. announce that Harry Cohn has signed David Torrence to play with William Haines and Dorothy Devore in their new Columbia picture, "Fighting the Flames."

This picture will be the seventh of a series of eight. Much fast action and sensational fire stuff is promised. It is anticipated that this picture will create as much of a hit as "The Midnight Express."

VIRGINIA BROWNE FAIRE

Who has been signed by A. H. Sebastian for the leading feminine role opposite Weber and Fields in "Friendly Enemies," released by Producers Distributing Corporation.

Big Film Ready in March

Additions to Cast of "Friendly Enemies," Starring Weber and Fields

Announcement was made this week by A. H. Sebastian that Stuart Holmes has been signed to play the heavy role in "Friendly Enemies" starring Weber and Fields.

Other additions to the cast of this production, which is now under way at the Hollywood Studios, are Jack Wise of musical comedy fame, and Jules Hanft and Fred A. Kelsey, both well known character artists.

Frankie Bailey, formerly a member of the famous Weber and Fields troupe and at one time rated as the most beautiful woman appearing with the famous team of stage stars, is also a member of the "Friendly Enemies" cast.

Work on the production is progressing rapidly under George Melford's direction and indications point to its completion well in advance of March 16, its official release date on the Producers Distributing Corporation program.

Heath to Write Continuity

William J. Connery of Peninsula Studios at San Mateo announces that Percy Heath, one of the best known of the West Coast scenario writers, has been engaged to arrange the continuity of "The Awful Truth" from the play by Arthur Richman in which Ina Claire created a sensation on the speaking stage.

The screen version of "The Awful Truth" will be produced at the Peninsula Studios under Paul Powell's direction with Agnes Ayres in the role originally created by Miss Claire. It will be released by Producers Distributing Corporation on April 16.

Add to Cast of Mix Film

Tom Delmar and Fred De Silva have been added to the cast of "The Rainbow Trail" Fox Film Corporation's picturization of Zane Grey's story of the same name, starring Tom Mix. This production is scheduled for release in March and will be the last Mix production for the 1924-1925 season. It is a sequel to "Riders of the Purple Sage," recently completed by Mix to be released sometime during the month of February.

Exploiting Universal's "Phantom of the Opera"

(Continued from page 498)

Caesar, about two thousand years old, and valued at many thousands of dollars. How it got into the Hudson was a mystery and all of the papers ran front page stories and photographs of the head.

The next morning an advertisement appeared in all the papers, containging a cut of the sculpture and the following wording:

"America's greatest art critics say that this marble head, fished out of the Hudson River, was carved in Caesar's time and is worth $10,000. Is this a sculpture of Augustus Caesar? Or is it Lon Chaney as he will appear in Universal's Tremendous Production of Gaston Leroux's 'The Phantom of the Opera?'"

The effect of this advertisement was to concentrate all the interest and discussion of the mysterious head directly on "The Phantom of the Opera" and it achieved exactly the same effect as though the whole thing had been staged as a publicity stunt.

CURRENT and ADVANCE FILM RELEASES

Containing in compact, comprehensive form, the title, star, kind of picture, date of review in Moving Picture World, and footage on past, present and future releases

ALLIED PRODUCERS AND DISTRIBUTORS

	Kind of Picture	Review.	Feet
Loving Lies (Monte Blue)	Drama	Feb. 2..	6,526
No More Women (Moore-Bellamy)	Comedy-drama	Feb. 2..	6,186
Hill Billy (Jack Pickford)	Drama	Mar. 22..	5,734
End of the World (J. Pickford)	Comedy-drama		6,500

ARROW

Western Fate (Hatton-Gerber)
Whirlwind Ranger (Hatton-Gerber)
Notch No. One (Ben Wilson)	Western drama		4,746
Models and Artists (B. Dunn)
Oh, Billy (West)
Come On, Cowboys (Hatton)	Western drama	May 24..	4,700
Mysteries of Mah Jong	Novelty	May 24..	2,000
Two After One (West)	Comedy	May 24..	2,000
Western Feuds	Western drama	July 26..	4,908
Riders of the Plains	Western serial
Lash of the Whip (Dearholt)	Stunt drama		4,820
Cowboy Prince (Dearholt)	Stunt drama		4,410
Diamond Bandit (Dearholt)	Stunt drama		4,698
Lash of Pinto Pete (Dearholt)	Stunt drama		4.437
Two Fisted Sheriff (Canutt)	Western drama	Dec. 6..	4,625
Sell 'em Cowboy (Hatton)	Western drama		4.821
Ridin' Mad (Canutt)	Western drama		4.927
Desert Hawk	Western drama		4,828
Horse Sense (Hatton)	Western drama		4.648
His Majesty the Outlaw (Wilson)	Western drama		4.069
Romance and Rustlers (Canutt)	Western drama	Nov. 15..	4,939
Rip Snorter (Hatton)	Western	Nov. 22..	4,998
The Fugitive (Ben Wilson)	Western dr.	Nov. 29..	4.920
Lost Chord (Powell-Lake-Binney)	Heart interest dr.	Dec. 20..	6,300

ASSOCIATED EXHIBITORS

Yankee Consul (MacLean)	Feature comedy	Feb. 23..	6,148
When A Girl Loves (all-star)	Modern drama	May 3..	5,876
Lone Wolf (Holt-Dalton)	Crook drama	May 10..	6,000
Cheechahcos (all-star)	Northern epic	May 17..	7,000
Spitfire (all-star)	Modern drama	July 5..	6,109
Racing Luck (Monty Banks)	Comedy-drama	July 26..	6,000
Never Say Die (MacLean)	Comedy of thrills	Sep. 13..	5,803
East of Broadway (O. Moore)	Police drama	Nov. 22..	5,785
Price of a Party (H. Ford)	Modern drama	Oct. 18..	5,315
Barriers Burned Away	Spectacle	Dec. 27..	6,236
Is Love Everything?	Sex melo.	Nov. 15..	6,000
Adventurous Sex (C. Bow)	Flapper drama
Children of the Whirlwind
Great Air Mail Robbery
Battling Bunyan (Barry)	Comedy-dr.	Dec. 27..	4,718
Greatest Love of All (Beban)	Drama	Jan. 17..	6,486
Bad Company (Tearle)	Society drama	Jan. 24..	5,551
Introduce Me (Douglas MacLean)	Comedy thrills
Sky Raider (Logan)	Drama
Back to Life (Patsy Ruth Miller)	Drama

EDUCATIONAL FILM CORP.

The New Sheriff	Tuxedo comedy	Mar. 8..	2,000
Under Orders	Clyde Cook	Mar. 15..	2,000
Midnight Blues	Lige Conley	Mar. 22..	2,000
Family Life	Jack White prod.	Mar. 29..	2,000
Bargain Day	Sid Smith	Mar. 29..	1,000
Barnum Jr.	Juvenile comedy	Mar. 29..	2,000
The Fly	Scientific	Apr. 5..	1,000
Killing Time	Lloyd Hamilton	Apr. 5..	2,000
Dusty Dollars	Cameo comedy	Apr. 5..	1,000
Dandy Lions	Neal Burns	Apr. 12..	2,000
Safe and Sane	Jimmie Adams	Apr. 12..	2,000
There He Goes	Mermaid comedy	Apr. 19..	2,000
Heart Throbs	"Sing Them Again"	Apr. 19..	1,000
Realm of Sport	Hodge-Podge	Apr. 19..	1,000
Fold Up	Cameo comedy	Apr. 19..	1,000
Going East	Lloyd Hamilton	Apr. 26..	2,000
The Fun Shop	Humor reel	Apr. 26..	1,000

How to Use This Chart

First—Booking! Get accurate footage and look up date review appeared in Moving Picture World. Then you can decide if the picture will suit your audience.

Second—Play date! When you set your play date, consult this Chart to set the picture on a date that will not conflict with preceding and following pictures; avoid a sequence of similar type of story; space out your specials.

Third—Laying Out Program! This chart shows star and kind of story as well as accurate length; you can lay out a balanced program easily, avoid over—and under-length program.

Fourth—Exploitation! Through this chart find the review in Moving Picture World; this will give a good synopsis, the all-important cast and a fine line on exploitation possibilities as well as the things you'll want to soft-pedal.

Always! Turn to this Chart when you want accurate information in simple form and easy to get at a glance. AND—

File Your Moving Picture World

$1 for Your Time

Many exhibitors tell us that Moving Picture World Guide to Releases is the most accurate available to them. We know it is the most complete in that it is the only chart containing names of stars, type of picture, and all necessary information to the exhibitor.

We want it to be absolutely accurate—Moving Picture World recognizes the importance of accurate footage information, etc.

If you notice an error in FEATURE footage, or any other major error, we will pay you $1 for the effort on your part of writing us a letter telling us the correct facts.

In many territories local censorship cuts alter the footage to a minor extent. Don't write to tell us of these unimportant variations. But in any case where you feel that our figures will work a real hardship on the exhibitor following them—shoot us the word and we will shoot the dollar for your trouble.

Moving Picture World is willing to back up its complete confidence in the accuracy of its chart with its money.

We can't do more. No one else does as much. We thank you.

	Kind of Picture	Review.	Feet
The Trader Keeps Moving	Bruce scenic	Apr. 26..	1,000
The Lady-Bird	Instructive	Apr. 26..	1,000
Cornfed	Bobby Vernon	May 3..	2,000
Out Bound	Cliff Bowes	May 3..	1,000
The Fun Shop	Humor reel	May 3..	1,000
Powder Marks	Cliff Bowes	May 3..	1,000
Lost Chords	"Sing Them Again"	May 3..	1,000
The Junior Partner	Juvenile comedy	May 10..	2,000
The Bonehead	Tuxedo comedy	May 10..	2,000
Flowers of Hate	Wilderness Tale	May 17..	1,000
Nerve Tonic	Christie comedy	May 17..	2,000
Tiny Tour of U. S. A.	Hodge-Podge	May 17..	1,000
Air Pockets	Mermaid comedy	May 17..	2,000
Lunch Brigade	Cliff Bowes	May 24..	1,000
Dizzy Daisy	Mermaid comedy	May 24..	2,000
Good Morning	Lloyd Hamilton	May 24..	2,000
Tootsie-Wootsie	Christie comedy	May 31..	2,000
Just Waiting	Robert Bruce series	May 31..	1,000
Echoes of Youth	"Sing Them Again"	May 31..	1,000
Hot Air	Lee Moran	June 7..	2,000
In a Drop of Water	"Secrets of Life"	June 14..	1,000
Grandpa's Girl	Kathleen Clifford	June 21..	2,000
The Chase	Alps Novelty	June 21..	2,000
Snapshots of the Universe	Hodge-Podge	June 21..	1,000
The Farewell	Bruce Scenic	June 21..	1,000
Wedding Showers	Jack White prod.	June 28..	2,000
The Ex-Bartender Retires	Bruce scenic	June 28..	1,000
Family Fits	Cameo comedy	June 28..	1,000
His First Car	Tuxedo comedy	July 5..	2,000
Pardon Us	Cameo comedy	July 5..	1,000
Melodious Moments	"Sing Them Again"	July 5..	1,000
Pigskin	Mermaid comedy	July 12..	2,000
Heads On	Cliff Bowes	July 12..	1,000
Jumble in the Jungle	Hodge-Podge	July 12..	1,000
Never Again	Tuxedo comedy	Aug. 2..	2,000
Turn About	Cameo comedy	Aug. 2..	1,000
Frozen Water	Novelty	Aug. 9..	1,000
Savage Love	Jimmie Adams	Aug. 9..	2,000
Good News	Cliff Bowes	Aug. 9..	1,000
Oh, Teacher	Juvenile comedy	Aug. 23..	2,000
Boneyard Blues	Earl Hurd cartoon	Aug. 23..	1,000
Drenched	Cliff Bowes	Aug. 23..	1,000
Wild Game	Mermaid comedy	Aug. 30..	2,000
Don't Fail	Cameo comedy	Aug. 30..	1,000
Jonah Jones	Lloyd Hamilton	Sep. 6..	2,000
Hazardous Hunting	Hodge-Podge	Sep. 6..	1,000
Rough and Ready	Lige Conley	Sep. 13..	2,000
Cheer Up	Cliff Bowes	Sep. 13..	1,000
Stupid but Brave	Al St. John	Sep. 20..	2,000
Dirty Hands	Juvenile comedy	Sep. 20..	2,000
Short Change	Hiers comedy	Sep. 27..	2,000
Bright Lights	Vernon comedy	Sep. 27..	2,000
Her Boy Friend	Larry Semon	Sep. 27..	2,000
Court Plaster	Neal Burns	Oct. 4..	2,000
The Hoboken Nightingale	Hurd cartoon	Oct. 4..	1,000
Crazy-Quilt of Travel	Hodge Podge	Oct. 4..	1,000
Fast and Furious (Conley)	Comedy	Oct. 11..	2,000
No Foolin' (Bowes)	Comedy	Oct. 11..	1,000
Sawmill Four	Hurd cartoon	Oct. 18..	1,000
Why Hurry? (Adams)	Comedy	Oct. 18..	2,000
Kid Speed (L. Semon)	Comedy	Oct. 25..	2,000
Crushed (L. Hamilton)	Comedy	Oct. 25..	2,000
Empty Heads (Bowes)	Comedy	Oct. 25..	1,000
High Gear (Vernon)	Comedy	Nov. 1..	2,000
The Mosquito	Instructive	Nov. 1..	1,000
Artist's Model	Hurd cartoon	Nov. 15..	1,000
Poor Butterfly	Mermaid comedy	Nov. 15..	2,000
Watch Your Pep (Bowes)	Cameo comedy	Nov. 15..	1,000
Easy Pickin's	Christie com.	Nov. 22..	2,000
Cut Loose (Dynham-Vance)	Cameo comedy	Nov. 22..	1,000
A Fat Chance (W. Hiers)	Comedy	Nov. 29..	1,000
Go Easy (Bowes)	Cameo [illegible]	Nov. 29..	1,000

(Continued from preceding page)

	Kind of Picture	Review.	Feet
Low Tide (J. White prod.)	Comedy	Dec. 6..	2,000
Little People of the Garden	Instructive	Dec. 6..	1,000
Earth's Oddities	Hodge-Podge	Dec. 13..	1,000
Goat Getters	Juvenile com.	Dec. 13..	2,000
French Pastry (Vernon)	Christie com.	Dec. 20..	2,000
Broadcasting	Hurd cartoon	Dec. 20..	1,000
Lovemania (St. John)	Tuxedo comedy	Dec. 27..	2,000
Mad Rush (Bowes)	Cameo comedy	Dec. 27..	1,000
Step Lightly (Lige Conley)	Mermaid com.	Jan. 3..	2,000
Hi-Fliers	Hodge-Podge	Jan. 3..	1,000
Hooked (Hamilton)	Comedy	Jan. 17..	2,000
Weak Knees (Bowes)	Cameo Com.	Jan. 17..	1,000
Have A Heart (Ruth Hiatt)	Cameo Com.	Jan. 17..	1,000
Good Spirits	Christie com.	Jan. 24..	2,000
Motor Mad	Mermaid com.	Jan. 24..	1,000

FILM BOOKING OFFICES OF AMERICA

Telephone Girl (Vaughn)	Series	Feb. 23..		2,000
Damaged Hearts (all-star)	Florida drama	Mar. 3..		6,154
When Knighthood Was in Tower (Vaughn)	Tel. Girl	Mar. 8..		2,000
North of Nevada (F. Thomson)	Western	Mar. 15..		5,000
Galloping Gallagher (F. Thomson)	Western	Mar. 22..		4,700
Money to Burns	Tel. Girl	Mar. 29..		2,000
Sherlock's Home	Tel. Girl	Mar. 29..		2,000
Yankee Madness (all-star)	Thrill-com.-dr.	Apr. 5..		4,680
His Forgotten Wife (all-star)	Drama	Apr. 12..		6,500
Silent Stranger (Fred Thomson)	Western	Apr. 19..		5,000
Beloved Vagabond (Blackwell)	Romantic drama	Apr. 26..		6,217
William Tells	Tel. Girl	May 3..		2,000
Girl of the Limberlost (Grey)	Rural drama	May 10..		6,000
Untamed Youth (Lewis)	Gypsy drama	May 10..		5,000
For the Love of Mike	Tel. Girl	May 17..		2,000
Danger Line (Hayakawa)	Japan drama	May 24..		5,000
Spirit of the U. S. A. (Johnson prod.)	Patriotic drama	May 31..		8,312
Dangerous Coward (F. Thomson)	Western	May 31..		6,000
Napoleon and Josephine (all-star)	Hist. romance	June 7..		6,500
Fighting Sap (F. Thomson)	Western	June 14..		5,138
There's Millions In It (all-star)	Romantic thriller	June 28..		6,000
Bee's Knees	Tel. Girl	June 28..		2,000
Swords and the Woman (DeCordoba)	Romantic drama	July 12..		6,000
Fools in the Dark (Patsy R. Miller)	Melo. farce	July 26..		7,002
Neglected Women (Seena Owen)	Society drama	Aug. 9..		6,265
Messalina	Italian spectacle	Sep. 6..		8,473
American Manners (R. Talmadge)	Thrill-com.-dr.	Sep. 6..		5,200
Desert Sheik (Hawley)	Sheik picture	Sep. 20..		5,044
Vanity's Price (A. Q. Nilsson)	Society drama	Sep. 20..		6,124
Woman Who Sinned (Busch)	Society drama			6,102
Thundering Hoofs (F. Thomson)	Western	Dec. 6..		5,033
Stepping Lively (R. Talmadge)	Comedy drama			5,317
Life's Greatest Game (J. Walker)	Baseball epic	Oct. 11..		7,010
Millionaire Cowboy (M. B. Flynn)	Western			4,841
Broken Laws (Mrs. W. Reid)	Drama
Quemado (F. Thomson)	Western
Cheap Kisses (all-star)	Jazz-drama	Nov. 15..		6,538
Go-Getters Series	Thrill comedy	Oct. 18..		2,000
Dangerous Flirt (Evelyn Brent)	Drama	Dec. 6..		5,297
Miss in the Dark (Vaughn)	Go-getters	Dec. 6..		2,000
On The Stroke of Three (Harlan)	Drama	Dec. 13..		6,767
Trigger Fingers (Bob Custer)	Tex. Ranger	Dec. 13..		4,775
Going of Cumming	Go-Getters	Dec. 13..		2,000
Laughing at Danger (R. Talmadge)	Thrill drama	Dec. 20..		5,442
Air Hawk (Al Wilson)	Airplane dr.	Dec. 20..		5,000
Who's Hooligan?	Go-getters	Dec. 20..		2,000
Heebie Jeebies (Aubrey)	Comedy	Dec. 27..		2,000
Silk Stocking Sal (Brent)	Underworld dr.	Jan. 3..		5,367
West of Hot Dog (Stan Laurel)	Comedy	Jan. 3..		2,000
No-Gun Man (Lefty Flynn)	Outdoor melo.	Jan. 17..		4,522
Flashing Spurs (Bob Custer)	Outdoor melo.	Jan. 24..		5,068
Youth and Adventure (R. Talmadge)	Outdoor melo.	Jan. 24..		5,000

FIRST NATIONAL

Love Master (Strongheart)	Drama	Jan. 19..		6,779
Painted People (C. Moore)	Comedy	Feb. 9..		5,700
When a Man's a Man (J. Bowers)	Drama	Feb. 12..		6,910
Flowing Gold (all-star)	Drama	Mar. 1..		8,005
Lilies of the Field (C. Griffith)	Drama	Mar. 22..		8,510
Galloping Fish (Ince prod.)	Comedy	Mar. 22..		6,000
Secrets (N. Talmadge)	Drama	Apr. 5..		8,345
Enchanted Cottage (R. Barthelmess)	Drama	Apr. 19..		7,120
Abraham Lincoln (G. A. Billings)	Drama	Feb. 2..		9,759
Cytherea (all-star)	Society drama	May 21..		7,603
Why Men Leave Home (J. M. Stahl prod.)	Comedy-drama	May 3..		7,400
Woman on the Jury (all-star)	Drama	May 17..		7,145
Son of the Sahara (all-star)	Melodrama	May 24..		7,990
Sea Hawk (all-star)	Romantic drama	June 14..		12,045
Marriage Cheat (all-star)	Drama	June 14..		6,622
Those Who Dance (Ince prod.)	Drama	June 21..		7,312
White Moth (LaMarr)	Drama	June 21..		6,571
Perfect Flapper (C. Moore)	Comedy	June 28..		7,000
Self-Made Failure (B. Alexander)	Comedy	June 28..		7,345
For Sale (all-star)	Drama	July 5..		7,840
Born Rich (C. Windsor)	Society drama	Dec. 20..
Single Wives (C. Griffith)	Society drama	Aug. 9..		7,526
Girl in the Limousine (Semon)	Farce comedy	Aug. 30..		5,630
Flirting With Love (C. Moore)	Comedy	Sep. 6..		6,920
In Hollywood With Potash and Perlmutter (all-star)	Comedy	Sep. 2..		6,700
Husbands and Lovers (all-star)	Dom. drama	Nov. 8..		7,882
Madonna of the Streets (Nazimova)	Drama	Oct. 25..		7,507
Tarnish (all-star)	Comedy-drama			6,907
Her Night of Romance (C. Talmadge)	Comedy	Dec. 6..		7,211
In Every Woman's Life (all-star)	Drama	Nov. 15..		6,298
Sandra (LaMarr)	Drama	Dec. 6..		7,794
Classmates (R. Barthelmess)	Drama	Nov. 29..		6,983
Christine of the Hungry Heart (Vidor)	Drama	Nov. 1..		7,500
Silent Watcher (Glenn Hunter)	Drama	Oct. 18..		7,576
Love's Wilderness (Griffith)	Drama	Dec. 20..		6,900
So Big (C. Moore)	Drama	Jan. 17..		8,501
If I Marry Again (Doris Kenyon)	Drama	Jan. 24..		7,401
Idle Tongues (Marmont)	Comedy-drama	Dec. 27..		5,300
Sundown (all-star)	Western epic	Oct. 25..		9,000
The Only Woman (N. Tadmadge)	Domestic dr.	Nov. 8..		6,770
Inez from Hollywood (Nilsson-Stone-Astor)	Heart interest	Dec. 13..		6,919
Frivolous Sal (O'Brien-Busch-Alexander)	Western melo.	Jan. 17..		7,307
A Thief in Paradise (Doris Kenyon)	Melodrama	Jan. 24..		7,231

FOX FILM CORP.

	Kind of Picture	Review.	Feet
Just Off Broadway (Gilbert)	Drama	Feb. 2..	5,444
Not a Drum Was Heard (Jones)	Drama	Feb. 9..	4,323
The Net (Castleton)	Drama	Feb. 9..	6,000
Shadow of the East (all-star)	Drama	Feb. 16..	5,874
Ladies to Board (Mix)	Comedy-drama	Feb. 23..	6,112
Blizzard (all-star)	Northern drama	Mar. 1..	5,800
Frogland	Novelty	Mar. 1..	1,000
Love Letters (Mason)	Comedy-drama	Mar. 8..	4,749
Wolf Man (Gilbert)	Drama	Mar. 15..	5,145
Vagabond Trail (Jones)	Drama	Mar. 22..	4,562
Arizona Express (D. Butler)	Railroad drama	Mar. 29..	6,316
Plunderer (Mayo)	Drama	Apr. 5..	5,000
A Man's Mate (Gilbert)	Drama	Apr. 5..	5,812
New England Farm	Instructive	Apr. 12..	1,000
Circus Cowboy (Jones)	Western drama	May 3..	6,400
Slippery Decks	Card expose	May 3..	1,000
Trouble Shooter (Mix)	Western drama	May 17..	5,702
He's My Pal	Imperial comedy	May 17..	2,000
Lone Chance (Gilbert)	Western drama	May 24..	4,385
When Wise Ducks Meet	Comedy	May 24..	2,000
Western Luck (Jones)	Comedy-drama	June 28..	5,000
Magic Needle	"Etching"	June 28..	1,000
Romance Ranch (Gilbert)	Comedy-drama	July 12..	4,471
Heart Buster (Mix)	Comedy-drama	July 19..	4,500
Beaten Gold	Educational	July 19..	1,000
Against All Odds (Jones)	Comedy-drama	Aug. 9..	4,899
Pain as You Enter (Moran)	Comedy	Aug. 9..	2,000
That French Lady (Mason)	Comedy-drama	Aug. 16..	5,470
Man Who Came Back (special)	Drama	Sep. 6..	8,273
Desert Outlaw (Jones)	Drama
Wolves of the Night (W. Farnum)	Drama
It Is the Law (all-star)	Drama	Sep. 13..	6,895
Dante's Inferno (special)	Drama	Oct. 11..	5,480
Cyclone Rider (all-star)	Drama	Sep. 20..	6,672
Last of the Duanes (Mix)	Drama	Aug. 30..	6,942
Iron Horse (special)	Railway drama	Sep. 13..	11,400
The Hunt	Van Bibber com.
Conquerer (W. Farnum)	Reissue
The Fight (all-star)	Drama
Oh, You Tony (Mix and Tony)	Comedy-drama	Sep. 27..	6,302
Winner Take All (Jones)	Comedy-drama	Oct. 25..	5,949
Hearts of Oak (all-star)	Drama	Oct. 11..	5,336
Great Diamond Mystery (Mason)	Comedy-drama	Nov. 1..	5,096
Warrens of Virginia (all-star)	Drama	Nov. 1..	6,535
The Race	Van Bibber com.
End of the Trail (W. Farnum)	Drama
Rambles of a Raindrop	Instructive	Sep. 27..	1,000
Daughters of the Night (all-star)	Modern drama		5,701
Painted Lady (Mackaill)	Modern drama	Oct. 4..	6,936
Jerusalem Today	Instructive	Oct. 4..	1,000
Last Man on Earth	Novelty special	Dec. 27..
Gold Heels	Race track dr.		6,637
Flames of Desire	Love drama		5,438
The Dancers	Drama	Jan. 24..	6,656
The Folly of Vanity	Dramatic fantasy
Teeth (Mix-Tony Duke)	Western drama	Nov. 15..	6,190
Tainted Souls	Modern drama
Darwin Was Right	Monkey novelty com.	Nov. 8..	4,992
Everyman's Wife	Modern mystery-drama
In Love With Love	Comedy drama	Jan. 3..	5,677
Hunting Wild Animals in Hollywood	Novelty
Honor Among Men (E. Lowe)	Romance-drama	Oct. 18..	4,960
Unreal News 4	Novelty	Oct. 11..	2,000
Van Bibber Series	Polite com.	Oct. 25..	2,000
Age of Oil	Educational	Nov. 1..	2,000
Deep Sea Panic (Parrott)	Comedy	Nov. 1..	2,000
Nickle Plated West	Sunshine comedy	Nov. 15..	2,000
The Bull Fight	Educational	Nov. 15..	1,000
My Husband's Wives (Mason-Washburn)	Comedy-dr.	Nov. 22..	4,509
Paul Jones, Jr.	Van Bibber com.	Nov. 22..	2,000
Finger Lakes	Instructive	Nov. 22..	1,000
Brass Bowl (Edmund Lowe)	Adventure dr.	Nov. 29..	5,861
Stolen Sweeties (Monkeys)	Comedy	Nov. 29..	2,000
Salt of the Earth	Educational	Nov. 29..	1,000
Gerald Cranston's Lady (James Kirkwood)	Domestic dr.	Dec. 6..	6,074
Masked Marvel (Parrott)	Comedy	Dec. 6..	2,000
The Roughneck (George O'Brien)	Melodrama	Dec. 13..	7,619
The Burglar	Van Bibber	Dec. 13..	2,000
Man Who Played Square (Jones)	Western drama	Dec. 20..	6,700
Deadwood Coach (Mix)	Western drama	Jan. 10..	6,346
Troubles of a Bride	Melodrama	Dec. 27..	4,915
Dick Turpin (Mix)	English drama
Hunted Woman	Melodrama
Arizona Romeo (Jones)	Western drama
Curlytop (Mason)	Melodrama	Jan. 10..	5,828
Stardust Trail (Mason)	Melodrama
Scuttlers (W.Farnum)	Western drama		4,686
Movie-Mad Maid (Babe London)	Slapstick	Dec. 20..	2,000
Roaring Lions at Home	Sunshine com.	Jan. 3..	2,000
Uncommon Clay	Educational	Jan. 3..	1,000
Up On the Farm (Lee Moran)	Comedy	Jan. 3..	2,000
The Violin Speaks	Educational	Jan. 10..	1,000
Dangerous Curves	Comedy	Jan. 10..	2,000
Milk Bottle Bandits	Comedy	Jan. 10..	2,000
Ports of Call (E. Lowe)	Regeneration dr.	Jan. 24..	5,500
Sleep Walker (Sid Smith)	Comedy	Jan. 24..	2,000
Hell-Roaring Range	Educational	Jan. 24..	1,000

METRO-GOLDWYN

Through the Dark (Moore)	Drama	Jan. 29..		7,999
Yolanda (Davies)	Romance-dr.	Mar. 1..		10,125
Wild Oranges (all-star)	Drama	Mar. 15..		6,889
Nellie, Beautiful Cloak Model	Melodrama	Apr. 5..		6,598
Three Weeks (Pringle-Nagel)	Romantic dr.	Apr. 12..		7,483
Janice Meredith (Davies)	Romantic dr.	Aug. 23..		10,655
Rejected Woman (Rubens-Nagel)	Drama	May 3..		7,761
Heart Bandit (Dana)	Comedy-dr.	Jan. 19..		4,909
Fool's Awakening (Ford)	Drama	Feb. 16..		5,763
Man Life Passed By (Marmont)	Drama	Mar. 1..		6,459
Thy Name Is Woman (LaMarr)	Drama	Mar. 1..		9,087
Uninvited Guest (Tolley)	Drama	Mar. 8..		6,145
Happiness (L. Taylor)	Comedy-dr.	Mar. 8..		7,414
Women Who Give (all-star)	Sea drama	Mar. 22..		7,500
Boy of Flanders (Coogan)	Comedy-dr.	Apr. 5..		7,018
Shooting of Dan McGrew (all-star)	Drama	Apr. 12..		6,318
Mademoiselle Midnight (Murray)	Drama	May 17.		6,778
Sherlock, Jr. (Keaton)	Comedy	May 17..		4,065
Arab (Novarro-Terry)	Drama	July 12..		6,710

(Continued from preceding page)

	Kind of Picture	Review.	Feet
Bread (all-star)	Drama	Aug. 2..	6,726
Tess of D'Urbervilles (Sweet)	Drama	Aug. 9..	7,736
Little Robinson Crusoe (Coogan)	Comedy-dr.	Aug. 16..	6,126
Broken Barriers (all-star)	Drama	Aug. 16..	5,717
True As Steel (all-star)	Drama	Jun. 28..	6,454
Revelation (Dana)	Drama	July 5..	8,752
Recoil (Blythe-Hamilton)	Drama	July 12..	7,089
Wine of Youth (all star)	Drama	July 26..	6,805
Along Came Ruth (Dana)	Comedy-dr.	Aug. 2..	5,161
Red Lily (Bennett-Novarro)	Drama	Aug. 16..	6,975
Sinners in Silk (Menjou-Boardman)	Drama	Aug. 30..	5,750
Circe, The Enchantress (Murray)	Drama	Sep. 13..	6,882
His Hour (Pringle)	Drama	Sep. 20..	6,300
One Night in Rome (L. Taylor)	Comedy-dr.	Sep. 27..	5,883
Navigator (Keaton)	Comedy	Sep. 13..	5,[illegible]
Bandolero (all star)	Drama	Oct. 11..	6,[illegible]
Great Divide (all star)	Drama
The Snob (all star)	Drama	Nov. 8..	6,513
He Who Gets Slapped (Chaney)	Drama	Nov. 15..	6,613
Rag Man (Coogan)	Comedy-dr.
Silent Accuser (Peter, the Great)	Dog drama	Nov. 22..	5,883
So This Is Marriage (all star)	Comedy-dr.	Jan. 3..	6,300
Beauty Prize (Dana)	Comedy-dr.	Oct. 11..	5,750
Ben Hur (special cast)	Drama
Merry Widow (Murray)	Comedy-dr.
The Scandal (Novarro)	Drama
Seven Chances (Keaton)	Comedy
Sporting Venus (Sweet)	Drama
Married Flirts (all-star)	Drama	Oct. 25..	6,765
Temptress (Cosmopolitan)
The Square Peg
Zander, the Great (Cosmopolitan)
Romola (Lillian Gish)	Famous novel	Dec. 13..	12,974
Greed (Von Stroheim prod.)	Special	Dec. 20..	10,067
Chu-Chin-Chow (B. Blythe)	Spectacle
Wife of the Centaur	Drama	Jan. 17..	6,586
Dixie Handicap (Windsor-Keenan)	Drama	Jan. 10..	6,905
Cheaper to Marry (All Star) ..	Drama
A Man's World (Joyce-Marmont)	Drama

PARAMOUNT

Ten Commandments (all star)	Spectacular dr.	Jan. 5..	12,000
Icebound (Dix-Wilson)	Rural dr.	Mar. 15..	6,471
Society Scandal (Swanson)	Society dr.	Mar. 22..	6,433
Fighting Coward (Cruze prod.)	Satirical dr.	Mar. 29..	6,433
Dawn of a To-morrow (Logan)	Slum dr.	Apr. 5..	6,084
Singer Jim McKee (W. S. Hart)	Western	Apr. 12..	7,008
Breaking Point (all star)	West-Metropolitan	Apr. 19..	6,664
Confidence Man (Meighan)	Romance dr.	Apr. 26..	6,500
Moral Sinner (Dalton)	Crook melo.	Apr. 26..	5,489
Triumph (C. DeMille prod.)	Theatrical dr.	May 3..	8,292
Bluff (Ayres-Moreno)	Drama	May 10..	6,504
Men (Negri)	Society dr.	May 17..	6,700
Wanderer of Wasteland (Holt-Technicolor)	Western	May 31..	6,086
Code of the Sea (LaRocque-Logan)	Sea melodr.	Jun. 7..	6,550
Bedroom Window (W. DeMille prod.)	Mystery dr.	Jun. 21..	6,550
Guilty One (Ayres)	Heavy mystery	Jun. 28..	5,365
Tiger Love (Melford prod.)	Modern dr.	Jun. 28..	5,325
Changing Husbands (Joy)	Dual role dr.	July 5..	6,799
Unguarded Women (Daniels-Dix)	Society dr.	July 5..	6,051
Enemy Sex (Compson)	Romantic dr.	July 12..	7,861
Side Show of Life (Torrence)	Clown dr.	Aug. 2..	7,511
Manhandled (Swanson)	Comedy-dr.	Aug. 9..	6,908
Man Who Fights Alone (W. Farnum)	Drama	Aug. 9..	6,337
Monsieur Beaucaure (Valentino)	Spectacle melo.	Aug. 23..	9,932
Empty Hands (Holt)	Forest Melo.	Aug. 30..	6,976
Lily of the Dust (Negri)	Drama	Sep. 6..	6,811
The Female (Compson)	Society dr.	Sep. 13..	6,167
Merton of the Movies (Hunter)	Travesty	Sep. 20..	7,655
Sinners in Heaven (Daniels-Dix)	Drama	Sep. 20..	6,621
Open All Night (all star)	Demestic dr.	Sep. 20..	6,881
Feet of Clay (C. DeMille prod.)	Drama	Oct. 4..	9,741
Alaskan (Meighan)	Drama	Sep. 27..	6,167
Her Love Story (Swanson)	Romance dr.	Oct. 11..	6,736
Story Without a Name (Ayres-Moreno)	Prize title	Oct. 18..	5,912
Dangerous Money (Daniels)	Comedy-dr.	Oct. 25..	6,864
Border Legion (Moreno)	Drama	Nov. 1..	7,048
Worldly Goods (Ayres)	Drama	Nov. 15—	6,055
Fast Set (Compson-Menjou)	Domestic dr.	Nov. 29..	6,574
Forbidden Paradise (Negri)	Drama	Nov. 29..	7,000
Sainted Devil (Valentino)	Drama	Dec. 6..	8,633
City That Never Sleeps (Cruze prod.)	Mother-love melo.	Oct. 11..	6,097
Manhattan (Dix)	Romantic com.	Nov. 8..	6,415
Garden of Weeds (Compson)	Drama	Nov. 15..	6,230
Wages of Virtue (Swanson)	Drama	Dec. 6..	7,093
Tongues of Flame (Meighan-Love)	Melodrama	Dec. 27..	6,763
North of 36 (Torrence-Holt-Wilson)	Historic romance	Dec. 13..	7,908
Argentine Love (Daniels-Cortez)	Spanish romance	Jan. 3..	5,970
Peter Pan (Betty Bronson)	Barrie classic	Jan. 3..	9,593
Locked Doors (Compson)	Original story	Jan. 24..	6,221
Tomorrow's Love (Ayres)	Divorce com-dr.	Jan. 24..	5,903
East of Suez (Negri)	Drama	Jan. 17..	6,821
Miss Bluebeard (Daniels)	The stage success
Golden Bed (LaRocque)	Drama of classes		8,584
Man Must Live (Dix)	Newspaper romance		6,116
Coming Through (Meighan)	New type Meighan story
The Devil's Cargo (Starke)	Drama of Old California
Lord Chumley (Dana-Griffith-Roberts)	Stage success
Top of the World (Nilsson-Kirkwood)	Africa and England		7,167
The Swan (Menjou-Howard)	Stage success
Contraband (Wilson-Noah Beery)	Bootleg drama
Madame Sans Gene (Swanson)	World Famous drama
Thundering Herd (Holt-Wilson)	Buffalo stampede

PATHE

Zeb Versus Paprika	Stan Laurel	Mar. 15..	2,000
Why Mice Leave Home	Terry cartoon	Mar. 15..	1,000
Wolfe and Montcalm	Chronicles of America	Mar. 22..	3,000
Scarem Much	Sennett comedy	Mar. 22..	2,000
Fields of Glory	"Sportlight"	Mar. 22..	1,000
Hunters Bold	"Spat Family"	Mar. 22..	2,000
From Rags to Riches and Back Again	Terry cartoon	Mar. 22..	1,000
Don't Forget	Charles Chase	Mar. 22..	1,000
King of Wild Horses	Rex (horse)	Mar. 29..	5,000
Big Moments From Little Pictures	Will Rogers	Mar. 29..	2,000
Fraidy Cat	Charles Chase	Mar. 29..	1,000
Shanghaied Lovers	Harry Langdon	Mar. 29..	2,000
The Champion	Terry cartoon	Mar. 29..	1,000
Dirty Little Half Breed	Frontier series	Mar. 29..	2,000
Seein' Things	"Our Gang"	Apr. 5..	2,000
Birds of Passage	Bird Novelty	Apr. 5..	3,000

	Kind of Picture	Review.	Feet
Running Wild	Terry cartoon	Apr. 5..	1,000
Friend Husband	Snub Pollard	Apr. 5..	1,000
The Swift and Strong	"Sportlight"	Apr. 5..	1,000
Girl-Shy	Harold Lloyd	Apr. 12..	7,457
Our Little Nell	"Dippy Doo Dads"	Apr. 12..	1,000
Medicine Hat	Frontier series	Apr. 12..	2,000
Brothers Under the Chin	Stan Laurel	Apr. 12..	2,000
Gateway of the West	8th Chronicle	Apr. 19..	3,000
The Hollywood Kid	Sennett comedy	Apr. 19..	2,000
Hit the High Spots	"Spat Family"	Apr. 19..	2,000
One at a Time	Earl Mohan	Apr. 19..	1,000
If Noah Lived Today	Terry cartoon	Apr. 19..	1,000
A Trip to the Pole	Terry cartoon	Apr. 26..	1,000
Sun and Snow	"Sportlight"	Apr. 26..	1,000
Get Busy	Snub Pollard	Apr. 26..	1,000
Highbrow Stuff	Will Rogers	Apr. 26..	2,000
Flickering Youth	Sennett comedy	Apr. 26..	2,000
Commencement Day	"Our Gang"	May 3..	2,000
An Ideal Farm	Terry cartoon	May 3..	1,000
Homeless Pups	Terry cartoon	May 3..	1,000
Sporting Speed	"Sportlight"	May 3..	1,000
Publicity Pays	Charles Chase	May 3..	1,000
When Winter Comes	Terry cartoon	May 10..	1,000
Near Dublin	Stan Laurel	May 10..	2,000
North of 50-50..	"Dippy Doo Dads"	May 10..	1,000
The Fortieth Door	Allene Ray—serial	May 17..
April Fool	Charles Chase	May 17..	2,000
The Pilgrims	Chronicle series	May 17..	3,000
Fishin' Fever	"Sportlight"	May 17..	2,000
Black Oxfords	Sennett comedy	May 17..	2,000
Bottle Babies	"Spat Family"	May 17..	2,000
Going to Congress	Will Rogers	May 24..	2,000
Position Wanted	Charles Chase	May 24..	1,000
The Cat's Meow	Sennett comedy	May 24..	2,000
Cradle Robbers	"Our Gang"	May 31..	2,000
Building Winners	"Sportlight"	May 31..	1,000
Before Taking	Earl Mohan	May 31..	1,000
Rupert of Hee-Haw	Stan Laurel	June 7..	2,000
Yukon Jake	Ben Turpin	June 7..	2,000
Up and At 'Em	"Dippy Doo Dads"	June 7..	1,000
The Flying Carpet	Terry cartoon	June 7..	1,000
Declaration of Independence	"Chronicles"	June 14..	3,000
Fast Black	Mohan-Engle	June 14..	1,000
Lion and the Souse	Sennett comedy	June 14..	2,000
On Guard	"Sportlight"	June 14..	1,000
Suffering Shakespeare	"Spat Family"	June 14..	2,000
Young Oldfield	Charles Chase	June 21..	1,000
His New Mama	Sennett comedy	June 21..	2,000
Don't Park There	Will Rogers	June 21..	2,000
Her Memory	Will Nigh Miniature	June 21..	1,000
Solitude and Fame	"Sportlight"	June 28..	1,000
Stolen Goods	Charles Chase	June 28..	1,000
Jubilo, Jr.	"Our Gang"	June 28..	2,000
Jeffries, Jr.	Charles Chase	July 5..	1,000
The Wide Open Spaces	Stan Laurel	July 5..	2,000
The Body in the Bag	Terry cartoon	July 5..	1,000
Yorktown	Chronicles of America	July 12..	3,000
Why Husbands Go Mad	Charles Chase	July 12..	1,000
Desert Sheiks	Terry cartoon	July 12..	1,000
Radio Mad	"Spat Family"	July 12..	2,000
Maud Miller	Special	July 19..	2,000
Our Congressman	Will Rogers	July 19..	2,000
A Woman's Hour	Terry cartoon	July 19..	1,000
A Ten-Minute Egg	Charles Chase	July 19..	1,000
It's a Bear	"Our Gang"	July 26..	2,000
The Sport of Kings	Terry cartoon	July 26..	1,000
Our Defenders	"Sportlight"	July 26..	1,000
Seeing Nellie Home	Charles Chase	July 26..	1,000
Into the Net	Mulhall-Murphy serial	Aug. 2..
Romeo and Juliet	Sennett comedy	Aug. 2..	2,000
Flying Fever	Terry cartoon	Aug. 2..	1,000
Short Kilts	Hal Roach comedy	Ang. 2..	2,000
A Hard Boiled Tenderfoot	"Spat Family"	Aug. 9..	2,000
The Puritans	"Chronicles" series	Aug. 9..	3,000
Amelia Comes Back	Terry cartoon	Aug. 9..	1,000
The First Hundred Years	Sennett comedy	Aug. 16..	2,000
A Truthful Liar	Will Rogers	Aug. 16..	2,000
The Battling Orioles	Special	Aug. 23..	5,000
East of the Water Plug	Sennett comedy	Aug. 23..	2,000
High Society	"Our Gang"	Aug. 23..	2,000
The Prodigal Pup	Terry cartoon	Aug. 23..	1,000
Hoofbeats	"Sportlight"	Aug. 23..	1,000
House Cleaning	Terry cartoon	Aug. 23..	1,000
Alexander Hamilton	"Chronicles" series	Sep. 6..	3,000
Lizzies of the Field	Sennett comedy	Sep. 6..	2,000
Barnyard Olympics	Terry cartoon	Sep. 6..	1,000
South of the North Pole	"Spat Family"	Sep. 6..	2,000
One Third Off	Cobb-Rice comedy	Sep. 6..	2,000
The Happy Years	"Sportlight"	Sep. 6..	1,000
Why Men Work	Charles Chase	Sep. 6..	1,000
Message From the Sea	Terry cartoon	Sep. 6..	1,000
Luck of the Foolish	Harry Langdon	Sep. 13..	2,000
Outdoor Pajamas	Charles Chase	Sep. 13..	2,000
Three Foolish Weeks	Ben Turpin	Sep. 13..	2,000
In Good Old Summertime	Terry cartoon	Sep. 13..	1,000
Danger Lure	Sportlight	Oct. 11..	1,000
Dixie	Chronicles	Oct. 11..	3,000
Goofy Age (Glenn Tryon)	Comedy	Oct. 11..	2,000
10 Scars Make a Man (Allene Ray)	Serial	Oct. 18..
Black Magic	Terry cartoon	Oct. 18..	1,000
Sporting Rhythm	Sportlight	Oct. 18..	1,000
Riders of the Purple Cow	Sennett com.	Oct. 18..	2,000
Every Man for Himself	Our Gang	Oct. 18..	2,000
Hot Water (Harold Lloyd)	Feature com.	Oct. 18..	5,000
On Leave of Absence	Detective	Oct. 25..	2,000
Bungalow Boobs (Chase)	Comedy	Oct. 25..	1,000
Sky Plumber (Arthur Stone)	Comedy	Oct. 25..	2,000
Galloping Bungalows	Sennett com.	Nov. 1..	2,000
Stunts	Sportlight	Nov. 1..	1,000
Hot Stuff	Spat family	Nov. 1..	2,000
Cat and the Magnet	Terry cartoon	Nov. 1..	1,000
Fast Company	Our Gang	Nov. 15..	2,000
She Knew Her Man	Terry cartoon	Nov. 15..	1,000
Gridiron Glory	Sportlight	Nov. 15..	1,000
Love's Sweet Piffle (R. Graves)	Comedy	Nov. 22..	2,000
Are Blond Men Bashful? (Stone)	Comedy	Nov. 22..	2,000
Out of the Storm	Detective	Nov. 22..	2,000
Good Old Circus Days	Terry cartoon	Nov. 22..	1,000
All Wet (Chase)	Comedy	Nov. 29..	1,000
Deaf, Dumb and Daffy ..	Spat Family	Nov. 29..	2,000
Cannon-Ball Express	Sennett com.	Nov. 29..	2,000

	Kind of Picture	Review.	Feet
ampions	Sportlight	Nov. 29..	1,000
mber Jacks	Terry cartoon	Nov. 29..	1,000
aite Sheep (Glenn Tryon)	Special dr.	Dec. 6..	6,091
et of Mud (Sennett cast)	Comedy	Dec. 6..	2,000
et the Missus (Tryon)	Comedy	Dec. 6..	2,000
cking the Bucket Shop	Detective series	Dec. 6..	2,000
e's In Again	Terry cartoon	Dec. 6..	1,000
rsterious Mystery	Our Gang	Dec. 13..	2,000
f His Trolley (R. Graves)	Sennett com.	Dec. 13..	2,000
ah's Athletic Club	Terry cartoon	Dec. 13..	1,000
st a Good Guy (Stone) ..	Comedy	Dec. 20..	2,000
yal Razz (Chase)	Comedy	Dec. 20..	1,000
rsteries of Old Chinatown	Terry cartoon	Dec. 20..	1,000
ture's Rouge	Sportlight	Dec. 20..	1,000
bber Neck	Spat Family ..	Dec. 27..	2,000
ll and Sand	Sennett comedy	Dec. 27..	2,000
vaders	Sportlight	Dec. 27..	1,000
wn on the Farm	Terry cartoon	Dec. 27..	1,000
e Sea Squawk	Sennett com.	Jan. 3..	2,000
the Ice	Terry cartoon	Jan. 3..	1,000
lloping Hoofs (Allene Ray)	Serial	Jan. 3..
ages of Tin (Tryon)	Comedy	Jan. 3..	2,000
t's Knuckles (Chase)	Comedy	Jan. 10..	1,000
ugh and Tumbling	Sportlight	Jan. 10..	1,000
r Game Pup	Terry cartoon	Jan. 10..	1,000
e Big Town (Our Gang)	Comedy	Jan. 10..	2,000
umber (Graves)	Comedy	Jan. 10..	2,000
ld Goose Chaser (Turpin)	Sennett Com.	Jan. 17..	2,000
llo Baby (Chase)	Comedy	Jan. 17..	1,000
ugh That Off	Spat Family	Jan. 24..	2,000
oneymoon Hardships	Sennett comedy	Jan. 24..	2,000
rain and Brawn	Sportlight	Jan. 24..	1,000

PRINCIPAL PICTURES

sten Lester (all-star)	Comedy-drama	May 10..	6,242
aring Youth (Daniels)	Comedy-drama	May 17..	5,975
aughters of Pleasure (Prevost)	Drama	May 24..	6,000
asked Dancer (H. Chadwick)	Mystery drama	May 31..	4,987
od Bad Boy (Joe Butterworth)	Comedy-drama	June 7..	5,198
ptain January (Baby Peggy)	Sea story	July 12..	6,194
elen's Babies (Baby Peggy)	Comedy-drama
ine With Iron Door (all-star)	Adventure drama	Dec. 27..	7,800
e-Creation of Brian Kent	Drama

PRODUCERS DISTRIBUTING CORP.

rit (G. Hunter)	Crook dr.	Jan. 12..	5,500
ove's Whirlpool (Lee-Kirkwood)	Drama	Mar. 22..	6,605
oosier Schoolmaster (Hull)	Drama	Mar. 29..	5,556
is Darker Self (L. Hamilton)	Comedy	Apr. 5..	5,000
ry and Get It (Washburn)	Comedy-dr.	Apr. 12..	5,607
ot One to Spare (all star)	Pathos dr.	Apr. 19..	5,000
andering Husbands (Lee-Kirkwood)	Drama	May 10..	6,300
old Your Breath (Devore)	Thrill com.	Jun. 7..	5,900
iami (Compson)	Drama	Jun. 14..	6,317
ight Hawk (Carey)	Western	Jun. 14..	5,115
ightning Rider (Carey)	Western	Jun. 21..	6,000
hat Shall I Do? (Mackaill)	Drama	Jun. 28..	8,000
egend of Hollywood (Marmont)	Drama	Jan. 10..	5,414
ise Virgin (Miller)	Drama		5,951
elcome Stranger (Vidor)	Comedy-dr.	Oct. 25..	6,618
amshackle House (Compson)	Comedy-dr.		6,257
arbara Frietchie (Vidor)	Civ. War dr.	Oct. 11..	7,179
halk Marks (M. Snow)	Drama
ouse of Youth (Logan)	Drama		6,669
oaring Rails (Carey)	Railway dr.	Oct. 25..	5,753
nother Scandal (Lois Wilson)	Sex theme	Nov. 1..	7,000
nother Man's Wife (Lee-Kirkwood)	Drama		5,015
rouping With Ellen (H. Chadwick)	Comedy-dr.		6,452
eckless Romance	Comedy feature	Nov. 22..	5,530
ren of Seville (Dean)	Drama	Nov. 29..	6,724
irl on the Stairs (Miller)	Comedy-dr.		6,214
horus Lady (Livingston)	Comedy-dr.		6,020
afe in Cairo (Dean)	Drama		5,656
laming Forties (Carey)	Western		5,770
he Mirage (Vidor)	Drama
et Women Alone (O'Malley-Hawley)	Drama
oft Shoes (Carey)	Western
ff the Highway (Logan)	Drama

B. P. SCHULBERG PROD.

reath of Scandal (Blythe)	Society drama		6,940
hite Man (Joyce)	Jungle romance	Nov. 22..	6,370
rifiers (Busch-Mayo)	Paris soc. dr.	Dec. 27..	6,626
apital Punishment (Clara Bow)	Prison dr.	Jan. 24..	5,950
oomerang (Clara Bow)	Comedy-dr.

SELZNICK

(Through Associated Exhibitors)

oman to Woman (Compson)	Drama	Apr. 26..	6,304
0 a Week (Arliss)	Drama	Jun. 21..	5,900
hite Shadow (Compson)	Drama
owery Bishop	Slum dr.

(Through F. B. O.)

ell Shipman Little Dramas eaturettes
immy Aubrey Comedies
ol. Heeza Liar Comedies

UNITED ARTISTS

orothy Vernon of Haddon Hall (Pickford)	Romantic drama	May 17..	9,351
merica (Griffith prod.)	Historical drama	Mar. 8..	11,447
sn't Life Wonderful? (Dempster)	Realism	Dec. 13..	8,000
hief of Bagdad (D. Fairbanks)	Fantasy	Mar. 29..	12,000

UNIVERSAL

lats Off (Morrison)	Drama	Feb. 9..	2,000
own in Jungle Town (Joe Martin)	Monkey comedy	Feb. 9..	1,000
ast Express (W. Duncan)	Railway serial	Feb. 9..	...
ack o' Clubs (Rawlinson)	Western dr.	Feb. 16..	4,717
one Larry (Sedgwick)	Comedy	Feb. 16..	2,000
ou're Next	Century com.	Feb. 16..	2,000
he Jail Bird (Edwards)	Comedy	Feb. 16..	1,000

	Kind of Picture	Review	Feet
Ride for Your Life (Gibson)	Western	Mar. 1..	5,310
Society Sensation (Valentino)	Reissue	Mar. 1..	2,000
Very Bad Man (Edwards)	Comedy	Mar. 1..	1,000
Peg ot the Mounted (Baby Peggy)	Comedy	Mar. 1..	2,000
Law Forbids (Baby Peggy)	Feature dr.	Mar. 8..	6,263
Swing Bad the Sailor	Leather Pushers	Mar. 8..	2,000
Sons-in-Law	Century com.	Mar. 8..	2,000
Should Poker Players Marry (Edwards)	Comedy	Mar. 8..	1,000
Fool's Highway (Philbin)	Drama	Mar. 15..	6,800
Big Boy Blue	Leather Pushers	Mar. 15..	2,000
The Oriental Game (Pal)	Century com.	Mar. 15..	2,000
Keep Healthy (Summerville)	Comedy	Mar. 15..	1,000
Phantom Horseman (Hoxie)	Western	Mar. 15..	4,889
Stolen Secrets (Rawlinson)	Drama	Mar. 22..	4,742
Young Tenderfoot (Messinger)	Comedy	Mar. 22..	2,000
Nobody to Love (Edwards)	Comedy	Mar. 22..	1,000
Night Message (Hulette)	Drama	Mar. 29..	4,531
Ship Ahoy (Dunn)	Comedy	Mar. 29..	1,000
That's Rich (Trimble)	Comedy	Mar. 29..	2,000
Galloping Ace (Hoxie)	Western	Apr. 5..	4,561
Hit Him Hard (Earle)	Comedy	Apr. 5..	2,000
Marry When Young (Edwards)	Comedy	Apr. 5..	1,000
Checking Out (Pal)	Century com.	Apr. 12..	2,000
Spring of 1964 (Edwards)	Comedy	Apr. 12..	1,000
Excitement (LaPlante)	Comedy-dr.	Apr. 19..	4,913
Storm Daughter (Dean)	Drama	Apr. 19..	5,203
Racing Kid (Messinger)	Comedy	Apr. 19..	2,000
Forty Horse Hawkins (Gibson)	Western	Apr. 26..	5,140
One Wet Night (Edwards)	Comedy	Apr. 26..	1,000
Pretty Plungers (Follies Girls)	Century com.	Apr. 26..	2,000
Riders Up (Hale)	Race drama	May 3..	4,904
Politics (Summerville)	Comedy	May 3..	1,000
Green Grocers (Dunn)	Comedy	May 3..	1,000
A Lofty Marriage (Earle)	Comedy	May 3..	2,000
Taxi, Taxi!	Comedy	May 10..	2,000
Pigskin Hero (McCoy)	Comedy	May 10..	2,000
Bulltosser (Lyons-Moran)	Reissue	May 10..	1,000
Dangerous Blonde (LaPlante)	Comedy-dr.	May 17..	4,919
Fast Steppers (New Series)	Race dr.	May 10..	2,000
Ridgeway of Montana (Hoxie)	Western	May 17..	4,843
My Little Brother (Summerville)	Comedy	May 17..	1,000
The Lone Round-Up (Dougherty)	Short Western	May 17..	2,000
The Signal Tower (Super-Jewel)	Drama	May 24..	6,714
Tired Business Man (Alt-Follies Girls)	Comedy	May 24..	2,000
Honor of Men (N. Hart re-issue)	Western	May 24..	2,000
Reckless Age (Denny)	Drama	May 31..	6,954
Fighting American (all star)	Drama	May 31..	5,251
Case Dismissed (Summerville)	Comedy	May 31..	1,000
Boss of the Bar-20 (Lawrence)	Western	May 31..	2,000
Delivering the Goods (Pal)	Comedy	May 31..	2,000
The Gaiety Girl (Philbin)	Drama	Jun. 7..	7,419
High Speed (Rawlinson)	Drama	Jun. 7..	4,927
Fearless Fools (McCoy)	Century com.	Jun. 7..	2,000
Rest in Pieces (Roach)	Comedy	Jun. 7..	1,000
Powerful Eye (Morrison)	Short Western	Jun. 7..	2,000
Sailor Maids (Follies Girls)	Comedy	Jun. 14..	2,000
Winning a Bride (Ridgeway)	Comedy	Jun. 14..	2,000
Family Secret (Baby Peggy)	Comedy-dr.	Jun. 21..	5,076
Back Trail (Hoxie)	Western	Jun. 21..	4,615
Fight and Win (Jack Dempsey)	Fight series	Jun. 21..	...
Please Teacher (Messinger)	Comedy	Jun. 21..	2,000
Miners Over 21 (Summerville)	Comedy	Jun. 21..	1,000
Blue Wing's Revenge (Lawrence)	Western	Jun. 28..	2,000
Dark Stairway (Rawlinson)	Drama	Jun. 28..	5,000
Iron Man (Albertini)	Serial	Jun. 28..	...
Behind the Curtain (Bryson)	Drama	July 5..	4,875
A Royal Pair	Century com.	July 5..	2,000
Why Be Jealous? (Roach)	Comedy	July 5..	1,000
Young Ideas (LaPlante)	Comedy-dr.	July 12..	4,005
Her Fortunate Face	Century com.	July 12..	2,000
Little Savage	Short Western	July 12..	2,000
Sawdust Trail (Gibson)	Western	July 19..	5,500
Cry Baby (Summerville)	Comedy	July 19..	1,000
Starving Beauties (Wiley)	Comedy	July 26..	2,000
Flying Eagle (Lawrence)	Short Western	July 26..	2,000
Patching Things Up (Roach)	Comedy	July 26..	2,000
Fighting Fury (Hoxie)	Western	Aug. 2..	4,491
Kid Days (Snooky)	Comedy	Aug. 2..	1,000
Her City Sport (Wiley)	Comedy	Aug. 2..	2,000
The Gun Packer (Morrison)	Western	Aug. 2..	2,000
Big Timber (Desmond)	Forest dr.	Aug. 9..	4,650
Paging Money	Century com.	Aug. 9..	2,000
King's Command (Lawrence)	Short Western	Aug. 9..	2,000
Love and Glory (all star)	Drama	Aug. 16..	7,084
Hit and Run (Gibson)	Baseball dr.	Aug. 16..	5,504
Wolves of the North (Duncan)	Serial	Aug. 16..	...
Wine (C. Bow)	Drama	Aug. 23..	6,220
Hysterical History (Z Series)	Novelty	Aug. 23..	1,000
Sagebush Vagabond	Western	Aug. 23..	2,000
Butterfly (LaPlante)	Comedy-dr.	Aug. 30..	7,472
The Blow Out (Messinger)	Comedy	Aug. 30..	2,000
K—The Unknown (Valli-Marmont)	Drama	Sep. 6..	8,146
All's Swell on the Ocean (Dempsey)	Fight and win	Sep. 6..	2,000
So This Is Paris (Dempsey)	Fight and win	Sep. 6..	2,000
Scared Stiff	Century com.	Sep. 6..	2,000
Mind the Baby (Pal)	Comdey	Sep. 13..	2,000
College Cowboy	Western	Sep. 13..	2,000
Traffic Jams (McCoy)	Comedy	Sep. 13..	2,000
Tempest Cody Gets Her Man (Walcamp)	Western	Sep. 13..	2,000
That's the Spirit (Roach)	Comedy	Sep. 13..	1,000
Measure of a Man (Desmond)	Drama	Sep. 20..	4,979
Fast Worker (Denny-LaPlante)	Drama	Sep. 20..	6,506
Low Bridge (Messinger)	Comdey	Sep. 27..	2,000
Game Hunter (Roach)	Comdey	Sep. 27..	1,000
Between Fires	Western	Sep. 27..	2,000
Rose of Paris (Philbin)	Drama	Oct. 4..	6,362
Rip Van Winkle	Hysterical Hist.	Oct. 4..	1,000
Trouble Flxer	Century com.	Oct. 4..	2,000
Western Wallop (Hoxie)	Ex-convict dr.	Oct. 11..	4,611
Hello, Frisco (Summerville-Dunn)	Comedy	Oct. 11..	1,000
Snappy Eyes (Wiley)	Comedy	Oct. 11..	2,000
An Eyeful (Sullivan)	Short drama	Oct. 11..	2,000
Pocahontas & John Smith	Hysterical hist.	Oct. 18..	1,000
What an Eye	Comedy	Oct. 18..	2,000
Ridin' Kid From Powder River (Gibson)	Western	Oct. 25..	5,727
Riddle Rider (Desmond-Sedgwick)	Serial	Nov. 1..
Robinson Crusoe	Hysterical hist.	Nov. 1..	1,000
Some Tomboy (Wiley)	Comedy	Nov. 1..	2,000
The Tornado (H. Peters)	Melodrama	Nov. 15..	6,375
Sweet Dreams	Century comedy	Nov. 15..	2,000
Antony and Cleopatra	Gysterical History	Nov. 15..	1,000
Speed, Boys (Trimble, Bobbles)	Century (kid)	Nov. 22..	2,000
Oh, Doctor (R. Denny)	Comedy	Nov. 29..	6,587
Omar Khayyan (Hysterical history)	Comedy	Nov. 29..	1,000

(Continued from preceding page)

	Kind of Picture	Review.	Feet
Double Cross (Sullivan)	Drama	Nov. 29..	2,000
Smouldering Fires (Frederick-LaPlante)	Drama	Dec. 13..	7,356
Hurricane Kid (Gibson)	Western	Jan. 3..	5,296
Secrets of the Night (Kirkwood-Bellamy)	Drama	Dec. 20..	6,138
Mad Whirl (May MacAvoy)	Comedy-dr.	Dec. 27..	6,184
Price of Pleasure (Valli-Kerry)	Drama
Saddle Hawk (Gibson)	Western dr.
Raffles (House Peters)	Drama
Eyes of Fools (Rubens-Marmont)	Society dr.
Fifth Avenue Models (Mary Philbin)	Drama	Jan. 24..	6,581
Up The Ladder (Valli)	Drama
Love Cargo (House Peters)	Drama
Let 'Er Back (Gibson)	Western	Jan. 3..	5,500
Dangerous Innocence (LaPlante-O'Brien)	Drama
Ridin' Thunder (Jack Hoxie)	Western
Man in Blue (Rawlinson-Bellamy)	Drama
Meddler (Desmond)	Drama
Taming the West (Gibson)	Western
Don Dare-Devil (Hoxie)	Western
Red Clay (Desmond)	Drama
Paul Revere	Hysterical histy.	Dec. 20..	1,000
Border Maid (Ed Cobb)	Drama	Dec. 20..	2,000
Family Row (Messinger)	Comedy	Dec. 20..	2,000
Present Arms (Wiley)	Comedy	Dec. 27..	2,000
Red Age (Sullivan)	Drama	Jan. 3..	2,000
Ponce de Leon	Hysterical history	Jan. 3..	1,000
Prehistoric Man	Hysterical history	Jan. 3..	1,000
Sign of the Cactus (Hoxie)	Western	Jan. 10..	4,938
Ridin' Pretty (Desmond-Forrest)	Western com.-dr.	Jan. 17..	4,812
Looking Down (Wiley)	Comedy	Jan. 24..	2,000

VITAGRAPH

Between Friends (Tellegen-Nilsson)	Society dr.	Apr. 26..	6,936
Virtuous Liars (Allen-Powell)	Society dr.	Apr. 19..	5,650
One Law For The Woman (Landis)	Mining camp		6,000
Code of the Wilderness (Bowers-Calhoun)	Modern west.	July 12..	6,480
Behold This Woman (Rich)	Movie romance	Aug. 2..	6,425
Captain Blood (Star Cast)	Sabatini romance	Sep. 20..	10,680
Clean Heart or Cruelties of Life	Modern dr.	Sep. 27..	7,950
Greater Than Marriage (Tellegen-Daw)	Theatre dr.
Beloved Brute (De La Motte)	Melodrama	Nov. 22..	6,719
Two Shall Be Born (Novak-Harlan)	Drama
Pampered Youth (Landis-Calhoun)	Drama
Redeeming Sin (Nazimova-Tellegen)	Apache dr.
Barree, Son of Kazan	Special
Fearbound (Daw-Welch)	Melodrama
Steele of Royal Mounted	Special
In the Garden of Charity	Special
Happy Warrior	Special
Alibi	Special
Road That Led Home	Special
Unknown Story	Special

WARNER BROTHERS

Conductor 1492 (Hines)	Comedy-drama	Feb. 23..	7,080
Daddies (Belasco)	Comedy-drama	Feb. 23..	7,228
George Washington, Jr. (Barry)	Comedy-drama	Mar. 22..	5,674
Beau Brummel (J. Barrymore)	Romantic drama	Apr. 12..	10,930
Broadway After Dark (Menjou)	Comedy-drama	May 31..	7,019
Babbitt (all-star)	Character drama	July 1..	7,900
Being Respectable (all-star)	Society drama	Aug. 16..	6,040
Three Women (all-star)	Society drama	Sep. 27..	8,200
How to Educate a Wife (star cast)	Society drama		6,000
Her Marriage Vow (all-star)	Society drama		7,100
Cornered (all-star)	Society drama		7,300
Lovers' Lane (all-star)	Character drama	Nov. 29..	5,100
Tenth Woman (all-star)	Society drama		6,250
Find Your Man (Rin-Tin-Tin)	Melodrama	Oct. 4..	7,300
Lover of Camille (all-star)	Romantic drama	Nov. 29..	7,180
This Woman (Rich)	Society drama	Nov. 1..	7,100
Dark Swan (Prevost-Blue-Chadwick)	Drama	Dec. 6..	6,800
Her Marriage Vow (Blue)	Family life dr.	Dec. 20..	7,180
Lighthouse by the Sea (Rin-Tin-Tin)	Melodrama	Jan. 10..	6,700
Narrow Street (D. Devore-Matt Moore)	Light comedy	Jan. 17..	6,700

MISCELLANEOUS

ARTCLASS PICTURES CORP.

Rough Ridin' (B. Roosevelt)	Thrill dr.	Apr. 26..	4,670
Rarin' to Go (Buffalo Bill, Jr.)	Thrill dr.	Aug. 2..	5,000
Battling Buddy (B. Roosevelt)	Thrill dr.	Sep. 13..	4,000
Biff Bang Buddy (B. Roosevelt)	Thrill dr.	Sep. 20..	4,500
Hutchison Series	Stunt dramas
Fast and Fearless (Buffalo Bill, Jr.)	Thrill dr.	Sep. 27..	4,500
Walloping Wallace (B. Roosevelt)	Thrill western	Oct. 11..	4,700
Hard Hittin' Hamilton (Buf. Bill, Jr.)	Thrill western	Oct. 18..	5,000
Rip Roarin' Bobert (B. Roosevelt)	Thrill dr.		4,600
Cyclone Buddy (B. Roosevelt)	Thrill dr.		4,650
Gold and Grit (B. Roosevelt)	Thrill dr.		4,650
Bringing Home the Bacon (Buffalo Bill)	Thrill dr.		4,650
After Six Days	Biblical spec.		10,000
Woman Who Believed (Ann Luther)			5,700
Deerslayer (J. W. Kerrigan)			5,000

BANNER PRODUCTIONS

Truth About Women (Hampton)	Society drama	Oct. 25..	5,600
Man Without a Heart (Harlan)	Society drama		6,000
Those Who Judge (P. R. Miller)	Society melo.		5,700
Daughters Who Pay (all-star)	Society drama		5,800
Empty Hearts (all-star)	Society drama		5,860

C. B. C.

Innocence (Nilsson)	Theatrical dr.		5,923
Discontented Husbands (J. Kirkwood)	Marriage dr.		5,421
Pal o' Mine (Rich)	Romance		6,070
Traffic in Hearts (R. Frazer)	Social uplift		5,549
Battling Fool (R. Fairbanks)	Prize fight		4,975
Foolish Virgin (E. Hammerstein)	Social drama		5,900
Price She Paid (A. Rubens)	Marriage dr.		5,957
Fight for Honor (Fairbanks-Novak)	Railroad dr.		4,570
Midnight Express (Hammerstein)	Railroad melo.	Dec. 6..	5,967

C. C. BURR

	Kind of Picture	Review.	Feet
Speed Spook (J. Hines)	Thrill drama	Aug. 30..	6,000
New School Teacher (Bennett)	Drama		5,900
Average Woman (Pauline Garon)	Drama	Feb. 9..	6,400
Lend Me Your Husband (Kenyon)	Drama		6,700
Youth for Sale (S. Holmquist)	Drama	Oct. 18..	6,500
The Early Bird (Hines)	Comedy	Dec. 27..	7,000
Cracker Jack (Johnny Hines)	Drama		6,500

CHADWICK PICTURES CORP.

Fire Patrol (all-star)	Melo. of Sea	May 24..	6,600
Meddling Women (L. Barrymore)	Dom. melo.	Oct. 18..	6,400
Painted Flapper (all-star)	Comedy-drama	Oct. 25..	5,600
I Am the Man (L. Barrymore)	Dom. melo.	Nov. 1..	7,600
Flattery (Bowers)	Political dr.	Nov. 8..	6,000
Tomboy (Devore-Rawlinson)	Melodramatic com.	Jan. 3..	6,000

J. J. FLEMING PROD.

Shackles of Fear (Ferguson)	Melodrama		5,000
Trail of Vengeance (Ferguson)	N. W. Police		5,000
Phantom Shadows (Ferguson)	Melodrama		5,000
Scarlet and Gold (Ferguson)	N. W. Police		5,000

INDEPENDENT PICTURES CORP.

Border Justice (Bill Cody)	Western dr.	Nov. 8..	5,452
Barriers of the Law (Desmond-Holmes)	Bootlegging dr.	Nov. 29..	4,900
Dangerous Pleasure
Bill Cody series of eight	Stunt dramas
A Desperate Adventure (F. Farnum)	Western dr.		4,800
Two-Fisted Tenderfoot (F. Farnum)	Western dr.		5,050
Baffled (F. Farnum)	Western dr.		4,940
Bandit Tamer (E. Farnum)	Comedy west.		5,240
Barriers of the Law (Desmond-Holmes)	Society dr.		4,980
Billy, The Kid (F. Farnum)	Western		4,790
Blood and Steel (Desmond-Holmes)	Society dr.		5,000
Calibre 45 (F. Farnum)	Western dr.		4,950
Courage (F. Farnum)	Western dr.		5,020
In Spider's Web (Alice Dean)	Melodrama		6,000
Moonshine (B. Cody)	Western		4,980

LUMAS FILM CORP.

Black Lightning (Thunder, the dog)	Dog dr.	Nov. 8..	5,500

RAYART

Midnight Secrets (Larkin)	Drama
Street of Tears (Santschi)	Drama
For Another Woman (Harlan)	Drama
Pell Street Mystery (Larkin)	Drama
Trail Dust (Dunbar)	Drama
Lightning Romance (Howes)	Drama
Battling Brewster (Farnum)	Drama
Easy Money (All-Star)	Drama
Butterfly Comedies (Gloria Joy)

RED SEAL PICTURES CORP.

Marvels of Motion	Slow motion	Nov. 1..	650
Animated Hair Cartoons	Novelty	Nov. 1..	300
Vaudeville	Cartoon	Nov. 1..	1,000
Film Facts	Magazine	Nov. 1..	750
Peeps Into Puzzle-land	Novelty	Nov. 1..	750
Out of the Inkwell series	Cartoons
Vacation (Out of Inkwell)	Cartoon	Nov. 22..	1,000
Animated Hair Cartoons	Marcus cartoon	Nov. 22..	1,000
Should a Husband Tell	Gems of screen	Nov. 22..	1,000
Film Facts	Magazine	Nov. 22..	2,000
League of Nations (Out of Inkwell)	Cartoon	Nov. 29..	1,000
The Cure (Out of Inkwell)	Cartoon	Dec. 13..	1,000
Zoo's Who's Who	Gem of the screen	Dec. 27..	1,000
Film Facts	Magazine	Jan. 10..	1,000
Marvels of Motion (Issue B)	Magazine	Jan. 17..	1,000
Animated Hair Cartoons	Novelty	Jan. 24..	300
Cartoon Factory	Cartoon nov.	Jan. 24..	1,000
Mother Goose Land	Cartoon	Jan. 24..	1,000

RUSSELL PRODUCTIONS

Passing of Wolf MacLean (All-Star)	Western melo.	Nov. 29..	4,712
Courageous Coward (Jack Meehan)	Western	Dec. 6..	4,052

WM. STEINER PROD.

Payable on Demand (Maloney)	Western dr.		4,667
Lawless Men (N. Hart)	Western dr.		4,816
Black Gold (Morrison)	Western dr.		4,697
Poison (Hutchison)	Stunt dr.	Sep. 13..	5,000
Turned Up (Hutchison)	Stunt dr.	Sep. 27..	4,900
Riding Double (Maloney)	Western dr.		5,008
Tucker's Top Hand (N. Hart)	Western dr.		4,618
Rainbow Rangers (Morrison)	Western dr.		4,982
Perfect Alibi (Maloney)	Western dr.		5,108
Left Hand Brand (N. Hart)	Western dr.		4,884
Pot Luck Pards (Morrison)	Western dr.		4,927
Virtue's Revolt (Thornton)	Stage melodrama	Oct. 11..	5,175
On Probation (Edith Thornton)	Drama	Dec. 13..	5,900
Across the Dead Line	Western		5,000
Always Ridin' to Win	Western		5,000
Hidden Menace	Stunt dr.		5,000
Branded a Thief	Western		5,060
Verdict of the Desert	Western		4,745
Valley of Vanishing Men	Western		4,652

USLA COMPANY

Crown Productions
Ermine Productions
W. D. Russell Productions
Sable Productions
Seal Productions

M. J. WINKLER

Alice Cans the Cannibals	Novelty com.	Jan. 3..	1,000

THE value and importance of correct theatre seating and the strong influence of comfortable and artistic theatre chairs in winning public favor, have been somewhat overlooked in the past. As manufacturers and distributors of theatre seating, we have naturally been restrained from stressing its importance too much because it would be construed as selfish and interested in motive.

There is no doubt, however, but that the tendency in the theatre world in the last few years has been overwhelmingly toward greater and greater luxuriousness in theatre interiors and to more cultural and esthetic refinements in theatre equipment.

This movement has in fact become so firmly established as now to be a thing universally accepted by the theatre going public. Luxury and comfort are now quite taken for granted. The public in its subconscious mind has come to expect elegance, comfort and beauty in the surroundings of the theatre and playhouse, and it can not be fully satisfied with anything less.

It has no doubt been this urge for beauty, luxury and perfect ease in the theatre that influenced over 500 theatre managers during 1924 to secure from us new seating for their theatres, insisting on chairs artistic in design, thoroughly comfortable also to sit in, and harmonizing with surroundings.

Where desired, the reseating was accomplished by us without the interruption of business for a single day. In many instances, too, reseating not only meant a decided improvement in the attractiveness of the entire theatre, but by skillful rearrangement of the seating, an increase in seating capacity was secured as well.

Our Theatre Seating Engineering Department is at your service for expert counsel and advice without obligation at any time.

American Seating Company

NEW YORK	CHICAGO	BOSTON	PHILADELPHIA
640-119 W. 40th St.	4 East Jackson Blvd.	77-A Canal St.	1211-L Chestnut St.

PROJECTION

EDITED BY F. H. RICHARDSON

From President Canavan

The letter from William Canavan, International President of the I. A. T. S. E. & M. P. M. O,, published in this issue, appears here with his full approval and consent. I wrote Brother Canavan, asking his opinion of two things recently published in this department. His reply was such that I very naturally desired to publish it. I called him up and asked him if there was any objection to such publication. His reply was: "Not the slightest. Anything I say I am perfectly willing to stand by."

Gentlemen, permit me to say that there spoke an HONEST, STRAIGHTFORWARD MAN! It is conclusive proof that your International President is outside the ranks of those political shysters who blow hot or cold, according to which they believe best serves their own PERSONAL ends at the moment.

It is the pronouncement of the type of man who can and will lead the organization into right paths, and through those paths to solid, substantial, lasting progress.

Not Mere "Bull"

I feel that it is hardly necessary to tell those who really know me that the foregoing is NOT mere "bull"—words spoken in favor of Canavan merely because Canavan has been kind enough to speak kindly of me and my work. I believe he has spoken as he has for no other reason on earth than that he KNOWS what I have always been, and still am striving to do, and knowing he has had the moral courage to set forth his views, even though aware that such views will be resented by that rapidly decreasing element of the men who are unalterably (unalterably thus far, at any rate) opposed to progress.

Former international officers also have approved of my work, and have many times privately told me so, but they all lacked the MORAL COURAGE to say it openly, because they thought such views would not be altogether popular. Aside from the single instance in which President Shay gave me some measure of credit in his report to the I. A. Convention for killing the notorious "Work or Fight" order of the Government, President Canavan is the first International President to accord to my work any manner of public recognition or approval whatsoever.

Richardson and Canavan Disagree

President Canavan and I disagree on some points. He holds that I ought not to publicly "roast" either individuals or unions. That I should use kindness instead of the "Big Stick." We had many arguments on that point.

For the first time I am now ready to admit that his position in this matter is largely justified. "Largely," I said, mind you, NOT altogether. It is largely true because the calibre of the men in projection rooms has undergone a very decided change, and that change has been in the nature of a vast improvement.

Time was, and not so long ago, when the only argument which won any considerable attention, was the argument which held a sting. The sting made them mad, PROVOKED ARGUMENT, and in the process of argument MADE THEM THINK. They cursed Richardson roundly and soundly but in so doing they were stirred up and MADE TO THINK, and there was always a percentage of men, however small, who UNDERSTOOD WHAT WAS BEHIND IT ALL, and these men (ofttimes rather cautiously, for it was not always safe to offer opposing argument, or to support Richardson) rubbed in the argumentive salt which made the wound smart, made them more angry and MADE THEM THINK HARDER.

In those days the great mass of the men were mere machine operators. Some of them were only mediocre, even as machine attendants.

Today the opposite is true in most sections, and the change is rapidly taking place in other sections where progress has been less rapid. The machine attendant, or "operator" is rapidly passing from the scene. Men are coming to understand that the projection of motion pictures involves far more than merely the operation of a machine—that the machine operation is, in fact, merely incidental to motion picture projection.

Just to what extent my own work is responsible for this improvement I leave others to say. At least I have used such talents as I have possessed in the way I have believed to be most likely to produce results along the lines of advancement in motion picture projection, and for what I firmly believed to be for the best ultimate good of the men engaged therein, and for the motion picture industry.

In conclusion I desire to convey to William Canavan, International President I. A. T. S. E. & M. P. M. O., my sincere thanks and appreciation of and for his words of kindly friendship and commendation. I also desire to say to him, and through him to the organization membership as a whole, that my belief and faith in the I. A. T. S. E. & M. P. M. O. is and always has been steadfast; that every act of mine, where it was concerned, has been such as I believed absolutely would ultimately redound to the best interests of both the men and the organization; that my services are always at its command in all things which represent right, justice and progress.

Bluebook School

Question No. 206—Name the glare spots most commonly found in theatres; also is there any real necessity for glare spots?

Question No. 207—Tell us how it is possible to place a clock on the front wall, and even near the screen, and enable the audience to tell the time readily, without creating a glare spot.

Question No. 208—Explain how exit signs may be made conspicuous, without being glare spots.

Question No. 209—Is the fact that individuals of the audience do not enter complaint of glare spots proof that they are not objectionable? Explain fully, so that we may see just what study YOU have made of such matters.

Question No. 210—Tell us what the various effects of glare spots are in the way of injury to the show. Think well over this one. It involves several things, and without the knowledge necessary to a complete answer you are unable to discuss the matter intelligently with your manager.

International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employes and Moving Picture Machine Operators of the United States and Canada, 110 West 40th Street, New York City.

New York, N. Y., Dec. 30, 1924.

My Dear Richardson:—First of all let me express my appreciation for your kindness in sending me the two articles taken from the Projection Department of the Moving Picture World, of which you are the editor.

Now as to the articles in question:

Regarding the first, captioned "My Opinion," which treats of the subjects discussed by ourselves on several occasions, it is my opinion that your answer is more typical of the real Richardson as I know him than is any article written by yourself which it has ever been my good fortune to read. As Grover Cleveland once said, we are confronted with a fact, not a theory, and we must meet conditions as they arise.

On many occasions projectionists' locals are compelled in the interest of harmony to accept into membership men who are lacking in union qualities; oftentimes men who they feel have no regard for the allegiance obligation required by the union. And again, on a few occasions, in order to settle controversies, they have been compelled to reinstate former members who had outrageously betrayed their oath of allegiance as well as all trade union ethics. All of this they were, naturally unwilling to do, but insistence on the part of managers necessitated such action.

Following in this train of thought it is an easy matter to understand that managers oftentimes insist upon a settlement necessitating the acceptance into membership of men lacking in qualities that should be possessed by high-grade projectionists. They do not do this because of their desire to have such men, but economic necessity compels them to accept these unwelcome compromises.

Then, too, your suggestion that these incompetent men be classified by the locals is generally carried out, unconsciously, perhaps, but nevertheless done. All in all, the matter has been well stated, in my opinion.

Under the caption, "Portrait Group of Well Known Celebrities," you call attention to some twenty infirmities possessed by projectionists and to some extent even I am compelled to admit your observations are justified; and I say this with full knowledge that you are aware that the vast majority of our members are not scaled down to this particular level.

All the efforts you have put forth in the interest of better projection, better pay and idealism within the craft have been of untold benefit to our membership and the discussions you have aroused on many occasions have caused men to think; and when men think they act. The result has been a contribution to the industry as a whole which is wholly creditable and for which you have just reason to be proud.

I trust that your further efforts in your chosen field will be productive of unbounded benefits to those whom you serve and my New Year wish to you is that your success may be unbounded and your personal welfare will have all the advantages that can possibly be bestowed by a Divine Providence.

Personally I am always proud of your work, and to borrow from Robert Louis Stevenson, may I not say "Of what may a man be proud if he is not proud of his friends?"

Most cordially and sincerely yours,
CANAVAN.

The Lens Chart

Two men whose envelope imprint declare them to be operators of a theatre, but whose letter is written on the stationery of a projectionist a local union and whose questions cause me to presume them to be motion picture projectionists, and not theatre operators, write thusly:

Am writing with regard to the lens charts just lately received. Desire to use them, and believe that with your assistance we can get more light on the screen. The point is, I am not confident of my ability to apply the chart in the best way, and will advise as to just how far I have got, which may save me the trouble of sending lenses, condensers, etc., back to the factory. (Condensers are "lenses." We differentiate by designating them as "collector" and "converging" lens, or condenser lenses, AND (or) projection lens.—Ed.)

The conclusion I arrive at, as a major point, is that the two Y distances (meaning the Y distance for each projector?—Ed.) must be the same, if we are to get 100 per cent. efficiency, and that in order that they be the same we must have certain size lenses (projection lenses.—Ed.) and condensers.

Good Arrangement

Here is what I would call a good optical arrangement, according to the charts. Is it right—that is for the job where I expect to use it? I have selected first, as a basis upon which to work, a Y distance of 17 inches, and propose securing lenses (Projection lenses.—Ed.) and condensers to fit this distance. My transverter delivers 70 amperes at 60 volts. My carbon combination is 3/8 inch negative and 7/8 inch positive. Carrying 70 amperes my carbon crater, which is approximately 29/64ths of an inch in diameter, would, I believe, require a 17-inch as the crater Y distance. (The crater distance is the distance crater to face of collector lens. There is no such thing as a "crater Y distance," but a Y distance, which is from face of converging lens to film.—Ed.)

The projection lenses are to be either 2 7/16 or 2 1/2 inches at the smallest point. (meaning that will be their free diameter.—Ed.), which I believe would demand a 17 inch distance.

I have selected, to go with the foregoing conditions, plano condensers sized 6½ and 11½, (presumably meaning that you have selected a 6½ inch focal length collector lens, and an 11½ inch focal length converging lens.—Ed.) The meniscus may be better, but I cannot decide what combination to adopt, hence the plano.

Also I propose securing a shutter shaft extension for Power's machines (Power's projectors.—Ed.), and placing the rotating shutter where the light rays apparently cross (at plane of aerial image.—Ed.), which, under the conditions named, would be exactly nine inches from the face of the projection lens (presumably meaning the front surface of the element of the projection lens next the screen.—Ed.) In this position I doubtless could reduce the width of the shutter blades, which latter will be two-winged, made from cardboard.

The lenses will be Gundlach, direct from the factory, and matched—size 6 3/4 inches. (I think you must mean that will be their equivalent focus.—Ed.) My picture is too small, but there is no new curtain (Meaning screen.—Ed.) in sight as yet. The throw (projection distance.—Ed.) is from the balcony down, and is approximately 140 feet.

No Bluebook

My good friend surely you have not got a Bluebook, if you have one you have not studied it to very good purpose. For goodness sake learn the correct nomenclature of your profession. I'm quite sure had you mentioned your projection room, it would have shown up in your letter as a "booth." Your lenses might, from your nomenclature, be taken as 6¾ inches in diameter. You have a Transverter. Why call it a Transverter machine? Certainly it is a "machine," just as your projectors are. Wake up, man. This is 1925—NOT 1910, and things projectional have changed since that fourteen-year-off day when we had "machines," "booths," "coops," "O'praters," "throws," etc. No, I'm NOT "roasting" you—just trying to get you to realize that projection is ADVANCING, and that the old, silly, shop-worn and rather idiotic names of yesteryear are being dropped by all men who take pride in their PROFESSION.

Evidently you have not yet quite grasped the underlying, basic principles upon which Mr. Griffith constructed the lens charts. They are designed to do either one of two things, viz: advise you as to just what you ought to have in the way of a condenser and projection lens free diameter, or tell you how to get the best possible results from what you already have.

The basic thing is the crater distance (distance crater to face of corrector lens), because experience has taught us that under average conditions of lamphouse ventilation a crater of given diameter may be burned at a certain minimum distance from the collector lens without excessive lens breakage, AND this is of enormous importance, in light conservation, as you may see by referring to page 162 of your Bluebook, if you have one. Mr. Griffith built the lens charts based upon this possible minimum distance, and that is the first thing the user of the charts should consider.

Your Problems

You say you have a crater approximately 29/64ths of an inch in diameter. I have told you all, time, time and again to send impressions of two or three of your craters, made by pressing them on clean white paper, preferably with a blotter under it, the latter merely serving to insure a good, clean impression. I can then measure the exact diameter, and there will be no "approximately" to it.

Examining chart A, we find by looking in the 6½—6½ condenser combination vertical column, that such a crater (ordinary arc, which I presume you have, as you have said nothing about high intensity and have named an ordinary arc carbon combination) may be maintained at 3 3/16 inches crater distance without excessive lens breakage. This we find by consulting column Y, calls for a 12½ inch Y distance, which we instaintly see is too long for a 6¾ E. F. projection lens, which we may assume to have about 5½ inch working distance.

(Continued on following page)

"You want Phelco!"

Smooth and quiet burning
Bright light
Steady arc
Slow burning rate
Long Condenser life

Charles W. Phellis & Co.
Incorporated
130 West 42nd Street New York
For Canada: Keystone Trading Co., Ltd., 10 Ste. Sophie Lane, Montreal

Universal MOTOR CO.
2 K.W. to 25 K.W. Four Cylinder
ELECTRIC PLANTS
mean that no small town need be without its "movie". No theatre, already established, need suffer the handicap of consistently unreliable current. No city playhouse need face the terrific loss that goes with even a single darkhouse. Traveling exhibitors can now produce the finest pictures — clear and flickerless. More "Universals" are used for permanent or emergency exhibiting purposes than any other make. No other so quiet, compact, simple or sturdy.
UNIVERSAL MOTOR CO.
15 Ceape St. Oshkosh, Wis.
Kindly state your problem fully when writing for FREE Catalog

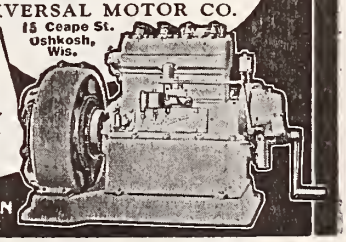

ILLUSTRATION SHOWS 4 KW.

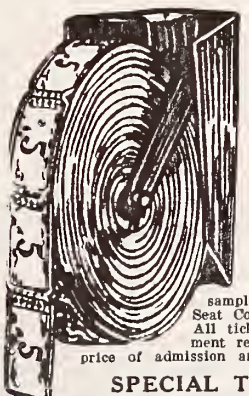


SPECIAL ROLL TICKETS

Your own special Ticket, any colors, accurately numbered; every roll guaranteed. Coupon Tickets for Prize Drawings; 5,000 for $7.00. Prompt shipments. Cash with the order. Get the samples. Send diagram for Reserved Seat Coupon Tickets, serial or dated. All tickets must conform to Government regulation and bear established price of admission and tax paid.

SPECIAL TICKET PRICES

Five Thousand	$3.50
Ten Thousand	6.00
Fifteen Thousand	7.00
Twenty-five Thousand	9.00
Fifty Thousand	12.50
One Hundred Thousand	18.00

National Ticket Co. Shamokin, Pa.

(Continued from preceding page)

If we used two 6½ inch plano convex lenses for collector and converging condenser elements, we would therefore be sure to have a light beam which would not nearly all enter the projection lens, as you may see by examining the drawing I have made to scale, in which A is the converging condenser lens, E the 2½ inch diameter projection lens at 5½ inch working distance (which last may or may not be correct), B the aperture plate of the projector, D the 29/32 inch wide aperture, and C the spot. I find by laying it out diagramatically that you will need about a 16 inch Y distance in order to get the light all into the lens, using a plano convex condensing system.

With this you might or might not gain by placing the rotating shutter at the plane of the aerial image. You would have to find the aerial image and measure the size of the same to determine that point.

Examining the lens chart (In the diagram I have assumed a 4.25 inch condenser free opening, whereas the charts are based on the full 4.5 inch lens) we find that opposite the 16-inch Y distance the 29/64 crater diameter is found to be well served either by a 6½ collector and a 10½ converging, or a 6½ collector and an 11½ converging lens, the first of which provides a 4 9/16, and the last named a 5 1/16 inch crater distance, which means a lot in light utilization. Personally I would try out the 10½ converging lens, if I proposed to use a plano convex at all. Be sure to space your condenser lenses not to exceed 1/16 of an inch apart.

However, since examination showed me the wastefulness of such a system—long crater distance, which means heavy light loss, and large diameter projection lens, which means difficulty in securing a clear focus all over the screen if you have a heavy projection angle, AND a wide shutter master blade, I would not consider the plano convex condenser combination at all, but would install Cinephor condensers. They cost more, true, but will be very much better in every way, therefore will be a most excellent investment. If it were I, I would have the Bausch and Lomb Company, Rochester, New York, makers of Cinephor, supply the entire optical system for your projectors. It is better to have one company supply it all—much better. Just give them the exact distance lens to screen, exact width of desired picture, your crater diameter and let them do the rest.

Later

Later: I submitted the foregoing to Brother Griffith, who remarks:

This seems to be O. K., except that he might use 3/4 positive instead of 7/8 (My error, I did not notice, or forgot the 7/8 carbon when commenting.—Ed). and thus have a smaller diameter crater, use a shorter crater distance and use a 6 1/2 collector an 8 1/2 converging lens plano convex, of course, with a 16 inch Y distance. This would improve his light as against even Cinephor, but his picture is too large to get really good results with 70 amperes, unless it be handled very efficiently.

True, but if he goes above 70, then it is at the expense of very great waste in light, hence in electric power. By efficient work I believe he can get very good results with 70 amperes, even with his present picture size.

Pieces O'Ten

Walter H. Johnson, Projectionist Park Theatre, Champaign, Ill., says:

Dear Brother Richardson: For a long while I've wanted to get the Bluebook, but the necessary collateral has eluded my grasp. Thanks to old Santa Claus, however, I now have two pieces o' ten, which came into my possession most unexpectedly, and six of one goes for the Bluebook, the other I'll turn over to the good wife "To have and to hold until she sees fit to separate herself therefrom—which won't be long, I'll bet.

We have here a county institution for tubercular patients. These patients are not allowed to leave the premises until the case is pronounced arrested.

The medical staff do all within their power to provide entertainment, etc., but have lacked in the matter of motion pictures. With the aid of many interested friends, one projector (Simplex) was purchased, equipped with Mazda, and installed by a brother projectionist and myself. The theatres supply the program, and since the sick ones cannot come to the theatre, why we just take the theatre to them. They show their appreciation in many ways. That's how I came into possession of one of the pieces o' tens, BUT, Brother Richardson, the real thrill comes from watching the faces of these patients as they watch the pictures.

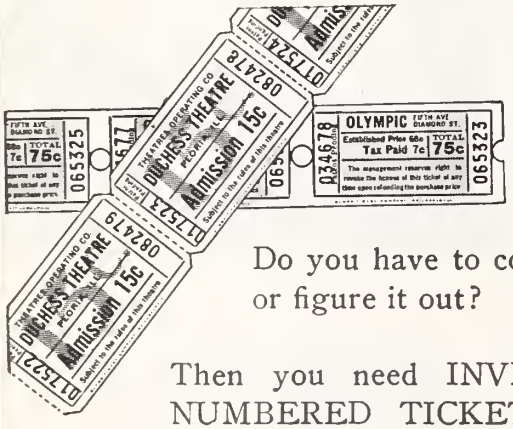
Brother Johnson says more, but I've used this part of the letter because of the last sentence. One does, I think, get a very substantial reward from having helped those who have met misfortune. I can imagine the feelings one has from just watching the pleasure given those ill with so dread a scourge may be far greater reward than mere money. I congratulate Brother Johnson. Now you have the Bluebook, why not get in on the Bluebook School questions?

GTC

GLOBE TICKET COMPANY PHILADELPHIA

GLOBE TICKET COMPANY NEW YORK

Check Up



How many tickets have you in stock?

Do you have to count rolls, or figure it out?

Then you need INVENTORY NUMBERED TICKETS that will tell you at a glance exactly how many you have.

We will gladly send you samples and more information about them.

Globe Ticket Company

Specialists in Tickets and Checks Since 1873

116 N. 12th St. Philadelphia, Pa.

SAN FRANCISCO GLOBE TICKET COMPANY

LOS ANGELES GLOBE TICKET COMPANY

Complying with the law at a profit

Patrons of your theatre know that DIXIE Coin Vending Machines provide them with clean, fresh, glass shaped, individual drinking cups, for which they gladly pay.

The actual profit from DIXIE Coin Vendors in the foyer, lobby and retiring rooms, is due the theatre owner for this courtesy of supplying a needed convenience, even though the common drinking glass is prohibited by law.

The column of snowy-white DIXIE Cups easily seen, immediately attracts the attention of the discriminating patron whose appreciation of this health guarding convenience is reflected in that greatest of all assets—good will.

Complete information upon request.

A fresh cup with every drink.

Individual Drinking Cup Co. Inc.

Original Makers of Paper Cups

Easton, Pa. New York, N. Y.

With branches at Philadelphia, Chicago, Baltimore, Los Angeles.

Nowadays— they drink from

INDIVIDUAL

DIXIE CUPS

The Fight Is Won

At last I feel able to say, with every confidence, that the fight for the adoption of the term "Motion Picture Projectionist," and the discarding of the "Moving Picture Machine Operator," is definitely won. All over this country and Canada progressive local unions, city, state and provincial governments are adopting the term "Projectionist" officially.

Just now a ticket and an invitation arrived from Manchester, N. H., accompanied by a letter from Brother S. F. Cooley, Projectionist Lyric Theatre, Manchester, N. H. The ticket reads "Second Annual Grand Concert and Ball, Under the Auspices of Theatrical Stage Employes and Motion Picture Projectionists, Local Union 195, I. A. T. S. E. & M. P. M. O., and A. F. of Musicians, L. U. No. 349." The affair will be given February third.

Ha! Ha! Ha!

Recently I was given a hearty laugh while attending the testimonial dinner given to Mike Campbell, Supervisor of Projection for Loew. The menus bore the title "Projectionists," and when Campbell arose to speak he said: "Mr. Richardson has given us the title Projectionist. We deserve it, and I want all you Loew operators to"—and right there he was interrupted by a gale of laughter, and paused in some confusion to explain how habit is so strong that we just follow old usage automatically.

Toward the end of the one-page letter accompanying the ticket, brother Cooley says: "I'd better stop or the bunch will think I'm trying to play 'hero'."

I don't really believe there was any danger of that, friend Cooley, but the remark reminds me of what a wonderful lot more help this department might be, were not there so many men deterred from writing and assisting in its work by some such feeling as this. They fear criticism or ridicule if they try to help, hence we are all deprived of much which would be of real value. I know exactly how they feel, and it is too darned bad. They think those who either can't or WON'T write, will sneer at them because they do, and the pitiful part of it is that it is evenly and exactly true.

Oh well, anyhow it also is true that not one single, solitary time since the inception of this department, February 19, 1910, there has ever been a time, even for one issue, when there was not more than ample material on hand to fill its columns.

Why More?

Why do I want more, then?

A fair question. It is because of the fact that many of those thousands of projectionists who do not write, unquestionably have ideas and various "slants" on projection problems which would be of great value, were they laid before our readers.

But the prize comic is the not unnumerous ones who don't write this department for the utterly silly reason that they hurt me personally by withholding some bit of information, or projection lore, in their possession. Sounds idiotic, doesn't it? But there are lots who, consciously or unconsciously, have that idea in the back of their minds. Such utterly foolish procedure hurts no one in any degree whatsoever, but it does do this: it withholds information which very often would help a brother projectionist, AND it operates in some degree to hold back progress in projection.

There, men of Manchester, see what a sermon your kindly invitation led to. I'm really sorry that I don't feel able to pungle up ten or twelve dollars for railway fare for a single night of enjoyment, even though it gave me the privilege of meeting yourself and the men of Manchester, but—there you are.

Strong For It

William Burnette, who has been playing hookey from the Bluebook school, sends a mess of answers, his picture, and says:

Well, here I go again. I just needed a rest—or my nerves did. Promise it won't happen again, and now that I'm out of the deep, dar-uck hole, maybe we should investigate and find out just why Dobson, Bennowitz, Oldham and Hobdell are still absent from classes.

The Bluebook School is THE thing, and I'm strong for it. I certainly am learning a few things alrighty right—about some things I did not even know existed before, and much more about things I already knew something of.

Thought sure you would include Centerville, your birth place, on your trip west, and had hopes you might get up this way. If ever you come this way I'm going to hunt you down, and that's that.

Glad you're back on the job again, and are going to stick. I did want to visit Centerville awfully, but it couldn't be done. Hope we'll meet up some day. Most likely we will. Meanwhile be good, treat the wife well—oh well, fairly well anyhow, wash behind your ears every morning and DON'T play hookey any more. As to those others—well, I guess they must be getting old 'n lazy.

Get Maximum Screen Results

Send for the Brand New

LENS CHART

By JOHN GRIFFITHS

Here is an accurate chart which belongs in every projection room where carbon arcs are used. It will enable you to get maximum screen results with the equipment you are now using.

The new Lens Chart (size 15" x 20") printed on heavy Ledger Stock paper, suitable for framing, will be sent to you in a strong mailing tube, insuring proper protection. Get it NOW!

Price $1.00

Postpaid

Chalmers Publishing Co.

516 Fifth Avenue New York City

Bausch & Lomb

CINEPHOR

Projection Lenses

Series I	Series II
Outside Diameter 2 1/32-in. (51.6mm)	Outside Diameter 2 23/32-in. (69.3mm)
Effective Aperture 1 23/32-in. (43.5mm)	Effective Aperture 2 7/16-in. (62mm)
Fifteen Different Focal Lengths in ¼-in. steps from 4 to 7 inches and in ½-in. steps to 8 inches.	Ten Long Focal Lengths in steps of ½-in. from 5¾ to 7 inches and in ½-in. steps to 9 inches.
Average price, $35.00	Average price, $65.00

Write us for information and literature

Bausch & Lomb Optical Co.

254 Freeman Street, Rochester, N. Y.

New York Chicago Boston London
San Francisco Washington Frankfurt

Film Damage?

What's the Real Cause?

By F. H. RICHARDSON

The accompanying photographs were prepared by Earl K. Dennison, in the Famous Players-Lasky laboratories, under the personal supervision of Mr. Dennison who has prepared captions expressing his idea concerning each photograph, and the lesson it teaches.

What Mr. Dennison evidently meant to say in his caption for Plate 16 is that this sort of splice is the result of pure carelessness, which may or may not always be strictly correct. I would myself call it the result of trying to match sprocket holes by hand. instead of using the register pins of a film splicer.

It not infrequently happens, in theatres where but one man is on duty in the projection room, that circumstances compel him to make a very hurried splice, and when this is done we may just about as well expect to find Gloria Swanson making love to a street sweeper in real life, as to expect to find sprocket holes accurately match by hand. It might happen, sure. Matching sprocket holes accurately by hand is a hard thing to do under the best conditions.

The moral is, USE A FILM SPLICER, or anyhow use register pins. They will help a lot. If your boss is foolish enough to refuse you a splicer, you can make register pins yourself by the use of a piece of board, six small nails, a file and careful work in locating and filing the nails.

There seems to be little to add, except to say that a splice is always a possible trouble point, and if poorly made it is an almost certain one. Poorly made splices have cost the motion picture industry literally tens of millions of dollars in film damage. The department and the handbooks have been setting that fact before you for many years. It seems that at least we woke up some one else, or they have awakened themselves.

That is good. Let us all stay awake for the future, and cease from outraging the films upon the mechanical perfection of which every one, including the paying public must depend for excellence of results upon the screen.

I have myself stood in a projection room and watched a projectionist of the Armstrong brand splice a film by the-easiest-way-is-the-best-way fingers-for-register-pins-and-film-press method, and upon uttering protest, have heard this in reply: "I should worry! I ain't got to use um any more."

And I have been literally cursed and abused for roasting that sort of animal—who is fast giving place to real projectionists—men who DO care what damage they do to the films owned by an exchange, and who do care whether or not the splices are punkly bum or not, even though they themselves have finished with the films.

Get Your Copy of Richardson's Bluebook on Projection NOW Postage Prepaid, $6.00

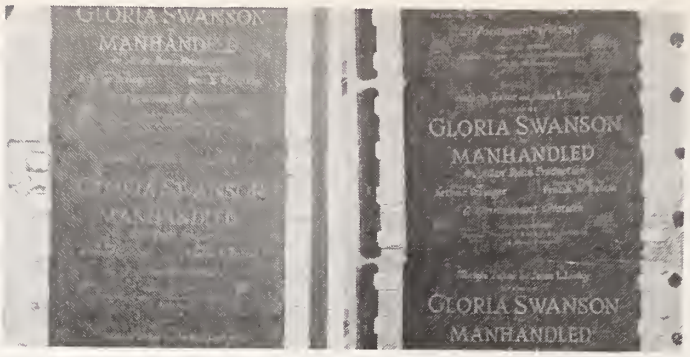

FIGURE 16

Caption by Mr. Dennison: This plate plainly illustrates how the perforations fail to register. The result is pure carelessness. This form of splice always causes a bad jump on the screen, at the same time damaging the film.

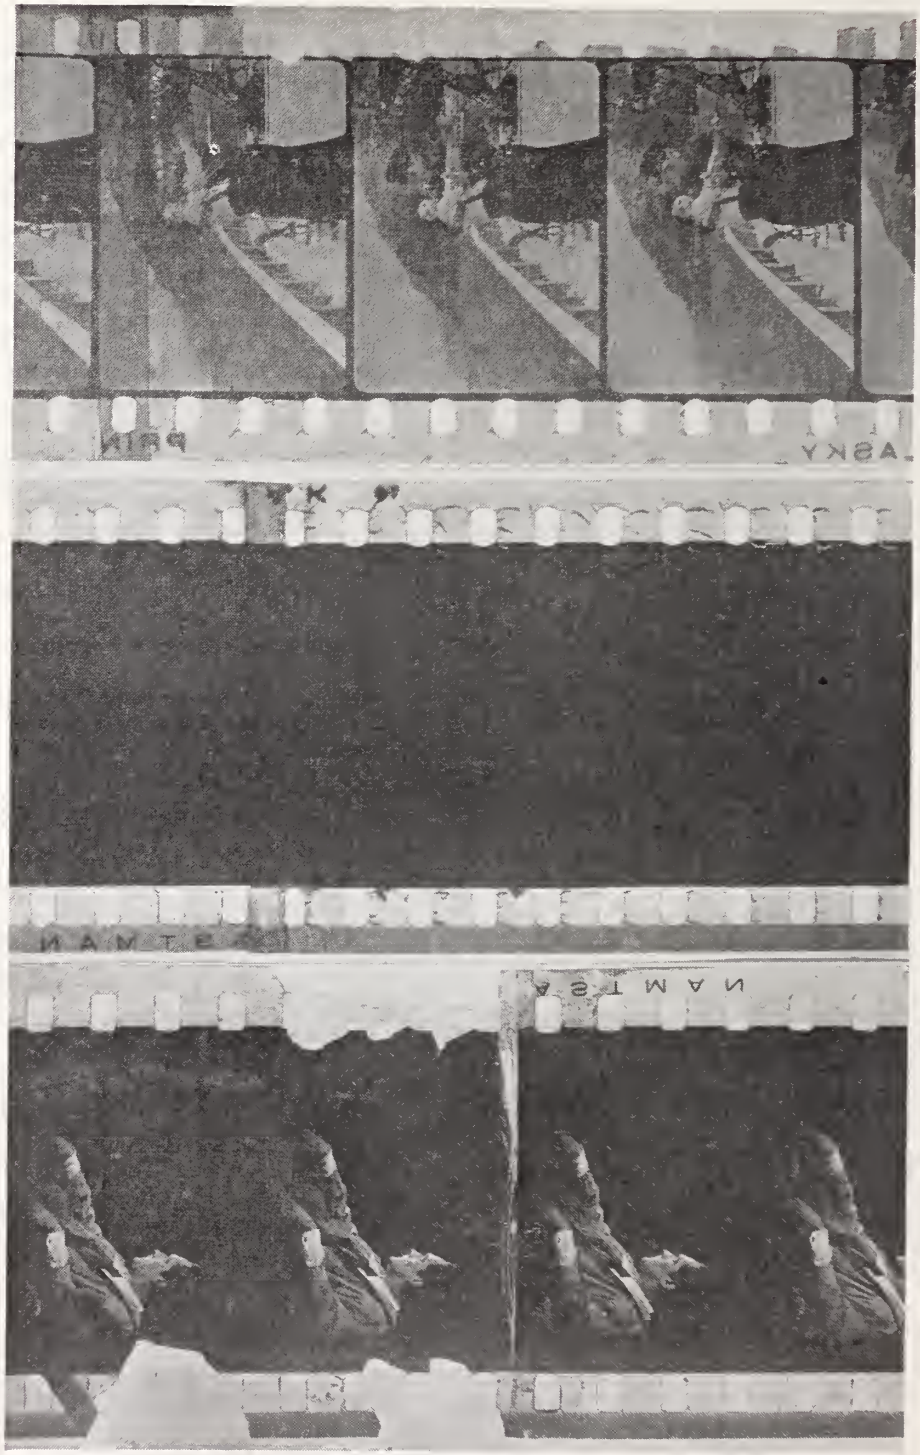

FIGURE 17

Caption by Mr. Dennison: Results of bad splices. Note that in each case the damage starts at the splice.

Decidedly Clever

Allie Barron, Projectionist T. and D. Theatre, Lodi, California, has sent what seems to me to be the first mechanical—electrical change-over signal I have looked at which I could and would commend, without reservation, to the favorable attention of projectionists. Other devices have been clever, but up to this time none has quite filled the bill, because they only were capable of giving one signal, while that of Brother Baron gives both a light-up and a change-over signal.

Unfortunately, however, I am unable to publish it exactly as Baron sent it in, because he depends upon a ground for the completion of his electrical circuit, and grounds are not always reliable; also it apparently presumes completing the circuit through the projector ground, which is a thing the Underwriters would not approve of, and if it were done and a fire occurred it would automatically void the theatre insurance.

I have therefore redesigned the apparatus to the extent of inserting fibre in places which completely insulate the electric circuit from the projector. Otherwise the device is exactly as Brother Baron made it, if I have correctly understood his drawing.

In the drawing, the solid black is insulating fibre. Examining the drawing, A is the upper magazine of the projector. B is a roller, which Brother Baron designates as a fibre roller, but which I would myself suggest to be one of the rubber covered rollers which paper hangers use for rolling seams down. C is a steel bar, square in shape and long enough to serve its obvious purpose. D is a metallic bearing, presumably brass, through which steel bar C slides. I would myself suggest a roller at either end of this bearing. It clamps to the magazine wall, as shown. E is a metal support for fibre piece G. F is a brass piece carrying adjustable contacts I and J, the purpose of which will be readily understood. H is a binding post connecting one circuit wire to F, I and J. R is a spring clip to hold bar C back while threading up.

K is a buzzer, L a dry battery, P a single pole switch. M is a fibre insulating piece, adjustable on bar C, carrying contact spring piece N. O is a loose wire end of the circuit, attaching, by soldering, to spring contact N. This wire may be non-electrically attached to part D at point X, if desired, just to provide a point from which the slack wire can swing.

How It Acts

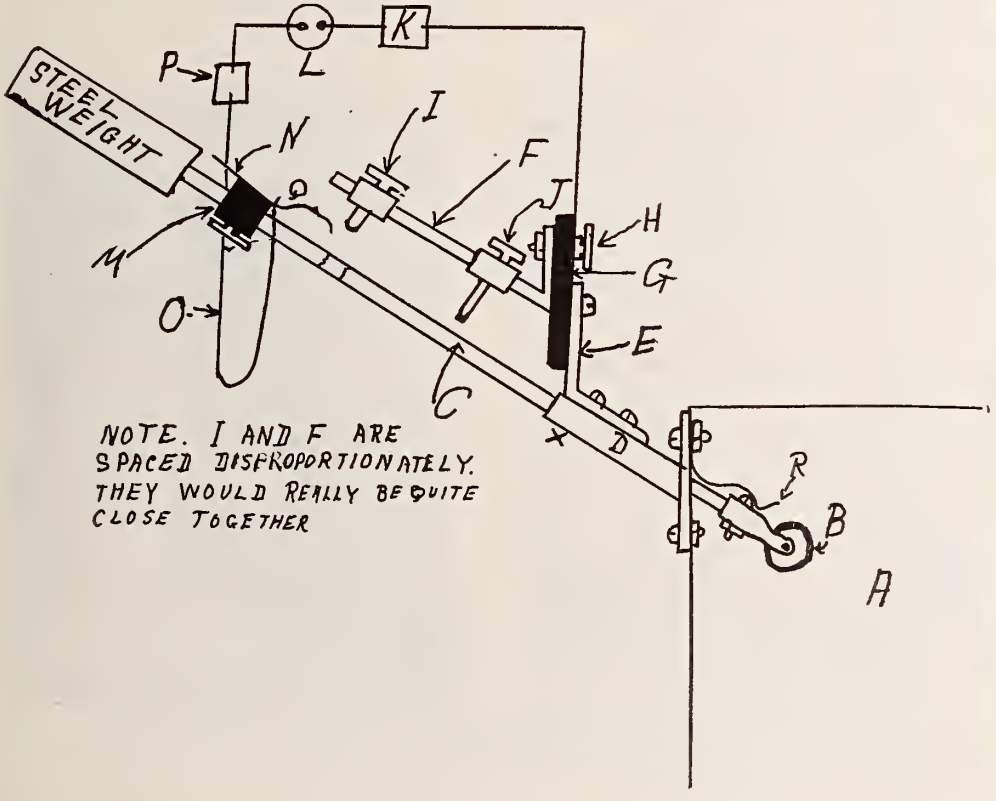
And now here is how it all acts, though you probably have grasped it at a glance. The upper end of spring contact N is so adjusted that, as bar C slides downward as the roll of film on the upper reel, on which roller B rides, it will just touch contact I, thus making electrical contact and ringing the buzzer until such time as the contact is automatically broken as bar C works further down. This contact gives the "LIGHT UP" signal. It may be set for any desired distance from the reel end within the range of the length of bar C.

This contact is set to suit by adjusting parts I and M, and then contact J is so adjusted that point Q of spring contact N will strike it about four feet (of film) from the point of desired change-over.

Reasons for Change

I trust Brother Baron will pardon my change in the electrical circuit. I could not publish it otherwise, because of reasons already set forth.

If the position of the apparatus seems objectionable, I see no reason why it could not be placed up top of the magazine, with a ¼-inch square bar passing directly down and riding directly on top of the film roll. The steel weight is presumably merely to insure bar C not sticking in the bearing. I think, however, a small roller under the upper end of bearing D, and another at the top of the other end of the bearing, would obviate any tendency to sticking, and make the apparatus pretty nearly 100 per cent. Any projectionist can make it himself, using heavy sheet brass for D, E and F. What do the rest of you think of it? It looks good to me.



CLASSIFIED ADVERTISEMENTS
Help and Situations Wanted Only

3c per word per insertion
Minimum charge 60c
Terms, Strictly Cash with Order

Copy must reach us by Tuesday noon to insure publication in that week's issue.

SITUATIONS WANTED

MANAGER, now employed, managing three theatres, wishes change. Considerable experience and success with Photoplay, Vaudeville and Roadshow attractions. Consider only propositions from reliable people. References. Box 358, Moving Picture World, New York City.

MANAGER—Projectionist desires permanent connection with first-class house. Ten years' active work as projectionist, manager, assistant manager and chief projectionist large chain of theatres. Mechanic and electrician. Go anywhere. References. Married. Box 360, Moving Picture World, New York City.

ORGANIST desires permanent position, first-class theatre, with good modern organ. Experienced. Expert picture player and feature soloist. Complete library. Union. Organist, Room 226, Princess Hotel, Atlantic City, New Jersey.

THEATRE WANTED

WANTED—To lease modern theatre seating 800 or more—for term of years in town of at least 30,000 population, preferably much larger. Fitted to play either Pictures, Vaudeville, Stock or Musical Comedy. By experienced, reputable and financially responsible party. Can take possession at once. Give full particulars in detail in first letter. Confidential.
ADDRESS BOX 359
Moving Picture World, 516 Fifth Ave., N. Y. City

WELDED WIRE REELS
For Sale by
Howells Cine Equipment Co.,
740 7th Ave., New York

MAILING LISTS
MOVING PICTURE THEATRES

21,776	Moving Picture Theatres, per M.....	$5.00
3,674	Legitimate Theatres, per M.....	7.50
327	Colored Moving Picture Theatres.....	5.00
1,059	Film Exchanges	10.00
162	Manufacturers and Studios.....	3.00
411	Moving Picture Mach. & Sup. Dealers.	4.00

A. F. WILLIAMS
166 W. Adams Street CHICAGO

THEATRE ANALYST

Years of Experience in Theatre Operation. Specializing—Pictures and Circuit Management. I can diagnose your troubles and suggest the remedy for your present situation. Contracts—Deals—Systems and General Operation. Now finishing contract with one of the Biggest Producing Film Exhibition Companies in the World. Highest Reference from Leaders of the Industry, also Bank. Never a Failure. Business and Social Record—Clean. Private Investigation for Financial Interests. Temporary or Permanent Connection Solicited. At Liberty Feb. 1st. Address WJG, c/o M. P. World.

LUXALBA CONDENSERS
Made from PYREX GLASS
are Guaranteed Against Breakage
Supplied in 4½-in. diameter
6½-in., 7½-in., 8½-in. focal lengths
$6.00 Each
Recommended by F. H. Richardson
THE LUXALBA COMPANY
L. W. Atwater, Sole Agent
111 West 42nd Street, New York

Bluebook School—Answers 176-180

Question No. 176—Suppose your employer proposed installing a plaster screen, using the wall of the building as a base. Tell us your idea as to what its construction and finish should be.

Arthur H. Gray, Boston, Mass.; F. H. Moore, Taunton, Mass.; C. H. Hanover, Burlington, Iowa; Wm. A. Burnett, Newton, Iowa; Karl H. Sommermeyer, Marietta, Minn.; S. F. Cooley, Manchester, N. H.; W. R. Gwynn, Longmont, Col. and T. L. Lavenberg, St. Paul, Minn., all made acceptable answers, but I think the new man, Lavenberg, did better than the rest. He says:

No matter whether the wall of a building be of stone, brick or wood, there is always danger of it settling, and cracking the plaster surface attached directly to it. My first idea, therefore, would be to detach the screen itself from the wall, so far as a rigid connection be concerned. I would first of all build a substantial frame of 2x4 timbers. In the drawing we are presumed to be looking down upon a sectional view of one side of such a frame, A being the left hand side of it, as we stand facing the screen. B is a plank, 2 x 12 in dimensions, which extends clear around the screen, with half an inch clearance between it and the screen frame timber at both sides, and at the top. The screen frame rests upon and is carried by the lower timber of this frame. B is, of course, attached rigidly, in any convenient manner, to the wall itself.

E is a board 1 X 14 inches. It is attached to B by means of screws, after frame A has been set into place. It is not attached to frame A. B is wooden lath attached to frame A, carrying plaster surface D.

Examining this carefully you will see that, while the screen frame is thus attached to and carried by the wall, any settling of the wall will not affect the screen surface, since the half inch clearance between A and A permits of the wall moving to that extent independently of the screen. If half an inch is not deemed sufficient an inch of clearance may be allowed.

I would suggest wooden laths to carry the plaster, because metal lath has a tendency to rust out in a comparatively short while. On the lath I would suggest two coats of what I believe is known as "hard plaster."

P. E. THOMAS
Motion picture projectionist, Creston, Iowa.

Anyhow, it is a kind which sets with cement-like hardness. On the surface of the last coat, when it has dried, or set thoroughly, I would have as heavy a coat of high grade white finish known, I think, as "hard finish" as it is practical to make such a coating, up to 3/8 of an inch, this last coat to be made perfectly level, or as nearly as may be.

Explanation: My reason for building a separate frame has another side to it, viz: when the surface is finally worn out the screen frame may be readily removed, the plaster knocked off, and a new coat applied, without disturbing anything else.

My reason for the very thick finishing coat is so that the surface may be ground down repeatedly with a block and sandpaper, as per instruction on page 226 of the Bluebook, thus bringing into use what amounts to an entirely new surface. A thick white coating may thus be "renovated" many more times than may a thin one, hence it will be economy to have the white coating as thick as possible. Of course, when the white surface has been ground down until the brown shows, in even one spot, the whole thing must be torn out and rebuilt, and it is there my scheme of a wood frame dividing it from the wall comes mighty handy.

Oh yes, one thing I nearly overlooked. In order to stiffen the whole screen frame it would be well to put about two rows of what carpenters call "bridging" between the uprights. 1 x 3 inch stuff would be heavy enough. I really believe that 1 x 4 inch stuff would do for uprights instead of the heavier 2 x 4s.

A good answer. Hope brother Lavenberg will stick, now that he has joined the school, but to date no other answers from him have appeared.

Gwynn also brings out some excellent points. He says:

It is inadvisable to use the wall of the building as a screen base. Instead, the screen should be constructed on a separate frame, which may be attached to the wall to insure immovability.

Several things make the use of the wall itself as a base inadvisable. Should the wall crack, so would the screen surface. Should the wall absorb moisure, so would the screen, resulting possibly in discoloration and perhaps even causing the plaster to fall off in spots. Using a vertical wall as a screen base would be bad practice where projection is at either a vertical or a horizontal angle, or where there is both. Such angles, if heavy, demand an adjustment of the screen surface accordingly. In some instances both adjustments are necessary.

This latter could be taken care of in Lavenberg's scheme.—Ed.

Question No. 177—Suppose your theatre has a stage, and it is to be used, either daily or occasionally, for vaudeville. There is, of course, a fly loft. Would you consider it feasible to use a plaster screen in "One" or "Two," and if so how would you do it?

All the foregoing made answers which pass, though some of them by a rather narrow squeak. I think on the whole that Hanover makes the most practical reply. He says:

Certainly such a thing might be done, and be made to work too, BUT I would not advise such an installation because (1) It would be very heavy and cumbersome. If it were ever necessary to shift its location it would not be an easy thing to do. (B) The base frame would have to be rigidly built, since there is no resiliency to plaster at all, hence the screen would have to be very heavily counter weighted and hung upon steel ropes with very substantial side guides. (C) There is very often a heavy draught of air through the proscenium, out or back, and such a screen would be subjected to rather heavy pressure from this source. This would require a truss bracing on the back to prevent "bellying out or in, with resultant cracking of the surface.

In view of these facts, why instal plaster, when a far lighter surface, with some resiliency may be installed, and made to give essentially the same service in the matter of reflection and diffusion?

A very excellent summing up of the whole matter, I think. Also I believe you will all agree with me in that. As Hanover says, it can be done all right, but after all why do it, when things better adapted to such a situation are at hand?

Question No. 178—Suppose you have a plaster screen which is dirty. How would you proceed to clean it?

Gray, Hanover, Moore Cooley, Sommermeyer and Lavenberg all made acceptable replies. Cooley says he would just follow the Bluebook instructions. Sommermeyer says he would use a vaccuum cleaner, then sandpaper lightly with ½ sandpaper, and then use vaccuum cleaner again. Gwynn suggests kalsomining, but that is NOT "cleaning." It is coating. Burnett suggests washing, which is where he stubbed his toe, as we all do sometimes. Hanover says rub the surface with white chalk—which same is worth consideration and actual trial. Gray says:

I can only affirm the feasibility of the method set forth on page 226 of the Bluebook, viz: the use of a rather fine sandpaper on the solid surface. This would seem to be particularly effective if the white coat be of substantial thickness. If under ordinary theatre conditions it be the practice to thoroughly dust the screen surface daily, the necessity for having what amounts to a new surface may be deferred for a substantial period of time.

The editor would remark that the sandpaper method is the only method he knows of for effectively cleaning a plaster surface. As Gray suggests, it really gives what amounts to an entirely new surface. Of course the plaster may be coated with kalsomine, as Gwynn suggests, but the question deals with cleaning, not coating. On the whole, that chalk suggestion, while it really is a coating, just as much as is kalsomine, intrigues me. If a really uniform coating can be applied (question marks here) it looks very promising. If it is practicable, then a cement surface, chalked, would form an ideal screen where wide diffusion is desired, or so it seems to me.

Question No. 179—What increases the reflecting power of paint?

Gray says:

The statement that the reflecting power

FRANCIS H. MOORE
Alias "Dinty" Moore, projectionist, City Theatre, Taunton, Mass.

of white paint is proportionate to the amount of pigment therein contained (page 227 of Bluebook) seems to be a logical one. Our object is to reflect back the greatest possible percentage of the incident light, and any vehicle or carrying agent for the pigment which remains permanently therein, being of a transparent or tranlucent nature, it would seem to follow that the less there is of it remaining and the greater the percentage of the coating which is pure pigment (assuming of course that the pigment is of suitable nature) the greater the percentage of the light would be turned back, or reflected at the screen surface.

Moore offers this suggestion:

The best way to increase the reflecting power of a paint is to add a small proportion of white enamel—say to one quart of flat white add from ¼ to ½ pint of white enamel.

This, too, like the "chalk" stunt might be worthy of trial, though I don't believe it will prove satisfactory.

Gwynn's reply agrees with Gray's, as also does Sommermeyer's. Cooley quotes the Bluebook. Hanover does the same And that's that.

Question No. 180—Tell us how YOU would mix paint to coat your screen.

Cooley slaps us on the wrist thusly:

I would NOT mix paint to paint my own screen, nor would I paint the screen. I don't think that falls within the duties of a projectionist. I would procure a reliable painter, and would instruct him as to how I wanted the paint mixed, in accordance with the instructions contained in the Bluebook, page 227. I think, however, it is within the line of duty of the projectionist to supervise such work, and exactly what I would do would depend upon whether the screen was to be repainted, or a new painted surface was to be installed, and what kind of surface it was—what sort of base the paint was to be applied to.

Brother Cooley, don't take the questions quite so literally. I had no notion of asking you how you would individually mix and apply the paint. The idea is to ascertain what actual knowledge you have of such matters, to the end that you CAN supervise the job, and supervise it INTELLIGENTLY. Though, even so, it is conceivable that under some possible circumstances you might yourself have to do the job.

Gray says:

I have found nothing better than zinc white thinned to a proper spreading consistency with turpentine, with a small amount of boiled linseed oil added, and thoroughly mixed in, to act as a binder. If too much oil be used, or if the oil be not thoroughly mixed in, there will be an objectionable sheen or glint develop upon the surface of the coating.

I have found that where a diffusing surface is wanted, i. e., under conditions where zinc white will fill the bill very well, I now prefer to use magnesium in liquid form, which may be secured ready mixed, all ready for application after same has been properly and thoroughly stirred. My preference is based upon expediency, rather than any of greater efficiency over zinc white. They both are, however, good.

Hanover, Gwynn, and all but Moore in effect quote Bluebook instructions, but I've a bit of a roast for brother Moore. He says:

If I were going to paint my screen I think I would try some good ready mixed paint and not attempt to mix my own. It would be the easiest way out of it.

I've a darned good mind to send Maggie down to your place, friend Dinty. Waddy y' mean by that "easiest way out" remark. We are NOT looking for the "easiest way out." We've been doing that too darned long. We're now engaged in finding the BEST way out. If the best way is the easiest way, all well and good, but if it is ten times harder than the not-so-good way, it's us for it just the same.

Had I taken the "easiest way out" in hundreds upon hundreds of instances during the past fifteen years, I'd have avoided many a bitter FIGHT, have had a much easier time and all that, BUT where would I have been now? As it now is, the name of Richardson is respected, at least, even by my enemies. It is respected because they know that I have NOT taken the "easiest way out," but have taken what I firmly believed to be the RIGHT way out, regardless of what it might mean in hardship, lost friendship and bitterly fought battles. In the end I have won, and the winning is a triumph for RIGHT.

Forgive me, Dinty dear, for this sermon. I know you did not really realize just what you had said. You don't seek the "easiest way out," else you would not be enrolled in the Bluebook school. You just made a slip, and I could not resist the temptation to land on your shins for doing it. But I know you'll pust say "ouch" and let it go at that.

A Criticism

A letter comes from one who signs himself "A Brooklyn Projectionist." Ordinarily it would get just exactly no attention at all, but the good but too bashful brother is so evidently sincere, that this time this one gets by. He says:

Dear Friend Richardson: I desire to criticize the last part of Brother Gray's answer to question No. 158. (Why didn't YOU answer it yourself, my good brother? Are you afraid a lot of nit-wits would criticize you for being thus progressive? Brother Gray recommends placing the screen as low as possible. The following are my reasons for objecting: As theatres are today constructed, most of the projection rooms are built high up and far back, hence the lower you place the screen the more acute will be the projection angle and the more distortion (keystone effect) you will get.

He speaks of footlights, which means there is also a proscenium arch, and if the arch be high and the picture low, then it sort of "unbalances" the general effect.

My next objection is that most modern theatres have a balcony, which affects the audience if the picture be low. Did you ever note the posture of people seated in the balcony? Their backs seldom touch the chair and most of them prop up their heads by placing their elbows on their knees and resting their chins on their hands.

My own suggestion is that where there is a balcony, the screen be placed as high as is practicable without placing too great a strain on the necks of those seated at the front below. At the same time trying to balance up the surroundings of the screen. If you have ever sat in the balcony of some of the Broadway houses you will get what I mean.

No set rule can be used for placing the screen, but I believe the high psition is better than the low one.

He Uses His Head

Now, here is a man who uses his "reasoner." No matter whether or not you and I altogether agree with him, he USES HIS BRAINS, and a wrong conclusion which is arrived at by reasoning is in the end FAR better, in my opinion, than a right one which was arrived at by no special mental process.

"How do I make that out," do you ask? Why, because while the man may have arrived at a wrong, or partly wrong conclusion once, he is using his brains, and in the end his ideas and his work and results will be vastly improved.

Frankly, while I have annual passes to most Broadway theatres, and go to most of them occasionally, I have not noticed any such effect as you describe. I think you must have made your observations from the extreme back of some of the long ones, where the viewing distance is very long, the eyes a bit strained and patrons lean forward unconsciously because of that fact, rather than because of the picture position. I shall make note of this point in several of them. However, just as a matter of common sense I cannot see why a difference of maybe four or five feet could cause this effect.

As to the "unbalancing" effect, I believe there is merit in your contention on that point. On the whole I believe what Brother Gray said was all right, but that he had no intention of applying what he said if the conditions seemed to make it inadvisable—which may be the case in some theatres.

This is a point which comes VERY MUCH under the legitimate field of motion picture projection, hence IS A PROJECTIONIST'S PROBLEM, and one on which he should be in position to advise his manager intelligently. It is the inclusion of just such things as this which makes MOTION PICTURE PROJECTION as against "moving picture machine operating." It is the interest in and intelligent discussion of just such things which marks the MOTION PICTURE PROJECTIONIST and divides him from the man who merely "operates" or attends a machine.

Screen Position Important

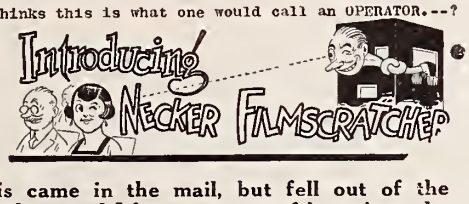
This good brother need not feel offended that I do not altogether agree with his conclusions. I believe the position of the screen is a matter to be considered separately in every installation—that it should be kept as low as is possible without setting up a greater objection in other directions than would its elevation. The main points as against setting the screen low are the increased angle of projection, with increased distortion, and the "unbalancing" effect named by the brother.

The things against a high position are the fact that there is an increase of vertical viewing angle for those in the front seats below and the fact that the higher the picture from the stage floor the more it "looks like a picture."

Let us hear your views on this subject. It forms a most interesting and instructive topic for discussion by projectionists.

NOTE—Names and addresses MUST accompany letters. They will not be published if it is requested that they be not, but I must have them as an evidence of good faith.

Methinks this is what one would call an OPERATOR.--?



This came in the mail, but fell out of the envelope and I have no way of knowing who sent it. Use your own judgment as to the typewritten comment.—F. H. R.

Where Is Smith?

Button, button, who's got the button? Everyone on the Rialto, myself included, is wondering what has become of Will C. Smith, who has, to all human appearances, just simply wiped himself off the slate. If anyone knows where he is, let them stand forth and be heard. No, there is no warrant out for him—yet, but unless his friends (and he has oodles of them) hear from him soon there's liable to be, and the charge will be deserting from the good ship Friendship.

EASTMAN POSITIVE FILM

Nowadays theatre audiences make a definite demand for good photography—for pictorial quality on the screen—nothing else will do.

Eastman Positive Film is made to fit this demand—it must carry quality from studio to screen. And it does.

Look in the transparent film margin for the identification "EASTMAN" "KODAK" in black letters.

EASTMAN KODAK COMPANY
ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The New Fotoplayer Pit Pipe ORGAN

Console of Style 49

A Permanent Musical Feature

A Musical, Artistic and Structural Achievement making it possible for the "Average Exhibitor" to offer his Patrons the highest type of Performance . . .

Does Not Require High Priced Organist

Can be played Manually or with ordinary 88 Note Music Rolls.

Can be installed in any theatre — either in the Orchestra Pit or divided

Mail Coupon to nearest office today for

NEW SELLING PLAN

The Photo Player Co.

New York 150 W. 46 ~ Chicago 845 So. Wabash

Berkeley, Calif.

The Photo Player Co.

Send me without obligation full details of your New Selling Plan

Name .....

Theatre .....

GENUINE DEAGAN PERCUSSIONS USED

Hal Roach

presents his rascals in

Our Gang Comedies

Two Reels

"The Big Town" and "Circus Fever"

The most human, laughable and unique comedies ever produced; that's the Our Gangs.

A thousand big laughs in each comedy from four or five little kids

Be one of the gang of 10,000 exhibitors who are playing these comedies to laughs and dollars.

Pathécomedy

TRADE MARK

First in the Field!

Moving Picture WORLD

Vol. 72, No. 6 FEBRUARY 7, 1925 PRICE 25 CENTS

Coming from Metro Goldwyn

Alice Terry
Conway Tearle
Wallace Beery
Huntly Gordon

Scenario by Waldemar Young

Adaptation by Benjamin Glazer

Produced by
Louis B. Mayer

Reginald Barker's

Production from the Great American Drama
by William Vaughn Moody

The Great Divide

Member Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, Inc.—Will H. Hays, President

Published by CHALMERS PUBLISHING COMPANY 516 FIFTH AVE. NEW YORK CITY

Entered as second class matter June 17, 1906, at the Post Office at New York, N. Y., under the act of March 3, 1879. Printed weekly. $3 a year.

The Comedy find of the Year!

EDDIE GORDON

WELCOME, Eddie Gordon, to the ranks of the really great screen comedians. We know you're all there! The whole world will know after they see

"PUZZLED BY CROSS WORDS"
"ITCHING FOR REVENGE"
"TAXI WAR"
"HELLO KID!"

12 from each of these three big stars

AL ALT

WANDA WILEY

EDNA MARION

CENTURY COMEDIES

52 a Year

Consistently GOOD

RELEASED THRU UNIVERSAL

Thomas Meighan is crashing through with his Mightiest Money Maker in Years!

Just what you're looking for in a Meighan picture. Packed with red blooded action, punch and love interest.

You can absolutely rely on this one and go the limit!

ADOLPH ZUKOR AND JESSE L. LASKY PRESENT

THOMAS MEIGHAN

IN

"COMING THROUGH"

WITH

LILA LEE

A Paramount Picture

From Jack Bethea's fighting novel "Bed Rock." Screen play by Paul Schofield. Directed by Edward Sutherland. Wallace Beery, Frank Campeau, Laurance Wheat and others in the cast.

Member Motion Picture Producers & Distributors of America, Inc.—Will H. Hays, President

"Business is Very Good and the Audiences Like the Picture"

So wires Herschel Stuart, of the Missouri Theatre, St. Louis, and that's the verdict throughout the country on Cecil B. DeMille's latest, "The Golden Bed."

Here's an offering with just the right mixture of strong story, good cast and luxurious backgrounds to attract capacity in big town and small town alike. The St. Louis Post says, "One of the best movie dramas of the season," the Indianapolis Post ranks it among the ten best, the New York Sun praises it as "one of the most fascinating films of the year." (And they're hard critics to please too!)

GET YOUR "GOLDEN BED" GOLD QUICK! This money maker comes to you in the same month with "Peter Pan," Thomas Meighan in "Coming Through," Pola Negri in "East of Suez," Richard Dix in "A Man Must Live," Bebe Daniels in "Miss Bluebeard." That's Famous 40 Service!

CECIL B. DeMILLE'S "THE GOLDEN BED"

Screen play by Jeanie Macpherson. Based on Wallace Irwin's novel. With Rod LaRocque, Vera Reynolds, Lillian Rich, Warner Baxter, Theodore Kosloff, Julia Faye. One of the Unmatchable Famous Forty.

Paramount Pictures

DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS
"in The THIEF of BAGDAD"

CAPACITY BUSINESS EVERYWHERE

Hiram Abrams, President,
United Artists Corporation, New York, N. Y.

"The Thief of Bagdad" opened to capacity business in all three theatres and every audience received the picture with great enthusiasm. There are as many laughs in this picture as in any high grade comedy we have ever run in our theatres. The production promises to break all records. We congratulate you and Mr. Fairbanks on this wonderful production and box office attraction.

Spyros P. Skouras (St. Louis)

This production played four capacity weeks at the new Colony Theatre, New York, following thirty weeks at the Liberty Theatre.

NOW BOOKING
UNITED ARTISTS CORPORATION

Mary Pickford — Charles Chaplin
Douglas Fairbanks — D W Griffith

Hiram Abrams, President. — Joseph M. Schenck, Chairman, Board of Directors

7TH

A screen epic that appeals to all women

One woman helped while

The IRON

A WILLIAM FOX PRESENTATION

FOX FILM CORPORATION

MONTH

in New York

~to Continue Indefinitely!~

To date, 320,600 people from all parts of the world have seen this masterpiece, at the

Lyric Theatre, 42nd Street and Broadway. Admission prices $1.50 and $1.00.

Still playing to capacity.

the "other woman" hindered

HORSE

A JOHN FORD PRODUCTION

FOX FILM CORPORATION

FOX NEWS FIRST AS USUAL

with

ACTUAL PICTURES OF SUN'S ECLIPSE

Fox News served every one of its first-run exhibitors throughout America with a 600-foot special subject covering every scientific and popular phase of this sensational event immediately after it took place.

Fox News issued only real, actual motion pictures of the sun's eclipse—made during the eclipse, not in advance!

FOX NEWS IS ALWAYS FIRST WITH NEWS WHEN IT IS NEWS

Eclipsing All Others

Coming:

The Great Divide

Reginald Barker's production. By William Vaughn Moody. With Alice Terry, Conway Tearle, Wallace Beery, Huntly Gordon.

Excuse Me!

Rupert Hughes' production of his novel and play. Directed by Alf Goulding. With Norma Shearer, Conrad Nagel, Renee Adoree, Walter Hiers.

Confessions of a Queen

Victor Seastrom's production. By Alphonse Daudet. With Alice Terry, Lewis Stone, John Bowers.

Produced by Louis B. Mayer

Metro-Goldwyn Picture

NEVER THE TWAIN SHALL MEET

Directed by Maurice Tourneur

Peter B. Kyne's Great Story of California and the South Seas

Adaptation by Eugene Mullin—Settings by Joseph Urban

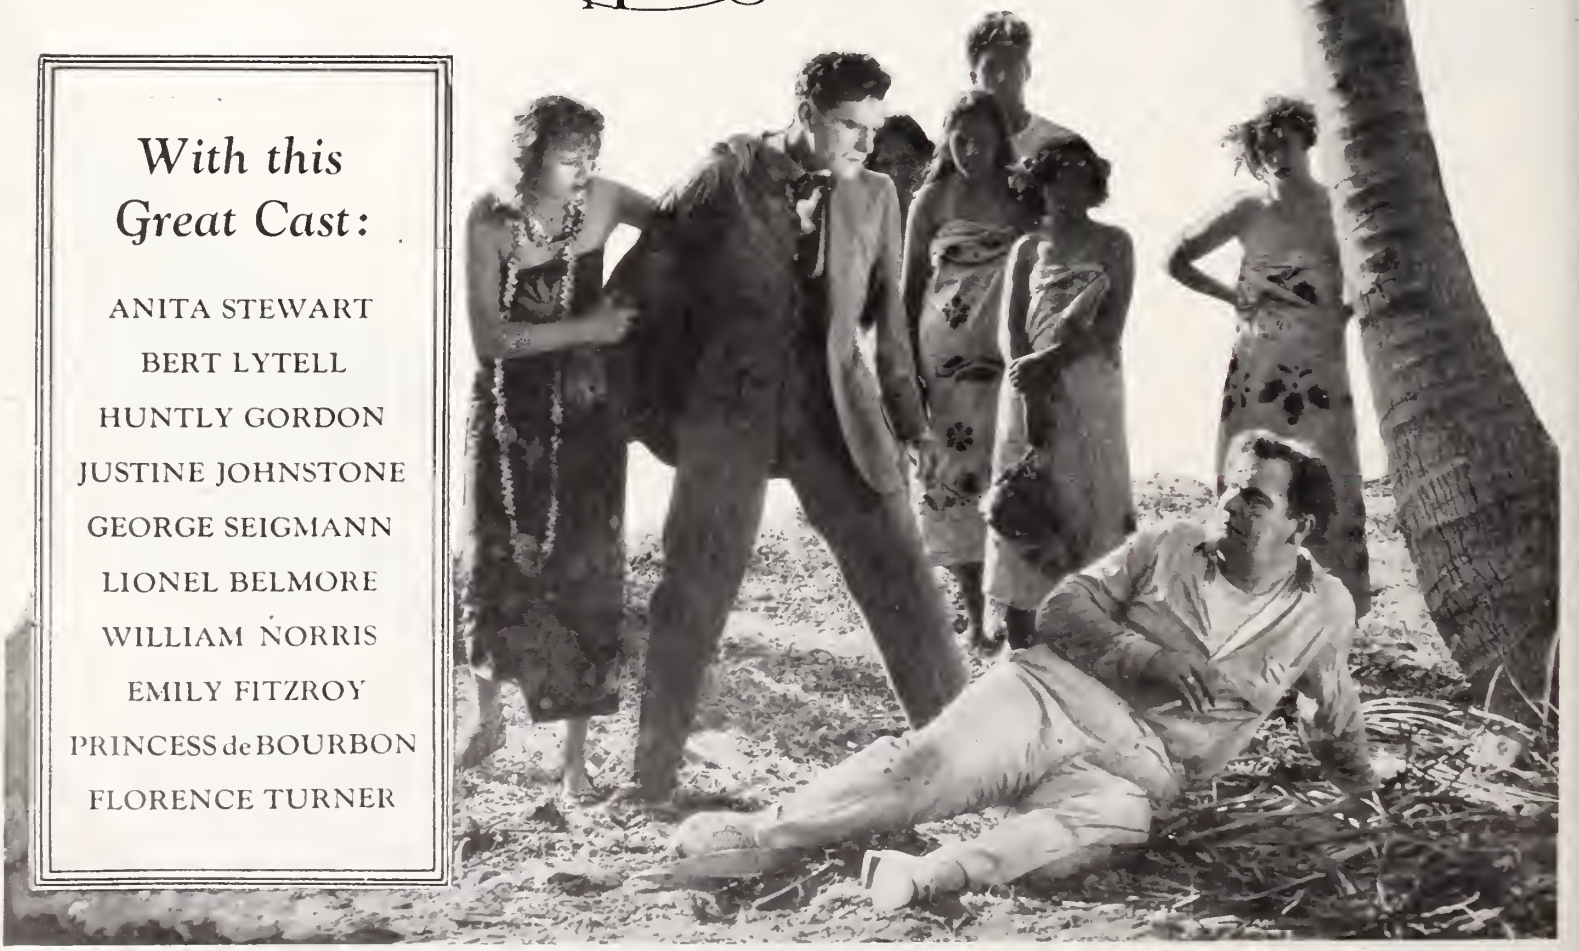
A Cosmopolitan Production

Distributed by

Metro Goldwyn

With this Great Cast:

ANITA STEWART
BERT LYTELL
HUNTLY GORDON
JUSTINE JOHNSTONE
GEORGE SEIGMANN
LIONEL BELMORE
WILLIAM NORRIS
EMILY FITZROY
PRINCESS de BOURBON
FLORENCE TURNER

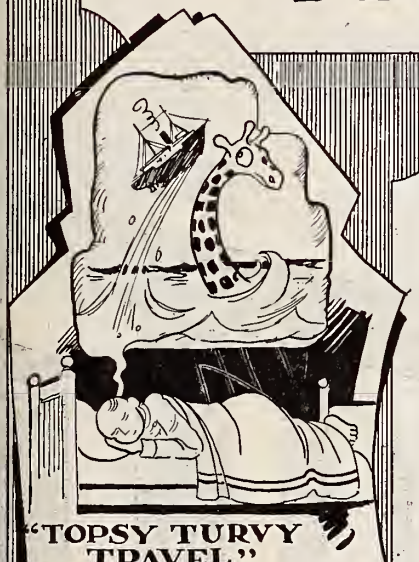


Information Concerning Territorial Rights Outside of the United States and Canada Can be Obtained from FOREIGN DEPT., 1540 Broadway, New York City.

LYMAN H. HOWE'S HODGE-PODGE

Educational Pictures

"THE SPICE OF THE PROGRAM"



"TOPSY TURVY TRAVEL"

"EARTH'S ODDITIES"

NEW and novel ideas that are packed into every foot of HODGE-PODGE make each picture in this series a subject of keenest interest to every type of audience.

Bubbling with good humor, with a wealth of novelty and variety, skilfully made, this reel of Some Sense and Some Nonsense will not only amuse and entertain your patrons but also stimulate them to a better appreciation of your Whole Program. No single-reel novelty could possibly do more.

RELEASED ONE A MONTH

"HI-FLIERS"

"WHIRLIGIGS"

For foreign rights address
FAR EAST FILM CORPORATION
729 Seventh Ave.
New York City

Member, Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, Inc.
WILL H. HAYS, President

EDUCATIONAL FILM EXCHANGES, Inc.
E. W. Hammons
President

"A CRAZY QUILT OF TRAVEL"

On the billbo

heralding a mighty box-office attraction

This reproduction of a 28 sheet poster now on the boards in New York, Chicago and Los Angeles tells a story of vital importance to every showman. It heralds the approach of a mighty money-making attraction—the world's funniest motion picture, "CHARLEY'S AUNT," with Syd Chaplin. The fame of "CHARLEY'S AUNT" has already spread to every nook and corner of these United States. Here is a real showman's opportunity—a box-office bonanza. Don't muff it. It's a wise man that not only sees his opportunity but seizes it. GRAB THIS ONE.

Directed by
SCOTT SIDNEY

Produced by
CHRISTIE FILM COMPANY
INCORPORATED

ember of Motion
icture Producers and istributors of Amer-
a, Inc.—Will H.
Hays, Pres.

ards—

Y'S AUNT — is coming
Released by Producers Distributing Corporation

Winners! Every

WARNER BROS. Classics of the Screen

Big Pictures Are the Rule-Not the Exception with Warner Bros.~~

ERNST LUBITSCH'S "THREE WOMEN"

¶ With MAY MC AVOY, PAULINE FREDERICK, MARIE PREVOST, and LEW CODY. ¶ Story by Ernst Lubitsch and Hans Kraely.

"'THREE WOMEN' at the Strand is the most powerful motion picture that has come to Manhattan since . . . . . "

—N. Y. Sun

RIN-TIN-TIN in "FIND YOUR MAN"

By Daryl Francis Zanuck. ¶ With JUNE MARLOWE and Eric St. Clair. ¶ Directed by Mal St. Clair.

". . . . a thoroughly satisfactory entertainment, one of the best pictures we have ever seen with a dog hero."

—N. Y. Times

"THE LOVER OF CAMILLE"

From David Belasco's Stage success, "DEBURAU". ¶ With MONTE BLUE and MARIE PREVOST. ¶ Directed by Harry Beaumont.

". . . . a most interesting picture. Harry Beaumont has caught much of the delicacy that characterized David Belasco's stage play."

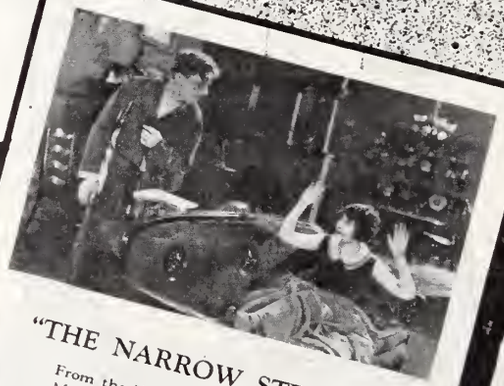
—N. Y. American

"THIS WOMAN"

From Howard Rockey's Novel. ¶ With IRENE RICH. ¶ Directed by Phil Rosen.

"A strong cast, ably directed in a story that has many elements of popular appeal, makes this feature an asset to the average box office."

—N. Y. Morning Telegraph



"THE NARROW STREET"

From the Novel by Edwin Bateman Morris. ¶ With DOROTHY DEVORE and MATT MOORE. ¶ Directed by William Beaudine.

"'THE NARROW STREET' is the best picture ever shown at the Piccadilly. In fact it is one of the most entertaining comedies ever shown anywhere."

—Harriet Underhill, N. Y. Herald-Tribune.

"THE AGE of INNOCENCE"

From Edith Wharton's Pulitzer Prize Novel. ¶ With Beverly Bayne, Elliott Dexter, and Mary Roberts. ¶ Directed by Wesley Ruggles.

". . . . one of the most interesting pictures seen in some time and we predict that it will prove one of the year's most successful photoplays."

One of 'Em!

"THE DARK SWAN"

From the Novel by Ernest Pascal. ¶ With MARIE PREVOST, MONTE BLUE, and HELENE CHADWICK. Directed by Millard Webb.

"Put this down in your red-letter notebook—'THE DARK SWAN' will not be a dark swan so far as finances are concerned unless I am a poor guesser. It will bring the shekels into the well known treasury."

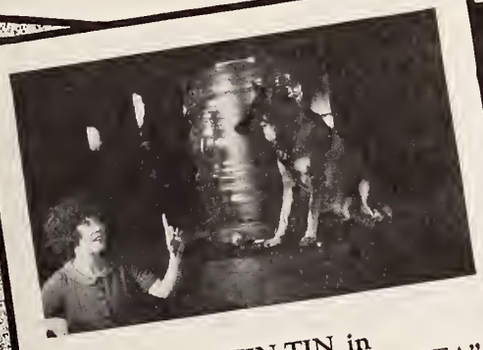
—Louella Parsons, N. Y. American.

"A LOST LADY"

From the Novel by Willa S. Cather. ¶ With IRENE RICH. ¶ Directed by William Beaudine.

"The film is one of the best seen on Broadway this year; it is convincing, true to the book from which the picturization was made—and different."

—Regina Cannon, N.Y. Graphic



RIN-TIN-TIN in
"The LIGHTHOUSE by the SEA"

From Owen Davis' Melodramatic Stage Sensation. ¶ Directed by Mal St. Clair.

"Rin-Tin-Tin, who will be remembered for his many clever stunts in 'FIND YOUR MAN', outdoes himself in this latest Warner Bros. production."

—Regina Cannon, N. Y. Graphic.

—and You Can

Bet Your Bottom Dollar

that these Remaining Attractions for 1924-1925 Will Draw the Same Enthusiastic Praise

"A BROADWAY BUTTERFLY"
By Darryl Francis Zanuck. ¶ With DOROTHY DEVORE, LOUISE FAZENDA, and WILLARD LOUIS. ¶ Directed by William Beaudine.

"ON THIN ICE"
Adapted from "The Dear Pretender" by Darryl Francis Zanuck. ¶ With TOM MOORE and EDITH ROBERTS. ¶ Directed by Mal St. Clair.

"THE MAN WITHOUT A CONSCIENCE"
From the story by Max Kretzer. ¶ With WILLARD LOUIS and IRENE RICH. ¶ Directed by James Flood.

"RECOMPENSE"
Sequel to "SIMON CALLED PETER"
From the novel by Robert Keable. ¶ With MARIE PREVOST and MONTE BLUE. ¶ Directed by Harry Beaumont.

"MY WIFE AND I"
From the novel by Harriet Beecher Stowe. ¶ With IRENE RICH. ¶ Directed by Millard Webb.

"EVE'S LOVER"
From the story by Mrs. W. K. Clifford. ¶ With IRENE RICH, BERT LYTELL, and WILLARD LOUIS. ¶ Directed by Roy delRuth.

RIN-TIN-TIN in
"TRACKED IN THE SNOW COUNTRY"
By Edward Meagher. ¶ With JUNE MARLOWE. ¶ Directed by Herman Raymaker.

"HOW BAXTER BUTTED IN"
From the play by Owen Davis. ¶ With WILLARD LOUIS. ¶ Directed by William Beaudine.

"THE ELEVENTH VIRGIN"
From the novel by Dorothy Day. ¶ With HELENE CHADWICK. ¶ Directed by James Flood.

—and Another Smashing Big Ernst Lubitsch Production
With MARIE PREVOST, MONTE BLUE, CLARA BOW, WILLARD LOUIS, JOHN ROCHE, and Other Outstanding Screen Favorites.

These Comments Are on All Warner Bros. "Classics of the Screen" Yet Released as Part of the 1924-25 Output-Not on a Carefully Selected One or Two of Them!

Get The LAST

N.Y. Critics Glorify It

A MASTERPIECE

"The story grips one from beginning to end—a jubilant finish—a masterpiece."

Mordant Hall,
in the N. Y. Times

"Really leaves one breathless." Christian Science Monthly

EXCEPTIONAL

"If any exhibitor is offered this picture and passes it up, he doesn't deserve to be in business. An exceptional photoplay—a masterpiece. I lack the ability to describe the beauty, the charm, the poignancy, the happiness of The Last Laugh. It made me cry and it made me laugh. I can only say it is the highest point in craftsmanship that the motion picture has yet attained. Remarkable burst of applause. The direction is as close to perfection as anything can be—inspiring acting. There never has been such a performance upon the screen."

Billboard

PERFECT

"The film must prove a sign post to our directors. Brilliant direction . . . . virtually perfect performance!"

W. R.,
in the N. Y. World

BOX OFFICE APPEAL

"A mighty fine picture particularly worth while inasmuch as it carries no titles. Should also have marked box-office appeal. One cannot but enjoy the excellence of this picture. Really worth while. Contains in the leading role one of the greatest actors of the day!"

Film Daily

IMPRESSIVE

"Abounds in the unusual—a masterpiece. It is worth heavy exploitation. Word of mouth advertising will bring crowds. Suitable for first runs and average houses. It is a deft and impressive piece of work. Finely acted and staged!"

Laurence Reid,
in the Motion Picture News

Produced by UFA

LAUGH On Your Competitors —Crowds Cheer It!

SPLENDID

"One of the finest productions from a human as well as an artistic viewpoint ever shown. A happy ending which strikes a high note in farce. On its merits as a great picture 'The Last Laugh' should win audiences anywhere. There isn't a subtitle in the picture, yet the story comes smoothly and with great force. In a most unusual way, a deliciously happy ending, farcical, rich in humor and humanity, a splendid piece of work that exalted the audience. It is one of the best balanced casts I have ever seen. A splendid feature."

Joseph R. Fliesler
in the N. Y. Morning Telegraph

TREMENDOUS CLEANUP

"A tremendous work. By all means throw open the screen of the country to pictures of this type. This is a film that will go down in history as one of the big pictures of this decade. Murnau, who handled the direction, has achieved some really remarkable touches. Words cannot do justice to what he has achieved on the screen, and the picture must be seen to be appreciated. The picture, on the strength of its humanness, its tremendous comedy kick at the finish, and the art of the production itself, is going to prove a real clean-up at the box-office. It is a production that will be made by word of mouth advertising such as no other picture has received in years."

Variety

FINE ENTERTAINMENT

"Will afford an evening's fine entertainment! Exhibitors will make no error in showing it. The cast is uniformly excellent!"

Exhibitors Trade Review

COMPELLING

"The bill presented this week at the Rivoli is one of the greatest ever offered at the younger Riesenfeld house. The picture held me in a vise-like grip. When Emil Jannings is right, there isn't a greater screen artist in the world. And he is right here. I could devote a whole column to this picture if I had the space but suffice it to say, I have never seen a more compelling photoplay!"

George Gerhard,
N.Y. Evening World

SIMPLY SUPERB

"We warn you that you'd better see it. Probably no film shown this season will stir up such a lot of discussion and if you want to be 'film wise' you'd better take a peek at it. No doubt about it—this is an exceedingly interesting piece of work from many angles. Simply superb—splendidly done—excellence itself—new and refreshing. You'd better see it; you're sure to enjoy it."

N. Y. Evening Post

ING at the famous RIVOLI theatre-Broadway & 49TH St. next week at the famous RIALTO theatre-Broadway & 42nd St.

Distributed by UNIVERSAL

Never has th
such a re
The HUNCHBACK

In the Big Cities
—a big winner!

"Our lobby is impassable. Crowds reach to entrances of other theatres!"
Hippodrome Theatre, Baltimore, Md.

"Biggest box-office attraction we ever had!"
Milwaukee Theatre, Milwaukee, Wis.

"All records for any picture ever played broken!"
Syracuse Strand Theatre, Syracuse, N. Y.

'Broke all records by $1200. Second day's again broke record!" Adams Theatre, Detroit, Mich.

No matter how you judge it,
"The Hunchback of Notre of all time. No other pictu tuous acclaim or box-office ca alone. You can never exhau and again — its profit possib

In Smaller Cities
—size makes no difference!

"Broke all records! Over $100 better than Covered Wagon opening." Liberty Theatre, Youngstown, O.

"Broke all house records for past fifteen years!"
Oliver Theatre, South Bend, Ind.

"Broke all records by far of any picture ever played in Bridgeton!" Criterion Theatre, Bridgeton, N.J.

"Broke all records! The greatest masterpiece ever produced!" Rivoli Theatre, Portland, Oregon

In Farming Districts
—the green backs grow all around!

"Best ever put on the screen!"
Scotland Theatre, Laurinburg, N. C

"Playing to turnaway business. Tremendous box office attraction!" Palace Theatre, Wichita, Kan

"Complete sell-out. Turned away another capacity house!" Plaza Theatre, Waterloo, Iowa

"Record houses for all performances!"
Charleston Theatre, Charleston, S. C

A Universal Production world known ord breaker

f NOTRE DAME

atter what standard you use,
e" is the greatest money-maker s ever received such tumul-
ies. It is a picture that stands drawing power. Play it again
s have hardly been scratched.

Repeat Engagements
—make $2 grow where $1 grew before!

"Picture did more gross on return than on original engagement!" Jewel Photoplay Co., Hamilton, O.

"Return engagement showed more admissions than opening day record-breaking first run!" Capitol Theatre, Dallas, Texas

"Just completed record-breaking six-day run on second showing!" Liberty Theatre, Colorado Springs, Col.

"Played picture after five houses in zone and did biggest business in two years!" Crown Theatre, Toronto, Ontario

Cleaning Up Abroad
—or any place that money is used!

New Screen History! Released three theatres simultaneously and we all cleaned up." Mr. Ohta of the Nippon Kan, Mr. Masuda of the Meguro Kinema, Mr. Nishimoto of the Kanda Kan, Tokyo, Japan.

Smashed records! Hundreds turned away! Special police necessary!" Regent Theatre, Ottawa, Ont.

Immense success! Hundreds turned away!" C. Eskell, Wellington, New Zealand.

Biggest business in three years!" Queen's Hall Theatre, London, Eng.

In Industrial Towns
—an unprecedented money-maker!

"Box-office receipts largest ever taken in!" Margaret Theatre, Anaconda, Montana

"The whole town tried to crowd in!" Colonial & Palace Theatres, Pittsfield, Mass.

"Smashed record. Capacity business and hold-out crowds!" Majestic Theatre, Grand Rapids, Mich.

"Receipts were better than any other picture we ever ran!" Princess Theatre, Cheyenne, Wyoming

Presented by Carl Laemmle

Announcing

THE MOST MARVELOUS PHOTOPLAY OF ALL TIME

F.H. ADAM
presents

"THE TALES OF A THOUSAND AND ONE NIGHTS"

A Production of Societé des Films Albatros

Distributed by

DAVIS DISTRIBUTING DIVISION

INCORPORATED

J. Charles Davis, 2nd
President

723 Seventh Ave.
New York

ON BROADWAY

For an indefinite run
B. S. Moss' Cameo

Because it is — HUMAN DRAMATIC SENSATIONAL

B. P. Schulberg Presents
His Dramatic Conception of

"CAPITAL PUNISHMENT"

Directed by James P. Hogan ~ ~ ~ Adapted by John Goodrich

Portrayed by a Huge Cast

CLARA BOW	GEORGE HACKATHORNE	ELLIOTT DEXTER
MARGARET LIVINGSTON	ROBERT ELLIS	MARY CARR
ALEC B. FRANCIS	EDITH YORKE	JOSEPH KILGOUR
WADE BOTELER	EDDIE PHILLIPS	GEORGE NICHOLS

Preferred Pictures - Distributed by B. P. Schulberg Productions, Inc.
1650 Broadway, New York J. G. Bachmann, Vice-Pres.

Foreign Distributors: Export and Import Film Co., 729 Seventh Ave., New York City. Cable Address: Eximfilm, New York.

Next Week
An Event of Importance!

Next week—an event of importance occurs—

The world premiere of "The Lost World," First National's next big special, at the Tremont Temple, Boston.

Big pictures come, and big pictures go—big pictures have become so frequent that their openings have come to be a matter of course.

But "The Lost World" is a DIFFERENT big picture.

It is, as I understand it, a picture that cannot be compared with any other type of offering on the screen. It is a novelty—the result of seven years and more of intensive study and labor.

So, it seemed to me, the premiere is an event of importance.

And I decided to go to Boston to view the opening.

I told First National so.

They came back with this:

"Why don't you give a COMPLETE story of 'The Lost World's' opening—the details of the elaborate newspaper campaign, the presentation itself, and even your opinion of the reactions of the audiences during the opening week?"

"I can't afford the space," I replied.

"We'll take all the space necessary," was the answer. "And you do the job in your own way, your own words, your own thoughts."

I looked the speaker straight in the eye. Stared at him.

"We mean it," he repeated. "We think it will be a real service to the exhibitor. All we will provide will be the space you need. But the story, the opinions expressed, the information given, will all come FROM YOU—in your own way.

" 'The Lost World' is going to play in an unprecedented number of theaters. It is the type of picture to which the exhibitor will give unusual care and attention in planning his advance campaign and his presentation. It is an exploitation picture. We think he will appreciate getting an outsider's viewpoint, an unbiased study of the exploitation and presentation angles. You say you want to do it for your readers but haven't the space. We'll pay the space bill."

Well—that's certainly showing confidence in a picture and the opportunities it offers.

Of course, speaking with all the modesty that a trade paper editor can be expected to have, it shows an equal degree of confidence in its editor and the faith that the publication's readers have in his sincerity and consistent desire to shoot square with exhibitor and producer.

So here I am in Boston—where I intended to come anyway, to view an opening that I thought worth the trip—but instead of being limited in my opportunity I am here to tell you the WHOLE story, the COMPLETE story.

Watch for it.

Robert E. Welsh

E

Presented by
THOS. H. INCE CORPORATION and greatest since
"Anna Christie"

FIRST NATIONAL PICTURES

A First National Attraction

The backbone service of the country's finest showmen

Foreign Rights Controlled by First National Pictures Inc. 383 Madison Avenue, New York

Members of Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America Inc.—Will Hays President

NTICEMENT

Big as a book—Bigger as a Picture and now being nationally advertised

Mr. Colvin W. Brown,
Thomas H. Ince Studio,
565 Fifth Avenue,
New York City.

My dear Mr. Brown:

There has been no more extraordinary event in recent publishing history than Clive Arden's sudden leap to popularity.

This author's first novel was Sinners in Heaven. It won the Leonard Parsons Prize in England. It has gone through edition after edition on both sides of the Atlantic.

The sale of ENTICEMENT has exceeded the sale of Sinners in Heaven. It has run like a scared rabbit. It keeps us on the jump every minute.

Where the response is immediate and conclusive it is a delight to pour out money in advertising a book. That is preeminently the case with ENTICEMENT. Naturally we have kept it up, hammered away, spread it out in widening curves with a national persistence. Almost everybody in America must know by now that "An apple is the emblem of Enticement."

We are enthusiastic over the picture you have made from this great fiction hit. Like the book it has every element of popular appeal.

And we have taken off our coats and gone to work to cooperate with you and First National in making the tieup of book and picture to the last degree effective.

As a first step we have made a photoplay edition of ENTICEMENT which we are ready to back as the most attractive yet made of any novel. And we have developed a whole new scheme of national advertising combining the picture and the book in a most novel and unusual way.

If an apple is the emblem of Enticement, Enticement is the emblem of Success.

D. L. Chambers
Vice President
Bobbs Merrill Co.

From the novel by
CLIVE ARDEN
Adapted by BRADLEY KING
Directed by GEORGE ARCHAINBAUD
with MARY ASTOR,
CLIVE BROOK and IAN KEITH
Under personal supervision of THOMAS H. INCE

First National Pictures Inc. presents

"AS MAN DESIRES"

with

Milton Sills and Viola Dana

From GENE WRIGHT'S novel PANDORA LA CROIX
Adapted and supervised by EARL HUDSON
Directed by IRVING CUMMINGS
Scenario by MARION ORTH
Editorial Direction MARION FAIRFAX
Art Director MILTON MENASCO
Photography ROY CARPENTER
Film Editor CHARLES HUNT

7 shows a day 5 of them capacity!

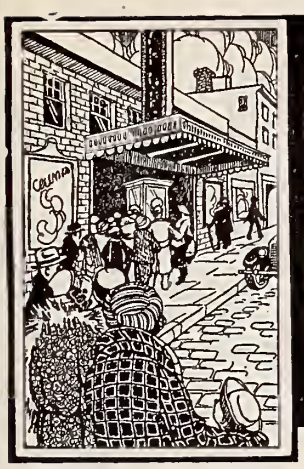
That's what the Pantheon Theatre, Toledo, reports on this winner–

Foreign Rights Controlled by First National Pictures Inc. 383 Madison Avenue New York

Ahead in prestige and in bankroll with FIRST NATIONAL'S Leadership pictures

FIRST NATIONAL PICTURES

Members of Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America Inc.—Will Hays President



The
MOVING PICTURE
WORLD

Founded in 1907 by J. P. Chalmers

The Editor's Views

VITAGRAPH'S withdrawal from the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, Inc., seems naturally to demand editorial comment. But it must be admitted that with the facts in hand at the moment intelligent comment is a rather difficult task.

To which the reader probably replies, "If you can't comment intelligently, don't comment at all."

But there are phases that are obvious. Most important of these is the fact that the resignation, and the statement accompanying it, are to be regretted because of the inspiration and fuel that will be given pseudo-reformers and ambitious legislators.

And it must be added, equally to be regretted is the fact that Will Hays and his associates, foreseeing this inevitable condition, could not summon forces to forestall the withdrawal.

That is the surface. All else is behind a pall that may be lifted—and may not be.

* * *

THE business certainly is in need of a Solomon at this moment. But with all his fabled wisdom we doubt if the Biblical sage could offer anything at this moment.

Irresistibly, a certain condition is being brought about. It is the concentration of picture buying power.

Nothing has slowed its development in the past year, nothing apparently can stop it.

And buying power is apparently the center of all power in this industry.

There was a time when the alarmist was met with the statement, "You can't monopolize or concentrate brains. There will always be new production genius and new creative effort."

But we have learned that production genius means little if the market is getting narrower.

Here is the spot for the Solomon.

Can we in all justice tell the big fellow that he has no right to expand, no right to fully utilize his resources and connections, no right to use all possible means to protect his investment and his future?

And, on the other hand, can we say that age-old antipathies to monopoly and concentration are to be swept aside? That the independent has no other recourse than to meekly accept the inevitable?

Solomon, possibly, might point out that there is an easy solution for the independent distributor and producer in association with the independent exhibitor.

But where is the independent exhibitor?

Just what is the independent exhibitor?

And, after you find him, and define him, who is going to convince him that the battles of the independent producer and distributor are any part of his worries?

There's the rub. There are many "independent exhibitors" to be found, no doubt. And they probably like to read editorials that discuss the "trust" and ringing statements that denounce monopoly. But when they go out to book their pictures—ah, that's different.

With few exceptions it might be said then that the only ones who remember that word "independence" are the ones who know that they have the luckless independent distributor in a position where he has to take it or leave it.

* * *

WE hope we are not over-pessimistic. We know that it is not helping a situation to say that it is "inevitable." But we keep on talking in the hope that somewhere there is a descendant of Solomon who might come forth with proof that our editorial view is all wrong, that there is a solution, a natural one and a happy one.

At the moment we do not claim the gift of a seer or a Solomon, but merely plead our sincerity.

Robert E. Welsh

Moving Picture WORLD

EDITOR - - - - - - - - - - - - - - - ROBERT E. WELSH

Published Weekly by CHALMERS PUBLISHING COMPANY, 516 Fifth Avenue, New York, N. Y. Telephone: Murray Hill 1610-1-2-3. Member Audit Bureau Circulation. John F. Chalmers, president; James P. Chalmers, Sr., vice-president; Alfred J. Chalmers, vice-president; Eliza J. Chalmers, secretary and treasurer, and Ervin L. Hall, business manager.

Branch Offices: 5434 Glenwood Avenue, Chicago; W. E. Keefe, 1312 Stanley Avenue, Hollywood, Cal.

Managing Editor—John A. Archer. Advertising Manager—Ben H. Grimm. Circulation Manager—Dennis J. Shea.

Subscription price: United States and its possessions, Mexico and Cuba, $3.00 a year; Canada, $3.50; foreign countries (postpaid) $10.00 a year.

Copyright, 1925, Chalmers Publishing Co. Copyright throughout Great Britain and Colonies, under the provisions of the Copyright Act of 1911. (All rights reserved.)

Other publications: Cine Mundial (Spanish). Technical books.

VOLUME 72 NUMBER 6

To Keep You Posted

Editorial 543
1,600 Seat Opposition Not Scaring Old-Timer 545
Tackett Builds Prairie Theatre to Give Kansas Folks Sunday Shows 546
Vitagraph Quits Hays' Organization, Quoting "Live-and-Let-Live" Policy 547
Massachusetts Amusement Company Seeking Strike Injunction 548
Kansas Exhibitors Puzzled by Odd Censorship Muddle 548
Sydney S. Cohen Addresses Tri-State Luncheon in Philadelphia 548
Three Big Chicago Theatres Planned; Cost Will Exceed $2,000,000 549
Chicago Has New Circuit of Motion Picture Theatres 549
Independents Throttled, Garsson Tells Will Hays 550
Congressional Patents Group Hears Arguments on Copyright 550
Indiana State Legislature Discusses Screen Censorship and Blue Sundays 551
New Jersey Theatre Owners Oppose Copyright Amendment 552
Milwaukee Exhibitors to Meet in Convention May 12, This Year 552
Splendid Exploitation on "The Lost World" in Boston 552
New Distributing Company Enters Independent Field 553
Two More Northwest Exhibitors Victims of Hold-up Men 553
New England Theatrical Men Fete "Al" Somerby of Boston 554
Exhibitors' News and Views 559
Projection 613

To Sell Your Seats

Selling the Picture to the Public (Department) 577
Balaban and Katz Campaign on "Abraham Lincoln" 577
Worked New Ideas on "Hot Water" Run 577
Production Hints from Edward L. Hyman 578
Harry Storin, of Pawtucket, R. I., Offers Some Suggestions 578
Women Co-operate on "Broken Laws" 580

To Aid Your Bookings

Reviews 555
Straight From the Shoulder Reports 567
Pep of the Program 585
Current and Advance Film Releases 608

4 out of every 5 motion picture theatres in the United States are reached by a copy of MOVING PICTURE WORLD!

First in the Field!

1,600 Seat Opposition Not Scaring Old-Timer With Only 218

Small Town Up Against Troubles? Small House in Big City Has 'Em Too

By A. VAN BUREN POWELL

SMALL town exhibitors are certainly "up against it" in a lot of cases. What with the radio, the carnival, the frequent dance and other social affair, and one or more opposition houses, it's a dog's life, and we're all agreed about that!

Did you ever stop to think, though, about the "city feller" who has a typical small-town theatre, in size, that is? What's he going to do when they push the already high rent up another few notches, and then go and build a sixteen hundred-seat house right in his neighborhood?

Your small town theatre can go outside the confines of the town, and drag 'em in from all over—if the manager does his duty by the exploitation and advertises so that people know what he's got to offer. The small house in the big city can't take 'em from other parts of the city.

Yes, siree! The man with a small theatre in a big city has his work cut out for him to rip any silver lining off the edge of his particular cloud.

But he does it.

Anyhow, Stephen G. Brenner—"just 'Steve'" as he prefers to be thought of to those who know his many tips in Straight From the Shoulder Reports—runs a 218-seat theatre, the Eagle, in Baltimore, Maryland. He is in a position to know his subject, and so he's worth listening to when he chats about them and, in his cheerful, optimistic way, tells how he gets the best of them.

"Steve" can lay claim to deferential attention on another score. While only thirty years of age, he has been "in this game" for eighteen years! Some record, isn't it.

He plunged into the motion picture maelstrom when he was just tall enough to reach a projector crank. He has worked in every branch of the game except the Studio. Operator when he cranked one of the early Lubin projectors—usher, bill-poster, stage-hand, actor, had charge of film exchange under the oldest firm in Baltimore, known then as Pearce and Sheck—now proprietors of one of the largest theatres and also several smaller theatres in Baltimore.

"Steve" at one time did all the road work for this concern, such as small town churches, halls, opera houses, and lodges. At the age of twelve he was assistant "projectionist" to Walter Steiner of the American Mutoscope and Biograph: they were employed at Riverview Park in Baltimore, in a place known as the Casino. They used a Punch-and-Judy show as a ballyhoo and the show consisted of illustrated songs such as "Colleen Bawn," "Starlight," "In the Shade of the Old Apple Tree"; films were 300 to 500 feet; admission was ten cents, five for children, and showing time about twenty minutes, changing films once a month.

So, you see, Steve has the foundation of solid experience and the fact that he has kept his Eagle theatre pulling for six years past is further proof that he knows how to apply his lessons.

How he keeps going against a sixteen hundred-seat house and a restricted drawing area, is better told by Steve himself.

Introducing—Stephen G. Brenner. Go to it, Steve:

"Well, that's quite some experience, eh?

"First I better give you an idea of what the Eagle is. It's a 218-seat house, and we run features and short subjects—giving usually an eight- to ten-reel show. The admission is always ten cents.

"I find in my locality that westerns and action pictures take best.

"We use an automatic organ for music, and have no complaints.

"There are two ushers. They are not costumed, but we are very strict with ushers, as to their conduct and deportment toward the patrons, and their personal appearance. This is an important item in a small house that draws all classes.

"Tips from Straight From the Shoulder are useful—very much so—in booking. More about booking later. Now I want to show how much advertising is done, then you'll have a good idea of everything.

"On a regular show I use two one-sheets, one six, and daily newspaper space.

"When a special feature is coming along I add to this with screen advertising, and throwaways or heralds.

"When anybody asks what the small exhibitor in the big city does to make money, they've come to the right place. My opposition house, sixteen hundred seats, plays vaudeville and pictures at fifteen cents lowest admission—five cents higher than my own house charges. (Some opposition, don't you think so?)

"For one thing, and the logical one, I watch for the pictures that are winners in the big house, and get as early a date as possible after his protection date; he cannot possibly have gotten all the people who ought to see a winner, and so of course I profit there.

"Another contributing factor to money-making is to watch for sure box office attractions, such as 'Captain Blood,' 'Spirit of the U. S. A.' and others: then, besides, pick the good stars of the type that your audience likes, in my case such as Tom Mix, Fred Thomson, Buck Jones, Richard Talmadge, and many of the other well-known stars.

"If you cannot make any money with such good stars, and good pictures properly advertised, there is something wrong—and here is a great big 'something' exemplified in a little story of one of my past experiences:

"I visited a small town house several months ago. My first step was to his projection room. I found machines and equipment very dirty; his condensers looked as if they had been

Say, Boys—

Some opposition!
1,600 seats to pull against—
And you with 218!
Could you make a proposition like that pay for six years?—and keep it building for the future?
The secret is worth knowing.
A man with eighteen years of picture experience has done the trick.
He tells you the secret.
It's simple.
It applies to small towns, too.

J. B. Tackett Builds Prairie Theatre to Give Kansas Folk Sunday Shows

Defies Ministers and Puts Up Unique Structure Just Over State Line

By HARRY GARTLEY

ON the open prairie three miles from Coffeyville, Kansas, John B. Tackett has bought a square block of land and is building a combination theatre which will give Sunday matinee and evening shows for Kansas citizens.

The state laws of Kansas prohibit Sunday shows, the Ministers' Alliance has declared war on Mr. Tackett; but he, risking an investment of $35,000 in a unique venture, goes on building his one-day-a-week theatre without fear of Kansas laws or Kansas ministers, because he is just across the line and in Oklahoma.

The lawmakers of Kansas, in their insistence that no theatres shall be open on Sundays, are responsible for Tackett's daring experiment. No matter what laws go on the books in any state, there always is a part of the populace that disagree violently with them. So it is in Kansas, and Tackett, well known to Kansas as an exhibitor, plans to make this dissatisfied element his clientele.

Clergy Declared War

When news of the venture reached the Ministers' Alliance, war was declared on Tackett. It is said that the various Coffeyville churches, one Sunday evening, denounced him in no uncertain terms. The congregations were asked to stand as a sign that they would boycott not only his new show house but also his theatre at Coffeyville, the Tackett.

But Tackett claims that the ministerial boycott has helped the Tackett Theatre. Business had been falling off, he claims, until the churches took action; then it immediately began to increase. The first Monday night after the boycott it picked up about ten dollars, and it has continued to improve until it now, he says, shows an average of twenty-five dollars a day over what it was before the churches took him to task. Incidentally, boycotts are distinctly illegal, according to Kansas laws.

The combination house which Mr. Tackett is constructing on the prairie will be seventy-five feet wide by 140 feet long. The stage will be thirty-five feet wide and have a depth of eighteen feet, with no loft. Twenty-five-foot scenery may be used.

The building is being constructed of concrete and tile so that it will be thoroughly fire-proof. The seating capacity will be about 1,500 and the estimated cost at completion is $35,000.

The management intends to stage Sunday matinees and evening shows, which will consist of road shows, vaudeville and pictures. A ten-piece orchestra will furnish the music. The date of the opening has not yet been announced.

Just what effect this dispute with the Ministers' Alliance will have on Mr. Tackett's business at the two theatres is problematical at this time. He says that the alleged boycott has helped the Tackett Theatre, but it has been the experience of many exhibitors that open warfare with clergymen and their congregations is dangerous to their investment. It will be interesting to see how Mr. Tackett, a good fighter himself, will fare.

Mr. Tackett began in the show business at Coffeyville. He had previously operated a photograph gallary there. It was twenty-seven years ago when he started his first show, a theatre where he showed old stock thrillers like "Nellie, the Beautiful Cloak Model." When motion pictures began to attain to popularity, he quit the legitimate forever, so that now he can point to about twenty years in the motion picture business. Friends credit him with the distinction of owning and operating the first picture theatre west of Chicago.

In the early days of the picture business Mr. Tackett made the Dalton boys the subject of a film thriller, showing the raid on the Coffeyville bank which wound up the activities of the Dalton gang. His initial returns from this picture opened new fields of endeavor. He toured the country, managing the picture and Emmett Dalton, who had left prison and was lecturing. He also made a few other thrillers, including one based on "Scout" Younger, which were financial successes.

Tackett Well Known

Returning from the road, Mr. Tackett bought a lot at 100 West Eighth street, Coffeyville, converting the barn on it into a theatre seating 800 and showing both pictures and vaudeville. In 1918, he constructed his present theatre on the same site. It is a handsome brick strueture possessing all the latest and best equipment. The capacity is 1,200 and the prices are 25 and 35 cents for matinees and 35 and 50 cents for evening shows. In it he has continued his policy of pictures and vaudeville. Recently, "The Sea Hawk," booked for three days, did a capacity business, selling out three times a day.

Mr. Tackett is well known to theatrical men from coast to coast. Men of the legitimate stage, of vaudeville, of pictures know and like him. Undoubtedly they are in sympathy with him in his present daring venture.

That Final Touch of Courtesy

GOOD motion pictures, good projection, comfortable seats and a well polished handle on the big front door aren't all the requisites of a successful picture theatre. No sir-e-e. Competition has waxed as stiff as the mustache of an English lord, so the exhibitor must delight patrons through service.

Exemplifying this ideal of service is a bulletin recently issued to the ushering staff of the new Milwaukee Theatre, Milwaukee, by Assistant Manager Louis C. Shimon. He called it "Selling Your Services" and it read as follows:

"Did you ever think of working out a plan for systematically selling your services for a larger amount than you now receive for them? You have thought yourself worth more money, but what efforts do you put forth to show that you deserve more? Are you making a study of ushering? Of courtesy? Of tact? Good talking points are necessary to sell anything.

"It's up to you to prove to the management that you are more expert than the majority of the men engaged in your line. So don't be afraid of a little extra work. You'll surely win a heavier pay envelope if you will first remember that you're selling your services."

Why not ask your ushers to paste this in their hat?

Vitagraph Quits Hays Organization, Quoting 'Live and Let Live' Belief

Daylight Movies on Broadway During the Eclipse

For the first time in the history of the world a moving picture was shown during the darkness resulting from the total eclipse of the sun on Saturday last.

The Famous Players-Lasky Corporation had made arrangements with the Police Department to project as many reels of "The Ten Commandments" in Times Square as could be shown during the darkness resulting from the eclipse. A projection machine, placed in the traffic tower at Broadway and 44th street, threw moving pictures across Broadway onto a screen placed outside the Criterion Theatre.

Here, at last, was something new under the sun (even though it was in eclipse!). Motion pictures had not been invented at the time of the last total eclipse visible in the United States, in 1806.

The scholarly press agent further announced that "this unique entertainment can positively not be repeated during the next ninety-nine years, since New York is not scheduled for a return engagement of this heavenly entertainment until 2024."

The co-operation of Commissioner John A. Harriss had been obtained for this interesting scientific experiment. A projection machine placed in the traffic tower directly opposite the Criterion had a "throw" across Broadway to the Criterion, which is much shorter than the "throw" in some of the larger Broadway theatres. Harry A. Rubin, in charge of projection, had no mechanical difficulty in achieving clear projection on the outdoor screen.

It was as dark in Times Square during the eclipse as it is in the interior of the average motion picture theatre. The electric sign and lights of the marquise of the Criterion were extinguished to facilitate projection.

Special arrangements had been made by the Police Department to handle the crowd of 7,000 that assembled at this world premiere of a picture in God's projection room.

The program started at 9:02 a. m. and several reels were shown. Green celluloid eyeshades were distributed without charge to those who viewed the eclipse from Times Square.

AGAINST ELECTROLIERS

The recent action of a downtown San Francisco theatre in making use of electroliers in advertising its show, and which resulted in a civic organization having the offending cards removed, has led to an order from Chief of Police Dan O'Brien that patrolmen remove all advertising matter posted contrary to law and that offending parties be arrested.

THEY TRY IT AGAIN

The California State Legislature is in session at Sacramento and the usual measure to prohibit the sale of theatre tickets unless a seat is ready for the patron has been introduced. This is aimed at picture houses and others having continuous performances.

Withdrawal Will Have No Effect on Attitude "of Interest in Welfare of Everyone in Industry" Says Hays Office

VITAGRAPH, INC., has resigned its membership in the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors, Inc., commonly known as the Hays organization.

Vitagraph makes the formal announcement to the trade in a page advertisement, which appears elsewhere in this issue, and which reads:

"Vitagraph has resigned from the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, Inc. (Commonly known as the Hays organization).

"Vitagraph will do its fighting in the open.

"Vitagraph is not a competitor of the exhibitor.

"Vitagraph will continue its policy of live and let live.

"Watch your step, Mr. Exhibitor.

"ALBERT E. SMITH, President."

On the heels of Vitagraph's announcement of resignation the following statement was issued by Courtland Smith, of the Hays office.

"On October 11, 1922, Vitagraph gave notice of its intention to withdraw, which withdrawal would have become effective within six months from that date. However, they continued to pay dues until January 10, 1925. From the standpoint of this office, this simply means the termination of their active participation in the work of the association, and will of course have no effect on the attitude of this office, which is one of interest in the welfare of every one in the industry."

Accompanying Mr. Smith's statement was a list of the nine original members of the association and the seventeen companies who were subsequently elected and a list of the three who have resigned since the association's inception.

Vitagraph, the oldest film producing concern in America, was one of the nine charter members of the association.

In announcing Vitagraph's withdrawal Barran Lewis, representing Albert E. Smith, president, issued to the press a statement which reads in part:

"When the Motion Picture Producers & Distributors of America, Inc., was organized, Vitagraph became a charter member because it believed the industry could be bettered through the labors of such an organization. There was much injustice in the industry, and the sufferers were not only the exhibitors and independent producers, but the public as well.

"The public has had foisted on it pictures which brought quick and just criticisms for morbid and salacious sex scenes. It was to clean up this situation and to bring about justice that the Hays organization was formed, and Vitagraph entered in in the belief that justice could be arrived at within the industry.

"Vitagraph withdraws because it does not believe that justice to the distributors and to the public and to those independent producers who are not theatre-owning exhibitors can be obtained through the labors of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America.

"This organization has issued much propaganda favoring clean pictures. Vitagraph has issued only clean pictures and no propoganda. Vitagraph has produced clean, wholesome pictures for twenty-seven years and enters its twenty-eighth year in February more confident than ever before that clean pictures win.

"Vitagraph makes them and makes them for the public—not for its self-owned theatres. Vitagraph owns no theatres, therefore it can give the public what it wants without strings tied to it."

A. M. P. A. Learns How Hillyer Gets His Action

Members of the Associated Motion Picture Advertisers know now just why the pictures that Lambert Hillyer directs are notable for action, moving drama and thrills per se. He related to the members of the A. M. P. A. at their weekly luncheon at the Cafe Boulevard on January 22 just how much he loves action in the pictures he makes—so much, in fact, he said, that he frequently doubles for the players when they are called upon to perform some hazardous feat.

His interesting talk was highly enjoyed by the publicity men. A new member of the A. M. P. A. in the person of Fred Stanley, First National's New York studio publicity director, was introduced, and C. L. Yearsley bade farewell to his fellow-members on the eve of his departure for California.

Victor Shapiro, on behalf of the various committees arranging for the Naked Truth dinner and dance at the Hotel Astor on Saturday night, February 7, announced that arrangements had been about completed and that nearly everybody in the profession who is anybody would be in attendance.

Massachusetts Amusement Co. Seeking Strike Injunction

THE Strand Realty & Amusement Company, Inc., of Fall River, Mass., is seeking an injunction to prevent the Musicians' Union of that city from calling a strike in the Strand and other theatres of the city in which Nathan Yamins is the general manager and treasurer. At a master's hearing on the petition of the amusement company, members of the musicians' union denied that there was any conspiracy between them and members of the stage employes and operators' unions to close the theatres. During the hearing telegrams and letters were introduced for the purpose of showing that the stagehands and projectionists' unions had authority to strike along with the musicians.

The controversy started when the musicians in the Bijou Theatre were discharged on December 20, following the installation of an organ. The musicians' contention is that they held a contract for a period of forty weeks. Mr. Yamins was one of the signers of the contract, which was offered in evidence, with Leo B. Shoob, union leader. During November, at a time when business at the Bijou had started to decline, Mr. Yamins conferred with Mr. Shoob regarding a reduction in the personnel of the orchestra. At this time he told Mr. Shoob that he (Yamins) never had received a copy of the contract and that he did not consider that one existed. Mr. Shoob had the copy in his possession, but had neglected to give it to Mr. Yamins after he had received it from the union, which also has a copy.

Mr. Yamins testified that despite the fact that the contract entered into beween Mr. Shoob and the eight other musicians, and which he had signed in behalf of the Bijou Theatre, was for forty weeks, he could terminate it by giving two weeks' notice. The union and Mr. Shoob contend that the contract is for forty weeks, was signed for that length of time and that it could not be terminated except by mutual agreement.

Although Mr. Yamins denied the validity of the contract he acknowledged that he was aware a contract would have to be signed by Mr. Shoob as leader and the musicians, but contended that the one introduced was invalid.

Asked if he had been threatened or intimidated by any of the defendants named, Mr. Yamins replied that he had not. However, he did say that threats had been made by members of the union. He explained this by saying that a woman had telephoned to him and said that she had overheard the conversation in which the threats were made.

Among the corporations which Mr. Yamins seeks to have an injunction apply are the Plaza Company, controlling the Plaza Theatre; Strand Realty Company, controlling the Strand, Park and Pastime theatres; Rialto Amusement Company, controlling the Rialto and Bijou theatres.

EDWARD BOWES

Vice-President of Metro-Goldwyn Dist. Corp. and Managing Director of Capitol Theatre, New York, appointed major and staff specialist in Officers Reserve Corps of U. S. Army

Pennsylvania Installs Schad President; Hears Cohen

Sydney S. Cohen, chairman of the Administrative Committee of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America, was the principal speaker at a meeting and luncheon of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of Eastern Pennsylvania, Southern New Jersey and Delaware, held at the Hotel Vendig, Philadelphia.

The officers nominated at the previous meeting and elected at this session were: President, H. J. Schad; first vice president, M. E. Comerford; second vice president, Floyd Hopkins; third vice president, William Cohen; treasurer, M. Lessy; secretary, G. P. Aarons. Board of Managers to serve for three years, Columbus Stamper, A. B. Smith and N. T. Powers.

Kansas Exhibitors Puzzled By Odd Censorship Muddle

KANSAS exhibitors are in the midst of one of the strangest fights over censorship that perhaps ever occurred in the Middle West. Led by Senator James W. Finley, a hot battle is on in the Kansas legislature to abolish the censorship board. But the strange part of it is that Kansas theatre owners are at a loss to know just whether they want the censorship board abolished or not. And there is good reason for their doubt.

It is possible that M. P. T. O. Kansas and Missouri headquarters may, in an emergency, issue a hurried despatch of questionnaires to obtain the opinions of exhibitors. The status of the situation is this: On several occasions many Kansas towns have been threatened with self-appointed, blue-nosed censors, members of various local organizations who sought to impose an additional censorship to that provided by the regular state board at Kansas City. These movements quickly were quashed by the attorney general, but in many towns the "spirit" still is alive. Should official state censorship be abolished, would Kansas become overridden with an avalanche of unofficial censors? That is the big question theatre owners are asking. As a rule, the exhibitor organization and the state censor board have worked in co-operation and exhibitors are a bit dubious about a "leap into the dark."

Then there is another angle. Exhibitors in far Western Kansas now must obtain their films from Kansas City, bearing the Kansas censorship seal, when the Denver market is but a figurative stone's throw away. The elimination of censorship in Kansas would save a great deal in shipping cost to these exhibitors. It is a perplexing quandry which must be dealt with quickly, all exhibitors agree.

If state censorship were abolished, would individual city censorship still be legal? That is another question the solution of which is being sought. The censorship fight was not started by the exhibitors, but, according to the views of influential politicians, the censor board appears doomed. Senator Finley is the chairman of the senate investigation committee appointed to probe the management of all state appointive boards. An excerpt of his committee's report reads:

"We recommend that the Board of Review, popularly known as the state censorship board, whose duty it is to pass on all films admitted to the state of Kansas for exhibition, be abolished. Your committee feels that this board is a comparative useless one."

One check on exhibitors, however, was contained in the recommendation. The committee would make the exhibition of any picture which is degrading or immoral in character punishable as a misdemeanor.

BANDIT GETS $415

One of the boldest robberies in the history of the South Bend, Ind., police department took place a few nights ago when a lone bandit held up H. S. Cohen, treasurer of the Palace Theatre, and robbed him of $415.20. The robbery was executed in the lobby of the theatre, just behind the ticket booth, as patrons were filing out the doors. On obtaining the money the bandit made a hasty retreat and fled down an alley.

Selling Your Seats

How Balaban & Katz sold Abraham Lincolu.

Kenimer hooks Hot Water to the plumbers.

Patent locks for Locked Doors.

How Hyman surrounded Inez from Hollywood.

Used two displays on The Sea Hawk.

Offered a prize as to the why of a title.

Navy A boards sell three ideas.

Largest spud at potato matinee got season pass.

Jack Rowley's shrinking color schemes.

Women's Clubs put over Broken Laws.

Musical program beats out business slump.

Used a play title for a city celebration slogan.

Edgar Hart pulls a pair of peaches.

Good stunts for North of 36.

Good advertising examples on Circe, Her Night of Romance, His Hour, Wine of Youth, The Clean Heart and a puzzle layout for The Navigator that is the best thing yet.

All of these and some more are parked just a few pages toward the back. And every page is worth a lot of dollars to the man who hustles.

Three Big Chicago Theatres Planned; Total Cost Will Exceed $2,000,000

Schoenstadt, the United and Lynch & Miller Builders--Will Provide 6,750 Additional Seats--Improving South Water Street

THE pace set by the builders of picture theatres in Chicago and suburbs is a swift one, and the past week is no exception with the announcement of three new houses. The largest is projected by H. Schoenstadt & Sons, for the southwest corner of Archer and Robey Streets, on a site 321 by 150 feet. It will be known as the New Archer Theatre, and seat 2,500. The new house will cost in excess of $500,000. The interior will be of Pompeian design in red, blue gold and black colors. The front will be of Bedford stone and the balance in tapestry brick, giving the new house a dignified and modest appearance. The site was acquired about three years ago by the Schoenstadt circuit and it is expected to be ready for occupancy before November 1.

The second house projected is the Sayre Theatre, to be erected by the newly organized United Theatres Corporation of America, on Grand avenue just west of Sayre avenue. Gallup & Joy, architects, have designed a 2,250-seat house with a large stage for presentations and vaudeville. Work will start at once, with completion set for November 1. The Sayre Theatre Corporation will build the house and it is expected that about $1,000,000 will be required to build and equip it.

The third house announced for the week is a three-story theatre building at Maywood, a West Side suburb, by V. T. Lynch and E. D. Miller, who already operate the New Tiffin, Milford, Avon, Savoy, Park Ridge and York, and are building a new house at Roosevelt road and Ridgeland avenue which will be ready this summer. The new Maywood house will cost $500,000, be of Bedford stone and tapestry brick construction and have 2,000 seats. The site is the west side of Fifth avenue, just south of Washington boulevard.

With the beginning of the South Water street improvement program and the double decking of the River boulevard, several theatres are projected for the new district. The latest to be announced is an 800-seat house on the site of 111-117 South Water street, that is at present occupied by one of the commission firms. The balcony of the projected house will be on the level with the main boulevard street, while the main floor will open on the automobile driveway on the present street level. The Baird & Warner syndicate paid $310,000 for the 80 by 150 foot site.

Another theatre circuit is undergoing changes in corporate structure with the forming of the Broadway Building Corporation by Louis, Julius and M. S. Marks, who operate the Marks Brothers Theatres, Inc., which will be succeeded by the new company organized last week. The same principals have incorporated the Fullerton Theatre Company, with a capital of $20,000, to operate the Fullerton Theatre. The new Broadway Strand Company has a capital of $500,000 and the offices are located at 1641 West Roosevelt road.

John C. Wood, Charles E. Raymond and R. W. Burns have organized the Hinsdale Theatre Building Corporation at Hinsdale, Ill., a western suburb of Chicago, with a capital of $125,000 to erect and operate a picture theatre there.

Alexander W. Hannah has sold the Milford Theatre Building at Milwaukee and Crawford avenue to Mrs. Esther Homer for $364,000, subject to a mortgage of $219,000. The house seats 1,188 and is under the Lynch management and the lease by the circuit will not be affected by the new owner.

It is reported that Balaban & Katz will take over the active management of the McVickers Theatre under the recent deal the middle of February, but as yet no appointments have been made.

Louis Laemmle has added another theatre to his chain, the Century at 47th and Prairie avenue. It was formerly conducted by Theodore Teicher, who will announce his new connections soon.

IN TOWN WITH "RAG MAN" PRINT

Arthur L. Bernstein, general manager of the Jackie Coogan productions and a member of the board of directors of the West Coast Theatres, is in town with Larry Weingarten, Jackie's publicity director. Bernstein has a print of "The Rag Man," the little star's fourth Metro-Goldwyn picture, with him.

New Chicago Chain

A new picture theatre circuit was launched here last week by Vincent Lynch, J. J. Lynch, William J. Miller and their associates, under the name of the Northwest Circuit, Inc.

Charles Casanave has resigned his connection with the Interstate Circuit and will be managing director of the new circuit, with offices in the Standard Oil Building at 910 South Michigan avenue.

Among the theatres that will be served by the new organization are the New Tiffin, Milford, Karlov, Famous, Hub, Alvin, Apollo, Crystal, Home and Clifford, of Chicago; the Yorke at Elmhurst and the Ridge at Park Ridge. Other houses will be added from time to time as the circuit expands, and it is expected before long to be one of the big four in this part of the country.

The men connected with the new organization are well known to the trade and have won their way up in the picture business by hard work.

Rochester University Now Controls 3 Theatres

Three large Rochester motion picture theatres are now under the control of the University of Rochester, the Eastman, the Piccadilly and the Regent. The university has just become the majority stockholder in the Regorson corporation, controlling the two latter houses, through the transfer of George Eastman's holdings. No change is contemplated in the management of the Regorson corporation as the university will play the part of silent stockholder and will take no active part in the operation of the theatres. Its part will be much the same as it plays in the Eastman Kodak Company, in which it now is one of the largest individual stockholders, although having no representative in the control of the affairs of the concern.

With the university controlling the major portion of the stock in the corporation and planning to take no active part in its control, no change in the type of amusement offered at either house is anticipated. Majority stock in the Regorson corporation was acquired March 7, 1922, soon after the opening of the Eastman Theatre, the gift of Mr. Eastman to the university. The control was purchased from Marcus Loew, who operated the two houses as well as the Gordon. George W. Todd has acted as president of the corporation since that time. His associates were Edward Bausch, James E. Gleason, Libanus M. Todd and Mr. Eastman.

Fox Pictures on Gotham's Rialto

Week of January 25

Lyric Theatre—George O'Brien and Madge Bellamy in "The Iron Horse."

Piccadilly Theatre—Tom Mix in "Dick Turpin."

Central Theatre—Betty Blythe in "Folly of Vanity."

B. S. Moss' Broadway Theatre—George O'Brien, Alma Rubens and Madge Bellamy in "The Dancers."

Independents Are Throttled, Garsson Tells Will Hays

MURRAY W. GARSSON, of Garsson Enterprises, Inc., in a letter addressed to Will H. Hays, president of the M. P. P. D. A., protests against a condition which he alleges is paralyzing fair competition in the distribution of motion pictures, as far as the independent producer is concerned.

This condition, he asserts, is brought about by what he claims as "unfair" methods of certain big producing companies, alluded to by him as "the motion picture trusts."

"Speaking for myself," says Mr. Garsson's letter, in part, "methods . . . are more throttling to compentition today than ever before in the history of the industry, with the possible exception of the old General Film Company."

Mr. Garsson asserts that unless an independent producer like himself sells his product to the producers against whom his claim is directed, he will be incapable of grossing a revenue sufficient to cover the cost of production.

"This," he continues, "is occasioned, first, by . . . block booking of product to an extent which leaves them (exhibitors) with absolutely no open time for independent pictures of merit; second, through ownership of theatres throughout the country, independent producers are frozen out of an opportunity to dispose of their productions.

"And unless the exhibitor is given some relief of this same menace, it will, in a short time, drive every independent exhibitor out of business."

Mr. Garsson continues his letter with the prediction that if conditions are allowed to continue in the direction, and at the pace, that they now seem to be progressing, the eventuality will see a coalition of large interests which, he alleges, will provoke a cataclysm, exhibitors having to accept such screen material as may be chosen for their screens.

"I see no hope (of removal of this alleged condition) except through government intervention," Mr. Garsson states in the closing paragraph of his letter, "but before presenting the facts to the proper authorities I would like an expression from you as to what has been done."

Dr. Curtis Suggests "Movie University"

Dr. Henry S. Curtis, of the State Department of Education, of Missouri, says that America is now ready for a "Movie University" where specially instructed corps of experts can devise scenarios and, drawing from expertly trained sources, enact them into motion pictures of high standard.

"The movie has an unquestioned place in education," says Dr. Curtis in the official organ of the Recreation and Playground Association of America. "The impressions produced by the screen are much more vivid and permanent than the impressions produced by the printed page, especially in children."

VERNON RICHEY PASSES ON

Vernon O. Richey, projectionist of the Little Gem Theatre at Hunter, Ark., died on January 15 from burns received from a gasoline explosion that occurred some days earlier.

Coming and Going

I. E. Chadwick, president of the Chadwick Pictures Corporation, has left New York for an extended stay in Los Angeles.

J. J. Fleming, president of Fleming Productions, Inc., has arrived in New York this week for a conference with J. Charles Davis, 2nd, president of Davis Distributing Division, Inc.

Mr. and Mrs. Marcus Loew left New York on January 28 for a month's vacation at Palm Beach. Before his return he will make an inspection tour of his southern theatre properties, stopping at New Orleans, where his newest theatre is in course of construction; Memphis, Nashville, Birmingham and Atlanta.

James R. Grainger returned from Havana this week, having made many stops in the South en route.

Robert C. Fox of Golden Rule Pictures Corporation is in New York negotiating the purchase of film for upper New York State.

C. L. Yearsley of Ritz Pictures is expected to leave for Hollywood this week.

Paramount's home office folk who attended the Atlanta gathering have returned to the city.

Lou Marangella has returned from Rome, Italy, with the vanguard of the "Ben-Hur" company.

Howard Deitz, of Metro-Goldwyn, left recently for the Coast.

F. Watts of the English branch of Pathe Freres is here in conference on short subjects for England.

Harrett C. Kiesling, personal representative for Cecil B. DeMille, is in New York.

H. P. Schulberg will arrive from the West Coast the first week in February.

State Rights Sales

B. Berger, general manager for Garsson Pictures, has closed a franchise for the series of Richard Holt productions with Progress Features, San Francisco, for the territory comprising California, Arizona, Nevada and the Hawaiian Islands. The franchise covers the entire series of Holt pictures, three of which, "Ten Days," "Too Much Youth" and "It Can Be Done" (working title), are already completed and the fourth, "The Canvas-kisser," is in the course of production.

Contracts as follows have been closed by Arrow Pictures Corporation:

Progress Pictures Corporation, St. Louis, "California in '49," for Eastern Missouri and Southern Illinois.

American Feature Film Company, Philadelphia, "The Lost Chord," for Eastern Pennsylvania, Southern New Jersey and Delaware.

Federated Film Exchange, Boston, "The Lost Chord," for New England.

Unique Foto Film, New York City, twelve Tom and Jerry comedies for Greater New York and Northern New Jersey.

Liberty Film Exchange, Washington, D. C., "Riders of the Plains," "California in '49" and "Big Boy Williams," for Maryland, Virginia and District of Columbia.

Nat A. Magner, San Francisco, "Riders of the Plains," for California, Arizona, Nevada and Hawaiian Islands.

Progress Pictures Company, Chicago, "Playing the Ponies," for Northern Illinois, Indiana and Wisconsin. Also "Mysteries of Mah Jong."

Moscow Films, Inc., Boston, "Playing the Ponies," for New England.

Congressional Patents Group Hears Arguments on Copyright

AN animated hearing on the Perkins Copyright Bill was held on January 22 before the Patents Committee of the House of Representatives, at which over 100 leading authors were present in favor of the measure, together with the members of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers who are anxious to have this bill become a law.

Just prior to the close of the evening session, National President M. J. O'Toole of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America arose and presented a brief containing the reasons why his organization opposed the bill.

Mr. O'Toole's outstanding objections are: The right of the copyright owner to control public performance of his work; the provisions making wilful infringement a misdemeanor, the term of copyright protection accorded by the act, the entrance of the United States into the International Copyright Union, and that the act should forbid copyright owners to combine for the enforcement of their rights under copyright.

Mr. O'Toole contended that because "music is the soul of a nation," Congress should take fully into consideration the rights of the American people in legislation pertaining to this important subject. He pointed out the public service elements of the picture theatre screen which were freely extended to the officials of the government by the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America, and stated that because of the relative position occupied by the theatre owners, as the custodians of the "Screen Press of America," Congress should grant no copyright privileges which would have any tendency to inhibit the activities or interfere with the progress of such great agencies that are of consequence to the general weliare of the people of United States.

Another hearing on the Perkins Copyright Bill will be held on February 3. Mr. O'Toole contemplates attending. February 2 will find him in Concord, N. H., as the guest of Dave Adams, a prominent exhibitor in that state, who has arranged several speaking engagements for Mr. O'Toole. From Concord, Mr. O'Toole will leave for Washington.

D. M. HARTFORD ENGAGED

The Detroit Motion Picture Company of Detroit, Mich., which was recently reorganized with Albert P. Ternes as president, has engaged David M. Hartford of Los Angeles as director and general manager. He will take charge immediately.

"Galloping Hoofs"

with Allene Ray and Johnnie Walker

When Has a Serial Ever Had a Cast Like This?

ALLENE RAY

Names! Names Names!

Allene Ray, star of the greatest serial success of a decade, "The Way of a Man."

Johnnie Walker, feature star, with real popularity and drawing power.

J. Barney Sherry, celebrated character actor, identified with some of the greatest feature successes extant.

Ernest Hilliard, George Nardelli, Armand Cortez, Albert Rocardi and William Nally,—all of them used by the greatest directors because of real merit.

All together in a slashing, smashing story of racing hearts and horses.

J. BARNEY SHERRY

JOHNNIE WALKER

A George B. Seitz Production

Produced by MALCOLM STRAUSS

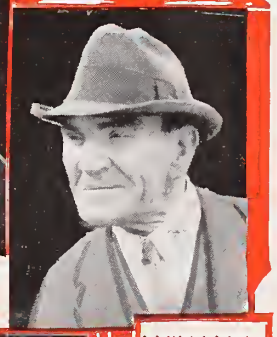
Directed by
FRANK LEON SMITH

ARMAND CORTEZ

GEORGE NARDELLI



WILLIAM NALLY

ERNEST HILLIARD

ALBERT ROCARDI

Pathéserial

TRADE MARK

HAL ROACH COMEDIES

One Reel

with Charley Chase

"The Royal Razz" Was the First One-Reel Comedy Ever to Play the Stanley Theatre, Philadelphia

The same comedy, "The Royal Razz," played three Balaban and Katz houses, day and date. Also shown at the California, San Francisco; the Strand, Brooklyn; and many other big first run houses.

Positively the best one reel comedies ever offered the exhibitor, vying with the best feature comedies in quality.

"When it comes to comedy of the clean-cut, theatrically effective type there is no surer hand than Charlie Chase. . . The Hal Roach-Charlie Chase comedies offer one of the most consistent single reel series ever given to exhibitors. . .

All Wet' is rich in original bits of comedy and is extraordinarily bright."—M. P. World.

" The Rat's Knuckles' is a very funny comedy "
—Film Daily.

"A good pair to draw to"

Pathécomedy

TRADE MARK

Prospect Press, Inc., New York

Indiana State Legislature Discusses Censorship and Blue Sundays

"J. D." Signs King

Jaydee Williams, president of Ritz-Carlton Pictures, at present in Hollywood with his company's Rudolph Valentino unit, announces that he has signed Henry King to produce two specials.

King will start as soon as he completes the two pictures he is now making for Robert Kane, for Paramount release.

King's Ritz pictures will be made in Hollywood. He directed "The White Sister," "Tol'able David," "Sonny," "Twenty-three and a Half Hours' Leave," "Romola" and others.

Williams' activities in Hollywood are being watched with much interest owing to significant changes now taking place in the industry. No announcement is made as to the release of the King pictures.

"Bill" Yearsley left last Tuesday for Hollywood to co-operate on preliminary exploitation of the Valentino and King productions.

Berinstein Purchases Elmira Theatre and Will Enlarge It

Radical changes in the policy of the Berinstein theatrical interests in Elmira, N. Y., are foreshadowed by the purchase of the controlling interest in the Regent Theatre, owned by the Harton Theatre Company of Pittsburgh, by Benjamin and M. and Harry L. Berinstein. The Berinsteins expect to acquire all the stock by February 1.

As soon as necessary alterations can be made in the Regent, Keith vaudeville and pictures, now being offered at the Majestic, will be transferred to the Regent. Pictures exclusively will be shown at the Majestic. The new owners intend to spend $175,000 in remodeling the house. The Arlington Hotel, included in the real estate transfer, will be torn down and the theatre extended through to State street, increasing the capacity from 863 to 2,500. The plans call for the installation of lounging rooms on the mezzanine floor and a new balcony.

PAUL G. LYNCH DIES

Paul G. Lynch, for four or five years manager of Seattle Pathe, died at his home in Seattle early Wednesday morning. Mr. Lynch had been absent from his desk but two weeks. His demise was credited to a complete nervous collapse. He was held in high esteem by his associates and competitors on Film Row, and was but lately returned as president of the Northwest Film Board of Trade. He is survived by a widow, two daughters and one son. His passing will be sincerely mourned by many. District Manager Walter Wessling, who was in Denver, will doubtless go to Seattle to take charge of the office and appoint a successor.

Arbiters of Morals Would Number Five and Get $3,000 a Year Each—Sabbath Bill to Make Baseball Exception to Rule SCREEN censorship was one of the principal topics of conversation in Hoosier legislative circles last week as a result of the formal appearance in the House of Representatives on Friday of the 1925 edition of the motion picture censorship bill, which has been making biennial legislative debuts for several years. The 1925 version was introduced by William Y. Hinkle of Indianapolis, and is expected to have the support of the Ku Klux Klan forces.

The bill would provide for the creation of a state board of censors of five members at an annual salary of $3,000 each, to censor and pass on "all moving pictures and moving picture films. The members of the board would be named by the governor and designated as follows: One who "shall" be recommended by the Indiana State Sunday School Association, a member of the Ministerial Association, two attorneys in good standing before the state supreme court and one member of the Indiana Medical Association.

The Hinkle bill also provides that no films shall be shown which shall not be of "the required moral and educational standard," which shall "operate as propaganda against any religious sect or creed," or which "shall reflect discredit upon the army, navy or marine corps or any public official, or which might in any way be improper for public exhibition."

The bill makes it the duty of the board of censors to censor "any and all" pictures and films before they are shown. The board is compelled to grant a license for the showing of a picture if it decides it does not meet the restrictions of the bill. It also makes it the duty of persons or concerns producing or distributing films to maintain a place in Indianapolis where the films may be shown for the board. A fee of $25 is fixed for examining each picture, this money to go to the state treasurer.

A fine of $1,000 to $5,000 is fixed by the bill as a penalty for persons or concerns refusing to abide by the law. The bill would compel the board members to remain on duty from 8 a. m. to 5 p. m. The measure has been referred to the committee on public morals and will be the subject of a public hearing the latter part of the week.

The Kissinger "Blue Sunday" bill, which would make it a crime to do almost everything except sleep on the Sabbath, and which was thrown into the legislative hopper of the Indiana general assembly last week, will be amended by its author before it is reported out of the house public morals committee, it was announced this week following a public hearing on the bill. The bill will be changed so as not to apply to Sunday baseball, it was said.

When it is ready to be reported out of committee, it is expected to come with a divided report, some members favoring indefinite postponement and others recommending passage. This means that it probably will be the subject of a lively fight on the floor of the house.

The Rev. Thomas J. Johnson of Fort Wayne, state secretary of the Lord's Day Alliance, who drafted the measure, was one of its staunch defenders at the public hearing. He explained that the present "blue law" statute is not strong enough to enable the authorities to obtain convictions. The bill just introduced was drawn to strengthen the penalties, he said, in the hope that such "teeth" would result in enforcement of the law.

Frederick H. Martin of Pittsburgh, Pa., representing the Presbyterian churches of America, urged the necessity for a strong law to bring about respect for the Sabbath.

Representative Herbert P. Kenney of New Albany asked who would enforce the measure if it were enacted into law.

"Why, the people, of course," replied Martin.

"Well, then, what's the necessity for a new law?" inquired Representative Kenney. "We have a Sunday closing law on the books now, but they say it can't be enforced because the people won't enforce it. If they don't enforce the present law what evidence do you have that they will enforce the new one?"

Mr. Martin did not reply.

In further discussion of the bill, Mr. Martin pointed out that Pennsylvania had strict Sunday closing laws and they had proved very successful.

"You may have strict Sunday closing laws," said Kenney, "but you can get more whiskey in Pittsburgh on Sunday than any place else."

John H. Talge, an Indianapolis manufacturer, opposed the bill for religious reasons, saying that it was an injustice to "tag Sunday on the Lord, as there were no passages in the Bible which specified that the first day of the week should be the day of rest." He said the seventh day was the proper rest day.

The Kissinger bill, if enacted into a law, would mean the closing of all picture theatres, amusement places of any kind and all business houses on Sundays.

POLI'S REAL ESTATE

S. Z. Poli, theatre magnate, is listed on the tax list in Hartford, Conn., for $1,349,500, the second highest sum recorded. Mr. Poli operates the Palace and Capitol in Hartford.

New Jersey Theatre Owners Oppose Copyright Amendment

THE Board of Directors of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of New Jersey last week went on record as opposing the Perkins amendment to the United States Copyright Law and called up for consideration the several measures pending in the New Jersey Legislature having to do with Sunday opening of theatres and the repeal of sundry so-called "Blue Laws."

The board addressed the following telegram to Representative Randolph Perkins, who represents the Sixth New Jersey District, comprising Woodcliff, Bergen, Sussex and Warren Counties, in the House of Representatives:

"Motion Picture Theatre Owners of New Jersey protest against the passage of the Perkins Copyright Bill now before the Patents Committee of Congress. Proposed law imposes special hardship upon theatre owners and fails to give them the relief they need from the unfair music license tax."

At the close of discussion on this subject it was decided that the officers and directors of the board confer with officials in Washington, D. C., the committee going to the National Capitol on Monday, January 26.

The members received a report from the Committee on Legislation which was most gratifying.

Governor Silzer, upon the convening of the New Jersey House of Assembly, presented to the Assembly a copy of the Union County Grand Jury presentment in relation to the enforcement of the so-called "Blue Laws," urging a modification relative to Sunday observance and particularly in the amusement field.

The Union County Grand Jury presentment advocates the repeal of existing laws, enacted 126 years ago and governing the sale of articles on Sunday as well as the curtailment of amusements. The presentment urged that legislation be enacted with a view to obtaining a state referendum in the next general election.

Miss May Carty, who represents Jersey City in the New Jersey Legislature, introduced a bill on January 13 (Assembly Bill No. 65) to amend existing laws to permit amusements on Sunday under referendum for municipalities. It was referred to the Committee on Social Welfare.

The board meeting was held on January 22 at Brindle's Inn, Paterson, when the officers and directors of the state organization were the guests at luncheon of Vice-President Peter Adams, who proved an excellent host. Those present, in addition to President Seider and Vice-President Adams, were: Sidney Samuelson, chairman of the board; William Keegan, treasurer; Henry P. Nelson, secretary; Benjamin Schindler, Louis Rosenthal, Leon Rosenblatt, Moe Kridel and George Gold.

Members are being provided with an ornate plaque to be hung near the box-office window to indicate that the owner of the theatre belongs to the state body. Correspondence on this subject may be addressed by William Keegan at Trenton.

The resignation of Arthur B. Smith from the Board of Directors because of the sale of his theatre to the W. C. Hun Circuit, which came as a surprise to his associates, was read and action thereon deferred pending the return of Mr. Smith, who is now on a voyage around the world. It is not known whether Mr. Smith plans to return to the picture industry, and the members will wait until this point is settled. Mr. Smith is one of the best known, best liked and most active showmen in New Jersey, and it is believed that the voyage was taken with the view to obtaining a complete rest. Mr. and Mrs. Smith sailed last week from New York and plan to be gone several months.

Mr. Schindler reported to the board on the meeting of the Chamber of Commerce of Gloucester, at which M. J. O'Toole, president of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America, spoke on the subject of Sunday opening.

Henry P. Nelson of Elizabeth, secretary of the state organization, has recovered from his long illness. One of the most active showmen of the state and always in the midst of every hot battle, Mr. Nelson will be an outstanding figure in the effort which the state organization will wage during the remainder of the session of the House of Assembly to put over Sunday opening and obtain the revision of existing laws.

The Moeller Theatre Service is rapidly augmenting its list of industrial films, used in New Jersey to increase the funds in the treasury. These films are built around outstanding industries in the state and exhibited by theatre owners, and all money received goes into the treasury of the M.P.T.O.N.J.

Splendid Exploitation on "The Lost World" in Boston

BOSTON is more excited over the showing of "The Lost World," which will be the world's premiere of that picture, at the Tremont Temple Theatre, February 2, than it has been over any motion picture shown there. This is the natural result of the intensive and thorough exploitation campaign, worked out by Mark Kellogg, director of publicity and advertising, and Allan Glenn, supervisor of exploitation, for First National, which has been carried out by experienced and able exploitation men assigned to this work by Mr. Glenn.

Conan Doyle's novel, upon which the picture was based, is being run serially by the Globe. Last Sunday the Globe started a cross word puzzle tie-up with the showing of the picture. Properly worked, the puzzle contains the name of the picture, theatre, the author and some of the principal players.

E. A. Eschmann, head of the distribution department; A. W. Smith, Jr., his assistant in charge of the sales of the specials, and Samuel Spring, head of the company's legal department, will go to Boston for the premiere of "The Lost World."

News on Every Page

Motion picture presentation has reached its highest standard and the program of the future will be little changed, believes Joseph Plunkett, managing director of New York's Strand. See page 552.

William Fox is getting out new one-reel product called "Fox Varieties." You can get the dope on page 597. Incidentally, he announces changes in his release schedule, and this you'll find on page 592.

It may be tough for stage folk to talk over the radio, but the invisible audience has no terrors for film players. First National executives and stars proved that in Philadelphia. See page 604.

Rupert Julian has completed "The Phantom of the Opera" for Universal, and now the film world is on the qui vive waiting for a chance to see the result of the biggest job ever tackled at Universal City. Details can be found on page 605.

Exhibitors to Meet in Milwaukee May 12 for Convention

Here is the first story of the year about the fifth annual convention of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America.

This will be held in the Auditorium in Milwaukee on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, May 12, 13 and 14. International phases are seen in the fact that a delegation of exhibitors from Great Britain and Ireland, headed by W. Gavazzi King, general secretary of the Cinematograph Exhibitors Association of Great Britain and Ireland, and A. J. Gale, former president of that organization, will be present, and also fraternal delegates from exhibitor bodies in France, Italy, Belgium and Sweden. This will be the first time that European exhibitors will have representatives at an American Theatre Owner convention. Then there is the big Canadian delegation. The Theatre Owners in the Dominion are already members of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America and the delegation from there will be headed by J. C. Brady, A D. Denis, Miss Ray Lewis and others.

As a convention city, Milwaukee is ideally located and finely adapted in every way to entertain the visiting Theatre Owners and their friends. The trip can be made by train over several trunk lines or on the palatial lake steamers. Fred Seegert, as president of the Wisconsin organization, has formally been named convention chairman. George Fischer heads the arrangements committee, E. W. Van Norman the entertainment committee and Ernie Langmack is chairman of the finance group.

The Equipment Dealers will be in Milwaukee during the convention. Their session will also be held in the Auditorium.

Special rates will be provided on trunk line roads and also on lake steamers where practical. Any information on the convention will be cheerfully given from the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America headquarters, 25 West 43rd street, New York City, and will also be published in these pages in different issues between now and the convention dates.

New Distributing Company Enters Independent Field

AN announcement of unusual interest to Independent producers and exchange men is made by J. Charles Davis, 2nd, who has just organized the Davis Distributing Division, Inc., for the handling of Independent productions along what he believes to be exceptionally efficient lines of sales and distribution of work.

Mr. Davis has had an unusually valuable experience in the motion picture field, having been with the large organizations in the two divisions of the industry, Famous Players-Lasky Corporation of the national companies and Arrow Pictures Corporation in the Independent field.

Previous to his entry into the film industry he was sales-manager of the staff of one of the best known corporations selling a nation-wide service, having reached that position from a small beginning as a member of their field force. In pictures his experience covers production, exchange work, publicity, advertising, exploitation and selling.

In an interview regarding his plans, Mr. Davis said: "For some time I have believed that industries older than ours are using sales methods that are more efficient and an improvement upon some of those now general in the Independent field of motion pictures.

"The basis of these is that it is not enough to sell the dealer. The live, wide-awake manufacturers must help the dealer move the goods off his shelves into the hands of the consumer and thus make room for new goods. The average dealer, no matter what line he is in, is not a natural born salesman and needs all the help he can get to keep the goods moving rapidly.

"With this in mind, I have formed the Davis Distributing Division, Inc. for what I believe to be the more efficient handling of Independent productions. Naturally, the personnel of the new organization is most important and I have been fortunate in securing as vice-president J. K. Adams, who has just resigned as director of publicity and advertising of Arrow Pictures Corporation.

"Mr. Adams has had long experience in newspaper and magazine work, having held such positions as advertising manager of 'The Home Magazine,' 'The Woman's Magazine' and 'The Scientific American.' His work as president of the Rotograph Company, manufacturers of black and white lobby photos, as well as his connection with the Ritchey Lithographing Company gives him a technical knowledge of advertising and accessories that will be of the greatest value to our customers.

"For the important post of treasurer it has been my singular good luck to interest Oscar Gunkel, who is a veritable sheet anchor of business sagacity and acumen. Almost a lifetime spent as general manager of the Standard Oil Company in the Near East, as well as many other foreign countries in the world, has given him an experience and breadth of vision that it is the fortune of few men to attain. He was an organizer and honorary president of the American Chamber of Commerce in the Near East and is now honorary vice president of the Federated Chamber of Commerce of the Near East.

"Quality and quantity of product for a distributing company is a vital necessity and we are starting off with a splendid line-up of attractions both finished, in the production and to be made.

"The first of these is a strikingly beautiful super-special, 'The Tales of a Thousand and One Night,' starring Nathalie Kovanko and Nicolas Rimsky, directed by M. Tourjansky. Its appeal to the eye is instantaneous, for the sets and locations are unsurpassed by any production I have ever seen.

"Then we have the J. J. Fleming Productions, comprising six outdoor dramas starring Al Ferguson in the most virile roles of his career. Of these, 'Shackles of Fear,' 'The Trail of Vengeance,' 'Phantom Shadows' and 'Scarlet and Gold' are finished.

J. J. Fleming is also making a series of society dramas, starring F. Schumann-Heink, son of Mme. Schumann-Heink, the famous opera singer. This star has the good looks, physique and dramatic ability to put over the best type of society favorite, as well as being expert at all outdoor sports including aeronautics.

"We are also handling the Clifford L. Elfelt Productions, comprising eight super Westerns starring Ken Maynard, eight Frontier Features from the celebrated novels of General Charles King, the military author, and eight De Luxe Melodramas starring prominent box office favorites in melodramas of society and the underworld.

"Last but by no means least are five James Oliver Curwood Wide Open Space Dramas, portraying five of this famous author's most successful novels, and twenty-six one-reel novelties produced along entirely new lines."

F. N. BRANCHES MOVE

First National branch offices in St. John, N. B., and Winnipeg, Man., have been moved into new quarters.

The St. John office is now located at 39 Waterloo Street, and the Winnipeg branch in the Film Exchange Building.

OFFICIALS OF NEW DISTRIBUTING CORPORATION

Center, J. Charles Davis, 2nd, president; right, J. K. Adams, vice-president; left, Oscar Gunkel, treasurer.

35 Exhibitors Have Vaudeville Agency

A number of Detroit and Michigan exhibitors who play vaudeville in their theatres have gotten together for the formation of their own booking agency. J. R. Dennison, past president of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of Michigan, and A. J. Kleist, a member of the board of directors in the same organization, are credited with being instrumental in the new organization work.

About 35 theatre owners in the southern part of the state already have joined and offices have been established near the Film Exchange Building. It is expected that exhibitors in Ohio will join the organization, thus strengthening its buying power and insuring the theatre owners of stronger acts.

Two More Northwest Exhibitors Victims of Hold-up Men

Two new robberies of Northwest picture houses were successfully carried out on Monday night. Affairs of this kind have occurred with unpleasant frequency of late. In Seattle, Mrs. Donald Geddes, wife of Don Geddes and interested with him in the operation of two houses in the Ballard district, entered her garage at 2020 North Broadway. The robbers climbed on the running board of her car as she drove into the garage, and threatening her with pistols, snatched a satchel containing $500, the day's receipts from the Majestic. Three of them climbed into a small coupe while the fourth disappeared into the darkness.

About the same hour, Miss Ruth Rutherford, cashier at the new Everett Theatre, Everett, Wash., drove from the theatre to the offices of the Star Amusement Company in the Orpheum Theatre building in an automobile driven by Barney Yanta. She had a satchel containing about $1,200, and was about to step from the car when confronted by an armed, masked bandit, who snatched the satchel and escaped in a car which had followed Miss Rutherford from the Everett. Miss Rutherford declared that the bandit was a young man who purchased tickets from her earlier in the evening and loitered around near the box office for some time.

NEW SAN FRANCISCO THEATRE

A realty deal involving more than $8,000,000 has been consummated by which William B. Wagnon has consolidated five-sixths of the block at Market, Hyde and Fulton streets, San Francisco, where he will construct a theatre which has been leased to Alexander Pantages for fifty years. Work on the theatre and office building will commence as soon as plans can be prepared and contracts awarded. The house will seat about 2,300 and be devoted to vaudeville and feature pictures. A feature will be the installation of the largest organ in the West. The site directly adjoins the famed Civic Center and arrangements have been made for the transfer of a small corner to the City and County of San Francisco to complete this project.

New England Theatrical Men Fete "Al" Somerby of Boston

RUFUS A.—Otherwise just as well known as "Al"—Somerby, the genial general manager of the Bowdoin Square and Howard theatres in Boston, was the guest of honor at a surprise banquet the night of January 19 when exhibitors and other theatrical men of New England gathered to congratulate him on his completion of twenty-five years of service with the two theatres. They praised "Al" as the exponent of loyalty, honesty and sincere work in his chosen field of theatricals; a man to whom great fortune and a career of great fame had called, who best preferred his old friends and associates.

Acting in behalf of those gathered for the event, Fred Doherty, advertising manager of the Howard, gave Mr. Somerby a platinum watch, encircled with 100 set diamonds, as a token of the esteem and friendship of his friends.

Among the speakers was Edward P. Barry, former lieutenant governor of Massachusetts, who declared that Mr. Somerby "came by his virtues in the theatre honestly for he inherited them from his father, one of the finest and greatest showmen the American stage has ever known." Mr. Barry declared that devotion and love of friendships had caused Mr. Somerby to decline an offer which rivaled that now held by Will Hays and in which he could have written his own salary.

"I am glad to be here tonight to pay homage to one of the best boys in the theatrical profession and to one of the best boys I ever met in my whole life," said Mr. Barry.

John M. Casey, chief theatrical censor of Boston, lauded Mr. Somerby by saying that "if all the theatres in Boston were conducted as the Bowdoin Square Theatre has been conducted there would be no need of a theatrical censor in this city."

Nathan H. Gordon, head of Gordon's Olympia Theatres, Inc., concluded an address extolling the virtues of Mr. Somerby by extending his hand in a pledge of lasting friendship.

Others who said kind words for Mr. Somerby were Jacob Lourie, manager of the Modern and Beacon theatres; Louis Boas, of the Boas circuit of theatres; J. J. Charbonneau, representing the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of New Hampshire, and M. E. Morey, manager of the American Feature Film Company.

S. M. Moscow of Moscow Films, Inc., headed the committee that arranged the surprise banquet. Thomas B. Spry, New England manager for First National Pictures, Inc., was toastmaster.

Mr. Somerby went to work as an office boy at the Bowdoin Square and Howard theatres back in the days of the 10-20-30 melodrama.

"FILMLAND CITY" RE-OPENS

After having been closed for the last two years due to litigation, Filmland City in Medford, Mass., has been reopened. Three different production units now are at work. The name, "Filmland City," has been changed to National Studios. The National Motion Picture Bureau, of which Philip Davis is treasurer, has acquired the property.

More than $100,000 has been spent in making improvements to the studio property, according to Treasurer Davis. It is understood that approximately $500,000 was paid for the property.

Ontario Government Seizes Toy Projectors as Menace

THE Ontario Government has taken drastic action with regard to the sale of toy projection machines in the Province of Ontario on the ground that they are regarded as a fire menace. The provincial authorities visited various stores in Toronto, Ontario, with the result that approximately 100,000 feet of second-hand film were seized by the provincial officers.

Another important step taken by the government in this connection was the suspension of the annual provincial license of the Dominion Films, Ltd., an exchange at Toronto, by the Ontario Motion Picture Bureau, a department of the provincial government, this action being taken on the charge that the exchange had been selling the films for the toy projection machines. No announcement was made as to the length of time for which the suspension would stand.

In government quarters it was stated that the toy projectors are German-made and that a considerable quantity had been sold during the Christmas season. Many more are still on sale in the retail shops of Toronto. It was stated that the small machines had been imported into Canada in great quantities. Some of the machines are fitted with oil lamps, while others have electric bulbs and cords for attachment to house sockets.

It is expected that the sale of the toy projectors will be prohibited by law in the Province of Ontario, following the seizure of the available film supply, with the probable proviso that the Government Motion Picture Bureau will establish a system of inspection for all types of toy or household machines, with power to approve or reject any one type of projector. No other Canadian province has yet followed the suit of the Ontario government in confiscating the toy projector films.

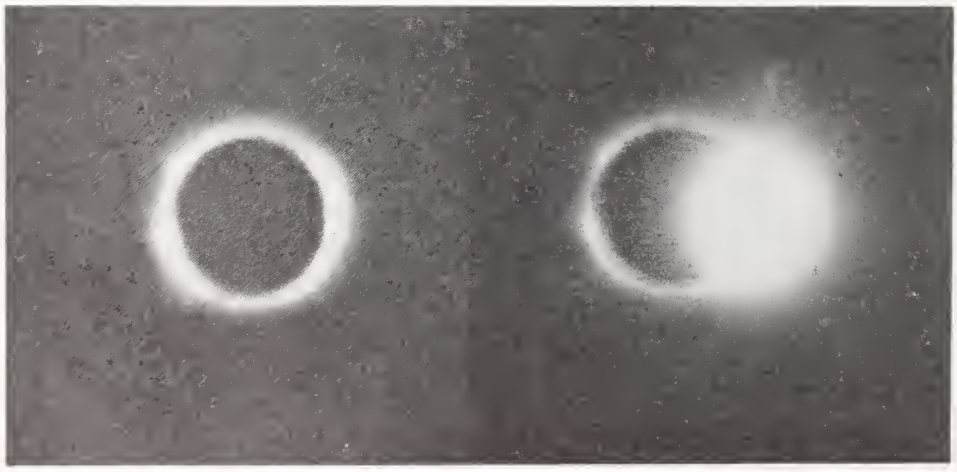
B. & K. in Decatur

Decatur, Ill., is to have a new theatre, according to announcement by H. J. Wallace, manager of the Lincoln Square Theatre. The theatre is to be built by Balaban & Katz Midwest Theatres, Inc., of Chicago and will cost at least $600,000. It also is understood that Rockford is to have a new theatre. The Decatur theatre, according to announcement, will seat 2,200 persons. It will be up to date in all its features, being built to handle legitimate productions as well as pictures.

Stars to Show Stunts at Naked Truth Dinner Dance

Hidden talents of some of the most famous stars of the screen world, as well as an expose of the naked truth about the motion picture industry, will be revealed at the Naked Truth dinner and dance of the Associated Motion Picture Advertisers to take place in the gold room of the Hotel Astor on Saturday evening, January 7.

Bessie Love, ukulele expert, will provide a number of her best Spanish, Hawaiian and "blues" selections. Aileen Pringle will do some unique dance numbers. T. Roy Barnes will perform sleight of hand tricks. Adolphe Menjou has agreed to give a sample of monologues. Jacqueline Logan will dance. Milton Sills will play the piano. George Hackathorne will sing.



This is not the photo of an exhibitor on hearing the price of a special, but Pathe News views of the eclipse painted well after washing. I struck the arc and put a 'light' (?) on the screen. Well—if the screen had been made of cement it could not have been worse. They could not put a 'picture' on this screen.

Old-Timer Not Scared

(Continued from page 545)

"Without going any further as to deplorable conditions, I spoke to the owner of this would-be theatre and he said, 'Oh, this bunch-a hicks don't know any better and besides I have no opposition.'

"It is possible that there are others who think the same as this misguided fellow. Well—the day is past when you can give patrons 'anything!' They are wise!—wiser than you think.

"Give them good pictures, properly screened and there is no reason why you should not do a good business.

"Well, thanks for your attention—."

STEVE.

NEWEST REVIEWS and COMMENTS

EDITED BY CHARLES S. SEWELL

"The Last Laugh"

Universal Presents Emil Jannings in a Pantomimic Gem With Strong Human Appeal

Reviewed by Epes W. Sargent

Dealing with a story that is so intensely opposite American modes of thought and living, "The Last Laugh" is also so intensely human that it should appeal in any country. Given such a story with a star such as Emil Jannings and with a production that was wonderful in its nice attention to the most minute details, the presentation stands unique in the catalogue of film productions.

The story is from Carl Mayer, who wrote "Caligari," but here he makes no excursion into the unreal. Instead, he takes the tragedy of old age, wrings sobs out of it and then, with a fanciful twist, brings it to a happily farcical ending. It sounds almost every note of human emotion in its short course and the note always sounds true and clear.

The story is based upon the inherent German respect for a uniform: in this instance the splendid structure of gold lace built upon the stalwart frame of the carriage man of a fashionable hotel. His daughter basks in the reflected glory of the bedecked garment; the entire neighborhood treats the old man with the almost servile respect the wearer of such a wonderful coat deserves, and the old man, himself, glories in his proud position. But old age grips him. He is demoted to be caretaker in the lavatory; his daughter's new husband compels her to turn from him, and the hitherto admiring neighbors take a delight in scoffing at the man they once admired.

It is a simple theme, but well told, and wonderfully well acted. Jannings grows old before your tear-dimmed eyes, and he comes into his own again, with the eventful good fortune, showing hitherto unrevealed ability as a comedian. Never has he shown such scope, nor has he, in his previous characters, proven such ability to sway the emotions. He scores a personal triumph while never getting so far out of the role as to obscure the uniformly good support.

The production keeps pace with the acting. The continuity is unusually good, consistent, well joined and moving always toward the ultimate end. There is not an unnecessary scene, nor yet one too few. The direction is, in the last analysis, responsible for these results, for at only one point can fault be found. The mirth of the guests in the last scenes is too heavily stressed. Apart from this the scenes are almost perfectly valued.

It presents many novelties in production. No spoken titles are used, and a letter and a newspaper clipping are the only inserts. The rest is almost self-explanatory, for the tale is a simple one, involving no labored explanation of intricate cross-purpose. The interest arises wholly from the sympathy created for the protagonist and sustained by his fine acting. Even the usual time leaders are dispensed with, a darkening scene, the gradual extinction of the house lights, then full opening and the morning activities take little more time than "The next morning" and is infinitely to be preferred.

This picture may suffer from its novelty. There is apt to be a tendency on the part of some exhibitors to present it as a cinematic curio (which it is in a sense), to the obscuring of the fact that it is one of the most thoroughly artistic presentations from the angles of story, action and direction that has ever come out of any studio on either side of the ocean.

Cast

The Porter.....Emil Jannings
His Daughter.....Mary Delschaft
Her Bridegroom.....Kurt Hiller
His Aunt.....Emilie Kurz
The Manager.....Hans Unterkircher
The Night Watchman.....Georg John

Story by Carl Mayer.
Directed by F. W. Murnau.
Length, 6,500 feet.

Story

Too old to perform his strenuous duties, the carriage opener of the Hotel Atlantic is deprived of his job, but in deference to his age and long service is placed in charge of the hotel washroom. The demotion comes on the night of his daughter's wedding. The old man waits until the hotel has quieted, steals the uniform and goes home, the star of the wedding celebration. The next morning he swaggers back, as usual, the admired of all beholders in the little court which contains his home. The old man checks his splendid apparel at the railroad station and slinks into the hotel in his shabby clothes. His son-in-law's aunt discovers his downfall, and when the old man comes home, still resplendent in the finery no longer his, he is met with the mocking laughter of those who did him homage and his daughter refuses him refuge. Broken-hearted, he slinks back to the hotel, where the night watchman aids him. A freak will gives him sudden riches. He blossoms out in the splendor of the rich and in the very hotel which despised him he treats himself and his old friend, the night watchman, to the best the house affords, and rolls away in a coach and four, distributing largesse to his successor.

Features Reviewed in This Issue

Dick Turpin (Fox)
Drug Store Cowboy, The (Independent)
Enticement (First National)
Excuse Me (Metro-Goldwyn)
Gold Heels (Fox)
Last Laugh, The (Universal)
Lost Lady, A (Warner)
Man Must Live, A (Paramount)
Midnight Molly (F. B. O.)
Super Speed (Rayart)

"Dick Turpin"

As Historic English Highwayman, Tom Mix Has Congenial Role and Scores Heavily in Fox Feature

Reviewed by C. S. Sewell

Although in "Dick Turpin," his newest production for William Fox, Tom Mix departs from his usual western characterizations and appears as one of the most romantic figures in English history, he has a role that suits him well, and the picture is thoroughly entertaining.

While it will be a surprise to picture patrons to see Tom Mix in the gorgeous costume of an English gentleman of several centuries ago, with velvet and lace, clanking sword and picturesque bonnet, once you become accustomed to seeing him so attired you are conscious of the fact that it is the same old Tom with a change of costume and location, England of the past instead of the West of the present.

Obviously, Tom has the title role, and as the rollicking, likeable highwayman who so cleverly eluded the police and was continually getting into tight places in his efforts to save the beautiful Lady Brookfield from a marriage that was being forced upon her, he has abundant opportunities for the kind of action that his large following like to see him in.

The story is an interesting one, filled with romance and adventure. From the time the gentlemanly highwayman holds up Lord Churlton and a little later rescues Lady Brookfield, his fiancee, from ruffians to the final flash there is not a dull moment. In a well constructed, rapid moving and beautifully photographed picture we follow Dick Turpin's stirring adventures, his escape from the inn surrounded by guards, his disguising as a prize fighter and licking his opponent, his capture and sentence, his daring escape as the noose is to be placed around his neck, and, above all, his famous ride from London to York, outdistancing his pursuers, who, one by one, give up, and his final rescue of Lady Brookfield.

These adventures provide Tom with fine opportunities for displaying his rare good humor, his ability as a horseman, his agility in climbing over houses and up seemingly inaccessible places, and his prowess in the ring. There are many scenes of daring horsemanship in which he uses a remarkable and beautiful horse, Black Bess. These include many jumps over hedges, one plunge through a window, a leap over a haywagon and finally a breath-taking leap on horseback through a small arch over a tollgate.

Tom's love for animals, which forms an important part of his pictures, is very evident here, for his beautiful black horse has a prominent role, doing exceedingly clever work. When it is shot and Tom kneels down and kisses his faithful friend, there is a lot of pathos and there will be a lot of moist eyes in the audience. This magnificent horse will appeal to all lovers of animals.

Aside from the romance and stirring adventure, there is a lot of good comedy in this picture and some entirely new situations that will cause laughter, including the scene where Tom reaches through the stairway and trips up his pursuers, the prize fight, really a slugging match, conducted in the rough-and-tumble manner of those days and so different from the scientific ring matches of today, and an especially clever sequence where Tom escapes the guards by throwing his prize money to the rabble, who close in so his pursuers can't get through.

The role of Dick Turpin suits Tom to a "t." Alan Hale is effective and supplies good comedy as his friend, and Kathleen Myers is attractive as the heroine.

We believe his fans and the public in general will like Tom in "Dick Turpin," for the picture is a fast-moving and entertaining story of romance and adventure and is filled with typical Tom Mix stuff.

Cast

Dick Turpin.....Tom Mix
Alice Brookfield.....Kathleen Myers
Lord Churlton.....Philo McCullough
Squire.....James Marcus
Sally.....Lucille Hutton
Tom King.....Alan Hale
Bully Boy.....Bull Montana

Story by Charles Kenyon and Don Lee.
Directed by J. G. Blystone.
Length, 5,224 feet.

Story

Several hundred years ago in England there lived a famous highwayman, Dick Turpin, who preyed upon the rich and helped the poor. One day he encountered Lord Churlton and a little later in aiding a coach attacked by ruffians he finds it contains Lady Brookfield, who tells him she must marry Lord Churlton. Dick discloses his identity and offers to aid her. Arriving at the inn, Dick has Lady Alice dress in boys' clothes and sneak out while he escapes after a daring running fight with the guards. They journey to London. Churlton follows and when capture seems near Dick disguises as a fighter and goes into the ring. He again escapes by throwing his prize money to the rabble who close in on the guards. In a forest he declares his love for Alice. A poor woman appears and asks his aid, and he finds he is surrounded by guards. Taken to prison he is condemned to death. On the scaffold his friend, Tom King, who has taken the place of the hangman, tells him the crowd is with him and to make a break for liberty. He escapes on his famous Horse, Black Bess, and immediately starts out for York to aid Lady Alice. For days the guards keep up the pursuit, one by one giving out until the last one succumbs near the journey's end. Dick arrives just in time to save Lady Alice. The two escape to France, Dick gives up the road and they find happiness.

"A Lost Lady"

Irene Rich Does Remarkable Work in Warner's Dramatic Adaptation of Willa Cather's Novel

Reviewed by C. S. Sewell

Willa Cather's celebrated novel of modern life, "A Lost Lady," has reached the screen under the able direction of Harry Beaumont as a Warner Brothers production, serving as the second starring vehicle for Irene Rich.

The book was a literary sensation, not only because of its wonderfully accurate and human analysis of a certain type of woman but because of the deftness of its handling and the restraint with which the author coped with situations that could easily have been built up from the sensational side; making it stand out as radically different from the majority of stories dealing with social problems today.

Willa Cather in fashioning her story sacrificed appeal to the sympathies and a happy ending in order to make her portrait a realistic one. Her heroine is a woman who, married to an old man, even though surrounded with wealth, finds her lot irksome and longs to know love and life. How a combination of circumstances restrain her, how though she sticks by her husband when he loses his money though her lot became continually more unbearable from her viewpoint, and how after his death she lets herself go until she disgusts an admirer who has looked up to her, and how she eventually marries another old man, furnishes the story.

The author's story has been faithfully transferred to the screen. Director Beaumont has made no attempt to gloss over the unpleasant angles and has refrained from providing a conventional, happy ending. As a consequence, while the picture differs from the usual screen story and is lacking in many familiar picture elements, it is intensely dramatic, a searching character study that will hold the attention of the intelligent patron.

We doubt if a more powerful characterization has ever reached the screen; and, without discrediting Mr. Beaumont's excellent direction, credit for this must go principally to Irene Rich for her superb work. Never really in sympathy with her, and though she finally excites even your disgust, so fine is her work, so human and convincing, that it rivets your attention, and even though your reaction toward the story may not be favorable, Miss Rich's work excites your admiration. The remainder of the cast, with Matt Moore in the lead, gives her support in keeping with her performance, and George Fawcett as the elderly husband gains new laurels as a kindly old man, really the only character that excites your full sympathy.

"A Lost Lady" is a picture that should exert a very favorable reaction with the highest class of audiences. So far as the average run of patrons is concerned, even though it is intensely dramatic and interesting, the fact that it gets away from many familiar angles of appeal, that the story is sad, the character of the heroine unsympathetic, and the conventional, happy ending missing, may militate against it.

Cast

Marian Forrester.....Irene Rich
Neil Herbert.....Matt Moore
Constance Ogden.....June Marlowe
Frank Ellinger.....John Roche
Ivy Peters.....Victor Potel
Capt. Forrester.....George Fawcett

Based on novel by Willa Cather.
Directed by Harry Beaumont.
Length, 6,700 feet.

Story

Married to an elderly railroad builder of great wealth, Marian Forrester feels the call of youth and love and begins to long to get away. Her chance comes when Frank Ellinger becomes interested in her and finally persuades her to elope. Just as they start out she learns that her husband has beggared himself by giving his fortune to save a workingman's bank and she returns. Later, when it seems she can stand no more, she finds out that Ellinger, whom she thought would return to her, is to marry someone else. She tries to go to him but misses the train and goes to Neil, who has always admired her. She phones Ellinger, who turns her down but says they can still see each other. Enraged, she starts to rebuke him but Neil cuts the wire. Neil takes her back to her husband, who dies, and, utterly dejected, she gives way to despair, taking to drink and becoming slovenly in appearance. Neil sticks to her and tries to help her to fight back, until he finds her affectionate with a low country fellow. Disgusted, he tells her that lilies that decay are worse than weeds and leaves her. Years later when his views have been softened with age, he meets a friend who tells him he met her in South America, that she was apparently happy and prosperous, the wife of a wealthy old man.

"Gold Heels"

Fox Offers Race Track Melodrama, a New Version of Henry Blossom's Stage Success, "Checkers"

Reviewed by C. S. Sewell

When presented on the stage several years ago, Henry M. Blossom's racing melodrama, "Checkers," made a big hit and William Fox later made it into a picture that duplicated the success of the play. This play has again been used by Fox, several changes being made in the story, although the main idea is retained, and is being offered under the title of "Gold Heels."

As now presented, the story concerns a jockey, down on his luck, who falls in love with a small town girl whose father owns the broken-down horse, Gold Heels. The jockey gets in disgrace when he is accused of stealing money needed for rebuilding an orphanage, but vindicates himself and wins the girl when he "kidnaps" the horse and wins a big race and reveals the real culprit.

There is always an appeal and a certain amount of thrills and suspense in a horse race, and this one is no exception; also it is preceded by a thrilling trip in which the horse is rushed many miles to the track in a moving van, though it would hardly seem that it would be in condition to race after this wild ride.

There is considerable human interest material in the plight of the jockey hero and his romance. However, the story does not get away from the familiar type of racing melodramas. Some good comedy touches are injected by a negro stable boy and by Lucian Littlefield as a tout. The picture, however, as a whole is rather slow-moving for a story of this type and never seems to get a strong hold on the interest.

There are no big box office names in the cast and in fact the production does not seem to measure up to the original picture. Altogether, it will probably be rated by the majority of patrons as an average program attraction, with the greatest appeal to audiences that like racing melodramas.

Cast

Boots.....Robert Agnew
Pert Barlow.....Peggy Shaw
Push Miller.....Lucien Littlefield
Kendall, Jr.....W. N. Bailey
Barlow.....Carl Stockdale
Kendall, Sr.....Fred Butler
Tobe.....Harry Tracey

Based on stage play, "Checkers," by Henry Blossom, Jr.
Scenario by John Stone.
Directed by W. S. Van Dyke.
Length, 6,020 feet.

Story

Following a streak of hard luck at the race track, Boots and his pal, Push, rescue a chap from thugs and Boots takes him to his home in a small town. He is attracted to a girl, Pert Barlow, and gets a job in her father's store. Old Barlow owns the broken-down horse, Gold Heels, and Boots buys this horse. A child dies because of the deplorable condition of the orphanage and Pert starts a campaign to get a new one. Barlow takes charge of the money but it is stolen. Boots is accused and jailed but his pals get him out. He returns to the city, and when the big race is to be run he and his pals go to the village, steal Gold Heels, load the horse in an auto and after a wild ride reach the track and win the race. Boots is vindicated and old Barlow suggests that he is willing to have him for a son-in-law.

"A Man Must Live"

Richard Dix Has a Powerful Vehicle for His Second Paramount Star Picture

Reviewed by Epes W. Sargent

Evidently Richard Dix has found that the play's the thing, for he does not, like too many newly created stars, trust more to his personality than his vehicle. He realizes a star can be no better than his offering and in "Manhattan" and now in "A Man Must Live" he seeks the tale of vivid and engrossing action, and if this adaptation of I. A. R. Wylie's "Jungle Law" is a bit hard and repellent at times, it is of undeniable strength and interest: an improvement in intensity over his first strenuous offering.

The theme is unpleasant in spots, but it is a story of today and it deals with an actual situation; the sensation seeking scandal newspaper whose editor regards a racy divorce as of infinitely more importance than a national catastrophe. It is unpleasant, but it is vividly real, and the situation in which it places the hero has real strength.

Dix played with sureness a role that might easily have been spoiled through too much stress or not enough. He nicely valued his scenes and holds his audience-interest. Jacqueline Logan, his nominal leading woman, has small chance, but does well the work assigned her, and in the latter scenes Edna Murphy won sympathy and interest. Next the star the most forceful characterization was the newspaper editor of George Nash, and Arthur Housman, in a comparatively unimportant role, played his small part well. The remainder of the cast is fully competent, and the direction was an expert handling of a well-constructed continuity.

There is a fine fight between Dix and Nash, leading up to the climax, but the physical action merely supplements the plot action. The story holds the real interest and does not depend upon fisticuffs.

Cast

Geoffrey Farnell.....Richard Dix
"Mops" Collins.....Jacqueline Logan
Job Hardcastle.....George Nash
Eleanor Ross-Fayne.....Edna Murphy
Clive Ross-Fayne.....Charles Beyer
Mrs. Jaynes.....Dorothy Walters
Cabaret Owner.....William Ricciardi
Tod Cragge.....Arthur Housman
Ross-Fayne.....Lucius Henderson
Mrs. Ross-Fayne.....Jane Jennings

From a story by I. A. R. Wylie.
Scenario by James Ashmore Creelman.
Directed by Paul Sloane.
Length, 6,116 feet.

Story

Back from the war, and finding a soldier's welcome, Geoffrey Farnell while waiting the outcome of a suit against a corporation finds an uncongenial place on the staff of a scandal-hunting newspaper. The editor, Hardcastle, gives Farnell warning that his stories lack the hectic pep his readers demand. He is sent to find a society divorcee who has sunk to the level of a cheap concert hall. He finds her begging the manager not to send her off to the hospital to die. Farnell is touched with pity and when she staggers to the street, in her scanty stage costume, he takes her to his own apartment. Reporting failure to Hardcastle, he promises that he will turn up a real story if given one more chance. He finds his chance. His war-time buddy, shell shocked and devoid of recollection of his personality, is brought into court as a dope peddler. Believed to be dead and posthumously decorated for valor, it would make a sensation to identify this wreck as the lamented hero. But Farnell loves the man's sister. He holds off until he is forced to give up the story to obtain the money that will keep his helpless charge out of the hospital. Then, in a fit of remorse, he seeks to stop the publication of the story, but in vain. He faces arrest for his assault on the editor, the girl comes to denounce him, and the friendless waif lies dead in the next room, and by the irony of fate his suit is settled and he comes too late into the fortune that would have saved him from his shame. But the girl understands, the editor is abashed and the happy ending comes at last.

"Super Speed"

Reed Howes Scores in Rayart's Fast-Moving and Entertaining Comedy Drama of Auto Racing

Reviewed by C. S. Sewell

With Reed Howes in the starring role, Rayart Pictures Corporation, a new organization operating on the independent market, is offering "Super Speed," a fast-moving comedy drama that should provide pleasing entertainment for the patrons of the average theatre.

The story is reminiscent of a type of pictures made famous by the late Wallace Reid in which the action centered around an automobile race; however, considerable melodrama, including a typical villain and his rascally henchmen, together with a lot of stunt stuff on the part of the star, differentiate "Super Speed" from these stories.

There is a pleasing little romance running through this picture, which starts when the daughter of the auto manufacturer is saved from thugs by the hero, whom she believes to be a regular milkman as he is driving a milk wagon for his uncle who owns the company.

This situation also offers opportunities for amusing comedy, and additional laughs are provided by a colored chauffeur, especially in his flirtation with the heroine's maid and in a scene where he has to guard the racing car all night.

A special feature of this comedy is the stunt stuff of the star, who in his encounters with the villain's henchmen provides a number of good thrills by his daring climbing over roofs, down the sides of buildings, leaping from roof to roof, transferring from one auto to another at high speed, swinging down from the roofs and crashing through windows, and daring driving of a motorcycle and a racing auto.

Reed Howes is excellent. A good looking chap with a decidedly pleasing personality and unusual athletic ability, he registers strongly, not only because of the ease with which he does his stunts but also in the romantic sequences, and given suitable material he should prove a popular box-office star. Mildred Harris does good work as the girl, and as usual Sheldon Lewis scores as a heavy villain, this time in the role of a crooked lawyer.

The story moves forward at a good pace, with plenty of action, and altogether "Super Speed" is a picture with "snap" that furnishes pleasing and amusing entertainment and contains many sure-fire elements of audience appeal.

Cast

Pat O'Farrell.....Reed Howes
Claire Knight.....Mildred Harris
Warner Knight.....Charles Clary
Stanton Wade.....Sheldon Lewis
Pat's Valet.....Martin Turner
Dad Perkins.....George Williams

Story by J. W. Grey and H. Symonds.
Directed by Albert Rogell.
Length, 5,227 feet.

Story

Working as a driver for his uncle who owns a big milk company, Pat O'Farrell saves Claire Knight from thugs, and it is a case of love at first sight. Pat finds that Wade, a crooked lawyer plans to steal an invention, a super-charger from his old friend Dad Perkins and manages to get it after a running fight and chase over rooftops with Wade's henchman. Claire, still believing him to be a milkman invites him to a party. He comes all dressed up and tells her the truth. She confides the fact that her father is deeply in debt to Wade. Pat sees a chance to win, and equips one of the cars. a Knight Hawk manufactured by Claire's father with the super-charger and plans to drive it in a race. Wade's thugs capture him but he gets away in time and despite dirty work by Wade, wins the race. Rushing to Wade's office he arrives in time to prevent the company being signed over to Wade, and incidentally wins Claire.

Lillian Gish in "Romola," the Inspiration-Metro-Goldwyn success.

"Excuse Me"

Metro-Goldwyn Offers Amusing Version of Rupert Hughes' Stage Farce, With Thrilling Climax

Reviewed by C. S. Sewell

An amusing farce comedy is "Excuse Me," Rupert Hughes' newest production for Metro-Goldwyn, which is an adaptation of his highly successful stage play of the same title. The theme of this production concerns a couple who suddenly decide to get married just as the prospective groom has to catch a train to connect with a boat for the Philippines. Balked in their efforts, they board the train when they see a minister get on, but are afterwards unable to find him. This gives rise to a lot of amusing complications, which are heightened when, in typical farce comedy fashion, a former sweetheart of the hero gets aboard with her small son, and the girl hears the boy call the hero "papa."

With Norma Shearer and Conrad Nagel in the leading roles, Walter Hiers as a negro porter and Bert Roach as a polite "drunk" who is always butting into everything, this picture has an unusual number of amusing situations that should keep the majority of spectators in smiles and chuckles.

The action moves fast and holds the interest, and it has been expertly directed by Alf Goulding, an experienced comedy director. In addition, a thrilling melodramatic climax has been introduced in which the hero who gets left hires an aeroplane and overtakes the train. Seeing a trestle ahead on fire, he makes a daring transfer to the roof of the train to warn the engineer to save the passengers, but wrecks the train, the cars toppling over and the engine hanging over the edge of the chasm with the injured hero in the cab. This provides some snappy thrills that come as a surprise, as the picture up to this point has been straight farce comedy, with no hint of melodrama.

Conrad Nagel and Norma Shearer are well suited to the leading roles and give good performances. There is a lot of amusing human touches in the way in which they handle the situations, which despite the possibilities of the theme are at no time risque. Renee Adoree gives a good performance as the other woman, and the antics of the mischievous child who appears as her son add to the amusement. Walter Hiers gets considerable comedy out of a role that has few opportunities. Bert Roach scores heavily as the polite drunk, his attempts to undress in a Pullman berth being especially funny.

From its comedy standpoint alone, "Excuse Me" should go over big with the majority of patrons, for it will keep them laughing, and with the addition of the thrilling climax it should rate high as a box-office attraction.

Cast

Marjorie Newton.....Norma Shearer
Lt. Mallory.....Conrad Nagel
Francine.....Renee Adoree
Porter.....Walter Hiers
Jimmie.....Bert Roach
Rev. Temple.....W. V. Mong
Mrs. Temple.....Edith Yorke

Based on play by Rupert Hughes.
Directed by Alf Goulding.
Length, 5,684 feet.

Story

Promoted for bravery and ordered to the Philippines, Lt. Mallory's sweetheart Marjorie decides she will go with him. There is a mad scramble to get a minister but to no avail. Just as Marjorie is bidding Mallory good-bye at the station he spies a minister and yanks her on the train. They fail to find the minister aboard. Night comes and to save the situation, Mallory and Marjorie have an awful row and Mallory sleeps in the wash room. In the morning Marjorie starts to leave the train in disgust when Francine an old sweetheart of Mallory's gets aboard with her little boy. Marjorie comes back and is horrified to find the boy call Mallory papa. Francine taught him this to fool detectives who seek to take him away. All is fixed up again and the train reaches a station where there is a minister's convention. Mallory in trying to corral one, loses the train and hires an aero to catch it at the next station. Seeing that a bridge ahead of the train is on fire, he makes a daring transfer from the plane to the train, and the engineer stops the train, but the cars overturn and the engine with Mallory in it, hangs over the edge. Mallory is rescued, all journey to San Francisco and Mallory and Marjorie are married in time to catch the boat for the Philippines.

"The Drug Store Cowboy"

Independent Pictures Present Franklyn Farnum in Story of Soda Clerk Who Breaks Into Movies

Reviewed by C. S. Sewell

In "The Drug Store Cowboy," which Independent Pictures Corporation is distributing on the independent market, Franklyn Farnum is starred in the role of a soda fountain clerk in a drug store who has movie aspirations. When his chance comes to appear as a villain he gets mixed up in an affair with a real bandit who takes his place. After butting in and nearly ruining the picture, he exposes the other fellow, saves the heroine and agrees to become her leading man for life.

There is a good comedy idea behind this picture, and especially in the earlier reels it has been amusingly worked out. Later, however, the star does stunts with the lasso and on horseback that seem out of keeping with a novice and a soda clerk and somewhat spoils the illusion.

Naturally there is considerable "inside movie stuff" in the situations showing the rehearsing and "shooting" of the scenes on location and in the big bank robbery staged in a bank. In the later reels the comedy element is subordinated and melodrama takes its place.

Farnum is satisfactory in this role, with the exceptions referred to, which are possibly the fault of direction. Jean Arthur is capable as his leading lady, but she has little to do. Robert Walker gives a good performance as the real bandit and the other members of the cast are O. K.

While we think the picture would have been improved had the burlesque idea been more strongly adhered to, the novelty of the theme makes it interesting. There is good comedy, plenty of action, and this production will probably prove a satisfactory program attraction in houses where westerns are liked.

Cast

Marmaduke Grandon.....Franklyn Farnum
Gentleman Jack.....Robert Walker
Jean.....Jean Arthur
Wilton.....Malcolm Denny
Director.....Ronald Goetz
Sheriff.....Dick Lareno

Story not credited.
Directed by Park Frame.
Length, 4,356 feet.

Story

Marmaduke Grandon, drug clerk, has an ambition to enter the movies and gets a chance, when an actor is suddenly killed, to take his place as the villain. Starting out without money and in full western makeup, he meets a bad man who forces him to change clothes. The bad man takes Marmaduke's place with the company and when the time comes to take a big scene Marmaduke appears and almost spoils it by rescuing the heroine. Later the bad man takes advantage of the filming of a scene in a bank to rob the bank. Marmaduke, however, again spoils the picture but finally captures the thief and succeeds in identifying himself. He gladly accepts the heroine's offer to become her leading man—for life.

"Midnight Molly"

Evelyn Brent Has Dual Role in Entertaining Crook Picture, Her Newest Production for F. B. O.

Reviewed by C. S. Sewell

Evelyn Brent in "Midnight Molly," her newest starring vehicle for F. B. O., again appears in the role of a lady crook, but this time she has a dual role, also appearing as the wife of the district attorney.

The story hinges on the fact that these two women are the exact counterparts of each other, and when the district attorney's wife elopes with another man as he is running for governor, a situation arises by which Molly takes her place to avoid scandal. Of course they fall in love with each other and this leads up to a tense dramatic situation in which the whole outcome depends upon comparing the finger prints of the two women. Molly saves the day by forcing the wife to appear on the scene and be fingerprinted.

This one situation, which furnishes the climax of the picture, while not entirely convincing, builds up strong interest. The remainder of the story does not deviate very much from the conventional type of material involving dual roles.

Miss Brent does good work in both roles, especially as Molly, and the only fault to be found with her characterizations is the fact that there is not enough difference between them to prevent them at times from becoming confusing.

The impression of the picture depends largely on the unusual climax, for the situations leading up to it do not move with great rapidity and are lacking in action. It will, however, probably prove a fair attraction for the average house that likes crook stories.

Cast

Midnight Molly / Margaret Warren.....Evelyn Brent
Daley.....John Dillon
Warren.....Bruce Gordon
Calvin.....Leon Bary
Fogarty.....John Gough

Story and scenario by Frederick K. Myton.
Directed by Lloyd Ingraham.
Length, 6 reels.

Story

Midnight Molly, a girl thief, surprised by detectives as she is stealing a painting, escapes but is run down by an auto and taken to the hospital. Margaret, the wife of War-

(Continued on page 586)

Harry Blanke, James Flood, Benny Ziedman, Jack Warner, William Beaudine, Willard Louis, Ernst Lubitsch and Mr. Schlesinger getting ready for a ducking party at Warner Brothers' Hollywood studio.

EXHIBITORS' NEWS AND VIEWS

EDITED BY SUMNER SMITH

Cook Starts Campaign for Kansas and Missouri Body

C. E. Cook, business manager of the M. P. T. O. of Kansas and Missouri, has started in full force on the membership campaign, which was delayed several weeks. Mr. Cook left Wednesday for St. Joseph, Mo., where he will remain about a week. He then will return to Kansas City for a day or so before returning to the territory. The campaign will last about three months.

Reports from exhibitors on the contract with music tax interests are pouring into the M. P. T. O. Kansas and Missouri office fast. Thus far virtually all theatre owners favor the contract and have agreed to pay the license fee stipulated in the contract. Final decision of the exhibitor organization on the contract is expected soon.

T. J. Wilson, owner of the St. John Theatre of Kansas City, is the latest victim of bandits, he being about No. 15 or 16 in the last two months among exhibitors. On Monday morning Mr. Wilson left his home to go to the bank to deposit the receipts of Saturday and Sunday. In front of his home was a motor car, the engine running. Pressing his hand against his pocket, a bandit stepped from the car and invited Mr. Wilson to "take a ride." He did.. It cost him $350. After several blocks the bandits put Mr. Wilson out of the car and gave him 25 cents to return home.

President R. R. Biechele of the M. P. T. O. Kansas and Missouri is busily engaged in Topeka, Kas., the state capitol, this week, keeping a watchful eye on legislative matters. With him are R. G. Liggett, former president and several other exhibitor officials.

The Lyric Theatre, one of the oldest and most historic buildings of Bonneville, Mo., was purchased Saturday by Charles Sears of Nevada, Mo., former president of the M. P. T. O. Missouri, for $16,000. The theatre was built in 1857 by the Bonneville Thespian Society. In the Battle of Booneville of the Civil War, women and children of the town gathered there for refuge, barricading the doors and windows. Mr. Sears owns a string of theatres in Missouri and Kansas.

M. W. Hubble of the Hubble Theatre, Trenton, Mo., who for several weeks has been dangerously ill, is reported to be greatly improved and is expected to be back in the box office in a few days.

At a meeting at M. P. T. O. Kansas and Missouri headquarters in Kansas City on Wednesday nine prominent Kansas City exhibitors pledged their financial and moral support to the organization. The meeting was a forerunner to a membership campaign which will be launched soon. The nine exhibitors were: Edward Grogger, Belmont Theatre, John Burke, Circle Theatre; F. W. Hewes, Bonaventure Theatre; Jay Means, Murray Theatre; E. E. Webber, Broadmour Theatre; A. F. Gibbons, Prospect Theatre; H. H. Barrett, Colonial Theatre; L. J. Lenhart, Roanoke Theatre; E. T. Burgan, Ellsworth Theatre.

Jack Roth, veteran Kansas City exhibitor, has been succeeded as manager of the Liberty Theatre by Sam Stebbins, formerly manager of the Oakland Theatre, Oakland, California. Mr. Roth resigned to assume the management of the Isis Theatre, Kansas City's largest suburban house.

Among the out-of-town exhibitors in the Kansas City market last week were: Sam Blair, Majestic, Bellville, Kas.; Tom Brown, Leavenworth, Kas., J. C. Allen, Eureka, Weston, Mo.; H. Tinsdale, Elite, Iola, Kas.; Roy Burford, New Burford, Arkansas City, Kas.; M. G. Kirkland, Strand, Hays, Kas.; N. W. Houston, Liberty, Columbus, Kas.; Charles Sears, Star, Nevada, Mo.; S. E. Wilhoit, Jefferson, Springfield, Mo.

The following changes in theatre management, new theatres and improvements have been announced in the Kansas City territory: Royal Theatre, Hoisington, Kas., owned by Lucy & Wilkinson, 250-seat balcony and stage being added; J. A. Harrison has been appointed manager of the Royal Theatre, Nowata, Okla.; Empire Theatre, Eyreka Springs, Okla., purchased by Callahan and Ray; Majestic Theatre, Ada, Okla., reopened after having been closed several months.

JACK ROTH

Manager of the Isis Theatre, Kansas City, who contends the picture theatre affords the cheapest and best entertainment, as compared to the cost and quality of other forms of amusement. He told about it last week in Moving Picture World.

Kentucky

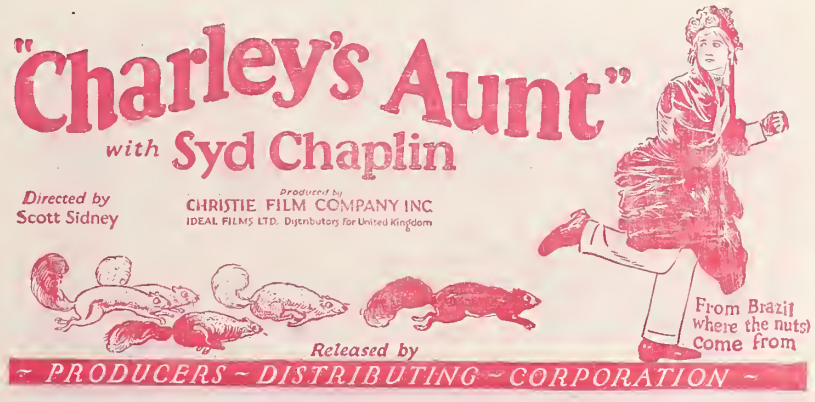
Deeds are being filed in Southern Indiana by the various picture houses operated by the Switow interests as separate units, these deeds being made out to the new Switow Theatrical Company, a $600,000 concern which was recently formed to operate the chain of Indian theatres controlled by M. Switow and associates of Louisville. The Jeffersonville Amusement Company recently deeded over the two houses in that city, and similar deeds have been made at New Albany, Salem, Paoli and Bedford. There are eight picture houses and one vaudeville house in the new organization. Switow is interested in twenty-one theatres, but the Indiana deal covers only the Indiana theatres. The Indiana Theatre at Bedford was opened last Labor Day, and is said to be one of the finest theatres in the state. Officers of the company are M. Switow, president; George P. Koop, vice-president; Harry I. Switow, secretary; Sam J. Switow, treasurer.

It was reported from Paducah, Ky., on January 19 that plans had been drawn for a new theatre to seat 1,700, to be erected by the Columbia Amusement Company, on the present site of the Orpheum Theatre, and to bear the latter name. Ground is to be broken before May, contracts to be awarded shortly after March 1, when bids will be received. Paducah is on the verge of a big boom, as the Illinois Central R. R. has announced plans for new shops costing $6,000,000 and employment of 4,000 to 5,000 more men.

The Palace Theatre, Evarts, Ky., capital $7,500, has been chartered by P. O. Lewis, Willie Lewis and Lois Reed and will operate a picture theatre.

The Majestic Amusement Company, Louisville, which owns the Rialto Theatre, now under lease to the Keith Interests, and which formerly owned the Majestic Theatre, which was sold to the Keiths, held its annual election on January 15, re-electing officers and directors. L. J. Dittmar is vice-president and managing director. C. W. Krebs is secretary.

A $5,000 damage suit has been filed against the Shelby Amusement Company and Sylvester Groves, manager of the Shelby Theatre, Louisville, by Mary Stocking, 18 years old, suing through her father, James Stocking. The girl alleges that she was "insultingly expelled from the theatre."



Raymond Griffith (right) is "Lord Chumly." Also in this Paramount picture are Theodore Roberts (seated), Viola Dana and Cecil Chadwick.

St. Louis Territorial News

Baker & Dodge opened the Grand Theatre, Keokuk, Ia., on January 27. On January 26 state, city and county officials and prominent citizens participated in the formal dedication of the house.

Hungry Hollow, leading suburb of Granite City, Ill., is to have a 285-seat picture palace. Nick Crolick will operate it.

Picture fans of Maplewood, Mo., will vote on a name for the new 1,200-seat theatre which will open on February 7. Dave Nelson will manage the new house.

Chaffee, Mo., is to have a $75,000 picture house. Grant Martin will own it.

Harry Weaver of the Gem Theatre, New London, Ill., is recovering from his recent illness. He is a patient at the local hospital.

Joe Wade reopens the Strand Theatre, Griggsville, Ill., in February; G. E. Parker will reopen his house in Brownsville, Tenn., while the Arlington Theatre, Arlington, Tenn., is scheduled to get under way again in March.

C. C. Calvin, owner-manager of Calvin's Opera House, Washington, Mo., operates a very profitable bus line between St. Louis, Mo., and Washington. He recently placed an order for another sixteen-passenger bus to take care of increased patronage.

V. F. Grubb, manager of the Vernon Theatre, Mount Vernon, Ind., is coasting about in one of those new "8" Hupp roadsters. Looks like first division.

Manager Hayes of the Princess Theatre, Henderson, Ky., is one chap who realizes that women make or break a theatre. He always co-operates with the Woman's Club of that town and profits accordingly.

The Majestic Theatre, Bowling Green, Mo., is scheduled to open shortly. O. A. Hall is the owner-manager.

Joe Maxwell will open his new theatre in Sullivan, Ill., February 1. He recently closed the Photo Play Theatre at Hamilton, Ill., and moved all his equipment to Sullivan.

It is rumored that Jerseyville, Ill., will have another theatre. Details of the opposition to S. E. Pertle have not filtered through as yet.

Jefferson City, Mo., is another closed town that is scheduled to open up. Bill Simons has taken a lease on the old Gem Theatre there and plans to reopen it shortly.

R. R. Russell, general manager of the Strand Theatre, Owensboro, Ky., joined the Rotary Club and Chamber of Commerce recently.

William Goldman, owner of the Kings, Queens and Rivoli theatres, St. Louis, has purchased a beautiful home at 211 Skinker boulevard opposite Forest Park. It is one of the finest homes in town.

North Carolina

Final steps for the amalgamation and extension of activities of the Stevenson Carolina chain of theatres was taken the past week when a charter was granted by the state to the Stevenson Theatres, Inc., which will be the style name of the new firm, taking over the heretofore individually operated theatres, including the Capitol, Raleigh; Liberty and Princess, Henderson; World, Wilson, and Everybody's, Greenville.

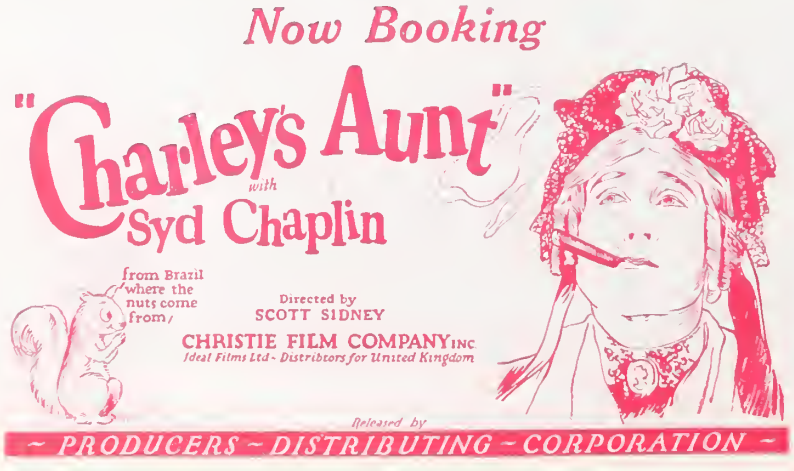
The sixth theatre in the chain, the new Cameo, Rocky Mount, N. C., will have its formal opening on February 7. S. S. Stevenson, directing head of the chain, says that head offices will be maintained in Henderson, where all booking, routing and publicity work for the theatres is handled.

Perhaps no recognition of long and faithful service which has come to an exchange manager in the Carolina territory is more happily received by exhibitors throughout the territory than the announcement that Manager E. F. Dardine, of the Charlotte Universal office, has been rewarded by a twice-yearly vacation for long and continuous service with the company; also that his able assistant manager, L. H. Andrews, and secretary, Miss Carrie Jenkins, were rewarded in like manner. Exhibitors are warmly congratulating the trio for grabbing off these honors in such huge hunks. Probably no other exchange has three employes who have been with the company for ten years continuously.

It has been announced by the Southern Amusement Company, owners of the Ideal Theatre, Winston-Salem, N. C., which burned early in December, that the theatre will be immediately rebuilt, plans having already been drawn for the new edifice and work already under way towards clearing away the debris left by the disastrous fire. The Southern Amusement Company is composed of B. F. Southern, president, and B. C. Clinard, vice-president and treasurer. The Frank L. Blum Company are contractors for the rebuilding.

The new house will be one of the most modern and conveniently arranged in North Carolina, and will be new from the ground up, retaining only the name and management of the old house. There will be largely increased seating capacity, including a balcony. Space formerly occupied by offices will be included in the theatre proper. The capacity will be around 500. Interior decorations of an elaborate nature will have a color motif of green and gold. It will be under the management of M. W. Merriweather, who managed the burned theatre for two years.

Adolphe Menjou and Eileen Pringle in Havana, Cuba, where Frank Tuttle made most of the exterior scenes for "A Kiss in the Dark," Paramount.



Canada

An unusual occurrence has taken place at Ottawa, Ontario, in that a large central picture theatre, the Imperial, played the second run of a feature after it had been presented less than a month before at a much smaller neighborhood house, the second local engagement being arranged by the proprietor of the Imperial with full knowledge of its previous local presentation.

The production is an F. B. O. release, "Thundering Hoofs." It was shown for three days, January 1, 2 and 3, at the Princess Theatre, Rideau street, this house having 475 seats. It was booked by Manager Sol Coplan of the Imperial and presented at that theatre for three days starting January 21. The Imperial is one of the leading theatres of Ottawa and has a capacity of 1,200 seats. Mr. Coplan is the proprietor of both the Imperial and Princess theatres, having recently leased the Imperial for a term of five years. Assistant manager at the Imperial is Joseph Coplan, son of the proprietor.

The Imperial changes programs twice weekly, on Saturdays and Wednesdays, under the new arrangement and the policy has been adopted by Mr. Coplan of buying pictures absolutely on the open market and after he has had them screened. Mr. Coplan, incidentally, makes good use of the trade papers by clipping out the reviews of pictures which he has under consideration and keeping the reviews on file in alphabetical order.

Henry Morton has secured two more theatres, making five in all which he possesses in Winnipeg, Manitoba. He has acquired the Wonderland and Crescent theatres of Winnipeg, which were formerly under the control of F. R. Hyde. The five Morton houses also include the Gaiety, Monarch and Park. All of these are well known and popular community theatres.

Manager Pete Egan of the Strand Theatre, Calgary, Alberta, staged a miniature Covered Wagon Contest on January 22 in connection with the opening of a return engagement of "The Covered Wagon" at the Strand. Three cash prizes were offered for the best covered cart.

A big benefit performance was staged in Massey Musical Hall, Toronto, on January 22 under the auspices of the downtown theatre managers of the city in aid of local war veterans who are feeling the pinch of unemployment. Those in direct charge included J. Bernstein, manager of Loew's Theatre, and N. K. Miller, manager of the Pantages Theatre. The Famous-Lasky Film Service, Ltd., Toronto, donated the use of a film feature for the occasion, and there were other short subjects as well as vaudeville acts and specialties from various houses.

Mae Busch, playing a lead in Metro-Goldwyn's "The Unholy Three," and her director, Tod Browning.

Lon Chaney, Norma Shearer and John Gilbert in a scene from Metro-Goldwyn's big production, "He Who Gets Slapped."

Cincinnati

A new feature in connection with motion picture presentation has been inaugurated by Loew's Ohio Theatres at Cleveland. The regular orchestra at the Allen, augmented to 75 pieces, is giving a symphony concert in the theatre every Sunday at 1 o'clock, the extra musicians being recruited from orchestras playing other Loew houses in the city. Prevailing admission prices for the picture applies to the concert, following which the patrons may remain for the picture without additional charge.

The Orient Theatre at Toledo, Ohio, has changed hands, having been taken over by Ryan & Whittmore. The house was formerly under control of T. Dolgin.

The Nixon Theatre, Akron, Ohio, appears among the recent incorporations, Frank F. Nied, W. F. Jones, Bruce W. Bierce and others being interested.

The Jewel Theatre at Hamilton, playing second-run features, has inaugurated a bargain hour between 1 and 2 o'clock each day, when the admission price is reduced to 5 cents. After 2 o'clock, however, the regular admission of 10 and 20 cents prevails.

The Film Board of Cincinnati recently elected the following officers: Nate Lefkowitz, president; Rudy Knoeple, vice-president; Evelyn MacNamee, secretary, and Ed Booth, treasurer.

Nebraska

Ole Bennett, who operates the Bennett Theatre at Auburn, Neb., is putting real pep into that theatre, which was considered a poor show house and was the location in which a couple of others had failed. Bennett set to work with no thought of failure, painted, cleaned, renovated, increased the orchestra, installed a new ornamental light system, built a new front with roof for patrons so that they do not have to stand out in the weather while waiting to buy tickets, and, above all, is now buying the best first releases. Yes, and he is right at the door to greet all patrons with a smile and a word of cheer; in fact, Bennett just beams optimism and success wherever he appears. The result is a steadily increasing patronage.

I. C. Hon, proprietor of the Walsh Theatre at Waterloo, Neb., has been ill recently.

Fire in the Opera House at Deep River, Ia., caused damage to the extent of about $3,000 recently. According to W. H. Hatter, who operates the place, the loss is his own as he somehow allowed the insurance to lapse last July.

Among out-of-town exhibitors in Omaha recently were: C. J. Dunlap, Dunlap, Ia.; E. H. Robertson, Scribner, Neb.; John Graham, Eagle Grove, Ia.; E. E. Gailey, Wayne, Neb.; Fred Mehaffy, North Bend, Neb.; Mr. Ebersole, Avoca, Ia., and Mr. Morgan, Walnut, Ia.

Now Booking

From Associated Exhibitors' Harold Lloyd republication, "Now or Never."

Pittsburgh

Blawnox, Pa., is soon to have its first picture theatre, to be known as the Maryland, being erected by David and Myra Boyd, the opening of which is slated for late in January. The structure is being built of concrete blocks and will include a pool and billiard hall in the basement, the 350-seat theatre and a confectionery store on the main floor, and apartments in the upper floors. The building is on a lot 27x90 feet.

James Retter, owner of the Capitol Theatre at California, came to Film Row several days ago with a box of cigars under each arm and told the world that "It's a boy!" The newcomer, weighing six pounds and nine ounces, arrived at the Bellevue Suburban Hospital on January 17. Mother and son are doing well.

Tom Bello and John Catrino of the Verdi Theatre, Belle Vernon, opened their new Bello Theatre in that town on January 22. The new house is located at 230 Main street and seats 650. For the present there will be pictures on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, with vaudeville and pictures on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, and matinees on Saturday afternoons.

Fred Militzer is the new manager of the Grand Theatre at McDonald, Pa.

Out-of-town exhibitor visitors to Film Row the past few days included: E. L. McDermott, Johnsonburg; F. L. Farman and Carl Becker, Butler; William Waugeman, Saltsburg, and J. A. Smail, Avonmore.

Peter Mikalarias' beautiful Orpheum Theatre at Connellsville was badly damaged by fire early in the morning of January 18.

Milwaukee

Plans for a $250,000 picture and vaudeville theatre on Milwaukee's South side have just been announced by Alfred H. Bartelt, veteran exhibitor. Work will begin in the spring on a structure which, beside housing an elaborate theatre, will contain stores and apartments. Its location will be eighth and Oklahoma avenues.

The theatre will be built to seat 1,600 on the ground floor, but provision will be made to add a balcony of 800 seats later. The dimensions will be 60 by 210 feet. Mr. Bartelt plans to install an oil heating system and a washed air ventilating apparatus.

At present Mr. Bartelt operates the Eagle, a South Side house. He at one time conducted the Juneau and Empire theatres on the South Side. It is reported that plans are under way for the construction by other parties of a new house on American and Forest Home avenues, also on the South side.

Headquarters of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of Wisconsin and the Milwaukee branch of the organization may be moved shortly from the Toy building. One plan under consideration is to lease the second floor of a new film building which is expected to be built in the spring of Eighth street, near Grand avenue, in the heart of the new exchange district. According to reports, the new structure will house the Midwest and F. B. O. exchanges and the Ray Smith Theatrical Supply House on the lower floor. These are now in the Toy building.

Len Brown, until recently manager of the Lyceum Theatre at Minneapolis, has joined the Fisher Paramount chain as manager of the Parkway Theatre at Madison, Wis. He suiceeeds Al Gillis. The new manager of the Parkway is a brother of Stan Brown of Saxe's Strand, Milwaukee.

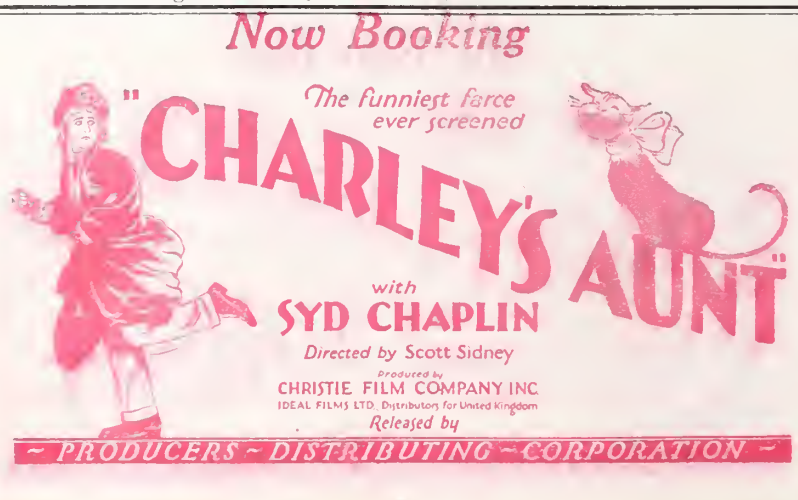
Florida

Lakeland is the latest Florida town to come forward and add its name to the daily growing list in which magnificent new theatres have been opened this season. The new Palace opened last Monday with a gorgeous affair. It is one of the most beautiful and comfortably arranged theatres in Florida, and is under the management of T. B. Garner.

Grover Wise, manager of the West End Theatre, Birmingham, Ala., was an Atlanta visitor the past week on a motor trip, with Lakeland, Fla., as his destination.

The Royal Theatre, Tarpon Springs, formerly managed by H. Pittman, has been purchased by Adolf Gortowtasky of Albama, Ga., adding this house to his fast growing chain.

Lake Worth will very soon open its new Oakley Park Theatre, now nearing completion, of which L. E. and E. C. Oakley, brothers, are owners, with H. J. Denton, formerly of the Sunset Theatre, Fort Lauderdale, Fla., as manager. It is a beautiful fireproof structure of stucco finish, 50 by 135 feet in size, seating 635.



Johnny Walker and Allene Ray in a scene from Episode Five of the Pathe serial, "Galloping Hoofs."

Detroit

H. M. Richey, general manager of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of Michigan, has issued a warning to exhibitors concerning unused deposits which, it has been discovered, have been left with various exchanges and forgotten. Several hundred dollars have been returned to exhibitors during the past few weeks.

The Postum Cereal Company of Battle Creek, holding its annual convention in the Food City, bought out the Post Theatre for a performance of "Oh, Doctor!" one evening last week, the entire force of salesmen from all over the country attending.

Royal A. Baker, police censor of pictures in Detroit, is rapidly gaining attention as a portrait painter. Several of his works are on display in leading Detroit theatres.

A return of cold weather to Detroit stimulated business in all theatres, neighborhood and downtown, last week, exhibitors report. "He Who Gets Slapped," opening at the Adams, went over so strongly that it was held a second week.

Exhibitors like to read of the doings of their friends. Grab them, in these pages, every week.

ANTONIO MORENO
Playing in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's Rex Ingram production of Ibanez' "Mare Nostrum."

JOHNNY HINES
In East Coast Productions' "The Crackerjack," which C. C. Burr will distribute.

Los Angeles

The Mission Theatre at 9th and Broadway, Los Angeles, for many years the bulwark for independent productions, will close this week. The building will be torn down to make room for the new Orpheum Theatre, the building of which will be started immediately. The Mission is one of the oldest picture theatres in Los Angeles. For many years it was the property of Mack Sennett and before being remodelled a few years ago was known as the Sennett Theatre. Sennett sold the theatre to the Pacific Coast Theatres about two years ago. It was later leased by Vitagraph for its first runs.

Sid Grauman has announced that "Romola" will close at the Hollywood Egyptian in four weeks. No announcement has been made as to what picture would follow "Romola," but it is understood that Charles Chaplin's latest will be booked there for an indefinite run in the near future. Grauman also says he will change programs four times a year hereafter instead of twice annually, as has been the custom since the house was first opened.

There is no theatre in Los Angeles among the first-run houses that has any hard and fast rule about changing programs weekly. Grauman's Million Dollar Theatre used to change its bill once a week, but it is now taking big features on for six and seven week runs. According to Jeff Lazarus, "Peter Pan" broke the house record for the Million Dollar Theatre.

Mike Gore brought "The Sainted Devil" back to Tally's Broadway for a two weeks' run after it had a long run at Grauman's. It is growing more and more the custom in the down-town theatres to bring back good features for another first-run, and advertise and exploit them just as if they were the regular first product.

Connecticut

A certificate of organization has been filed with the secretary of state by the Strand Realty Company, Inc., of Hartford, as follows: Officers, president and treasurer, Jacob Berman; vice-president, Max D. Berman; secretary, A. B. Woike. The officers, all of Hartford, form the board of directors.

A bill has been introduced in the Connecticut House of Representatives that would prohibit all billboard advertising except in theatre lobbies by November 1, 1925, under penalty of $2,000 fine or one year in jail, or both. It has been referred to the House Judiciary Committee.

Massachusetts

Thomas C. Heywood died on January 13 at his home in Attleboro. He was 54 years old. Several years ago Mr. Heywood established the first picture theatre in Attleboro and later conducted a number of theatres in Maine. He was the sponsor and leader of the Musicians' Union of Attleboro.

George Sullivan, manager of the Inman Square Theatre in Cambridge, doesn't beat about the bush in getting rid of some of the undesirable class of patrons that are found in virtually every film theatre. A fellow who became abusive when he was ordered to stop smoking faced the judge next morning and was fined $50.

Samuel J. Spector of Malden is to buy a tract of 105,000 feet of land in the business section of that city. Plans will be made for the construction of a picture theatre and stores building.

A Russian film program was presented at Symphony Hall in Boston for one performance only. The feature was "The Beauty and the Bolshevik," a comedy-drama in five reels. An organization of Russian trade unions in Moscow produced the picture.

F. L. Frechette, who conducts theatres in Chicopee Center, Chicopee Falls and Westfield, Mass., ran into some hard luck when he decided to award live chickens as prizes on "country store" nights. Patrolman Daniel J. Hickey of Chicopee was awarded one of the live birds, but as he had no desire to keep it he presented it to his brother-in-law, Michael F. Begley. Begley took the bird home and put it in the pen with his flock of more than 100 first-class chickens. In four days the entire flock was dead, the victims of some violent poultry plague. It is said that the bird which was given away at the theatre may have been afflicted with the European poultry plague that has been discovered by federal inspectors in various sections bordering on the Atlantic coast.

The leading photoplays at Boston theatres during the week of January 25 were as follows: Boston Theatre, "Smouldering Fires"; Gordon's Scollay Square Olympia, "The Painted Flapper"; Fenway, "The Golden Bed"; Loew's State, "The Thief of Bagdad," popular prices; Loew's Orpheum, Harold Lloyd in "Hot Water"; Modern and Beacon (twin theatres), "The Golden Bed" and "Gerald Cranston's Lady"; Bowdoin Square, "After Six Days" and "What Shall I Do?"; Gordon's Capitol, "A Thief in Paradise" and "The Tornado"; Gordon's Allston, "Broken Laws" and "Trouping With Ellen"; Waldron's Casino, "Forbidden Paradise" and "Arizona Romeo"; Lancaster, "North of 36," "Husbands and Lovers," "Inez from Hollywood," "K, the Unknown"; Old Howard, "Tongues of Flame" and "Babbit"; Gordon's Washington Street Olympia, "So Big."

"The Lost World," a First National picture, opens at Tremont Temple, Boston, on February 2.

The Union Square Theatre in Pittsfield now has a vaudeville-film policy. Thursday night is bargain night, when seven acts are presented. Amateurs have Friday night.

BEBE DANIELS
In Paramount's "The Crowded Hour."

Oklahoma

William Spearman of Edmond, Fred Pickrel of Ponca City and Fred Jackson of Pawhuska are the new members of the arbitration board of the Oklahoma Exhibitors Association for the ensuing year, with Charles Hutchinson and Harry Britton as substitutes.

Don Combs has opened his New Theatre at Davenport, Okla.

D. E. Taft has purchased the Liberty Theatre at Garber, Okla., from Dudley Tucker.

L. M. Campbell has closed his Alhambra Theatre at Tulsa, Okla., for the present.

M. J. Roundtree has leased the Empress Theatre at West Tulsa, Okla.

P. J. Poe boarded up his Airdome at Cromwell, Okla., following the destruction of his theatre by fire, and is operating it as a movie theatre.

Harry Britton, exhibitor at Norman, Okla., announces the birth of a daughter.

J. D. Patterson and associated interests have purchased the Wewoka Theatre at Wewoka, Okla., from F. J. Roberts.

Buck Wakefield has been appointed manager of the American Theatre at Enid, Okla. He is succeeded at the Criterion by C. E. Sasseen of Galveston.

W. A. Harrison is building a new theatre at Wharton, Texas, to cost about $20,000.

W. B. Bradshaw and W. O. Hand opened their new theatre at Marked Tree, Ark., on January 10. It seats about 250.

J. P. Cooper has purchased the Liberty Theatre at Bogata, Texas.

Norma Talmadge in the First National picture, "The Lady."

News of the Albany Territory

Jimmy Rose of the Bijou Theatre in Troy, N. Y., uses schoolteacher methods in handling boys of the neighborhood, who were at first inclined to be a bit too boisterous at the theatre. Mr. Rose simply puts these boys on probation. If they behave well and good; if not, out they go for all time, or until they can demonstrate to Mr. Rose's satisfaction that they are willing to behave. Mr. Rose took over the Bijou, which is a residential house in the Collar City, a short time ago. Since acquiring possession he had been working wonders, painting and renovating the interior, providing a new electric sign and making a name for himself generally. The projection is especially good, for projection was one of the hobbies of Elmer Crowninshield, the former owner.

Saturday afternoons are intended almost solely for the boys and girls. The picture is generally one that appeals to the younger element, and Mr. Rose lets them applaud or howl their young heads off. Among Mr. Rose's nightly patrons are some that have been coming every night for twelve years, with the exception of times when a picture is held over for two nights. In fact, when the house opens at 6:30 p. m. Mr. Rose can bank on finding at least a dozen who are there night in and night out. He charges 10 and 15 cents and plays such pictures as "The Alaskan," "Painted People," "Lilies of the Field," "Girl Shy," "Feet of Clay," "Black Oxen," "The Sainted Devil" and "Circus Days."

Plans are under way to remodel the Opera House in Carthage. The house is also being sought by two different persons and may change hands almost any time now. If the change comes, it is said that the theatre will be devoted entirely to pictures.

If Lew Fisher of Ticonderoga is in Albany he can be found in just two places, either along Film Row or at the Elks Club. Mr. Fisher was in town the other day on his way to his recently acquired theatre in Chatham. He's a great booster for the Elks, and every member of the local lodge calls him by his first name.

Here's a good one. It was so cold in Schenectady last Monday night that a big tea kettle, in front of the Strand Theatre, used for exploiting "Hot Water" and from which steam was supposed to come, froze. William Shirley, manager of the theatre, was sitting in his office about 8 o'clock when in rushed Vincent Genre, the fireman, saying that the tea kettle had frozen. Mr. Shirley went out in front, took a hurried look at the thermometer, which registered something below zero, and then remarked that he didn't blame the tea kettle a single bit.

The other day someone asked Maurice Silverman of the Pearl and Happy Hour theatres in Schenectady how he liked a certain picture he had recently run.

"Well," replied Mr. Silverman, "I couldn't hiss and I couldn't cheer."

Figure it out for yourself.

M. E. Silberstein will spend a part of this winter in the South, and what is more he doesn't intend to be bothered with bookings. He was along Film Row during the week and before returning to Catskill he had arranged his bookings for several weeks ahead.

Ilion is to have a brand new theatre, one of the finest in that section of the state. Ben Young, who already runs the Big Ben, Temple and the Opera House in Ilion, is one of the promoters and ground will be broken at once.

The ownership of the Griswold Theatre in Troy changed hands last week when a Boston real estate firm took over the house as well as adjoining property.

The Bijou Theatre in Lowville, owned by E. J. Wolfe, is to be remodeled and enlarged. The house now seats 375. This will be increased to 700. Improvements call for upholstered seats, a large stage and a new heating and ventilating system.

There is a pretty good story going the rounds on Bob Wagner of the Gateway Theatre in Little Falls. Mr. Wagner stages an amateur night once a week. The other night he walked out on the stage to introduce the participants. Someone took Mr. Wagner for one of the amatenr actors and started to applaud. Mr. Wagner looked a bit snspicious, wondering meanwhile if someone had not planted a joke. They now say that someone else will do the introdncing.

L. L. Connors, from the so-called "ham-and-egg" circuit of Granville, Salem and Cambridge, in town the past week for a meeting of the Film Board, had lunch at the Hotel Kenmore with a number of film salesmen. And 'tis said along Film Row that one of the latter paid the check even though he never booked an order.

Dr. J. Victor Wilson, director of presentations for Nate Robbins in Watertown since 1921, has resigned his position, effective February 1, and will return to New York City. Dr. Wilson was one time connected with the Strand in New York. Howard E. Miller of Utica, assistant manager of the Majestic in that city for three years, will succeed Dr. Wilson. Mr. Miller started as an usher in the majestic. The Robbins interests in Watertown include the Olympic and Palace, straight picture houses, and the Avon, playing road shows and pictures.

W. W. Farley, head of Farash Theatres, Inc., of Schenectady, has received a court order permitting the sale of the State Theatre, and he will now proceed to advertise it the required number of times.

Admitting with a laugh that she has been everything from janitor to pianist since she has taken over the Crescent Theatre in Schenectady, Betty Feuer, who also admits being just twenty, is making a good living from the house. Although of slight build, she doesn't hesitate to order too boisterons patrons from the house. Miss Fener does all the buying, works a matter of sixteen hours out of the day and collects the dimes afternoons and evenings.

Here's how William Donovan, at Tupper Lake, picks up a little spare change during the afternoons: He puts on a 10-cent matinee for children every day, starting right after school, and lets them howl their heads off if they want to.

Vincent McCabe, former manager of the Metro-Goldwyn office in Albany, and who later associated himself with the Schine brothers in Gloversville, has packed his bag and moved elsewhere.

William Shirley, general manager for Farash Theatres, Inc., of Schenectady, was in Buffalo on Saturday and Sunday, being called there by the illness of his father. Mike Friedman, assistant manager, was in New York during the past week.

Harmanus Bleecker Hall, in Albany, seating 2,100 persons, will go into double features, three changes a week, beginning February 2. The announcement is one of much importance in Albany theatrical and picture circles. The theatre has been running burlesque for several months. Some years ago the house was devoted to first runs and then swung into stock. Now it is going back to pictures, with the same policy prevailing as at the Griswold in Troy. No announcement has been made as to admission prices.

(Continued on next page)

Now Booking
The funniest farce in 40 years
"CHARLEY'S AUNT"
with Syd Chaplin
PRODUCED BY
CHRISTIE FILM COMPANY, INC.
IDEAL FILMS LDT. DISTRIBTORS FOR UNITED KINGDOM
RELEASED BY
Producers Distributing Corporation

Scene from Our Gang comedy, "Circus Fever," released by Pathe.

Buffalo Territorial News

Sydney Sampson, president of the Film Board of Trade of Buffalo, announces the following new members of the arbitration committee: Fred M. Zimmerman, Producers Distributing Corporation; Earl Kramer, Universal, and G. K. Rudulph, Fox. J. H. Michael, chairman of Buffalo Zone, M. P. T. O. of N. Y., has appointed three boards of three exhibitors each and one alternate to rotate in sitting at the arbitration meetings and to serve one month. The chairmen of the exhibitor committees are A. C. Hyman, Niagara Falls; J. H. Michael, Buffalo, and Howard J. Smith, Buffalo.

R. S. Averill, who has been in New England, has been appointed manager of the Olympic Theatre, Buffalo, succeeding Cass Weill, who has been transferred to a western city. The Olympic is operated by Universal.

Fred M. Zimmerman, chairman of the projection inspection committee of the Film Board, reports that Inspector Walter Dion visited fourteen Buffalo houses last week and in only three of them found perfect projection. In the other eleven houses repairs were needed, especially in sprockets and rollers.

Dewey Michaels, who controls the Plaza, New Ariel and Avon theatres, Buffalo, has opened a downtown office in the Bramson Building.

Bill Calihan of the Regorson Corporation, Rochester, came to Buffalo on January 19 to sit with the exhibitors on the arbitration board for the first time. Bill is a member of Buffalo Zone, M. P. T. O. of N. Y.

Sidney C. Allen of the Allen and Scenic theatres, Medina, N. Y., held a free party for the kiddies the other day in the Allen, and in addition to giving the children a great film show passed around all-day suckers. Is Sid popular with the kids? We'll say he is!

Priscilla Dean is coming to the Lafayette Square Theatre, Buffalo, to make a series of personal appearances in connection with the showing of "The Siren of Seville" the week of February 15.

Ithaca, N. Y., is to have a new Loew theatre, according to reports. It is said that negotiations have been opened for the purchase of the old Binghamton Club property as a site for a vaudeville-picture house.

Johnny Carr, manager of Shea's North Park, Buffalo, put over a fine exploitation campaign on "The Lighthouse by the Sea" and as a result had to call on the police to keep the customers in line at the box office. Window tie-ups, lobby display, boys leading police dogs around town with suitable advertising, newspaper ads and other business-getting stunts were used.

Frank Nowak, manager of the Lincoln Theatre, Buffalo, is driving a new Cadillac sedan about town.

Vincent R. McFaul, managing director of Shea's Hippodrome, Buffalo, has made arrangements with the Statler garage to grant a special rate of 25 cents for four hours' parking in that palatial auto barn while owners of the cars are enjoying the show. Motorists who have tried in vain to find a space for their cars near the theatre will appreciate this service.

Al Becker of the Becker Theatre Supply Company of Buffalo has just installed two new Mazda units and Superlite lenses in the Strand, Brockport, N. Y., and Manager Blouvett is so pleased with the improved projection in spite of an extra long throw that he has decided to equip his other houses with similar units.

It is reported that the Schine interests are about to build a new picture theatre on Webster street in North Tonawanda.

Do you enjoy the newsy items in this live-wire department of exhibitor information? If so, tell the world. If not—tell the editor of these pages so he can give you what you like.

New York Live Wires

CAPITAL FILM EXCHANGE
729 7TH AVE., N. Y. Byt. 9074
"PASSION'S PATHWAY"
"FOR WOMAN'S FERVOR"
"THE LIGHTS OF LONDON"
"PEARL OF LOVE"
"LOVE, LIFE AND LAUGHTER"
"THE HEART OF ALASKA"

Albany, N. Y.

(Continued from preceeding page)

Sam Goldstein of Springfield, Mass., was one of the visitors in town during the week, stopping over long enough to book up a number of pictures before going on to Utica where he has the State Theatre.

Louis and Meyer Schine, Ben Davis of Gloversville and Louis Buettner of Cohoes were among those from this section who attended the Film Ball in New York. William Benton of Saratoga Springs and William Shirley of Schenectady were also along Broadway during the week.

Joe Saperstein of the Griswold in Troy is planning to put on a "Johnny Evers Night" while running a well known baseball picture. Mr. Saperstein never overlooks a bet when it comes to attracting business to his theatre.

Claude Fisher of the American in Schenectady is a great "joiner." He belongs to the Odd Fellows, the Masons and the Elks, and he attends every meeting.

Harold Farrell and his mother, who have been running the Lincoln in Schenectady for five years, charging 17 cents admission, have one of the cleanest and nicest residential houses in the Electric City. They have about 200 patrons who come every night during the week, and some of whom plan to occupy the same seat night after night and become as mad as the proverbial hatter if someone has usurped it. In fact, some of them will stand in the rear until their favorite seat is vacated. The house never changes its price and plays the big features thirty days after the downtown theatres, the management having successfully sold the neighborhood the idea that it's not necessary to pay more than 17 cents for the best on the market.

Vic Warren of Massena lost a valuable barn last week but saved his saddle horses through quick action by Mr. Quenell, his caretaker.

Straight From the Shoulder reports are the dependable guide to use when deciding on picture value for your box office.

Seattle

The new Columbia Theatre, Longview, Wash., will open about February 15. The Columbia Theatre Company last week filed articles of incorporation to the amount of $60,000, with Wesley Vandercook, J. H. Secrest and George B. Purvis.

P. H. Pike, who for five years has been auditor for the Dolan and Ripley interests in Aberdeen and Hoquiam, has resigned to enter the ranks of exhibitors. He is looking for a suitable location and house. Robert Boutell replaces Mr. Pike with the company.

Rumors persist in Spokane to the effect that two of the large exhibitor companies are planning a merger. These reports are denied when broached to the principals, but those in close touch state that such an accomplishment would come as no surprise.

On January 26, Pantages theatres in Tacoma and Spokane will inaugurate a continuous program policy from noon to midnight. Feature pictures will be added to the six acts of vaudeville. This policy has been in operation in Seattle for several months and is now on a successful basis.

The Rialto Theatre, Tacoma, has changed its policy to include one de luxe program each month. This program gives from 18 to 25 minutes of stage stuff in addition to the regular attractions. Manager Greenland is remodeling and enlarging his stage to accommodate this augmented program. New effect machines and a large bank of new dimmers will be a part of the new equipment.

Martin Steffin of the Rex, Tacoma, and George Sauriol of the Orpheum, South Tacoma, have withdrawn from the Moore Amusement Co. booking organization and are now booking their houses independently.

Henry Newman, pioneer showman, who has many years in the Pacific Northwest to his credit, has disposed of his ready-to-wear business and plans to get back into the exhibiting end of the game. Mr. Newman operated one of the first houses in Astoria, Oregon, and later was associated for a number of years with R. E. Connell at his Liberty Theatre, Hoquiam, Wash. He is seeking a location.

It was reported in a recent issue that Mrs. Grace Sanstrom had sold her Proctor Street Blue Mouse Theatre, Tacoma, to H. J. Carey, former owner of the Good Luck, Seattle. This deal, which was pending, was not consummated. Mr. and Mrs. Sanstrom still own their beautiful little suburban house and we hope will long continue their pleasant relationship among us.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Thomas, who operate the South Park Theatre, Seattle, are arranging to reopen the Lake Burien Theatre in that suburban community, operating both houses. James L. Harris has been mentioned as the probable manager.

B. B. Vivian and Mr. Ulch, both of Mount Vernon, Wash., have consolidated the interests of their Mission and Rex theatres.

San Francisco

Morris Klein, who has extensive picture interests at San Francisco, particularly in the North Beach District, plans to make a trip to Europe at an early date, accompanied by his wife and a niece.

Louis R. Greenfield, who conducts a chain of picture theatres at San Francisco, Santa Cruz and Honolulu, is making a trip to the Hawaiian Islands.

The Howard Theatre, conducted at 738 Howard street, San Francisco, by Aaron Goldberg as a part of a chain of local theatres, has been closed. This theatre was built to protect his interests in the Peerless Theatre on Third street and has been a losing venture from the start. Mr. Goldberg finally decided that it would be better to close the place and pay the rent than to operate the house at a steady loss.

Art Frame, formerly manager of the Hippodrome Theatre, San Francisco, will manage the new Ackerman & Harris house to be opened at San Leandro on January 31. He will be succeeded at the Hippodrome by W. H. Bradford.

Milton K. Smith, well known in San Francisco amusement circles, passed away at his home at Oakland on January 14 following an illness of several months. At one time he managed the Broadway Theatre of that city. He had been treasurer of the McDonough and Fulton theatres.

Because of contracts existing before James Beatty took over Beatty's Casino at Ellis and Mason streets, San Francisco, this house was given over on the afternoon of January 17 to the concert of Jascha Helfetz, instead of the regular moving picture and vaudeville bill.

Joseph F. Enos, manager of the Portola Theatre, San Francisco, took advantage of a recent engagement of "The Nut" to install an effective lobby display. A box of California walnuts was displayed and prizes of passes were offered to those guessing the correct number of nuts.

The California Theatre, Petaluma, Cal., was opened late in January, the initial attraction being "Her Night of Romance."

Ellis G. Brode, representing the National Theatres Syndicate, San Francisco, was a recent visitor at Yreka, Cal., where he looked over sites for a projected theatre.

Plans are being completed for a picture theatre to be erected in the St. Francis Wood district of San Francisco.

A. Sifuentes, who conducts a picture house at Atwater, Cal., has purchased the Lyceum Theatre at Fresno, Cal., and plans to rename it the Hidalgo Theatre.

Chicago

Managing Director Joseph Hopp of the Illinois Association reports the following new members added during the past two weeks: George M. Butler, Opera House, Washburn; Mrs. C. W. Schade, Scenic Theatre, Lexington; E. L. Bell, Community Theatre, Heyworth; W. Peine, Miniera Theatre, Miniera; Garvin and Testa, Cozy Theatre, Marseilles; H. F. Walter, Rialto Theatre, Monticello. At the rate Joe is going it won't be long before the 100 per cent. membership of the state will be attained.

Herman Schoenstadt, accompanied by his wife and daughter, has left for an extended trip to Florida and other resorts along the Gulf Coast.

Here is an opportunity for a live exhibitor. A report from Hamilton, Ill., a live little city of 1,200 people on the banks of the Mississippi River where the big Keokuk dam is located, which furnishes electric power as far south as St. Louis, is without a picture house, as R. B. Maxwell, who has operated the theatre there, has closed his house and moved his equipment to Sullivan, Ill., where he will open a movie house.

Ben Horn has closed his movie theatre at Atlanta, Ill., in McLean County, for the winter, owing to the lack of work by the miners there.

E. Barriclow and J. Toffi have opened the Santa Fe Theatre at Toluca, Ill., and will show three times a week for the present.

Edward Holland, formerly in the show business at Upper Alton, Ill., has taken over the Grand Theatre at Lincoln, Ill. The house was formerly operated by J. Quin.

B. Miner will reopen the Hippodrome at North Judson the last of the month, after extensive remodeling.

Willis N. McConnell of the Empress at Decatur, Ill., was in town last week. Mr. McConnell, with Jack Hoeffler, operates the Orpheum at Quincy and besides running theatres finds time to devote to a fine large farm on the banks of the Mississippi near Quincy.

Aurelio Bambara, owner of the New Paris Theatre at 618 South State street, Chicago, was a victim last week in a mystery murder that occurred at the Blue Hour's Cafe on South State street.

T. T. Sellers has sold the Gayety at St. Elmo, Ill., to Gruder & Johnson.

The Lyric at Latham, Ill., has been purchased by Elmer Jerome from Miss E. M. Smith.

Paul Rutishauser opened his Mid-City Theatre on West Madison street, Chicago, last Saturday night. Many film folk turned out to congratulate him upon his fine 300-seat house.

Because of the illness of President Charles Nathan, the meeting of the Illinois Motion Picture Theatre Owners, which was scheduled for January 9, had to be postponed indefinitely. Mr. Nathan was removed to the Presbyterian Hospital, Chicago, where he was under treatment for a week, but was able to leave that institution last Friday.

The many friends of Glen R. Swayze, for several years identified with the Auditorium Theatre here, will be glad to hear he has been made managing director of the Columbia Theatre at Davenport, Iowa.

William J. Miller of the Lynch-Miller circuit, accompanied by his wife and two daughters, left last week on a eight months' tour of the world. While on the trip he will look over the picture theatres of other countries. His many friends in the trade wish him bon voyage on the journey.

Mazelle Wildes has taken over the Happy Hour Theatre at Kendall and renamed the house the Terrace.

STRAIGHT from the SHOULDER REPORTS

A DEPARTMENT FOR THE INFORMATION OF EXHIBITORS

EDITED BY A. VAN BUREN POWELL

These dependable tips come from exhibitors who tell the truth about pictures to help you book your program intelligently. "It is my utmost desire to serve my fellow man," is their motto.

Use the tips; follow the advice of exhibitors who agree with your experience on pictures you both have run.

Send tips to help others. This is your department, run for you and maintained by your good-will.

Associated Exhibitors

(Includes Selznick)

RACING LUCK. (6,000 feet). Star, Monty Banks. An excellent feature comedy that pleased the majority. A good drawing card. Tone and appeal okay. Sunday, yes. Oil field class, town of 1,000. Admission 10-25. H. E. Schlichter, Liggett Theatre (600 seats), Madison, Kansas.

WHITE SHADOWS. Star, Betty Compson. An ordinary show. The story is punk. It goes to prove that it takes American directors to make pictures. Betty drew us enough business to break even. Tone good. Fair appeal. Better class, town of 4,500. Admission 10-15. C. A. Anglemire, "Y" Theatre (404 seats), Nazareth, Pennsylvania.

YANKEE CONSUL. (6,148 feet). Star, Douglas MacLean. This one gave our crowd lots of ha ha's and they all came out with praise of the highest for it. Tone okay. Sunday, okay. Audience appeal okay. Country class, town of 3,300. Admission 15-30. P. L. Vann, Opera House (650 seats), Greenville, Alabama.

F. B. O.

AFTER THE BALL. (6,500 seats). Star cast. A good picture. Ought to please anywhere, and sold right. Town and rural class, town of 800. Admission 10-25. Firkins & Laws, Crystal Theatre (200 seats), Moravia, Iowa.

AFTER THE BALL. (6,500 feet). Star cast. Fairly good little program picture that pleased. Fair tone. No for Sunday. Appeal 75 per cent. Draw from the masses, city of 200,000. Admission 10-20. R. M. Kennedy, Royal Theatre (350 seats), Birmingham, Alabama.

AIR HAWK. (5 reels). Star, Al Wilson. A good sensational thrill picture with a brand new daredevil star. Aeroplane stunts are real. If you want to give your patrons something different book this one. It is not a special, but will satisfy. Tone and appeal good. Admission 10-20. R. A. Preuss, Arvada Theatre, Arvada, Colorado.

CANYON OF THE FOOLS. ((5,180 feet). Star, Harry Carey. Here is a picture with lots of action and should draw well for a Saturday night show. Sunday, no. Good audience appeal. C. O. Christ, Opera House (250 seats), Elgin, Iowa.

CHEAP KISSES. (6,538 feet). Star, Cullen Landis. A very fine production and gave satisfaction to very near all that saw it. Tone and appeal good. Sunday, yes. Small town class, town of 300. Admission 10-25. Roy E. Cline, Osage Theatre (200 seats), Osage, Oklahoma.

FLYING DUTCHMAN. Star cast. Not much to this. A little out of the beaten path, but tame, with no pulling power. Good tone. Sunday, yes. Poor appeal. Draw small town and farmer class, town of 600. Admission 10-20, 10-30. H. W. Batchelder, Galt Theatre (175 seats), Galt, California.

FOOLS IN THE DARK. (7,002 feet). Star, Patsy Ruth Miller. If you want a thriller, here it is. Tone good. Sunday, yes. Audience appeal seventy-five per cent. Conservative class, city of 22,000. Admission twenty-five cents. D. J. Adams, Auditorium Theatre (1,000 seats), Concord, New Hampshire.

GALLOPING GALLAGHER. (4,700 feet). Star, Fred Thomson. We find these westerns above par and have all pleased. Tone good. Sunday, yes. Audience appeal one hundred per cent. Town and rural class, town of 800. Admission 10-25. Firkins & Laws, Crystal Theatre (200 seats), Moravia, Iowa.

GIRL OF THE LIMBERLOST. (6,500 feet). Star, Gloria Grey. Played two days to fairly good business. Everybody seemed satisfied with the show. It is fairly good entertainment. The print we received could have been in better shape for a two days' run. Tone good. Good appeal. Better class, town of 4,500. Admission 10-15. C. A. Anglemire, "Y" Theatre (404 seats), Nazareth, Pennsylvania.

IN FAST COMPANY. Star, Richard Talmadge. A good comedy drama. Plenty of action. Good for the small towns. Our patrons liked it. We ran it with "Fighting Blood." Good attendance on Saturday night. Tone good. Sunday, no. Audience appeal eighty-five per cent. S. A. Hendrix, Cotton Plant, Arkansas.

LAUGHING AT DANGER. (5,442 feet). Star, Richard Talmadge. The best picture that Talmadge has ever made, in my opinion. Business very poor but no fault of the picture. Tone good. Sunday, yes. Audience appeal one hundred per cent. Small town class, town of 300. Admission 10-25. Roy E. Cline, Osage Theatre (200 seats), Osage, Oklahoma.

LIFE'S GREATEST GAME. (7,010 feet). Star, Johnny Walker. This is a dandy picture. It sure has the drawing power. This is a hundred per cent picture. Can't go wrong on buying this picture. Tone good. Sunday, yes. Audience appeal ninety-five per cent. Farm and city class. Admission 15-30. Robert W. Hines, Hines Theatre (150 seats), Loyalton, South Dakota.

LIGHTS OUT. (6,938 feet). Star cast. A fair comedy drama. Will please about seventy-five per cent. Good small town picture. Tone good. Sunday, yes. Town and rural class, town of 800. Admission 10-25. Firkins & Laws, Crystal Theatre (200 seats), Moravia, Iowa.

LULLABY. (7,179 feet). Star, Jane Novak. A very good little picture. The only fault I had to find was with the poor print they sent me. The end was snapped off. That makes a bad impression on an audience. Tone okay. Sunday, yes. Fair audience appeal. Mixed class, town of 3,000. Admission 20-25. T. L. Barnett, Finn's Theatre (600 seats), Jewett City, Connecticut.

MAILMAN. (7,160 feet). Star cast. Hokum in great gobs, but, strange to say, we all still like it, anyway. Fundamental and primitive passions naturally appeal to most humans yet. Tone fine. Sunday, yes. Big audience appeal. Small town class, town of 500. Admission 10-25. C. C. Klutts, Glades Theatre (200 seats), Moore Haven, Florida.

MAILMAN. (7,160 feet). Star cast. A good drama for its kind but not as good as the "Westbound Limited." All good actors and some action. Tone good. Sunday, yes. Not suitable for special. Good appeal. Working class, city of 14,000. Admission 10-20. G. M. Bertling, Favorite Theatre (189 seats), Piqua, Ohio.

MASK OF LOPEZ. (4,900 feet). Star, Fred Thomson. Pleased all who saw it. Silver King has it all over any other horse I've had on my screen, and the Thomson pictures are all good. Tone good. Sunday, yes. Very good audience appeal. Residential class, town of 1,200. Admission 10-25. John McGill, Liberty Theatre (250 seats), Port Orchard, Washington.

THUNDERING HOOFS. (5,015 feet). Star, Fred Thomson. Mighty good western. Have four more booked but Boston office cannot say when or give titles. Sorry. He's a wonderful bet here. Draws as well if not better than Tom Mix. Tone okay. Sunday, yes, here. Not suitable for a special. Audience appeal 100 per cent. Draw all classes, town of 6,000. Admission 10-20-30. Frank H. Wotten, Park Theatre (600 seats), Lebanon, New Hampshire.

TIGER THOMPSON. (5,700 feet). Star, Harry Carey. Very good western picture, but not as good as the next two releases by this company. Will satisfy lovers of western dramas, however. Brought very good business. Tone good. Sunday, yes. Audience appeal sixty per cent. All classes, town of 6,000. Admission 10-20-30. Frank H. Wotten, Park Theatre (600 seats), Lebanon, New Hampshire.

UP AND AT 'EM. (4,580 feet). Star cast. Very ordinary western picture of the program type. Below average appeal. Draw rural and small town class, town of 1,474. Admission 10-25. T. W. Cannon, Majestic Theatre (315 seats), Greenfield, Tennessee.

VANITY'S PRICE. (6,124 feet). Star, Anna Q. Nilsson. As a special this would flop; as an ordinary picture it will get by. Tone Good. Sunday, no. Audience appeal fifty per cent. Small town class, town of 300. Admission 10-25. Roy E. Cline, Osage Theatre (200 seats), Osage, Oklahoma.

First National

CHILDREN OF THE DUST. (6,228 feet). Star cast. This was not a special but, man! it sure did go well with me. It gives you that comfortable, satisfied feeling that goes with a satisfactory showing. It will stand extra advertising. Good tone and appeal. Yes for Sunday. Draw rural and small town class, town of 1,474. Admission 10-25. T. W. Cannon, Majestic Theatre (315 seats), Greenfield, Tennessee.

CLASSMATES. (6,983 feet). Star, Richard Barthelmess. A fine picture. Something different. Pleased at least ninety per cent. Fine acting. Scenes at West Point were wonderful. Tone good. Sunday, yes. Fine appeal. All classes, town of 1,200. Admission 10-30. F. E. Wheeler, Strand Theatre, Scotland, South Dakota.

DADDY. (5,738 feet). Star, Jackie Coogan. Coogan just fits in this picture and it made a very pleasing offering. Tone O. K., appeal good. Yes for Sunday. Draw rural and small town class, town 1,474. Admission 10,-25. T. W. Cannon, Majestic Theatre (315 seats), Greenfield, Tennessee.

ETERNAL FLAME. (7,452 feet). Star, Norma Talmadge. It will please your better class of patronage, but it is not a Saturday night picture. Good audience appeal of its type. Draw rural and small town class, town 1,474. Admission 10-25. T. W. Cannon, Majestic Theatre (315 seats), Greenfield, Tennessee.

GOLDFISH. (7,145 feet). Star, Constance Talmadge. Constance at her worst. Probably would have made a good picture in five reels, but seven were too many. Constance means nothing at the box office any more and it is a pity as she is a splendid actress. What she needs is a real director. Patrons were strong in their criticisms of this one. Tone, fair. Sunday, yes. Audience appeal, weak. General class town of 1,000. Admission 10-25, 20-40. H. H. Hedberg, Amuse-U Theatre, Melville, Louisiana.

HOTTENTOT. (5,953 feet). Star, Douglas MacLean. Ran this on New Years Day at Y. M. C. A. Proved to be the best we could have had. Exchange has good print on this picture in the territory. A good bet any place. Good tone. Sunday yes. Appeal 100 per cent. Conoat Projection Service, Mitchell Conery, Menands, New York.

HUNTRESS. (6,236 feet). Star, Colleen Moore. A different kind of western. One they will all like. Colleen fine in this. Tone and appeal good. Sunday, yes. Rural class town of 250. J. J. Halley, San Andreas Theatre, San Andreas, California.

IN HOLLYWOOD WITH POTASH AND PERLMUTTER. (6,700 feet). Star cast. Pleased about as well as the first one, but did not draw as well. Business is off in general, however. Joe Hewitt, Strand Theatre, Robinson, Illinois.

ISLE OF LOST SHIPS. (7,425 feet). Star cast. This picture is based on a novel idea, was rather creepy at times, and I would say it is a dandy but for the small town. If you can get a good print, run it and advertise it strong. Tone O. K. Good appeal. Draw rural and small town class, town 1,474. Admission 10-25. T. W. Cannon, Majestic Theatre (315 seats), Greenfield, Tennessee.

LILIES OF THE FIELD. (8,500 feet). Star, Corinne Griffith. A fine picture that pleased all. Heard more good comments on this one than I have heard in a long while. Tone, good. Sunday, yes. Fine audience appeal. All classes town of 1,200. Admission 10-30. F. E. Wheeler, Strand Theatre, Scotland, South Dakota.

LOVE MASTER. (6,779 feet). Star, Strongheart (dog). Extra good. The work of the dog is great. This picture is in a class by itself. Tone and appeal, good. Sunday, yes. All classes town of 1,200. Admission 10-30. F. E. Wheeler, Strand Theatre, Scotland, South Dakota.

MONEY, MONEY, MONEY. (5,995 feet). Star, Katherine MacDonald. A very poor program picture with, here, little or no audience appeal. Draw rural and small town class, town 1,474. Admission 10-25. T. W. Cannon, Majestic Theatre (315 seats), Greenfield, Tennessee.

PENROD AND SAM. (6,275 feet). Star cast. You don't want anything better than this. It's real life. Tone, good. Sunday, yes. Fine appeal. Rural class town of 250. J. J. Halley, San Andreas Theatre, San Andreas, California.

PERFECT FLAPPER. (7,000 feet). Star, Colleen Moore. You might as well play it, boys, now as it is some picture. Played this to good patronage and would have cleaned up had it not been for wet weather. Lots of good comments and the film condition was excellent. Miss Moore does the best acting of her career in this one and the picture teaches a lesson in a highly entertaining manner. Tone, fair. Sunday, no. Audience appeal, one hundred per cent. General class town of 1,000. Admission 10-25, 20-40. H. H. Hedberg, Amuse-U Theatre, Melville, Louisiana.

POTASH AND PERLMUTTER. (7,700 feet). Star cast. A human picture. Excellent entertainment. Tone, good. Sunday, yes. Fine appeal. Rural class town of 250. J. J. Halley, San Andreas Theatre, San Andreas, California.

SEA HAWK. (12,045 feet). Star cast includes Milton Sills. Here's one of the best all-around pictures I have ever played, both for educational value, 100 per cent. entertainment, and as a good business getter. Stands out with two other pictures as best business in history of the house. Tone O. K. Yes here for Sunday. Appeal superfine. Guy A. Kinemer, Arcade Theatre (1,151 seats), Jacksonville, Florida.

SECRETS. (8,345 feet). Star, Norma Talmadge. Norma at her best and a picture that gave good satisfaction to everyone. Tone, good. Sunday, yes. Audience appeal, ninety per cent. Conservative class city of 22,000. Admission twenty-five cents. D. J. Adams, Auditorium Theatre (1,000 seats), Concord, New Hampshire.

SONNY. (6,900 feet). Star, Richard Barthelmess. This one would be classed as a real good program picture but not in the Special class. Good tone and appeal. Sunday yes. Draw rural and small town class, town 1,474. Admission 10-25. T. W. Cannon, Majestic Theatre (315 seats), Greenfield, Tennessee.

TOL'ABLE DAVID. (7,118 feet). Star, Richard Barthelmess. Good, but fight of David and Torrence a bit gruesome. Tone and appeal fair. Sunday, yes. Rural class town of 250. J. J. Halley, San Andreas Theatre, San Andreas, California.

WHITE MOTH. (6,550 feet). Star, Barbara LaMarr. Pleased, good business. A lot of money spent on production and it shows on the screen. Fair tone, good appeal. Hardly for Sunday. Draw family and student class, town 4,000. Admission 10-25. R. J. Relf, Star Theatre (600 seats), Decorah, Iowa.

WOMAN CONQUERS. Star, Katherine MacDonald. This is by far the best MacDonald picture I've ever shown and it will rank well up with the program class. It holds the interest from start to finish. Tone O. K. Yes for Sunday. Fair audience appeal. Draw rural and small town class, town 1,474. Admission 10-25. T. W. Cannon, Majestic Theatre (315 seats), Greenfield, Tennessee.

Between Ourselves

A get-together place where we can talk things over

Sometimes an exhibitor has an extra minute left over after writing reports, and he uses it to shoot in a little intimate word or two about himself, his theatre, or, maybe, what he thinks about some condition of interest to him and to the exhibitors in his locality.

Every once in a while a letter like that turns out to be mighty important, bringing up some point that turns out to be of national interest.

Often enough it's just something that will interest only the exhibitor and the chap sitting here collecting the reports for this dependable tip department. But—he likes to read it, a whole lot.

So, get the personal touch, folks. Talk to Straight From the Shoulder—"straight from the shoulder." I like to hear about your successes and you'll always find interest taken in what you have to say.

VAN.

Fox

CIRCUS COWBOY. (6,400 feet). Star, Buck Jones. Splendid picture. Lots of action. Did well. Audience pleased. Tone, good. Small town class town of 250. Admission 10-20. Stratton's Theatre, Griffin, Indiana.

DOES IT PAY. (6,652 feet). Star, Hope Hampton. No, it doesn't pay to run this as a special and we didn't, thanks to "Our Gang." However, it is a good program picture, although a little draggy in spots and we played it as a program picture although we paid a special price for it. Booked it to play as a special but saved ourselves by being members of the Straight From The Shoulder Club. Tone, fair. Sunday, no. Audience appeal, seventy-five per cent. General class town of 1,000. Admission 10-25, 20-40. H. H. Hedberg, Amuse-U Theatre, Melville, Louisiana.

LONE STAR RANGER. (5,259 feet). Star, Tom Mix. This one does pretty well for Mix, but he has made better ones. Fair tone. Good audience appeal. Draw rural and small town class, town 1,474. Admission 10-25. T. W. Cannon, Majestic Theatre (315 seats), Greenfield, Tennessee.

HELL'S HOLE. (6 reels). Star, Buck Jones. This was a good picture and they sure like Buck Jones, but when they found out it was a dream they were disappointed. Get away from that dream stuff. Tone and appeal, good. Sunday, no. Farmers town of 800. Admission 15-25. Charles T. McFadden, Lyrus Theatre (200 seats), Lyrus, Colorado.

MILE A MINUTE ROMEO. (4,800 feet). Star, Tom Mix. The usual Tom Mix western that will please the Mix fans. Tone, good. Sunday, yes. Audience appeal, good. Miners and farmers town of 600. Admission 10-25, 15-30 for specials. John Russell, Russell Theatre (250 seats), Matherville, Illinois.

PLUNDERER. (5,812 feet). Star cast. A special worth boosting; some very good work by stars in this one. Print new. Tone good. Sunday, yes. Good audience appeal. All classes in big city. Admission ten cents. Stephen G. Brenner, Eagle Theatre (298 seats), Baltimore, Maryland.

SILENT COMMAND. Star, Edmund Lowe. Very interesting story of the U. S. Navy. It is done well and pleased about ninety per cent. Tone okay. Sunday, yes. Good audience appeal. Rural and small town class, town of 450. Admission 10-30. A. F. Thomas, Pastime Theatre (250 seats), Almyra, Arkansas.

SOFT BOILED. (8 reels). Star, Tom Mix. A knockout picture. Something doing every minute. Mix always brings the dough. Pleased one hundred per cent. Films in bad condition. Farming class town of 250. Admission 10-20. Stratton's Theatre, Griffin, Indiana.

THIS FREEDOM. (7,000 feet). Star cast. Another of Fox's so-called specials. Just a program picture. Stay off of it. I paid too much for Fox's so-called specials. Have lost money on most of them. No tone. Sunday, no. Poor appeal. S. A. Hendrix, Cotton Plant, Arkansas.

WINNER TAKE ALL. (5,949 feet). Star, Buck Jones. A good Buck Jones program picture. Buck is like a barking dog in this, because he is one "wow" after another. Print new. Drew more men and boys than ladies. Audience appeal, seventy-five per cent. Good week day picture. R. A. Preuss, Arvada Theatre, Arvada, Colorado.

Metro-Goldwyn

ARAB. (6,710 feet). Star cast. A well made, directed and played production of Ingram's; but failed to draw. It seems that they do not care for camels and desert brides. Not much action to it. Tone good. Yes for Sunday. Little appeal. Draw miners, town about 2,000. Admission 10-25. Arch Catalano, Victory Theatre (275 seats), Rossiter, Pennsylvania.

BANDOLERO. (7,000 feet). Star cast. First new Metro-Goldwyn .Played Christmas. Wonderful picture. Pleased one hundred per cent. to big business. Metro-Goldwyn has the stuff advertised strong. R. Russell, Russell Theatre, Barnesboro, Pennsylvania.

BEAUTY PRIZE. (5,750 feet). Star, Viola Dana. Very cute comedy drama with Viola as peppy as ever. Her pictures are all usually good. No big knockouts as her stories are too light. Young people's appeal. Tone, good. Sunday, yes. R. A. Preuss, Arvada Theatre, Arvada, Colorado.

BREAD. (6,726 feet). Star, Mae Busch. A slice of real life you will show your patrons when you play "Bread." A very good picture not spicy or hokum, but just right. Tone and appeal, good. Sunday, yes. Admission 10-20. R. A. Preuss, Arvada Theatre, Arvada, Colorado.

Constance Talmadge in "Learning to Love," a First National picture.

BROKEN BARRIERS. (5,717 feet). Star cast. Pleased about seventy-five per cent. Good business. R. Russell, Russell Theatre, Barnesboro, Pennsylvania.

CIRCE, THE ENCHANTRESS. (6,882 feet). Star, Mae Murray. The best she has made in some time. Good story and well played; pleased 100 per cent. Will please any one who appreciates a real picture. Tone and appeal good. Yes for Sunday. Draw college class, town 2,100. R. X. Williams, Lyric Theatre, Oxford, Mississippi.

ETERNAL STRUGGLE. (7,374 feet). Star, Earle Williams. A very fine picture and one that will please all classes. Tone, good. Sunday, yes. Audience appeal, ninety-five per cent. Small town class town of 300. Admission 10-25. Roy E. Cline, Osage Theatre (200 seats), Osage, Oklahoma.

GREAT WHITE WAY. (10,000 feet). Star, Anita Stewart. This one drew extra well for me and all seemed to enjoy it. I think many came to see the celebrities of New York, because nearly every well known sports writer and men in boxing business are in the cast. Tone okay. Sunday, yes. Fine audience appeal. Mixed class, town of 3,000. Admission 20-25. T. L. Barnett, Finn's Theatre (600 seats), Jewett City, Connecticut.

GREAT WHITE WAY. (10 reels). Star, Anita Stewart. This one went over good for us and did not cost a fortune to buy. The posters on it are unusually good and they are what got the business for us on picture. Tone, okay. Sunday, yes. Good appeal. Miners and farmers town of 600. Admission 10-25, 15-30 for specials. John Russell, Russell Theatre (250 seats), Matherville, Illinois.

LONG LIVE THE KING. (9,364 feet). Star, Jackie Coogan. A very good picture pleased most of them but our class does not like fairy stories and are fed up on kings, castles, uniforms and like trimmings. Tone, good. Sunday, yes. Appeal, seventy-five per cent. Town and rural class town of 800. Admission 10-25. Firkins & Laws, Crystal Theatre (200 seats), Moravia, Iowa.

HE WHO GETS SLAPPED. (6,613 feet). Star, Lon Chaney. A picture that is different and unusual, and certainly will please the biggest part of the public. A story of a clown with a broken heart. Norma Shearer and John Gilbert are in the cast and their work is excellent. Tone and appeal good. Admission 10-25. R. A. Preuss, Arvada Theatre, Arvada, Colorado.

LITTLE ROBINSON CRUSOE. (6,216 feet). Star, Jackie Coogan. One of the best Coogan's ever made and I will guarantee this one to please any audience. It's just what we want him in. You will have every kid in town on this one and it will please the grown ups too. Tone, good. Sunday, yes. It's suitable for special. Audience appeal, one hundred per cent. Small town class town of 6,000. Admission 10-30. L. O. Davis, Virginia Theatre (600 seats), Hazard, Kentucky.

MADEMOISELLE MIDNIGHT. (6,778 feet). Star, Mae Murray. A good one; action and story in it. Glad to play this one first for I do not expect the rest of hers to do as good here. Tone good. Appeal good to those who know the story. Yes for Sunday. Draw miners, town about 2,000. Admission 10-25. Arch Catalano, Victory Theatre (275 seats), Rossiter, Pennsylvania.

RECOIL. (6,800 feet). Betty Blythe. I can't say much for this one. Those foreign stories simply do not draw the business. Picture was fair but nothing to rave over. Tone O. K. Yes for Sunday. Not suitable for Special. Poor audience appeal. Draw mixed class, town 3,000. Admission 20-25. T. L. Barnett, Finn's Theatre (600 seats), Jewett City, Connecticut.

RED LILY. (6,975 feet). Star, Ramon Navarro. Fred Niblo's own story of the underworld. It was too heavy for my town although I heard no kicks. It drew well and would of pleased one hundred per cent. if cruelty was less. Sunday, no. Audience appeal, fifty-fifty. R. A. Preuss, Arvada Theatre, Arvada, Colorado.

SCARAMOUCHE. (9,600 feet). Star, Alice Terry. A great picture. Get behind this one. Came close to house record; the best picture we ever got from Metro. Exploitation, the year's best picture. Played the same week it won Zukor prize. Tone okay. Sunday, yes. Should appeal to all classes. All classes, town of 4,500. Admission 25-35. Jos. Angros, Jr., Palace Theatre (400 seats), Leechburg, Pennsylvania.

SINNERS IN SILK. (5,750 feet). Star cast. A jazz picture, little if any better than the hundreds now being shown. Haven't we had about enough of this kind of thing? There must be some other kind of thing to write about. For the love of Mike give us a change. We are jazzed to death. Best class city of 10,000. Admission 10-20. Ned Pedigo, Pollard Theatre, Guthrie, Oklahoma.

SHOOTING OF DAN McGREW. (6,318 feet). Star cast, includes Barbara LaMarr, Lew Cody. This is a good one; book and boost it to the limit. It has everything in it for 'em in a small town. Paid too much for it but did not regret it. Good tone and appeal but Sunday no. Draw miners, town about 2,000. Admission 10-25. Arch Catalano, Victory Theatre, (275 seats), Rossiter, Pennsylvania.

SHOOTING OF DAN McGREW. (6,318 feet). Star, Barbara LaMarr. Very good northern story that should please the average audience. Tone and appeal, good. Sunday, yes. Miners and farmers town of 600. Admission 10-25, 15-30, for specials. John Russell, Russell Theatre (250 seats), Matherville, Illinois.

STEADFAST HEART. (7 reels). Star, Marguerite Courtot. This is a good program picture, especially appealing to small towns. Everyday life and lots of action. Patrons said "very good" on the way out, and that's what we like to have them say. Excellent tone. Sunday yes. As Special, no. Audience appeal 90 per cent. Draw all classes, town 6,000. Admission 10-20-30. Frank H. Wotten, Park Theatre (600 seats), Lebanon, New Hampshire.

STRANGERS OF THE NIGHT. (8,000 feet). Star cast. A good program picture. Broke even with it. It takes a real, honest-to-goodness action story to draw these days. Good tone. Draw miners, town about 2,000. Admission 10-25. Arch Catalano, Victory Theatre (275 seats), Rossiter, Pennsylvania.

Paramount

ALASKAN. (6,738 feet). Star, Thomas Meighan. Did big business the first day. Second day it fell off and on the third day. Saturday, when it should have done the biggest business it did less than half of what it did the first day. Picture did not do the business the increased rental called for. However, general opinion was about divided on the picture. Half said it was good and half said it was bad, but all said it was better than the former Meighans. Tone, okay. Sunday, oaky. All classes in town of 3,000. Admission 10-30. M. W. Larmour, National Theatre (450 seats), Graham, Texas.

ALASKAN. (6,738 feet). Star, Thomas Meighan. A good picture that's all. Beautiful scenery and a fair box office attraction. Curwood of course helps considerably. Meighan not worth the price to me any more. Tone, okay. Sunday, yes. It's suitable for special. Audience appeal, eighty-five per-cent. Small town class town of 6,000. Admission 10-30. L. O. Davis, Virginia Theatre (600 seats), Hazard, Kentucky.

CALL OF THE CANYON. (6,982 feet). Star, Richard Dix. I had hard luck on this one as I did, so far, on all the rest of the Paramount good ones. Had it booked for two days but it did not come for the first day! And customers got disgusted on the first night, and used only for one day. The print very old. Draw miners, town about 2,000. Admission 10-25. Arch Catalano, Victory Theatre (275 seats), Rossiter, Pennsylvania.

CHANGING HUSBANDS. (6,799 feet). Star, Leatrice Joy. They got a good laugh out of this. Very good show but poor attendance. Pretty fair tone; possibly for Sunday. Good audience appeal. Draw family and student class, town 4,000. Admission 10-25. R. J. Relf, Star Theatre (600 seats), Decorah, Iowa.

Madge Kennedy and Conway Tearle in "Bad Company," a St. Regis picture for Associated Exhibitors' release.

CODE OF THE SEA. (6,038 feet). Star, Rod LaRocque. Very ordinary sea picture. Just a fair program picture, did not do much business for us. Tone, okay. Sunday, yes. Audience appeal, fair. Miners and farmers town of 600. Admission 10-25, 15-30 for specials. John Russell, Russell Theatre (250 seats), Matherville, Illinois.

CONFIDENCE MAN. (6,500 feet). Star, Thomas Meighan. Good picture but not a big special. Meighan is nor worth the money we have to pay for him, this is a good picture but not worth an increase in admission price. Tone, okay. Sunday, yes. Good appeal. Miners and farmers town of 600. Admission 10-25, 15-30, for specials. John Russell, Russell Theatre (250 seats), Matherville, Illinois.

ENEMY SEX. (7,861 feet). Star, Betty Compson. Fair picture and one that the critics raved about but small town box offices don't take to these like a duck does to water so don't go after this one too big. Just a good picture for your high class patronage. Tone, okay. Sunday, no. Not suitable for special. Small town class town of 6,000. Admission 10-30. L. O. Davis, Virginia Theatre (600 seats), Hazard, Kentucky.

FEET OF CLAY. (9,746 feet). Star cast. A very fine picture. Entirely too long and draggy otherwise it would have pleased. Exchange asks too much money for it. Best class city of 10,000. Admission 10-20. Ned Pedigo, Pollard Theatre, Guthrie, Oklahoma.

FEET OF CLAY. (9,746 feet). Star cast. One of the best on the first forty and person with ordinary intelligence can appreciate this fine picture. Don't be afraid to go after this one as it is right there in story, acting and direction. DeMille's best in many a day. Tone, good. Sunday, yes. It's suitable for special. Appeal, one hundred per cent. Small town class town of 6,000. Admission 10-30. L. O. Davis, Virginia Theatre, (600 seats), Hazard, Kentucky.

LOCKED DOORS. (6,621 feet). Star, Betty Compson. Nothing to brag about. Just gets by. Good acting and good scenery. Tone, fair. Sunday, yes. Poor appeal. All classes town of 1,200. Admission 10-30. F. E. Wheeler, Strand Theatre, Scotland, South Dakota.

OPEN ALL NIGHT. (6,881 feet). Star, Viola Dana. Cannot recall a sillier picture than this. The author probably sat up all night, after eating a lobster, to write the story. Exhibitors will make enemies by showing it. Famous Players would confer a favor on exhibitors by using the ax on the whole mess. Tone, bad. Not suitable for Sunday, nor any other day. Audience appeal, none whatever. Mixed class city of 500,000. Admission 10-20. William T. Meeks, Murray Theatre (740 seats), Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

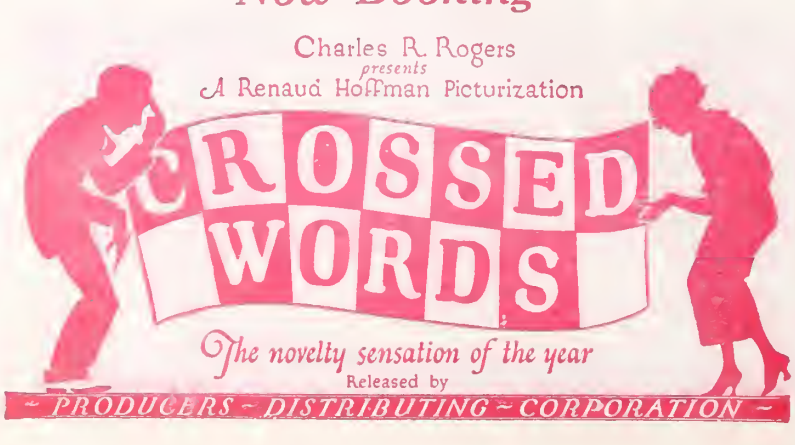
TONGUES OF FLAME. (6,763 feet). Star, Thomas Meighan. The best thing Meighan has done for some time. Sustains interest all through. Tone, fine. Sunday, yes. Audience appeal, one hundred per cent. Oil field class town of 1,000. Admission 10-25. H. E. Schlichter, Liggett Theatre (600 seats), Madison, Kansas.

TONGUES OF FLAME. (6,763 feet). Star, Thomas Meighan. Not up to standard of what they expect of Meighan. Poorest Melghan business in over a year. It's a crime they don't give Meighan better material. Joe Hewitt, Strand Theatre, Robinson, Illinois.

TRIUMPH. (8,297 feet). Star, Leatrice Joy. Good picture. Cast well balanced. Drew fine comments. J. J. Halley, San Andreas Theatre, San Andreas, California.

WAGES OF VIRTUE. (7,083 feet). Star, Gloria Swanson. Gloria's acting is good, but the picture was considered the rottenest thing she has done by the people here. The prevailing comment was, "Just a lot of running up and down alleys and fooling around in cheap cafes in some foreign country." Not suitable for Sunday, here. Not much audience appeal. All classes town of 3,000. Admission 10-30. M. W. Larmour, National Theatre (450 seats), Graham, Texas.

WANDERER OF THE WASTELAND. (6,700 feet). Star, Jack Holt. While it is a beautifully done picture, being all in colors, it did not please well for us. Snake scene is repulsive to women and story is not of the type to please the better class of audiences. Tone, okay. Sunday, too rough Audience



"Best wishes to your department, and more prosperity," says C. E. Robinson, Town Hall, Carmel, Me.

"Our Gang" echoes the wish for Mr. Robinson.

He is not now running the theatre, but may bob up again—certainly hope so, for he sent good reports.

appeal, only fair. All classes city of 14,000. Admission 10-35. E. W. Collins, Grand and Liberty Theatres (700-500 seats), Jonesboro, Arkansas.

WANDERER OF THE WASTELAND. (6,700 feet). Star, Jack Holt. This Zane Grey story is very good, but the natural coloring in it is a matter for discussion. It is very beautiful, but many though it hurt one's eyes. So there you are. Tone, okay. Sunday, yes. Good audience appeal. Mixed class town of 3,000. Admission 20-25. T. L. Barnett, Finn's Theatre (600 seats), Jewett City, Connecticut.

WHEN KNIGHTHOOD WAS IN FLOWER. (11,618 feet). Star, Marion Davies. Not as good as expected. Just a fair program picture. Mixed class town of 800. Admission 15-25. Jerry Wertin, Winter Theatre (240 seats), Albany, Minnesota.

WILD BILL HICKOCK. (6,892 feet). Star, Bill Hart. Wild Bill is right, I heard no comments either way on thls but that was because I was afrald to ask anyone what they thought of it. Hope Hart wakes up. Admission 15-25. David W. Strayer, Mt. Joy Theatre, Mt. Joy, Pennsylvania.

WOMAN PROOF. (7,657 feet). Star, Thomas Meighan. A very good picture that pleased majority of patrons. Held interest well to end. Should please majority of Meighan fans. Tone, good. Good appeal. General class town of 1,200. Admission 15-25. E. N. Prescott, Prescott Circuit Theatre (250-700 seats), Union, Maine.

WOMAN PROOF. (7,657 feet). Star, Thomas Meighan. It was just a fair Meighan picture and should be bought at a fair price. Tone, good. Sunday, yes. Audience appeal, fair. Town and country class town of 900. Admission 10-25-30. Charles L. Nott, Opera House Theatre (300 seats), Sutherland, Iowa.

Pathe

COLUMBUS. (Chronicles of America.) The educational value of this is very high; the entertainment value, not so good. This picture will receive the hearty endorsement of the schools. Tone good. Appeal only fair. Yes for Sunday. Mitchell Conery, Conoat Projection Service, Menands, New York.

GIRL SHY. (7,457 feet). Star, Harold Lloyd. No use for exhibitors to keep on reporting on this. Everybody ought to know by now that it's his best which puts it up in the super pictures of the year. Tone, okay. Sunday, okay. Audience appeal, okay. Country class town of 3,300. Admission 15-30. P. L. Vann, Opera House (650 seats), Greenville, Alabama.

WHY WORRY. (6 reels). Star, Harold Lloyd. An entertainment that should please everybody. It's a riot of fun. Tone good. Sunday, yes. Fine audience appeal. Rural class town of 250. J. J. Halley, San Andreas Theatre, San Andreas, California.

Preferred

SHADOWS. (7,040 feet). Star, Lon Chaney and featured cast. "Shadows" was a good picture but lacked pep, which lets it out for the small town. Good tone, yes for Sunday. Audience appeal below average. Draw rural and small town class, town 1,474. Admission 10-25. T. W. Cannon, Majestic Theatre, (315 seats), Greenfield, Tennessee.

THORNS AND ORANGE BLOSSOMS. (6,971 feet). Star cast. It seemed to please. No comments either way. Good appeal. Draw rural and small town class, town 1,474. Admission 10-25. T. W. Cannon, Majestic Theatre (315 seats), Greenfield, Tennessee.

WHITE MAN. (6,370 feet). Star, Kenneth Harlan. Just a program picture and that is all. South sea island story and mostly love stuff. Tone and appeal fair. Sunday, no. Oil field class town of 1,000. Admission 10-25. H. E. Schlichter, Liggett Theatre (600 seats), Madison, Kansas.

Producers' Dist. Corp.

BARBARA FRIETCHIE. (7,179 feet). Star cast includes Florence Vidor. One of the best I have ever seen. Plenty of action. Nelson L. Daprow, Grand Theatre, Williamstown, New Jersey.

BARBARA FRIETCHIE. (7,179 feet). Star, Florence Vidor. Fine picture. Well directed. Pleased one hundred per cent. Florence Vidor and Edmund Lowe great work. Fair busIness. Joe George, American Theatre, Idaho Falls, Idaho.

BARBARA FRIETCHIE. (7,179 feet). Star, Florence Vidor. Great picture, beat "America." I. H. Harris, Strand Theatre, Evanston, Wyoming.

BARBARA FRIETCHIE. (7,179 feet). Star, Florence Vidor. A one hundred per cent. audience picture. Charmingly told. Sustains interest to the last. I am sure a snow storm was the only thing that kept them away. Y.M.C.A., Carney's Point, New Jersey.

DOWN TO THE SEA IN SHIPS. Star cast. This is an old one, but it is big enough to play twice. My patrons thought it about the best they had seen. Followed Tremont Temple, Boston, on this one and swung big business. Tone, fair. Not suitable for Sunday. Audience appeal, one hundred percent. All classes town of 6,000. Admission 10-20-30. Frank H. Watton, Park Theatre (600 seats), Lebanon, New Hampshire.

FLAMING FORTIES. (5,770 feet). Star cast. One of the best of Carey's late series. Carey gets a small amount of comedy off in good shape. H. P. McFadden, Reel Theatre, Natama, Kansas.

FLAMING FORTIES. (5,770 feet). Star, Harry Carey. Harry Carey makes the dough for the exhibitors. Paul DeMordant, Orpheum Theatre, Blackport, Idaho.

HEADLESS HORSEMAN. (6,000 feet). A good picture. Film not in very good condition. Geo. E. Martera, Webb City High School Theatre, Webb City, Missouri.

HIS DARKER SELF. (5 reels). Star, Lloyd Hamilton. A substitute for "Try and Get It" if you want to kill your business, don't fall to get this one, had dodged it for a year but they pushed it in, all niggers and some of the most suggestive scenes I have seen In some time. Rotten audience appeal. General class town of 1,200. Admission 15-25. E. N. Prescott, Prescott Circuit Theatre (250-700 seats), Union, Maine.

HOUSE OF YOUTH. Star cast. A real story of life. Pleasing to young and old. Nelson S. Darrow, Grand Theatre, Williamstown, New Jersey.

LEGEND OF HOLLYWOOD. (5,414 feet). Star cast. Oh how that salesman lied. I am looking for him. That's out. Percy Marmont like salesman. Both good actors. Joe George, American Theatre, Idaho Falls, Idaho.

LIGHTNING RIDER. (6 reels). Star, Harry Carey. I have run all that Carey ever made and this one is the best he has ever done. He can give you action if he wants to. Tone, okay. Not suitable for special. Good appeal. Working class city of 14,000. Admission 10-20. G. M. Bertling, Favorite Theatre (189 seats), Piqua, Ohio.

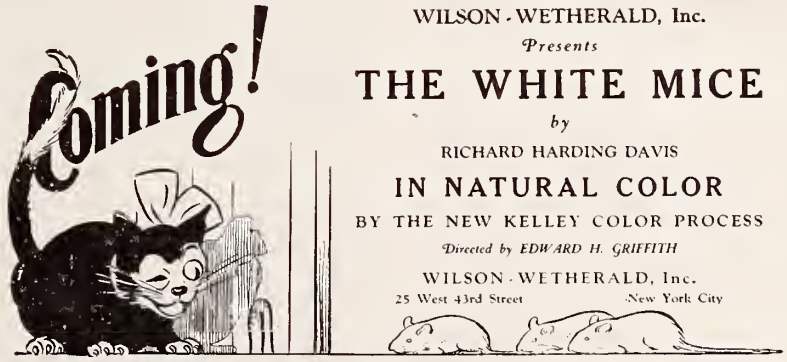
MIAMI. (6,317 feet). Star cast. Great picture suitable for any house. Betty Compson makes money. Joe George, American Theatre, Idaho Falls, Idaho.

Send tips!

It is an unselfish service to the host of exhibitors who profit by the guidance they get from these dependable pages.

Your demonstration of good fellowship will earn you the gratitude of a heap of fine fellows.

SEND TIPS!



OLD FOOL. (6,147 feet). Star, Lloyd Hughes. Fine picture for its type. Got in touch with Women's Relief Corps and G. A. R. auxiliaries and it went over with a bang. Publicity helps this one and it is also a mighty good picture. Excellent tone. Sunday yes. As a Special, I say yes. Audience appeal, 90 per cent. Draw all classes, town 6,000. Admission 10-20-30. Frank H. Wotten, Park Theatre (600 seats), Lebanon, New Hampshire.

RECKLESS ROMANCE. (5,530 feet). Star cast. A mighty fine little comedy drama that pleased all. Tone, fine. Sunday, yes. One hundred per cent. audience appeal. H. E. Schlichter, Liggett Theatre, Madison, Kansas.

ROARING RAILS. (5,753 feet). Star, Harry Carey. Positively the best one in the series to date. A great picture. Well handled photography. Good. Little Frankie Darrow shares honors with Carey. Has action, humor, pathos, and a train collision. General class town of 1,200. Admission 15-25. E. N. Prescott, Prescott Circuit Theatre (250-700 seats), Union, Maine.

SHIFTING SANDS. (5,308 feet). Star cast. This is just like all the pictures where there is a lot of Arabs. Not much to it only the scenery. Sunday, yes. Not suitable for special. Fair appeal. Working class city of 14,000. Admission 10-20. G. M. Bertling, Favorite Theatre (189 seats), Piqua, Ohio.

SHIFTING SANDS. (5,308 feet). Star cast. Showed this one New Years. It's not an extra good one, but it seems to satisfy. Good tone. Draw miners, town about 2,000. Admission 10-25. Arch Catalano, Victory Theatre (275 seats), Rossiter, Pennsylvania.

SIREN OF SEVILLE. (6,724 feet). Star, Priscilla Dean. Dean's best to date. Book it. I. H. Harris, Strand Theatre, Evanston, Wyoming.

WISE VIRGIN. (5,981 feet). Star, Patsy Ruth Miller. An otherwise good program picture spoiled in the last reel by an altogether uncalled for bed room scene which is very distasteful to the public. A. B. Vick, Court Theatre, Auburn, Indiana.

United Artists

BROKEN BLOSSOMS. Star, Lillian Gish. We got a good print, but wished it had been lost before we played it. Positively the worst picture we ever had. Tone, and appeal, none. Sunday, no. Country class town of 3,300. Admission 15-30. P. L. Vann, Opera House (650 seats), Greenville, Alabama.

TAILOR MADE MAN. (8,649 feet). Star, Charles Ray. This story deals with the rapid rise of "common clothes presser" and is one of the finest portrayals that Charles Ray has ever put in pictures. The plot is full of action and will keep your audience interested throughout. A splendid cast of 26, actors and actresses all, support the star. If they don't like this one, advise 'em to stay at home and saw wood. Draw city and country classes, town 3,000. Admission 10-30. William Brice, Dixie Theatre (500 seats), Kerrville, Texas.

WHITE ROSE. (11 reels). Star, Mae Marsh. Very fine high class picture, but did not get as much business and picture cost too much. Tone, fair. Sunday, yes. Fair appeal. Miners and farmers town of 600. Admission 10-25, 15-30, for specials. John Russell, Russell Theatre (250 seats), Matherville, Illinois.

VIVIAN RICH

Latest Pathe star who is co-featured with Mahlon Hamilton in "Idaho," the new Patheserial.

Universal

CHAPTER IN HER LIFE. (6,330). Star cast. Not much of anything in any of these jewels. If you can buy them right then they would do. Tone, okay. Sunday, yes. Not suitable for special. Fair appeal. Working class city of 14,000. Admission 10-20. G. M. Bertling, Favorite Theatre (189 seats), Piqua, Ohio.

DARING CHANCES. Star, Jack Hoxie. This shows that they're rushing Hoxie. Direction is poor and picture not much. Tone O. K. Here, yes for Sunday. Appeal 70 per cent. Draw from the masses, city 200,000. Admission 10-20. R. M. Kennedy, Royal Theatre (350 seats), Birmingham, Alabama.

DARK STAIRWAYS. (5,030 feet). Star cast. This was considered a very good picture here and went over nicely. City of 110,000. Admission 10-20. Al. C. Werner, Royal Theatre, Reading, Pennsylvania.

FAST WORKER. (6,506 feet). Star, Reginald Denny. This is in keeping with the record breakers Denny has been giving us. A one hundred per cent. comedy that drew well on Christmas night. Tone and appeal O. K. Sunday, O. K. Country class town of 3,300. Admission 15-30. P. L. Vann, Opera House (650 seats), Greenville, Alabama.

FIGHTING FURY. (4,491 feet). Star, Jack Hoxie. Good title and a good drawing star. This picture pleased our western fans. We have quite a few ladies that like Jack. Tone, good. Sunday, yes. Good audience appeal. General class town of 3,000. Admission 10-20. William A. Clark, Castle Theatre (400 seats), Havana, Illinois.

FORTY HORSE HAWKINS. (5,148 feet). Star, Hoot Gibson. Poorest of Hoot. No drawing power and not much of story. It is good if bought right. Tone good, Sunday yes. Little appeal. Draw miners, town about 2,000. Admission 10-25. Arch Catalano, Victory Theatre (275 seats), Rossiter, Pennsylvania.

HIT AND RUN. (5,508 feet). Star, Hoot Gibson. Has not the pulling power of a western Hoot Gibson, but is a mighty good picture just the same. Hoot's work is always clean and wholesome, and he always gets a big hand here. More power to him. Good tone. Yes for Sunday. As Special, no. Audience appeal 100 per cent. Draw all classes, town 6,000. Admission 10-20-30. Frank H. Wotten, Park Theatre (600 seats), Lebanon, New Hampshire.

HIT AND RUN. (5,508 feet). Star, Hoot Gibson. A fair picture but failed to draw for us. Our patrons want Hoot in western subjects. Tone, good. Sunday, yes. Fair audience appeal. General class town of 3,000. Admission 10-20. William A. Clark, Sr., Castle Theatre (400 seats), Havana, Illinois.

HUNCHBACK OF NOTRE DAME. (11,000 feet). Star cast. A wonderful picture from a production standpoint but not a small town picture. We ran on percentage and made a little but would have to call it flop for a picture of that kind. Tone, good. Sunday, yes. Town and rural class town of 800. Admission 10-25. Firkins & Laws, Crystal Theatre (200 seats), Moravia, Iowa.

K, THE UNKNOWN. (8,146 feet). Star, Percy Marmont. Mary Roberts Rhinehart's greatest love story translated to the screen. Picture, is no doubt a good one, but print was all mixed up. First and second reel O. K. but third had part four and four had part three. Also part five and six, but what's the use crying over spilled milk. All that is said at exchange is too bad and couldn't be helped. Ran all of the Jewels and must say the rentals are high on them and they are sold as the "best buy" in sight. Look before you book if possible. R. A. Preuss, Arvada Theatre, Arvada, Colorado.

MERRY-GO-ROUND. (9,178 feet). Star cast, features Mary Philbin, Norman Kerry. Good. If you have not run it, it is worth while and price is right for the small man now. Good tone and appeal. Yes for Sunday. Draw farmers and small town class, town 600. Admission 10-20, 10-30. H. W. Batchelder, Galt Theatre (175 seats), Galt, California.

RECKLESS AGE. (6,954 feet). Star, Reginald Denny. As a whole, a good show. Reels three and four drag. In six reels would be a positive knockout. O. K. tone. Sunday yes. Draw family and student class, town 4,000. Admission 10-25. R. J. Relf, Star Theatre (600 seats), Decorah, Iowa.

RIDIN' KID FROM POWDER RIVER. (5,727 feet). Star, Hoot Gibson, It's "the stuff." If they keep Gibson in westerns like this—we'd need more seats. Tone fair. Here, yes for Sunday. Appeal 90 per cent. Draw from the masses, city 200,000. Admission 10-20. R. M. Kennedy, Royal Theatre (350 seats), Birmingham, Alabama.

ROSE OF PARIS. (6,362 feet). Star, Mary Philbin. This is a nice little picture that was accepted very well by our audience. Comments very good. Business held up very good all week. Tone, good. Sunday, yes. Great audience appeal. City class city of 400,000. Admission 25-35. Jack H. Roth, Liberty Theatre (1,000 seats), Kansas City, Missouri.

ROSE OF PARIS. (6,362 feet). Star, Mary Philbin. The "Merry-Go-Round" Girl" in her latest and greatest picture. Paris, city of dreams and crime. Vienna capital of old world gayety. Convent and cabaret. Glittering boulevards and Apache haunted alleys. A good picture to see and an excellent picture to buy, which is sold as soon as ready for the seeing. Others in the cast, selected with great care, are Dorothy Revier, Robert Cain. John Sainpolis, Gino Corado, Doreen Turner, Edwin J. Brady, Charles H. Puffy, Carrie Daumery, Alice H. Smith, Frank Currier, D. J. Mitseras and Cesare Cravina. William Noble, Criterion Theatre, Oklahoma City, Oklahoma.

SAWDUST TRAIL. (5,500 feet). Star, Hoot Gibson. A rare treat, gets good money and pleases. Tone, good. Sunday, yes. Audience appeal, eighty-five per cent. Masses city of 200,000. Admission 10-20. R. M. Kennedy, Royal Theatre (250 seats), Birmingham, Alabama.

SIGNAL TOWER. (6,714 feet). Star cast. One of the very best railroad stories ever produced by anybody any place. Our bunch simply ate it up and pronounced it one hundred per cent entertainment. If you fail with this one just as well quit. Could make a million dollars if they were all as good as this one. Tone, extra good. Sunday, yes. Appeals to every one. Society class city of 10,000. Ned Pedigo, Pollard Theatre, Guthrie, Oklahoma.

TORNADO. (6,576 feet). Star, House Peters. Just an ordinary picture and not worthy of the price they want. Peters doesn't mean anything at the box office although a good actor. Don't promise your patrons too much with this one. Tone, O. K. Not suitable for special. Audience appeal, seventy-five per cent. Small town class town of 6,000. Admission 10-30. L. O. Davis, Virginia Theatre (600 seats), Hazard, Kentucky.

TORNADO. (6,575 feet). Star, House Peters. Here's a real picture for any theatre. Any audience from six to sixty. It has all the ingredients that go to make for real entertainment. Comments of patrons excellent. Exceptional business all week despite zero weather. Tone, good. Sunday, yes. Very good audience appeal. City class city of 400,000. Admission 25-35. Jack H. Roth, Liberty Theatre (1,000 seats), Kansas City, Missouri.

WESTERN WALLOP. (5 reels). Star, Jack Hoxie. One of the poorest westerns that I have ever run and Universal's Hoxie's are sure poor. Absolutely nothing to it and a very poor story. Mostly miners and railroad trade, town of 3,300. Giles Master, Strand Theatre, Gallup, New Mexico.

YOUNG IDEAS. (4,095 feet). Star, Laura LaPlante. Fairly good and that's all. All of this star's stories are about the same. Some good comedy but rather weak on plot. Fine for a double, feature show, as I used it. Tone O. K. Yes for Sunday. As a Special, no. Audience appeal fair. Draw mixed class, town 3,000. Admission 20-25. T. L. Barnett, Finn's Theatre (600 seats), Jewett City, Connecticut.

Vitagraph

BELOVED BRUTE. (6,710 feet). Star, Marguerite De La Motte. A western that is different in that it is a lot of hash. Just fairly entertaining as a western. Tone, okay. Sunday, no. Fair appeal. Oil field class town of 1,000. Admission 10-25. H. E. Schlichter, Liggett Theatre (600 seats), Madison, Kansas.

BETWEEN FRIENDS. (6,900 feet). Star cast. It is not the type that generally appeals to the small patrons but it is not a bad offering at all. Fair appeal. Draw rural and small town class, town 1,474. Admission 10-25. T. W. Cannon, Majestic Theatre (315 seats), Greenfield, Tennessee.

LET NOT MAN PUT ASUNDER. (8 reels). Star cast. A real good bet for the better class. No one walked out on it but it was over the heads of some. Just enough spice to hold the attention of all. Fair tone, average appeal. Draw rural and small town class, town 1,474. Admission 10-25. T. W. Cannon, Majestic Theatre (315 seats), Greenfield, Tennessee.

LET NOT MAN PUT ASUNDER. (8 reels). Star cast. Put this one through for matinee. Not suitable for my town had to take it off. We have had entirely too much of this kind of stuff in pictures. It is time to call a halt. Played and paid for two in one day. Adjustment? Oh no, that just can't be done. Best class city of 10,000. Admission 10-20. Ned Pedigo, Pollard Theatre, Guthrie, Oklahoma.

LOVE BANDIT. (6 reels). Star cast. Where

Scene from Harold Lloyd's "Now or Never" which Associated Exhibitors is republishing.

outdoor pictures are liked this one should go over well, as it has lots of action, also quite a bit of humor. Tone O. K. Appeal average. Draw rural and small town class, town 1,474. Admission 10-25. T. W. Cannon, Majestic Theatre (315 seats), Greenfield, Tennessee.

MAN FROM BRODNEY'S. (7,100 feet). Star cast. This is an action picture with fine scenery and good direction. It went over well for me and drew many favorable comments. The paper is good, especially the photos. Good tone, extra good audience appeal. Yes for Sunday. Draw rural and small town class, town 1,474. Admission 10-25. T. W. Cannon, Majestic Theatre (315 seats), Greenfield, Tennessee.

MY MAN. (6,800 feet). Stars, Patsy Ruth Miller, Dustin Farnum. A good political and society drama with some wonderful color effects. Good tone. Sunday yes. Appeal below average. Draw rural and small town class, town 1,474. Admission 10-25. T. W. Cannon, Majestic Theatre (315 seats), Greenfield, Tennessee.

VIRTUOUS LIARS. (5,650 feet). Star cast. Ran this one Christmas week on Friday and was well pleased with the business and comments. There's no doubt about it, Vitagraph has the pictures here and the price is right. Tone O. K. Good appeal. Draw rural and small town class, town 1,474. Admission 10-25. T. W. Cannon, Majestic Theatre (315 seats), Greenfield, Tennessee.

WOMAN'S SACRIFICE. Star, Corinne Griffith. An old reissue which came to us in good shape and pleased about everybody. They are selling these cheap and so far have been equal to higher priced ones in every way. Tone, good. Sunday, yes. Audience appeal, ninety per cent. Town and rural class town of 800. Admission 10-25. Firkins & Laws, Crystal Theatre (200 seats), Moravia, Iowa.

Warner Bros.

BABBITT. (8 reels). Star, Willard Louis. Not half bad. R. Russell, Russell Theatre, Barnesboro, Pennsylvania.

BROADWAY AFTER DARK. (6,300 feet). Stars, Adolphe Menjou, Norma Shearer. A very interesting tale of the "big town" enacted by a fine cast. Menjou certainly is a star and Miss Shearer is a dream. All-in-all, a fine production. Tone O. K. Yes for Sunday. Not suitable for a special. Fair audience appeal. Draw mixed class, town 3,000. Admission 20-25. T. L. Barnett, Finn's Theatre (600 seats), Jewett City, Connecticut.

CONDUCTOR 1492. (6,500 feet). Star Johnny Hines. Johnny Hines is very popular with my audience. Never had a poor picture of his. If you haven't booked one of them do so at once. Pleased one hundred per cent. Tone, good. Sunday, yes. Fine audience appeal. Farmers town of 800. Admission 15-25. Charles T. McFadden, Lyrus Theatre (200 seats), Lyrus, Colorado.

CORNERED. (7,500 feet). Star cast. It's a good one but not for the money I paid for it. I have paid half of the price and had better pictures. No more for me. Tone good but little appeal. Draw miners, town about 2,000. Admission 10-25. Arch Catalano, Victory Theatre (275 seats), Rossiter, Pennsylvania.

COUNTRY KID. (6,300 feet). Star, Wesley Barry. Wesley Barry draws here in anything. A good clean comedy. No mistake will be made in buying this one. Tone, fair. Sunday, yes. Audience appeal, ninety-five per cent. S. A. Hendrix, Cotton Plant, Arkansas.

DADDIES. (6,800 feet). Star cast. This proved to be a regular tonic. Good for every house. It has many laughs. A splendid story and is a real picture. Don't fail to play it for it is the "It." Best class city of 10,000. Admission 10-20. Ned Pedigo, Pollard Theatre, Guthrie, Oklahoma.

MARRIAGE CIRCLE. (8,500 feet). Star cast. Small cast, well directed, finely photographed, good story, no misframes, splendid acting. Pleased all who saw it. Small attendance due to all day rain so can't say how well it drew. However, this is a fine production, from every standpoint, for the better class of patronage. Interest holding from beginning to end. Had the weather been good, would have cleaned up. Tone, fair. Maybe suitable for Sunday. Strong audience appeal. General class town of 1,000. Admission 10-25, 20-40. H. H. Hedberg, Amuse-U Theatre, Melville, Louisiana.

TENTH WOMAN. Star cast. A good picture that ought to please any audience. Good attendance the first night. Not much on second night. Warner Brothers has some good pictures. Tone, good. Sunday, yes. Audience appeal, eighty-five per cent. S. A. Hendrix, Cotton Plant, Arkansas.

WHERE THE NORTH BEGINS. (6,200 feet). Star, Rin-Tin-Tin, (dog). A show that pleased everybody on a Saturday night. There wasn't any basket ball game at the High School so we had good attendance for a change. Tone, good. Fine appeal. Better class town of 4,500. Admission 10-15. C. A. Anglemire, "Y" Theatre (404 seats), Nazareth, Pennsylvania.

Comedies

AIR POCKETS. (Educational). Star, Lige Conley. Another real Mermaid comedy with everybody enjoying it to the last inch. They sure are turning out some dandy comedies. Tone, okay. Good audience appeal. Better class town of 4,500. Admission 10-15. C. A. Anglemire, "Y" Theatre (404 seats), Nazareth, Pennsylvania.

BALLOONATIC. (First National). Star, Buster Keaton. This is just about the best Keaton two reeler made. It pleased the audience from start to finish. Tone and appeal good. Yes for Sunday. Mitchell Conery, Conoat Projection Service, Menands, New York.

BONEYARD BLUES. (Educational). Something new for our home. It brought a few laughs. I don't believe our patrons like cartoon comedies very much. Tone, good. Fair appeal. Better class town of 4,500. Admission 10-15. C. A. Anglemire, "Y" Theatre (404 seats), Nazareth, Pennsylvania.

BRONCHO EXPRESS. (Educational). Star, Clyde Cook. Here's Clyde Cook's best and if his future efforts are as good he will stage a comeback as the ones he made for Fox were bum. This one is full of action and Clyde shows his ability as a comedian as well as a contortionist. Good rapid fire western comedy. Tone, okay. Sunday, no. Audience appeal, one hundred per cent. C. A. Anglemire, "Y" Theatre, Nazareth, Pennsylvania.

CALIFORNIA OR BUST. (Pathe). Star, Snub Pollard. A good one of Snubby. Tone and appeal good. Sunday yes. Draw miners, town about 2,000. Admission 10-25. Arch Catalano, Victory Theatre (275 seats), Rossiter, Pennsylvania.

CHAPLIN'S "WOMAN." (Federated). One of Charlie's best. It simply makes you laugh, whether you like to do it or not. Book and boost it. Two reeler. Draw miners, town about 2,000. Admission 10-25. Arch Catalano, Victory Theatre (275 seats), Rossiter, Pennsylvania.

COBBLER. (Pathe). "Our Gang." Surely one fine comedy. They nearly raised the roof. Small town class and farmers town of 800. Admission 10-25. Welty & Son, Mid-Way Theatre (500 seats), Hill City, Kansas.

DIPPY DO DADS. (Pathe). People like these little one-reelers fine. Small town class and farmers town of 800. Admisison 10-25. Welty & Son, Mid-Way Theatre (500 seats), Hill City, Kansas.

DOGS OF WAR. (Pathe). "Our Gang." The "Our Gang's" are all good. Welty & Son, Mid-Way Theatre (500 seats), Hill City, Kansas.

DUMB AND DAFFY. (Fox). Star, Al St. John. Somewhat like all the other St. John's but it seemed to please so can't give it anything but a good report. Sunday, yes. Fair appeal. General class town of 1,000. Admission 10-25, 20-40. H. H. Hedberg, Amuse-U Theatre, Melville, Louisiana.

ELECTRIC HOUSE. (First National). Star, Buster Keaton. A good comedy with many laughs. Some very good mechanical contrivances by Keaton. Good tone and appeal. Yes for Sunday. Mitchell Conery, Conoat Projection Service, Menands, New York.

Study these reports.
Pick the good scouts who have run pictures you have used: watch their reports. If they agree with your experience, follow their lead in future.
Pay them back for the help they give you.
SEND TIPS!

EMPTY HEADS. (Educational). Star, Cliff Bowes. A pretty good one-reel comedy. It had some good laugh makers in it and everybody laughed at them. Print was in excellent shape. Tone, good. Good audience appeal. Better class town of 4,500. Admision 10-15. C. A. Anglemire, "Y" Theatre (404 seats), Nazareth, Pennsylvania.

FLIP FLOP. (Educational). A very good slapstick comic, will keep them laughing. Sunday, yes. All classes town of 2,800. Admission 15-25. D. W. Strayer, Mt. Joy Theatre (250 seats), Mt. Joy, Pennsylvania.

FLYING FINANCE. (Educational Mermaid Comedy). Someone spent a lot of money on this comedy. It's great. There are more laughs and good stunts in the cyclone scenes than are ordinarily found in the whole of most comedies. It should prove popular with any audience in any class house. Had lots of favorable comments. Tone, okay. Sunday, okay. Good audience appeal. All classes town of 3,000. Admission 10-30. M. W. Larmour, National Theatre (450 seats), Graham, Texas.

HIS FIRST FAKE STEP. (State Right). A good two reel comedy. Plenty of action. Likewise laughter. Tone, good. Good appeal. General class town of 1,200. Admission 15-25. E. N. Prescott, Prescott Circuit Theatre (250-700 seats), Union, Maine.

NO NOISE. (Pathe—Our Gang). Mickey is in the hospital and the Gang pay him a visit. There is lots of "noise" from the audience once the "kids" start things going. Pleased our audience very well. Good tone and appeal. Yes for Sunday. Mitchell Conery, Conoat Projection Service, Menands, New York.

ONE NIGHT IT RAINED. (Educational). Just a dream comedy that was almost tragic in its ending. Can be classed as fair. Tone and appeal fair. May be suitable for Sunday. General class town of 1,000. Admission 10-25, 30-40. H. H. Hedberg, Amuse-U Theatre, Melville, Louisiana.

OPTIMIST. (Educational). Star, Lloyd Hamilton. It takes an optimist to see any fun in this one. Why do they put Ham in such slow comedies? He is a "spreader of sunshine" in this one and the only action that takes place is when he relates a little Indian story. Tone and appeal fair. Sunday, yes. General class town of 1,000. Admission 10-25, 30-40. H. H. Hedberg, Amuse-U Theatre, Melville, Louisiana.

PAIN AS YOU ENTER. (Fox). Fairly good comedy. Good for Saturday night addition. Sunday, yes. Fair audience appeal. General class town of 1,000. Admission 10-25, 20-40. H. H. Hedberg, Amuse-U Theatre, Melville, La.

PITFALLS OF A BIG CITY. (Mack Sennett). Star, Ben Turpin. A very ordinary comedy. No knockout; seen better from Turpin. Don't try and kill anyone else to get it. Sunday, yes. Admission 15-25. David W. Strayer, Mt. Joy Theatre, Mt. Joy, Pennsylvania.

REFEREE. (State Right). They laughed till they cried, then laughed again. Sunday, yes. Audience appeal one hundred per cent. Oil and farm class, town of 508. Admission 10-25. J. A. Herring, Playhouse Theatre (249 seats), Strong, Arkansas.

SAILOR'S LIFE. (Educational). Something new for our house and seemed to please fairly well. We will have to receive a few more before we will know how they will be received. Tone okay. Fair audience appeal. Better class, town of 4,500. Admission 10-15. C. A. Anglemire, "Y" Theatre (404 seats), Nazareth, Pennsylvania.

TEN DOLLARS OR TEN DAYS. (Pathe). Star, Ben Turpin. A very good comedy but, as luck will have it, I struck a bad print. Tone okay. Sunday, yes. Good audience appeal. All classes in big city. Admission ten cents. Stephen G. Brenner, Eagle Theatre (298 seats), Baltimore, Maryland.

YOUNG SHERLOCKS. (Pathe). "Our Gang." A very good "Our Gang." Plenty of amusing complications that should keep most any audience in good humor from start to finish. General class town of 1,200. Admission 15-25. E. N. Prescott, Prescott Circuit Theatre (250-700 seats), Union, Maine.

Serials

BEASTS OF PARADISE, AND IRON MAN. (Universal). Will please the serial fan first rate. Both have lots of action and enacted by a good bunch of stars. R. A. Preuss, Arvada Theatre, Arvada, Colorado.

FORTIETH DOOR. (Pathe). Star, Allene Ray. First six episodes did very well, but the desert stuff got tiresome and the crowd thinned out toward the end. Just an average serial. Have seen a great many better. Good tone. No for Sunday. Appeal 50 per cent. Draw all classes, town 6,000. Admission 10-20-30. Frank H. Wotten, Park Theatre (600 seats), Lebanon, New Hampshire.

IRON MAN. (Universal). Just finished this serial. Had a fine house every night. Seemed to like it. Tone and appeal, good. Sunday, no. Farmers town of 800. Admission 15-25. Charles T. McFadden, Lyrus Theatre (200 seats), Lyrus, Colorado.

Short Subjects

FIGHTING BLOOD. (F. B. O.). I have seen a number of reports claiming these pictures to be as good as the "Leather Pushers," but have run three and cannot keep people in the house when the silly things are flashed on the screen; in fact, I have not been able to get anything from the above firm to please my patrons or make any money for my house. Sam Brooks, Liberty Theatre, Hailey, Idaho.

FIGHTING BLOOD. (F. B. O.) Star, George O'Hara. This short subject is fine. Personally I don't think it can be beat. It has very good drawing qualities. Tone, good. Sunday, no. Audience appeal, very good. Farmers town of 800. Admission 15-25. Charles T. McFadden, Lyrus Theatre (200 seats), Lyrus, Colorado.

GO-GETTERS. (F. B. O.) Star, Alberta Vaughn. Going good and thanks for the photo Vaughn it is appreciated. Tone, fine. Sunday, yes. Good appeal. Oil field class town of 1,000. Admission 10-25. H. E. Schlichter, Liggett Theatre (600 seats), Madison, Kansas.

HODGE PODGE. (Educational). We have had a couple of these and find them fairly interesting. None of our patrons have kicked about them so I guess they are all right. Tone, okay. Fair appeal. Better class town of

TRUE TALK:

February 7—

VITAGRAPH HAS RESIGNED FROM THE MOTION PICTURE PRODUCERS AND DISTRIBUTORS OF AMERICA, Inc. (COMMONLY KNOWN AS THE HAYS ORGANIZATION).

VITAGRAPH WILL DO ITS FIGHTING IN THE OPEN.

VITAGRAPH is NOT a COMPETITOR of the EXHIBITOR.

VITAGRAPH will continue its POLICY of LIVE and LET LIVE.

WATCH YOUR STEP, MR. EXHIBITOR!

ALBERT E. SMITH,
President

A VITAGRAPH PICTURE
Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

Study reports on pictures you think of booking. You will find the generous exhibitors who shoot in these dependable tips are giving you the best aid you can possibly get.

Then—to show the boys how much you appreciate their help, turn around and give them your assistance.

SEND DEPENDABLE TIPS NOW!

4,500. Admission 10-15. C. A. Anglemire, "Y" Theatre (404 seats), Nazareth, Pennsylvania.

HODGE PODGE. (Educational). Best one reel on market today. Different and something new. R. Russell, Russell Theatre, Barnesboro, Pennsylvania.

TELEPHONE GIRL. (F. B. O.) Star, Alberta Vaughn. We hold no brief for this company, but this was certainly a twin-six series. Had more comments on this series than any short subjects ever run. Just starting "Go-Getters" and only hoping it is as good. Tone fair. No for Sunday. Appeal 100 per cent. Draw all classes, town 6,000. Admission 10-20-30. Frank H. Wotten, Park Theatre (600 seats), Lebanon, New Hampshire.

Independents

ACCORDING TO HOYLE. (State Right). Star, David Butler. Interesting little five reel program picture. Tone O. K. Yes for Sunday. Good appeal. Draw family and student class, town 4,000. Admission 10-25. R. J. Relf, Star Theatre (600 seats), Decorah, Iowa.

AFTER A MILLION. (State Right). Star, Kenneth McDonald. Substitute for "Slow As Lightning," four misframes in first reel. Patches so thick sounded like a snapping bug going through projector till so poor needed opera glasses to see them. Was a fair picture once. Tone, good. General class town of 1,200. Admission 15-25. E. N. Prescott, Prescott Circuit Theatre (250-700 seats), Union, Maine.

BAREFOOT BOY. (C.B.C.). (5,943 feet). Star cast. Don't need to be afraid of this. Six reels of good entertainment. Draw family and student class, town 4,000. Admission 10-25. R. J. Relf, Star Theatre (600 seats), Decorah, Iowa.

BATTLING FOOL. (State Right). Star, Eva Novak. One whale of a dandy. My people came to their feet and whooped. Got anything Fox or Paramount's productions skinned a mile. Don't let it pass you. Tone okay. Sunday, yes. Audience appeal one hundred per cent. Oil and farm class, town of 508. Admission 10-25. J. A. Herring, Playhouse Theatre (249 seats), Strong, Arkansas.

BLOOD AND STEEL. (State Right). Star, William Desmond. Good railroad melodrama with splendid direction on part of J. P. McGowan who has, heretofore, been prone to having stars pose for minutes at a time before the camera. This picture has some very realistic fist fights and the action, where called for never lags. Will be satisfied if the rest of the Desmond-Holmes are as good as this one. Photography excellent. Tone, fair. Sunday, no. Very good audience appeal. General class town of 1,000. Admission 10-25, 20-40. H. H. Hedberg, Amuse-U Theatre, Melville, Louisiana.

DANGER RIDER. (State Right). Star, Art Mix. Very poor. With a good director and a better supporting cast Art Mix might please. Fair tone. No for Sunday. Appeal 50 per cent. Draw from the masses, city 200,000. Admission 10-20. R. M. Kennedy, Royal Theatre (350 seats), Birmingham, Alabama.

FATAL MISTAKE. (State Right). Star, Eva Novak. Stunt picture. Novak, as usual, good. Fairbanks another Douglas. In all a real good program and pleased them all. Tone okay. Sunday, yes. Good audience appeal. Oil and farm class, town of 508. Admission 10-25. J. A. Herring, Playhouse Theatre (249 seats), Strong, Arkansas.

FIGHTING ODDS. (State Right). Star, Bill Patton. This is the fightingest Fight picture I've ever seen. There were so many fights that they got to be tiresome. Very little story. Below average appeal. Draw rural and small town class, town 1,474. Admission 10-25. T. W. Cannon, Majestic Theatre (315 seats), Greenfield, Tennessee.

FIRE PATROL. (Chadwick). Star cast. Good small town picture. Go after it like a circus. It will please about seventy-five per cent. We ran it New Year's night to good business. Tone good. Sunday, yes. Good audience appeal. All classes, town of 3,000. Admission 10-25. A. F. Affelt, Liberty Theatre, St. Louis, Michigan.

GROWING BETTER DAY BY DAY. (State Right). Star cast. A cute little western that hits on all fours. Excellent photography. Good print. Price right. Ran Gump cartoon, "Chicken Fancier," with it to good house. Tone okay. Sunday, yes. Audience appeal ninety per cent. Oil and farm class, town of 508. Admission 10-25. J. A. Herring, Playhouse Theatre (249 seats), Strong, Arkansas.

HEROES HUSBAND. Star cast. Just six reels of film. Nothing to the picture. Something unusual for First National to release a picture like this. Small town class town of 1,500. Admission 10-25. G. D. Hughes, Liberty Theatre (450 seats), Heavener, Oklahoma.

LEFT HAND BRAND. (William Steiner). Star, Neal Hart. To date the best Neal Hart has done. This one has a lot of action. Print new. Tone pleasing. Sunday, no. Good audience appeal. All classes in big city. Admission ten cents. Stephen G. Brenner, Eagle Theatre (298 seats), Baltimore, Maryland.

LEFT HAND BRAND. (W. Steiner). Star, Neal Hart. One of the best that Neal Hart has ever made but the western fans howled because there was so little action in the picture. The picture is good, though. Tone, fair. Possibly suitable for Sunday. Audience appeal, eighty per cent. General class town of 1,000. Admission 10-25, 20-40. H. H. Hedberg, Amuse-U Theatre, Melville, Louisiana.

LONE HAND TEX. (State Right). Star, Lester Cuneo. A fair western nothing to brag about. Will do for anybody that liked mild westerns. Not suitable for special. Good appeal. Working class city of 14,000. Admission 10-20. G. M. Bertling, Favorite Theatre (189 seats), Piqua, Ohio.

RAINBOW RANGER. (William Steiner). Star, Pete Morrison. A good western comedy which pleased a big Saturday night crowd. Tone good. Sunday, yes. Good audience appeal. All classes, town of 3,000. Admission 10-25.. A. F. Affelt, Liberty Theatre, St. Louis, Michigan.

RARIN' TO GO. (Weiss Brothers). Star, Buffalo Bill Jr. Good program picture. Draws for me as well as Tom Mix. Tone okay. Sunday, yes. Good audience appeal. Rural and small town class, town of 450. Admission 10-30. A. F. Thomas, Pastime Theatre (250 seats), Almyra, Arkansas.

RARIN' TO GO. (Artclass). Star, Buffalo Bill Jr. A snappy western, the name drew them in, but in my opinion not as good as the Buddy Roosevelt series. Tone and appeal, good. Sunday, no. Small town class town of 300. Admission 10-25. Roy E. Cline, Osage Theatre (200 seats), Osage, Oklahoma.

RIDIN' FOOL. (State Right). Star, Lester Cuneo. Why does the producer put a star who has been playing heroic roles into a picture where he plays the fool? Nothing kills a star quicker. Lester Cuneo excellent as a hero but as a foolish tenderfoot he is a fizzle. A few of the fans laugh. I was foolish, you know. Cuneo must stage a real come-back after this one. Tone, fair. Sunday, guess so. Poor audience appeal. General class town of 1,000. Admission 10-25, 20-40. H. H. Hedberg, Amuse-U Theatre, Melville, Louisiana.

ROUGH RIDIN' (Weiss Brothers). Star, Buddy Roosevelt. A good action western with lot of action. This boy is a comer. Not suitable for special. Good appeal. Working class city of 14,000. Admission 10-20. G. M. Bertling, Favorite Theatre (189 seats), Piqua, Ohio.

MARIE OSBORNE

A "baby star" who has been nationally famous and "growed up" to be featured in Metro-Goldwyn's "Excuse Me."

ROUGH RIDIN' (Weiss Brothers). Star, Buddy Roosevelt. (5 reels). Didn't think very much of this one which is the first we have run of Buddy Roosevelt. Just a western. Some action. Some good fights. Not suitable for Sunday. Appeal, eighty per cent. S. A. Hendrix, Cotton Plant, Arkansas.

SCARRED HANDS. (State Right). Star cast. Just another very ordinary western that you can soon forget about. Tone good. Sunday, no, appeal, none. Small town class town of 300. Admission 10-25. Roy E. Cline, Osage Theatre (200 seats), Osage, Oklahoma.

SLOW AS LIGHTNING. (State Right). Star, Kenneth McDonald. Went over fairly well, though crude in spots. City of 110,000. Admission 10-20. . Al. C. Werner, Royal Theatre, Reading, Pennsylvania.

THROUGH THE FLAMES. (Goldstone). Star, Richard Talmadge. Very good lot of action and comedy. Photography poor in places but the action in it makes them forget all about photography. Tone okay. Sunday, no. Audience appeal ninety per cent. All classes in big city. Admission ten cents. Stephen G. Brenner, Eagle Theatre (298 seats), Baltimore, Maryland.

TUCKER'S TOP HAND. Star, Neal Hart. Good western. Pleased seventy-five per cent. R. Russell, Russell Theatre, Barnesboro, Pennsylvania.

TURNED UP. (William Steiner). Star, Charles Hutchison. Can't say much for this one or any of the first four Charles Hutchison's. Too slow. Don't tell your patrons they are thrillers. Tone good. Sunday, yes. Not much audience appeal. All classes, town of 3,000. Admission 10-25. A. F. Affelt, Liberty Theatre, St. Louis, Michigan.

UP IN MARY'S ATTIC. (State Right). Star, Eva Novak. One dandy little comedy. Old but still there. Teddy the dog makes Rin-Tin-Tin look tiny. Buy it. Boost it and cash in on it. Tone fair. Not suitable for Sunday. Audience appeal one hundred per cent. Oil and farm class, town of 508. Admission 10-25. J. A. Herring, Playhouse Theatre (249 seats), Strong, Arkansas.

VERDICT OF THE DESERT. (State Right). Star, Neal Hart. Poor picture. My town likes westerns but not bunk like that was. Not up to the Neal Hart standard. No tone. Sunday, no. Poor appeal. S. A. Hendrix, Cotton Plant, Arkansas.

WHEN DAWN CAME. (State Right). Star cast. A disgrace to the producer. Colleen Moore ought to buy in this picture and destroy the master print. Shelve it if you have got it coming. Tone okay. Not suitable for Sunday or any other day. No audience appeal. Oil and farm class, town of 508. Admission 10-25. J. A. Herring, Playhouse Theatre (249 seats), Strong, Arkansas.

SELLING the PICTURE to the PUBLIC

EDITED BY EPES WINTHROP SARGENT

Balaban and Katz Campaign on Lincoln Makes Easy Selling in Chicago Houses

APPRECIATING the possibilities of the Rockett production of Abraham Lincoln, Balaban and Katz planned an interesting and comprehensive campaign on the First National release long before the opening at the Roosevelt Theatre, Chicago.

Perhaps the most important single item was the simultaneous showing in Tivoli, Riviera and Central Park theatres, to the teachers and executive heads of the public and parochial schools. These three houses, through their locations, permitted educators in every part of the city conveniently to see the presentation, which was made in advance of the Roosevelt opening.

At this showing the regular rotogravure, imprinted "Special School Edition" was distributed, and on the back of this was printed the endorsement of President Moderwell, of the Chicago Board of Education. This endorsement had been obtained through a special preview for the benefit of the Board.

Into the Schools

A large percentage of the teachers requested a supply of these rotos for their classes and distributed them during a talk on Lincoln. The distribution of advertising matter through the classrooms is not permitted, but these were regarded as educational material.

The cooperation of the parochial schools was assured through a preview in the mansion of Cardinal Munderlein, which was witnessed by him with Bishop Hoban, his assistant, and the Bishop of Peoria. His approval resulted in a formal endorsement of the picture by the superintendent of the schools, Father John A. Rozlowski.

A Pilgrimage

But a more picturesque feature was a pilgrimage of 100 Boy Scouts to the tomb of Lincoln.

This was sponsored by the Kiwanis Club, of Chicago, and the Chicago and Alton Railroad supplied the coaches, which were hooked to the St. Louis Limited. Kiwanians and Boy Scouts greeted the pilgrims at all stops along the way and the Springfield Kiwanis had charge of the affair at the far end of the route.

A print of the picture was shown the boys on the trip by means of a portable projector. All of the Chicago papers and most of the news weeklies took pictures of the pilgrims, and the newspapers carried good stories on the event.

Newspaper Co-operation

The Chicago News ran a set of twelve two and three column cuts of the stills for two weeks in advance. These carried no other advertising than the credit line: "Copyrighted by Associated First National Pictures," and were run under a standing head of "Incidents in the Life of Lincoln." It used other pictures in the roto section and will run a complete layout on Lincoln's Birthday.

The Herald-Examiner sponsored a special showing to the guests of the Church Home for the Aged where "the ladies of the 60's" were shown the war times through which they had lived. One of the guests, Mrs. Katherine Evans, was in the cast of "Our American Cousin," which was the attraction at the theatre when the President was assassinated.

The Journal carried a Lincoln Contest on the children's page.

Library Work

Instead of the usual book marks, the Public Library system used a special edition of the roto with "Chicago Public Library Edition" over the heading, while the back page, usually reserved for the theatre imprint, carried a complete catalogue of the library's books on Lincoln.

These heralds were used in all books handed out, and 15,000 of them were distributed before the supply was exhausted, and with very little duplication.

This campaign merely follows the general scheme, with the exception of the pilgrimage of the Boy Scouts, and should be repeated, on a scale to match the population, wherever the picture is played. The campaign is interesting more for its solid sensibility than because of its novelty, and because it is so generally applicable.

Worked New Ideas on Hot Water Run

It's a little late to do the most good, but here is a teakettle perambulator on Hot Water that may help you on some other title. It worked like a whole flock of busy little bees for Guy V. Kenimer, of the Arcade Theatre, Jacksonville.

There was a football game between Florida and Washington and Lee, with which was played at Savannah. Kenimer knew that all the best people would be there, so he shipped up this perambulator and the makings of a truck, which carried two cutouts from the 24-sheets and a teakettle on the back.

The truck went into the morning parade in honor of the game, and then went out to the ball park, to continue the good work, after which it took the train back to Jacksonville.

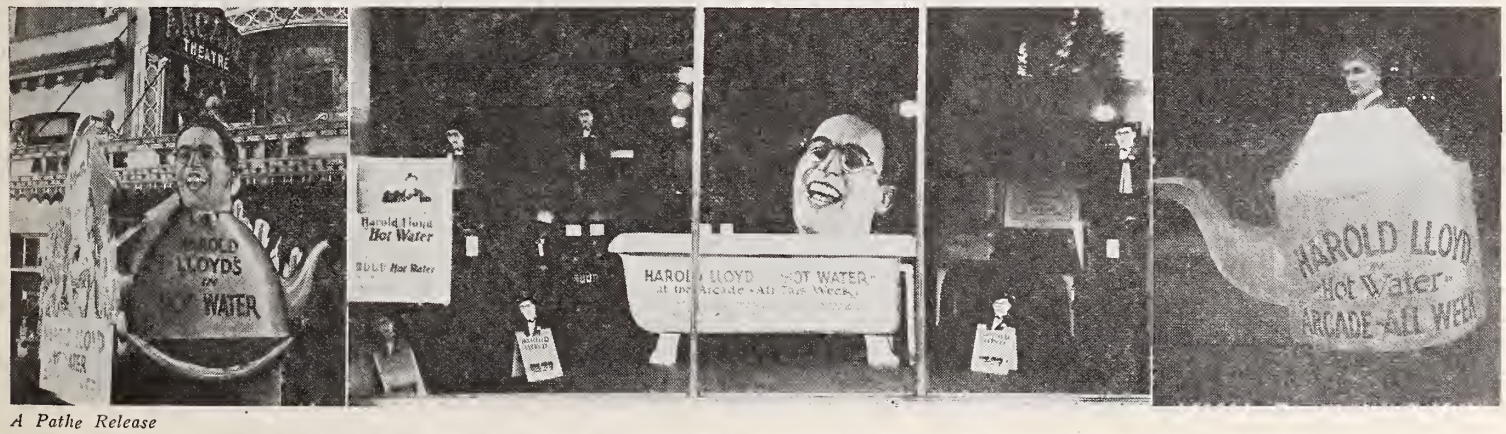
The perambulator was used on the grounds, and the polished surface got a lot of attention.

Kenimer took motion pictures of the crowds and showed these at the Arcade, which brought the same best people in to see how they looked.

In his local campaign he used the same truck and perambulator, with 24-sheet cutouts over the marquise and a large head in a bath tub in the window of the gas company to help them advertise their gas water heaters.

One good special was a clock face showing the time the next performance started and carrying the legend, "Every minute is a laugh with Harold Lloyd in Hot Water."

A display of Yale locks in a hardware store with a lot of material for Locked Doors was the way the Strand Theatre, Binghamton, N. Y., put over the DeMille feature.



A Pathe Release

THREE OF THE STUNTS ON HOT WATER AT THE ARCADE THEATRE, JACKSONVILLE

Guy V. Kenimer evolved a useful perambulating tea kettle which he used locally and at a football game in Savannah largely attended by Jaxonians. The float shown on the left was also sent up. The side pieces are from the 24-sheets, but the rear carries a home-made kettle. The central portion of the cut hows the gas company's tie-up to their hot water heating coils.

Used Two Displays for the Sea Hawk

Using a heavy advance lobby display for The Sea Hawk, Loew's Vendome Theatre, Nashville, Tenn., gave a kick to the opening of the run by substituting an entirely new display for the opening day, moving the old material into windows and elsewhere.

Manager Wallace figured that the substitution of new material would remind the average man that the picture had arrived. He had grown used to the advance display, and might have passed it by, but the entire change of front reminded him that the picture was actually on the screen, and the sales effect of the advance was crystalized into a determination to go. From this angle alone the cost of the new material was more than repaid early in the run.

Next Christmas Try This Storin Idea

Harry F. Storin, of the Leroy Theatre, Pawtucket, R. I., worked a stunt that you can copy with profit next holiday season. Get a big envelope right now, write "Christmas" across the face and put into it all the ideas that will be reported during the next few weeks. With this envelope you can plan your Christmas stunts next November.

Storin hired a half ton covered truck, replacing the usual cover with a framework of transparent cloth on which was lettered an advertisement for the Leroy.

Inside he set up a peal of chimes, made from brass tubing, and backed the signs with low voltage lamps working from a storage battery. The end of the car carried a Christmas greeting. The lamps were not needed during the day, but in the evening they rendered the signs visible even on the dark residential streets.

Christmas eve he loaned the car for the delivery of charity baskets, and edged into the newspaper stories of the charity distribution. After that he went around the better parts of the town. He would park the car, turn on the chimes, throw on the lights and wheel away with the greeting showing on the tail of the car. Keeping the car dark until the people came to the windows gave him a better advertising appeal than if the car were kept lighted. He did not flash the advertising until he had first gained interest in the rig.

This is one of the best Christmas stunts of the season, and it will work just as well next year. If you want to get ambitious, add a quartet of carol singers, or a phonograph.

Production Hints from Edward L. Hyman

Managing Director, Mark-Strand Theatre, Brooklyn

THIRTY-TWO minutes of music and 1 hour and 23 minutes of film made up the show, of which "Inez from Hollywood" was the feature picture. Of the running time for the film, "Inez from Hollywood," 1 hour and 17 minutes, while the Mark Strand Topical Review took up 6 minutes. With music and film, this brought the show up to 1 hour and 55 minutes, about 5 minutes under the usual time.

There were five presentations, three being vocal selections, one a ballet number and the other the overture. The latter was especially arranged and orchestrated for presentation exclusively at this theatre, introducing a number of popular tunes, such as "Dear One," "Me and the Boy Friend," "All Alone" and "Nightingale." The xylophone and violin had cadenzas and obbligatos, proving very effective. The lights were as follows: foots and borders of the orchestra stage in blue; 2 light pink Mestrum floods of 160 amps. on the musicians from the dome; 2 green and 2 magenta arch spots hitting the pleats of the silver draw curtains closed across the production stage; entrance spots hitting the ceiling drapes with green and magenta; transparent windows at either side lighted from behind by light blue open box lamps. This overture required 7 minutes.

The Russian Academic Male Quartette, introduced to this country two weeks ago through one of the Sunday night radio concerts from this theatre, were presented in a specially staged impression of the "Song of the Volga Boatmen," the special set from P. Dodd Ackerman was a transparency background of the river and surrounding territory. A set boat was seen to the left and attached to this was a rope which the four singers held as they stood centre stage. At opening the set was lighted from behind by white, orange and straw floods, bringing the singers out in a semi-silhouette. At the close these lights dimmed down and a magenta dimmed up as the artists made their exit, pulling the boat after them, the red lights giving the effect of the setting sun. Four minutes for this.

Following the Mark Strand Topical Review came the four-minute duet, "Song of India" (Rimsky-Korsakoff), by Margaret Ringo, soprano, and Ruth Watson, mezzo soprano. The scene for this was an elaborate tropical exterior with water ripple effect, full moon in the sky and set palms all about. The singers, costumed in true Oriental fashion, were posed on a divan under one of the trees. The set was lighted from overhead by steel blue spots.

The ballet number was done by the premiere danseuse and six of the ballet, to the music of the Meditation from "Thais" (Massanet). The first violin played the selection as a solo, accompanying the ballet. Dancers were costumed per the opera. For a background the blue satin cyclorama was used and the lights were as follows: 2 light blue Mestrum floods for the booth covering the entire production stage and a light pink flood from the dome covering the dancers; light pink overhead spots picked out the violinist; blue borders on large stage. Four minutes for this number.

A group of seven Scotch selections specially staged and costumed preceded the photoplay. These ran for 13 minutes as follows: "The Campbells Are Coming," as an introduction by the orchestra; "Robin Adair," a mixed quartette; "Coming Through the Rye" and "Annie Laurie" by a coloratura soprano; "The Pipes of Gorden's Men" by a baritone; "Reel O'Tulloch" by the Mark Strand Lassies; "The Ain Folk" by a tenor, and "Auld Lang Syne" by the ensemble. The background for a specially painted Scottish Moor, and with 20 people on the stage the only set pieces were a few tree stumps.

Paramount Releases

TWO DISPLAYS FROM JACK T. TURNER, OF THE GALAX THEATRE, BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

On the left is the display for Argentine Love. In this the cutout of the star is suspended and made to move slightly to convey the suggestion of a dancing couple. As the lattice is a stock accessory, the cost was slight. For The City That Never Sleeps a screen style still frame was used with a clock face to help get over the idea of a 24-hour day. A panorama is used above.

A Paramount Release

This electric sign on The Ten Commandments is the largest ever erected in Sweden. It stands at the traffic centre in Stockholm and announces the play at the Olympia and Imperial theatres. Most billboards are not even lighted and this sign has made a real sensation. It will be used regularly.

North of 36 is Texan Cleanup

E. B. Roberts, of the Majestic Theatre, Austin, Texas, is another manager to clean up with North of 36 through driving home the fact that it was a play with a Texas locale.

One of his indirect stunts was to procure the election of Lois Wilson as an honorary member of the local chapter of the Daughters of the Republic of Texas. This got the front page for a two column cut, and made a solid appeal to the women.

A week ahead he co-operated with the Austin Statesman in a fiddlers contest which was to be worked in advance of the showing. This not only advertised the play, but it made for special stories when it was found that there were no old time fiddlers to compete.

Another good idea, which came through, was the invitation to all Texans over fifty years of age to be the guests of the management.

A special prologue, which used only a soloist instead of the usual quartet, and a lavish display of the State flag and colored bunting gave receipts about double the average.

Most theatres in Texas have cleaned up on the local appeal, but even with this asset the recipts are largely governed by the amount of managerial hustle displayed. You have to advertise even the good things.

This is Good

Here's a stunt that will work on a lot of pictures other than Feet of Clay, but Jack Hellman, Paramounteer, worked it for the DeMille title. He put up three prizes of $15, $10 and $5 for the best explanations as to why the picture was given this title, explaining that often people wondered why a title had been given a picture, and he wanted the matter cleared up in advance of the showing of Feet of Clay that the patrons might be left free to enjoy the production.

Tying this to the local paper, Hellman brought a lot of extra business to the Opera House, Winona, Minn.

Thesc Navy Posters Work Three Stunts

Generally the manager who can hook some idea that carries with it the use of the Navy Aboards figures that he has done pretty well. It remained for the California Theatre, San Francisco, to add to the load. It cut three ways with a poster reading:

"In days of old Captain Blood ruled the Seven Seas, just as today the U. S. Navy leads other navies of the world. Read Rafael Sabatini's greatest novel, Captain Blood, in the S. F. Chronicle, then see the picture at the California Theatre. U. S. Navy Recruiting Office, 703 Market Street."

This is printed in deep blue letters on a yellow ground, with a cable border. The color scheme prevents reproduction, but we want to compliment the California on an unusually good job.

A similar double hook should be possible wherever there is a Captain Blood Booking and an Army or Navy Recruiting station.

Special Prize Gets Extra Big Potatoes

Giving a potato matinee the Saturday before Thanksgiving, the Hippodrome Theatre, Waco, Texas, gave free admission for one potato, but it encured large potatoes through the offer of a season pass, good until January 1, for the largest potato. The largest spud was a full meal for a family of four, and therefore hundreds of potatoes weighing several pounds apiece.

A pass good between Thanksgiving and Christmas will not hurt the capacity of the house, and the idea brought unusual results in the matter of large tubers. This is something to be remembered when you work your own stunt next year.

The best way to work this stunt is to obtain the loan of a balance from some druggist. Put the first large potato in one scale pan and then weigh the new entries against this. This is much more spectacular then where the ordinary beam scale is employed. If you cannot get the loan of a balance, you can improvise one very simply. Drill a hole in the exact centre of a hardwood stick, hang scale pans; made of pie tins suspended by strings, at equal distances from the centre, and weight to make sure that the balance is exact. The beam can be suspended from the ceiling or any convenient support.

A Book Banner

Most managers are content to get a nice book display, but Frank Burham, of the B. C. Theatre, Berkeley, Cal., went further.

He supplied the book store with a large banner that went halfway across the fifty-foot front, in addition to five cards, three of which were pictorial.

Some Color Scheme

When Jack Rowley, of the Rialto Theatre, Laredo, Texas, decided to back Constance Talmadge in Dulcy, he painted a special poster. It was in red, blue, black, lavender and green, and the report very truthfully states that "it caught the eye of all passers by." It almost blinded some of them. Anyhow Dulcy can still make money.

A Pathe Release

HERE'S THAT WASHINGTON STREET CAR AGAIN—IN HOT WATER

It was made part of the advertising campaign for the Lloyd production at Crandall's Metropolitan Theatre. This still seems to be the only specially designed advertising trolley, though every traction company must have some old car it could convert to this use with profit.

Women Cooperate on Broken Laws

Chicago saw the opening campaign on Broken Laws, the F. B. O. special, and a well-planned drive not only covered the opening but put valuable exploitation at the disposal of exhibitors wherever there is a women's club in the Federation of Women's Clubs, and that means practically wherever there is a picture house.

This is because the chief angle of the campaign was a drive on the heads of the Federation, or more properly on the Law Enforcement Committee. The picture was preshown to this committee and other prominent clubwomen with the result that they gave the picture their enthusiastic approval and not only got behind the Chicago campaign but have written to all member clubs urging similar cooperation when the picture is shown locally.

In Chicago it was the women who waited upon the Mayor and obtained his approval fo a law enforcement week, though this might more properly be called "law observance" week, since the drive was not to obtain the enforcement of law but rather the voluntary observance of the statutes on the part of the individual.

Federation Was Featured

This week carried with it large signs published in the name of the Federation and attached to lamp and trolley posts throughout the business district. The copy read: "Broken Laws. Help the city and State officials to enforce all laws by observing them. Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs. Don't speed for the thrill. See Mrs. Wallace Reid in Broken Laws at the Orpheum Theatre."

This was backed by elaborate newspaper comment, and by a full page advertisement in the American set in exact reproduction of the general news pages. Mrs. Reid was brought to Chicago as the guest of the Federation, and made a number of appearances.

The feature of the campaign was this: Neither the theatre nor the F. B. O. requested any favors of the municipal authorities. The Federation did all of the asking, and obtained even more than could have been had from a purely theatrical drive.

With your local women back of you, you will not have to work your own channels of influence should you play the picture. The women will get the requisite permission and leave your own pull for use on pictures which carry less of a suggestion of municipal good. It worked in Chicago and will work anywhere.

A Vitagraph Release

CAPTAIN BLOOD TOOK A RIDE WHEN HE MADE GREEN BAY

H. Hadfield, of the Strand Theatre, kept a mounted ballyhoo on the streets a week in advance of the run, and built up on this with a post card campaign. The underline was used on both ends of the marquise, with the result that the picture sold.

A First National Release

THIS IS A ONE-BOY POWER GALLEASE FROM THE SOUTH

It was made by the Opera House, Florence, S. C., for The Sea Hawk. It drew in the available money, so the size does not count. The big idea is to do something different to give the patrons the suggestion that the offering is extraordinary.

No Slump Here

Carl F. Miller, of the Strand and Fremont Theatres, Fremont, Ohio, does not feel the usual Christmas slump. He has found in past years that he can still get the money if he offers a little more than usual.

This time his "worst week of the year" was split between Secrets and The Fighting Blade. The Talmadge picture was put over with an unusually good musical program, and Miller made his drive on the socially elect, knowing that if he could draw these the masses would follow. But The Fighting Blade called for a little more putting over, so he added three acts of semi-professional vaudeville. These were advanced amateurs from Toledo and did not cost much, for the "stars" were glad to get experience.

If Mr. Miller will read the recent stories about Harry Seel he'll probably have his own local organization lined up for next Christmas.

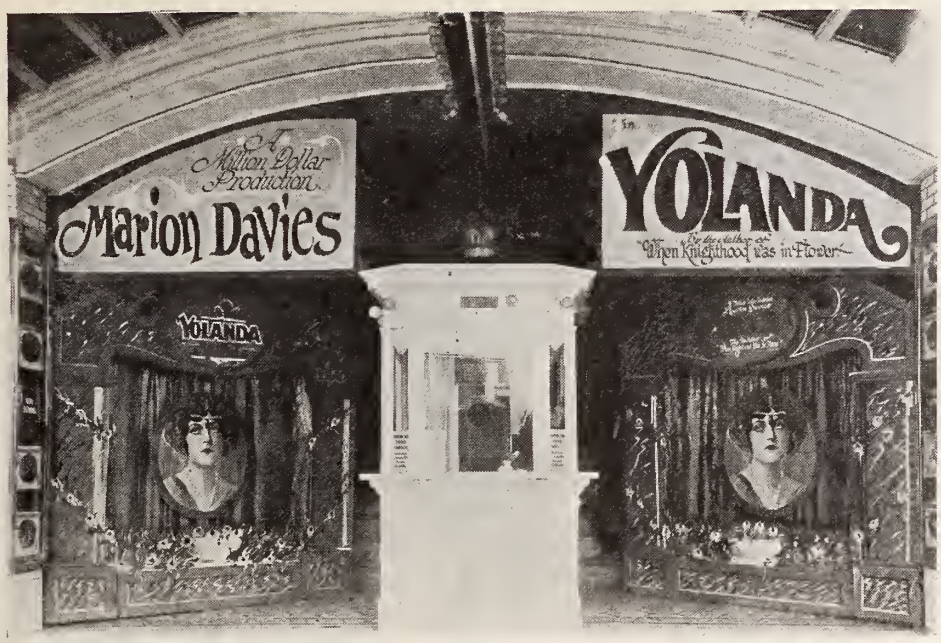
Cheap and Effective

Oscar White's Thanksgiving lobby was unusually effective and cheap even for that economical manager. Autumn leaves, shocks of corn, potatoes, pumpkins, apples and similar products (all borrowed), made one of the prettiest lobbies he ever constructed and it made an unusual hit with his rural patrons, helping The Story Without a Name to go over like a super.

Sold Lincoln

Instead of figuring that Abraham Lincoln should sell itself, the Rex Theatre, Greely, Colo., laid in an unusually large stock of accessories and billed all the nearby towns as well as Greely.

In consequence it hung up a new record for gross business.



A Metro-Goldwin Release

EDDIE COLLINS GETS A BIG DISPLAY AT LITTLE COST

These side pieces in the lobby of the Queen Theatre, Galveston, look like a lot of money, but they have done duty on several plays and the pro rata cost is small. They are changed for each appearance, but most of the cost is for paint.

Hooked Sundown to a Big Rodeo

Jack Quinlan, of the Mainstreet Theatre, Kansas City, with the collaboration of Walter Lindlar, First National exploitation man, hooked the showing of Sundown to a rodeo given under the auspices of the Order of De Molay.

Two large banners were stretched in the arena, one reading that "Some of these boys helped make Sundown, an epic of the Mighty West" while the other ran: "Let's all go see Sundown at the Mainstreet Theatre, an epic, etc.," The arrangement also called for an announcement at each performance, and mention of the show by the clowns. The latter took hold only in spots as the arena was too large for many to hear the quips.

A hook to any rodeo would be good, but the especial value of this stunt lies in the fact that the Order of DeMolay had its origin in Kansas City, and the town takes a mighty pride in the boys. The order is sponsored by the Masons, but membership is not limited to the sons of Masons and so any De Molay event will bring out a better than usual crowd, which gives a hand picked circulation.

Another good idea was the building of a hitching rack in front of the house with the announcement that the space was reserved for the horses of mounted patrons. It was not used much, but it made a lot of talk.

Helped an Election

The Have-a-kiss girl put out by Loew's Vendome Theatre, Nashville, Tenn., was dressed in white, cap, sweater, knickers, and hose, with blue shoes and a red sash.

She did so well on the streets that a local merchant borrowed her to help electioneer for his ticket at a Kiwanis session, and "her" side won hands down. That angle of the stunt did not in the least hurt the advertising for Circe, the Enchantress, which was what the girl was plugging for.

Held Over

The Valentino loving cup did so well for Beaucaire that Paramounteer Bill Mendelssohn is still prescribing it for his patients with A Sainted Devil. He has it all trimmed up now. The cup is sponsored by Valentino and the contest by some local paper. The paper ballots for the most popular girl are good for votes, but a greater number of votes are given with the purchase of each ticket at the box office. By making the slips good for more than one vote the contest soon assumes four and five figure proportions.

At the Park Theatre, Youngstown, Ohio, Bill recently hit another angle. The contestants were asked to loan the theatre a photograph, and these were placed in the lobby frames, between the regular still frames. This gave a lobby attractor of real value and also helped the stills.

Made Play Title His City Slogan

Demonstrating the value of being someone of importance in the community, J. L. Shields got unusual publicity for The City that Never Sleeps through a local celebration.

Augusta, Ga., was about to celebrate the opening of its White Way, and Shields was made chairman of the Celebration Committee. When he suggested "The City that Never Sleeps" as the slogan for the affair, the others liked the idea even though he had frankly explained that it was the title of a play he was to show during the big week.

A cigar store used it on a banner about 40 feet long, and the title was repeated on windshield stickers. There is a local ordinance against pasting windshields, but this was a municipal boost, as well, so the Mayor told Shields to go ahead, and most of the drivers let them stay on.

He made a special of a film on Street Lighting, supplied by the General Electric Company, and this really sold tickets to those who were interested in lighting problems at the moment—and everyone was.

His own display was a banner on compo board stretching across the entire front of the lobby. This was a carefully exact reproduction of the newly lighted section, which included the Imperial Theatre. This was cut out for window illumination and it made a wonderful hit, all of the newspapers mentioning the display and urging readers to go and see it.

Shields also obtained the loan of a boy's band imported for the celebration, to give a concert in front of the house. But in return for all this, put the celebration over with a bang, even if they did have to postpone the jubilation on account of the weather.

He also worked in The Garden of Weeds, with six boys with banners in the parade and rockets which released parachutes bannered for the Modjeska. His lobby on this was a special painting of a fanciful garden which nearly covered the lobby front. Before the painting were two cutout plants, each carrying a head of Betty Compson.

Extra Universal News Extra
PHANTOM OF THE OPERA
NOW IN PRODUCTION
WILL BE SENSATION OF 1925
CARL LAEMMLE PREDICTS MORE AMAZING PICTURE THAN HUNCHBACK OF NOTRE DAME
HIPPODROME
FATIMA

A Universal Release

THIS MODEST LITTLE BILLBOARD IS A UNIVERSAL IDEA

It occupies the entire side of the Mecca Building, at 1600 Broadway, home of a raft of film exchanges, and is 90 feet wide by 60 high. This space has always been used by Universal, but this striking form is new and better because different.

Nice Curb Display Cost But a Dollar

Obtaining permission from the city authorities to park his lobby display at the curb, because he has no real lobby, gave J. M. Edgar Hart, a nice display on Locked Doors at the Opera House, Augusta, Maine, a part of the William P. Gray Circuit.

The money was spent for lumber used in the construction of a base for two old doors and for the wood used to fabricate the huge padlocks which carry out the idea of the title. It was a timely hook-up and the fact that he could park it at the curb shows that Edgar is already standing pretty solid with the officials. The house is on the main street and all of the interurban trolleys pass the door, so he advertised to pretty nearly the entire town.

Zero Baseball

He was showing The Battling Orioles with this and he got the Calumet Club team, the local champions, to meet the film and escort it to the Opera House, after which they played an innings on the snow covered space of Market Square and posed for their photographs, later being the guests of the house at the first showing.

A Pathe Release

A JANUARY BALL GAME IN THE STREETS OF AUGUSTA

That's Maine, not Georgia, and the players are helping J. M. Edgar Hart put over The Battling Orioles at William P. Gray's Opera House. The men are the local champions, and they hold the Y. M. C. A. Cup. They escorted the film to the theatre.

Campaign on 36 Has Good General Ideas

Two good ideas were developed for North of 36 by John J. Friedl and Raymond B. Jones of the Palace Theatre, Dallas, Texas.

One stunt was worked with the Yellow Cab Company, which gave a miniature yellow cab to every patron coming to see the performance in one of its vehicles. The company gave its tire cards and considerable newspaper advertising, glad to tie in on this peculiarly Texas picture.

The other idea was a small money prize to every usher who secured a window display in the district near his home. This not only gave about twenty well-located windows, but considerable verbal advertising.

The original Taisie was exploited in still and motion pictures through selling the story to the Times-Herald, which paid the cost of the pictures.

A radio concert "in honor of North of 36" was given by a local broadcasting station, with telegrams from the stars in the picture, cowboy songs and all the other trimmings.

The schools and all the clubs, including a Country Club, were hooked up. A special showing was given at the Country Club, with the reporters out in force.

A Paramount Release

THIS DISPLAY COST J. M. EDGAR HART ONE DOLLAR

That was spent for lumber to brace the doors and for two wooden locks. The authorities permitted him to park the display at the curb in front of the Opera House, Augusta, Maine, to advertise the DeMille production of Locked Doors.

Waugh Stunted 36 from Many Angles

Howard Waugh, of Loew's Palace Theatre, Memphis, did a number of clever things for North of 36, starting with a giant telegram, a copy of one sent out by Paramount proclaiming the merit of the production.

His best appeal was a special Texas Night when former Texans were invited to be the guests of the theatre. A Negro band was borrowed for a concert in front of the house and all old timers flocked in. The stunt also put him in touch with Aaron T. Shoolfeldt, 74 years of age, who drove cows back in the days pictured in the play. He gave one of the newspapers the material for a corking story that made the front page with no "Adt" tacked to it.

Waugh also succeeded in borrowing some old Texas Land Script, which helps the motivation of the story, and this was made into a window display that also got newspaper mention.

He made a drive for all the business clubs, women's clubs and patriotic societies from the historical angle, and these brought special stories. He posted 50 24-sheets and used 2,500 special window cards.

He has no complaint about business.

Eddie's Cards

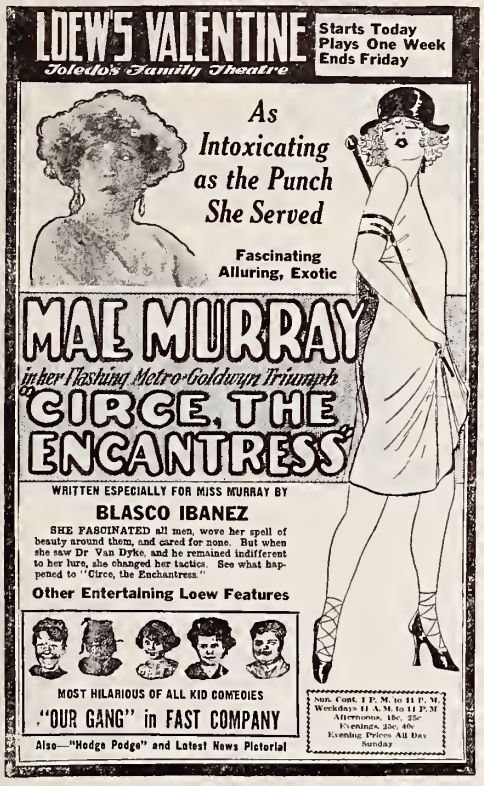
Eddie Collins, of the Queen Theatre, Galveston, Texas, did not do much special advertising for The Fast Set, but he cashed in on special teaser cards put out three days before the showing. These were printed: "Sh—h—h!!!" See all the inside details of The Fast Set, Queen, Sunday."

That seemed to be all he needed to get it over, but he put the cards all over town.

Using the hot water drip originated for Hot Water, H. C. Farley, of the Empire Theatre, Montgomery, Ala., put Hot Water over to $200 better than Girl Shy and with the Christmas shopping season to buck. He was helped some by fifty cutout window cards tacked around the building in which an Elk's Circus was being held, but the water drip was the big seller.

Line Cut Beats a Halftone Here

This three tens from Loew's Valentine Theatre, Toledo, shows how much better line is for newspaper work than the average cut. This portrait cut is in about the right screen, but the absorbent paper has a tendency to soak in the ink. The result is that the color darkens, since the ink slightly



LOEW'S VALENTINE
Toledo's Family Theatre
Starts Today
Plays One Week
Ends Friday
As Intoxicating as the Punch She Served
Fascinating Alluring, Exotic
MAE MURRAY
in her Flashing Metro-Goldwyn Triumph
"CIRCE, THE ENCHANTRESS"
WRITTEN ESPECIALLY FOR MISS MURRAY BY BLASCO IBANEZ
SHE FASCINATED all men, wove her spell of beauty around them, and cared for none. But when she saw Dr Van Dyke, and he remained indifferent to her lure, she changed her tactics. See what happened to "Circe, the Enchantress."
Other Entertaining Loew Features
MOST HILARIOUS OF ALL KID COMEDIES
"OUR GANG" in FAST COMPANY
Also—"Hodge Podge" and Latest News Pictorial
Sun. Cont. 1 P. M. to 11 P. M.
Weekdays 11 A. M. to 11 P. M.
Afternoons, 15c, 25c
Evenings, 25c, 40c
Evening Prices All Day Sunday

A Metro-Goldwyn Release

THE LINE IS BETTER

tints the white, and the space is too dark to offer appeal. On the other hand the light line work stands out as well as though it were printed on plate paper. You can't spoil that. This line cut is not well drawn. The legs are poor and the general proportioning is worse than that, but even with this drawback it is a better attractor than the halftone it is supposed to supplement. The text is much better than the illustration and the slogan line is of the sort that will catch the eye and get attention for the rest. The benday reverse gives a good name plate and the line in black is merely the credit line and it does not matter so much that it does not come through. It would not show at all in a white letter of that size, and it does not get a very good play in black. We are of the opinion that the line just below the title, which runs: "Written especially for Miss Murray by" is of sufficient importance to gain a better play-up. This could have been had by reducing the "Other entertaining Loew features" to an eight point and taking the space thus gained to split the upper line from the reverse which practically conceals the line as it is set at present. Apart from this the typographical display is very good, with no all capital letters or the other favored sins of the composing room.

Better

Most theatres handling For Sale have tried to make a punch out of the title, but it remained for George J. Schade to get the most out of it. He simply advertised "For sale. The Schade Theatre." Then he put an extra girl on the telephone to explain that "For Sale" was a play and not an offer. The Schade is a local institution in Sandusky, and its sale attracted unusual comment. It brought Schade business in the most miserable weather. You can make the idea do the same for you.

Nice Line

Getting a window on the strength of an idea is one of Charles Morrison's regular stunts, but he did better than usual with a sign just before Christmas. It was in the window of a jewelry store and read "Give a diamond, the most valuable of all Worldly Goods." This was paired with a card for Agnes Ayres in Worldly Goods at the Imperial Theatre, Jacksonville. It helped him to extra money on the run and was much better than the more obvious hook-up to the instalment diamond in the story.

He did almost as well with another card which read: "The Fast Set on your tennis court is made possible by Spaulding sport supplies." This worked just as well for the De Mille production, and another window was won with pictures of Betty Compson in a women's wear store.

Just Look at This a Boston All Type

This is an all-type display from Boston that is really good. It is from Gordon's Olympia and you can read every word of it. And if you read, you are apt to be sold on going, for the text is written to gain your interest to the point of purchase. The heart design is appropriate and striking and if the portrait is not an art gem you can at least tell that it is Connie, and that will sell tickets, too. It's a good start for the New Year, and unless a great change comes, it is apt to be the best display in 1925 to hail from that point.

Scatter Ads Are Useful at Times

Eldrid Fisher, of the Strand Theatre, Lexington, Ky., sends in some scatter ads he used on His Hour. These were in two sizes, a one inch by two and two inch singles. Two of the latter are shown. One or more of these are carried on every page of a certain issue or for two or more days, and serve to hammer home the title. They are best used for an advance, prior to the regular advertising, but can also be made to give results when used the day the first regular advertising is done. Sometimes it helps to change the copy for each space, while retaining a general form, but often it pays better if the several advertisements are identical. The big idea is that no matter what page is seen, there is some reference to the title, and the man who skips the theatrical page, because he is not interested, may be sold through

A Metro-Goldwyn Release

SCATTER ADS.

GORDON'S
OLYMPIA ~ WASH. ST.
FIRST TIME IN BOSTON
BEGINNING TODAY (Sunday)
Suppose you were a girl of fabulous wealth, suppose you could pick from all the men you know, from all the heroes of fiction and the screen, men of wealth and position. What sort of a man would you marry?
IF YOU CAN LAUGH, SEE THIS COMEDY SENSATION
JOSEPH M. SCHENCK presents
CONSTANCE TALMADGE
IN
"HER NIGHT of ROMANCE"
A FIRST NATIONAL PICTURE
A side-splitting fun film replete with action, romance, excitement and clever situations
ALL STAR PROGRAM
VAUDEVILLE
JOE DONAHUE (brother of the famous Jack, Star in "Be Yourself"), Assisted by RUTH MORGAN

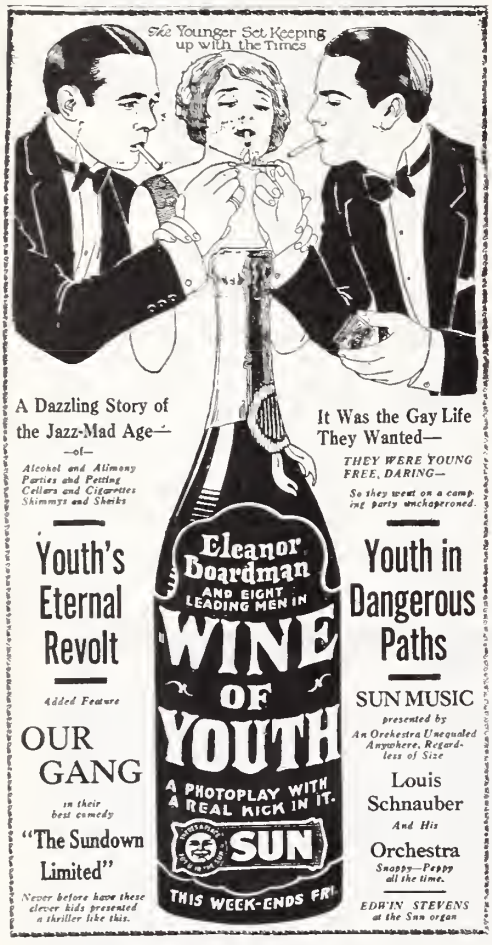
A First National Release

A NOVELTY FROM BOSTON; A WHOLLY GOOD ADVERTISEMENT.

the sporting department or the cable news. No matter where he turns, he is bound to see a reference to the title, and curiousity will generally do the rest. Mr. Fisher also sends in some good book markers on Peter Pan, these being supplemented by a display of stills on the librarian's desk.

Jazz Appeal Is the Salesman for Wine

"Wine of Youth" is advertised by the Sun Theatre, Omaha, Neb., with almost undue emphasis upon the jazz features. There is more to this story than the jazz, but probably this is what sells the best, though this style of appeal may hold from the house many who would enjoy the story back of the



The Younger Set Keeping up with the Times
A Dazzling Story of the Jazz-Mad Age
—of—
Alcohol and Alimony Parties and Petting Cellars and Cigarettes Shimmys and Sheiks
Youth's Eternal Revolt
Added Feature
OUR GANG
in their best comedy
"The Sundown Limited"
Never before have these clever kids presented a thriller like this.
It Was the Gay Life They Wanted—
THEY WERE YOUNG FREE, DARING—
So they went on a camping party unchaperoned
Youth in Dangerous Paths
SUN MUSIC
presented by
An Orchestra Unequaled Anywhere, Regardless of Size
Louis Schnauber
And His Orchestra
Snappy—Peppy all the time.
EDWIN STEVENS at the Sun organ
Eleanor Boardman
AND EIGHT LEADING MEN IN
"WINE OF YOUTH"
A PHOTOPLAY WITH A REAL KICK IN IT.
SUN
THIS WEEK-ENDS FRI.

A Metro-Goldwyn Release

TOO MUCH ABOUT JAZZ

jazz. But for a purely jazz appeal this is very well done. The space is a three twelves, rather long for good looks, but necessary to let the bottle in, and the bottle is most of the sales appeal. The advertisement is rather sketchy as to copy and rather too general. With the exception of the two lines about the camping trip the same copy might be used for a score of other plays with equal truth. If jazz makes the strongest appeal, jazz should be used, but an effort should be made to give the individual points of the particular play rather than the points all similar type pictures bear in common.

Good Combination of Text and Talk

The Lyric Theatre, Minneapolis, takes extra space for the Sunday starter on The LETTING HERSELF GO ALMOST TO CERTAIN DEATH, TO SAVE HER LOVER, WHOM HER WEIGHT WAS DRAGGING DOWN.

The NEWEST STORY by HUTCHINSON
BETTER than HIS FAMOUS
"IF WINTER COMES"
AND WITH THE SAME HERO
STARTS TODAY
The CLEAN HEART
PERCY MARMONT
MARGUERITE DE LAMOTTE
WORK, NEVER ENDING WORK, OF WORRY, ABOUT HIMSELF, HAD DRIVEN HIM MAD. HIS BATTLE TO FLUSH TROUT DISTURBING "S.O.L." FURNISHES THE MOST UNIQUE AND ENTERTAINING PICTURE OF A Screamingly Funny Comedy
"The Masked Marvel"
Lyric.
Maurice Cook at the Organ
PAUL DAVIN and His RADISSON HOTEL ORCHESTRA

A Vitagraph Release

A STRONG DISPLAY

Clean Heart, employing a four seventeens in which cut, reverse and talk are nicely weighed. The only thing we do not like about this is the use of all capitals for the caption at the top of the space and in the box between the two portrait cuts. This is a very small matter when compared with the general excellence of the space, but it would have helped a little to have made the captain easier to read. The caption is written to get interest in the story and taken with the cut has a definite sales value. Another appeal is the hooking to If Winter Comes, even though it does employ the overworked "better than." The reverse panel comes out nicely and the strong black gives marked effect to the title and players, while the portrait cuts below help the general effect, though they may possess no direct sales value in themselves. The little bank in between is likely to be passed over. Ten lines of unspaced capitals are not easy to read. A ten word line would have been much better than ten lines of words.

Has Novel Design for Puzzle Fans

G. R. Stewart has a good idea for a hook to the cross word puzzle craze. He sets his two sixes in the form of a puzzle, but instead of setting the letters into the spaces, he uses the black blanks to outline a man with the face constructed from "sorts." The cap O from a condensed face is his mouth, the nose is the ! and the eyes are periods and parentheses. It's clever and striking. The text begs the reader not to try to work the puzzle, since to do so might cause him to lose a chance to see The Navigator. This is a just once stunt, but it is a very clever adaptation of the idea, and different from the others. Most papers stock these black squares for the baseball scores and can let you have them. At a pinch you can build up em quads with cardboard to type high.

A Metro-Goldwyn Release

CLEVERLY CONSTRUCTED

Good Will Stunts from Harry Storin

Harry E. Storin, of the Leroy Theatre, Pawtucket, R. I., sends in a couple of good will stunts.

One of these is the institution of an Information Clerk on heavy nights, such as Saturdays and Holidays. She stands in the foyer ready to answer all questions such as when the feature goes on next, where the rest rooms may be found, the next attraction and items about the players. She is called "Miss Information," though this is a misnomer.

The other idea was sprung just before Christmas. In the course of the year the lost and found room had become crowded with articles for which no inquiry had been made and for which no owner could be found.

Discarding single rubbers, left hand gloves and the like, the useful articles were packed up and sent to the Home for the Aged, and the umbrellas, mufflers, paired gloves and other items were distributed to the inmates.

Looking Ahead

Giving a special Christmas matinee, admission to which was a donation for the poor children, E. B. Roberts, of the Majestic Theatre, Austin, Texas, offered a special film and engaged a reader to tell the kiddies the story of Peter Pan.

As he was hooked to a newspaper on the stunt, he got a lot of press work for Peter as well as selling the children direct.

THE PEP OF THE PROGRAM

NEWS AND REVIEWS OF SHORT SUBJECTS AND SERIALS

"The Fighting Ranger"

Exciting 15-Episode Universal Adventure Picture Stars Eileen Sedgwick and Jack Daugherty

Reviewed by C. S. Sewell

With Jack Daugherty and Eileen Sedgwick as the stars, and the stunt aviator, Al Wilson, featured, and another stunt aviator, Gladys Roy, in the supporting cast, Universal is offering "The Fighting Ranger," an adventure picture in fifteen chapters.

There is a lot of action and excitement in this production and events keep moving at a rapid clip. The story concerns a prosperous cattle raiser who is forced to hide away from home as he is accused of murder. His foreman, whom he trusts implicitly, seeks to double-cross him as he knows that somewhere on the ranch is a fabulous buried treasure, the exact location of which is known only by an aged Indian. A ranger who appears on the scene also knows of the existence of this treasure and has a map left by his father. He becomes the ally of the cattle raiser's daughter and together they resist the attempts of the foreman to secure control of the property and treasure.

As usual with this type of story, where the action is carried over from one chapter to another, there is a stunt at the end of each episode, with the suspense as to the outcome carried over into the next. There are several other thrills scattered through the chapters, and judging from a pre-view of the first five episodes, "The Fighting Ranger" has plenty of action and excitement that will hold the interest of patrons who like continued pictures, even though the general trend of the story does not differ from the usual picture of this type.

Among the highlights of the early episodes are the following: the appearance of the ranger in a crippled aeroplane that skirts the tops of the trees, causing the leaves to fly, and then crashes to the earth; the fall of a wagon containing the heroine down a steep incline; the dynamiting of a hill, placing the heroine in peril; the daring transfer of the hero from an aeroplane to a motorcycle; a brush fire in the woods; a fight on a ledge, with the fighters falling into the water many feet below; the bursting of a dam as the hero crosses, and the trial of the cattle raiser while the hero speeds to his rescue.

Jack Daugherty and Eileen Sedgwick are thoroughly satisfactory in the leading roles and Bub Osborne gives a good performance as the villain. Slim Cole contributes some good motorcycle stunts, while Al Wilson in the novel role of a tramp aviator furnishes the aeroplane thrills.

"Topsy Turvy Travel"

(Educational—Hodge Podge—One Reel)

A novel idea is used in this issue of Lyman Howe's Hodge Podge distributed by Educational. A tourist invited to lecture to his fellow townsmen goes to sleep and in his dream his travels all get mixed up. For instance, in Ireland he sees Indians, at the North Pole he views the famous Taj Mahal located in India, and so on, ending with views of the Pan-American Exposition in San Francisco in 1915. This is done by means of both photographic and cartoon work. The reel is in reality a burlesque travel reel, and in addition to quite a little humor being injected, the scenes, although facetiously subtitled, are interesting. We believe that this idea will appeal to the average theatre patron as a novelty.—C. S. S.

"Shorts" Reviewed in This Issue

Beloved Bozo, The (Pathe)
Biting the Dust (Pathe)
By Hook or Crook (Pathe)
Circus Fever (Pathe)
Fighting Ranger, The (Universal)
He Who Gets Socked (Educational)
His High Horse (Educational)
Nobody Works But Father (Fox)
Pathe Review No. 6 (Pathe)
Topsy Turvy Travel (Educational)
Transatlantic Flight, A (Pathe)

"Nobody Works But Father"

(Fox—Comedy—Two Reels)

The first part of this comedy pictures a race between an aged messenger with a big family and a stork bearing an infant, and the unsuccessful attempt of the messenger to prevent the stork from flying down his chimney. The latter portion deals with the messenger's grown son being dragooned into driving a car in an auto race, although he has never driven a machine before. The action, especially in the auto sequences, is exceedingly rapid and there are a lot of amusing slapstick situations. It is well up to the Fox standard and should prove amusing to the majority of patrons.—C. S. S.

The House of FEATURETTES

Week of Feb. 1, 1925

Fabian's Rialto, Newark, plays "Marvels of Motion." Issue "B," for two weeks commencing Jan. 29th.
Fox's, Philadelphia, plays Animated Hair Cartoon, Issue "E."
Missouri, St. Louis, plays Animated Hair Cartoon, Issue "I."
Newman, Kansas City, plays Animated Hair Cartoon, Issue "I."

120 First Run Novelties 1924-1925

RED SEAL PICTURES CORP.

Edwin Miles Fadman, Pres.

1600 BROADWAY NEW YORK CITY

"The Beloved Bozo"

(Pathe—Comedy—Two Reels)

Here is a comedy that deviates from the usual Mack Sennett slapstick angle and yet scores hugely. It convulsed the reviewers, evoking peal after peal of honest laughter. It is a dramatic burlesque on the "crook" drama so well known to Broadway these days, showing how a pair of beautiful feminine optics convince the crook of the error of his ways. The humor is gently ironical rather than open-faced, but it is not too subtle for the average audience. One of the best touches is Ralph Graves' determination to cling to his derby through all adventures, whether falling downstairs or rescuing the heroine in a hotel fire. All of the players do wonderful work. They are Alice Day, Marvin Lobach, Vernon Dent, Eugenia Gilbert and Art Rowlands. Eddie Cline directed under the supervision of J. A. Waldron. An intelligent audience will roar at this; the average slapstick devotee will thoroughly enjoy it even though he may miss some of the ironic touches. Incidentally, this has the finest titles we have seen in some time. Felix Adler and A. H. Giebler were responsible for them.—S. S.

"His High Horse"

(Educational—Comedy—Two Reels)

Lee Moran has the leading role in this Jack White production, released by Educational under the Mermaid Comedy brand. The action centres around a chap who loses his hat and in the chase after it finds himself astride a horse although he is terribly afraid of one. The horse gets the best of him, but in explaining his lateness at a luncheon he tells how he subdued the horse, and to make good has to ride a spirited horse called Wildroot. Several amusing situations and a lot of clever business have been introduced, as, for instance, where the hero's hat lands on a squirrel that runs away with it and finally lands on the back of a big bird. After the hero gets on Wildroot there is good slapstick and rough and tumble in the wild ride across country and through barns, etc., creating general havoc. This comedy contains several laughs and should prove satisfactory with audiences that like slapstick, for it is well up to the average of the Mermaid brand.—C. S. S.

"Pathe Review No. 6"

(Pathe—Magazine—One Reel)

The leading subject in the second installment of "The Prettiest Girl I Know" series. This is titled "The Movie Actress." The palm is awarded Mary Pickford after views of a dancing class on the Ince lot and of Jacqueline Logan lecturing the girls on how to get into the "movies." Other subjects in the Review are scenes of Spreewald, a city on a canal in Battenberg, Germany, and a Pathecolor of Augusta, Ga., one of the "Visiting Our Own America" series.—S. S.

"Circus Fever"

(Pathe—Comedy—Two Reels)

This is the fifth release of the sixth series of "Our Gang" comedies, which, we think exhibitors will agree, are the finest juvenile fun films yet to appear in picture theatres. While not the best of all, it strikes an appeal that is universally popular. Farina contracts "speckled fever," and in order to escape school and get to the circus, Mickey Mary, Jackie, and Fatty Joe fake having it with the aid of a paint brush. Their parents and the physician are not deceived and punishment follows in the form of castor oil. Then—crowning punishment of all—it develops that the school they evaded has been dismissed so that the pupils can see the circus.—S. S.

"He Who Gets Soaked"

(Educational—Cartoon—One Reel)

In this issue of Earl Hurd's "Pen and Ink Vaudeville" the familiar property man is called upon to take care of the strong man's infant son. This mischievous child escapes and is finally captured by a stork. Props boards an aeroplane, gives chase and runs into a whole flock of storks, each carrying an infant, and has a hard time. He picks a negro, a Hebrew, a Chinese baby, etc., before he gets the right one, and awakens to find it all a dream. The action in this little cartoon is snappy and amusing and the interest well sustained. It is really the best of this series.—C. S. S.

"Biting the Dust"

(Pathe—Cartoon—One Reel)

A jungle football game with the baboons opposed by a bunch of cats led by the old farmer furnishes the idea of this Aesop's Fable cartoon. While amusing and clever there is not as much originality as in some of Paul Terry's cartoons. One of the stunts is filling the football with sand and considerable footage shows the various attempts of the animals to see the game without paying at the box-office. Terry has used this idea before but has introduced some new and imaginative ideas. It should prove amusing for the average patron.—C. S. S.

"By Hook or Crook"

(Pathe—Sportlight—One Reel)

Fred Stone, stage comedian, and Rex Beach, author, are outstanding figures in this latest Grantland Rice "Sportlight." It was produced entirely around their recent fishing trip to the Northwoods of Canada, and in addition to fascinating views of the great outdoors and catches of no insignificant landlocked salmon, it possesses the added interest of intimate views of these two well known personalities. It might be said that Fred Stone can't help but be a humorist, even though on a vacation, and that Rex Beach takes roughing it seriously.—S. S.

"A Transatlantic Flight"

(Pathe—Cartoon—One Reel)

In this Aesop's Film Fable, Paul Terry comically exploits the idea of a transatlantic flight by his funny little animal figures. Various are the vehicles they devise to win the prize, and cats, mice and even fish vie with each other. Of course there are amusing accidents.—S. S.

"Midnight Molly"

(Continued from page 558)

ren, the district attorney, elopes with an adventurer, Calvin. Warren is suddenly called to the hospital. Finding that Molly is the double of his wife, he takes her to his home, hoping to avert a scandal. Molly recovers and keeps up the deception. Warren runs for governor. Calvin hears of this and sees a chance for blackmail, so he returns. The detective, Daley, is suspicious and hopes to trap Molly by her fingerprints. His stool pigeon squeals on him. Molly goes to Margaret and forces her to come to the Warren home and be fingerprinted, saving the situation. Margaret and Calvin are killed and Warren and Molly are married.

"Enticement"

Mary Astor Has Splendid Emotional Role in Gripping First National Drama

Reviewed by Sumner Smith

"Enticement," a Thomas H. Ince picturization for First National of Clive Arden's novel, depends for its appeal upon the dramatic story of a lively young woman who knows no love except that of the Platonic sort and who therefore is at a loss to understand the realities of life when men's attitude toward her change as she attains maturity. Dramatic this production certainly is, thanks to superb emotional acting by Mary Astor and effective restrained acting by Clive Brook. The events convey truth and realism and these two players portray them most vividly. Ian Keith performs satisfactorily. His work would appear to better advantage but for a couple of subtitles that seek to exalt him and only succeed in making him seem foolish.

This was a strange picture to review. The opening, which attempts character delineation, proves weak and lifeless, except for remarkably fine backgrounds and perfect photography. Then, like a flash, with the beginning of the real story, the picture becomes tremendously interesting, holding the attention every second. Furthermore, Director Archainbaud builds up the drama well, the events telescoping as they should and piling up cumulative effect. This technique, together with Mary Astor's powerful emotional acting, results in intense, gripping drama. The interest is held up to the very end, when it drops because of sentimentality and a too heroic subtitle about Ian Keith's character.

Except for these two lapses, which certainly should be easily remedied, "Enticement" is tremendously thrilling and true to life. Every woman's sympathy will be with the heroine and every man's too, for though she is portrayed as exceptionally unsophisticated, Mary Astor "gets away with it." We think that the early part of the picture ought to be cut to the bone, partly because of scenes showing the rise of Valyran's passion while aiding her to undress after an accident. There is too much unnecessary detail.

One more thought. As said above, the exteriors, which purport to show the Swiss Alps in the winter, are splendid in the full meaning of the word. The interiors, too, are a credit to Archainbaud. The cast is a corking one and each individual does creditable work.

Cast

Leonore Bewlay.....Mary Astor
Henry Wallis.....Clive Brook
Richard Valyran.....Ian Keith
Mrs. Samuel Murray.....Louise Dresser
William Blake.....Edgar Morton
Mrs. Blake.....Vera Lewis
Mrs. Edward Merley.....Lillian Langdon

From the novel by Clive Arden.
Adapted by Bradley King.
Directed by George Archainbaud.
Length, 6,224 feet.

Story

Leonore Bewley meets in Switzerland a friend of childhood days in Richard Valyran, an opera singer. She does not realize that she has become a woman and flies in a panic of bewilderment when he kisses her as he is undressing her after an accident. She marries Henry Wallis, a devoted Englishman, but is disliked by his relatives. Val's wife names her as corespondent in her divorce suit and Henry loses faith in her. She goes to Val, who loves her, but he refuses her when he learns she still loves Henry. In order to free her from notoriety he kills himself, and Henry, awed by his sacrifice, takes Leonore back and they find happiness together.

Scenes from "The Devil's Cargo," a Victor Fleming production for Paramount, with Wallace Beery, Pauline Starke, Claire Adams and William Collier, Jr.

Plunkett Presentations

By Charles Edward Hastings

MOTION picture presentation has reached its highest standard and the program of the future will be substantially unchanged, according to the opinion of Joseph Plunkett, managing director of the Mark Strand Theatre.

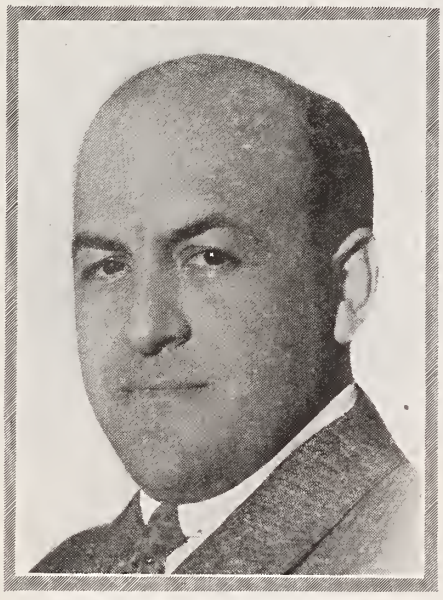
It was the Mark Strand, opened eleven years ago in April as the first million-dollar motion picture house, that not only lifted the movies from the storeroom class, but originated the present day artistic presentation of photoplays.

The first theatre to have a symphony orchestra for photoplays, the Mark Strand was also the first to introduce concert artists and a ballet in surrounding programs, and in the last year the Mark Strand has produced a number of incidental numbers and prologues for feature films that rival in number of persons and elaborate detail anything attempted in dramatic and musical productions.

"Having originated the present day presentation of photoplay programs," said Mr. Plunkett, "it is quite natural that the Mark Strand is still regarded as the model for theatres everywhere. We have set the standard and we still maintain the pace for all of them. This past year's musical ballet presentations and prologues are particularly worthy of attention, I believe.

"Consider the last two Valentino pictures, Harold Lloyd's 'Hot Water' and last week's 'Flaming Love' as examples," continued the managing director. "The first Valentino film, you remember, was 'Monsieur Beaucaire,' a costume and historical romance. The second was a colorful Argentine drama; Lloyd's 'Hot Water,' a comedy, and 'Flaming Love,' a melodrama.

"For 'Beaucaire' the costumes worn in the making of the picture were obtained. Theme songs and a special music score were written by our staff for the orchestra and concert singers. The ballet did a charming dance. Special scenery was built and through the use of stage lighting effects the prologue was made into three scenes without a shift of scenery.



JOSEPH PLUNKETT

In the three scenes were more than forty persons.

"For 'A Sainted Devil' scenery duplicating an Argentine courtyard was built," continued Mr. Plunkett. "The original costumes were worn by the singers and dancers and I engaged a marimba band for a balcony scene. Through lighting effects 'A Sainted Devil' courtyard scene faded into the start of the photoplay. The audience was in the mood and spirit of the picture itself as it started on the screen.

"A contrast in production work of the Mark Strand was 'The Toonerville Trolley' act for Lloyd's 'Hot Water.' Everyone, I guess, knows or has read of the Toonerville Trolley, and we actually had a duplicate of the trolley on the stage. The skipper and other characters were impersonated by singers and dancers. It was a lot of fun for the audience (and a lot of work for the Mark Strand's staff!).

"Still another contrast was in last week's program. The film was 'Flaming Love,' a thrilling Western melodrama. Instead of a prologue, I worked out two musical ballet divertissements. The chief number was 'The Festa' and involved a prelude by the symphony orchestra. In the Italian street scene the ballet corps, Mlle. Klemova, premiere danseuse, the male and ladies' quartettes, and Kitty McLaughlin, soprano, were all used. Realistic effects? Why, there was a burro and cart for Miss McLaughlin to ride onto stage.

"Animals on stage?" repeated Mr. Plunkett. "We've used them any number of times. Oh, yes; the public is quick to appreciate the detail involved in accurate presentations. In the prologue recently for 'So Big' there was a scene of the '80s. We searched everywhere before we located a piano forty or fifty years old, which, incidentally, was like all pianos of those days and was out of tune. Old time songs were sung. The dancers and singers were in costumes of the '80s, and for the street scene we were able to obtain an antique automobile to roll across stage. It was actually the oldest car in existence, excepting the one in the Smithsonian Institute."

Mr. Plunkett said he believed divertissements are secondary in program consideration, but prologues such as are staged at the Mark Strand should be classed as of equal importance and an actual part of the photoplay.

An example of a typical Mark Strand program as conceived and produced by Mr. Plunkett is this week's of "A Thief in Paradise." The ballet, the concert artists and the full symphony orchestra are employed in three numbers, one a prologue to the feature.

"Evidently the Mark Strand is giving the public what it wants in film and surrounding program entertainment," concluded Mr. Plunkett, "because nearly 62,000,000 persons have paid admission in the nearly eleven years the theatre has been open."

Scenes from "Enticement," a First National release.

A LOVING TRIO IN "THE SILENT ACCUSER."
Raymond McKee, Eleanor Boardman (in male attire) and "Peter the Great" in the Chester Franklin production for Metro-Goldwyn release.

Camera Work Being Completed on New Hal Roach Feature

JAMES W. HORNE, who deserted the ranks of feature productions to direct short subjects on the Hal Roach lot, is nearing the completion of his first Pathe comedy. The picture has been in production two weeks and has to do with doctors, nurses, Pullman cars and crying babies. It carries Glenn Tryon and Blanche Mehaffey in the featured roles.

While Horne is directing the current production, Fred Guiol, who made "The Haunted Honeymoon," last completed Tryon comedy, is preparing another for Tryon to follow the Horne picture, as yet untitled.

Eight "gag" men are now working night and day on the Hal Roach lot. Numbered among the lightning wits of the Hal Roach story staff are several former Los Angeles newspapermen. The entire list includes Hal Conklin, Nick Barrows, Malcolm Stewart Boylan, James N. Gruen, Ted Paramore, Carl Harbaugh, Marcel de Sano and Edward Flannigan.

Reports from Jackman, Nevada, where the second starring venture of Rex, King of Wild Horses, is in its twelfth week of production under Fred Jackman's direction, indicate that "Black Thunder" will be one of the most spectacular outdoor screen plays of many seasons. Two weeks or more of work remains.

Glenn Tryon, Charley Chase, "Our Gang" and the Spat Family are all busy on new pictures, directed respectively by James W. Horne, Leo McCarey, Robert McGowan and Jay A. Howe.

Warner Bros. Will Release Three February Pictures

THREE pictures are on the Warner Bros.' program for release in February. They are "On Thin Ice," an adaptation of "The Dear Pretender," by Alice Ross Colver; "The Man Without a Conscience," from the play by Max Kretzer and "The Bridge of Sighs," by Charles K. Harris.

"On Thin Ice" was adapted for the screen by Darryl Francis Zanuck and directed by Mal St. Clair. It has an all-star cast including Tom Moore, Edith Roberts and William Russell, supported by Theodore von Eltz, Wilfred North, Gertrude Robinson, Jimmie Quinn and Herbert Spencer Griswold.

Hope Loring and Louis Lighton made the screen version of "The Man Without a Conscience" and James Flood directed it. Another superb cast interprets the roles, including Willard Louis in the title role, with Irene Rich playing opposite him. The support includes Helen Dunbar, June Marlowe, John Patrick, Robert Agnew, William Orlamond, Kate Price, Charles McHugh and Sally Long.

"The Bridge of Sighs" was directed by Phil Rosen and the screen adaptation was made by Hope Loring and Louis Lighton from Charles K. Harris' famous song. In the cast are Dorothy Mackaill, Creighton Hale, Richard Tucker, Alec B. Francis and Ralph Lewis.

With the three releases next month and several to be distributed in March, all of the Warner Bros. product for this season will be released and the company ready to proceed on its new program.

New Sennett Comedies

Interesting Cast in New Mack Sennett Film in Production for Pathe

An interesting cast is at work this week on the Mack Sennett lot in a new two-reel comedy being directed by Eddie Cline. Alice Day is being featured in the picture, with Raymond McKee playing the male lead. Barbara Tenant has an important role, and "Sunshine" Hart and Jack Cooper complete the cast.

With the return of Madeline Hurlock from a holiday vacation spent with her folks in Federalsburg, Maryland, work has been started by director Del Lord on a new comedy with Miss Hurlock as the leading comedienne. Miss Hurlock while in the East scoured the shops for the latest things in vamping equipment.

In addition to this, two comedies were completed this week on the Mack Sennett lot featuring Ralph Graves. Prints of these comedies are now being rushed East to the Pathe Home Office. The first picture was directed by Eddie Cline under the title of "The Beloved Bozo" and carries a supporting cast consisting of Alice Day, Marvin Lobach, Vernon Dent, William McCall and Eugene Gilbert and Art Rowlands.

The second Ralph Graves comedy, "Bashful Jim," also directed by Eddie Cline, has Alice Day, William McCall and Marvin Lobach in the cast.

Popular on "Main Street"

Three Big Fox Productions on Broadway at the Same Time

For the second time in three months Broadway witnessed the unusual sight of seeing the offerings of one producing company taking up the featured place on the bills of three of the most important theatres along the New York rialto.

The company to attain this unusual honor is Fox Film Corporation and it was brought about when the B. S. Moss Broadway Theatre, booked Tom Mix in "The Deadwood Coach" to be its featured attraction for the week beginning January 18, thereby supplementing the Fox Broadway presentations "The Iron Horse" and "The Dancers" playing at the Lyric and Central Theatres, respectively.

The last time the Fox company had a triumvirate of pictures on Broadway the same Moss house was responsible for it and the lineup was as follows: At the Broadway, George O'Brien in "The Roughneck," at the Lyric, "The Iron Horse," and at the Central "The Last Man on Earth."

Berman in Los Angeles

General Sales Manager of F. B. O. Predicts Biggest Film Year in 1925

Completing a tour of the thirty-five exchanges in various key cities of the country, Harry M. Berman, general sales manager of Film Booking Offices, arrived in Los Angeles, convinced that the present year would see a big increase in the motion picture industry particularly in Hollywood, with a large amount of new outside capital invested in the business, a high-pressure production, and a consequent increase in the employment of film stars, directors, artisans and all the personnel of the studios.

"The country at large seems to be on the threshold of a business boom which I believe will be unparalleled in the United States, even in the halcyon days of 1919," said Mr. Berman. "This fact and the undoubted response which the public is giving motion pictures and all other forms of entertainment at the present time, indicate that production among many concerns, particularly the independents, will be the largest of any year."

Mr. Berman reports that the market for independent pictures is active, and he believes that with the right kind of product no independent ought to complain of sales during the coming year; and that the public itself will support enthusiastically pictures that really entertain.

"Percy" Gets Big Praise

Charles Ray's Second Production for Pathe Given Unusually High Rating

"Percy," Charles Ray's second production for Pathe release to be produced under the auspices of the Thomas H. Ince Studios, is destined to rank with such past successes if the verdict of Pathe's Film Reviewing Committee is to be accepted as criterion of the box-office merits of this new production.

After viewing "Percy" at a private screening last week, the Pathe committee returned an almost unanimous report of "Good," which represents the highest possible rating that can be accorded a picture by this body. "Percy" is one of the few productions that has secured such a report from the committee during the past few years.

Emphasis was laid by many of the members on the marked resemblance of the role played by Charles Ray in "Percy" to the roles of his bygone successes, which won for him nation-wide fame as the screen's foremost exponent of rural characterizations.

Charles Murray, in the comedy role of an itinerant preacher and gambler, gives what some members of the Pathe committee have described to be the funniest performance of this screen comedian's career.

"Percy" is an adaptation of William H. Hamby's novel, "The Desert Fiddler," and was directed by R. William Neill. Barbara Bedford appears opposite Charles Ray.

Whities and Grant Signed

Two important long term contracts were signed last week on the Hal Roach lot which assures the Pathe organization the appearance of Marjorie Whities and Katherine Grant in the comedies released by this organization for many months to come.

Eleanor Boardman and John Gilbert in a scene from "Wife of the Centaur," a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production.

Vitagraph's "Redeeming Sin" Acclaimed by N. Y. Critics

VITAGRAPH'S "The Redeeming Sin," signalizing Nazimova's debut as a Vitagraph star, had its premiere at the Rialto, New York, this week, and got off to a fine start. Crowds greeted the picture at the opening showings and have continued on each day following.

The production is by J. Stuart Blackton, and reviewers give this picture-maker credit for maintaining the high standard of recent Vitagraph attractions. Extracts from reviews in New York dailies follow:

Mordaunt Hall, New York Times: "J. Stuart Blackton, the director, has kept up the good work he started with 'The Clean Heart' and 'The Beloved Brute.' His settings and his command over the players are noticeable throughout. Nazimova, as Joan, is unusually effective, lithe and attractive. Otis Harlan is splendid. Carl Miller interprets his role quite flawlessly. 'The Redeeming Sin' is good entertainment."

Louella O. Pearsons, New York American: "Nazimova is a wonder. She is marvelous as Joan. She is gorgeous."

George E. Bradley, Morning Telegraph: "'The Redeeming Sin' will please. Lou Tellegen is most convincing, and Nazimova is entirely pleasing and good to look upon. She interprets her part with understanding, and makes Joan, child of the slums, entirely plausible and likable. The story is actionful. Mr. Blackton has surrounded the principals with an excellent cast, and the sets are marvelously beautiful. Carl Miller is ideally cast and gives a thorough performance. Otis Harlan is over capable."

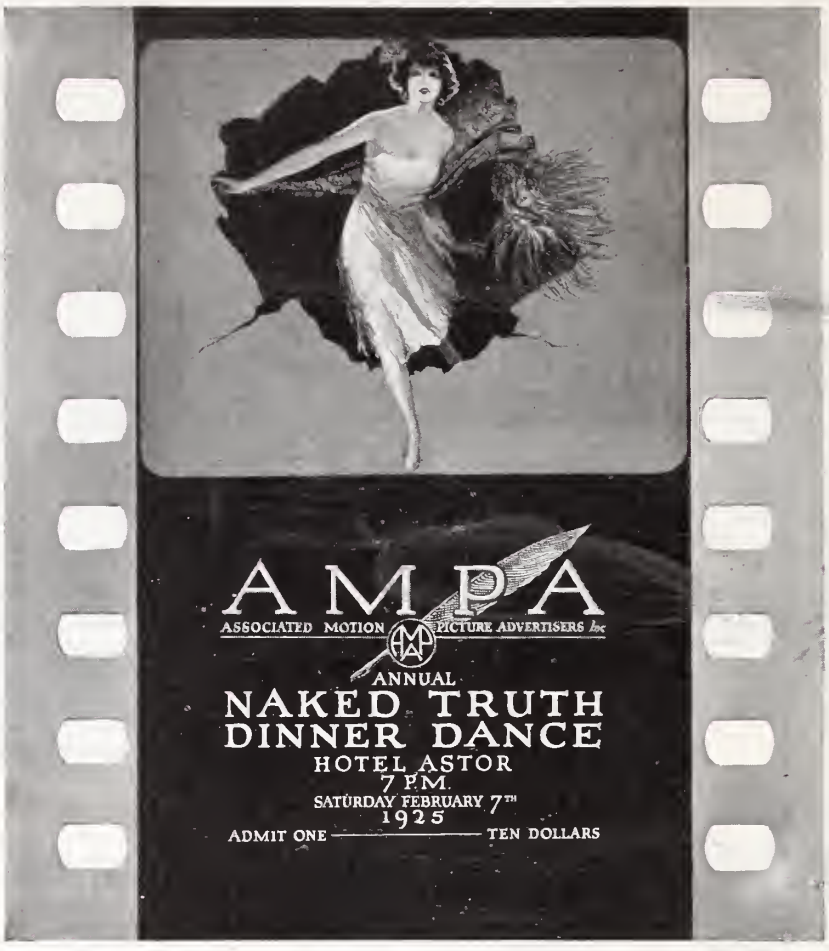
Paramount Makes New Find

Another newcomer to the screen is being groomed for important roles by Paramount, who have brought forward Betty Bronson, Frances Howard, Jane Winton, Lillian Rich, Mary Brian and other players previously unknown. This time the fortunate person is not a girl but a young Englishman named Anthony Jowitt.

Jowitt, who is considered by the company's production officials as a promising find, has never before been seen on the screen. Before coming to this country three months ago, he played on the stage in London with Gladys Cooper in "Diplomacy" and in another English play, "Not in Our Stars."

ANDERSEN & LAMASURE
PEERLESS FILM CO.
MOTION PICTURE PRODUCERS
Specialists in
Commercial and Educational Subjects
Developing, Printing and Titling
MATHER BLDG.
Franklin 2698, 910 G St. N. W., Washington, D. C.

—get acquainted with this:



There are only 950 of these available
(Water-marked on the back, non-counterfeitable)

It's a reproduction of the ticket to the

AMPA

Naked Truth Dinner Dance

Where jazz gets the razz in a cyclone of thrills!

Sign here:

I'd like a close-up view of above, so please send.....

tickets for which I enclose $..... to Name .....

Address .....

Properly filled in, this coupon will receive the earnest attention of S. Charles Einfeld, 383 Madison Ave.

Wallace Beery, Alice Terry and Conway Tearle in scenes from the Reginald Barker production, "The Great Divide," a Metro-Goldwyn picture.

Honors for Rosenbluh

Head of Fox New York Exchange Guest at Astor Luncheon

Louis Rosenbluh, executive of the Greater New York Exchange of the Fox Film Corporation, was the guest of his associates at a testimonial luncheon last Saturday at the Hotel Astor, to celebrate his birthday and incidentally his twenty-first year with the Fox Film Corporation, which is holding its anniversary this week with programs in the majority of theatres throughout the city.

I. J. Schmertz, manager of the exchange, and Jack Levy, assistant manager, had charge of the luncheon, at which Mr. Rosenbluh was presented with a handsomely bound edition of the first and only English translation of the Talmud. After luncheon the entire exchange force attended a matinee performance at Keith's Palace.

Mr. Schmertz was not overlooked by his associates, receiving a handsome cabinet set.

Warner Franchise Holders

New York Conference to Take Up 1925-26 Production Plans

For the purpose of talking over next year's program with Warner Bros., a number of the firm's franchise holders have been in town this week and there have been conferences every day with H. M. and Abe Warner. So much is pending in the Warner Bros. organization which takes time to clear up, that the company's expected announcement concerning next year's plans has been of necessity delayed.

Among the men in town this week are J. F. Cubberly, of the F. R. Films, Minneapolis; Willian C. Underwood, of Specialty Films, Dallas; William Shapiro, of Boston; Harry Lobliner and Eddie Silverman, of Chicago, and L. K. Brin, of Seattle.

Sam Warner has gone to the West Coast to be at the studio, while the finishing touches are put on this year's production, and give his brother Jack a chance to get away on a little vacation. On the return of Jack Warner work will get under way on the first picture of next year's program, which will be Kathleen Norris' "Rose of the World."

Off to Cuba

Sering D. Wilson, President and general Manager, and Clay Davis, Production Manager, of Wilson-Wetherald, Inc., will leave next Monday for Havana, Cuba, to start the ball rolling for the shooting of "The White Mice," a Wilson-Wetherald Production, directed by E. H. Griffith.

Photography Completed on Five Big First National Productions

PHOTOGRAPHY has recently been completed on five early First National releases, and a sixth is rapidly nearing completion.

Director Alfred E. Green has put the finishing touches to the photography on Colleen Moore's second starring vehicle for First National, "Sally," from the book of Guy Bolton's famous musical comedy success, produced on the stage by Florenz Ziegfeld.

Edwin Carewe has completed "My Son," from Martha Stanley's stage play, with Nazimova starred and with Jack Pickford in an important part. Editing and titling is now in process.

M. C. Levee's production of "One Year to Live," from the John Hunter novel of that title, widely serialized in big city newspapers, has entered the editing stage.

E. M. Asher, manager of Corinne Griffith Productions, Inc., is on the final stages of photography on Miss Griffith's next picture, "Declasse," from Zoe Akin's play. Upon completing it he will start work on Hartley Manners' celebrated "National Anthem."

In the East, First National has completed photography on "One Way Street," featuring Anna Q. Nilsson and Ben Lyon, and "I Want My Man," from Struthers Burt's novel, "The Interpreter's House," with Milton Sills and Doris Kenyon featured.

Chapin with Daniels Again

Alice Chapin has been added to the cast of "The Crowded Hour," Bebe Daniels' next Paramount production now being made at the Long Island studio under the direction of E. Mason Hopper.

Miss Chapin supported Miss Daniels in her current film, "Argentine Love."

Start Work on Pathe Serial

Under the direction of George B. Seitz, actual camera work has been started on the Patheserial "Black Caesar's Clan" at Miami.

This is the story that was adapted from the famous and popular novel by Albert Payson Terhune, the screen version of which will feature Allene Ray, star of several recent Patheserials. George B. Seitz is directing from a scenario written by Frank Leon Smith. The supporting cast is headed by Walter Miller as the lead, and Frank Lackteen as the principal heavy, aided by Ivan Linov and Frank Wunderlee.

A story of every day people for every day people, human, heart-tugging—

EAST OF BROADWAY

A PAUL SCHOFIELD PRODUCTION

WITH

OWEN MOORE · MARY CARR · RALPH LEWIS AND MARGUERITE DE LA MOTTE

DIRECTED BY WM. K. HOWARD

STORY BY RICHARD CONNELL

ASSOCIATED EXHIBITORS

Ben Turpin in "The Wild Goose Chaser," a Mack Sennett comedy released by Pathe.

Fox Announces Number of Changes in Release Schedule

CHANGES in Fox official release schedule affecting almost every one of the special productions remaining to be released by that company as part of its 1924-25 program, and which sets back into February a number of pictures scheduled for January release, are announced by that producing concern.

Chief among these is the changing of the release dates on "Dick Turpin," from January 18 to February 1. This is the most expensive production in which Tom Mix has ever appeared and shows the Fox star in a role entirely different from anything else he has ever essayed, that of an Eighteenth Century bandit whose deeds of daring are known to every schoolboy.

Other important changes have the effect of setting back the release date of "Folly of Vanity," a production featuring Betty Blythe, from January 4 to February 8, and "The Hunted Woman," featuring Seena Owen and Earl Schenck, from January 25 to February 15.

The entire list of productions scheduled to be released in February have been set back until March. These productions are: "Tainted Souls," an adaptation from the novel "Sister of Jezebel"; Zane Grey's "Riders of the Purple Sage" with Tom Mix, "She Wolves," "Everyman's Wife," and "Hunting Wild Animals in Hollywood."

"Tainted Souls" will be released March 1, and "Riders of the Purple Sage" March 8. The exact release dates of the other productions will be announced later.

Elaine Hammerstein Signed

It is announced that Harry Cohn has signed Elaine Hammerstein to play the lead in "After Business Hours" the eighth and last of the present series of Columbia Pictures.

Scene from "The Broadway Butterfly," a Warner Brothers production.

Pathe Schedule for February 1

Fred Stone and Rex Beach Are Shown in Grantland Rice Sportlight Film

Fred Stone, the famous stage comedian and Rex Beach, the popular author, figure prominently in the Pathe program for the week of February 8 in an issue of the Grantland Rice "Sportlight" series. Among the comedy units of the program Pathe offers an "Our Gang" subject and a two reel Mack Sennett Star Comedy featuring Ralph Graves.

The well-known legitimate comedian and author of stories of the great outdoors appear in a Grantland Rice "Sportlight" entitled "By Hook or Crook," which was produced entirely around their recent fishing trip to the Northwoods. As most sport lovers know, Rex Beach is a product of the great open spaces, but very few people know that the comedian of "The Wizard of Oz" fame, also wields a wicked rod and reel. "By Hook or Crook" is considered one of the best pictures yet turned out in the Grantland Rice "Sportlight" series.

The comedy entertainment on the Pathe program is headed by Ralph Graves in a two-reel Mack Sennett Star Comedy, entitled "The Beloved Bozo"; and by the fifth release of the sixth series of "Our Gang," entitled "Circus Fever."

The dramatic entertainment of the Pathe program is supplied by the eighth chapter of the Patheserial "Galloping Hoofs." The title of this chapter is "Ambushed."

The second installment of "The Prettiest Girl I Know" series is the leading subject in Pathe Review No. 6. This installment is entitled "The Movie Actress."

Aesop's Film Fables visualizes the cartoonist's conception of "A Transatlantic Flight" as conducted by the funny little figures of this famous group of cartoon characters.

Topics of the Day No. 6 and Pathe News, Nos. 14 and 15 complete the Pathe program for the week.

F. B. O. Changes Titles

The titles of two F. B. O. feature pictures have been changed. "Sudden Riches" is the new title of "Drusilla with a Million," Elizabeth Cooper's novel which Associated Arts Corporation made for F. B. O. distribution, featuring Mary Carr, Kenneth Harlan and Priscilla Bonner. F. Harmon Weight directed "Sudden Riches" from a continuity by Philip Lonergan and O. E. Goebel. Evelyn Brent's fourth starring vehicle for Gothic-F. B. O. is now known as "Forbidden Cargo."

Milton Sills and Ruth Clifford in First National's "As Man Desires."

"Rex" and "Lady"

Hal Roach Studios Assembling Picture Featuring Equine Actors

The entire editing staff of the Hal Roach Studios is now busy on the rushes of the feature production recently filmed on the deserts of Nevada, featuring "Rex," the equine star of Pathe's screen success, "King of Wild Horses." The title has not yet been decided upon.

Fred Jackman, who has been directing a company of players at Jackman, Nevada, for the past two months, returned to the studios last week and is supervising the assembling of the picture. For the first time in the history of motion pictures a genuine drama interspersing love interest with real comedy touches will be enacted on the screen by an animal cast. Human characters enter into the story, but the major portion of the action is said to be carried by the animal members of the cast.

According to advance information from the Coast, in addition to the principal roles enacted by "Rex" and a beautiful, speckled-grey mare known as "Lady," the production carries several comedy roles also enacted by dumb brutes. The featured four-footed comedian is a small burro that wandered into camp and was immediately adopted by the company under the name of "Komedy Relief."

The story of the picture is based on a rivalry between two stallions for the leadership of the herd and the hand (or should we say hoof?) of "Lady."

"Who Cares" to Be Big Picture

Work on "Who Cares" the big Columbia Pictures special which David Kirkland is making for C. B. C. is progressing rapidly. Nothing will be spared to make it as attractive a picture as possible. The story itself was written by Cosmo Hamilton and published under the same title as the picture. It has run through a number of editions and has been read by millions in the novel form.

The cast itself will insure a great part in its success. It is headed by William Haines and Dorothy Devore. With them are Wanda Hawley, Charlie Murray, Ralph Lewis, Beverly Bayne, Lloyd Whitlock, Viola Vale, Vera Lewis, William Austin and Carrie Clark Ward. The foregoing are all names which have been before the public eye for a number of years. They will make an attractive lineup for the exhibitor as well as the public.

"Who Cares" is the sixth of the Columbia Pictures series of eight specials.

Plan Big Publicity Drive on Jackie Coogan's "Rag Man"

WITH the release of Jackie Coogan's fourth Metro-Goldwyn production "The Rag Man," the Coogan publicity forces and Metro-Goldwyn's press department are co-operating on an extensive advertising and publicity campaign.

Special advertising campaigns have been prepared for the key city releases on "The Rag Man." Manufacturers of Jackie Coogan merchandise are working with Metro-Goldwyn in the exploitation of the picture. The Kelly Peanut Company, the largest distributors of peanut products in the country, have prepared a large budget for advertising the Coogan brand nationally, the advertising to break simultaneously with the release of "The Rag Man."

Larry Weingartem, publicity director of the Coogan Company who is now in New York announces that the McNaught Syndicate are releasing every Sunday commencing January 26, a half page layout of story and pictures of Jackie's European diary.

The Boston Post, Syracuse Herald, Buffalo Times, Cleveland News, Detroit News, Cincinnati Times Star, Rochester Herald and ten other large daily and Sunday papers are buying the service which is to run over a period of twelve weeks.

Photoplay Magazine is also running currently a diary of Jackie's trip abroad and rotogravure editors all over the country have been supplied with a series of photos—"Around Europe with Jackie." All of this story and art material has been timed to break simultaneously with the release of "The Rag Man" in key cities.

Warner Bros. Casts

Casting for three new productions was completed at Warner Bros.' Hollywood studio this week. The players in "Eve's Lover" include Irene Rich and Bert Lytell, Willard Louis, Clara Bow, John Steppling, Arthur Hoyt and Lou Harvey. The leading artists in "The Eleventh Virgin" are Helene Chadwick, Clive Brook, Helen Dunbar, John Harron and Dale Fuller. The complete cast for the new untitled picture to be directed by William Beaudine consists of Dorothy Devore, Matt Moore, Ward Crane, Wilfred Lucas, Virginia Marshall, Bruce Guerin and Zasu Pitts.

What is the price of a good time for a young and beautiful girl, if she is in with the wrong people?

The PRICE of a PARTY

with

HOPE HAMPTON · MARY ASTOR · HARRISON FORD · ARTHUR EDMUND CAREW AND DAGMAR GODOWSKY

PRODUCED BY HOWARD ESTABROOK

DIRECTED BY CHAS. GIBLYN

ASSOCIATED EXHIBITORS

Underwood of Texas Buys Territory on Artclass Films

LOUIS WEISS, executive head of Weiss Brothers' Artclass Pictures Corporation, announces that the first territorial sale has been closed on both the Buffalo Bill, Jr., and Buddy Roosevelt 1925 series, each consisting of eight five reel Western action-dramas of the most modern type, with W. G. Underwood, president of the Specialty Film Company, 1914 Main Street, Dallas, Texas. The territory sold includes the states of Texas, Oklahoma and Arkansas.

Mr. Underwood, who has been handling the current Buffalo Bill, Jr. and Buddy Roosevelt series in Texas, Oklahoma and Arkansas, through the Dallas, Little Rock and Oklahoma City branches of the Specialty Film Company, made a special trip to New York to arrange the details of the deal.

Many offers have already reached Weiss Brothers' Artclass Pictures, it is said, inquiring about the territory on both the Buffalo Bill, Jr. and the Buddy Roosevelt 1925 series, which will be made on a considerably more elaborate and costly scale in point of story and production value, than were the introductory features. According to Louis Weiss, however, all the exchanges now handling these popular thrillo-action dramas are to have first chance at the new series, before any other offers, no matter how attractive, will be considered.

The first features of the Buffalo Bill, Jr. and Buddy Roosevelt 1925 series, which will be produced on the Coast under the supervision of Lester F. Scott, Jr., it is announced will be ready for delivery early in April and it is expected that all territory will be closed not later than March 15th.

"After Business Hours," New C. B. C.

Joe Brandt announces that the story written by Ethel Watts Mumford and published in the Hearst International Magazine will be released under the title of "After Business Hours." This story was the subject of much comment when it was published.

Doug. Chooses Mary Astor

Douglas Fairbanks has selected Mary Astor as leading lady for his picturization of "Don Q," according to an announcement just issued from the Pickford-Fairbanks Studios.

In "Don Q" Miss Astor will be seen as a Spanish senorita whose beauty and charm urge the hero through many thrilling and romantic adventures.

Reed with Paramount

Luther Reed, formerly with Cosmopolitan pictures, has taken temporary quarters at the Paramount Long Island studio where he is adapting John Monk Saunder's story, "The Shock Punch", for the screen. This story will be Richard Dix next picture.

Mack Sennett Outlines Program of Comedies for Coming Year

THE slogan for the Mack Sennett studios for the coming year is "Five Reel Features Boiled Down To Two Reels." This slogan will be the keynote of the Pathe comedy producer for his 1925 output.

Harry Langdon will make several more series of comedies from special stories prepared for him under the personal supervision of Mack Sennett.

Eddie Cline will make short screen stories, featuring Alice Day, with a strong romantic theme interwoven. Many prominent actors and actresses now in the dramatic field will appear in these two-reel comedies throughout the year. Raymond McKee and Barbara Tennant have already been engaged for the first of this series.

Ralph Graves will continue to be featured in the young American youth type of comedy, under the direction of Lloyd Bacon. He will be supported by some of filmland's most beautiful debutantes, including Natalie Kingston and Thelma Parr.

Del Lord's troupe of comedians will turn out several series of fast and snappy comedies for which this director is noted. Billy Bevan, Madeline Hurlock, Andy Clyde and J. J. Richardson will be featured in these Sennett specials.

Additions have been made to all departments at the Sennett Studio to handle the increased production activity outlined for the new year. Under the supervision of John A. Waldron, titles will be written by Felix Adler and A. H. Geibler. The scenario department, in charge of Arthur Ripley, is composed of Jefferson Moffatt, Frank Capra, Myron Foy, Clyde and Hal Yeates. Lonnie Dorsa is assisting Lee N. Hugunon in charge of production details and casting.

Fox Comedies for February

Fox Film Corporation's comedy releasees for the month of February will include, one Imperial, two Sunshines, a Van Bibber and a Monkey. The Imperial is titled "Blue Blood" and will be released February 1. The Sunshines are "The Mysterious Stranger" and "Tons of Trouble" released February 8th and 22d, respectively. The Van Bibber is "A Spanish Romeo," and the release date February 15. The monkey comedy "So This Is Art" will be released February 8.

Confer on British Rights

F. Watts of Pathe Frere, England, is in town and has conferred with Sering D. Wilson of Sering Wilson and Company about the exclusive rights on his short reels for the whole of the United Kingdom.

Upon leaving, Mr. Watts took some samples of the Redhead Comedies, the Kolor Komics and The Wonder Book. According to reports these comedies, done in the famous Kelley Color are greatly in demand and are creating a sensation wherever they are shown.

Sering D. Wilson and Company maintains offices in London, Paris and Berlin.

A scene in "Peter Pan," which Herbert Brenon produced for Paramount.

Fox to Release Nine Big Pictures During February

NINE dramatic productions, one educational short subject, three comedies and the usual two-a-week issues of Fox News reel, will be released by Fox Film Corporation during the month of February, according to the schedule just made public by the producing company. The dramatic productions include one giant special, four specials, three star series productions, and a William Farnum re-issue.

The giant special to be released during the short month is "Hunting Wild Animals in Hollywood," a thrilling burlesque novelty from an original story by Edward Moran. It will be directed by Thomas Buckingham.

The special productions include: "She Wolves," a story of Paris life, directed by Maurice Elvey; "Tainted Souls," a John Ford production from a story by Ada Graham; "Everyman's Wife," an Emmett Flynn production from a story by E. C. Hill, and "Riders of the Purple Sage," starring Tom Mix, from the popular novel by Zane Grey.

Lynn Reynolds directed the Mix February release from a scenario by Edfrid Bingham. Mabel Ballin has the leading feminine role opposite the western star, with Marion Nixon, playing an important ingenue part. Others in the cast are Beatrice Burnham, Arthur Morrison, Seessel Ann Johnson, Warner Oland, Fred Kohler, Charles Newton, Joe Ric'soh, Charles Le Moyne, Harold Goodwin, Dawn O'Day and Wilfred Lucas.

Shirley Mason, Buck Jones and Edmund Lowe, each contribute a picture to the star series releases for February. Miss Mason's production is "The Stardust Trail," the Jones release is "The Trail Rider," while Lowe's vehicle is "Once in a Liftime."

Edmund Mortimer directed Miss Mason's release from a story by Frederick and Fanny Hatton, with the following supporting cast: Bryant Washburn, male lead; Thomas R. Mill, Richard Tucker, Merta Sterling, and Shannon Day.

"The Trail Rider," the Jones release was directed by W. S. Van Dyke, Thomas Dixon, Jr. wrote the scenario from a story by George Washington Ogden. Nancy Deaver has the feminine lead in this production. Others in the cast are: Carl Stockdale, Jack McDonald, George Berrel, Jacques Rollens and Will Walling.

Lowe's February release was directed by Chester Bennett and is from the pen of Max Brand. Barbara Bedford has the leading feminine role while an important heavy part is played by Walter McGrail. Alec Francis lends Lowe his support in a vital role in this production.

The Fox comedy releases for February include one of the Richard Harding Davis "Van Bibber" stories, "A Spanish Romeo," a comedy "So This Is Art," and an Imperial "Blue Blood."

"The Violin Speaks" is the title of the Educational short subject to be released by Fox in February while the William Farnum re-issue is "Drag Harlan."

John Gilbert and Aileen Pringle in a scene from Metro's "Wife of the Centaur."

Logue with Warner Bros.

Added to Scenario Department—Von Eanger Returns to Lubitsch

In preparation for their new season's output, Warner Bros. began building up their scenario staff this week with the addition of Charles Logue, widely and well known as a scenarist who has turned out many entertaining pictures of box-office calibre since the early days of the industry. It was Mr. Logue who wrote "My Four Years in Germany," from Ambassador James W. Gerard's book of the same name, produced by Warner Bros. in 1917. Mr. Logue has written a score or more of original scenarois, as well as making productions on his own account. He is a former New York newspaper man and has had a wide experience in every branch of motion pictures.

Charles Von Eanger, cameraman, under contract to Warner Bros., is turning the camera for Ernst Lubitsch's new Warner Bros. picture, now in production, for which no title has been selected. Van Eanger has been off the Warner lot for some time, having been loaned to Universal for "The Phantom of the Opera," and to Lasky for "Forbidden Paradise" with Pola Negri. The cinematographer has been associated with Lubitsch for a long time, his last work for the director being with Warner Bros.' "Three Women."

B. P. Schulberg Is Preparing New Series of Productions

B. P. SCHULBERG is fast completing his production schedule for this year with a minimum of two units working continuously on the coast. The screen version of David Belasco's play, "The Boomerang," featuring Anita Stewart and Bert Lytell, will be finished within the next two weeks, and work is progressing toward the completion of "The Mansion of Aching Hearts."

The next series of pictures to follow these will be "When a Woman Reaches Forty" and "My Lady's Lips." Gasnier, who has been devoting himself to the making of "The Boomerang" for the last ten weeks, will take over the direction of "When a Woman Reaches Forty." This story is from the pen of Royal A. Baker, motion picture censor for the City of Detroit. Preliminary casting is now being done.

"My Lady's Lips," of which Eve Unsell is author, will be directed by James P. Hogan. This picture will be the third Hogan production for Schulberg, the others being the sensational. "Capital Punishment" and "The Mansion of Aching Hearts."

A new and greater Barry in a new and better picture ---

WESLEY BARRY

in Battling Bunyan

WOULD YOU, KNOWING NOTHING OF PRIZE-FIGHTING, GET INTO THE RING WITH A CHAMPION AT SO MUCH PER ROUND, JUST TO GET MONEY TO GO INTO BUSINESS AND WIN THE GIRL YOU LOVED ? THIS KID DID !

PRODUCED BY CROWN PRODUCTIONS INC.

ASSOCIATED EXHIBITORS

Pathe Celebrates Anniversary of Its Better Serial Movement

PATHE celebrates this week the anniversary of the launching of its "Greater and Better Serials" movement, which had its inception with the release of "The Way of A Man" on January 20, 1924.

In a formal statement issued at that time from the Pathe home office and heralding the new policy, it was pointed out that during the preceding term a definite and growing opposition to the dime-novel, blood-and-thunder type of chapter-production had been noted by those in charge of the Patheserial department.

Steps were taken in the fall of 1923 designed to meet the demand for a new type of serial fare that would embody more plausible themes, more logically developed stories, and more genuinely human characterizations without loss of dramatic interest or suspense. At the same time plans were laid to back up this better type of story material with production of feature quality and proportions and casts of real box-office standing.

Pathe's official announcement of its new serial policy was met at the beginning with severe criticism from different quarters. It was maintained that the application of such a policy to the serial market was doomed to failure from the start because it was contrary to all serial conditions built up from the beginning of the business. A report covering the Patheserial activities of the past year just compiled completely vindicates the revolutionary steps taken in the serial field at the beginning of 1924 and has the result of throwing all the old serial traditions and notions in the discard. Concerning the performances of "The Way of A Man" during the past year the report has the following to say:

"That this policy was based on sound judgment has been amply proven by the twelve months' results on 'The Way of A Man,' as this serial has secured bigger distribution than any serial ever released, even including the most successful of the old Pearl White serials of years gone by when serial distribution was thought to be at its zenith."

The report further points out that the wisdom of the Patheserial policy, inaugurated a year ago, is also substantiated by the fact that representative circuits and houses in all sections of the country are now presenting Patheserials, who never before billed a chapter production or who had abandoned the use of serials five and six years ago.

The truly remarkable progress made by the Patheserial during the past year under its policy of "Greater and Better Serials" is explained by the unswerving fidelity, in all departments of serial production, to the standards then laid down. Feature stories, feature production, and feature casts have been consistently sought after and procured. In the lineup of the 1924. Patheserial releases have been numbered such productions as "The Way of A Man," adapted from Emerson Hough's famous novel of the early West; "Leatherstocking," serialized from James Fenimore Cooper's immortal "Leatherstocking Tales"; "Into the Net," an original screen story written by Richard E. Enright, Commissioner of Police of New York City; and "Galloping Hoofs," a romance of the race-track, which is the current release.

Fred Niblo, director-general of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picturization of "Ben Hur," receives a visit on the set from two Fascisti cavalrymen. The production is being filmed in Italy.

Clara Bow, whose best work to date has been in Schulberg's special, "Capital Punishment."

In production at the present time are "Idaho," which is nearing completion at the C. W. Patton Studios on the West Coast. Also under way at the present time is a serial version of Albert Payson Terhune's well-known novel, "Black Caesar's Clan." Represented on the schedule of Patheserial productions for the forthcoming season are: "The Record Breaker" from an original script by Paul M. Bryan, a serial as yet untitled, dealing with the field of sport and to present a nationally known athlete as the star; a chapter-play to be adapted from the book, "The Green Archer," by Edgar Wallace, the popular English novelist; while negotiations are in active progress for the acquisition of further material of the same sterling calibre.

The statement issued this week from the Pathe home office in connection with the anniversary of its "Greater and Better Serials" policy declares that the new season will see a continuance of the serial policy pursued during the past year. The high standards set will be rigidly adhered to in point of story material, production and cast personnel.

Schulberg on Way East

To Discuss Next Year's Program; Last of Season's Pictures in Works

B. P. Schulberg will arrive from the coast the first week in February to discuss production plans for next year with J. G. Bachmann, vice-president and general manager of distribution of B. P. Schulberg Productions. Final negotiations for the screen rights to a number of successful plays and books will be closed during Mr. Schulberg's stay in New York.

Complete announcement of next season's program for B. P. Schulberg Productions will then be made. The exact number of releases it not yet known but it has already been announced that the Schulberg schedule for 1925-26 will comprise properties such as Bronson Howard's famous stage piece, "Shenandoah" and Wallace Irwin's best selling novel, "Lew Tyler's Wives" recently acquired by that company.

JACKIE COOGAN

As he appears in his latest Metro-Goldwyn picture, "The Rag Man."

"Cracker Jack" Progressing

Word Received From Company in Florida Report Fast Work on New Hines Feature

The latest despatches received at the office of East Coast Films, from C. C. Burr, who is at Miami, Fla., supervising production of Johnny Hines' latest "The Cracker Jack," indicate that despite the unusual number of rainy days encountered in the famous winter resort, unusual progress has been made on the picture, due to the fact that the entire cast has been putting in some hard licks on location from early morning until late evenings.

Particularly interesting is the fact that permission was obtained to take over an old bottle works on the outskirts of Miami, which was converted into a pickle factory by the technical staff.

The complete front of the building was repainted, a grass plot laid out in front of the set, a driveway built and a huge sign with letters four feet high was built and placed on the roof of the factory.

Interesting also is the fact that after lengthy negotiations, the Hines company was granted permission to use the Masonic Temple in Miami as one of the important locales in "The Cracker Jack."

Complete production in the south should be completed this week, with the remote possibility that the entire company will return to New York to begin work on the interiors at the Tec-Art Studios no later than February 6.

Doug Chooses New Cameraman

Henry Sharp, for more than six years chief cameraman at the Thomas H. Ince Studios, will shoot first camera for Douglas Fairbanks on his forthcoming production "Don Q".

The picture is to be a romance of sunny Spain, with all the colorful Spanish settings that add lustre to stories of this type, and Doug declares he has found in Sharp a cameraman who can get the proper effects as to light and shadow in the Spanish story. Production work will start within a few days, probably on location.

"Fox Varieties" Name of New One Reel Product by Fox Film

"FOX VARIETIES" is the name selected by officials of Fox Film Corporation for the new one-reel entertainment pictures to be released by that company beginning April 12.

These short subject reels, which will become an integral part of the Fox company's production and distribution, will be made strictly for their entertainment value containing as subject matter interesting topics gathered here and there from the world we live in.

"Fox Varieties" are the result of a careful study of the needs of the better class theatres endeavoring to keep their presentations 100 per cent interesting and yet get away from an all dramatic program. They will be non-dramatic entertainments of the highest quality and character.

The first of the new one-reelers to be released will be a typical one titled "White Paper," which will show the evolution of a newspaper from a log of wood. Starting with scenes at the streams where the logs are directed to the pulp mills, it will depict each step in the manufacture of white paper and its final destination in the presses of one of the large Metropolitan dailies.

"Fox Varieties" will replace the Fox Educational Entertainments as a part of that producing company's annual output. In this conection it is stated that while the subject matter of the new one-reelers will be about the same as was contained in the Educational reels the fundamental principle in back of all the "Varieties" releases will be entertainment.

New Pathe Serial Listed

"Idaho," Featuring Vivian Rich and Mahlon Hamilton, to Be Released March 1

March has been set by Pathe for the release of their latest serial "Idaho" now in the course of production on the Coast, and which will be completed some time next month.

The first three chapters of the ten chapter photoplay featuring Mahlon Hamilton and Vivian Rich arrived in New York from the Coast last week. The production calibre as set forth in the first six reels destines this production to be one of the best serials released by the Pathe organization and represents an entirely new departure in the field of serial production.

The story of the picture, which was adapted from the story "The Girl Vigilante" by Theodore Burrell, the well known author, deals with the early West in the days that Idaho was a rendezvous for the bad men of the country.

The release of "Idaho" will follow the tenth and final chapter of "Galloping Hoofs."

Compare!

Compare the actual performance of

PATHE NEWS

with the claims and the performance of any other.

Compare the quality of every number with the quality of any other.

Remember the numbers of times when you've had it in the Pathe News days and weeks before it was in any other. In one instance a "scoop" was claimed by another news reel six months after it was shown in the Pathe News!

Performace is the only thing that counts; performance day after day, week after week, month after month.

Compare!* That's all!

"Thief of Bagdad" Gets Big Ovation in Ottawa

THE regular release season for Douglas Fairbanks' "The Thief of Bagdad" was given a notable start in the Dominion of Canada with a two weeks engagement at the Regent Theatre, a Famous Players Canadian Corporation, Ltd., house, beginning January 17.

Ottawa was practically the only large Canadian city that had not been road-showed with "The Thief of Bagdad," and almost the only important advance publicity was that which had come in with the Montreal newspapers. This however, was highly enthusiastic and the better read public of the city was eagerly awaiting the picture. A strong campaign was put on to acquaint the general public with the exceptional features of this film, by Len Bishop, house manager, and United Artists Corporation, Ltd.

Big Advertising Space

Big advertising space was used by the Regent beginning a week ahead of the usual advance display, and billboards were generously used. The newspaper space was devoted mostly to detailed description of the spectacular achievements in "The Thief of Bagdad" and with the opening was broken out into regular display copy.

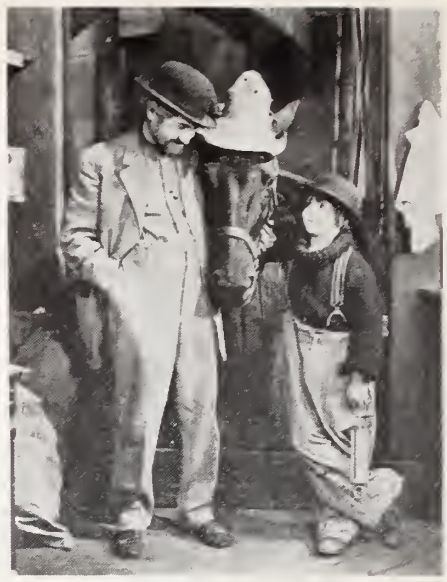
Exploitation book aids were freely utilized in the way of window tie-ups with bookstores, jewelers, and Oriental rug establishments.

The Regent Theatre was elaborately decorated for "The Thief of Bagdad" run. The attraction received official social recognition by the attendance of Lady Byng, and party, at a Wednesday matinee, the Vice-Regal participation giving the engagement considerable added eclat.

On one opening day attendance was so heavy that hundreds had to be turned away at the principal performances.

Leatrice Joy in Big Picture

Now that Leatrice Joy's retirement from screen activity is at an end, and she has returned to the hustle and bustle of the Famous Players-Lasky studio, it should interest exhibitors to know that this talented and ever popular interpreter of some of the screen's greatest classics is doing her utmost to make her first vehicle, "The Dressmaker From Paris," a personal effort worthy of the faith which her daily fan mail has proven the public has placed in her.



Max Davidson, the famous delineator of Hebrew roles, and Jackie Coogan in a scene from "The Rag Man," a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer release.

Selling State Rights On Hunt Miller Productions

THE Hunt Miller Western Productions, Inc. (H. B. Miller, president, and A. G. Steen, treasurer), will release a series of twenty-six two-reel Western productions via the State Right market. Three of the series, "A New Sheriff," "The Smoke of a .45," and a "Mad Miner," have been completed and are on view to buyers at the New York offices of the company, 1650 Broadway.

In the cast of the two-reel series are such featured players as Tom Forman, formerly leading man with Louise Huff; Claribel Campbell, leading woman in "Flaming Barriers," and well known on the legitimate stage through having been with the original "Bluebird" and "Bab" companies. G. Raymond Nye, long with William Farnum and Theda Bara in Fox productions, will be the villain of the series.

A feature of the entire group will be "Platinum King," an educated high school horse and blue ribbon winner. This horse is owned by a California minister who recently refused $75,000 for the animal.

"Judging from many requests and sales for our product," said Mr. Miller, in giving this announcement to the trade press, "I feel that the two-reel Westerns will have a great demand in the future. We have already disposed of the territories of Ohio, Michigan, the entire State of Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Kentucky. State Right buyers can be assured of the best in advertising and co-operation with the various trade journals."

Constance Talmadge (center) and Wallace McDonald in "Learning to Love," a First National picture.

Metro Picture Acclaimed

"He Who Gets Slapped," Receives High Praise From Halifax Critics

"He Who Gets Slapped," Victor Seastrom's recent Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production, adapted by Seastrom and Carey Wilson from Leonid Andreyev's dramatic sensation, has scored exceptionally in Halifax, Nova Scotia.

At the Casino Theatre there, the film was hailed by the Halifax Herald as "a really marvelous picture drama of humanity, its tears, its joys, its laughter and all its fantastic tragi-comedy." A picture that measures one hundred per cent. every moment," was this critics enthused comment which added the film "literally held spell-bound and thrilled large audiences," who "received a treat not enjoyed in many months."

JOHN F. DILLON

Selected by First National production executives to direct "Chickie," featuring Dorothy Mackaill.

Dillon to Direct "Chickie" a First National Production

AGAIN the good judgment of Richard Rowland, general manager of First National, is proven. John Francis Dillon, who has hit the box-office bullseye with unerring accuracy in directing several First National feature pictures, has been chosen by Mr. Rowland to direct "Chickie," which will be produced under Earl Hudson's supervision. "Chickie" ran serially in the Hearst publications and met with great popular approval.

Since joining the First National corps of directors, John Francis Dillon has had several box-office successes to his credit. They are "Flaming Youth,," "Lilies of the Feld," "Flirting with Love," "Single Wives," "If I Marry Again," and "The Perfect Flapper." He just completed work recently on "One Way Street," in which Anna Q Nilsson and Ben Lyon are featured. Production started this week on "Chickie" at the Biograph Studio in New York City. The cast which Mr. Rowland, Mr. Hudson and Mr. Dillon selected reads like "Who's Who on the Screen." It includes Dorothy Mackaill, John Bowers, Marguerite de la Motte, Hobart Bosworth, Myrtle Stedman, Gladys Brockwell and Paul Nicholson.

Mr. Dillon has shown in the past year great aptitude in handling pictures which concern the modern flapper. As one of our writers said: "he has humanized her."

Mr. Dillon believes that naturalness in picture characterizations is the rule of the day and we have before us the flapper. She is a national product of the day—she is here to stay and she means well. According to Mr. Dillon she is the same lovable girl whom our great grandmother characterized affectionately as "That young minx" and then chuckled with a reminiscent twinkle in her eye. Therefore in bringing the flapper to the screen Mr. Dillon has humanized her, because he understands her. He has made her as natural and as real as her prototype in life.

Artclass Has New Press Book on "After Six Days"

BOOKINGS on "After Six Days," the Artclass Biblical feature, have increased so rapidly during the last six months, that Weiss Brothers, sponsors for the picture, have found it necessary to issue a second and far more comprehensive press book for this attraction.

The new press book is called a "Complete Exploitation Guide and Plan Book on After Six Days,'" and it certainly deserves the name, for it contains practically everything that the showman will need in putting over this massive feature.

Merritt Crawford, director of publicity for Weiss Brothers' Artclass Pictures Corporation, personally prepared the elaborate press book and has succeeded in formulating a detailed and charted exploitation campaign on the picture, that is suitable for practically every type of theatre and which can readily be followed by any exhibitor.

Particular stress has been laid on merchandising every seat in the theatre that is showing "After Six Days," for it has been repeatedly demonstrated that "After Six Days" is essentially a "run" picture and not a program attraction, while the records show that it has frequently played to bigger business at the end of a run than it did at the beginning. It was to enable the exhibitor to capitalize on this noteworthy feature, that Weiss Brothers determined on issuing a second edition of the press book on "After Six Days" so that no exploitation angle would be overlooked.

The new book consists of ten pages, size 22 x 18, full newspaper size, and includes besides much general and specific data on "After Six Days," concerning record runs, production items, etc., a wealth of exploitation suggestions and "stunts" newspaper art advertisements and stories in the widest variety, testimonials and endorsements from ministers, lawyers, editors, judges and all classes of business and professional men, and reviews from leading newspapers and picture magazines in all sections of the country.

An unusually complete musical setting for "After Six Days," prepared by Joseph E. Zivelli, is also contained in the plan book, together with the customary advertising accessories and illustrations of the striking lithographs and lobby display, which accompany the picture.

Altogether the new edition of the "After Six Days" exploitation guide and plan book is said to be one of the most complete advertising and merchandising aids that has been issued on any feature this season.

"The Crimson Runner"

"The Crimson Runner," Hunt Stromberg's next melodrama starring Priscilla Dean, received its final editorial retouching this week and was O. K.'d by Stromberg for immediate shipment to Producers Distributing Corporation. This production, scheduled for release March 2nd, was written for the star by Harvey Gates, author of her greatest successes, and its theme and tempo are designed to bring out the maximum strength of Miss Dean's fiery temperament and intense emotionalism.

Hiers in Texas

Walter Hiers is in Dallas, Texas, this week, where he is the guest of honor at the National Convention of Realty Boards. Walter may be expected to expound the merits of Hollywood real estate and will also give the realtors the facts concerning the homes and properties owned in Hollywood by members of the profession and others engaged in the motion picture business.

Syd Chaplin is "Charley's Aunt" in the Christie picture to be released through Producers Distributing Corporation.

Vitagraph's "Captain Blood" "100 per Cent Recommended"

"RECOMMENDED 100 per cent.," is the boast of the officials of Vitagraph respecting the reception of Rafael Sabatini's "Captain Blood," the David Smith production which had its premiere in last September and has since been enjoying a triumphal career.

A statement issued from Vitagraph general offices sets forth that every newspaper compilation of "Best Pictures of 1924" which has come to the notice of the company has given "Captain Blood" a high place in its list, while the endorsement of organizations devoted to the adjudging and recommendation of motion picture offerings has been unanimous.

The statement takes no account of exhibitor opinions, beyond saying that Vitagraph has received more telegrams and letters from theatre managers and owners, praising "Captain Blood" and testifying to its remarkable drawing power, than have been inspired by any other production in the company's twenty-eight years of life.

To reprint these exhibitor endorsements would tax the space of any trade publication. Moreover, in the opinion of Vitagraph, the present is a particularly appropriate time to review newspaper opinions of "Captain Blood," because it is only recently that individual reviewers have been preparing their 1924 lists.

A perusal shows that "Captain Blood" has failed to land on an "All-American" team only in instances where the compilers have covered a wider field and accorded it a place among "World Beaters."

Mae Tinee, of the Chicago Tribune, placed this Vitagraph super-special high in her brief catalogue of pictures that, "considered from every viewpoint, seem most worthy to have blue ribbons pinned on them."

The Cleveland Plain Dealer's reviewer places the name, "Captain Blood," under the significant caption, "Recommended," emphasizing its enthusiasm by enclosing the heading in a box.

Characteristic of many comments was that of the Springfield, Mass., News: "One of the finest motion pictures that has been produced this season."

Thus, the Kansas City Times said: "'Captain Blood' is qualified to rank among the season's best in entertainment value."

The Kansas City Post found it "a corking good picture, which will no doubt have its place among the best of the year," and the Trenton Gazette remarked enthusiastically: "The Stacy Theatre has seldom offered a more gripping and spectacular production than 'Captain Blood,' which chalked up a success easily the most important of the year."

The Halifax, N. S., Mail declared it "one of the greatest productions ever seen in Halifax," but was outdone by the Sacramento Union and the Duluth Herald. The Union called "Captain Blood" "one of the greatest films of the century," while the Herald declared it "one of the most spectacular and fascinating pictures that the screen has offered."

Roy V. Bailey, writing in the Sacramento Bee, rated the Sabatini picture as "100 per cent. entertainment from the opening scene to the closing fadeout," while the judgment of the Fort Worth Star-Telegram's critic was that "viewing the production from all angles it is flawless, and truly it wins its place among the super-specials."

The Wilmington, Del., Journal expressed its opinion in this comparison with previous winners: "It is not until the reviewer sees a production like 'Captain Blood' that he wishes he had been more conservative in describing other photoplays."

Screen Opinions, whose impartiality of judgment is everywhere admitted, gave "Captain Blood" a rating of 90 per cent., its designation for "Excellent."

Jack Jungmeyer, reviewer of the Newspaper Enterprise Association, said: "'Captain Blood' falls little short of the perfect popular romantic film."

The foregoing excerpts, the statement sets forth, are only a comparative few culled from the mass of commendatory material pouring into the Vitagraph offices.

Vitagraph finds pride also in the fact that the National Board of Review of Motion Pictures gave "Captain Blood" its unqualified approval, and declared "The director, Mr. David Smith, deserves enthusiastic appreciation for his work," while the Film Mutual Benefit Bureau, of which Miss Anne Morgan is an official, characterized it as "distinctly worth while for both adults and children."

Arthur Loew, head of the foreign department of the Metro-Goldwyn Pictures Corporation, as he was siapped while sailing recently to make a survey of the European market.

The Motion Picture Review, official bulletin of the National Catholic Welfare Conference, found "Captain Blood" possessed of qualities which will easily rank it as a super-picture," and added: "It is a picture that ought to rank as the masterpieces rank in an art gallery, and when 99 per cent. of present day movies are scrapped, 'Captain Blood' will be shown as an example of the best production of the early 20th century."

Casting "Cross Words"

Renaud Hoffman, who will produce "Crossed Words," the unique story of a lost bundle of mail, as his second spring release through Producers Distributing Corporation, has started the casting of the picture at the Hollywood Studios. Gladys Hulette will be the featured player and William (Buster) Collier, Jr., has been signed for the leading male role.

"The Fearless Lover" Released

C. B. C. announce the release of the eighth and last of the present series of Perfection Pictures. It is released under the title of "The Fearless Lover." William Fairbanks plays the leading part. He is supported by Eva Novak, Lydia Knott, Tom Kennedy, Ruby Lafayette, Frankie Darrow and Arthur Rankin.

Conway Tearle and Sigrid Holmquist in Vitagraph's "School for Wives," a Whitman Bennett production.

"Riot", Says Grauman

Syd Grauman "passed up" the million dollar picture palace in Los Angeles, last week, to patronize one of the neighborhood houses. Syd, accompanied by his mother, visited the Larchmont to see a special screening of the Al. Christie feature, "Charley's Aunt," and, although it was necessary for him to leave immediately after the showing, he tarried long enough to say that the picture is "a riot," and will "please any audience anywhere."

Fairbanks as "Don Q."

Adventure-Romance is Sequel to "The Mark" of Zorro"

"Don Q," Douglas Fairbanks' next vehicle, is an adventure-romance set in a Spanish locale. It is a sequel to "The Mark of Zorro," from the novel, "Don Q's Love Story," by Hesketh Prichard.

"What we really do in the new story," said Doug, "is to carry on the adventures of Zorro. We take him from the picturesque California of the middle nineteenth century to the even more picturesque Spain of the same period. There will be all of the Latin fire and dash in the picture which can best be described as a romantic melodrama."

In the new picture Doug will play a dual role, as he did in "The Mark of Zorro." In this instance, however, he will play Zorro, the father, and Don Q, the son. The dashing Zorro of the first picture, older, but still a sword-slashing demon, is replaced by his adventurous, romantic son who inherits the father's courage, wit and charm.

The first scenes for "Don Q," were shot on aJnuary 26th, on location.

Donald Crisp, who made "Ponjola," "The Navigator," "Beside the Bonnie Briar Bush," and other notable photoplays, is directing. Jack Cunningham, who did the script for "The Covered Wagon" and other big features, whipped this new one for Doug into shape. Ted Reed is production manager.

Sets were designed by Francesc Cugat, celebrated Spanish artist, and Edward M. Langley, remembered for his art work in connection with "The Thief of Bagdad," "Robin Hood," and other Fairbanks productions.

"Lost Chord" Opens

Strand, Providence, Plays Arrow Special One Week to Record Business

Arrow's "The Lost Chord," a Whitman Bennett production, opened most auspiciously at the Strand Theatre, Providence, R. I., on January 19, playing to record-breaking business for the entire week, according to a statement made by W. E. Shallenberger.

E. L. Reed, live-wire manager of the Strand, provided a fitting and impressive setting for the picture, and a presentation in keeping with the theme and quality of the production.

This is the first of a group of special feature production which are to be released by Arrow and negotiations are already under way by the Strand management for the second and third of the series, "Lena Rivers" and "The Fast Pace."

Eclipse Phenomenon Had Nothing on Fox Cameramen

FOX News scored another notable achievement in filming the total eclipse of the sun on January 24th, and issuing a special symposium of this most unusual astronomical event.

The thoroughness and rapidity with which the natural phenomenon was covered enabled Fox News to put a graphic and comprehensive reel on the rare occurrence on the screen of a number of the big Broadway houses the same afternoon. At the same time the photographic records were sent speeding to the various Fox exchanges all over the world.

The way Truman Talley, director-in-chief of the news reel, handled this big story was only slightly less fascinating than the eclipse itself. Appreciating the tremendous national and international interest, both scientific and popular, in this phenomenon, every member of Fox News was utilized to ensure the accurate and most instructive filming of every significant phase of the darkening of the sun.

Four months of preparation and study, not to mention the construction of special cameras, etc., preceded the actual picture taking, which, as is known, had to be done in the very limited space of 117 seconds.

In order to get the best possible pictures both from a scientific and entertainment point of view, Fox News employed a fleet of airplanes capable of soaring above the clouds for an unobstructed view. In one of these planes was a technical adviser, and a Fox News cameraman, each equipped with special long lens cameras for observing the eclipse itself.

In the other airplanes there were Fox News cameramen who took pictures of the effect of the eclipse on the ground below. A news reel with a cameraman was aboard the U. S. Navy dirigible Los Angeles from which the government scientists made their observations of the eclipse. The picture taken aboard the giant airship were included in the release shown on Broadway.

At the request of Dr. David Todd, Professor of Astronomy and Navigation at Amherst University, Fox News supplied a cameraman to cooperate with the distinguished scientist in a plane he used to photograph the heavenly phenomenon. These observations were also included in the special release.

In all Fox News had a score of cameramen risking their lives in airplanes to assure the public a comprehensive and graphic picture record of the rare event, which occurs every 117 years.

In addition to the above Fox staff cameramen were stationed at all strategic points where the best pictures could be obtained. On the roof of Fox New York studios, a special built camera, unique in motion picture annals, was set up for observation of the eclipse from the earth. This camera consisted of gigantic 36 inch lens, placed in a special housing, with a motion picture camera built into the back of it, in such a way that what was to be seen through the powerful lens was transmitted into the motion picture camera and to the film. Thus by the ingenuity of a staff cameraman, the attributes of this great lens, made primarily for still cameras, was transmitted to the motion picture camera and into motion pictures.

Fox News had a cameraman at New Haven and Middletown, Conn., where Yale and Wesleyan astronomers had constructed probably the largest still cameras for their observations. Cameramen also were stationed on all high buildings in New York, in such places as the Zoo, to observe the effect on animals, on the New Jersey shore to record the effect of the sudden darkening of the sky-line on New York, and various other places where the effect of a total eclipse could best be caught by a motion picture camera.

Fox cameraman on top of the New York studio with special camera, covering the eclipse. This camera has a 36-inch lens, with a motion picture camera attachment, and was built by a staff cameraman

Lon Chaney, Mary Philbin, Norman Kerry and Edmund Carewe in Universal's "The Phantom of the Opera."

"The Lost World" Campaign; Presentation by Plunkett

FIRST National has the stage all set for the showing of its big special, "The Lost World," about which speculation has been rife in the motion picture world for the past six months, at the Astor Theatre on Sunday night, February 8. The publicity and exploitation campaign is well along.

Joseph Plunkett, managing director of the Mark Strand Theatre, New York City, has been engaged to handle the presentation and it is safe to predict that he will arrange a prologue that is very much out of the ordinary on this extraordinary production. He will supervise the musical score.

The publicity and advertising will be handled by Mr. Plunkett through the staff of First National's department of publicity and advertising, following the same division of labor that time has proved in legitimate fields to be sound and most productive of results.

The exploitation for "The Lost World" and all matters connected therewith will be under the direction of Allan S. Glenn, supervisor of exploitation for First National. The general plan now laid out, determined in advance as far as practicable, is one of the most ambitious that Broadway has yet seen. It will be both intensive and spectacular.

Indicative of the general policy of the exploitation division, it is interesting to note in this connection that the exploitation for "The Lost World" will be in charge of section chiefs, each section chief being one of the staff of exploitation agents who have demonstrated their abilities and their fitness for the present assignments through their handling of the exploitation campaigns in various cities on "The Sea Hawk," "Abraham Lincoln," "Secrets" and "Sundown."

The handling of such exploitation features as newspaper contests and other phases of the campaign closely associated with the daily newspapers has been entrusted to men who have been particularly successful in managing newspaper tie-ups. Others who have shown special talent in obtaining maximum billposting will be in charge of the billing. Others who have achieved success with window displays and store tie-ups are in charge of that phase.

Many Lend Ideas

Under this plan almost the entire exploitation staff will be engaged on the "Lost World" campaign in New York and each member will be personally identified with the metropolitan campaign so that he can take to the field with a wealth of information on how best to put the picture over—what tie-ups can be used to advantage, what features are best for window and lobby displays, for ballyhoos, contests and other phases of up-to-the-minute exploitation.

The metropolitan exploitation will be the result of the co-ordination of the minds of the entire exploitation and sales staff. This is made possible only by the policy, officially adopted by the company, of having a mobile staff of exploiters who can be assigned to any picture at any place. With every man assigned to exploiting "The Lost World" having achieved noteworthy results in carrying out the policies of his division a most spectacular and productive campaign may be looked for when the final results are summed up.

Mr. Plunkett is also arranging the presentation for "Quo Vadis?", the First National Special which opens February 15 at the Apollo.

Chadwick on Way West

To Remain at Company's West Coast Studios for Several Months

I. E. Chadwick, president of the Chadwick Pictures Corporation, has left New York for an extended stay in Los Angeles. He is expected to remain at the company's west coast headquarters for several months.

The reason for Mr. Chadwick's protracted visit in California was announced at the offices of the corporation as follows:

"With 'The Midnight Girl,' starring Lila Lee, the sixth of the Chadwick Nine, now in production at the Long Island Studios, Mr. Chadwick is leaving for California to supervise personally the making of 'Sunshine of Paradise Alley' and 'The Romance of an Actress,' two other special productions on the company's 1924-1925 schedule.

"At the same time, Mr. Chadwick will make preparations for the first productions on the company's 1925-26 schedule. The first of these will be a screen version of Louis K. Anspacher's great American drama, 'The Unchastened Woman,' which will provide the vehicle for the return of Theda Bara, one of the most sensational stars in the history of motion pictures. Another production to be started shortly is 'American Pluck,' the first of the George Walsh romantic comedy-dramas. It is expected that the casts of all four productions will be announced within the next two weeks."

Kinograms Crowds Eclipse

Thirty cameramen, stationed in all parts of the United States which lay in the zones of partial and total eclipse of the sun, shot scenes of the solar eclipse for Kinograms, Educational's news weekly, securing one of the most striking records of the phenomenon ever recorded in astronomical history.

This matter was included in the regular issue of Kinograms as part of this news reel's regular service to its subscribers.

Anna Q. Nilsson, James Kirkwood and Sheldon Lewis in Paramount's "The Top of the World," directed by George Melford.

Syd Chaplin in Al and Charles Christie's production of "Charley's Aunt," a Producers Distributing Picture

International News Reel Has Rapid Service on Eclipse

THE covering of the recent eclipse of the sun for the International Newsreel is regarded by executives of the International Newsreel Corporation as one of the most thorough jobs ever done by that organization. Every phase of eclipse, and the many activities brought on by it, were remembered in making out the assignment sheet for the International cameramen. As a result, the current issue of the International Newsreel has a complete record of what happened in the Heavens, in the observatories and in the streets.

Edgar B. Hatrick, general manager of the big newsreel organization, explaining how many-sided was International's work during the eclipse, said:

"We had to cover the affair from every conceivable angle. Two of our best staff men we sent to the observatory at New Haven. Others went to Mount Beacon. Several were assigned to take pictures of crowds in the streets and in the parks of New York and other places.

"One cameraman, in cooperation with the Navy Department, took eclipse pictures from the great dirigible Los Angeles, flying thousands of feet in the air off Montauk Point, Long Island. Two other International cameramen went aloft in planes and took special pictures at a 5,000 foot altitude.

"At Yale University, our staff men worked in one of the big observatories by special arrangement with the authorities of the University. Elaborate preparations were made and long focus lenses were used to bring the eclipse image, even larger than it appeared in the telescope.

"In fact, we did everything possible to make our record of the eclipse a perfect survey of the entire situation, not only the eclipse itself, but its effect on the people in the zone of the moon-shadow.

"This material we have edited and assembled in International Newsreel No. 11, which was speeded to all parts of the country in advance so that theatres from Maine to California might show the eclipse as soon after the actual event as possible.

"In New York we rushed advance prints to the Broadway screen on Saturday, within a brief period after the eclipse took place. Our main efforts, however, were directed towards the wide dissemination of International Newsreel No. 11, to all of our big first-run accounts throughout the country."

Begins "The Night Club"

"The Night Club," an adaptation of William De Mille's play, "After Five," has gone into production at the Paramount West Coast studio.

The production is being directed by Fran: Urson and Paul Iribe.

Walsh Off to Coast

Star to Start Work on Chadwick Production "American Pluck"

George Walsh, the newest star of the Chadwick Pictures Corporation, has left New Yor: for Los Angeles to start work on "American Pluck," the first of a series of six romantic comedy dramas that he will make for that company. Accompanying Mr. Walsh on his trip west was Edmund Lawrence who will direct the star.

"American Pluck," a story written especially for the star, will be typical of the several Walsh pictures that are to follow. It is the intention of I. E. Chadwick, President of the Company, to produce a series of fast-moving, action stories, with Mr. Walsh playing roles that typify the aggressive, clean-cut, dare-devil man that is the ideal of every American boy.

Production on "American Pluck" will be started at the Chadwick West Coast Studios as soon as possible after the arrival of the star. The cast, which will be announced shortly, will be chosen with a view to following the Chadwick policy of giving the exhibitors capable players with box office names.

Higgin and Cowan Signed

Howard Higgin and Sada Cowan were signed recently to make a series of pictures for Paramount, according to an announcement by Jesse L. Lasky, first vice-president in charge of production. The two will work exclusively as a unit, with Higgin directing and Miss Cowan writing the scenarios.

Norma Talmadge in "The Lady," a First National picture, in which the screen favorite has one of her most charming roles.

Scenes from Zane Grey's "Code of the West," a Paramount picture, with Owen Moore, Constance Bennett and Charles Ogle.

First National Executives and Stars Talk via Radio

FIRST National Pictures' stars and executives staged a production of their own last Saturday night with countless thousands for an audience. Broadcasting over the radio from WIP Station, Gimbel Brothers' in Philadelphia, they established a precedent whose success was proved beyond dispute after a count of the evening disclosed more than four thousand telegrams at the station from interested fans who had heard the microphone talks and had sent wires of inquiry and congratulations. On the basis of the four thousand wires—which took no accounting of the telegrams from distant points that did not begin to arrive until Sunday—it was estimated that 4,000,000 to 5,000,000 radio fans heard the talks. Among those who spoke from the First National organization were: Earl J. Hudson, production manager, E. A. Eschmann, general manager of distribution, Florence Strauss, scenario editor, and Milton Sills, Doris Kenyon, Ben Lyon, Viola Dana, Gladys Brockwell, Myrtle Steadman, Lincoln Steadman, John Bowers, Marguerite de la Motte, Dorothy Mackaill, Hobart Bosworth, Lambert Hillyer, Ben Alexander and Jacqueline Logan.

From a publicity standpoint the innovation proved a striking success; but it was even more effective from the standpoint of sound, constructive good will building for the entire industry. The wires that came in from points as far away as Labrador and Kansas breathed messages of renewed support for the aims and purposes of the screen leaders, coupled with a new realization, born of the closer contact of the radio, of the ideals behind motion picture production.

The event was the result of painstaking planning in which many people co-operated. Several weeks ago, Eli M. Orowitz, the far-famed EMO of WIP station, with the support of Gimbel Brothers and W. J. Heenan, First National's Philadelphia branch manager, approached Earl Hudson on the project.

Countless obstacles and objections were overcome until the plan of transporting 30 stars and executives appeared both practical and mutually beneficial.

The party proceeded to Philadelphia over the Pennsylvania Railroad with a private parlor car and diner. Despite a delay of a half hour because of engine trouble, the members of the party were obliged to fight their way through the crowds at the Broad street station. Milton Sills, whose huge dimensions made him a recognizable target, was almost smothered by admirers who insisted on shaking hands with him, and the detail of special police were only partially able to hold back the dense mass of people that surged around the arrivals.

From the station the party was driven by automobile to Gimbles' where the program began immediately after their arrival. Earl Hudson, the first speaker, told of the problems of production and the aims of motion picture producers in general, in trying to provide screen entertainment. Milton Sills described his ideals over the radio for a closer sympathy between screen ideals and the public. Mrs. Strauss told of the difficulty of selecting stories and the need of a woman's judgment in such work. Myrtle Steadman and her son gave the program diversity by singing over the radio. Ben Alexander gave a juvenile account of his education and Jacqueline Logan's talk was a humorous by-play on titles.

It was midnight before the speeches were concluded, but even then the program had only started. The stars had promised in advance to try and answer all telegram inquiries that were received during the course of the evening and the deluge of wires kept the speakers busy for another two hours. Two in the morning found them still at the microphone. It was even later before the last speaker was able to leave the building for the Hotel Benjamin Franklin around the corner.

Saturday night's triumph was duplicated in person on Sunday. The program called for a morning drive to a country home where the party was the guest of a friend of Mr. Heenan's. The visit was necessarily curtailed by an appointment to appear before a concert given under the auspices of the Shriners' at the Metropolitan Opera House.

Helene Chadwick, Kenneth Harlan, Roy Barnes and Rosemary Theby in Harold Bell Wright's "Re-creation of Brian Kent," a Principal Pictures master attraction presented by Sol Lesser.

Scenes from "The Greatest Love of All," starring George Beban. An Associated Exhibitors release.

Rupert Julian Completes "The Phantom of the Opera"

THE biggest job ever tackled at Universal City has been completed, with the filming of the last "shots" of "The Phantom of the Opera," Carl Laemmle's forthcoming Super-Jewel for 1925. It presents Lon Chaney in another weird and gripping role, supported by Mary Philbin and Norman Kerry, and with a cast headed by Gibson Gowland and Arthur Edmund Carew.

Rupert Julian, who is directing the new Universal masterpiece, from the famous novel by Gaston Leroux, this week completed the last bit of camera-work on the picture. It now goes into the cutting stage. Expert cutters and Universal City's pick of sub-title writers, under the supervision of Julian, will work in shifts for several weeks, getting the picture ready for inspection by the Universal chief, who has just arrived at the Coast to watch the film in its final stages.

In completing "The Phantom of the Opera" so soon, Julian has set a new record at Universal City, and perhaps for the entire industry. Compared with pictures of similar importance, the three months Julian put in on actual camera-work for "The Phantom" seems a strikingly short period. Julian explains his speed by describing the completeness of his advance arrangements and organization. Beginning last July, unusual energy was bent at Universal City to get all "The Phantom" sets ready by the time the director and the script workers had completed other arrangements, including the casting, costume preparation and similar preliminary needs.

As a result, when Julian announced he was ready to "shoot," all the sets were practically ready for him. This saved days and days of studio work, he says, and resulted in a very material cutting of costs.

An idea of the complications in production he would have faced had it been necessary to wait for these sets may be judged from the fact that they included a reproduction of the great Paris Opera House. A full-sized auditorium, with 100 foot stage, five tiers of boxes and balconies, and a main floor, made up one of the sets. Another, of equal immensity, reproduced the Grand Staircase and foyer of the Opera House—a set six levels in height and of proportionate width. Also, it was necessary to reproduce many of the back-stage areas, as well as the storage cellars under the opera house, even down to the under-ground lake which figures so conspicuously in Leroux's stirring narrative.

The Opera House interiors were necessary because most of the action of the picture takes place within the great building. Much of it takes place on the stage and in the auditorium during the presentation of the opera "Faust" and the Universal City studio experts had to reproduce most of the action of this opera on the immense stage for the picture. Miss Philbin was the prima donna in the role of Marguerite. Mephistopheles was played by Alexander Bevani, long experienced in that part of the operatic stage. William Tyroler, formerly conductor of the orchestra at the Metropolitan Opera House of New York, was engaged to lead the 100-piece orchestra necessary to the presentation of the opera at Universal City. Ernest Belcher, also well known in operatic circles, staged the ballet, comprising scores of expert ballet dancers, led by Olive Ann Alcorn.

Another big interior set was needed for the Grand Ball, held in the foyer and in front of the Grand Staircase of the Opera House. This masked pageant was reproduced by Universal with great care and at great cost.

These two big scenes, the staging of "Faust" on the big stage, with the auditorium, boxes and balconies filled with smart Parisian opera-goers, and the Grand Ball, were photographed in color. These sequences are said to be among the most striking ever made for the screen. They are promised as a sensation in mass realism when the picture is shown to the public.

Julian used more than 5,000 principals and extras in the making of "The Phantom of the Opera," Universal executives assert.

"The Lady" at the Colony

"The Lady," First National's new Norma Talmadge picture, is having its first showing in any city in New York this week at the Colony Theatre. The engagement opened last Sunday for a run which, it is expected, will continue over a period of several weeks. A contract was recently closed by First National for a run of "The Lady" at the Criterion Theatre in Los Angeles.

In Monta Bell's production, "The Snob," for Metro-Goldwyn, many prominent players are seen, including Norma Shearer, Hedda Hopper, Phyllis Haver and John Gilbert.

Pathe News Eclipse Shots Seen at Matinees Same Day

WHAT is considered the most rapid handling of a screen news subject happened on Saturday, when the Pathe News supplied pictures of all the interesting angles of the total eclipse of the sun, in time for the matinees in Broadway's four leading cinema theatres.

Four prints of the film were actually delivered to the Rivoli, Rialto, Capitol and Strand theatres at 1:30 P. M. Saturday in the regular Saturday release. This was exactly five hours after the actual happening at New Haven, the central point of observation. Airplanes were a big factor in the gathering and the distributing of the eclipse film.

At New Haven, the Pathe News cameramen were working under the direction of Swathmore College instructions. As fast as a film magazine was exposed it was immediately rushed to New York and then relayed to the Pathe factory at Bound Brook, New Jersey.

Cameramen working in New York sent their film to the Pathe headquarters by special messenger. At Bound Brook a score of film editors and title writers were on hand cutting and titling negative as quickly as it arrived, and at 12:30 P. M. prints began leaving the factory to be shown in theatres all over the Eastern section of the country on Saturday evening.

The first four prints were rushed immediately to the Broadway theatres while the next batch of prints was shipped by fast auto to the Curtis Flying Field where a plane was waiting ready to take them to Chicago and other points west. The second airplane to leave carried a sufficient number of prints to supply exhibitors in all the first-run theatres in all directions from Cleveland. The Cleveland plane arrived at 2:45 P. M.

This is one of the many times of recent date that Pathe News has come to the assistance of science in the making of permanent photographic records.

After months of research and the manufacture of special camera equipment the Pathe News organization was ready on Saturday morning to cover every phase of the rare phenomenon. In its preparations to cover the event the Pathe News staff had been greatly aided by the experience acquired in recording the eclipse, which took place last year at Yerbanis, Mexico.

A feature of the extensive plans made by this news reel organization was the stationing of a group of cameramen at New Haven who worked under the direct supervision of the astronomers of Swathmore College. As New Haven lay midway in the path of totality some of the most important news reel records of the eclipse were made at this point. Charles Charlton and Maurice Kellerman, Pathe News staff cameramen who accompanied the Swathmore University expedition to Mexico last year to cover the eclipse at this time, were again working in conjunction with the Swathmore astronomers at New Haven in recording the eclipse. In addition to these two cameramen three others were posted at the New Haven location to take interesting sidelight motion pictures of the event.

In addition to the camera group at New Haven, more than fifteen Pathe News cameramen were scattered at various points across the path of totality all the way from the Atlantic Coast to Minnesota. Harry Hardy went aloft from the Curtis Flying Field in Long Island, aboard an army airplane and covered the initial stages of the event along the Coast. Ludwig Gieskop, another staff cameraman, also took off from the Metropolitan district and proceeded inland.

When the giant navy dirigible "Los Angeles" sailed out to sea a Pathe News cameraman was aboard the ship with a group of scientists. This cameraman took pictures of the eclipse at sea as the great ship floated aloft following the course of the eclipse's path.

In addition to covering the major phase of the phenomenon, elaborate arrangements were made to cover the event locally. Pathe cameramen took posts on vantage points in Manhattan and on the Jersey side of the river to get the skyline effect of the eclipse as the shadow band passed over New York City. Four cameramen were assigned to work in the city streets to catch interesting sidelights as New Yorkers observed their first total eclipse of the sun. So comprehensive were the plans made by Emanuel Cohen, Editor of Pathe News, to cover the event that a staff cameraman was assigned to take his post in the Bronx Zoo and observe the effects of the eclipse on the animals.

Mr. Cohen, who had been busy for weeks mapping out the camera campaign with all the care and skill of a general mapping out a major offensive, stated: "It was the purpose of my organization to cover the rare solar phenomenon as thoroughly as motion picture facilities would permit. Our camera records will not only serve as the chronicle of a rare news event, which occurred here for the fist time since the 16th century, but has also furnished scientifically correct evidence for the study of celestial phenomena in the future. The camera records of the eclipse, which we made last year in Mexico, have been used repeatedly by astronomical bodies in their scientific studies.

International Newsreel (Universal) has snapped this shot of A. K. Peterson, Chief Photographer, U. S. Navy, at his post atop the naval dirigible "Los Angeles." Views of the eclipse were taken at a great height, and used in International Newsreel

"After Six Days" Will Play Tudor Again

So successful was the ten-day run of "After Six Days," the massive Artclass Biblical feature, at the Tudor Theatre, New Orleans, La., early in January, that Manager J. Eugene Pearce has rebooked the attraction for a week's showing in April, barely two months after the original presentation, according to an announcement by Louis Weiss, executive head of Weiss Brothers' Artclass Pictures Corporation.

The picture opened to first class business on January 10, an intensive advance exploitation campaign having been put on by Manager Pearce, who used more than two hundred twenty-four sheets alone in billing New Orleans and surrounding territory, and this steadily increased in volume right up to the last day.

The fact that the Tudor had advertised the opening of another feature prevented the management from holding "After Six Days" on for an indefinite run.

"Sea Hawk" in Philadelphia

At the conclusion of its ten weeks' run at the Aldine, Philadelphia, at $1.50 top admission scale, "The Sea Hawk" was transferred to the Arcadia Theatre for a four weeks' run at the regular scale of admission prices. The Aldine engagement of "The Sea Hawk" was one of the most successful the theatre has known, and the business continued big after its transfer to the Arcadia Theatre.

"Heart of a Temptress"

Barbara LaMarr's second Sawyer-Lubin-First National picture, now being made at Universal's Fort Lee studios, with Phil Rosen directing, will be called "Heart of a Temptress."

Thalberg Tells Metro Formula of Making Box-Office Pictures

THERE is a formula in making box-office pictures, as well as in making any other product, according to Irving G. Thalberg, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer associate studio executive who is now in New York.

"The organization of a studio like the Metro-Goldwyn studio in Culver City today is so systematized that there is no possibility of failure in making pictures that will prove among the industries biggest box-office hits," said Mr. Thalberg to interviewers this week.

"Specialization in every phase of production is one of the fundamental principles in our formula of making pictures. I believe that the making of any production should be supervised by one individual who is responsible for the whole picture, but today production is too complicated for one man to manage every detail of it. Details that used to be considered unimportant are nov of prime importance in the making of a picture; details in costuming, fidelity to atmosphere, everything that goes to make a realistic feature.

"For that reason we have specialists at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio who are experts in their lines. This guarantees that our pictures will be of the highest possible artistic standard.

"In the last analysis, of course, a picture must stand or fall on its box-office merit, and today when competition is keener than ever before, and when finer pictures are being made than ever before, it is constantly a reminder that nothing can be left undone to make our pictures box-office hits. We feel that exhibitors will agree with us that we have succeeded in this, for the end of 1924 and the start of 1925 sees Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer pictures at the top of the industry.

"It is not possible to tell what the public wants today nor what it will want tomorrow, but as nearly as it can be done, we are guessing ahead. It is well known that a picture of which little is expected is likely to turn out the most popular hit of them all, but the most we can do is to aim at what we know the public has patronized always, and hope for the rest.

"A best-seller among novels or Broadway stage hit cannot always be depended upon to duplicate the success in pictures, for the technique of pictures is entirely different. But it is that quality, whether it happens to be an exceptional, love interest or adventure element or sheer melo-drama, that made the book or play a success, that we try to capture in our screen version. They didn't think it could be done with 'He Who Gets Slapped,' but it is nevertheless one of the outstanding screen hits of the year.

"Our studios at present are embarking on the greatest production program in our history, and we are confident every one of our pictures is going to register 100 per cent."

JACK WARNER

Head of Warner Brothers' production department, is in New York for a final conference on next season's productions. The conference includes members of the firm and heads of departments.

Priscilla Dean Scores in Personal Appearance Act

REPORTS from Kansas City, where Priscilla Dean made her debut last week (January 18-24) at the Mainstreet Theatre, in her personal appearance act with the Hunt Stromberg production, "A Cafe in Cairo," indicate that the star has registered a decided hit on the stage as well as the screen.

The Dean act is an elaborately staged number in which she plays one of the scenes from "A Cafe in Cairo," supported by a leading man and a company of men and women representing harem personalities, and the Kansas City newspaper critics voicing their opinion and reporting the reaction of the audience, unanimously praise and commend both the act and the picture.

The Kansas City Star, commenting editorially, says: "Those who saw Priscilla Dean in person at the Mainstreet Theatre yesterday —and there were thousands of them—found the actress decidedly worth while. The fans evidently found Miss Dean not the least disappointing, for they showered applause upon her."

The Kansas City Post said: "Beautiful Priscilla, on the Mainstreet bill in person this week, comes with something to do. Not merely wandering on and off the stage, leaving the audience wondering what it's all about. Miss Dean is all her pictures show her to be and a little bit more, which her personal appearance adds."

The Mainstreet Theatre is a big time vaudeville house and it is noteworthy that in the newspaper reviews all of the space is given to the Dean act, with only a mention of the other numbers on the bill. Private reports to Producers Distributing Corporation state that a new box office record was made by the theatre.

This week Miss Dean and the picture are the attraction at the Capitol, Detroit, with the Lafayette Theatre in Buffalo as the next stop on the tour.

Jaydee Williams, president of Ritz-Carlton Pictures, under whose banner Rudolph Valentino is producing, and William R. Fraser, general manager of Harold Lloyd productions, arrive in Los Angeles on the same train.

Star Triumphs on Screen

Orville Caldwell, well and favorably known to patrons of the legitimate theatre, particularly owing to his wonderful portrayal of the leading male role in "Mecca," and again in "The Miracle," has scored a tremendous success with the part allotted to him in the Henry King production of "Sackcloth and Scarlet," for Famous Players-Lasky release. Mr. Caldwell is one of the very few artists who has come to the screen, not by accident, but with a thorough schooling in dramatic art for a foundation. He is a native of California and studied dramatic expression while a student in the University of California.

CURRENT and ADVANCE FILM RELEASES

Containing in compact, comprehensive form, the title, star, kind of picture, date of review in Moving Picture World, and footage on past, present and future releases

ALLIED PRODUCERS AND DISTRIBUTORS

	Kind of Picture	Review.	Feet
Loving Lies (Monte Blue)	Drama	Feb. 2..	6,526
No More Women (Moore-Bellamy)	Comedy-drama	Feb. 2..	6,186
Hill Billy (Jack Pickford)	Drama	Mar. 22..	5,734
End of the World (J. Pickford)	Comedy-drama		6,500

ARROW

Come On, Cowboys (Hatton)	Western drama	May 24..	4,700
Mysteries of Mah Jong	Novelty	May 24..	2,000
Two After One (West)	Comedy	May 24..	2,000
Western Feuds	Western drama	July 26..	4,908
Riders of the Plains	Western serial
Lash of the Whip (Dearholt)	Stunt drama		4,820
Cowboy Prince (Dearholt)	Stunt drama		4,410
Diamond Bandit (Dearholt)	Stunt drama		4,698
Lash of Pinto Pete (Dearholt)	Stunt drama		4,437
Two Fisted Sheriff (Canutt)	Western drama	Dec. 6..	4,625
Sell 'em Cowboy (Hatton)	Western drama		4,821
Ridin' Mad (Canutt)	Western drama		4,927
Desert Hawk	Western drama		4,828
Horse Sense (Hatton)	Western drama		4,648
His Majesty the Outlaw (Wilson)	Western drama		4,069
Romance and Rustlers (Canutt)	Western drama	Nov. 15..	4,939
Rip Snorter (Hatton)	Western	Nov. 22..	4,998
The Fugitive (Ben Wilson)	Western dr.	Nov. 29..	4,920
Lost Chord (Powell-Lake-Binney)	Heart interest dr.	Dec. 20..	6,300

ASSOCIATED EXHIBITORS

Yankee Consul (MacLean)	Feature comedy	Feb. 23..	6,148
When A Girl Loves (all-star)	Modern drama	May 3..	5,876
Lone Wolf (Holt-Dalton)	Crook drama	May 10..	6,000
Cheechahcos (all-star)	Northern epic	May 17..	7,000
Spitfire (all-star)	Modern drama	July 5..	6,109
Racing Luck (Monty Banks)	Comedy-drama	July 26..	6,000
Never Say Die (MacLean)	Comedy of thrills	Sep. 13..	5,803
East of Broadway (O. Moore)	Police drama	Nov. 22..	5,785
Price of a Party (H. Ford)	Modern drama	Oct. 18..	5,315
Barriers Burned Away	Spectacle	Dec. 27..	6,236
Is Love Everything?	Sex melo.	Nov. 15..	6,000
Adventurous Sex (C. Bow)	Flapper drama
Children of the Whirlwind
Great Air Mail Robbery
Battling Bunyan (Barry)	Comedy-dr.	Dec. 27..	4,718
Greatest Love of All (Beban)	Drama	Jan. 17..	6,486
Bad Company (Tearle)	Society drama	Jan. 24..	5,551
Introduce Me (Douglas MacLean)	Comedy thrills
Sky Raider (Logan)	Drama
Back to Life (Patsy Ruth Miller)	Drama

EDUCATIONAL FILM CORP.

The New Sheriff	Tuxedo comedy	Mar. 8..	2,000
Under Orders	Clyde Cook	Mar. 15..	2,000
Midnight Blues	Lige Conley	Mar. 22..	2,000
Family Life	Jack White prod.	Mar. 29..	2,000
Bargain Day	Sid Smith	Mar. 29..	1,000
Barnum Jr.	Juvenile comedy	Mar. 29..	2,000
The Fly	Scientific	Apr. 5..	1,000
Killing Time	Lloyd Hamilton	Apr. 5..	2,000
Dusty Dollars	Cameo comedy	Apr. 5..	1,000
Dandy Lions	Neal Burns	Apr. 12..	2,000
Safe and Sane	Jimmie Adams	Apr. 12..	2,000
There He Goes	Mermaid comedy	Apr. 19..	2,000
Heart Throbs	"Sing Them Again"	Apr. 19..	1,000
Realm of Sport	Hodge-Podge	Apr. 19..	1,000
Fold Up	Cameo comedy	Apr. 19..	1,000
Going East	Lloyd Hamilton	Apr. 26..	2,000
The Fun Shop	Humor reel	Apr. 26..	1,000
The Trader Keeps Moving	Bruce scenic	Apr. 26..	1,000
The Lady-Bird	Instructive	Apr. 26..	1,000
Cornfed	Bobby Vernon	May 3..	2,000

How to Use This Chart

First—Booking! Get accurate footage and look up date review appeared in Moving Picture World. Then you can decide if the picture will suit your audience.

Second—Play date! When you set your play date, consult this Chart to set the picture on a date that will not conflict with preceding and following pictures; avoid a sequence of similar type of story; space out your specials.

Third—Laying Out Program! This chart shows star and kind of story as well as accurate length; you can lay out a balanced program easily, avoid over—and under-length program.

Fourth—Exploitation! Through this chart find the review in Moving Picture World; this will give a good synopsis, the all-important cast and a fine line on exploitation possibilities as well as the things you'll want to soft-pedal.

Always! Turn to this Chart when you want accurate information in simple form and easy to get at a glance. AND—

File Your Moving Picture World

$1 for Your Time

Many exhibitors tell us that Moving Picture World Guide to Releases is the most accurate available to them. We know it is the most complete in that it is the only chart containing names of stars, type of picture, and all necessary information to the exhibitor.

We want it to be absolutely accurate—Moving Picture World recognizes the importance of accurate footage information, etc.

If you notice an error in FEATURE footage, or any other major error, we will pay you $1 for the effort on your part of writing us a letter telling us the correct facts.

In many territories local censorship cuts alter the footage to a minor extent. Don't write to tell us of these unimportant variations. But in any case where you feel that our figures will work a real hardship on the exhibitor following them—shoot us the word and we will shoot the dollar for your trouble.

Moving Picture World is willing to back up its complete confidence in the accuracy of its chart with its money.

We can't do more. No one else does as much. We thank you.

	Kind of Picture	Review.	Feet
Out Bound	Cliff Bowes	May 3..	1,000
The Fun Shop	Humor reel	May 3..	1,000
Powder Marks	Cliff Bowes	May 3..	1,000
Lost Chords	"Sing Them Again"	May 3..	1,000
The Junior Partner	Juvenile comedy	May 10..	2,000
The Bonehead	Tuxedo comedy	May 10..	2,000
Flowers of Hate	Wilderness Tale	May 17..	1,000
Nerve Tonic	Christie comedy	May 17..	2,000
Tiny Tour of U. S. A.	Hodge-Podge	May 17..	1,000
Air Pockets	Mermaid comedy	May 17..	2,000
Lunch Brigade	Cliff Bowes	May 24..	1,000
Dizzy Daisy	Mermaid comedy	May 24..	2,000
Good Morning	Lloyd Hamilton	May 24..	2,000
Tootsie-Wootsie	Christie comedy	May 31..	2,000
Just Waiting	Robert Bruce series	May 31..	1,000
Echoes of Youth	"Sing Them Again"	May 31..	1,000
Hot Air	Lee Moran	June 7..	2,000
In a Drop of Water	"Secrets of Life"	June 14..	1,000
Grandpa's Girl	Kathleen Clifford	June 21..	2,000
The Chase	Alps Novelty	June 21..	2,000
Snapshots of the Universe	Hodge-Podge	June 21..	1,000
The Farewell	Bruce Scenic	June 21..	1,000
Wedding Showers	Jack White prod.	June 28..	2,000
The Ex-Bartender Retires	Bruce scenic	June 28..	1,000
Family Fits	Cameo comedy	June 28..	1,000
His First Car	Tuxedo comedy	July 5..	2,000
Pardon Us	Cameo comedy	July 5..	1,000
Melodious Moments	"Sing Them Again"	July 5..	1,000
Pigskin	Mermaid comedy	July 12..	2,000
Heads On	Cliff Bowes	July 12..	1,000
Jumble in the Jungle	Hodge-Podge	July 12..	1,000
Never Again	Tuxedo comedy	Aug. 2..	2,000
Turn About	Cameo comedy	Aug. 2..	1,000
Frozen Water	Novelty	Aug. 9..	1,000
Savage Love	Jimmie Adams	Aug. 9..	2,000
Good News	Cliff Bowes	Aug. 9..	1,000
Oh, Teacher	Juvenile comedy	Aug. 23..	2,000
Boneyard Blues	Earl Hurd cartoon	Aug. 23..	1,000
Drenched	Cliff Bowes	Aug. 23..	1,000
Wild Game	Mermaid comedy	Aug. 30..	2,000
Don't Fail	Cameo comedy	Aug. 30..	1,000
Jonah Jones	Lloyd Hamilton	Sep. 6..	2,000
Hazardous Hunting	Hodge Podge	Sep. 6..	1,000
Rough and Ready	Lige Conley	Sep. 13..	2,000
Cheer Up	Cliff Bowes	Sep. 13..	1,000
Stupid but Brave	Al St John	Sep. 20..	2,000
Dirty Hands	Juvenile comedy	Sep. 20..	2,000
Short Change	Hiers comedy	Sep. 27..	2,000
Bright Lights	Vernon comedy	Sep. 27..	2,000
Her Boy Friend	Larry Semon	Sep. 27..	2,000
Court Plaster	Neal Burns	Oct. 4..	2,000
The Hoboken Nightingale	Hurd cartoon	Oct. 4..	1,000
Crazy-Quilt of Travel	Hodge Podge	Oct. 4..	1,000
Fast and Furious (Conley)	Comedy	Oct. 11..	2,000
No Foolin' (Bowes)	Comedy	Oct. 11..	1,000
Sawmill Four	Hurd cartoon	Oct. 18..	1,000
Why Hurry? (Adams)	Comedy	Oct. 18..	2,000
Kid Speed (L. Semon)	Comedy	Oct. 25..	2,000
Crushed (L. Hamilton)	Comedy	Oct. 25..	2,000
Empty Heads (Bowes)	Comedy	Oct. 25..	1,000
High Gear (Vernon)	Comedy	Nov. 1..	2,000
The Mosquito	Instructive	Nov. 1..	1,000
Artist's Model	Hurd cartoon	Nov. 15..	1,000
Poor Butterfly	Mermaid comedy	Nov. 15..	2,000
Watch Your Pep (Bowes)	Cameo comedy	Nov. 15..	1,000
Easy Pickin's	Christie com.	Nov. 22..	2,000
Cut Loose (Dynham-Vance)	Cameo comedy	Nov. 22..	1,000
A Fat Chance (W. Hiers)	Comedy	Nov. 29..	1,000
Go Easy (Bowes)	Cameo com.	Nov. 29..	1,000
Low Tide (J. White prod.)	Comedy	Dec. 6..	2,000
Little People of the Garden	Instructive	Dec. 6..	1,000
Earth's Oddities	Hodge-Podge	Dec. 13..	1,000

(Continued from preceding page)

	Kind of Picture	Review.	Feet
Goat Getters	Juvenile com.	Dec. 13..	2,000
French Pastry (Vernon)	Christie com.	Dec. 20..	2,000
Broadcasting	Hurd cartoon	Dec. 20..	1,000
Lovemania (St. John)	Tuxedo comedy	Dec. 27..	2,000
Mad Rush (Bowes)	Cameo comedy	Dec. 27..	1,000
Step Lightly (Lige Conley)	Mermaid com.	Jan. 3..	2,000
Hi-Fliers	Hodge-Podge	Jan. 3..	1,000
Hooked (Hamilton)	Comedy	Jan. 17..	2,000
Weak Knees (Bowes)	Cameo Com.	Jan. 17..	1,000
Have A Heart (Ruth Hiatt)	Cameo Com.	Jan. 17..	1,000
Good Spirits	Christie com.	Jan. 24..	2,000
Motor Mad	Mermaid com.	Jan. 24..	1,000
Sea Legs (Neal Burns)	Christie com.	Jan. 31..	2,000
Judge's Crossword Puzzles	Novelty	Jan. 31..	1,000
Paris Creations	Fashions	Jan. 31..	1,000

FILM BOOKING OFFICES OF AMERICA

Telephone Girl (Vaughn)	Series	Feb. 23..	2,000
When Knighthood Was in Tower (Vaughn)	Tel. Girl	Mar. 8..	2,000
North of Nevada (F. Thomson)	Western	Mar. 15..	5,000
Galloping Gallagher (F. Thomson)	Western	Mar. 22..	4,700
Money to Burns	Tel. Girl	Mar. 29..	2,000
Sherlock's Home	Tel. Girl	Mar. 29..	2,000
Yankee Madness (all-star)	Thrill-com.-dr.	Apr. 5..	4,680
His Forgotten Wife (all-star)	Drama	Apr. 12..	6,500
Silent Stranger (Fred Thomson)	Western	Apr. 19..	5,000
Beloved Vagabond (Blackwell)	Romantic drama	Apr. 26..	6,217
William Tells	Tel. Girl	May 3..	2,000
Girl of the Limberlost (Grey)	Rural drama	May 10..	6,000
Untamed Youth (Lewis)	Gypsy drama	May 10..	5,000
For the Love of Mike	Tel. Girl	May 17..	2,000
Danger Line (Hayakawa)	Japan drama	May 24..	5,000
Spirit of the U. S. A. (Johnson prod.)	Patriotic drama	May 31..	8,312
Dangerous Coward (F. Thomson)	Western	May 31..	6,000
Napoleon and Josephine (all-star)	Hist. romance	June 7..	6,591
Fighting Sap (F. Thomson)	Western	June 14..	5,138
There's Millions In It (all-star)	Romantic thriller	June 28..	6,000
Bee's Knees	Tel. Girl	June 28..	2,000
Swords and the Woman (DeCordoba)	Romantic drama	July 12..	6,000
Fools in the Dark (Patsy R. Miller)	Melo. farce	July 26..	7,002
Neglected Women (Seena Owen)	Society drama	Aug. 9..	6,265
Messalina	Italian spectacle	Sep. 6..	8,473
American Manners (R. Talmadge)	Thrill-com.-dr.	Sep. 6..	5,200
Desert Sheik (Hawley)	Sheik picture	Sep. 20..	5,044
Vanity's Price (A. Q. Nilsson)	Society drama	Sep. 20..	6,124
Woman Who Sinned (Busch)	Society drama		6,102
Thundering Hoofs (F. Thomson)	Western	Dec. 6..	5,033
Stepping Lively (R. Talmadge)	Comedy drama		5,317
Life's Greatest Game (J. Walker)	Baseball epic	Oct. 11..	7,010
Millionaire Cowboy (M. B. Flynn)	Western		4,841
Broken Laws (Mrs. W. Reid)	Drama	Jan. 31..	6,413
Quemado (F. Thomson)	Western
Cheap Kisses (all-star)	Jazz-drama	Nov. 15..	6,538
Go-Getters Series	Thrill comedy	Oct. 18..	2,000
Dangerous Flirt (Evelyn Brent)	Drama	Dec. 6..	5,297
Miss in the Dark (Vaughn)	Go-getters	Dec. 6..	2,000
On The Stroke of Three (Harlan)	Drama	Dec. 13..	6,767
Trigger Fingers (Bob Custer)	Tex. Ranger	Dec. 13..	4,775
Going of Cumming	Go-Getters	Dec. 13..	2,000
Laughing at Danger (R. Talmadge)	Thrill drama	Dec. 20..	5,442
Air Hawk (Al Wilson)	Airplane dr.	Dec. 20..	5,000
Who's Hooligan?	Go-getters	Dec. 20..	2,000
Heebie Jeebies (Aubrey)	Comedy	Dec. 27..	2,000
Silk Stocking Sal (Brent)	Underworld dr.	Jan. 3..	5,367
West of Hot Dog (Stan Laurel)	Comedy	Jan. 3..	2,000
No-Gun Man (Lefty Flynn)	Outdoor melo.	Jan. 17..	4,522
Flashing Spurs (Bob Custer)	Outdoor melo.	Jan. 24..	5,068
Youth and Adventure (R. Talmadge)	Outdoor melo.	Jan. 24..	5,000
Sleeping Cutie	Go-Getters	Jan. 31..	2,000

FIRST NATIONAL

Love Master (Strongheart)	Drama	Jan. 19..	6,679
Painted People (C. Moore)	Comedy	Feb. 9..	6,900
When a Man's a Man (J. Bowers)	Drama	Feb. 12..	6,807
Flowing Gold (all-star)	Drama	Mar. 1..	8,005
Lilies of the Field (C. Griffith)	Drama	Mar 22..	8,510
Galloping Fish (Ince prod.)	Comedy	Mar. 22..	5,559
Secrets (N. Talmadge)	Drama	Apr. 5..	8,446
Enchanted Cottage (R. Barthelmess)	Drama	Apr 19..	7,120
Abraham Lincoln (G. A. Billings)	Drama	Feb. 2..	9,759
Cytherea (all-star)	Society drama	May 21..	7,142
Why Men Leave Home (J. M. Stahl prod.)	Comedy-drama	May 3..	8,002
Woman on the Jury (all-star)	Drama	May 17..	7,408
Son of the Sahara (all-star)	Melodrama	May 24..	7,603
Sea Hawk (all-star)	Romantic drama	June 14..	11,527
Marriage Cheat (all-star)	Drama	June 21..	6,622
Those Who Dance (Ince prod.)	Drama		7,512
White Moth (LaMarr)	Drama	June 21..	6,571
Perfect Flapper (C. Moore)	Comedy	June 28..	7,030
Self-Made Failure (B. Alexander)	Comedy	June 28..	7,285
For Sale (all-star)	Drama	July 5..	7,304
Born Rich (C. Windsor)	Society drama	Dec. 20..	7,389
Single Wives (C. Griffith)	Society drama	Aug. 9..	7,526
Girl in the Limousine (Semon)	Farce comedy	Aug. 30..	5,260
Flirting With Love (C. Moore)	Comedy	Sep. 6..	6,926
In Hollywood With Potash and Perlmutter (all-star)	Comedy	Sep. 20..	6,685
Husbands and Lovers (all-star)	Dom. drama	Nov. 8..	7,822
Madonna of the Streets (Nazimova)	Drama	Oct. 25..	7,674
Tarnish (all-star)	Comedy-drama		6,907
Her Night of Romance (C. Talmadge)	Comedy	Dec. 6..	7,211
In Every Woman's Life (all-star)	Drama	Nov 15..	6,298
Sandra (LaMarr)	Drama	Dec. 6..	7,905
Classmates (R. Barthelmess)	Drama	Nov. 29..	6,923
Christine of the Hungry Heart (Vidor)	Drama	Nov. 1..	7,678
Silent Watcher (Glenn Hunter)	Drama	Oct. 18..	7,530
Love's Wilderness (Griffith)	Drama	Dec. 20..	7,037
So Big (C. Moore)	Drama	Jan. 17..	8,562
If I Marry Again (Doris Kenyon)	Drama	Jan. 24..	7,401
Idle Tongues (Marmont)	Comedy-drama	Dec. 27..	5,447
Sundown (all-star)	Western epic	Oct. 25..	8,641
The Only Woman (N. Tadmadge)	Domestic dr	Nov 15..	6,770
Inez from Hollywood (Nilsson-Stone-Astor)	Heart interest	Dec. 13..	6,967
Frivolous Sal (O'Brien-Busch-Alexander)	Western melo.	Jan. 17..	7,307
A Thief in Paradise (Doris Kenyon)	Melodrama	Jan. 24..	7,231
As Man Desires (Sills-Dana)	Melodrama	Jan. 31..	7,649

FOX FILM CORP.

	Kind of Picture	Review.	Feet
Just Off Broadway (Gilbert)	Drama	Feb. 2..	5,444
Not a Drum Was Heard (Jones)	Drama	Feb. 9..	4,323
The Net (Castleton)	Drama	Feb. 9..	6,000
Shadow of the East (all-star)	Drama	Feb. 16..	5,874
Ladies to Board (Mix)	Comedy-drama	Feb. 23..	6,112
Blizzard (all-star)	Northern drama	Mar. 1..	5,800
Love Letters (Mason)	Comedy-drama	Mar. 8..	4,749
Wolf Man (Gilbert)	Drama	Mar. 15..	5,145
Vagabond Trail (Jones)	Drama	Mar. 22..	4,562
Arizona Express (D. Butler)	Railroad drama	Mar. 29..	6,316
Plunderer (Mayo)	Drama	Apr. 5..	5,000
A Man's Mate (Gilbert)	Drama	Apr. 5..	5,812
New England Farm	Instructive	Apr. 12..	1,000
Circus Cowboy (Jones)	Western drama	May 3..	6,400
Slippery Decks	Card expose	May 3..	1,000
Trouble Shooter (Mix)	Western drama	May 17..	5,702
He's My Pal	Imperial comedy	May 17..	2,000
Lone Chance (Gilbert)	Western drama	May 24..	4,385
When Wise Ducks Meet	Comedy	May 24..	2,000
Western Luck (Jones)	Comedy-drama	June 28..	5,000
Magic Needle	"Etching"	June 28..	1,000
Romance Ranch (Gilbert)	Comedy-drama	July 12..	4,471
Heart Buster (Mix)	Comedy-drama	July 19..	4,500
Beaten Gold	Educational	July 19..	1,000
Against All Odds (Jones)	Comedy-drama	Aug. 9..	4,899
Pain as You Enter (Moran)	Comedy	Aug. 9..	2,000
That French Lady (Mason)	Comedy-drama	Aug. 16..	5,470
Man Who Came Back (special)	Drama	Sep. 6..	8,273
Desert Outlaw (Jones)	Drama
Wolves of the Night (W. Farnum)	Drama
It Is the Law (all-star)	Drama	Sep. 13..	6,895
Dante's Inferno (special)	Drama	Oct. 11..	5,480
Cyclone Rider (all-star)	Drama	Sep. 20..	6,672
Last of the Duanes (Mix)	Drama	Aug. 30..	6,942
Iron Horse (special)	Railway drama	Sep. 13..	11,400
The Hunt	Van Bibber com.
Conquerer (W. Farnum)	Reissue
The Fight (all-star)	Drama
Oh, You Tony (Mix and Tony)	Comedy-drama	Sep. 27..	6,302
Winner Take All (Jones)	Comedy-drama	Oct. 25..	5,949
Hearts of Oak (all-star)	Drama	Oct. 11..	5,336
Great Diamond Mystery (Mason)	Comedy-drama	Nov. 1..	5,096
Warrens of Virginia (all-star)	Drama	Nov. 1..	6,535
The Race	Van Bibber com.
End of the Trail (W. Farnum)	Drama
Rambles of a Raindrop	Instructive	Sep. 27..	1,000
Daughters of the Night (all-star)	Modern drama		5,701
Painted Lady (Mackaill)	Modern drama	Oct. 4..	6,936
Jerusalem Today	Instructive	Oct. 4..	1,000
Last Man on Earth	Novelty special	Dec. 27..
Gold Heels	Race track dr.		6,637
Flames of Desire	Love drama		5,438
The Dancers	Drama	Jan. 24..	6,656
The Folly of Vanity	Dramatic fantasy
Teeth (Mix-Tony Duke)	Western drama	Nov. 15..	6,190
Tainted Souls	Modern drama
Darwin Was Right	Monkey novelty com.	Nov. 8..	4,992
Everyman's Wife	Modern mystery-drama
In Love With Love	Comedy drama	Jan. 3..	5,677
Hunting Wild Animals in Hollywood	Novelty
Honor Among Men (E. Lowe)	Romance-drama	Oct. 18..	4,960
Unreal News 4	Novelty	Oct. 11..	2,000
Van Bibber Series	Polite com.	Oct. 25..	2,000
Age of Oil	Educational	Nov. 1..	2,000
Deep Sea Panic (Parrott)	Comedy	Nov. 1..	2,000
Nickle Plated West	Sunshine comedy	Nov. 15..	2,000
The Bull Fight	Educational	Nov. 15..	1,000
My Husband's Wives (Mason-Washburn)	Comedy-dr.	Nov. 22..	4,509
Paul Jones, Jr.	Van Bibber com.	Nov. 22..	2,000
Finger Lakes	Instructive	Nov. 22..	1,000
Brass Bowl (Edmund Lowe)	Adventure dr.	Nov. 29..	5,861
Stolen Sweeties (Monkeys)	Comedy	Nov. 29..	2,000
Salt of the Earth	Educational	Nov. 29..	1,000
Gerald Cranston's Lady (James Kirkwood)	Domestic dr.	Dec. 6..	6,074
Masked Marvel (Parrott)	Comedy	Dec. 6..	2,000
The Roughneck (George O'Brien)	Melodrama	Dec. 13..	7,619
The Burglar	Van Bibber	Dec. 13..	2,000
Man Who Played Square (Jones)	Western drama	Dec. 20..	6,700
Deadwood Coach (Mix)	Western drama	Jan. 10..	6,346
Troubles of a Bride	Melodrama	Dec. 27..	4,915
Dick Turpin (Mix)	English drama
Hunted Woman	Melodrama
Arizona Romeo (Jones)	Western drama	Jan. 31..	4,694
Curlytop (Mason)	Melodrama	Jan. 10..	5,828
Stardust Trail (Mason)	Melodrama
Scuttlers (W.Farnum)	Western drama		4,686
Movie-Mad Maid (Babe London)	Slapstick	Dec. 20..	2,000
Roaring Lions at Home	Sunshine com.	Jan. 3..	2,000
Uncommon Clay	Educational	Jan. 3..	1,000
Up On the Farm (Lee Moran)	Comedy	Jan. 3..	2,000
The Violin Speaks	Educational	Jan. 10..	1,000
Dangerous Curves	Comedy	Jan. 10..	2,000
Milk Bottle Bandits	Comedy	Jan. 10..	2,000
Ports of Call (E. Lowe)	Regeneration dr.	Jan. 24..	5,500
Sleep Walker (Sid Smith)	Comedy	Jan. 24..	2,000
Hell-Roaring Range	Educational	Jan. 24..	1,000
Corsica the Beautiful	Educational	Jan. 31..	1,000

METRO-GOLDWYN

Through the Dark (Moore)	Drama	Jan. 29..	7,999
Yolanda (Davies)	Romance-dr.	Mar. 1..	10,125
Wild Oranges (all-star)	Drama	Mar. 15..	6,889
Nellie, Beautiful Cloak Model	Melodrama	Apr. 5..	6,598
Three Weeks (Pringle-Nagel)	Romantic dr.	Apr. 12..	7,483
Janice Meredith (Davies)	Romantic dr.	Aug. 23..	10,655
Rejected Woman (Rubens-Nagel)	Drama	May 3	7,761
Heart Bandit (Dana)	Comedy-dr.	Jan. 19..	4,909
Fool's Awakening (Ford)	Drama	Feb. 16..	5,763
Man Life Passed By (Marmont)	Drama	Mar. 1..	6,459
Thy Name Is Woman (LaMarr)	Drama	Mar. 1..	9,087
Uninvited Guest (Tolley)	Drama	Mar. 8..	6,145
Happiness (L. Taylor)	Comedy-dr.	Mar. 8..	7,414
Women Who Give (all-star)	Sea drama	Mar. 22..	7,500
Boy of Flanders (Coogan)	Comedy-dr.	Apr. 5..	7,018
Shooting of Dan McGrew (all-star)	Drama	Apr. 12..	6,318
Mademoiselle Midnight (Murray)	Drama	May 17.	6,778
Sherlock, Jr. (Keaton)	Comedy	May 17..	4,065
Arab (Novarro-Terry)	Drama	July 12..	6,710

(Continued from preceding page)

	Kind of Picture	Review.	Feet
Bread (all-star)	Drama	Aug. 2..	6,726
Tess of D'Urbervilles (Sweet)	Drama	Aug. 9..	7,736
Little Robinson Crusoe (Coogan)	Comedy dr	Aug. 16..	6,126
Broken Barriers (all-star)	Drama	Aug. 16..	5,717
True As Steel (all-star)	Drama	Jun. 28..	6,454
Revelation (Dana)	Drama	July 5..	8,752
Recoil (Blythe-Hamilton)	Drama	July 12..	7,089
Wine of Youth (all star)	Drama	July 26..	6,805
Along Came Ruth (Dana)	Comedy-dr.	Aug. 2..	5,161
Red Lily (Bennett-Novarro)	Drama	Aug. 16..	6,975
Sinners in Silk (Menjou-Boardman)	Drama	Aug. 30..	5,750
Circe, The Enchantress (Murray)	Drama	Sep. 13..	6,882
His Hour (Pringle)	Drama	Sep. 20..	6,300
One Night in Rome (L. Taylor)	Comedy-dr.	Sep. 27..	5,883
Navigator (Keaton)	Comedy	Sep. 13..	5,555
Bandolero (all star)	Drama	Oct. 11..	6 [illegible]
Great Divide (all star)	Drama
The Snob (all star)	Drama	Nov. 8..	6,513
He Who Gets Slapped (Chaney)	Drama	Nov. 15..	6,613
Rag Man (Coogan)	Comedy-dr.
Silent Accuser (Peter, the Great)	Dog drama	Nov. 22..	5,883
So This Is Marriage (all star)	Comedy-dr.	Jan. 3..	6,300
Beauty Prize (Dana)	Comedy-dr.	Oct. 11..	5,750
Ben Hur (special cast)	Drama
Merry Widow (Murray)	Comedy-dr.
The Scandal (Novarro)	Drama
Seven Chances (Keaton)	Comedy
Sporting Venus (Sweet)	Drama
Married Flirts (all-star)	Drama	Oct. 25..	6,765
Temptress (Cosmopolitan)
The Square Peg
Zander, the Great (Cosmopolitan)
Romola (Lillian Gish)	Famous novel	Dec. 13..	12,974
Greed (Von Stroheim prod.)	Special	Dec. 20..	10,067
Chu-Chin-Chow (B. Blythe)	Spectacle
Wife of the Centaur	Drama	Jan. 17..	6,586
Dixie Handicap (Windsor-Keenan)	Drama	Jan. 10..	6,905
Cheaper to Marry (All Star)	Drama
A Man's World (Joyce-Marmont)	Drama

PARAMOUNT

Ten Commandments (all star)	Spectacular dr	Jan. 5..	12,000
Fighting Coward (Cruze prod.)	Satirical dr	Mar. 29..	6,433
Dawn of a To-morrow (Logan)	Slum dr	Apr. 5..	6,084
Singer Jim McKee (W. S. Hart)	Western	Apr. 12..	7,008
Breaking Point (all star)	West-Metropolitan	Apr. 19..	6,664
Confidence Man (Meighan)	Romance dr	Apr. 26..	6,500
Moral Sinner (Dalton)	Crook melo	Apr. 26..	5,489
Triumph (C. DeMille prod.)	Theatrical dr	May 3..	8,292
Bluff (Ayres-Moreno)	Drama	May 10..	6,504
Men (Negri)	Society dr	May 17..	6,700
Wanderer of Wasteland (Holt-Technicolor)	Western	May 31..	6,086
Code of the Sea (LaRocque-Logan)	Sea melodr	Jun. 7..	6,550
Bedroom Window (W. DeMille prod.)	Mystery dr	Jun. 21..	6,550
Guilty One (Ayres)	Heavy mystery	Jun. 28..	5,365
Tiger Love (Melford prod.)	Modern dr	Jun. 28..	5,325
Changing Husbands (Joy)	Dual role dr	July 5..	6,799
Unguarded Women (Daniels-Dix)	Society dr	July 5..	6,051
Enemy Sex (Compson)	Romantic dr	July 12..	7,861
Side Show of Life (Torrence)	Clown dr	Aug. 2..	7,511
Manhandled (Swanson)	Comedy-dr.	Aug. 9..	6,908
Man Who Fights Alone (W. Farnum)	Drama	Aug. 9..	6,337
Monsieur Beaucaure (Valentino)	Spectacle melo	Aug. 23..	9,932
Empty Hands (Holt)	Forest Melo	Aug. 30..	6,976
Lily of the Dust (Negri)	Drama	Sep. 6..	6,811
The Female (Compson)	Society dr	Sep. 13..	6,167
Merton of the Movies (Hunter)	Travesty	Sep. 20..	7,655
Sinners in Heaven (Daniels-Dix)	Drama	Sep. 20..	6,621
Open All Night (all star)	Demestic dr	Sep. 20..	6,881
Feet of Clay (C. DeMille prod.)	Drama	Oct. 4..	9,741
Alaskan (Meighan)	Drama	Sep. 27..	6,167
Her Love Story (Swanson)	Romance dr	Oct. 11..	6,736
Story Without a Name (Ayres-Moreno)	Prize title	Oct. 18..	5,912
Dangerous Money (Daniels)	Comedy-dr.	Oct. 25..	6,864
Border Legion (Moreno)	Drama	Nov. 1..	7,048
Worldly Goods (Ayres)	Drama	Nov. 15—	6,055
Fast Set (Compson-Menjou)	Domestic dr	Nov. 29..	6,574
Forbidden Paradise (Negri)	Drama	Nov. 29..	7,000
Sainted Devil (Valentino)	Drama	Dec. 6..	8,633
City That Never Sleeps (Cruze prod.)	Mother-love melo.	Oct. 11..	6,097
Manhattan (Dix)	Romantic com.	Nov. 8..	6,415
Garden of Weeds (Compson)	Drama	Nov. 15..	6,230
Wages of Virtue (Swanson)	Drama	Dec. 6..	7,093
Tongues of Flame (Meighan-Love)	Melodrama	Dec. 27..	6,763
North of 36 (Torrence-Holt-Wilson)	Historic romance	Dec. 13..	7,908
Argentine Love (Daniels-Cortez)	Spanish romance	Jan. 3..	5,970
Peter Pan (Betty Bronson)	Barrie classic	Jan. 3..	9,593
Locked Doors (Compson)	Original story	Jan. 24..	6,221
Tomorrow's Love (Ayres)	Divorce com-dr.	Jan. 24..	5,903
East of Suez (Negri)	Drama	Jan. 17..	6,821
Miss Bluebeard (Daniels)	The stage success
Golden Bed (LaRocque)	Drama of classes	Jan. 31..	8,584
Man Must Live (Dix)	Newspaper romance		6,116
Coming Through (Meighan)	New type Meighan story
The Devil's Cargo (Starke)	Drama of Old California
Lord Chumley (Dana-Griffith-Roberts)	Stage success
Top of the World (Nilsson-Kirkwood)	Africa and England		7,167
The Swan (Menjou-Howard)	Stage success
Contraband (Wilson-Noah Beery)	Bootleg drama		6,773
Madame Sans Gene (Swanson)	World Famous drama
The Wandering Herd (Holt-Wilson)	Buffalo stampede
Forty Winks (Dana-Roberts-Griffith)	Comedy		6,293
Goose Hangs High (Cruze production)	Typical		6,186

PATHE

Zeb Versus Paprika	Stan Laurel	Mar. 15..	2,000
Why Mice Leave Home	Terry cartoon	Mar. 15..	1,000
Wolfe and Montcalm	Chronicles of America	Mar. 22..	3,000
Scarem Much	Sennett comedy	Mar. 22..	2,000
Fields of Glory	"Sportlight"	Mar. 22..	1,000
Hunters Bold	"Spat Family"	Mar. 22..	2,000
From Rags to Riches and Back Again	Terry cartoon	Mar. 22..	1,000
Don't Forget	Charles Chase	Mar. 22..	1,000
King of Wild Horses	Rex (horse)	Mar. 29..	5,000
Big Moments From Little Pictures	Will Rogers	Mar. 29..	2,000
Fraidy Cat	Charles Chase	Mar. 29..	1,000
Shanghaied Lovers	Harry Langdon	Mar. 29..	2,000
The Champion	Terry cartoon	Mar. 29..	1,000
Dirty Little Half Breed	Frontier series	Mar. 29..	2,000
Seein' Things	"Our Gang"	Apr. 5.	2,000
Birds of Passage	Bird Novelty	Apr. 5 .	3,000

	Kind of Picture	Review.	Feet
Running Wild	Terry cartoon	Apr. 5..	1,000
Friend Husband	Snub Pollard	Apr. 5..	1,000
The Swift and Strong	"Sportlight"	Apr. 5..	1,000
Girl-Shy	Harold Lloyd	Apr. 12..	7,457
Our Little Nell	"Dippy Doo Dads"	Apr. 12..	1,000
Medicine Hat	Frontier series	Apr. 12..	2,000
Brothers Under the Chin	Stan Laurel	Apr. 12..	2,000
Gateway of the West	8th Chronicle	Apr. 19..	3,000
The Hollywood Kid	Sennett comedy	Apr. 19..	2,000
Hit the High Spots	"Spat Family"	Apr. 19..	2,000
One at a Time	Earl Mohan	Apr. 19..	1,000
If Noah Lived Today	Terry cartoon	Apr. 19..	1,000
A Trip to the Pole	Terry cartoon	Apr. 26..	1,000
Sun and Snow	"Sportlight"	Apr. 26..	1,000
Get Busy	Snub Pollard	Apr. 26..	1,000
Highbrow Stuff	Will Rogers	Apr. 26..	2,000
Flickering Youth	Sennett comedy	Apr. 26..	2,000
Commencement Day	"Our Gang"	May 3..	2,000
An Ideal Farm	Terry cartoon	May 3..	1,000
Homeless Pups	Terry cartoon	May 3..	1,000
Sporting Speed	"Sportlight"	May 3..	1,000
Publicity Pays	Charles Chase	May 3..	1,000
When Winter Comes	Terry cartoon	May 10..	1,000
Near Dublin	Stan Laurel	May 10..	2,000
North of 50-50	"Dippy Doo Dads"	May 10..	1,000
The Fortieth Door	Allene Ray—serial	May 17..
April Fool	Charles Chase	May 17..	2,000
The Pilgrims	Chronicle series	May 17..	3,000
Fishin' Fever	"Sportlight"	May 17..	2,000
Black Oxfords	Sennett comedy	May 17..	2,000
Bottle Babies	"Spat Family"	May 17..	2,000
Going to Congress	Will Rogers	May 24..	2,000
Position Wanted	Charles Chase	May 24..	1,000
The Cat's Meow	Sennett comedy	May 24..	2,000
Cradle Robbers	"Our Gang"	May 31..	2,000
Building Winners	"Sportlight"	May 31..	1,000
Before Taking	Earl Mohan	May 31..	1,000
Rupert of Hee-Haw	Stan Laurel	June 7..	2,000
Yukon Jake	Ben Turpin	June 7..	2,000
Up and At 'Em	"Dippy Doo Dads"	June 7..	1,000
The Flying Carpet	Terry cartoon	June 7..	1,000
Declaration of Independence	"Chronicles"	June 14..	3,000
Fast Black	Mohan-Engle	June 14..	1,000
Lion and the Souse	Sennett comedy	June 14..	2,000
On Guard	"Sportlight"	June 14..	1,000
Suffering Shakespeare	"Spat Family"	June 14..	2,000
Young Oldfield	Charles Chase	June 21..	1,000
His New Mama	Sennett comedy	June 21..	2,000
Don't Park There	Will Rogers	June 21..	2,000
Her Memory	Will Nigh Miniature	June 21..	1,000
Solitude and Fame	"Sportlight"	June 28..	1,000
Stolen Goods	Charles Chase	June 28..	1,000
Jubilo, Jr.	"Our Gang"	June 28..	2,000
Jeffries, Jr.	Charles Chase	July 5..	1,000
The Wide Open Spaces	Stan Laurel	July 5..	2,000
The Body in the Bag	Terry cartoon	July 5..	1,000
Yorktown	Chronicles of America	July 12..	3,000
Why Hushands Go Mad	Charles Chase	July 12..	1,000
Desert Sheiks	Terry cartoon	July 12..	1,000
Radio Mad	"Spat Family"	July 12..	2,000
Maud Miller	Special	July 19..	2,000
Our Congressman	Will Rogers	July 19..	2,000
A Woman's Hour	Terry cartoon	July 19..	1,000
A Ten-Minute Egg	Charles Chase	July 19..	1,000
It's a Bear	"Our Gang"	July 26..	2,000
The Sport of Kings	Terry cartoon	July 26..	1,000
Our Defenders	"Sportlight"	July 26..	1,000
Seeing Nellie Home	Charles Chase	July 26..	1,000
Into the Net	Mulhall-Murphy serial	Aug. 2..
Romeo and Juliet	Sennett comedy	Aug. 2..	2,000
Flying Fever	Terry cartoon	Aug. 2..	1,000
Short Kilts	Hal Roach comedy	Aug. 2..	2,000
A Hard Boiled Tenderfoot	"Spat Family"	Aug. 9..	2,000
The Puritans	"Chronicles" series	Aug. 9..	3,000
Amelia Comes Back	Terry cartoon	Aug. 9..	1,000
The First Hundred Years	Sennett comedy	Aug. 16..	2,000
A Truthful Liar	Will Rogers	Aug. 16..	2,000
The Battling Orioles	Special	Aug. 23..	5,000
East of the Water Plug	Sennett comedy	Aug. 23..	2,000
High Society	"Our Gang"	Aug. 23..	2,000
The Prodigal Pup	Terry cartoon	Aug. 23..	1,000
Hoofbeats	"Sportlight"	Aug. 23..	1,000
House Cleaning	Terry cartoon	Aug. 23..	1,000
Alexander Hamilton	"Chronicles" series	Sep. 6..	3,000
Lizzies of the Field	Sennett comedy	Sep. 6..	2,000
Barnyard Olympics	Terry cartoon	Sep. 6..	1,000
South of the North Pole	"Spat Family"	Sep. 6..	2,000
One Third Off	Cohb-Rice comedy	Sep. 6..	2,000
The Happy Years	"Sportlight"	Sep. 6..	1,000
Why Men Work	Charles Chase	Sep. 6..	1,000
Message From the Sea	Terry cartoon	Sep. 6..	1,000
Luck of the Foolish	Harry Langdon	Sep. 13..	2,000
Outdoor Pajamas	Charles Chase	Sep. 13..	2,000
Three Foolish Weeks	Ben Turpin	Sep. 13..	2,000
In Good Old Summertime	Terry cartoon	Sep. 13..	1,000
Danger Lure	Sportlight	Oct. 11..	1,000
Dixie	Chronicles	Oct. 11..	3,000
Goofy Age (Glenn Tryon)	Comedy	Oct. 11..	2,000
10 Scars Make a Man (Allene Ray)	Serial	Oct. 18..
Black Magic	Terry cartoon	Oct. 18..	1,000
Sporting Rhythm	Sportlight	Oct. 18..	1,000
Riders of the Purple Cow	Sennett com.	Oct. 18..	2,000
Every Man for Himself	Our Gang	Oct. 18..	2,000
Hot Water (Harold Lloyd)	Feature com.	Oct. 18..	5,000
On Leave of Absence	Detective	Oct. 25..	2,000
Bungalow Boobs (Chase)	Comedy	Oct. 25..	1,000
Sky Plumber (Arthur Stone)	Comedy	Oct. 25..	2,000
Galloping Bungalows	Sennett com.	Nov. 1..	2,000
Stunts	Sportlight	Nov. 1..	1,000
Hot Stuff	Spat family	Nov. 1..	2,000
Cat and the Magnet	Terry cartoon	Nov. 1..	1,000
Fast Company	Our Gang	Nov. 15..	2,000
She Knew Her Man	Terry cartoon	Nov. 15..	1,000
Gridiron Glory	Sportlight	Nov. 15..	1,000
Love's Sweet Piffle (R. Graves)	Comedy	Nov. 22..	2,000
Are Blond Men Bashful? (Stone)	Comedy	Nov. 22..	2,000
Out of the Storm	Detective	Nov. 22..	2,000
Good Old Circus Days	Terry cartoon	Nov. 22..	1,000
All Wet (Chase)	Comedy	Nov. 29..	1,000
Deaf, Dumb and Daffy	Spat Family	Nov. 29..	2,000
Cannon-Ball Express	Sennett com.	Nov. 29..	2,000

	Kind of Picture	Review.	Feet
Champions	Sportlight	Nov. 29..	1,000
Lumber Jacks	Terry cartoon	Nov. 29..	1,000
White Sheep (Glenn Tryon)	Special dr.	Dec. 6..	6,091
Feet of Mud (Sennett cast)	Comedy	Dec. 6..	2,000
Meet the Missus (Tryon)	Comedy	Dec. 6..	2,000
Bucking the Bucket Shop	Detective series	Dec. 6..	2,000
She's In Again	Terry cartoon	Dec. 6..	1,000
Mysterious Mystery	Our Gang	Dec. 13..	2,000
Off His Trolley (R. Graves)	Sennett com.	Dec. 13..	2,000
Noah's Athletic Club	Terry cartoon	Dec. 13..	1,000
Just a Good Guy (Stone) ..	Comedy	Dec. 20..	2,000
Royal Razz (Chase)	Comedy	Dec. 20..	1,000
Mysteries of Old Chinatown	Terry cartoon	Dec. 20..	1,000
Nature's Rouge	Sportlight	Dec. 20..	1,000
Rubber Neck	Spat Family ..	Dec. 27..	2,000
Bull and Sand	Sennett comedy	Dec. 27..	2,000
Invaders	Sportlight	Dec. 27..	1,000
Down on the Farm	Terry cartoon	Dec. 27..	1,000
The Sea Squawk	Sennett com.	Jan. 3..	2,000
On the Ice	Terry cartoon	Jan. 3..	1,000
Galloping Hoofs (Allene Ray)	Serial	Jan. 3..
Wages of Tin (Tryon)	Comedy	Jan. 3..	2,000
Rat's Knuckles (Chase)	Comedy	Jan. 10..	1,000
Rough and Tumbling	Sportlight	Jan. 10..	1,000
Our Game Pup	Terry cartoon	Jan. 10..	1,000
The Big Town (Our Gang)	Comedy	Jan. 10..	2,000
Plumber (Graves)	Comedy	Jan. 10..	2,000
Wild Goose Chaser (Turpin)	Sennett Com.	Jan. 17..	2,000
Hello Baby (Chase)	Comedy	Jan. 17..	1,000
Laugh That Off	Spat Family	Jan. 24..	2,000
Honeymoon Hardships	Sennett comedy	Jan. 24..	2,000
Brain and Brawn	Sportlight	Jan. 24..	1,000
Boobs in the Woods (Langdon)	Sennett comedy	Jan. 31..	2,000
Hold That Thought	Terry cartoon	Jan. 31..	1,000
Fighting Fluid (Chas. Chase)	Comedy	Jan. 31..	1,000

PRINCIPAL PICTURES

Listen Lester (all-star)	Comedy-drama	May 10..	6,242
Daring Youth (Daniels)	Comedy drama	May 17..	5,975
Daughters of Pleasure (Prevost)	Drama	May 24..	6,000
Masked Dancer (H. Chadwick)	Mystery drama	May 31..	4,987
Good Bad Boy (Joe Butterworth)	Comedy-drama	June 7..	5,198
Captain January (Baby Peggy)	Sea story	July 12..	6,194
Helen's Babies (Baby Peggy)	Comedy-drama
Mine With Iron Door (all-star)	Adventure drama	Dec. 27..	7,800
Re-Creation of Brian Kent	Drama

PRODUCERS DISTRIBUTING CORP.

Grit (G. Hunter)	Crook dr.	Jan. 12..	5,500
Love's Whirlpool (Lee-Kirkwood)	Drama	Mar. 22..	6,605
Hoosier Schoolmaster (Hull)	Drama	Mar. 29..	5,556
His Darker Self (L. Hamilton)	Comedy	Apr. 5..	5,000
Try and Get It (Washburn)	Comedy-dr.	Apr. 12..	5,607
Not One to Spare (all star)	Pathos dr.	Apr. 19..	5,000
Wandering Husbands (Lee-Kirkwood)	Drama	May 10..	6,300
Hold Your Breath (Devore)	Thrill com.	Jun. 7..	5,900
Miami (Compson)	Drama	Jun. 14..	6,317
Night Hawk (Carey)	Western	Jun. 14..	5,115
Lightning Rider (Carey)	Western	Jun. 21..	6,000
What Shall I Do? (Mackaill)	Drama	Jun. 28..	8,000
Legend of Hollywood (Marmont)	Drama	Jan. 10..	5,414
Wise Virgin (Miller)	Drama		5,951
Welcome Stranger (Vidor)	Comedy-dr.	Oct. 25..	6,618
Ramshackle House (Compson)	Comedy-dr.		6,257
Barbara Frietchie (Vidor)	Civ. War dr.	Oct. 11..	7,179
Chalk Marks (M. Snow)	Drama
House of Youth (Logan)	Drama		6,669
Roaring Rails (Carey)	Railway dr.	Oct. 25..	5,753
Another Scandal (Lois Wilson)	Sex theme	Nov. 1..	7,000
Another Man's Wife (Lee-Kirkwood)	Drama		5,015
Trouping With Ellen (H. Chadwick)	Comedy-dr.		6,452
Reckless Romance	Comedy feature	Nov. 22..	5,530
Siren of Seville (Dean)	Drama	Nov. 29..	6,724
Girl on the Stairs (Miller)	Comedy-dr.		6,214
Chorus Lady (Livingston)	Comedy-dr.		6,020
Cafe in Cairo (Dean)	Drama		5,656
Flaming Forties (Carey)	Western		5,770
The Mirage (Vidor)	Drama
Let Women Alone (O'Malley-Hawley)	Drama
Soft Shoes (Carey)	Western
Off the Highway (Logan)	Drama

B. P. SCHULBERG PROD.

Breath of Scandal (Blythe)	Society drama		6,940
White Man (Joyce)	Jungle romance	Nov. 22..	6,370
Triflers (Busch-Mayo)	Paris soc. dr.	Dec. 27..	6,626
Capital Punishment (Clara Bow)	Prison dr.	Jan. 24..	5,950
Boomerang (Clara Bow)	Comedy-dr.
Parasite (Bellamy-Moore-Washburn)	Drama	Jan. 31..	5,140

SELZNICK

(Through Associated Exhibitors)

Woman to Woman (Compson)	Drama	Apr. 26..	6,304
$20 a Week (Arliss)	Drama	Jun. 21..	5,900
White Shadow (Compson)	Drama
Bowery Bishop	Slum dr.

UNITED ARTISTS

Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall (Pickford)	Romantic drama	May 17..	9,351
America (Griffith prod.)	Historical drama	Mar. 8..	11,442
Isn't Life Wonderful? (Dempster)	Realism	Dec. 13..	8,000
Thief of Bagdad (D. Fairbanks)	Fantasy	Mar. 29..	12,000

UNIVERSAL

Hats Off (Morrison)	Drama	Feb. 9.	2,000
Down in Jungle Town (Joe Martin)	Monkey comedy	Feb. 9.	1,000
Fast Express (W. Duncan)	Railway serial	Feb. 9..
Jack o' Clubs (Rawlinson)	Western dr.	Feb. 16..	4,717
Lone Larry (Sedgwick)	Comedy	Feb. 16..	2,000
You're Next	Century comedy	Feb. 16..	2,000
The Jail Bird (Edwards)	Comedy	Feb. 16..	1,000
Ride for Your Life (Gibson)	Western	Mar. 1..	5,310
Society Sensation (Valentino)	Reissue	Mar. 1..	2,000
Very Bad Man (Edwards)	Comedy	Mar. 1..	1,000
Peg of the Mounted (Baby Peggy)	Comedy	Mar. 1..	2,000

	Kind of Picture	Review	Feet
Law Forbids (Baby Peggy)	Feature dr.	Mar. 8..	6,263
Swing Bad the Sailor	Leather Pushers	Mar. 8..	2,000
Sons-in-Law	Century com.	Mar. 8..	2,000
Should Poker Players Marry (Edwards)	Comedy	Mar. 8..	1,000
Fool's Highway (Philbin)	Drama	Mar. 15..	6,800
Big Boy Blue	Leather Pushers	Mar. 15..	2,000
The Oriental Game (Pal)	Century com.	Mar. 15..	2,000
Keep Healthy (Summerville)	Comedy	Mar. 15..	1,000
Phantom Horseman (Hoxie)	Western	Mar. 15..	4,889
Stolen Secrets (Rawlinson)	Drama	Mar. 22..	4,742
Young Tenderfoot (Messinger)	Comedy	Mar. 22..	2,000
Nobody to Love (Edwards)	Comedy	Mar. 22..	1,000
Night Message (Hulette)	Drama	Mar. 29..	4,531
Ship Ahoy (Dunn)	Comedy	Mar. 29..	1,000
That's Rich (Trimble)	Comedy	Mar. 29..	2,000
Galloping Ace (Hoxie)	Western	Apr. 5..	4,561
Hit Him Hard (Earle)	Comedy	Apr. 5..	2,000
Marry When Young (Edwards)	Comedy	Apr. 5..	1,000
Checking Out (Pal)	Century com.	Apr. 12..	2,000
Spring of 1964 (Edwards)	Comedy	Apr. 12..	1,000
Excitement (LaPlante)	Comedy-dr.	Apr. 19..	4,913
Storm Daughter (Dean)	Drama	Apr. 19..	5,203
Racing Kid (Messinger)	Comedy	Apr. 19..	2,000
Forty Horse Hawkins (Gibson)	Western	Apr. 26..	5,140
One Wet Night (Edwards)	Comedy	Apr. 26..	1,000
Pretty Plungers (Follies Girls)	Century com.	Apr. 26..	2,000
Riders Up (Hale)	Race drama	May 3..	4,904
Politics (Summerville)	Comedy	May 3..	1,000
Green Grocers (Dunn)	Comedy	May 3..	1,000
A Lotty Marriage (Earle)	Comedy	May 3..	2,000
Taxi, Taxi!	Comedy	May 10..	2,000
Pigskin Hero (McCoy)	Comedy	May 10..	2,000
Bulltosser (Lyons-Moran)	Relssue	May 10..	1,000
Dangerous Blonde (LaPlante)	Comedy-dr.	May 17..	4,919
Fast Steppers (New Series)	Race dr.	May 10..	2,000
Ridgeway of Montana (Hoxie)	Western	May 17..	4,843
My Little Brother (Summerville)	Comedy	May 17..	1,000
The Lone Round-Up (Dougherty)	Short Western	May 17..	2,000
The Signal Tower (Super-Jewel)	Drama	May 24..	6,714
Tired Business Man (Alt-Follies Girls)	Comedy	May 24..	2,000
Honor of Men (N. Hart re-issue)	Western	May 24..	2,000
Reckless Age (Denny)	Drama	May 31..	6,954
Fighting American (all star)	Drama	May 31..	5,251
Case Dismissed (Summerville)	Comedy	May 31..	1,000
Boss of the Bar-20 (Lawrence)	Western	May 31..	2,000
Delivering the Goods (Pal)	Comedy	May 31..	2,000
The Gaiety Girl (Philbin)	Drama	Jun. 7..	7,419
High Speed (Rawlinson)	Drama	Jun. 7..	4,927
Fearless Fools (McCoy)	Century com.	Jun. 7..	2,000
Rest in Pieces (Roach)	Comedy	Jun. 7..	1,000
Powerful Eye (Morrison)	Short Western	Jun. 7..	2,000
Sailor Maids (Follies Girls)	Comedy	Jun. 14..	2,000
Winning a Bride (Ridgeway)	Comedy	Jun. 14..	2,000
Family Secret (Baby Peggy)	Comedy-dr.	Jun. 21..	5,076
Back Trail (Hoxie)	Western	Jun. 21..	4,615
Fight and Win (Jack Dempsey)	Fight series	Jun. 21..	...
Please Teacher (Messinger)	Comedy	Jun. 21..	2,000
Miners Over 21 (Summerville)	Comedy	Jun. 21..	1,000
Blue Wing's Revenge (Lawrence)	Western	Jun. 28..	2,000
Dark Stairway (Rawlinson)	Drama	Jun. 28..	5,000
Iron Man (Albertini)	Serial	Jun. 28..	...
Behind the Curtain (Bryson)	Drama	July 5..	4,875
A Royal Pair	Century com.	July 5..	2,000
Why Be Jealous? (Roach)	Comedy	July 5..	1,000
Young Ideas (LaPlante)	Comedy-dr.	July 12..	4,005
Her Fortunate Face	Century com.	July 12..	2,000
Little Savage	Short Western	July 12..	2,000
Sawdust Trail (Gibson)	Western	July 19..	5,500
Cry Baby (Summerville)	Comedy	July 19..	1,000
Starving Beauties (Wiley)	Comedy	July 26..	2,000
Flying Eagle (Lawrence)	Short Western	July 26..	2,000
Patching Things Up (Roach)	Comedy	July 26..	2,000
Fighting Fury (Hoxie)	Western	Aug. 2..	4,491
Kid Days (Snooky)	Comedy	Aug. 2..	1,000
Her City Sport (Wiley)	Comedy	Aug. 2..	2,000
The Gun Packer (Morrison)	Western	Aug. 2..	2,000
Big Timber (Desmond)	Forest dr.	Aug. 9..	4,650
Paging Money	Century com.	Aug. 9..	2,000
King's Command (Lawrence)	Short Western	Aug. 9..	2,000
Love and Glory (all star)	Drama	Aug. 16..	7,084
Hit and Run (Gibson)	Baseball dr.	Aug. 16..	5,504
Wolves of the North (Duncan)	Serial	Aug. 16..	...
Wine (C. Bow)	Drama	Aug. 23..	6,220
Hysterical History (Z Series)	Novelty	Aug. 23..	1,000
Sagebush Vagabond	Western	Aug. 23..	2,000
Butterfly (LaPlante)	Comedy-dr.	Aug. 30..	7,472
The Blow Out (Messinger)	Comedy	Aug. 30..	2,000
K—The Unknown (Valli-Marmont)	Drama	Sep. 6..	8,146
All's Swell on the Ocean (Dempsey)	Fight and win	Sep. 6..	2,000
So This Is Paris (Dempsey)	Fight and win	Sep. 6..	2,000
Scared Stiff	Century com.	Sep. 6..	2,000
Mind the Baby (Pal)	Comdey	Sep. 13..	2,000
College Cowboy	Western	Sep. 13..	2,000
Traffic Jams (McCoy)	Comedy	Sep. 13..	2,000
Tempest Cody Gets Her Man (Walcamp)	Western	Sep. 13..	2,000
That's the Spirit (Roach)	Comedy	Sep. 13..	1,000
Measure of a Man (Desmond)	Drama	Sep. 20..	4,979
Fast Worker (Denny-LaPlante)	Drama	Sep. 20..	6,506
Low Bridge (Messinger)	Comdey	Sep. 27..	2,000
Game Hunter (Roach)	Comdey	Sep. 27..	1,000
Between Fires	Western	Sep. 27..	2,000
Rose of Paris (Philbin)	Drama	Oct. 4..	6,362
Rip Van Winkle	Hysterical Hist.	Oct. 4..	1,000
Trouble Fixer	Century com.	Oct. 4..	2,000
Western Wallop (Hoxie)	Ex-convict dr.	Oct. 11..	4,611
Hello, Frisco (Summerville-Dunn)	Comedy	Oct. 11..	1,000
Snappy Eyes (Wiley)	Comedy	Oct. 11..	2,000
An Eyeful (Sullivan)	Short drama	Oct. 11..	2,000
Pocahontas & John Smith	Hysterical hist.	Oct. 18..	1,000
What an Eye	Comedy	Oct. 18..	2,000
Ridin' Kid From Powder River (Gibson)	Western	Oct. 25..	5,727
Riddle Rider (Desmond-Sedgwick)	Serial	Nov. 1..
Robinson Crusoe	Hysterical hist.	Nov. 1..	1,000
Some Tomboy (Wiley)	Comedy	Nov. 1..	2,000
The Tornado (H. Peters)	Melodrama	Nov. 15..	6,375
Sweet Dreams	Century comedy	Nov. 15..	2,000
Antony and Cleopatra	Gysterical History	Nov. 15..	1,000
Speed, Boys (Trimble, Bobbles)	Century (kid)	Nov. 22..	2,000
Oh, Doctor (R. Denny)	Comedy	Nov. 29..	6,587
Omar Khayyan (Hysterical history)	Comedy	Nov. 29..	1,000
Double Cross (Sullivan)	Drama	Nov. 29..	2,000
Smouldering Fires (Frederick-LaPlante)	Drama	Dec. 13..	7,356
Hurricane Kid (Gibson)	Western	Jan. 3..	5,296
Secrets of the Night (Kirkwood-Bellamy)	Drama	Dec. 20..	6,138

(Continued from preceding page)

	Kind of Picture	Review.	Feet
Mad Whirl (May MacAvoy)	Comedy-dr.	Dec. 27..	6,184
Price of Pleasure (Valli-Kerry)	Drama
Saddle Hawk (Gibson)	Western dr.
Raffles (House Peters)	Drama
Eyes of Fools (Rubens-Marmont)	Society dr.	Jan. 24..	6,581
Fifth Avenue Models (Mary Philbin)	Drama		5,922
Up The Ladder (Valli)	Drama	Jan. 31..
Love Cargo (House Peters)	Drama
Let 'Er Back (Gibson)	Western	Jan. 3..	5,500
Dangerous Innocence (LaPlante-O'Brien)	Drama
Ridin' Thunder (Jack Hoxie)	Western
Man in Blue (Rawlinson-Bellamy)	Drama
Meddler (Desmond)	Drama
Taming the West (Gibson)	Western
Dom Dare-Devil (Hoxie)	Western
Red Clay (Desmond)	Drama
Paul Revere	Hysterical histy.	Dec. 20..	1,000
Border Maid (Ed Cobb)	Drama	Dec. 20..	2,000
Family Row (Messinger)	Comedy	Dec. 20..	2,000
Present Arms (Wiley)	Comedy	Dec. 27..	2,000
Red Age (Sullivan)	Drama	Jan. 3..	2,000
Ponce de Leon	Hysterical history	Jan. 3..	1,000
Prehistoric Man	Hysterical history	Jan. 3..	1,000
Sign of the Cactus (Hoxie)	Western	Jan. 10..	4,938
Ridin' Pretty (Desmond-Forrest)	Western com.-dr.	Jan. 17..	4,812
Looking Down (Wiley)	Comedy	Jan. 24..	2,000
Aggravatin' Kid (Messinger)	Comedy	Jan. 31..	2,000
Pistol Point Proposal (Eddie Polo)	Western dr.	Jan. 31..	2,000
Whip Hand (Billy Sullivan)	Western dr.	Jan. 31..	2,000
Rembrandt	Hysterical histy.	Jan. 31..	1,000

VITAGRAPH

Between Friends (Tellegen-Nilsson)	Society dr.	Apr. 26..		6,936
Virtuous Liars (Allen-Powell)	Society dr.	Apr. 19..		5,650
One Law For The Woman (Landis)	Mining camp			6,000
Code of the Wilderness (Bowers-Calhoun)	Modern west.	July 12..		6,480
Behold This Woman (Rich)	Movie romance	Aug. 2..		6,425
Captain Blood (Star Cast)	Sabatini romance	Sep. 20..		10,680
Clean Heart or Cruelties of Life	Modern dr.	Sep. 27..		7,950
Greater Than Marriage (Tellegen-Daw)	Theatre dr.
Beloved Brute (De La Motte)	Melodrama	Nov. 22..		6,719
Two Shall Be Born (Novak-Harlan)	Drama
Pampered Youth (Landis-Calhoun)	Drama
Redeeming Sin (Nazimova-Tellegen)	Apache dr.	Jan. 31..		6,227
Barree, Son of Kazan	Special
Fearbound (Daw-Welch)	Melodrama
Steele of Royal Mounted	Special
In the Garden of Charity	Special
Happy Warrior	Special
Alibi	Special
Road That Led Home	Special
Unknown Story	Special

WARNER BROTHERS

Conductor 1492 (Hines)	Comedy-drama	Feb. 23..		7,080
Daddies (Belasco)	Comedy-drama	Feb. 23..		7,228
George Washington, Jr. (Barry)	Comedy-drama	Mar. 22..		5,674
Beau Brummel (J. Barrymore)	Romantic drama	Apr. 12..		10,930
Broadway After Dark (Menjou)	Comedy-drama	May 31..		7,019
Babbitt (all-star)	Character drama	July 1..		7,900
Being Respectable (all-star)	Society drama	Aug. 16..		6,040
Three Women (all-star)	Society drama	Sep. 27..		8,200
How to Educate a Wife (star cast)	Society drama			6,000
Her Marriage Vow (all-star)	Society drama			7,100
Cornered (all-star)	Society drama			7,300
Lovers' Lane (all-star)	Character drama	Nov. 29..		5,100
Tenth Woman (all-star)	Society drama			6,250
Find Your Man (Rin-Tin-Tin)	Melodrama	Oct. 4..		7,300
Lover of Camille (all-star)	Romantic drama	Nov. 29..		7,180
This Woman (Rich)	Society drama	Nov. 1..		7,100
Dark Swan (Prevost-Blne-Chadwick)	Drama	Dec. 6..		6,800
Her Marriage Vow (Blue)	Family life dr.	Dec. 20..		7,100
Lighthouse by the Sea (Rin-Tin-Tin)	Melodrama	Jan. 10..		6,700
Narrow Street (D. Devore-Matt Moore)	Light comedy	Jan. 17..		6,700

MISCELLANEOUS

ARTCLASS PICTURES CORP.

Rough Ridin' (B. Roosevelt)	Thrill dr.	Apr. 26..		4,670
Rarin' to Go (Buffalo Bill, Jr.)	Thrill dr.	Aug. 2..		5,000
Battling Buddy (B. Roosevelt)	Thrill dr.	Sep. 13..		4,000
Biff Bang Buddy (B. Roosevelt)	Thrill dr.	Sep. 20..		4,500
Hutchison Series	Stunt dramas
Fast and Fearless (Buffalo Bill, Jr.)	Thrill dr.	Sep. 27..		4,500
Walloping Wallace (B. Roosevelt)	Thrill western	Oct. 11..		4,700
Hard Hittin' Hamilton (Buf. Bill, Jr.)	Thrill western	Oct. 18..		5,000
Rip Roarin' Bobert (B. Roosevelt)	Thrill dr.			4,600
Cyclone Buddy (B. Roosevelt)	Thrill dr.			4,650
Gold and Grit (B. Roosevelt)	Thrill dr.			4,650
Bringing Home the Bacon (Buffalo Bill)	Thrill dr.			4,650
After Six Days	Biblical spec.			10,000
Woman Who Believed (Ann Luther)				5,700
Deerslayer (J. W. Kerrigan)				5,000

BANNER PRODUCTIONS

Truth About Women (Hampton)	Society drama	Oct. 25..		5,600
Man Without a Heart (Harlan)	Society drama			6,000
Those Who Judge (P. R. Miller)	Society melo.			5,700
Daughters Who Pay (all-star)	Society drama			5,800
Empty Hearts (all-star)	Society drama			5,860

C. B. C.

Innocence (Nilsson)	Theatrical dr.			5,923
Discontented Husbands (J. Kirkwood)	Marriage dr.			5,421
Pal o' Mine (Rich)	Romance			6,070
Traffic in Hearts (R. Frazer)	Social uplift			5,549
Battling Fool (R. Fairbanks)	Prize fight			4,975
Foolish Virgin (E. Hammerstein)	Social drama			5,900
Price She Paid (A. Rubens)	Marriage dr.			5,957
Fight for Honor (Fairbanks-Novak)	Railroad dr.			4,570
Midnight Express (Hammerstein)	Railroad melo.	Dec. 6..		5,967

C. C. BURR

	Kind of Picture	Review.	Feet
Speed Spook (J. Hines)	Thrill drama	Aug. 30..	6,000
New School Teacher (Bennett)	Drama		5,900
Average Woman (Pauline Garon)	Drama	Feb. 9..	6,400
Lend Me Your Husband (Kenyon)	Drama		6,700
Youth for Sale (S. Holmquist)	Drama	Oct. 18..	6,500
The Early Bird (Hines)	Comedy	Dec. 27..	7,000
Cracker Jack (Johnny Hines)	Drama		6,500

CHADWICK PICTURES CORP.

Fire Patrol (all-star)	Melo. of Sea	May 24..	6,600
Meddling Women (L. Barrymore)	Dom. melo.	Oct. 18..	6,400
Painted Flapper (all-star)	Comedy-drama	Oct. 25..	5,600
I Am the Man (L. Barrymore)	Dom. melo.	Nov. 1..	7,600
Flattery (Bowers)	Political dr.	Nov. 8..	6,000
Tomboy (Devore-Rawlinson)	Melodramatic com.	Jan. 3..	6,000

J. J. FLEMING PROD.

Shackles of Fear (Ferguson)	Melodrama		5,000
Trail of Vengeance (Ferguson)	N. W. Police		5,000
Phantom Shadows (Ferguson)	Melodrama		5,000
Scarlet and Gold (Ferguson)	N. W. Police		5,000

INDEPENDENT PICTURES CORP.

Border Justice (Bill Cody)	Western dr.	Nov. 8..	5,452
Barriers of the Law (Desmond-Holmes)	Bootlegging dr.	Nov. 29..	4,960
Dangerous Pleasure
Bill Cody series of eight	Stunt dramas
A Desperate Adventure (F. Farnum)	Western dr.		4,880
Two-Fisted Tenderfoot (F. Farnum)	Western dr.		5,050
Baffled (F. Farnum)	Western dr.		4,940
Bandit Tamer (E. Farnum)	Comedy west.		5,240
Barriers of the Law (Desmond-Holmes)	Society dr.		4,980
Billy, The Kid (F. Farnum)	Western		4,790
Blood and Steel (Desmond-Holmes)	Society dr.		5,000
Calibre 45 (F. Farnum)	Western dr.		4,950
Courage (F. Farnum)	Western dr.		5,020
In Spider's Web (Alice Dean)	Melodrama		6,000
Moonshine (B. Cody)	Western		4,980

LUMAS FILM CORP.

Black Lightning (Thunder, the dog)	Dog dr.	Nov. 8..	5,500

RAYART

Midnight Secrets (Larkin)	Drama
Street of Tears (Santachi)	Drama
For Another Woman (Harlan)	Drama
Pell Street Mystery (Larkin)	Drama
Trail Dust (Dunbar)	Drama
Lightning Romance (Howes)	Drama
Battling Brewster (Farnum)	Drama
Easy Money (All-Star)	Drama
Butterfly Comedies (Gloria Joy)

RED SEAL PICTURES CORP.

Marvels of Motion	Slow motion	Nov. 1..	650
Animated Hair Cartoons	Novelty	Nov. 1..	300
Vaudeville	Cartoon	Nov. 1..	1,000
Film Facts	Magazine	Nov. 1..	750
Peeps Into Puzzle-land	Novelty	Nov. 1..	750
Out of the Inkwell series	Cartoons
Vacation (Out of Inkwell)	Cartoon	Nov. 22..	1,000
Animated Hair Cartoons	Marcus cartoon	Nov. 22..	1,000
Should a Husband Tell	Gems of screen	Nov. 22..	1,000
Film Facts	Magazine	Nov. 22..	2,000
League of Nations (Out of Inkwell)	Cartoon	Nov. 29..	1,000
The Cure (Out of Inkwell)	Cartoon	Dec. 13..	1,000
Zoo's Who's Who	Gem of the screen	Dec. 27..	1,000
Film Facts	Magazine	Jan. 10..	1,000
Marvels of Motion (Issue B)	Magazine	Jan. 17..	1,000
Animated Hair Cartoons	Novelty	Jan. 24..	300
Cartoon Factory	Cartoon nov.	Jan. 24..	1,000
Mother Goose Land	Cartoon	Jan. 24..	1,000

RUSSELL PRODUCTIONS

Passing of Wolf MacLean (All-Star)	Western melo.	Nov. 29..	4,712
Conrageous Coward (Jack Meehan)	Western	Dec. 6..	4,052

WM. STEINER PROD.

Payable on Demand (Maloney)	Western dr.		4,669
Lawless Men (N. Hart)	Western dr.		4,816
Black Gold (Morrison)	Western dr.		4,697
Poison (Hutchison)	Stunt dr.	Sep. 13..	5,000
Turned Up (Hutchison)	Stunt dr.	Sep. 27..	4,900
Riding Double (Maloney)	Western dr.		5,008
Tucker's Top Hand (N. Hart)	Western dr.		4,618
Rainbow Rangers (Morrison)	Western dr.		4,982
Perfect Alibi (Maloney)	Western dr.		5,108
Left Hand Brand (N. Hart)	Western dr.		4,884
Pot Luck Pards (Morrison)	Western dr.		4,927
Virtue's Revolt (Thornton)	Stage melodrama	Oct. 11..	5,175
On Probation (Edith Thornton)	Drama	Dec. 13..	5,000
Across the Dead Line	Western		5,000
Always Ridin' to Win	Western		5,000
Hidden Menace	Stunt dr.		5,000
Branded a Thief	Western		5,060
Verdict of the Desert	Western		4,745
Valley of Vanishing Men	Western		4,652

USLA COMPANY

Crown Productions
Ermine Productions
W. D. Russell Productions
Sable Productions
Seal Productions

M. J. WINKLER

Alice Cans the Cannibals	Novelty com.	Jan. 3..	1,000

PROJECTION

EDITED BY F. H. RICHARDSON

A Profession

A. E. Braam, Hammond, Indiana, writes interestingly, in support of my contention that projection partakes of the nature of a profession. He writes:

I am a regular and interested reader of the Projection Department of Moving Picture World. My chosen profession is not, however, that of motion picture projection. I am an electrical engineer. Possibly my interest in projection arises from the fact that I did projection of motion pictures for a time some years ago.

Projection Engineering is a coming thing. Theatre owners have even now began to realize that fact. I fully agree with you when you say that Projection Engineering is a coming profession. (I go further and say that projection itself is in the nature of a profession.—Ed.) I have a copy of your latest book on motion picture projection, which same I very much enjoy reading. I congratulate you upon being the author of a book which contains such a lot of good and valuable data and information.

Standard in Milwaukee

Being interested in the subject, allow me to say a few words with relation to projection in the City of Milwaukee, Wisconsin. I have been in a good many cities, both large and small, but have failed to find in any of them projection equal to the standard of that in Milwaukee. All Milwaukee theatres have clear-cut pictures, with wonderful contrast. I must say the Local of that city deserves a lot of credit for having established such a high standard of projection.

Of all the cities I have visited, I am sorry to have to say that Hammond, Indiana, has the very poorest projection of them all. I wish you would wake the Hammond Local up a bit, if you can. It certainly is a shame the way pictures are projected in that city. Again I say: give the Milwaukee Local credit for the excellent work put on by its members.

Good Work a Pleasure

It is always a pleasure to hear of good work, and that a body of men deserve credit. It is always a real pleasure to give it to them. To praise is pleasant; to censure is very unpleasant. It makes unthinking men my enemies, temporarily at least. Just how much credit the Milwaukee Local is entitled to I don't know, because I don't know what it has done, as a body, to further high grade work by its members. However, since the evidence is that there IS high grade projection in Milwaukee, let us presume the Local has played its part in bringing it about, as I hope and believe it really has. My compliments to Local Union No. 164, Milwaukee, Wisconsin. We need many more bodies of men who are able and willing to cause strangers to make such a splendid report of their combined work as does Mr. Braam.

How About Hammond?

As to Hammond, Indiana, I don't know. If any man there, or the union there can refute the charge of Friend Braam, the columns of this department are open to them to do so, and I sincerely hope they can. If, on the other hand, what Mr. Braam says is true, then will the Local be good enough to explain what reason there is for its existence, unless it be for the purpose of securing something for nothing? If the Hammond Local controls the situation in that city, and dictates the employment of no one but its members, then in common fairness and ordinary justice it is up to the Local to see that its members deliver the goods upon the screen as effectively and as well as the prints and projection equipment will permit. Is it not a fact that anything less than this is doing dishonor to the motion picture industry AND to that splendid organization, the I. A. T. S. E. and M. P. M. O.?

It is fearfully unpleasant to have such reports as this come in, but Friend Braam is so obviously sincere that I cannot question his honesty of purpose, and I firmly believe that for the good of all concerned, particularly the good of the I. A., such things should be given publicity. It hurst, yes—but so does the knife which opens a sore. Such a condition is a SORE on the motion picture industry.

Bluebook School

Question No. 211—Explain to us exactly what "flicker" in a motion picture is, and what it is due to. Don't be too economical with words on this. We want to know exactly how well you understand the underlying principles of the matter.

Question No. 212—Explain to us what various things govern flicker. Watch your step here. I have a suspicion there will not be so many complete answers. Try to fool me.

Question No. 213—Tell us why the thing we call flicker is very tiring, or even, if of pronounced intensity, very painful to the eye.

Question No. 214—What, if any, effect has increase in size of picture upon flicker tendency?

Question No. 215—Has intensity of screen illumination an effect upon flicker? If you say yes, then explain, in detail, upon what you base your answer.

There, gentlemen, is what I call a real set of questions—questions which in themselves will prove to be at least a fair test of your knowledge. Also a set of complete answers to them is hardly to be expected from many projectionists. Of course most of you could probably answer yes or no to them all, but to EXPLAIN THE FULL REASONS OF WHY THE ANSWER IS THAT, IS VERY MUCH SOMETHING ELSE AGAIN.

Department Willing

A short time ago I wrote the Department of State Police of Massachusetts, suggesting that that State adopt modern procedure and use the term Motion Picture Projectionist instead of the "Moving Picture Machine Operator" now used, and thus get into line with advancement. I have the following reply from A. F. Foote, Commissioner, Department of Public Safety of the State of Massachusetts:

"Operators" in Statutes

With regard to your letter of December 15, concerning changing the term "Moving Picture Machine Operator" to "Motion Picture Projectionist."

In all the statutes of the Commonwealth dealing with this subject, "Moving Picture Machine Operators" are called "Operators," and this department cannot call them projectionists unless the statutes be changed.

We are perfectly willing that the name should be changed to projectionist, if you or someone else is interested enough to try and have the legislature change the term now used in the statutes. We would have to remain neutral, however, because there would be considerable opposition to the change, and we are too busy with other matters which we consider as of greater importance.

Opening Gun

This letter expresses a very natural feeling of the department, nor have I any complaint to find with it. In fact I had expected no more. My letter was merely an "opening gun" and I am well pleased to see that the Commissioner is in no degree opposed to the change. That shows that even the Department of Public Safety of the great State of Massachusetts has considered the matter of such a change and has found it good. If that were not true, then the Commissioner most certainly would NOT have expressed his own willingness to have the change made.

And now you of the Boston Local, let us see just how progressive you are—as a body I mean. I have no manner of doubt but that the local can get so simple a matter through the legislature, if it wants to. I have faith to believe the Boston Local will move in that direction, too, for I know it contains a large percentage of real projectionists—men of ability and brains, who will not cling to a silly thing merely because it has been used in the past. I have little doubt but that other Massachusetts locals will be willing to join with the Boston Local, BUT naturally they will expect the Boston union to LEAD.

Valve Position

A few suggestions have reached me through the years that it would be an advantage to have the fire trap valve of the Powers upper magazine located two or three inches further back than its present position. It has been brought to mind by another suggestion, this time from Portland, Oregon, made recently.

What do you users of Powers projectors think about it? I am sure if many of you think such a change would be advantageous, the Powers Company will be glad to examine into the matter carefully, and make the change if it seems advisable. Naturally they would appreciate the opinion of actual Powers users.

Mazda Connection

R. H. Heldrim, Edwards, New York, says:

Dear Mr. Richardson: Have many things to ask you, but lack time to do it all now. Have been thinking of changing from arc to Mazda. Have not consulted Friend Manager, because I first want to ascertain the approximate cost of such a change. About how large a bulb would be necessary for an 80-foot projection distance? If I make the change, would I connect direct to the 110-volt supply, or use the Powers inductor now used for the arc? Would screen illumination be any better with Mazda? Would Mazda be, on the whole, any cheaper than A. C. at the arc?

Another

There! That's that on that subject. Now for another. Our "theatre" really is the Town Hall. The booth was built long after the building was erected, and literally sticks right smack out in the way. We have often thought of moving it over to one corner, but projecting the picture so nearly diagonally across the hall always stumped us. Accompanying diagram shows you how the screen would have to be. It would have to face the corner, would it not? There is no balcony. It is an "upstairs" hall. What is your opinion of the proposed change? Would it help the appearance of the hall enough to compensate for the probable injury to projection?

I offer apologies for the term "booth." It really is just that now, not being a part of the building.

One More

And now one more thing, and I'll cease from troubling. I have great difficulty in keeping the picture from jumping up and down, or flickering. The amount of flicker depends upon the kind of film, but it is there too often to suit the audiences, and at times even I get disgusted. Find that if I polish the tension springs and aperture thoroughly before each reel I have less trouble. Could you suggest something in the way of a permanent remedy?

After reading the letter of Fred Allard, January 3 issue, would like to speak a word in favor of White A. C. Special carbons. Found them to give a more soft, brilliant light than the old kind; also (important) they make less noise.

As to Mazda

As to Mazda, you would be obliged to buy the complete Mazda outfit, which includes lamphouse and transformer. You could not connect direct to supply, nor could you use the Inductor. You would need a 900 watt lamp. Cannot say whether you would have better screen illumination, because I don't know what you now have. Yes, Mazda would use much less current than your arc. Lamp replacements would about equal your present carbon consumption in cost, I think.

Before making a change I would advise you to investigate closely the merits of the low intensity (reflector type) arc. They are coming into use quite fast. They give excellent screen illumination, and at a very low cost as compared to the regular arc.

D-o-n-'-t!

As to moving your projection room into the corner, all I can say is D-O-N-'-T! It is better to have the projection room, or "booth" look like the devil than to have the picture look like something a misguided, depraved old tom cat dragged in by mistake.

Setting the screen to face the corner would be—well, don't try it. As to—oh, why argue or explain? Just keep "thinking" of it all you want to, but let it go at "thinking."

You will have to describe the jump and flicker in greater detail before I can offer you advice. Your getting better results after polishing the tension shoes and plate has me guessing. Certainly you cannot be using first-run films. Do you find anything sticking to the plate tracks or shoes after a run? Gosh, man, I give up! Presumably you have a flicker due to either a wrongly designed (proportioned) shutter, or to a too-slow projection speed. Perhaps both, and it shows up bad on "thin" scenes, and not so much on dense ones. Describe the jump and flicker just as closely as you can, and I'll see what we can dig out of it.

P. S.—The drawing shows the projection room to be already off center. Why can't it just as well be in the center, where it should be, as where it is?

Battery Charging

Ellis Wroe, Projectionist Mirror Theatre, Moline, Ill., and member I. A. Local Union No. 433, Rock Island, Ill., asks for the following information:

Dear Sir and Brother: Am using a Ft. Wayne Double 35 Series Type Motor Generator Set. We want to install a small emergency lighting system, using storage batteries. How may I charge these batteries from the above described set?

We will use a six-volt battery, as far as I know, and not to exceed six, six-volt automobile lamps will be used.

Don't Know

My answer is that I don't know. I'm not posing as any authority on the charging of storage batteries. My impression would be that if your arcs are hand fed the charging of the batteries would be impracticable, because of the heavy fluctuations in voltage which is almost inevitable. If the arcs are fed by a good arc control, then it might be done, but I don't know just what to advise, except that you must connect the batteries in series with sufficient resistance to allow of the rate they are to be charged at—which bit of very important data you have omitted to tell me—to flow through them.

If you have a reliable, low reading ammeter I believe you might connect the batteries as per sketch, with enough incandescent lamps to cause the desired amperage to flow through the batteries. BUT don't try that out until you have first shown the sketch to a competent storage battery man, and secured his O. K. I haven't monkeyed with storage battery charging for many years. I never did know very much about it, and have forgotten most of that little. Will such of your readers as feel competent advise Brother Wroe, addressing Projectionist Mirror Theatre, Moline, Ill., as I'm not certain that Wroe is really his name? It looks more like that than like anything else. Pen written signatures are sometimes pretty hard guessing.

Poor Description

From a small town in South Dakota comes the following:

I am seeking information concerning my Powers projector. I just put in a new intermittent sprocket, pin, cross and spindle, and a new cam and spindle. The sprocket has no side play, or play otherwise while it is at rest, but when the sprocket moves it has some play, and the picture flickers up and down, as well as sidewise, when it is projecting at the rate of about twelve minutes to the reel. (Presumably meaning about 83 feet per minute.—Ed.) If I run it slower it is not noticeable. Have tried to adjust film shoe tension, but have been unable to overcome the trouble.

You may advise me to send it to some supply house, but I cannot spare it; also it will come back with a C. O. D. of from ten to twenty dollars attached. Any information you can give me will certainly be appreciated.

More Information

My Dear Sir, I can offer you no concrete advice, for the simple reason that you have given me very little concrete information. You merely say that the "picture flickers up and down," which means exactly nothing at all to me. Had you said the picture moves up and down four times to each revolution of the crank shaft, then I could have told you the probable seat of the trouble, but "flickers up and down" does not mean anything at all.

"Flicker" is the term applied to one thing, and one thing only, so far as projection is concerned—see page 613 of the Bluebook of Projection, of which you either have or should have a copy. What I presume you mean is that the picture moves up and down and sidewise at 83 feet or faster per minute, but that it does not—noticeably at least—at slower speed.

In the first place you tell me you have installed a new intermittent movement, BUT have not said whether or not it is a roller pin or a plain cross, which makes a difference in effect. At least when you remove a used roller pin movement, if you remove the rollers from the pins and get them mixed so that the same rollers are not returned to the same pins, then there is likely to be trouble. The picture may move up and down, and it may be once or twice to each revolution of the crank shaft of the projector.

Side Movement

As to the side movement, my own guess would be that the sprocket does not fit the shaft with exact snugness, and that it "wobbles," imperceptibly to the eye, but NOT to the film. This would or might cause both the up and down and the sidewise movement.

However, aside from all this, my advice is that when such a job as the installation of an intermittent movement is to be undertaken, a loan head be secured from the Nicholas Power Company, No. 90 Gold street, New York City (They probably won't send it from there, but if you write them direct they will instruct their nearest branch distributor to supply you with one), and that the mechanism be sent to the distributor for installation of the parts.

The reason for this advice is that few projectionists are able to, or are equipped to do so delicate a piece of work. These parts must fit, and when I say "fit" I do NOT mean "pretty nearly fit," but FIT, with only tolerance of error of perhaps one ten thousandth of an inch.

I shall refer your letter to the N. Power Company for attention. I am glad to help the exhibitor or projectionist, BUT I just simply cannot offer advice unless the trouble be ACCURATELY described.

Bluebook School—Answers No. 181 to 185

Question No. 181—Tell us what you know about the possibilities of washing a painted screen.

Arthur H. Gray, Boston, Mass.; F. H. Moore, Taunton, Mass.; Karl H. Sommermeyer, Marietta, Minn.; J. W. Rainwater, Albany, Ala.; C. H. Hanover, Burlington, Iowa; Samuel F. Cooley, Manchester, N. H.; Harold E. Hurlbutt, Oshkosh, Wis.; P. E. Thomas, Creston, Iowa; Allie Baron, Lodi, Cal.; Daniel Constantino, Easton, Pa., and J. C. Johnson, Jacksonville, Fla., all agree that a painted screen may be washed, with fair results if carefully done, but that the surface will not have the brilliancy (reflection power) it originally had. Most recommend recoating the surface with paint.

All of which may or may not be correct, as I shall indicate later. If, however, regardless of results in loss, the management insists on the surface being washed, the directions of F. H. Moore are apparently the best submitted. He says:

To clean a painted screen surface, first of all dust it off thoroughly, starting at the top, using a small feather duster. (Personally I believe a duster such as painters use would be better.—Ed.) Then wash with luke warm water, using a downward stroke, starting at the top, of course. Dry by patting the surface with a good-sized soft cloth which is free from lint. Of course the washed surface will not have the same lustre the original surface had or a new coat of paint would have.

At the end of a somewhat lengthy reply Gray says:

I might contribute a single pertinent point to this subject, viz: Never attempt to clean a painted screen surface with water until you are absolutely certain as to the effect. Try a small, inconspicuous spot, and observe results. It necessitates much care and labor to perfect a good screen surface, and very little of same to ruin it.

Gray calls attention, also, to the fact that there are paints and paints. Some painted screens will stand washing and some will not. Of course the water paints (kalsomine, etc.) cannot be washed; also many screens are coated with paint mixed so very "flat" (turpentine) that any attempt to wash them would result disastrously. Gray's advice to "try a small spot first" is good, if you must have the surface washed. But much better advice is NOT to wash it at all, except such washing be preparatory to recoating the surface.

Question No. 182—Give us your views as to the relative excellence of a kalsomine screen surface, and how often it should be renewed.

I shall give the names of those answering acceptably, followed by time each one recommends renewal. Constantino, every 60 days; Gray, semi-annually; Sommermeyer, every 90 days; Rainwater, every 90 to 120 days; Hanover, every 90 days; Cooley, every 90 to 120 days; Hurlbutt, every 90 days; Thomas, every 90 days or oftener; Moore, once a year on plaster wall and once in 6 to 9 months on cloth (Says he has used it on both and turns yellow on cloth much quicker than on plaster), and Burnett, every 90 days. Cooley says:

In comparing kalsomine screen with metallic or mirror surface, the first named has, of course, very much the higher power of diffusion of the three types named. On the other hand, it has a very much lower power of reflection. Kalsomine finds favor because of its relatively low first cost and cost of upkeep; also in theatres where the front seats are near the screen the kalsomine surface gives a much more pleasing effect from these seats—softer and more restful to the eye—than does either the metallic or mirror surface.

Gray says:

The net result of such experiments as I have conducted with an alabastine screen surface (and the theory of my entire answer assumes this material to be, in effect, the same as kalsomine) has been that of general satisfaction. In looking over some available data on this subject, other than that contained in the Bluebook, I find a point for discussion, inasmuch as my results do not seem to coincide with the apparently unsatisfactory ones of Prof. Gage (S. H.), who, in "Optic Projection" says, "We did not find a kalsomined wall satisfactory for projection. It is, or soon becomes, too yellow." The possibility occurs to me that the yellow tinge of which he speaks developed as the result of some chemical change in which an element in the underlying plaster wall was a component. I have no personal knowledge of this, however, and the idea is advanced as a possibility, rather than an opinion. On such occasions as I have selected this material for a screen coating it has been applied to a cloth screen and this effect was not, in my opinion, present; neither did it subsequently develop. It was selected for its apparently good reflecting power, its quality of effecting an even diffusion of the reflected light, its economy and for the ease with which it could be applied. My results check up in every way with the statement on page 229 of the Bluebook, that this material forms an excellent screen surface. These screens were in four houses, and were under my care and observation for several years. The surfaces were renewed semi-annually. This, in my opinion, maintained them at a proper degree of efficiency, although I have no quarrel whatever with the suggestion of recoating screens made of this material at intervals of three months. It is better—much better—to err on the right side, especially when the cost for material and labor is of so much less consequence than is the importance of maintaining the surfaces at maximum efficiency.

Hanover says:

A kalsomine surface absorbs dust and dirt rather rapidly; also it is subject to some chemical change. This latter seems to vary appreciably. On the whole, since the recoating costs but comparatively little, it will, I believe, pay good interest on the investment in money and work to recoat such a surface at least four times a year. That it looks perfectly white and clean is no proof that it really is. Mix a bit of kalsomine and paint a small corner lightly. If the new surface is pronouncedly visible, then the surface will gain by a recoating.

WILLIAM A. BURNETT

Newton, Iowa, who has been very successful in replying to Bluebook school questions. Darned fine looking chap, if you ask me!

Of course we could make no real comparison of a kalsomine with a metallic surface or a mirror screen, because those surfaces and kalsomine are not suitable for use under like conditions. Plainly you have only intended that the comparison be made with paint and other "perfect" diffusing surfaces. Kalsomine is, I believe, inferior to a high grade, properly applied paint surface, because it deteriorates more rapidly and has not as high a ratio of reflection. The painted surface costs a bit more, true, but after all it is not the first cost which should be given preference in consideration, but the effect upon the box office—the excellence of results as applied to projection.

My view is that while kalsomine is really a very good screen surface, still a properly applied, properly composed paint is sufficiently superior in final results to justify the comparatively small excess in cost. Renewal cost is perhaps about the same, since kalsomine must be washed off every time, with accompanying "mess," while the paint surface may be recoated at least two times, and maybe three or four, before it becomes necessary to remove it and start afresh.

NOTE: I am in many instances printing several replies, in order to give you the benefit of the views of different men, to the end that you may have all angles, and thus decide for yourself what is best. I want to hear from you, as to your opinion of this plan.—Ed.

Question No. 183—Begin at the beginning and tell us just how you would proceed to make a painted or kalsomined surface cloth screen.

Thomas, Cooley, Burnett, Moore, Baron, Hurlbutt, Rainwater, Sommermeyer and Hanover all made more or less good on this one, though some by a very narrow squeak. Constantino evidently misunderstood the question.

Gray, Thomas and Cooley made especially complete replies. I would like to print them all, but it would take too much room. On the whole I think Gray has the best answer. It reads:

Build a rectangular frame of four pieces of 2-inch by 3-inch or 2-inch by 4-inch studding, planed and squared on all four sides. Have outside edge of the front surface of each stud slightly beveled, or rounded off. This is to prevent the cloth from cutting or tearing when it is later attached to the frame. Brace this frame with another 2-inch by 3-inch stud, bolted to its back and placed in a vertical position at its center. This brace may have tenons cut at ends and be mortised into frame, but its front surface must not be flush with the rest of the frame outline. This is to provide a clearance between the brace and cloth while the latter is in the process of drying out after being coated.

If screen be of a size wider than, say, 14 feet (and it would add stability to a frame of even 12 feet), there should be additional braces placed diagonally across the corners of the frame and bolted to its back surface two feet from the corners. This frame will be lighter, but cheaper, than a manufacturer's frame furnished with a (so-called) gold fibre screen, and will, for the type of screen that we are constructing, be equally efficient.

Now select a good heavy cotton cloth, of such a width that when sewed together the seam will be in a vertical position down through the center of the screen.

It has been my experience, or rather the opinion gleaned as a result of my experience, that when the seam is thus situated, with a consequent substantial expanse of surface between the seam and frame on either side, more latitude is allowed for "taking up" such unevenness as may develop because of the seam than would be the case if the seam occurred near to one edge of the frame.

The factor of visibility need not be here considered, because the coating will, or should, if the work be well done, effectively hide the seam. The seam should be made back to back, and then turned, so that when the cloth is mounted on the frame the hem will be to the rear. The sheet should now be cut and squared to an overall size sufficient to allow the edges (when mounting) to be drawn over, around and to the back surface of the frame, and then hemmed all the way around, selvedge edge included.

Procure a pole or cylindrical shaped rod—a spiral formed cardboard container of 3-inch diameter is excellent—of a length equal to the width of the sheet. Roll the curtain smoothly and evenly on this core.

Place the frame in a vertical position, held away from the wall a few inches by a cleat nailed to the center brace. This will allow you to work around and onto the back surface of the frame when tacking on the cloth. Now have the rolled sheet raised to a level with the top of the frame and held in that position. Tack top of sheet across the back surface of the top of frame in an even, level line, starting at the center and working out to the corners. Getting it started evenly will mean much easier work in securing a final smooth surface.

Unroll the screen slowly, tacking the sides as you go down after pulling the sheet taut and working out the wrinkles. Like the top, tack the back of the frame. Stop tacking two feet from bottom. Now raise screen from floor several inches by jacking up at corners. Start tacking bottom of sheet at center of frame; change the position of the jacks that are holding screen off the floor to that completed area, and then work out to the corners, completing the unfinished two feet at the sides at the same time.

Now size this sheet with a solution of hot glue, about 15 per cent in water. When applying this sizing, brush in one direction, preferably vertically. Allow this to become thoroughly dried out and make sure that the room is warm and dry, otherwise the cloth will sag badly during the drying process and the job will be spoiled.

Mix white alabastine—I specify this particular material because I am acquainted with its characteristics—with water until a proper spreading consistency has been obtained, and apply a coat to the screen. It will not show laps and should be brushed out in all directions. This should be followed in turn, when dry, by a second and then a third coat.

Finish screen with a suitable moulding around the edges of the frame and then mask in to the outline of the picture with a flat black paint or with cloth possessing the same kind of finish.

Baron throws some new things into the pot. Examine them. Here they are. The hen fruit is a new one to me!

I would buy the cloth required, take it to a tailor and have it sewed with the seam in the center. Then I would soak the cloth overnight in water, and the following day would stretch it over the frame and let it dry. After this I would give two coats of glue sizing, and when the glue is perfectly dry, I would give two coats of white lead. Let the white lead become dry. Mix one package of kalsomine in a half bucket of water and let it set overnight. Before using the next day, add the whites of twenty-four (24) eggs and stir well. Then apply two coats of kalsomine, and if the same process would be applied to white oxide of zinc it would give you an excellent screen surface.

Question No. 184—Tell us how you would test your painted or kalsomined screen surface as to its condition.

Gray, Thomas, Sommermeyer, Constantino, Rainwater, Hurlbutt and Moore all said they would place a large white blotter against the surface, and if the blotter looked more white than the surface, then the surface is not in good condition.

This is correct, as per Bluebook, but Hanover, darn 'im, took issue with it, and (again darn 'im) he is right. He says:

Provided the surface is dead white, then I would place a white desk blotter against it, and viewing same at a distance, make my decision by the comparative appearance of the two surfaces.

However, many screen surfaces (painted or kalsomined) are not dead white. Some of them are tinted considerably, and such a test on such a surface would, of course, be very misleading. I think you must have overlooked this point when you wrote the paragraph on page 230 of the Bluebook. (Guilty. —Ed.) I don't quite know how one could make a really effective, satisfactory test of a tinted kalsomine surface. If it be paint which may be washed, one might carefully cleanse a small spot and form some opinion by judging the amount of grime thereon, though that would not show the amount of deterioration chemical change in the pigment had worked.

Question No. 185—Tell us under what condition you would employ cement for a screen. Is there any comment which may be employed for a screen surface?

All the foregoing named made various replies. Sommermeyer says:

Projection surface of white cement is an excellent substitute for the plaster or kalsomine surface under conditions which will permit of the surface becoming wet.

Gray says:

Have known of one case where "neat" (white) cement has been used for screen surface at my suggestion—not recommendation. The results were reported to be as highly satisfactory. Have not seen it and have no data on it; also cannot obtain same in time for this reply. I shall look the matter up for my own satisfaction.

And our's, too, Brother Gray. Let us have the dope when you get it.

Hanover says:

Know nothing about cement surface, except what is said on page 230 of Bluebook. I would use cement backing for a kalsomine or paint surface on a wall, because it would not, I think, be so apt to absorb moisture; also it would be less affected when the surface is washed off for renewal. If white cement really makes a good surface, then I would suppose it would be especially good, since surely it would be washed off without in any way affecting its reflection qualities. Looks to me like a thing well worth investigation by projectionists. Called up a dealer and found it could be had, and at not at all exorbitant prices.

Advice Wanted

Vincent Tate, Projectionist Tate Theatre, as well as one of the proprietors, I think, as it is "Tate Brothers," Mildred, Pa., says:

We want a bit of advice, either through the department or by letter. I have the Bluebook, but cannot seem to find what I want.

We have a beautiful house, and I project a first class never-stop show. Noticed recently, in the department, how a projectionist makes a cue sheet for change-over. I will say it is the only way. I have used that method for three years past.

Have two latest model Powers projectors (6B) with G. E. 900 watt Mazda, and latest condenser mounts. Our projection distance is 80 feet. The picture is 13 feet and the screen kalsomine. Get fairly good screen illumination, but would like to know if there is not some silver paint or preparation we could get to coat the screen with (it is a stationary screen), or would I have to buy a silver screen?

Page 231

The information you want you will find on page 231, under the head "WARNING." If I knew the shape and size of your auditorium I could tell you how to apply a silver surface, BUT I would NOT do it—would not tell you. I would have to know the shape and size, distance of front rows of seats from screen, etc., to know whether or not you could use a silver surface screen at all, without having "fade away." See tables 12 to 17 and Fig. 76 in Bluebook. But even though a metallic surface might be used with advantage, I would NOT tell you how to make one, because a home made metallic surface is usually very unsatisfactory.

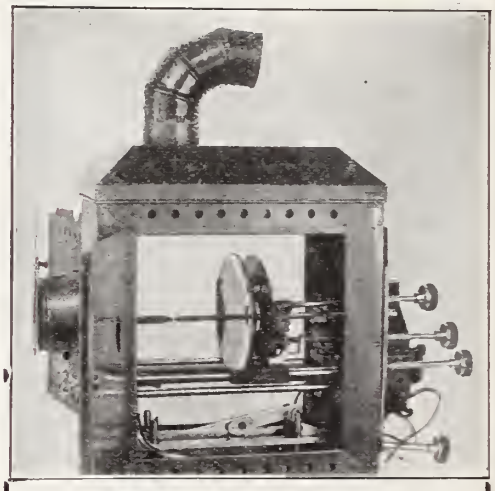
Tell me your theatre seating space width, the distance front row of seats to screen and distance screen to back row. I have a suspicion that you need a screen of heavy diffusing powers, which a metallic surface is not capable of giving.

"You want Phelco!"

Smooth and quiet burning
Bright light
Steady arc
Slow burning rate
Long Condenser life

Charles W. Phellis & Co.
Incorporated
130 West 42nd Street New York
For Canada: Keystone Trading Co., Ltd., 10 Ste. Sophie Lane, Montreal

HELIOS REFLECTOR LAMPS



"BEST BY TEST"
Approved by
Underwriters Laboratories
25% Better Screen Illumination
50-75% Current Saving
WARREN PRODUCTS COMPANY
265 CANAL STREET NEW YORK

ROLL—Machine—Coupon
TICKETS
QUALITY—Second to none!
SERVICE Unexcelled—our
LOWEST PRICES will be mailed to you on request.
State your requirements by mail—Today!
TRIMOUNT PRESS
LARGEST AMUSEMENT TICKET PRINTERS IN NEW ENGLAND FOR 17 YEARS.
119 ALBANY ST., BOSTON, MASS.

EASTMAN POSITIVE FILM

The identification "Eastman" and "Kodak" in black letters in the transparent margin leaves no room for doubt.

You don't assume, a glance assures you that you are projecting the film that carries quality from studio to screen—Eastman Film.

EASTMAN KODAK COMPANY
ROCHESTER, N. Y.

Wants to Know

A letter from a projectionist in Illinois says:

Want to thank you for the help the department has given me. To me it is the most essential part of the valuable magazine. Have not yet acquired a Bluebook, but soon will have one in my possession.

Here are a few questions I want answers to over your own signature, in order that I may show them to friend boss.

Storage Vault Law

First: What is the law concerning a storage vault in film booth? We have just one thickness of tin—not sheet metal, made oblong and curved to fit our films. It sits upon a wooden bench. What is the required thickness of, and lining of a storge can? Secondly: Our booth is made of cement. It's walls are about ten inches thick. The interior, at the rear, is lined with wall board. Do the fire laws require that this be removed? Thirdly, My Boss says the fire laws do not apply to towns of this size—population 2,100. Is this correct, and what laws do not apply? Fourth, Should every projectionist have a film splicer, and what do they cost? Fifth, and last: Is there any law which obliges motion picture theatre proprietors to provide proper ventilation for booths?

Replies

Replying to the questions in rotation. (1) You ask about a "storage vault in a film booth." I am left to guess that you want to know about a film storage reservoir for the projection room. If you read this department, where do you get your "vault" and "booth" from. Certainly NOT from this department. As a starter, my brother, learn to call the tools of your profession by their right names.

Laws concerning such matters are either state, city or village laws. There is no Federal law, though for the sake of uniformity there should be. I don't know what the Illinois law provides, or whether or not your village has any ordinance covering the matter of film storage reservoirs for theatre projection rooms.

Precautions

However, whatever the laws may or may not provide, every theatre projection room, for its own protection and the protection of its patrons, ought to have a film storage reservoir for its projection room, with separate, fireproof compartments for each film. These compartments should be self closing, gravity being the closing force. They should be made of substantial metal, preferably galvanized iron, with riveted (NOT soldered) seams. The reel compartments should be so made that they remain normally in closed position by gravity. By this I mean that when opened they will immediately fall back shut when released. The seams must not be soldered, because if they are, at the first application of heat the whole thing will fall to pieces. Between each reel compartment there should be a double metal wall, with a space of half an inch to an inch between. This may be just an air space, or it may be filled with some good fireproof material, such as shredded asbestos. As to the bench, no wood, except that which is really necessary, should be in the projection room. It perhaps is not really dangerous, but in case of a serious fire it provides just that much more fuel for the flames. (2) As before said, there should be no unnecessary wood in the projection room. You say "our booth." Suppose you do not refer to either the telephone or ticket booth? As a general proposition where there are local laws, or state laws covering the subject, all wood is prohibited in projection rooms. That, however, is an extreme. As I said, all a wooden bench or shelf would do would be to provide extra fuel for the flames, and the lining you speak of would certainly provide a lot of it. I certainly would have it removed, were I your "boss." (3) Usually a state law on such a matter applies to all places within the state. Don't know whether Illinois has such a law or not. (4) Every theatre should provide a film splicer as a regular part of the projection room equipment. Don't remember the exact cost. Between three and five dollars I think. They are an ESSENTIAL part of projection room equipment. Much damage is done to film through failure of theatre managers to provide them. (5) Several states cover the matter of projection room ventilation by very strict law. Some cities do the same thing. There are usually two kinds of "booths" in theatres—telephone and ticket. Don't know of any law covering their ventilation.

Now don't get peeved because I have sharply criticized your "booth." Man, man I've told you, the Creator only knows how many, many times, to USE CORRECT NOMENCLATURE. You say you read the department. Well, what good does that do if you disregard its teachings to the extent of using such terms in a letter addressed to it?

Exchange Outrage

David W. Strager, Projectionist Mt. Joy Theatre, Mt. Joy, Pa., arises to remark:

Please take a look at enclosed film samples cut from one-eighth reel of the eight-reel feature. I could not get that reel through the projector at all, and I tried both of them. The audience almost ate me up. We ran it Christmas night. I had five stops in the other seven reels, three of which were in the fourth reel.

This is just a small town, and the picture cost us $17.50 for the one night. Is that fair? In closing allow me to express my thanks for your interest in films in better physical condition.

Brother Strager, it is nothing short of an outrage for a film exchange manager to permit reels of film in such atrocious condition to be sent to a theatre. You should have advised me of the name and location of the exchange. If it is under the control of a producer I am sure he would be glad to know of the matter, and would hold speedy and effective talk with the mis-manager of the exchange.

Film in this condition is DANGEROUS, in that a fire might easily be started. Certainly it would not go through any projector, as the samples show ripped sprocket holes and the film stock torn half in two. If it was in that condition when received, that exchange manager should be dealt with by the authorities for endangering theatre audiences by setting up a condition which makes a film fire, with the possibilities of stampede and death, as a result.

A Swindle

It should be unnecessary for me to again point out the FACT that it is NOT up to the projectionist to inspect and repair films when received. He has the RIGHT to assume them to be in projectable condition. He is NOT paid to act as inspector for the exchange. Film service presumes films to be supplied in projectable condition. The theatre pays for films in that condition. If it does not get what it pays for, then the exchange has—well, call it what you like. Some might even say the exhibitor had been swindled.

I might add that films very often arrive at the theatre just about the time the show is to be opened, and there is no time for any examination at all. This you all know is true. I merely state the fact in evidence, or proof that it is up to the exchange to send ONLY films which have been carefully examined, and put into projectable condition.

Nor does the excuse that machine operators (projectionists do not) often unnecessarily abuse the films stand, though it is true, and a SHAME. However, exchanges very well know that it is true; also they very well know they can stop it if they will—if they don't they don't know their business very well—and, anyhow, by tolerating it they accept it as a part of their burden.

IT IS THE PART OF THE EXCHANGE TO THOROUGHLY INSPECT AND REPAIR ALL FILMS BEFORE SENDING THEM OUT. THEY GET PAID TO DO IT. IT IS A PART OF THE SERVICE THEY SELL. THEY DO NOT PAY THE PROJECTIONIST, OR EVEN THE MACHINE (PROJECTOR) OPERATOR TO DO IT FOR THEM.

Film Damage?

What's the Real Cause?

By F. H. RICHARDSON

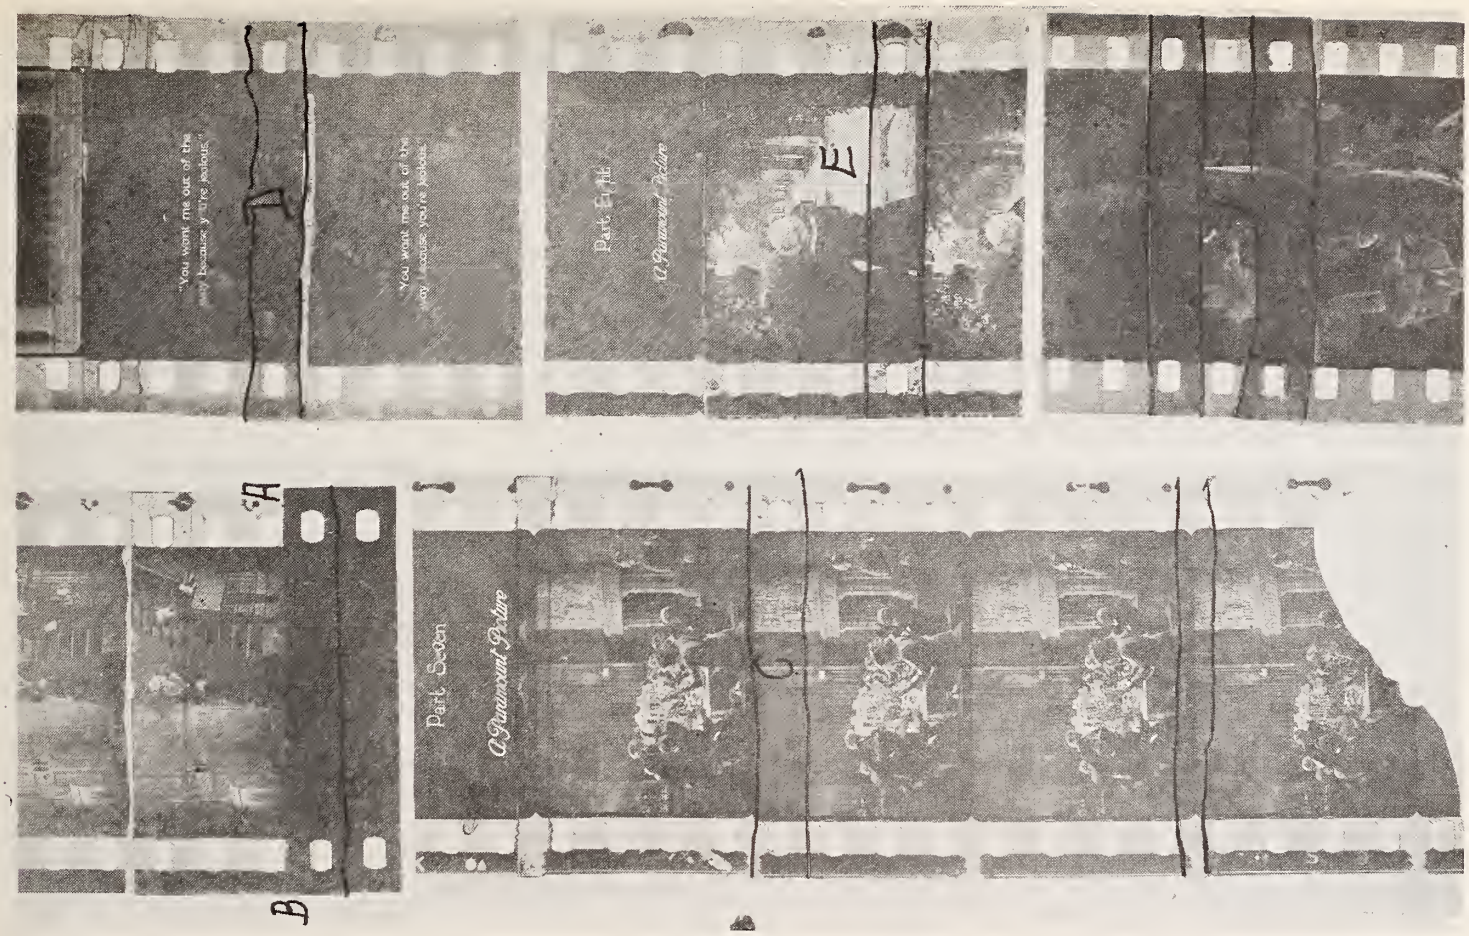
(The photographs shown on the opposite page were all made by Carl K. Dennison in the studios of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation. Examine them closely. They teach, or should teach, a valuable lesson with regard to the use and abuse of films. Under each is a caption which was written by Mr. Dennison himself).

In the plates I have drawn a black line across the ends of the film at splices. This is because I have found it difficult to make a cut which will show this item unless it be done. It is even very hard to make a cut which will adequately show the mismatched sprocket holes, but I think by close examination, possibly using a condenser lens as an aid, you can discern the sprocket hole outlines.

At B we see a too wide splice, with fearfully mis-matched sprocket holes. The hole on the right (A) is much worse than the one on the left (B), and the whole film is thus thrown badly out of line. Of course if such a thing ever got through the projector without jumping the sprocket it would be a wonder. All the other splices in this "beautiful" specimen have the same faults, in somewhat less degree. I think the chap who made them must have violated Mr. Volstead's laws just previous to doing it. If sober, then he is a disgrace to even the machine operator's ranks. As to the two-splices-in-one-frame: well, it seems useless to comment on such an idiotic performance as that.

See for yourself. Would not YOU feel very badly were it known that YOU had made one of these mis-called "splices" and your name were published. You would curse Richardson for having thus outraged you. BUT don't forget that YOU would first have OUTRAGED THE FILMS ENTRUSTED TO YOUR CARE.

Of course, however, YOU don't do such crude work, and I'm real well pleased to know it. You can see, however, that SOME ONE STILL DOES THESE THINGS. Maybe it is Jimmie-the-Usher. That is our only chance to side-step, and we are thankful for the one chance.



You want me out of the way because you're jealous
You want me out of the way because you're jealous
Part Eight
A Paramount Picture
Part Seven
A Paramount Picture

PLATE 17

By Mr. Dennison: Plate 17 shows examples of the way operators (NOT projectionists, you will observe, Ed.) splice parts and ends back on the film when they have put the films back on the 1,000 foot reels. Not only are there two splices in a frame, but the splices are out of register, over-scraped and too wide.

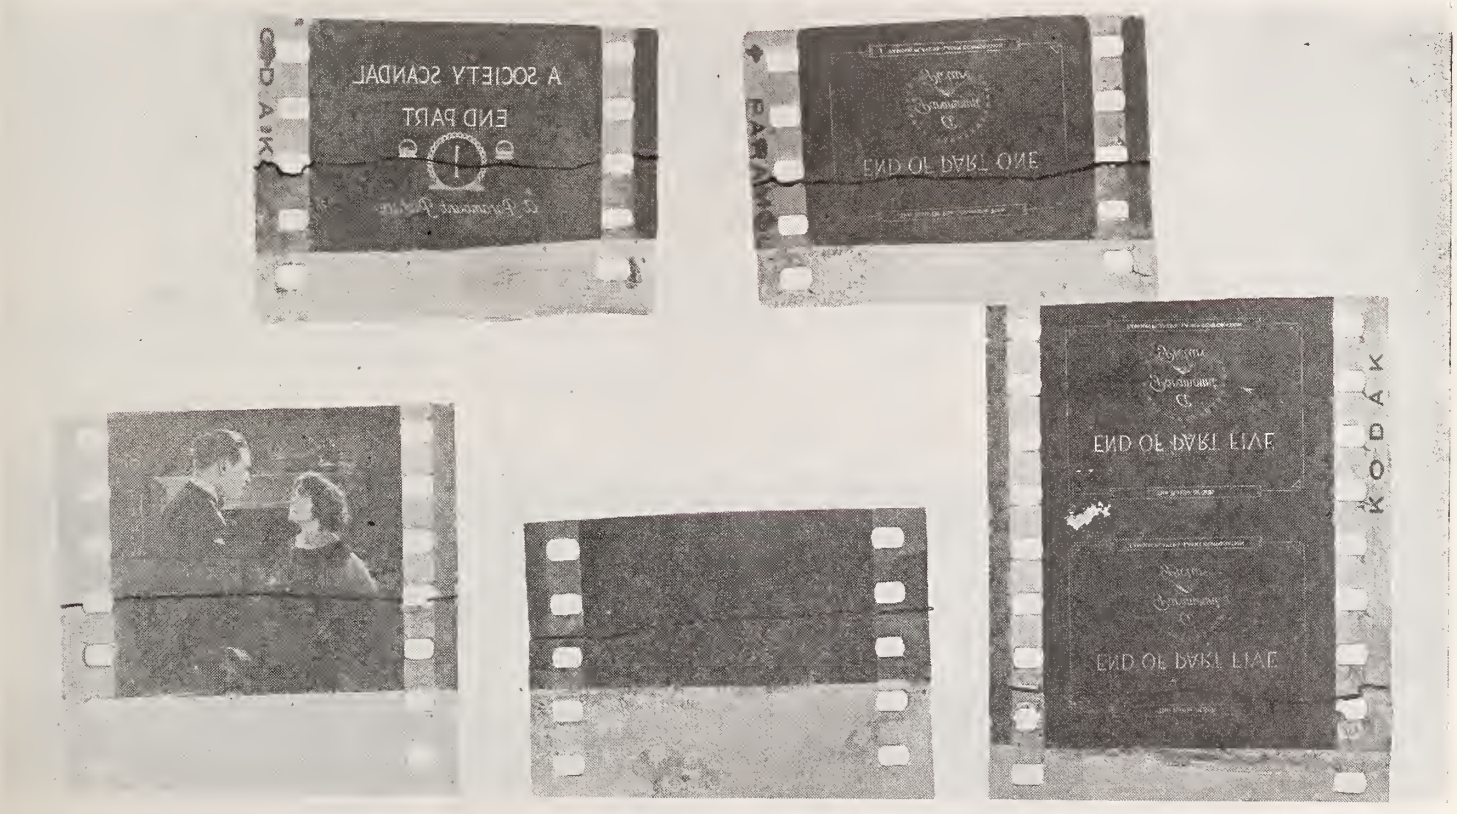


PLATE 18

By Mr. Dennison: Examples of the way Operators splice leader on films. This plate also illustrates the utter disregard they have for register, width and scraping.

Fox Men Dine

Saturday, January 24, at the hour when ghostly grave yards yawn, and theatre men just begin to enjoy themselves, the projectionists of all the Fox theatres in and about Greater New York City, together with several managers of Fox theatres, and many friends, gathered in the South Garden of the Hotel Astor, New York, to do honor to Charles Johnson, Supervisor of Projection of the Fox circuit of theatres. It was the regular annual event, which now seems to have become an institution.

And was it a classy affair? I'll tell the entire Western Hemisphere, including Coney Island, it was. The "Garden," which really is one of the many superb ball rooms of the hotel, was elaborately and tastefully decorated. The eclat of the affair is best indicated by its price—well on ten dollars per plate, including what was on it—the said plate, plus the "scenery" of course.

Considerable Scenery

Also there was some considerable scenery, as you may observe by taking a rubber at the accompanying photograph. Under the "X" is Supervisor of Projection Charles Johnson. Next him, on his right, is entirely satisfactory evidence that Charles was, in his younger days anyhow, a man of good taste. The lady is Mrs. Johnson, Charlie's real boss. Next to Mrs. Johnson is their daughter, and next her is her "regular" comp'ny—her husband—while at the extreme end is Mr. Deion, who projects the various productions for Mr. Fox himself. In other words, Brother Deion is Mr. Fox's private projectionist.

On the other side of Mr. Johnson is a guilty looking party, one F. H. Richardson, just then working hard at a Toastmastering job, next whom is his pal and daughter Nellie. Next comes "Bill" Rabel, who combines the position of President of the Independent Movie Supply Company with that of being one of the real, honest-to-gosh "fellers," whom one just naturally likes because he is honest, square and likeable.

Seated beside Rabel, is a man who is really not guilty of anything worse than being at the guest table. He is a good chap, John A. Krulish by name, representative of the Precision Machine Company, which corporation, strange as it may seem, admits that the Simplex is the best, yes, honest, cross-their-heart, the v-e-r-y best motion picture projector made, though the Power man was present, Claude Myers by name, who is six foot four inches short, though "not so wide," vehemently takes issue with that conclusion.

Oh well, lettum fight it out. We should make a worryment! Personally you and I think they are both "not so bad." In fact we believe each of them is absolutely the very best projector made, sold and vended to an unsuspecting and more or less defenseless industry.

Among Those Present

Scattered among the company were the following. There were many more, but with so much ladylike beauty present your reporter was blinded, and could not see them clearly. Joseph Basson and "Al" Polin, respectively President and Business Agent of Local Union 360 N. Y. C. Projectionists I. A. T. S. E. & M. P. M. O.; James La Fante, Abe Horowitz (Born in Cork, Ireland—maybe), and Dave Engle, respectively Brooklyn Business Agent, Recording Secretary and Financial Secretary of local union 306; "Jimmie" Daisey, the inimitable Daisey who, when excited bears startling resemblance to a fresh bottle of very lively champaign immediately after the cork has escaped; also there was the dignified and erudite "Teddy" Greenburg.

Committee

The committee in charge was composed of Mr. and Mrs. Weinberger, Mr. and Mrs. Friedman, Mr. and Mrs. Fiber (The ladies confidentially informed me they really did all the work), George Langer, Tedd Ridder and Joe Frank. The committee is entitled to much credit for the excellence of the arrangements.

The following managers were present: Henry Moore, Manager Fox Crontona Theatre, Astoria; B. W. Simon, Manager Fox City Theatre; L. Lipkswitz, Manager Fox Folly Theatre and H. Burk, Ass't Mgr. Fox Folly Theatre.

During the evening the Sol Klien Syncopaters supplied music. Jimmie Clark and Joe Sherman, both radio favorities, sang several songs as also did Mrs. Harry LeVine. All high class stuff, too, if you ask me.

Speaking was largely dispensed with, and as soon as the dinner was done with, the floor was cleared and dancing was in order until the unholy hour of five A. M.

A Distinct Credit

Taken altogether the affair was a distinct credit to the Fox men. Certainly it speaks volumes for the regard in which they hold their Supervisor of Projection, Charles W. Johnson.

Oh, yes, I came near forgetting a most important item—a most important one indeed. Each guest was presented with a valuable souvenir, and on behalf of the Fox men Toastmaster Richardson presented to Mr. Johnson a solitaire platinum—diamond ring—a beauty indeed.

Mr. Johnson was deeply touched and responded with a short talk in which his thanks were appropriately expressed.

Griffith and Gray

Recently Arthur Gray, Projectionist, Boston, Mass., and John Griffiths, whom you all know, arranged to visit New York City at the same time, and to foregather with my more or less 'umble self. And you may take it from me, I thoroughly enjoyed the meeting. Gray arrived the day before Griffith did, and I took him visiting to all the big Broadway projection rooms; also to see Joseph Basson, President L. U. 306, with whom we had dinner—and Joe stuck me for the check, dad blame 'im.

Through the courtesy of McKinnon (I don't know his front name. He is one of the old timers, and is known to all and sundry, here in the Big Town, as "Mac") we had lunch at the National Vaudeville Artists Club, filling "Mac" up, too, of course.

The Rubber Check

I cannot remember when I have spent a more pleasant evening. When congenial spirits foregather it is always fair weather, I think, and we all had much in common. Were sorry Basson could not join the "gang" for the whole evening, but he is a mere wage slave, though a President, and had to show a big theatre full of people the "Ten Commandments" at the Criterion. So that was that, so far as he was concerned. Anyhow he stuck me for the check, so it served him jolly good and right. Has to work all the afternoon and evening, or most of um anyhow, while I—I get through when I finally lose consciousness at night, and don't begin again until I wake up in the morning—unless I happen to wake during the night, when some letter some nut has wished on me immediately is very visible, right there in the dark, and remains visible (mentally) until I again lose consciousness amid a cyclone of rheostats, torn films, scratchem magazine valves, ohms, light rays, lenses, etc., etc., etc.

Yes, Siree!

Oh well, its a great life—if one don't weaken, and to date I haven't. And I certainly did enjoy the visit of Gray and Griffith. It was an oasis in a desert of WORK.

Banquet of Fox projectionists at the Astor Hotel, New York, on January 24.

Good A. P. S. Meeting

Last week the American Projection Society held one of its lecture meetings in its club rooms on Fifty Eighth street, just off Columbus Circle, New York.

While all-night sessions no longer have any entrancing allure for this particular writer man, even when it is with so fine a bunch of men, still, with John Griffith of Ansonia, in the (wooden?) Nutmeg State, and Arthur Gray, of the city which made the festive bean a noted article of food being present in Gotham, and desiring to attend, it was up to me, and I made good.

Oh well, once in a while maybe it's not so bad to watch the sun rise, but I do wish our business were such that meetings could be held at a civilized hour, instead of beginning just when the g*r*a*v*e y*a*r*d*s are presumed to be coughing up a lot of ghostly ghosts. Br-r-r-r!

Well, anyhow I thoroughly enjoyed it, darn it all! And I'm very sure Griffith and Gray did.

Lectures

There were two lectures staged. One by Allen Lownes, owner of the United States of America patent rights for the "Duratize" film coating process. This same consists of the coating of the emulsion side of film with celluloid in liquid form, using volatile celluloid solvents, which evaporate immediately upon exposure to the air, thus leavin a very thin coating of celluloid over the emulsion. The actual thickness of the coating was given by Mr. Lownes at 1/100 (.01) of a millimeter.

Mr. Lownes claims there is not only no loss of light caused by the coating, but that, instead, there was actually, as shown by photometer readings, a slight gain. This statement brought out a somewhat lengthy discussion, the editor taking the position that logically there should be not only no such gain, but a slight loss instead, due to the addition of surfaces. However he is not now certain that his argument was correct. Some very interesting points in this connection were brought out, which had they done nothing else, certainly proved the value of such lectures when followed by discussion. It was in effect exactly the same procedure followed by the Society of Motion Picture Engineers.

Points Brought Up

The point was made, for instance (by Joe Basson, President of Local 306, if I am not in error, and it is very wonderful to find 306 with a chief executive officer who can lead in a highly technical discussion such as this), that two surfaces were not added, as I myself asserted. That in fact no surface was added, but the non-gloss surface of the film emulsion was amalgamated with the inner celluloid surface, and the outer surface of the film was changed from a non-gloss surface, which to some extent probably diffused the light, to a glossy surface.

It was finally decided that the claim of Mr. Lownes might be grounded in fact. Gray, Griffith, Basson, Richardson and several others, whose names I unfortunately did not record, took part in this very interesting discussion.

The Rheostat

This lecture was followed by another by James E. Soons, his subject being "The Rheostat of Today and How to Utilize it to Your Best Advantage."

Unfortunately the multiple coil rheostat which was supposed to have been delivered and used for demonstration, was conspicuous by its absence, so that friend Soons was badly hampered. The resultant talk and discussion was, nevertheless, very instructive and interesting.

It was interesting to note how keenly the men appreciated and were interested in these lectures, and how excellent was the discussion which followed them. Contrasting the attitude of the men that night with that of the men attending similar lecures a few years ago, one was almost startled to note the change. Not only are the men not now listless and apathetic, but they are wide awake, keen and very evidently able to assimilate the discussion, or to take active part therein. No man worth his salt to the profession could possibly have attended that meeting without feeling pride in his connection with both the A. P. S. and the profession of motion picture projection.

Reflector Lamp

W. A. Stuckert, Rex Theatre, Brenham, Texas, says he has noted several advertisements by different concerns of reflector type arc lamps. He has taken up the matter with one of them and says:

Would thank you to, either by letter or through the department, advise me as to your opinion of this equipment. Is it practical and do you think it will give good results at a low cost over old style lamps, using a mercury arc rectifier?

Up to this date only two manufacturers of this type of equipment have taken the trouble to present their apparatus to this department for examination. They are the "Morelite" and the "American," either of which is excellent equipment, which has been carefully examined and is approved by this department. The others I know nothing about. They will be reported upon as soon as they submit their apparatus for examination.

The reflector type lamp is past the experimental stage. It is a very excellent type of apparatus. It uses from fifteen to thirty amperes of current and gives a brilliant white screen illumination. When properly handled it has been repeatedly demonstrated that a 20 ampere reflector type lamp will give screen illumination fully equal to a 60 to 75 ampere ordinary arc.

Once More

From Muskogee, Oklahoma, comes a request for the address of a school "where I can learn to operate a projector, and qualify so well that I will be able to hold down a job when I am through. Am an ex-soldier without a trade and want to start from the bottom and work up."

Once more, for about the one hundredth time, I will publish the fact that so far as I know THERE IS NO SUCH SCHOOL.

True, there are "schools" which take a substantial fee and propose to teach a man something (projection) which cannot be learned in less than a year of study and practical experience, in from four to six weeks, and do it without the man having had any real practical experience at all. What they do is: (A) Teach the "student" a lot of answers to examination questions, but without his having anything but a very hazy understanding of the why and wherefore of the answers—if he knows anything about it at all except the actual words of the answer. Any examiner who is worth the powder it would take to blow his suspender buttons off would trip the applicant up in not to exceed two minutes of a real examination. (B) The "student" is usually allowed to play around with a more or less old fashioned decrepit projector until he learns how to thread it, start it going and focus the picture. That constitutes his "practical experience."

Frauds

All the "projection schools" schools I know anything about are RANK FRAUDS, in the sense that they do NOT teach motion picture projection in any adequate way, or even give what might be termed a decent grounding in projection. Such as really teach anything which could be dignified by the name, teach merely "operating a projector," and that is taught in a very elemental manner.

I'm sorry, my friend, I would like to help you, BUT giving you the address of a "school" would not be truly helping you. Get a chance to serve as an apprentice to a good projectionist and SERVE YOUR TIME, is my advice. It is the ONLY right way. Get a job as usher, if you can't do any better, and pay the projectionist the money you intend to pay a school, to teach you. He may or may not do a good job of it, but anyhow he cannot and will not do any worse than one of the "schools" would.

306 Vindicated

In the late election held by the New York Projectionists to select officers to handle affairs in Local Union 306, I. A. T. S. E. & M. P. M. O., there was a peculiar condition. A certain supply dealer has twice made a desperate effort to swing himself into the presidency of the local. It was a case of Joseph Basson, a high grade, working projectionist, or a supply dealer who has not, so far as I know, worked a shift as projectionist for at least two or three years, for president.

The supply dealer worked very hard to accomplish his purpose, but was finally repudiated, for the second time, at the polls, and thus 306 has again vindicated herself.

Mackler's Clean Record

Harry Mackler, retiring president of 306, made a good record, considering the opposition he was compelled to encounter. He played the game clean and retires with honor.

Alex Polin, who was elected Business Agent, has the push, the fighting ability and the energy to make a good and efficient officer. I firmly believe Polin WILL make a good officer—one of the best business agents 306 has ever had, BUT remember this, gentlemen, if you want a real, live, efficient local, you will have to stop playing politics, work WITH your officers, and NOT AGAINST THEM.

No More Politics

The effort of the new officers will be directed toward lifting 306 out of the MIRE of union politics, and placing her on a high plane of a clean, straightforward business organization, in which laudable endeavor they will have all the support this department and its editor is able to give them. Let us forget supply dealers and politics, and move forward and upward in the great field of MOTION PICTURE PROJECTION, demanding a square deal from the exhibitor and GIVING THE EXHIBITOR a SQUARE DEAL IN RETURN by high grade efficient work in the projection rooms of New York City.

Cameo Theatre, Rocky Mount, N. C., to Open in About Thirty Days

THE Cameo Theatre, Rocky Mount, N. C., latest in the S. S. Stevenson chain of popular priced houses in the Carolinas, is nearing completion and is expected to open in less than thirty days. The work is being done under the direction of George E. Stevenson, construction and equipment supervisor for the Stevenson circuit, and when opened to the public will reveal one of the most modernly equipped small theatres in the South.

Spacious lobby, in addition to two store spaces, occupy the frontage of the theatre, back of which there is a large interior lobby, tastefully decorated, from which stairways ascend on either side to the mezzanine and balcony. Opening onto the mezzanine will be large and comfortably furnished ladies' parlor and gentlemen's smoking rooms. The building is of brick and concrete construction with marble and tera cotta interior finish. American Seating Company chairs were purchased through E. H. Reilly, of the Charlotte office. Superior projectors and General Electric motor generator set were purchased through the Carolina Theatre Supply Company, of Charlotte, and ventilation and cooling will be furnished by a twin-set Typhoon equipment. Gardiner Velvet gold fibre screen will be used, and Grecnwood Advertising Company, of Knoxville, Tenn., are building the electric sign for the front.

While the Cameo will be strictly a motion picture theatre, a capacious stage has been provided with every facility and modern electrical equipment.

There are persistent rumors that the Stevenson interests will at an early date invade several other cities in North Carolina. While nothing of this nature is admitted by S. S. Stevenson, controlling head of the circuit, it is believed there is some basis for the rumors.

Award Contract for 2600-Seat Picture Theatre in Elmira, N. Y.

JOHN CUNNINGHAM has been awarded contract for new State Theatre to be erected on west side of State street, south of Gray, Elmira, New York. The structure will be the most modern and largest theatre in Southern New York.

The building will be constructed of concrete and steel. There will be four stores on the ground floor and twelve offices on the floors above. The first, or orchestra floor, will be thirty rows deep, the chairs luxurious, roomy and spaced so as to give the utmost freedom with accommodations for 1,400 persons.

The auditorium will be decorated in ornamental relief work, mural paintings, with the entire scheme in golden and rose tones. All the relief ornamental work throughout, and there will be considerable around the private boxes, proscenium arch, balcony front and the sounding board, will be finished in old ivory, tastefully enriched with gold leaf.

The pipe organ will be installed in two sections over the private boxes on either side and the grilles for the organ fronts will be made of ornamental work, interwoven in decorative scheme of private boxes. The orchestra pit will be commodious and fully capable of accommodating an orchestra that will be called upon to use it. The console for the organ will be located at the left side of the orchestra pit.

From the foyer, the mezzanine is reached by means of marble stairways and this floor is to be fitted with every convenience that can be devised. The mezzanine floor will contain the men's and women's balcony retiring rooms, telephone booths, writing desks, lounges and all other requisites for the comfort and convenience of the theatre patrons.

The balcony will be reached by easy gradients at sides of the mezzanine and also by a center stairway. These gradients and the stairway will bring the balcony patrons to the first of the wide cross aisles. Loges outlined this cross aisle and along the side walls where the balcony connects with the private boxes on this floor. Back of the five rows of opera loges at the balcony front will extend some twenty rows of opera chairs. The balcony will seat between 1,100 and 1,200 persons, this including the occupants of the loges and private boxes. The total seating capacity will be about 2,600.

The entire front portion of the theatre, including the boxes, organ fronts, proscenium, sounding board and other portions lying in front of the balcony, will be illuminated by indirect lights set in the balcony front. The massive dome will also have an indirect lighting system.

The heating and ventilating system will be the most complete available.

The management and control of the theatre will be in the hands of George H. Van Demark and Malcolm D. Gibson. The new house will offer high-grade pictures and vaudeville when it opens. Later this policy may be changed to include legitimate attractions.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISEMENTS
Help and Situations Wanted Only

3c per word per insertion
Minimum charge 60c
Terms, Strictly Cash with Order

Copy must reach us by Tuesday noon to insure publication in that week's issue.

SITUATIONS WANTED

MANAGER, now employed, managing three theatres, wishes change. Considerable experience and success with photoplay, vaudeville and roadshow attractions. Consider only proposition from reliable people. References. Box 358, Moving Picture World, New York City.

WANTED—Position as manager, 28 years of legitimate, vaudeville and pictures. Box 362, Moving Picture World, New York City.

ORGANIST EXTRAORDINARY, first-class feature player and soloist desires engagement. Box office asset. Union man. Magnificent library. Wire or write, Organist, Room 226, Princess Hotel, Atlantic City, New Jersey.

SPECIAL ROLL TICKETS

Your own special Ticket, any colors, accurately numbered; every roll guaranteed. Coupon Tickets for Prize Drawings; 5,000 for $7.00. Prompt shipments. Cash with the order. Get the samples. Send diagram for Reserved Seat Coupon Tickets, serial or dated. All tickets must conform to Government regulation and bear established price of admission and tax paid.

SPECIAL TICKET PRICES

Five Thousand	$3.50
Ten Thousand	6.00
Fifteen Thousand	7.00
Twenty-five Thousand	9.00
Fifty Thousand	12.50
One Hundred Thousand	18.00

National Ticket Co. Shamokin, Pa.

SAVE MONEY ON Roll Tickets
Your Own Special Wording
100,000 for $15.50
10,000 for $4.50, 20,000 for $7.50
50,000 for $10.00
Standard Rolls of 2,000
KEYSTONE TICKET CO.
SHAMOKIN, PA.
The Union Label if you want it
Have been printing Roll Tickets for 10 years and no better can be had at any price.

MAILING LISTS
MOVING PICTURE THEATRES

21,776	Moving Picture Theatres, per M	$5.00
3,674	Legitimate Theatres, per M	7.50
327	Colored Moving Picture Theatres	5.00
1,059	Film Exchanges	10.00
162	Manufacturers and Studios	3.00
411	Moving Picture Mach. & Sup. Dealers	4.00

A. F. WILLIAMS
166 W. Adams Street CHICAGO

WELDED WIRE REELS
For Sale by
Howells Cine Equipment Co.,
740 7th Ave., New York

FOR LEASE
1,200 Seat Masonic Auditorium, up-to-date in every detail, including stage and balcony, in growing community of 45,000 population. We will equip same for motion picture requirements to suit tenant. Very little competition. Address Masonic Building Association, Box 361, care MOVING PICTURE WORLD.

GET YOUR COPY OF RICHARDSON'S BLUEBOOK ON PROJECTION
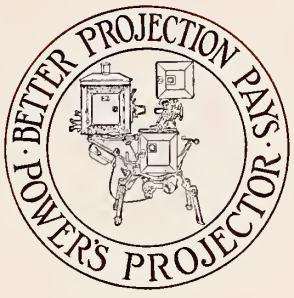
N O W.
PRICE $6.00. POSTAGE PREPAID.

Power's Projectors



A GREAT COMPLIMENT FROM A SPLENDID ORGANIZATION

MANUFACTURE of projection equipment has reached a high stage, and the abilities and prestige of projectionists, in whose hands the ultimate screening rests, have similarly progressed.

Foster Goss
Editor, American Cinematographer

American Cinematographer is the official publication of The American Society of Cinematographers

Better Projection Pays
Depend Upon Power's

NICHOLAS POWER COMPANY
INCORPORATED
NINETY GOLD ST. NEW YORK, N.Y.

HAL ROACH

presents

THE SPATS

in the Two-Reel Comedies

"Laugh That Off" and "Excuse My Glove"

In some families talking about the weather will start a fight. With them a scrap beats cross-word puzzles, a six-tube radio set or a baby's prattle, for fun.

Such a family is The Spats. They can get more kick out of a nice little private quarrel than a kid can get in exploring his Christmas stocking. They had sooner get into an argument than get out of paying the income tax.

Watch them fight through these two latest juggernauts of laughter.

Pathécomedy

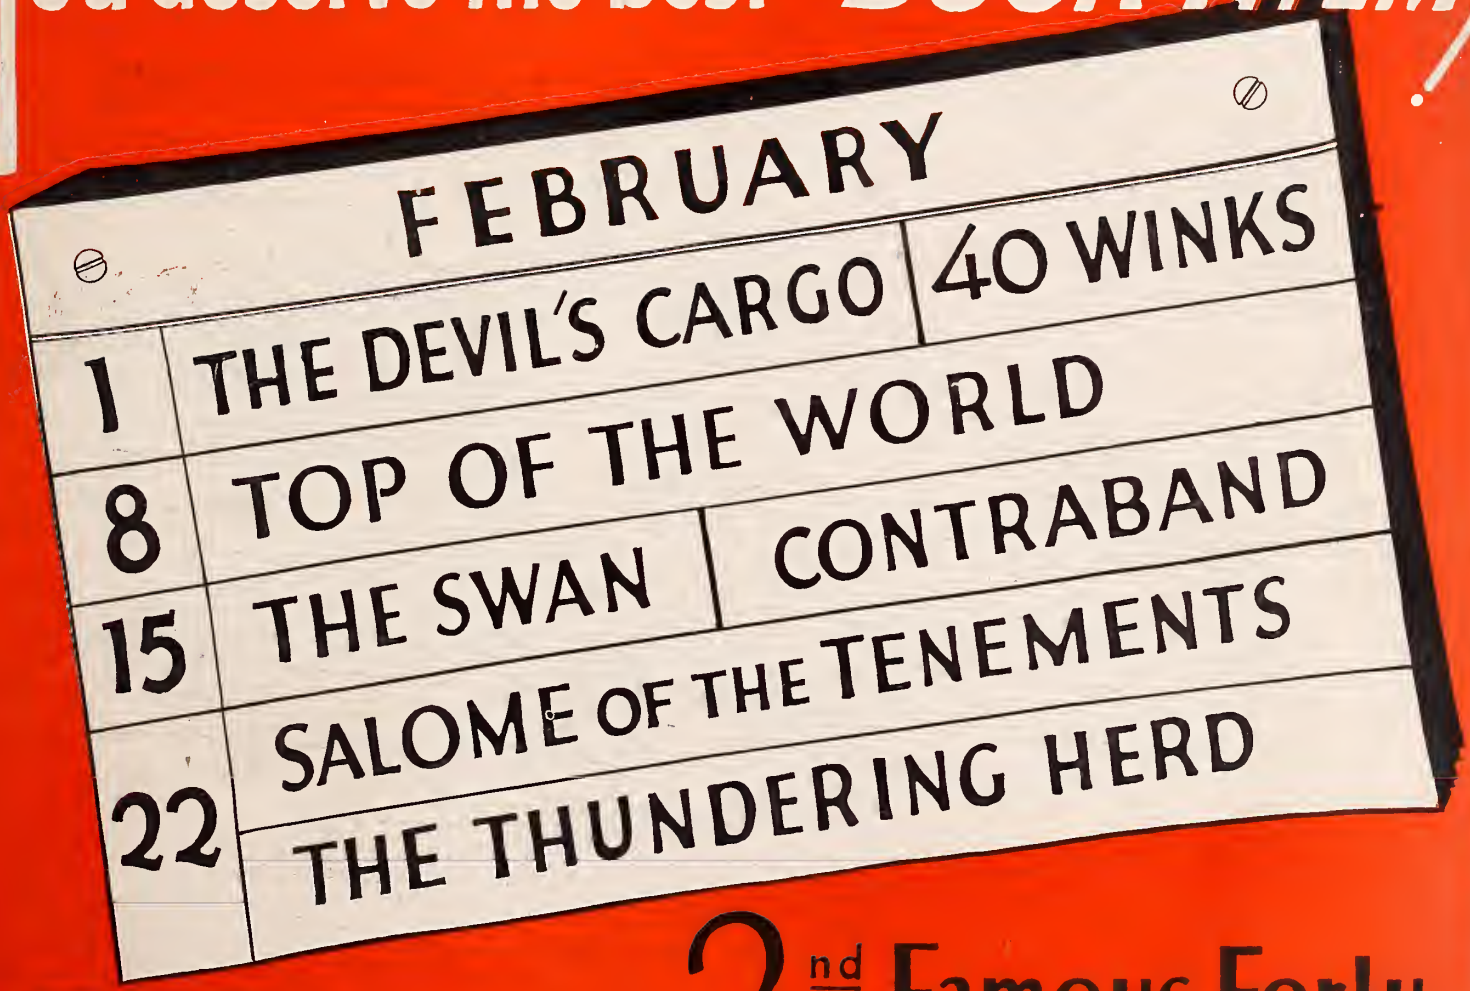
TRADE MARK

First in the Field!

Moving Picture WORLD

Vol. 72, No. 7 FEBRUARY 14, 1925 PRICE 25 CENTS

You deserve the best—BOOK THEM!



2nd Famous Forty
Paramount Pictures

Published by CHALMERS PUBLISHING COMPANY 516 FIFTH AVE. NEW YORK CITY

Entered as second class matter June 17, 1906, at the Post Office at New York, N. Y., under the act of March 3, 1879. Printed weekly. $3 a year.

The greatest HOOT GIBSON picture - bar none!
Let 'er Buck!
With the world's Greatest Rodeo
Exclusive action scenes of the thrilling 1924 Pendleton Round-up
UNIVERSAL-GIBSON PRODUCTION
Directed by Edward Sedgwick
To be presented by Carl Laemmle
One of the Pictures on The White List
Universal has the Pictures!

A great big, jazzy fashion-show picture coming just before Easter!

ADOLPH ZUKOR
JESSE L. LASKY PRESENT

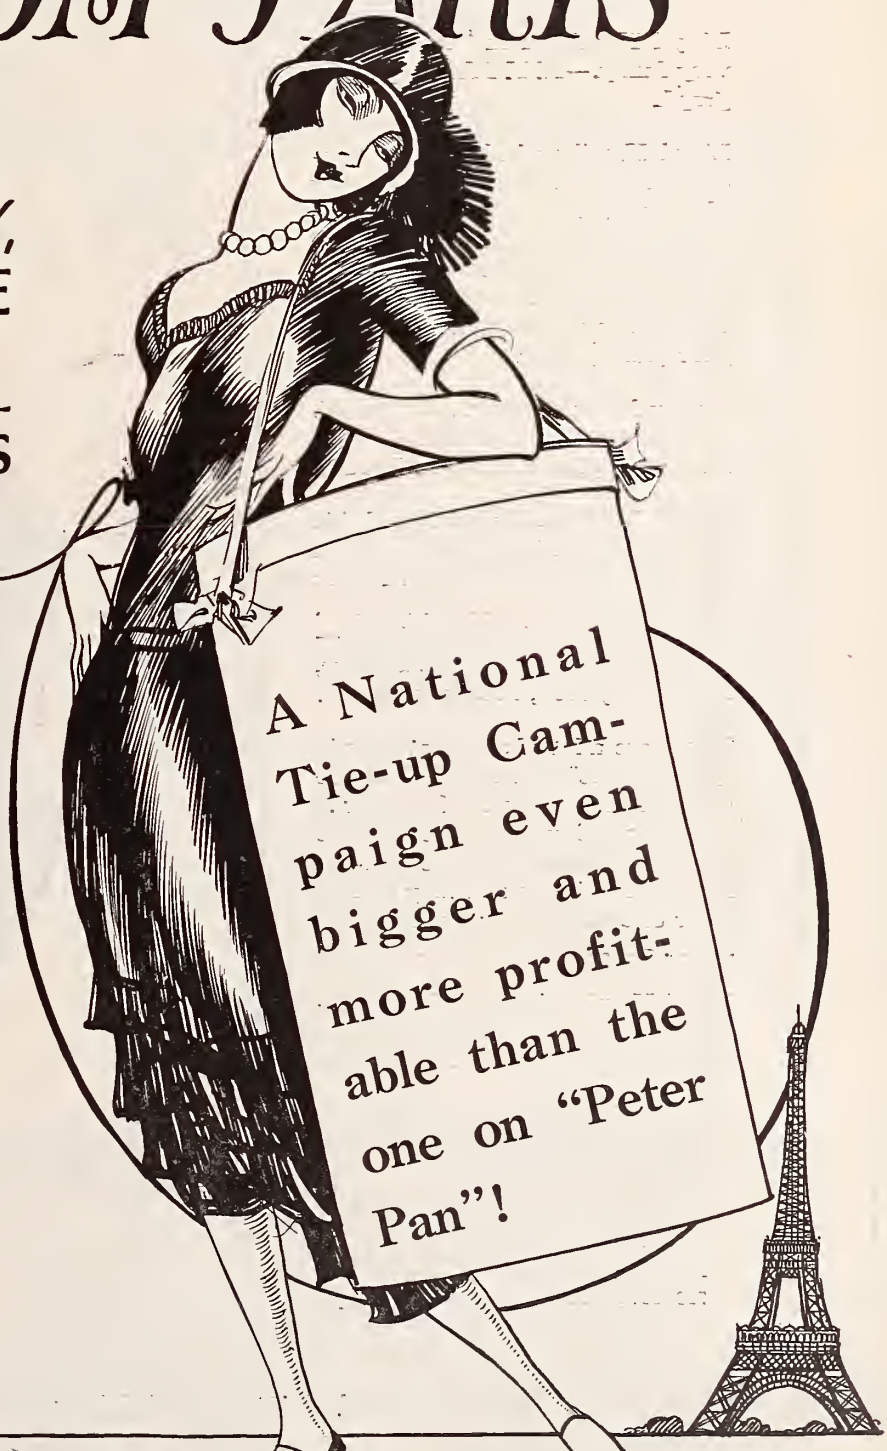
"The DRESSMAKER FROM PARIS"

with
LEATRICE JOY,
ERNEST TORRENCE
AND THE
14 INTERNATIONAL
BEAUTY MODELS



If there ever was a picture aimed straight at the old box office, this is she! A carnival of jazz, youth and beauty. A frisky, Frenchy love story of a Parisian dressmaker who comes to an American small town and sets the hearts a-flutter. An advance showing by the world's 14 most beautiful girls of coming Paris fashions. A chance to stage a fashion show, tie up the department stores, go the limit in exploitation. And know you're going to get a barrel of coin!

By Adelaide Heilbron and Howard Hawks.

Screen play by Adelaide Heilbron

— A —
PAUL BERN
PRODUCTION

And that's another big money-maker in the 2nd Famous Forty Paramount Pictures

Member Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, Inc.—Will H. Hays, President

HAMILTON COMEDIES

E. W. Hammons

Presents

LLOYD HAMILTON

in

"HOOKED"

A comedy that will land new friends for you, and a box-office attraction that will pay big dividends if co-featured in your advertising.

Lloyd Hamilton in "Crushed" is very funny.—N. Y. Morning Telegraph.

Lloyd Hamilton in his latest comedy production "Crushed" is worthy of more than "comment" for the excellent production he has made and the many laughs he afforded last night's audience. Hamilton improves with every appearance. — Bridgeport (Conn.) Star.

A very funny comedy...—John W. Hawkins, Capitol Theatre, New Bedford, Mass., in Exhibitors Herald.

"Jonah Jones"— My opinion of this comedy is that it's as funny, if not funnier, than any Chaplin I ever looked at, and I have seen them all. In other words, it's a knockout. — H. A. Schwahn, Eau Claire Theatre, Eau Claire, Wis., in Amusements.

There are a lot of excellent gags in "Jonah Jones" and they follow one another so closely the laughter is almost continuous. It struck the Chicago theatre audiences just below the laugh line and they carried their chuckles clear out into the street.—Exh. Herald (T.O. Service).

Lloyd Hamilton's drolleries in "Jonah Jones" are outlandishly funny. —Washington (D.C.) News.

For foreign rights address
FAR EAST FILM CORPORATION
729 Seventh Avenue, New York City

Educational Pictures
"THE SPICE OF THE PROGRAM"

Written and Directed by
FRED HIBBARD

EDUCATIONAL FILM EXCHANGES, Inc.
E. W. Hammons
President

Member, Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, Inc.
Will H. Hays, President

D. W. GRIFFITH

Presents

"ISN'T LIFE WONDERFUL"

A Simple Romance of Love and Potatoes

GRIFFITH THE WIZARD

"D. W. Griffith again reveals his wizardry. It seems almost incredible, yet out of the homely raw material Griffith has evoked such marvelous, heart-plumbing effects that the very potatoes must have been crying their eyes out. Griffith, greater than ever, elicits a furore with the flourishing of liverwurst in his film. There is a pulse and a life to the picture provided by its note of hope triumphant."

—Frank Vreeland, N. Y. Telegram-Mail.

NOW BOOKING

UNITED ARTISTS CORPORATION

Mary Pickford — Charles Chaplin

Douglas Fairbanks — D. W. Griffith

Hiram Abrams, President — Joseph M Schenck, Chairman, Board of Directors

"Haven't missed

Now is the time to b
These big, new stars mak

12 furious 2-reel frolics of fun, featuring

WANDA WILEY

'Thank you particularly for Wanda Wiley — she looks like the best comedy bet on the market," writes M. Mandelbaum, of the Virginia Theatre, Cleveland, O.

As beautiful as they make 'em, and funnier than you've ever seen before, Wanda Wiley has hit the high spots of the comedy field with a rush! Her first release was booked for, and made a hit at the Rialto Theatre, Broadway and 42nd Street, New York. Others have been booked over the entire Loew, Lubliner & Trinz and Comerford circuits, as well as many other splendid first run key city theatres. See Wanda Wiley in the following releases now in your Universal Exchange:

"Looking Down"
"Nobody's Sweetheart"
"Don't Worry"
"Getting Trimmed"
"Queen of Aces"

CENTURY

52
a year

"Consistently Good"

Released thr

one in seven years!"

is the experience of Chas. W. Burkey of the Summit Theatre, in Kansas City, Mo.

ure you get every one!
Centurys better than ever!

12 of the fastest and funniest ever made featuring

EDDIE GORDON

Hailed everywhere as the comedy find of the year. Now ready in a group of button-bursting laughing hits! 2 reels each.

Here is fair warning—see these brand new two-reel riots of laughs at your Universal Exchange now! They're there in every way! And if you're not too weak from laughter, you'll sign up and get your dates quick. Because Eddie Gordon comedies are going to prove among the finest comedy bets of this, or any other, year. See these at your Universal Exchange:

"The Polo Kid"
"Itching for Revenge"
"Kicked About"
"Puzzled by Cross Words"
"Taxi War"

EDNA MARIAN

COMEDIES

UNIVERSAL

HERMAN F. JANS

PRESENTS

The Screen Achievement of the Season

ANN PENNINGTON
(Courtesy Flo Ziegfeld)

JOHNNIE WALKER

VINCENT LOPEZ AND BAND

IN

"THE MAD DANCER"

BY LOUISE WINTER

Directed by BURTON KING

The Thrilling Story of a Little Parisian Model, Her Life in the Studios and How She Was Pursued to America by a Lustful Artist Who Desired Her

MARVELOUS SETTINGS

STUPENDOUS EPISODES

REMARKABLE THRILLS

SENSATIONAL SCENES

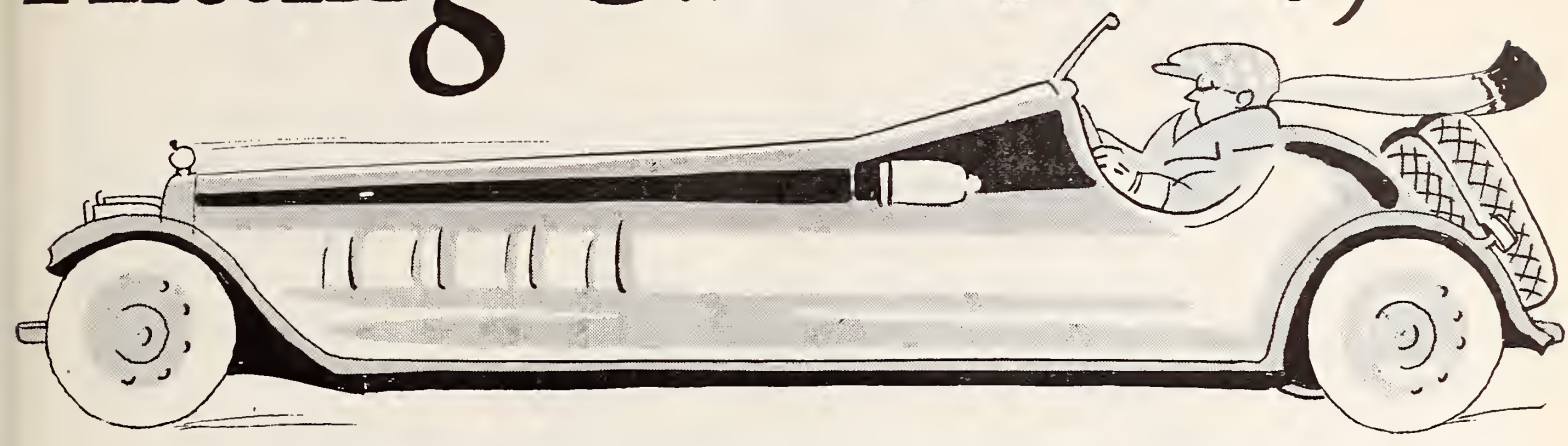
THE SECOND OF THE JANS SERIES OF SIX, FOLLOWING "PLAYTHINGS OF DESIRE"
COMING: "MARRIED?" and "ERMINE AND RHINESTONES"

JANS PRODUCTIONS, Inc., 1540 Broadway, New York

H. F. JANS, President

FOREIGN RIGHTS—EXPORT & IMPORT CORP., 729 7TH AVE., NEW YORK

Hitting On All Fifty



YOU can't beat Metro-Goldwyn. Every picture is Good. Many are Great. If the revenue at the box-office of all distributors was averaged, it's a safe bet that Metro-Goldwyn would be far in the lead per picture.

Pictures like "He Who Gets Slapped," "The Navigator," "His Hour," etc., are real money-getters.

But you ain't seen nothin' yet

COMING! AMONG OTHERS!

Metro-Goldwyn Pictures

The Great Divide
A Reginald Barker production. From the immortal stage play by William Vaughn Moody. With Alice Terry and Conway Tearle.

Cheaper to Marry
Directed by Robert Z. Leonard. From Samuel Shipman's famous stage play. With Lewis Stone, Conrad Nagel, Marguerite De La Motte.

Buster Keaton in Seven Chances
Based on the famous Belasco play by Roi Cooper Megrue. Presented by Joseph M. Schenck.

Never the Twain Shall Meet
Directed by Maurice Tourneur. From the popular Novel by Peter B. Kyne. With an All-Star Cast. A Cosmopolitan Production.

Confessions of a Queen
Directed by Victor Seastrom. With Alice Terry and Lewis Stone. By Alphonse Daudet.

Greed
Directed by Erich Von Stroheim. From Frank Norris' famous novel, "McTeague." With Gibson Gowland, Zasu Pitts, Jean Hersholt and Dale Fuller.

Jackie Coogan in The Rag Man
By Willard Mack. Directed by Eddie Cline. Produced under personal supervision of Jack Coogan, Sr.

Member Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, Inc.—Will H. Hays, President

With this Great Cast:

ANITA STEWART
BERT LYTELL
HUNTLY GORDON
JUSTINE JOHNSTONE
GEORGE SEIGMANN
LIONEL BELMORE
WILLIAM NORRIS
EMILY FITZROY
PRINCESS de BOURBON
FLORENCE TURNER

Peter B. Kyne's
Great Story of California and the South Seas

Adaptation by Eugene Mullin

Settings by Joseph Urban

Directed by
Maurice Tourneur

There's a ready public waiting for your announcement of this gorgeous production of the famous novel. A best-seller story because it's the finest South Sea romance ever written. A best-seller picture because it's got what the public is willing to pay for. You'll positively clean up with it!

A Real Box-Office Prize

A Cosmopolitan Production

Distributed by

Metro Goldwyn

F.B.O.'S 3RD BIG

LEFTY FLYNN

THRILLING ACTION WESTERN

"BREED OF THE BORDER"

Produced by Harry Garson

Following "The Millionaire Cowboy" and "The "No-Gun Man" comes this action Western—"THE BREED OF THE BORDER," in which

LEFTY FLYNN

IS COMING FAST

Take advantage of his growing popularity.

See 'em at any F. B. O. Exchange in 32 Cities

Film Booking Offices

723 SEVENTH AVE., NEW YORK CITY

EXCHANGES EVERYWHERE

Produced at the F. B. O. Studios, Hollywood, Calif.

The world's funniest

"CHAR A

Directed by Scott Sidney

PRODUCED BY CHRISTIE
FILM COMPANY INC.

Foreign rights controlled by Simmonds-Kann Enterprises, Inc.,
220 West 42nd Street
New York City

motion picture —

LEY'S UNT"

With SYD CHAPLIN

Booked for An Indefinite Run by America's Three Premiere Motion Picture Palaces—

B. S. Moss' magnificent new Colony Theatre, New York, following Norma Talmadge in "The Lady."

Aaron Jones' Orpheum Theatre, Chicago, following Douglas Fairbanks in "The Thief of Bagdad."

Grauman's Million Dollar Theatre, Los Angeles, following Cecil B. DeMille's "The Golden Bed."

Follow the lead of these great showmen and make your booking reservations now for this super attraction.

Released by Producers Distributing Corporation

AN INDEPEN

THESE BIG

Are appearing

ANITA STEWART
in
"The BOOMERANG"

BERT LYTELL
in
"The BOOMERANG"

B.P.SCHULBERG

DENT "SCOOP"

BOX-OFFICE PLAYERS

on the Independent Market for the First Time

ETHEL CLAYTON
in
"THE MANSION of ACHING HEARTS"

MAE BUSCH
in
"THE TRIFLERS"

ALICE JOYCE
in
"WHITE MAN"

PRODUCTIONS, Inc

Foreign Distributors: Export and Import Film Co., 729 Seventh Ave., New York City. Cable Address: Eximfilm, New York.

A ROMANTIC ROLLICKING RIOT

A Woman's Picture!

Tom Mix

with "TONY" the wonder horse, and star cast

Now in its second week of tremendous business

Tom Mix is the pleasantest figure now operating in the Wild West of the movies . . . With his magnificent pony he has won a splendid reputation . . . Now I am sure he has made his mark . . . of its type it is splendid . . Mr. Mix is a good actor . . . I enjoyed every minute of it.

—QUINN MARTIN in N. Y. World

Tom Mix in unusual feature . . . The Piccadilly will probably have its hands full taking care of those movie goers who are fed up on goofy sex-stuff and will welcome this chance to see plenty of red corpuscles in action.

—N. Y. Evening Post

Tom Mix as "Dick Turpin" is romantically picturesque . . . is splendid as the outlaw who robs the rich to help the poor. The backgrounds are beautiful, the action thrilling and there is plenty of it.

—ROSE PELSWICK in N. Y. Evening Journal

If you like thrills and pep and action, visit the Piccadilly Theatre and see Tom Mix in his latest film, "Dick Turpin." . . . The public has set its seal of approval on "Dick Turpin." . . . Utterly delightful and romantic and thrilling. . . .

—REGINA CANNON in Eve. Graphic

Tom Mix as "Dick Turpin" is as hard riding, as two fisted and as quick with the pistol as of yore. . . . The picture is good . . . graceful settings, cast large and excellent. . . . Go to the Piccadilly for entertainment fast and furious. . . . There are no disappointments.

—Morning Telegraph

Tom Mix has signed contract. . . . Fox is to pay him $20,000 a week. . . . He's worth it. After seeing him at the Piccadilly in that hair raising, breath holding, spine thrilling picture, "Dick Turpin," I'll say he earns it. . . . If you want a real thrill, by all means see Tom Mix. He outstunts them all.

—FAY KING in Daily Mirror

A PICTURE OF SURPASSING BEAUTY

FOX FILM CORPORATION

TWO WEEKS AT THE NEW YORK PICCADILLY THEATRE

Tom Mix is Broadway's favorite

Fight Fans will revel in the old style fist Battle!

in Dick Turpin

A WILLIAM FOX presentation ~ A J.G.BLYSTONE production

New York critics unanimous in praise. Read what they say

Swashbuckling . . . packed with excitement, daredeviltry and romance . . . Tom Mix out-Reveres Paul, out-Fairbanks Doug, and out-Glyns Elinor in this picture . . . ably aided by his horse, Tom rides, fights and loves.

If Tom doesn't give you thrill after thrill in this picture, nothing will.

—DOROTHY HERZOG in Daily Mirror

If you're hungry for a stout tale of adventure "Dick Turpin" is your meat. . . . Every thrill in this picture we expect to see. . . . A dashing picture you'll surely like. . . . You'll be wildly enthusiastic. . . . It is certainly the best Tom Mix has ever done.

—MILDRED SPAIN in Daily News

"Dick Turpin" is a thrilling picture and Tom Mix a romantic hero. . . . He can do all the things which Douglas Fairbanks can do and some which we never saw Doug do. . . . He rides like a centaur. . . . There is never a dull moment.

—N. Y. Herald Tribune

Tom Mix superb in "Dick Turpin." . . . Rudolph Valentino and Douglas Fairbanks have never given a better performance than Mix's "Dick Turpin." . . . Far better than many productions labeled "Extra specials."

—N. Y. American

A glorified version of "Dick Turpin." . . . A clever, wholesome production with plenty of humor and Mix's performance is remarkably capable.

—N. Y. Times

Tom Mix is the star of an acrobatic and stirring version of "Dick Turpin." . . . Is one of the very best Mix pictures. . . . The horse is as dashing and picturesque as his master and Bull Montana is surprisingly comic.

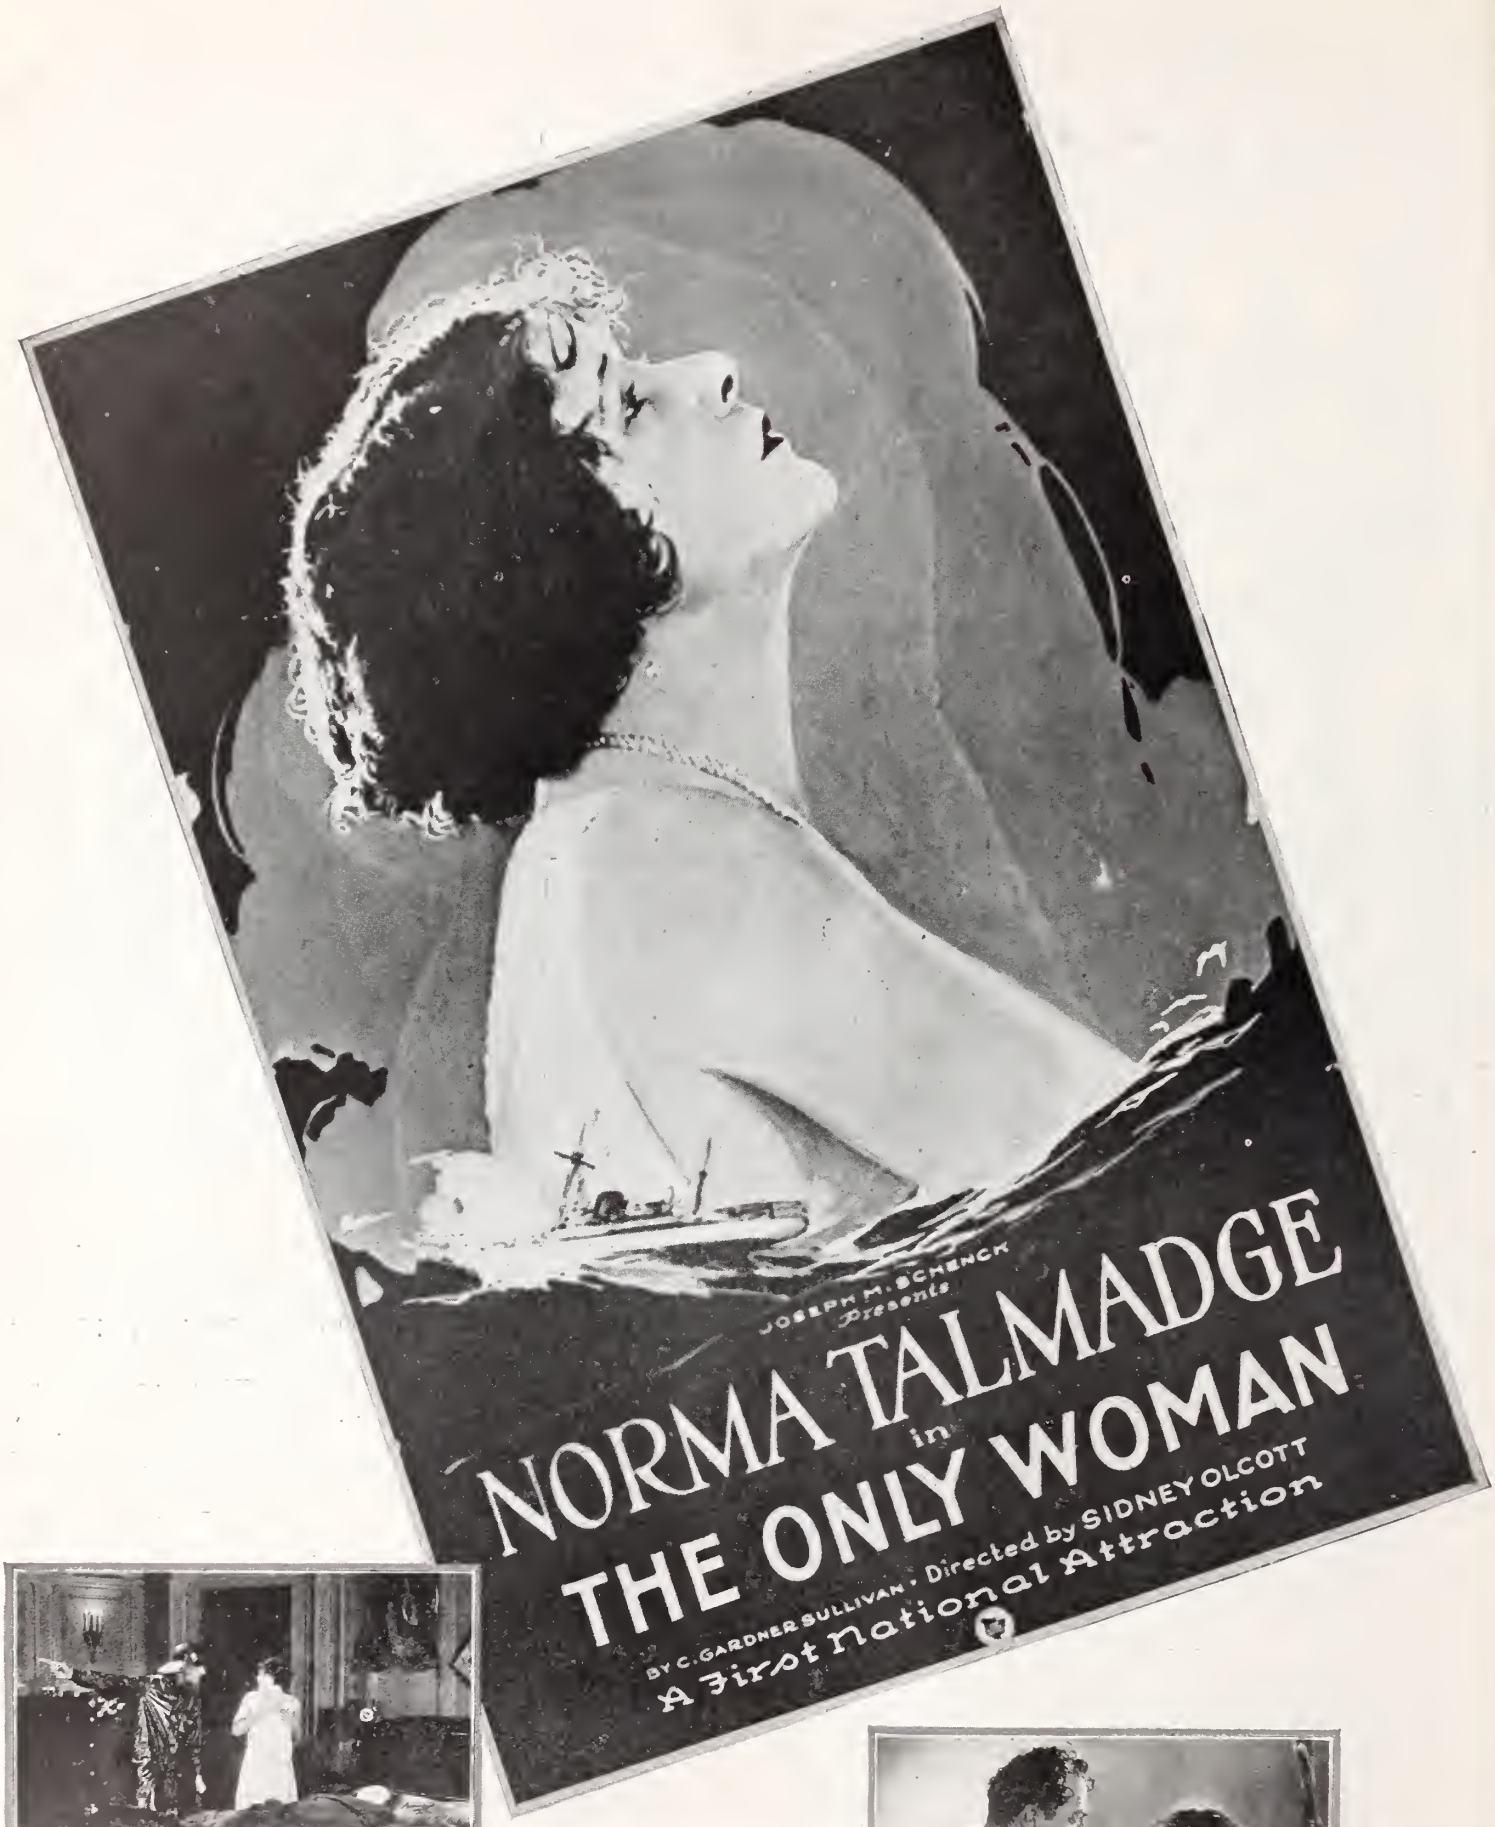
—N. Y. Evening Sun

"Dick Turpin" is by far the greatest thing that Tom Mix has done. . . . Every scene is packed with adventure and romance.

—N. Y. Evening World

ENCHANTING ROMANCE AND JOYOUS ADVENTURE

FOX FILM CORPORATION



Members of Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America Inc.—Will Hays President

A GREAT TICKET SELLER

NEW YORK

"If ever a picture was a thriller this is one."—Evening World.

"It is a box office attraction whose possibilities for money-making cannot be denied."—American.

"This one is a box office photoplay."—Daily News.

CHICAGO

"A good picture. We think you'll like it."—Chicago Tribune.

"A smartly staged production all the way."
—Chicago Herald Examiner.

"The storm at sea is as thrilling as any episode the screen has ever had."—Chicago Post.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

"A picture worth seeing."—Rochester Herald.

ST. LOUIS

"There are thrills aplenty; tears and laughs."—Globe Democrat.

"For thrilling and vivid realism the shipwreck scenes far surpass anything ever offered on the screen."—St. Louis Times.

LOS ANGELES

"An abundance of thrills, suspenseful and dramatic."—Daily News.

"Delighted crowded houses. Excitement rules the screen."
—Examiner.

Like all big money makers it's a
FIRST NATIONAL PICTURE

FIRST NATIONAL PICTURES

Foreign Rights Controlled by
First National Pictures Inc.
383 Madison Avenue New York

"Okeh for any house and should please any audience in these United States. A surefire laugh hit."

Motion Picture News.

Members of Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America Inc.—Will Hays President

Also a
First National Picture

The Season's Sensation!

Samuel Goldwyn presents

The George Fitzmaurice PRODUCTION

"A THIEF IN PARADISE"

Adapted From LEONARD MERRICK'S novel FRANCES MARION "THE WORLDLINGS"

with

Doris Kenyon, Ronald Colman, Aileen Pringle, Claude Gillingwater, Alec Frances

Philadelphia

A photoplay of surpassing interest.
—North American

Of sensational beauty.
—Inquirer

Notable in every respect.
—Record

It is well done.
—Evening Ledger

Holds the interest.
—Public Ledger

Detroit

Has much to recommend it.
—Free Press

A film thoroughly deserving the adjective "sensational."
—Times

Should prove highly popular.
—News

Naturally it's a FIRST NATIONAL PICTURE

FIRST NATIONAL PICTURES

Foreign Rights Controlled by First National Pictures Inc. 383 Madison Avenue New York

Members of Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America Inc.—Will Hays President

The
MOVING PICTURE
WORLD
Founded in 1907 by J. P. Chalmers

The Editor's Views

WHAT a feast of big pictures is on the way! It would seem as though the producers had been waiting for the run down the stretch of the 1924-25 season and are now bunched for a dead heat.

Look at the list of those that will see Broadway within the next few weeks and months: "The Man Without a Country," "Charley's Aunt," "The Lost World," "Quo Vadis?" "The Great Divide," —and who knows, before many moons we may even see "Ben-Hur."

If these are forerunners of next September's list it looks as though the box offices of the country are in for considerable nourishment. When we have "the pictures" it has never been very difficult to get everything else.

Two of the pictures mentioned in the list above we had the good fortune of viewing in Boston last week, "The Lost World," and "Charley's Aunt." With considerable space we tell you what we think of "The Lost World" elsewhere in this issue.

As for "Charley's Aunt"—we are willing to be quoted right here as saying that when this production gets into circulation they can stop referring to Syd Chaplin as "Charlie's brother." It is a comedy gem. It is a welcome means for congratulation to the well-liked Christies, under whose supervision it was made, and to Producers Distributing Corporation, who have the good fortune to distribute it.

* * *

AN exhibitor writes us, "I wish The World would undertake an agitation in favor of better posters. You could save us a lot of weak nights and put a lot of money in our pockets if you could shake up some of the boys down in New York."

Gosh, is that problem still with us? We thought, with all this talk of continuing increasing efficiency, with all the better pictures, that good posters were a matter of routine fact by now.

With a view towards a check-up we set out on a ride around sections of the city that offered opportunity for study of current film posters. And we return convinced that there are cases where our reader friend is right about the need for a shake-up.

Of course, one set of posters doesn't permit of discussion of a complete situation. But, aside from the very good posters we encountered, the others would seem to divide themselves into two classes.

One is the situation where too little attention is being given the poster problem by the company. The distributor has a standing contract with the lithographer, some employe loaded with a hundred other duties is expected to "get some stills together for the posters"—and the result is obvious.

The other situation might, paradoxically, be labeled "where too much attention is being given the posters." But what we really mean is that some artist who can probably present wonderfully "artistic" sketches is on the job. The result is often a poster that might do finely for Djer Kiss perfume, but hasn't the least relation to the job of "pulling 'em to the box-office."

And so it goes. Guess we'll have to take up our reader on his request for agitation.

* * *

THE exhibitor whom we quote brings up one very important angle on his problem. "Some of those New York boys," he writes, "seem to forget the importance of the individual accessories and think too much in terms of 'the complete campaign.'

"They forget that there must be a few thousand exhibitors in my position, and unable to use their comprehensive 'complete campaigns.' The greatest advance stories ever written, the snappiest stunts, and finest ad copy can't help me in this theatre's location. I have to depend on the posters I put outside and around the neighborhood, the photos I put in the lobby, the slides and trailers I put on the screen. When any of those accessories on a picture are anaemic—I feel it at the box office. The picture itself might be wonderful entertainment, but these accessories have to get them into the theatre to see it.

"And don't think that it is only the ten and twenty-five dollar a day fellows who are in my position. Tell some of the advertising boys to pay a visit to the exchange and learn the real money they get from some of us fellows who still have to look pretty carefully at the despised accessories."

Robert E. Welsh

Moving Picture WORLD

EDITOR - - - - - - - - - - - - - - ROBERT E. WELSH

Published Weekly by CHALMERS PUBLISHING COMPANY, 516 Fifth Avenue, New York, N. Y. Telephone: Murray Hill 1610-1-2-3. Member Audit Bureau Circulation. John F. Chalmers, president; James P. Chalmers, Sr., vice-president; Alfred J. Chalmers, vice-president; Eliza J. Chalmers, secretary and treasurer, and Ervin L. Hall, business manager.

Branch Offices: 5434 Glenwood Avenue, Chicago; W. E. Keefe, 1312 Stanley Avenue, Hollywood, Cal.

Managing Editor—John A. Archer. Advertising Manager—Ben H. Grimm. Circulation Manager—Dennis J. Shea.

Subscription price: United States and its possessions, Mexico and Cuba, $3.00 a year; Canada, $3.50; foreign countries (postpaid) $10.00 a year.

Copyright, 1925, Chalmers Publishing Co. Copyright throughout Great Britain and Colonies, under the provisions of the Copyright Act of 1911. (All rights reserved.)

Other publications: Cine Mundial (Spanish). Technical books.

VOLUME 72 NUMBER 7

To Keep You Posted

Editorial 647
Blind Exhibitor a Study in Pluck; Makes Change While Wife Projects 649
Robson is Biggest Winner in Paramount Canadian Contest 650
American Film Trade Invited to London Carnival, March 6 650
"Blue Sunday" Legislation Continues Bone of Contention in Many Sections 651
Lord's Day Alliance Seeks More Drastic Sunday Laws 652
Exhibitor Urges Fight on Oklahoma Bills 652
Great Wisconsin Theatre Combine Begins with a Membership of Fifty 653
M. P. T. O. A. Congratulates Albert E. Smith and Vitagraph 654
New Jersey Theatre Owners to Honor R. F. Woodhull at Banquet 654
New England Theatre Owners Chamber of Commerce Formed 655
Saturday Children's Shows Perplex Michigan Exhibitors 655
New York Governor Urges Abolition of Censorship Body 655
Exhibitors' News and Views 675
Illinois Exhibitors to Meet in Peoria February 19 677
Von Sternberg Picture "The Salvation Hunters" Has Premiere in California 708
Projection (Department) 731

To Sell Your Seats

Selling the Picture to the Public (Department) 691
How Southern Enterprise Managers Obtain Better Results from Smaller Spending 691
Production Hints from Edward L. Hyman 692
Gave Tent Show to Advertise His Show 693
Made Lobby Showing in House Rest Room 695
Printed Cross Word Puzzles in "Ad" Columns 696

To Aid Your Bookings

Straight from the Shoulder Reports 683
Reviews 699
Pep of the Program 704
Current and Advance Film Releases 726

First in the Field!

4 out of every 5 motion picture theatres in the United States are reached by a copy of MOVING PICTURE WORLD!

Blind Exhibitor a Study in Pluck; He Makes Change, Wife Projects

Reuben Deisler Lost Sight While Engineer for Pennsylvania Railroad

By E. H. MAYER

FROM Rails to Reels," or "Two Worlds of Motion," might sound like the title of recent photoplay releases, but as a matter of fact either could appropriately be used as the title of a story from actual life, the climax of which furnishes a glowing example of enterprise and perseverance to which exhibitors can profitably make mental reference when things are breaking badly for them.

One day late in 1896, a man mounted the cab of a railroad locomotive on the Pennsylvania lines and took the right hand seat for the first time. Reuben Deisler had been promoted to engineer. He was 27 years old then—strong, healthy, ambitious, and with an exceptionally bright future before him. For fourteen consecutive years Deisler attended strictly to duty, driving his iron steed regularly over his run, which first extended from Columbus to Mansfield, and later from Toledo to Mansfield, Ohio, each trip seeming like a new adventure, for the world of motion possessed a peculiar fascination for Deisler.

The Accident

All went well on the road until one night Deisler leaned momentarily from the cab window to assure himself that the track ahead was clear. The train was running at a high rate of speed. Immediately ahead stood a bridge with a clearance of scarcely fourteen inches. Whether the engineer misjudged the distance to the bridge, or misjudged the speed of the train is a matter of conjecture. But that brief moment of peering into the darkness of the night changed the entire course of Deisler's life. His head struck the bridge with terrific force.

A Dauntless Spirit

Seriously injured and with his life hanging in the balance, Deisler showed the same courageous spirit that had always characterized his record as an engineman. Days lengthened into weeks and weeks into months, and after a valiant fight Deisler came out victorious. But to him the world was as dark as had been the night upon which the accident occurred. His eyes no longer functioned. He was destined never to see again. Ordinarily, a man thus handicapped would have given up in despair. Not so with Deisler; he wasn't made from that kind of stuff.

Eventually, the railroad compensated him. The amount of the settlement is not disclosed but it is presumed to have been a tidy sum, enough, in fact, to have enabled Deisler to have lived in ease and comfort for the rest of his days.

"No," he said, "my work is not done. I am still a comparatively young man, and surely there must be some place where I can be of some good use to the world, even though my eyes can no longer behold its beauties."

His Philosophy

So after several months the money which the tragedy had brought was used to erect a picture theatre—another world of motion—in the little town of Plymouth in northern Ohio, through which Deisler used to pass on one of his railroad runs.

The story doesn't end here. Since the theatre was erected a dozen years ago, the man who sells tickets and makes change with lightning rapidity—always with a pleasant smile—is none other than Reuben Deisler, former locomotive engineer.

"Occasionally," he says, "some wag from out of town will hand me a dollar bill in exchange for a ticket and claim it is a bill of larger denomination, receiving change for the larger bill. This does not happen often, though, as I find that people for the most part are honest and not inclined to take advantage of my affliction, but I guess there are some few persons who would stoop to almost anything to gain a few paltry dollars. It won't make them rich and it won't break me.

"I am getting on fine. I do all my own booking, and although I cannot see the pictures which are shown in my house, I get great pleasure out of knowing that other persons enjoy them. The house draws a nice patronage from the surrounding territory.

His Inspiration

"Oh, yes, I owe a great deal of my success to my wife, who is a great inspiration to me. She's the projectionist, you know, and from what they say, she turns a wicked crank. She can show a picture as clear as any of 'em. My only regret is that we haven't a daughter to preside at the piano, then our movie family would be quite complete."

The writer found the theatre, which bears Deisler's name, to be a modern house throughout, with the upper floor given over to the owner's apartments. Deisler is a man of especially pleasing personality, cordial, genial and well versed on movie matters generally. Here, indeed, is a real source of inspiration for exhibitors who, while possessing all their faculties, are unable to "make the grade" through lack of attention to detail or indifference to some of the vital factors necessary to success.

REUBEN DEISLER

This isn't as recent a picture of him as might be. But, then, when you are blind, a new photo each year doesn't seem so important.

Sometimes cheated by a dishonest patron who, taking advantage of sightless eyes, gets ten dollars change for a one-spot—shut out from the vivid sunshine for years—still Reuben Deisler presides in the ticket window and retains his intrepid faith in humanity—and makes a go of his theatre.

It's a story of optimism, folks.

You who can, read the story—

Then think a little.

It will make your own difficulties seem tiny.

It will give you inspiration.

Robson Is Biggest Winner in Paramount Canadian Contest

TO the managers of the numerous theatres of Famous Players Canadian Corp., Ltd., Toronto, one of the most important of all events in a long time was the finish of the managers' bonus competition which covered three months past, the theatres of Western Canada winning out from the Eastern Canadian Division in the group aggregates. The individual winner was Manager Frank Robson of the Empress Theatre, Edmonston, Alberta, who captured a $300 cash prize. Frank is a brother of Clarence Robson of Toronto, Eastern Division general manager for Famous Players. First individual place in Eastern Canada was captured by Leonard Bishop of the Regent Theatre, Ottawa, who took down a cash prize of $150. The first ten managers in Western Canada were awarded bonuses which were double those of the first ten in the Eastern Canadian district, the total awards amounting to $1,800.

The winners in Western Canada were as follows:

Frank Robson, Empress Theatre, Edmonton; Pete Egan, Strand Theatre, Calgary, Alberta; Ralph Ruffner. Capitol Theatre, Vancouver; F. H. Gow, Broadway Theatre, Vancouver; H. M. Thomas, Capitol Theatre, Winnipeg; George McComber, Royal Theatre, Fort William; C. S. Ferguson, Dominion Theatre, Nanaimo, B. C.; J. M. Robertson, Dominion Theatre, Victoria; E. Christenson, Capitol Theatre, Brandon, Manitoba; J. B. Reisman, manager Lyceum Theatre, Port Arthur, Ontario.

The Eastern Canadian winners were:

Leonard Bishop, Regent Theatre, Ottawa; G. McLennan, Capitol Theatre, Welland; Roy Downey, St. Clair Theatre, Toronto; J. A. Stewart, Princess Theatre, Chatham, Ont.; J. Green, Capitol Theatre, Guelph; D. C. Brown, Algoma Theatre, Sault Ste. Marie; Jack Laver, Garden Theatre, Toronto; E. O. Smithers, Strand Theatre, Kingston; Chris. Georgas, Classic Theatre, Owen Sound, J. S. Smart, Royal Theatre, Port Hope, Ontario.

In the previous managers' bonus contest among the managers of the 70-odd theatres of Famous Players Canadian Corp., last year, the first prize winner in Western Canada was H. M. Thomas, manager of the Capitol Theatre, Winnipeg, and the eastern winner was George Rotzky of the Palace Theatre, Montreal, Que.

Pacific States Firm Plans Many More New Houses

The Pacific States Theatres, Inc., organized a few months ago by A. B. C. Dohrmann, R. S. Shainwald, George Oppenheimer, Sam Harris and Irving C. Ackerman, with headquarters in San Francisco, is making rapid progress with its plans for building up a chain of theatres in the far western states and several are nearing completion.

A 1500-seat house will be opened at San Leandro at an early date, and work has been commenced on one of similar size at Hayward. The Franklin Theatre at Oakland has been remodeled and will be opened early in February. Construction work has been commenced on a 2600-seat house at Fresno and it is planned to make this the finest in the San Joaquin Valley.

A theatre is being erected at Redwood City and one will be built at East Oakland. A deal has been closed for the erection of a large suburban house at Irving street and Eighth avenue, San Francisco, and a downtown house will be added to the chain shortly. The new circuit will operate independently of the houses now being conducted by Ackerman & Harris.

ALBERTA VAUGHN ENGAGED

Alberta Vaughn and George O'Hara, F. B. O. stars, are engaged to be married.

Coming and Going

Louis Gasnier, director of B. P. Schulberg Productions, arrived in New York this week from the West Coast on his annual two weeks' vacation.

Nat L. Mintz will leave shortly on a trip which will take in New England and the Middle West.

Peter J. Schaefer of Jones, Linick and Schaefer sailed on the Scythia January 29 for a tour of the Mediterranean.

Lew Marangella has left for Hollywood to resume duties at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios.

Abe Stern has left for California to confer with his brother, Julius, on new production plans for Century.

Ramon Novarro who plays the lead in "Ben Hur," has arrived from Europe.

J. D. Williams, of Ritz-Carlton Pictures, is back in New York.

William Fraser, of Harold Lloyd Productios, has arrived in New York following a three month's trip through Europe.

Will Hays has left for the coast. He will be gone about a month.

James Cruze has left Los Angeles for a brief visit to New York.

Charles C. Pettijohn is back in New York from a trip to the West coast.

Ludwig G. B. Erb, who has been in Hollywood since last summer, is expected in New York soon.

Jack Warner, of Warner Brothers, is in New York from Los Angeles. He will remain here for several weeks.

Bill Hart is in town.

George Blair, of the Eastman Kodak Company, is in town. He will remain several days.

Frederick Watts, who handles Pathe shorts in England, from the English Pathe headquarters in 103-109 Wardour street, London, had just completed the details of his third visit to the United States, sailing on the "France" on Wednesday last for home. He was accompanied by Mrs. Watts.

American Film Trade Invited to London Carnival, March 6

AMERICAN motion picture stars and executives are invited to attend the Kinema Carnival to be held March 6 at the Hotel Cecil, London, England

The invitation was extended to the Americans by Frederick Watts, representative in London of Pathe Freres Cinema, Ltd., of No. 103-109 Wardour street, who sailed from New York on Wednesday last on the "France."

Mr. Watts received a cable, shortly before sailing, from H. A. Wallace, of Pathe, London, informing him that the distinguished committee in charge of the Kinema Carnival had expressed the hope that the invitation notice might be published in America in ample time to reach the entire motion picture industry before the middle of February.

The carnival is being held for the Cinematograph Trade Benevolent Fund, which applies to all branches of the trade in England. All the big people in London, Paris, and other cities, will attend. The fund began with $100,000, and is being augmented to meet the needs for which it was formed.

Canadian Independent Field Now Being Organized

An important step toward the organization of the independent exchange field in the Dominion has been taken by Ald. W. A. Summerville of Toronto, proprietor of the Prince of Wales Theatre, one of the finest of the new picture houses in Toronto. Ald. Summerville has organized the Preferred Pictures, Ltd., with a capitalization of $100,000 under the laws of the Dominion of Canada. He is the president of the new company and the vice-president is Arthur Gaboury, director of public safety, Montreal. The manager of the company is George S. Jeffrey of Toronto, a well-known Canadian exchange man. Mr. Jeffrey has recently been with Canadian Universal Pictures and has been in the business for years. The head office of the new company is Toronto.

President Summerville is vice-president of the M. P. T. O. of Canada, Ontario Branch, being very active in connection with the activities of that organization.

"Blue Sunday" Legislation Continues Bone of Contention in Many Sections

No Indiana Censors

Sans friends and mourners, the film censorship bill introduced in the Indiana general assembly was quietly laid to rest in the legislative graveyard on January 30 when without debate or protest the house adopted the report of its committee on public morals for the indefinite postponement of the measure. It had been generally regarded as a meddling and treasury-raiding proposal.

During a public hearing conducted by the public morals committee, no one appeared to sponsor the measure. Speaking against the measure at the hearing were Leo M. Rappaport, a stockholder and director of the Circle Theatre, Indianapolis; Mrs. Chic Jackson, Mrs. M. E. Robbins and Mrs. Fred L. Pettijohn, representing the Indiana Indorsers of Photoplays.

No Iroquois Disaster Now Possible in Chicago

The twenty-first anniversary of the Iroquois Theatre fire in which 575 Chicago theatregoers lost their lives was observed there last week. Fire Chief Buckley said the disaster could not happen under present conditions, owing to the modern methods of ventilation and fire prevention and the constant inspection of the theatres by the city fire department. Under the present city ordinances the ventilation system must be tested every six months, and all the theatre buildings erected since 1910 have been compelled to include automatic sprinklers over the stages, which must be inspected semi-annually. Steel curtains must be installed. This is of special interest to picture theatres, as many of them are now showing vaudeville and presentations which require that their stages be so equipped.

Each theatre is required to have one fire guard, and where the stage is used for shows, he must remain back-stage during the performance. Another is required for the auditorium and front of the house. All scenery of incoming acts must be put through a fire-proofing process, immersing in the fire-proofing liquid, even if it has been fireproofed in the previous town.

Chief Buckley said that there is a corps of inspectors attached to the Fire Department and each one had a certain number of theatres to inspect each day.

NEW SPRINGFIELD, MASS., THEATRE

Three New York men, whose identity have not been made known, have secured options on three plots of land in the business section of Springfield, Mass. It is reported that a million-dollar vaudeville and picture theatre will be erected. Present plans are said to call for the construction of a two or three-story building with a theatre seating 3,600. The land involved is said to be valued at $800,000.

One Censorship Bill Pending, One Defeated, One Threatened—Last Year Eighteen Were Under Consideration

THERE'S much to be thankful for, but never is the cup filled to overflowing. At this time last year eighteen censorship bills were pending throughout the country, two being introduced in Nebraska alone, while this year finds only one such measure pending, that in Oklahoma, one threatening in Connecticut and one just killed in Indiana.

Representative Averill of Branford will sponsor the Connecticut bill, which will provide for a board of three and resemble the New York measure.

William Y. Hinkle's Indiana bill would have provided for a board of five, each to drag down $3,000 a year in salary. One would have been recommended by the State Sunday School Association, one would have been a member of the Ministerial Association, two would have been well known lawyers, and the fifth a member of the Indiana Medical Association. This bill met its death blow on January 31, when the House of Representatives indorsed the unfavorable report of the Committee on Public Morals.

Another echo of the Sunday blue law, which has been bothering Ohio exhibitors for many moons, now comes from Chillicothe, where Sunday films are only a memory. Earl Myers and John Kaiser, Chillicothe exhibitors, arrested some weeks ago for alleged violation of the Sunday closing law, were found guilty after jury trials. Immediately thereafter a conference was held between W. M. McKenzie, prosecutor, and various agencies of the church, to which conference the theatre men were invited. After considerable discussion a truce was declared and the exhibitors agreed to remain closed on Sundays. C. A. Smith, another exhibitor, untried, also agreed. Myers and Kaiser each were fined $100 and costs by Judge Roscoe G. Hornbeck, who presided in place of Judge P. H. Blosser, against whom petitions of "bias and prejudice" had been filed by the defendants. The cases will be carried to the higher courts. Meanwhile, Hyers announces that sacred concerts and other similar programs will be given on the Sabbath.

Petitions for a referendum to permit Sunday shows in Evanston, Ill., are being circulated in that city under the auspices of the Downtown Evanston Business Mens Association. The petition will be presented to the city council and the sponsor will be asked that it be submitted for a popular vote at the coming April election. Ira Rosenberg, president of the organization, says that unless Sunday shows are permitted in Evanston, many of the newcomers will demand annexation to the city. Several theatre projects are being held in abeyance in Evanston to await the result of the movement, and it is likely that if it succeeds attempts will be made to secure Sunday shows in other north shore suburbs that have held out against the movement for many years past.

Speaking of blue laws, Slater, Mo., may, as a result of a civic argument which started last week, be the bluest of blue towns within a few days. As a result of the retaliation of the management of the Auditorium Theatre, even the delivery of Sunday newspapers may be prohibited. The town wanted enforcement of an old Sunday closing law, so the Auditorium management intends to see that the law is observed in every detail.

The dispute had its inception when the city council objected to Sunday shows in the Auditorium, the town's only theatre. The theatre's management retaliated by declaring it would insist on every other activity forbidden by the ordinance being suppressed. Officials of the town declare this might go so far as to include the delivery of Sunday newspapers. The attitude of the city officials is to await the filing of complaints against violators of the law. Through Mayor R. A. Jenkins it was announced that the city would not take the task of enforcing the law into its own hands, which means it probably will be left to the county circuit court to settle.

The Sunday closing ordinance, "which prohibits almost everything except breathing and eating," first was passed in 1908. It was amended in some minor details in 1911, but never has been enforced rigidly.

Sunday concerts have been abolished at Saxe's Wisconsin Theatre, Milwaukee, apparently as a result of protests by clergymen that they were attracting patrons who otherwise would be in church. The concerts will hereafter be given by Rudolph Kopp's Wisconsin Theatre Orchestra on Friday nights.

BERMANS GIVE "ARRIVAL" PARTY

Reversing the usual order of farewell parties marking departures from Los Angeles, Mr. and Mrs. Harry M. Berman of New York gave an "arrival" party Tuesday night at the Ambassador Hotel, where they are guests for several weeks. It took the form of a dinner dance and covers were laid for the following: Mr. and Mrs. Joseph I. Schnitzer, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur A. Schmidt, Mr. and Mrs. John Hamilton, Mr. and Mrs. John Brownell, Mr. and Mrs. Hyatt Daab, Mrs. Lehmann, Pandro Berman, Louis Baum, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Meehan and Dr. E. J. Wolfan.

PICTURE INCORPORATIONS FALL OFF

Motion picture companies incorporating in New York State during the past week failed to hold their average, the records in the secretary of state's office revealing the incorporation of four such companies, all located in the metropolis. The largest was the Lyric Operating Company, Inc., capitalized at $200,000; Alben, Inc., $10,000; Five Chatham Square Theatre, Inc.; B-C Productions, Inc., the capitalization of the last companies not being stated.

Lord's Day Alliance Seeks More Drastic Sunday Laws

BACK to the days of the Puritans, and a step further. If you should die in New York state on and after September 1, next, and sorrowing relatives should desire to hold your funeral on a Sunday, well and good. Perhaps if a bill introduced in the New York state legislature last week was passed and signed by the Governor, you would be perfectly willing to have your funeral occur on Sunday, or in fact any other day during the week, for in death there would be no sting.

All of which is by way of introduction to the fact that the Lord's Day Alliance, through Assemblyman Edmund Jenks, has caused to be introduced in the New York State Legislature about the most drastic bill of its kind in the history of the state. Mr. Jenks no doubt surmised the storm that would center over his head, if he fathered the bill, from start to finish, and for that reason the measure, as introduced, bore the significant words, "At the request of the Lord's Day Alliance."

As might naturally be expected from an organization such as the one behind the bill, Sunday motion picture shows are absolutely prohibited. But then exhibitors should not be disheartened for in the first place there isn't one chance in a million that the bill will ever be reported out of committee, and in the next place they are not the only ones to feel the prod of the reformers.

The bill prohibits about everything under the sun in the way of pleasure on a Sunday. For instance, all football, basketball, hockey, tennis, lacrosse, pool and billiards are out of the question, as well as dancing, theatrical acts, hunting, racing. Even caddies are not allowed to work on the links, the bill at its very outset, prohibiting all labor except of necessity for charity on Sunday. Even repair work in garages must wait until Monday, even though an automobilist might be a hundred miles or more away from home and suffer a breakdown.

All reduced fare excursions on Sunday would become a thing of the past and the handling of freight or the hauling of the same, except perishable and livestock, is out of the question.

Framers of the bill would, however, allow persons to live on Sunday, that is, if they could stand things as the Lord's Day Alliance would have it. Or if they didn't like it, they still would have the right to die. Meals could be served on Sunday and milk might also be sold as well as drugs, medicines and surgical instruments. The height of one's enjoyment on Sunday might be to buy a glass of milk, or if he had a little more money to spend, he might go out on a veritable tear and buy a surgical instrument.

All parades and processions would be relegated to things past and gone, except funerals, which could still be held on Sunday.

Convictions would be punishable, in the first instance, with a fine of from ten to fifty dollars, and on a third conviction, the offender could be sent to jail. These are the things embodied in the bill introduced and which if passed, would become effective on September 1, next.

Dominion's Suspension Does Not Involve Independent

Louis Rosenfeld, general manager of Canadian Independent Films, Ltd., Toronto, a company recently organized to take over the business of Dominion Films, Ltd., a former Allen organization, has announced that the suspension of the exchange license of Dominion Films, Ltd., by the Ontario Government, does not affect the Canadian Independent Films, Ltd., in any way. This license was suspended by the Ontario Motion Picture Bureau after 100,000 feet of second-hand films had been seized by the government after the films had been placed on sale for toy projection machines.

An appeal has been entered by Dominion Films, Ltd., for the return of its license, without which it cannot do business in moving pictures in Ontario under any form.

Urge Fight on Oklahoma Bills

IMPENDING legislation in Oklahoma, according to Ned Pedigo, of the Pollard Theatre, Guthrie, Oklahoma, threatens the welfare of exhibitors in his state.

Not satisfied with passive antagonism, Mr. Pedigo has gotten busy and secured data which he was able to convince the editor of The Guthrie Daily Leader justified four columns, three inches deep, in a recent issue of that publication.

Many exhibitors would consider this ample contribution to their personal effort against the threatening legislation; but "Battling Ned" isn't that kind. He went further.

"I sent out one hundred letters to exhibitors in the state," Mr. Pedigo said in regard to the matter, "I enclosed this clipping that had been published, and asked the boys to try and get it in their own city papers.

"Strong legislative measures being enacted in this State now! Pretty soon we are going to be sitting around with nothing in our pockets but our hands, unless we beat them in some way—talk of a 10 per cent tax, also Sunday closing, also censorship, and a little of everything."

Selling Your Seats

Lem Stewart demonstrates that small newspaper ads will get as much money as the larger spaces.

Hooked a hardware store to True as Steel.

A good puzzle verse for So This Is Marriage.

Harry Seel prologues America for a busted record.

How Eddie Hyman surronnded So Big.

Gets a tent show to advertise the pictures.

A telegram stuffer for Manhattan.

Used a pony ballyhoo on He.

Gave a name matinee to get a mailing list.

How Japan nabbers The Covered Wagon.

The standard campaign on Is Love Everything? has a new idea.

Frank H. Burns enlarged a store's display on Baby Peggy.

Opened a stndio for Potash and Perlmntter.

Real Maine Indians ballyhoo in Bangor.

The flapper contest is still worth real money.

Good advertising displays on The Tornado, The Clean Heart, Married Flirts, So This Is Marriage, The Silent Accuser and The Fast Worker.

(Any one of a dozen different ideas in Selling the Picture to the Public will make from $10 to $100 for YOU. Turn back a few pages, read and use.)

Missouri Membership Drive Begins in St. Joseph

St. Joseph, Mo., a city of 100,000 population, the third largest city in Missouri, was the first point of conquest on the schedule of C. E. Cook, business manager of the M. P. T. O. Kansas and Missouri, in the membership drive now under way. As a result of his efforts exhibitors of that city will meet, 100 per cent. strong. Tuesday night at the Robideaux Hotel, St. Joseph, with President R. R. Biechele and Vice-President James W. Watson of the exhibitors' organization, for the purpose of cementing exhibitors of that city with the interstate organization.

It also is expected that a city association may be formed in St. Joseph, to operate in conjunction with the parent body. St. Joseph long has been without organization. The exhibitors who will attend the meeting are: Barney Dubinsky, Tootle Theatre; E. H. Reinke, Colonial and Orpheum theatres; M. W. Williams, Electric Theatre; Mrs. F. Wertenburger, Empress Theatre; M. F. Meade, Olive Theatre; John Egli Hickey Theatre; G. E. Montrey, Park Theatre; Roy Spurlock, Star and Nickle theatres; W. Lench, Jr., Savoy Theatre; Edward Peabody, Penn and Palace theatres.

INJURED IN ELEVATOR FALL

George H. Cobb, of Watertown, chairman of the New York State Motion Picture Commission, was injured in New York City last week when an elevator dropped nine floors. Mr. Cobb was taken to the Knickerbocker Hospital where he was found to have received many bruises but was not seriously injured. Mrs. Cobb was summoned from Watertown.

The accident occurred as Mr. Cobb and others were ascending to the roof of the building to witness the eclipse. It was first thought that Mr. Cobb had been seriously injured. X-ray pictures, however, failed to reveal any broken bones. Mr. Cobb was badly injured a year or so ago in Watertown when he was struck by an automobile.

Great Wisconsin Theatre Combine Begins with a Membership of Fifty

Decision Due Soon

Unless some unexpected legal snags are encountered, negotiations between Cecil B. DeMille and Producers Distributing Corporation should soon result in a definite agreement. The contracts have been drawn up and the lawyers now are going over them, it has been learned, though both Producers and Mr. DeMille decline to discuss the matter.

It is believed that De Mille would direct a series of specials and supervise other productions in which Leatrice Joy and Rod La Rocque will be featured, for these two stars have personal contracts with De Mille.

Another rumor, apparently with foundation, is that De Mille will take over the Thos. H. Ince studios at Culver City.

Ask for Injunction to Keep Lillian Gish with Duell Co.

Charles H. Duell, Inc., has brought injunction proceedings to prevent Lillian Gish from acting with any motion picture company except the plaintiff. Louis Levy, counsel for Miss Gish, declared that this was "the latest move of a design to force Miss Gish to continue under an indefinite contract."

The summons and complaint, asking an injunction, declare Miss Gish was under contract to Inspiration Pictures, Inc., when Charles H. Duell, Inc., was formed. Her contract was transferred to the latter corporation by Mr. Duell and Walter Camp, Jr., officers of Inspiration Pictures, Inc.

Under her contracts Miss Gish's salary begins at $1,250 a week and increases with her length of service to $2,500 a week, with a percentage of the gross receipts of her pictures. "Romola" is now being shown. Her previous picture "grossed" $1,500,000. Miss Gish is bound under options to make twenty-four pictures during the period ending January 31, 1930.

"Miss Gish started with a fairly sound contract," said Mr. Levy, "with Inspiration Pictures, a highly responsible corporation. Her work was done faithfully and well. Yet after two years Mr. Duell constantly whittled down her rights. She suddenly finds herself yoked to Mr. Duell's personal company. So the Inspiration Pictures, Inc., is entirely relieved from obligation."

No statement was forthcoming from Mr. Duell.

EXCLUSIVE FEATURES MOVES

Exclusive Features, of which J. M. Goldstein is president and Jack Weinberg treasurer, has moved to its new quarters on the tenth floor of 729 Seventh avenue, New York City.

One of Its Primary Objects Understood to Be Combined Booking of Pictures—Silliman Is President, Wiesner Manager

THE greatest theatre combine in the history of the motion picture business in Wisconsin has been revealed through a formal statement just issued by J. H. Silliman of Milwaukee, which declares that on February 16 the Badger Theatres Corporation will begin to function with a membership of fifty exhibitors throughout the state.

Although the statement vaguely gives the purpose of the organization as a means "of obtaining a better understanding of the needs and desires of its members, so that their screen entertainment might be made more attractive to the theatregoing public," it is generally understood that one of its primary objects is the combined booking of pictures.

With the exception of listing officers of the organization, which includes Mr. Silliman as president, the statement fails to reveal the identity of its members. However, it is reported that approximately half of the theatres interested are from Milwaukee and the remainder distributed throughout Wisconsin. According to reports, none of the first-run downtown Milwaukee houses is a member.

Just who composes the new organization is expected to be revealed on February 5 when a mass meeting is to be held at the Maryland Hotel in Milwaukee for the purpose of completing further details.

Mr. Silliman's formal statement comes as a climax to countless rumors that have been afloat for weeks and which had their inception when papers of incorporation were filed at Madison, listing Fred Seegert of the Regent, E. W. Van Norman of the Parkway and George Fischer of the Milwaukee as incorporators. Mr. Seegert, besides conducting the Regent, is president of the M. P. T. O. of Wisconsin.

It was at first believed that the combine was limited to these three theatres, but this belief was soon dispelled when it became known that organization work was being carried on throughout the state. Apparently the organization is not limited to any one section of Wisconsin, since reports have it that the membership roles include cities in the most northern and southern portions alike.

It had been reported that Uihlein's Alhambra and Garden theatres, the two houses that present the greatest opposition to Saxe's chain, were among the Milwaukee theatres in the combination, but these reports proved unfounded when O. J. Wooden, director of those show houses, emphatically denied that he is in any way connected with the movement.

With Saxe controlling twenty-three theatres in the state, the talk among disinterested exhibitors and film men has been that the new corporation was intended to be used as a weapon to compete against the Saxe chain. Discussing this phase of the matter, a leader in the new movement, who refused to allow his name to be used, had this to say:

"We did not organize for the purpose of fighting anyone. It should be distinctly understood that we do not aim to put any exhibitor or exchange out of business. We have merely joined together to protect our own interests and do not anticipate trouble with anyone on the outside."

Because of reports that some of the exchanges have been suspicious of the new movement and have even threatened to boycott members, and because of the other reports that have been circulated from time to time, it is known that officers of the corporation put in considerable time in framing a statement which would put over the idea that it does not aim to battle any other organization.

The statement, headed "Badger Theatres Corporation Launched," follows in full as given out by Mr. Silliman:

"Some six months ago, several motion picture theatre owners of Wisconsin met and discussed the advisability of forming a corporation for the purpose of operating their theatres on a co-operative basis and thereby obtaining a better understanding of the needs and desires of its members, so that their screen entertainment might be made more attractive to the theatre-going public.

"After an extensive study, the Badger Theatres Corporation was formed with a nucleus of fifty theatres to commence operation on February 16 of this year.

"The officers are: J. H. Silliman, president; George Fischer, first vice-president; E. Rice, second vice-president; E. W. Van Norman, secretary; Fred C. Seegert, treasurer, and Max Wiesner, general manager.

"The operation of the corporation is in the hands of eleven directors with the general manager in charge. The corporation has engaged quarters at Eleventh and Wells streets.

"The officers and directors of this corporation, as well as each member, believe it is one of the greatest constructive strides ever taken in the history of the business and that the methods pursued will tend to eliminate a great deal of waste and useless expense in the exhibitive end of the business, along the same lines that the producers have been endeavoring to eliminate waste in their end."

Wiesner, general manager, is one of the most widely known men in the film business

(Continued on page 655)

M. P. T. O. A. Congratulates Albert Smith and Vitagraph

THE Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America, through President M. J. O'Toole and Chairman of the Administrative Committee Sydney S. Cohen, has sent congratulations to President Albert E. Smith of the Vitagraph Company of America on the definite position he took on the question of clean and wholesome pictures and producer-trust ownership or control of theatres, in connection with his statement of withdrawal from the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America. The statement, which has been mailed to leading newspapers of the country, is in part as follows:

"Two outstanding elements of vital concern to the motion picture industry feature the statement of President Albert E. Smith of the Vitagraph Company of America in connection with his withdrawal from the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America. One is the declaration that the American public desires and should be supplied only with clean and wholesome pictures. The other is the definite statement that the producers and distributors should remain out of the exhibiting field and not compete with the buyers of their own product in the unethical ownership or direction of theatres in open opposition to theatre owners and with the ultimate purpose in view of creating a huge monopoly of all divisions of the motion picture industry.

"We congratulate President Smith and the Vitagraph Company of America on the position taken on these two vital phases of the motion picture business. Clean and wholesome pictures are entirely essential to the success of the business. Theatre owner operation of theatres, with the producing and distributing divisions performing the functions of making and serving pictures only, as is the case in other lines of American business, is the only honest and honorable line to pursue and will insure the full and complete community advantage of all theatres to the public.

"Large blocks of theatres are now owned by producing and distributing companies. It is such a manufacturers' monopoly of what may be termed the retail division of the business which encourages the presentation of objectionable pictures. Such theatre managers, being the mere servants of the producer and distributor owners, have no option but to present the picture given to them. They must take what their master offers. By thus securing a means of presenting these objectionable pictures in their own theatres in many of the larger American cities they force the same pictures on the independent theatre owners or threaten them with the building of other producer-owned theatres in their territories, which will, if carried out, ruin the independent exhibitor.

"Producer-owned theatres use no independent picture product save in rare emergencies. Through this sinister control and their ability to terrorize and coerce independent theatre owners, they force the latter to also refuse the product of independent producers, and thus through these unfair business methods force independent producers out of business, curtail the supply of independent pictures and fasten more securely on the theatre owners and the American public the products of the trust studios at times so objectionable in character."

New Jersey Theatre Owners to Fete R. F. Woodhull at Banquet

A BANQUET will be tendered to R. F. Woodhull, former president of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of New Jersey, at the Hotel Robert Treat, Newark, N. J., on March 4. Mr. Woodhull was for three years president of the New Jersey exhibitors, and upon retiring from that office early last year he became a member of the Board of Directors of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America, representing his state in the national organization.

Coincident with the dinner will be the grand ball in honor of Hon. Frederick C. Briedenbach, mayor of Newark. The banquet is under the auspices of the New Jersey theatre owners. The ball, following the banquet, is given by the Essex County Theatre Owners affiliated with the state body.

During his three-year tenure in office Mr. Woodhull worked tirelessly in behalf of his fellow exhibitors. Some of the most important, forward steps toward the betterment of conditions among showmen in New Jersey were brought about by Mr. Woodhull. When he was succeeded in June last by Joseph M. Seider, the new president, the Board of Directors of the M. P. T. O. of N. J. decided upon the dinner as a mark of respect to Woodhull.

At a meeting held last week, Henry P. Nelson of Elizabeth, secretary of the M. P. T. O. of N. J., was unanimously chosen to be chairman of the general committee in charge of the banquet. Leon Rosenthal was appointed chairman of the committee on tickets and Louis Rosenthal was named treasurer. Sidney Samuelson heads the committee on invited guests and Moe Kridel and Lawrence A. Urbach were designated to take charge of the publicity.

The national organization and many state organizations will be represented at the Woodhull banquet.

SUITS TOTAL $640,000

Twelve actions for damages, totalling $640,000, are an aftermath of the collapse of the roof of the Knickerbocker Theatre in Washington, D. C., on January 28, 1922. These have been filed in the District Supreme Court by persons injured in the accident. The defendants are the Knickerbocker Theatre Company, Harry M. Crandall, president; Reginald W. Geare, architect; John H. Ford, who fabricated the ironwork; the Union Iron Works, which furnished the iron, and the District of Columbia, which is charged with negligent inspection of the building while in the course of construction.

Letters to the Editor

January 17, 1925.

Dear Mr. Welsh:—

It is indeed refreshing to find that our earnest efforts toward the making and establishing of GOOD serials has received editorial recognition in the page article, "Give a Thought to the GOOD Serial" in your issue dated January 24.

Every one of the arguments you advance in behalf of GOOD serials is sound and logical, the same kind of propaganda we have been preaching for years—and more especially during the last eighteen months.

It surely is a significant sign of the times that "THE WAY OF A MAN," a GOOD serial, built upon the basis of a story by the same name written by the author of "THE COVERED WAGON," should have secured the biggest distribution of any serial ever released by this house.

James Fenimore Cooper's "Leatherstocking Tales" put into serial form by us under the title of "LEATHERSTOCKING" is another GOOD serial which has enjoyed splendid distribution.

When Police Commissioner Richard E. Enright furnished the story for "INTO THE NET," another GOOD serial, another forward step was taken. Up to date the distribution on "INTO THE NET" is forging away ahead of that on "THE WAY OF A MAN."

There is but one discordant note in your article: Saturday morning matinees for children. We have no recollection of children eagerly devouring serial stories in the Saturday Evening Post or other popular magazines. Why, therefore, should screen serials, founded upon the same bases as magazine fiction serials, have more of an appeal to the juvenile mind?

Pathe Serials are produced primarily to interest and entertain all people of both sexes, young, old and middle-aged, and in this respect differ not from all good dramatic features.

We have found one of the biggest stumbling blocks to interesting the managers of high class family theatres in GOOD serials, is their recollection of years gone by that "serials" were chiefly supposed to interest "the kids."

Let us grant that a GOOD serial will have a consuming interest for "children of all ages" (and that includes everybody from the adolescent to the centenarian); could there be a better examplar of popularity than the unparalleled distribution which has been secured by the "OUR GANG" Comedies?

Pathe Serials are headed in the right direction, Mr. Welsh. They've been headed that way for the past several months. In fact ever since it was decided to eliminate the extreme "hokum," the ultra-sensationalism, the impossible stunts and the illogical situations from our stories and productions.

Your article presupposes one thing which isn't at all correct. It assumes that higher class theatres today are not playing serials. Had you the space to print the list and had we the time to prepare it, we could point with pride to at least 2,000 very high class theatres which regularly play Pathe Serials, in addition to between 4,500 and 5,500 so-called "serial houses" which depend upon Pathe Serials as their main attractions.

It is a source of amazement that there still should be, however, hundreds upon hundreds of exhibitors who cannot realize that the path of serial success has already been blazed for them by such astute publishers as William Randolph Hearst, The Curtis Publishing Company and those other million-copy-magazine owners to whom you refer in your article.

The million-copy-magazines prove beyond question that the great fiction-loving public delights to have its thrills and melodramatics served up in instalment or episode form, and eagerly awaits the succeeding issue in order to follow the "to be continued" narrative.

Pathe Serials of today simply translate to the screen the identical type of "to be continued" serial fiction which has built up the circulations of the million-copy-magazines. That in itself is a sufficient reason for their tremendous popularity and extremely good distribution.

Again thanking you for your most timely article, we are,

Yours very truly,
PATHE EXCHANGE, INC.,
E. Oswald Brooks,
Serial Sales Manager.

State Rights Sales

Dale Hanshaw, president of Sierra Pictures, has sold a series of six Hob Burns, six Al Riehmond and two-reel westerns featuring Fred Hank to the following exchanges: E. L. & C. Films, San Francisco; West Coast Distributors, Seattle; Equitable, Minneapolis and Milwaukee; Exclusive, Chicago; Security, Cleveland; Apex, Pittsburg; Hiltmore Pictures, Greater New York; Twentieth Century, Philadelphia. All foreign rights on these pictures have been acquired by William Pizor and Gabriel Arana. Louis L. Mayer is acting as eastern representative for Sierra Pictures.

George Jeffries of Preferred Pictures, Ltd., of Toronto, Canada, has just closed contracts with Herman F. Jans, president of Jans Productions, Inc., whereby he acquires the Canadian territorial rights to all six of the new Jans features. These are "Playthings of Desire," "The Mad Dancer," "Married?," "Ermine and Rhinestones" and two others to be announced.

Announcement is made by W. Ray Johnston, president of Rayart Pictures, of the sale of the Reed Howes Series for Michigan to the Rex Film Company, Detroit; the series of six Rayart-Jaek Perrin pictures for Western Missouri and Kansas to the Western Pictures Company, Kansas City, of which Lee Balsly is manager. Also, the sale of the Reed Howes and George Larkin pictures for California, Arizona, Nevada and the Hawaiian Islands to the Hall Film Exchange, San Francisco; "Battling Brewster" for the six New England states to the Independent Films, Inc., Boston; and for Ohio to the Progress Pictures Company, Cleveland and Cincinnati.

Wisconsin Combine

(Continued from page 653)

in the state. He has been connected with Jack Grauman's Celebrated Players' office in Milwaukee and is recognized as a man of exceptional ability. As general manager, it is expected that he will do the picture buying.

Mr. Silliman, president, is a veteran Milwaukee showman who, in addition to controlling the Downer, Astor, Jackson and several other East Side houses, some time ago joined with Grauman in taking over the Juneau on the South Side.

Mr. Fischer also is one of the pioneers in Milwaukee. He was for years connected with the Saxe organization, being in charge of the Alhambra, the leading downtown house at that time, before it went into the hands of the Uihleins. Later he managed a Chicago theatre, but returned almost four years ago and led in the organization of a company which erected the Milwaukee, one of the finest uptown houses in the city. Recently he also opened the Capitol, a West Allis theatre.

Mr. Van Norman's Parkway is a costly West Side house. He has been one of the leaders in the M. P. T. O..

Mr. Rice is identified with the interests which control several large outskirt houses, including the State, on the West Side.

TO WIRELESS "MOVIES"

C. Francis Jenkins, inventor, plans to soon conduct tests of wireless transmission of motion pictures in Washington, D. C. He will build a small studio in his laboratory and broadcast for the benefit of receiving sets to be installed in a few homes. A cover will be raised and the pictures seen on a screen within the box. Mr. Jenkins declined to comment on the probable success of the experiment.

New England Theatre Owners Chamber of Commerce Formed

NEW ENGLAND theatre owners have virtually completed the organization of the New England Theatre Owners' Chamber of Commerce. This is the result of an investigation of the activities of the Theatre Owners' Chamber of Commerce of New York by the New England exhibitors, who propose to take steps to outline the work of their new organization so that its members may have an opportunity to enjoy the benefits of their brother exhibitors of New York.

Officers have been elected as follows: Chairman, Michael A. O'Leary; secretary, Edward M. Farrell; treasurer, Charles Williams.

A committee has been appointed to prepare by-laws and define a policy. The members of this committee are David Adams, Concord, N. H.; M. A. O'Leary, Boston; M. White, Dover, N. H.; Abraham Goodside, Portland, Me.; W. A. Graves, St. Johnsbury, Vt.; Edward M. Fay, Providence, R. I.; H. R. Williams, Jamaica Plain, Mass.; Louis M. Boas, Boston, Mass.; G. F. Sellman, Cambridge, Mass.; J. Emery, Bar Harbor, Me.

The meetings of the new organization will take place on the first Tuesday in each month. Addresses are to be given by members of the New York body. Headquarters have been established in the Hotel Arlington, Boston.

Saturday Children's Shows Perplex Michigan Exhibitors

THE problem of Saturday morning shows for children is at present agitating Michigan exhibitors as a result of the announcement last week from the Will H. Hays office that exhibitors throughout the country would join in regular Saturday morning exhibitions for children The plan has been attempted three different times in Michigan and on each occasion has been chalked up as a failure because parents and various organizations that should have become interested in the project showed surprising lethargy and allowed the exhibitors to lose money.

According to H. M. Richey, manager of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of Michigan, the 475 exhibitors represented in the organizations in Detroit and Michigan will co-operate with the Hays idea if it is assured that parents, schools, churches, and various welfare organizations will co-operate to make the plan the success it should be.

"It costs the neighborhood theatre manager about $50 for films and overhead to stage each show, so there must be a response of at least 500 children at the 10 cent admission scale set by the Hays announcement. The exhibitor cannot be expected to pocket a loss; in fact, he should be accorded some little profit for the loss of business from his regular shows.

Richey says that if the plan is again tried in Detroit the city will be divided into zones and the shows rotate each week.

Urges Abolition of Censor Body

Governor Alfred E. Smith again demanded the abolition of the New York State Motion Picture Commission in a special message to the Legislature on Monday, February 2. The message from the Governor, recommended consolidation of certain state departments and the abolishment of others. Governor Smith, in his message, declared that the Motion Picture Commission should be abolished because its work is of no value and because facilities already exist elsewhere to discharge the duties of the Commission.

"There is no need," said the Governor, "to transfer any of the functions of this Commission to some other department. The Commission should not exist at all. The penal law will take care of bad motion pictures, and if you believe it to be not strong enough, strengthen it."

Green Plans Theatres for Watertown and Woburn, Mass.

Benjamin H. Green of Roxbury, Mass., president of the Atlantic Theatres Corp., is planning to build two new theatres, one in Woburn and the other in Watertown. He now conducts theatres in Medford and Melrose.

"Benny" Green, as he is popularly known, is one of the pioneer exhibitors of New England. He began his theatrical career about twelve years ago as assistant manager of the Park Theatre in Boston. Later he went into business for himself in Chelsea. Sometime afterward Alfred Black made Green general manager of the Black circuit of theatres. Associated with him in the Atlantic Theatres Corp., are E. M. Daugel, I. M. Feinberg and Jacob Morse.

Film Organizer Elliott Active Outside Industry

Frederick H. Elliott, who, in 1916 organized the N. A. M. P. I., and who much more recently organized Independent Producers with I. E. Chadwick as president of the I. M. P. P. D. A., is still active as an organizer, but not at this time within the motion picture pale.

In an article appearing in the Taxi News, Mr. Elliott urges the necessity for organization in the taxi industry. On many former occasions Mr. Elliott has shown his interest in this and kindred branches of the automobile industry.

You think you have seen

See This!

"Ida

The best story ever put into a Pathéserial

The Thrills, Romance and Drama of the old Gold Rush Days

Pathéserial

TRADE MARK

Exciting "Westerns"--

Mahlon Hamilton and Vivian Rich in

"Ho!"

New York Legislature Asked to Repeal Screen Censorship

THE FIRST definite move in the fight to wipe out motion picture censorship in New York State was made in the Legislature at Albany on February 3 through the introduction of a bill by Assemblyman Frederick L. Hackenburg of Brooklyn, calling for the abolishment of the commission on July 1, next, and the turning over of all books, papers and records of the commission to the state comptroller on or before June 30, the latter official being authorized to wind up the affairs of the commission. The bill is identical in its wording with the one introduced by Mr. Hackenburg a year ago and which failed to pass.

A companion bill will be introduced in the State Senate during the next few days by Minority Leader James J. Walker of New York City. Both bills will be referred to committees, and the next move will be to have the bills reported out and go to a vote on the floors of the respective bodies.

It will be some time yet before any date will be announced for the public hearing which will be held on these bills. This hearing will bring to the State Capitol probably the largest crowd that will attend any similar gathering during the present session of the Legislature. The big fight this year will be on censorship repeal.

The fact that Assemblyman Hackenburg has introduced the bill calling for the abolishment of the commission and the natural wiping out of censorship caused considerable comment in the legislative corridors. Members of the Assembly are already lining up and the fight will be one of the bitterest of the entire winter.

Two Chicago Holdups Net the Bandits $7,400

Four masked men who entered the offices of the Commodore Theatre, 3105 Irving Park boulevard, Chicago, last week forced the owner Nathan Gumbiner, and his janitor, Peter Weber, to surrender the cash box containing $1,400, and escaped in a touring car. Gumbiner had just started to count his Sunday receipts when the four men entered with drawn revolvers and forced him and his janitor on to a small balcony, where they were tied up with electric light wire, the holdup men then leisurely collected their loot. Two weeks ago an attempt was made to blow the safe of the Commodore, and the police believe that the men who failed in the first attempt are the same who robbed the place.

On February 26 George Heaney, a messenger for the Pantheon Theatre of Lubliner & Trinz, at Sheridan road and Eastwood avenue, hailed a taxi and started for a bank with $6,000 of the theatre's money. Two blocks from the theatre two men jumped on the running board, took the $6,000 from Heaney and disappeared.

F. B. O. CLUB HOLDS DANCE

The F. B. O. Thrift Club, an organization composed of the employes of Film Booking Offices, held their first annual dance at the Hotel Martinique, Broadway and 32nd street, on Thursday evening.

The employes with their guests numbered five hundred. Virginia Lee Corbin and Johnnie Walker, who are playing the leads in the F. B. O. underworld-melodrama now being shot at the Whitman Bennett Studios, were among the prominent players who attended.

Ralph Crocco and John Haas of the auditing department were in charge of the entertainment.

ACT AGAINST ODOR BOMBS

At the request of Louisville exhibitors, principally those operating the smaller and suburban houses, an ordinance will be passed to stop sales of odor bombs through placing a license fee of $150 on all retailers handling the bombs, along with itching and sneezing powders. These articles have been a great annoyance of late, as a result of youths using them in theatres. Samples of the objectionable articles were placed in the hands of City Attorney W. T. Baskett.

Price War Halts

Milwaukee's price-cutting war has come to a halt with the announcement by Stan Brown, manager of Saxe's Strand, that his house will return shortly to a 50 cent evening policy. Matinees will remain at the recently established price of a quarter.

The Strand has been charging 35 cents for evening shows since a few weeks ago, when Uihlein's Garden went down to 35 cents and Freuler's Butterfly tumbled from 25 cents to 15. Ascher's Merrill had previously adopted a 35 cent policy.

Decision to return to higher admissions was reached, according to Brown, with the closing of a deal whereby the Strand will show Paramount almost exclusively. Heretofore the Paramount product has been evenly split between Saxe's Wisconsin and Uihlein's Alhambra. From now on, according to Brown, the next forty will be split between the Strand and the Wisconsin, with the Strand getting most of them. The first picture under the new policy will be "Peter Pan."

According to O. J. Wooden, manager of the Alhambra and Garden, the 35 cent scale will continue to prevail at the Garden and the 50 cent admission will remain at the Alhambra. He hopes to boost business at the Garden when the Strand goes to 50 cents.

George R. Batcheller and Mrs. Dolan Are Dead

George R. Batcheller, 62 years old, died in Boston on January 15. He was born in Providence and for several years was manager of the Westminster Theatre in that city. He also had managed the Lyceum and Gayety theatres in Boston and the Front Street Theatre in Worcester. Mr. Batcheller retired from active business about eight years ago. He is survived by one son, George R. Batcheller, Jr., and one sister, Carrie Batcheller. Mr. Batcheller was the son of George H. Batcheller, a former partner of B. F. Keith.

Mrs. Nellie E. Dolan, 51 years of age, died on January 26 at the home of her niece, Mrs. Iona May Redden, in Dover, N. H. Mrs. Dolan came to Dover in 1909 with her husband, the late John F. Dolan, and they established the Lyric Theatre. Mrs. Dolan continued to conduct the theatre after the death of her husband in 1913. From July, 1923, until last September she had managed the Strand in Dover. Mrs. Dolan resumed personal charge of her own theatre last Labor Day.

SALE OF SECURITIES BARRED

The sale of securities of the Criterion Pictures, Inc., has been barred in Massachusetts by the state commission on public utilities, acting under the blue sky law regulating the sale of securities. The commission's decision states that evidence which it has collected indicates that the concern offered purchasers of its securities notes bearing interest at 40 per cent.

Can't Run Picture Theatre

THE Hostettler Amusement Company, Omaha, has won its court fight to put the city of Hastings, Neb., out of the picture business. District Judge B. H. Payne of Grand Island, Neb., handed down the decision. Judge Payne issued an injunction forbidding the city of Hastings from engaging in the show business in its municipal auditorium, and also halted plans to install a $13,000 organ in the building.

The city of Hastings started showing pictures in its municipal auditorium sometime last year, and alleged at the time the Hostettler Amusement Comany, which operates three picture houses in Hastings, was charging unreasonable prices. The Hostettler Amusement Company engaged attorneys who obtained a temporary injunction against the city to prevent its operating the auditorium as a picture house, on the technicality that city funds could not legally be used to engage in the picture business.

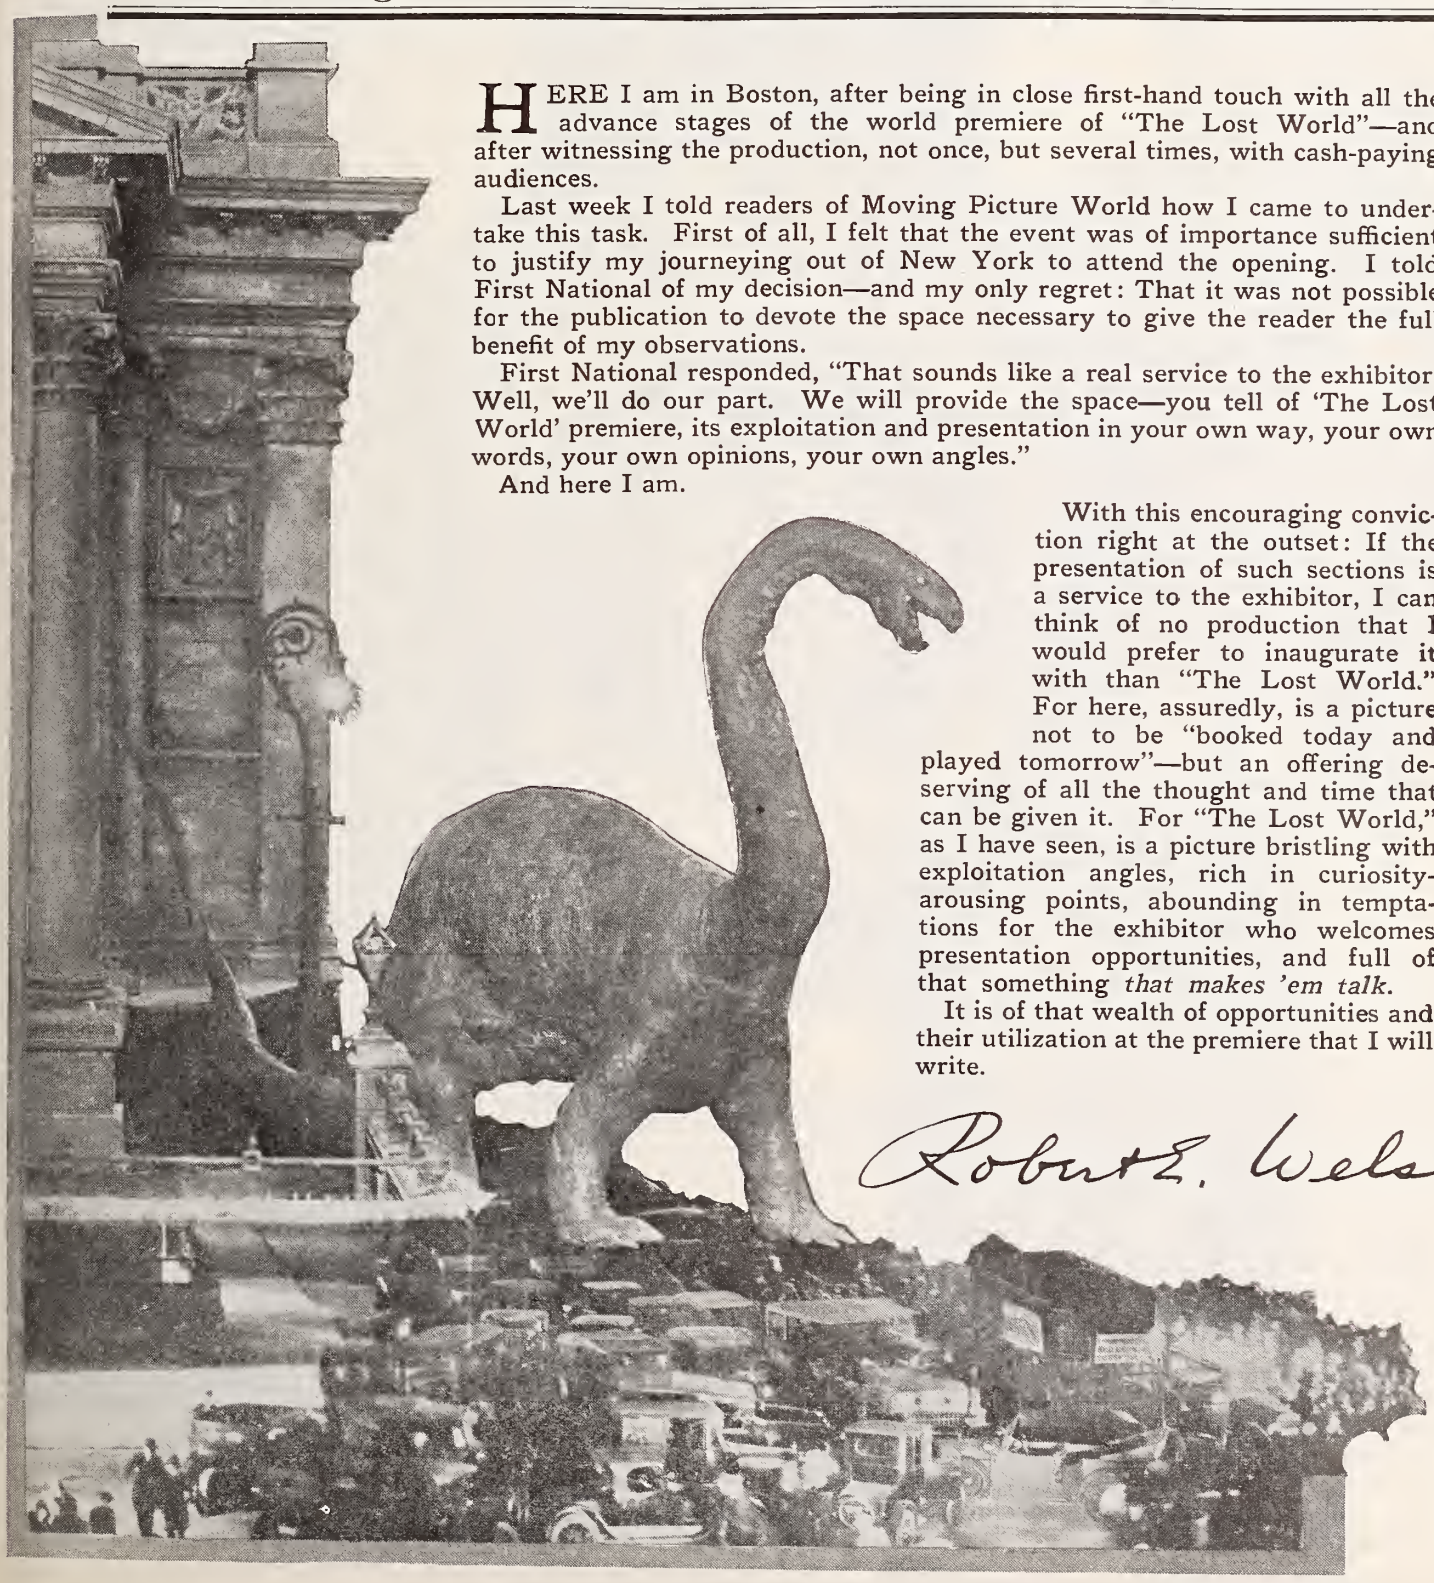
The temporary restraining order obtained many months ago did not stop the city from operating the picture house, as attorneys for the city advised going ahead and operating by using only such funds as came in as receipts of the business, instead of drawing from any city fund. Thus the auditorium has been operated until now as a municipal picture house, but the injunction orders the suspension of this activity.

A World Premiere Covered by the Editor

"The Lost World"

A First National Attraction
By Arrangement with Watterson R. Rothacker

As Advertised and Presented for Its First Showing at Tremont Temple, Boston, Feb. 2, 1925



HERE I am in Boston, after being in close first-hand touch with all the advance stages of the world premiere of "The Lost World"—and after witnessing the production, not once, but several times, with cash-paying audiences.

Last week I told readers of Moving Picture World how I came to undertake this task. First of all, I felt that the event was of importance sufficient to justify my journeying out of New York to attend the opening. I told First National of my decision—and my only regret: That it was not possible for the publication to devote the space necessary to give the reader the full benefit of my observations.

First National responded, "That sounds like a real service to the exhibitor. Well, we'll do our part. We will provide the space—you tell of 'The Lost World' premiere, its exploitation and presentation in your own way, your own words, your own opinions, your own angles."

And here I am.

With this encouraging conviction right at the outset: If the presentation of such sections is a service to the exhibitor, I can think of no production that I would prefer to inaugurate it with than "The Lost World." For here, assuredly, is a picture not to be "booked today and played tomorrow"—but an offering deserving of all the thought and time that can be given it. For "The Lost World," as I have seen, is a picture bristling with exploitation angles, rich in curiosity-arousing points, abounding in temptations for the exhibitor who welcomes presentation opportunities, and full of that something that makes 'em talk.

It is of that wealth of opportunities and their utilization at the premiere that I will write.

Robert E. Welsh

Here Is the Editor's Own Review

I DON'T know whether the regular reviewers, the boys who cover the pictures week in and week out, ever feel the way I do at this particular moment. But, frankly, I am in a predicament. I can't seem to get started.

Everything would have been simple if I had approached the typewriter last evening immediately after viewing "The Lost World" at Tremont Temple. I was bubbling over with enthusiasm then, ringing phrases of pleasure and admiration were ready at will, I just HAD to tell the world the way I felt about it.

But I postponed the task till this morning. And then at the breakfast table read the glowing reviews of all the Boston papers. Now it seems so futile, such a waste of time and space—merely to add my praise to the columns that have said it all.

It doesn't seem to matter so much now. Why bother inflicting my personal views on the printed page if all the world is going to know the story before very long? Last night I experienced all the thrills of being a Christopher Columbus; just now I can't seem to write a word of opinion without feeling like a trailer. And pompous editorial dignity can't adapt itself to the situation.

But, whether or not my personal view is going to make any difference to the rest of the world, it is worth something to me to have the record include my emphatic statement. That will give me a chance to join the "I told you so" brigade a year from now when folks are talking about all the money "The Lost World" made.

First of all, let me make it plain that I could very easily have covered the campaign that launched "The Lost World" without going to the extent of a personal review. That would have been easy. But after I saw the picture I knew I just HAD to review it if I didn't do anything else. I wanted to climb aboard the band-wagon early.

Here we go:

Each year of this industry's history seems to bring its different picture, the one that has the sharps on the "inside" guessing in advance—only later to turn out to be the year's big money-maker. Sometimes the one they are guessing about is a film classic, like "The Covered Wagon," at others it is a picture that doesn't rate so high in technical merit but possesses, either in exploitation or theme, that "something different" that brings the shekels pouring in.

I am ready to go on record with the belief that "The Lost World" is the DIFFERENT money-maker of the coming season—the one that is going to snowball its way to phenomenal success even while some of the sharps are wondering what happened.

You feel yourself stuttering in attempting to describe "The Lost World" to anyone who hasn't seen it with an audience—and finish invariably by saying, "Go and see it." The trouble is that the person listening to your words is trying to compare it with something of the past, and it can't be done.. You say "massive," and he thinks of far-reaching temple scenes or towering galleys; you say thrills and he thinks of wild animal successes. Both ways he is only partly right.

And, except when producers have come a cropper in search of the too lofty high brow, I have never seen it to fail in this industry that when the "pull" of a picture couldn't quite be described—that was the one that the public made the hit of the hour.

You think you can imagine the thrill of seeing prehistoric monsters one hundred and ten feet long. So you can, to an extent. And when they first flash on the screen in "The Lost World" you admit that your imagination has been satisfied. But wait until you catch yourself fearing for the fate of an intrepid group of humans marooned on a plateau literally swarming with fearful beasts of tremendous size. One stamp of any of the mammal's feet and the party would be wiped out. Can you compare that thrill with anything in your experience?

Well, that's not the half of it. You get volcanic eruption on the plateau later—a sea of flaming lava, a maddened rush of frantic behemoths, and our friends in the midst of it. Is that a thrill?

But the producer has saved the best of all for the climax. And this I can't describe. You'll have to stretch your imagination. Try and picture it: A bewildered brontosaurus roaming the streets of London, thousands of panic-stricken people running before him, busses overturned and houses toppled by gentle taps of his mammoth paws, and finally, the beast starts to stroll across London Bridge—the structure collapses, tossing beast, automobiles and humans into the swirling waters.

How am I going to tell you those things so that you really SEE them?

First National Pictures, Inc.
Presents
Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's Stupendous Story
"THE LOST WORLD"
By Arrangement with Watterson R. Rothacker
With Bessie Love, Lewis Stone, Wallace Beery, Lloyd Hughes

Research and Technical Director...Willis H. O'Brien
Director of Photography.....Arthur Edeson
Director of Settings-Architecture....Milton Menasco
Film Editor.....George McGuire
Chief Technician.....Fred W. Jackson
Scenario and Editorial Direction.....Marion Fairfax
Dramatic Direction.....Harry O. Hoyt
Produced under the supervision of.....Earl Hudson

CAST

Paula White.....Bessie Love
Ed Malone.....Lloyd Hughes
Sir John Roxton.....Lewis Stone
Professor Challenger.....Wallace Beery
Professor Summerlee.....Arthur Hoyt
Mrs. Challenger.....Margaret McWade
Austin—Challenger's butler.....Finch Smiles
Zambo.....Jules Cowles
Apeman .....Bull Montana
Colin McArdle.....George Bunny
Major Hibbard.....Charles Wellsley
Gladys Hungerford.....Alma Bennett

These are but feeble attempts to give you the high-lights. There is inherent suspense in almost every foot of the picture; there is an admirably handled comedy vein running throughout. Here, in fact, the producer has done his best work. The thrills might have been over-played, the suspense over-stretched—both might have proved too much. But the problem has been met by a sense of comedy values that is deserving of high praise.

More than one Boston reviewer, for example, couldn't resist telling his readers about the inebriated gentleman who staggered through the swinging doors of a "pub" just in time to see the brontosaurus approaching. That's a laugh. But it isn't "one-two-three" to the roar that comes a few minutes later when the same gentleman emerges bearing a saucer and a bottle of milk while the title flashes, "Here—kitty—kitty—kitty!"

I suppose in a routine review spirit, I should pause near my conclusion to mention the names of all concerned and strew appropriate credits. But I can't do it, for I would only be using a variety of synonyms for "excellent" and following each with a name, until all had been used. "The Lost World" is a credit to all concerned, from Watterson Rothacker, who saw the showmanship possibilities of the story, to Earl Hudson, who supervised the production, to Harry Hoyt and Willis O'Brien, to all the players concerned, down even to the dinosaurs, if that is the correct pural.

Credit Where Credit Is Due

HERE they are—the folks chiefly responsible for this new contribution to screen history. Top row, left to right: Watterson R. Rothacker, sponsor; Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, author; Earl J. Hudson, supervisor of production. Middle row, left to right: Wallace Beery, Bessie Love, Lewis Stone. Bottom row, left, Lloyd Hughes; right, Harry O. Hoyt, director. The only photograph missing is that of Willis H. O'Brien, research and technical director, inventor of the marvelous effects seen in "The Lost World."

They Took Off the Lid When

Hard-Boiled Boston Reviewers Use Up All the Superlatives

Some day an enterprising individual will decide to compile a "Press Agent's Dictionary"—and you know what an amazing array of adjectives we will have: "astounding," "amazing," "stupendous," "outstanding," "marvelous," and so on to the limits of man's enthusiasm.

Well, when that day comes I can save the lexicographer quite a bit of trouble by referring him to the review of "The Lost World's" premiere.

I haven't recovered from the shock yet.

I have just finished reading the reviews in this morning's Boston newspapers—seat of conservative journalism. I knew last night that the thrills of the picture had the audience on seat edge throughout, that the sighs, laughs, and "ah's" were voluble and like a steadily moving wave—but I never expected to see the day when hidebound newspaper critics would unanimously borrow the Press Agent's Dictionary to tell their views.

Not one critic, nor two—there are always generously inclined reviewers in any city—but with a single voice every critic of the city seems to have thrown away the reins of his enthusiasm.

How does this sound:

"'The Lost World' is smashing entertainment. It contains all the sensations required.

NOVELTY OUTDONE AT TEMPLE

"The Lost World" Full of Amazing Film Realities

BY PRUNELLA HALL

Variety is the spice of the screen—to paraphrase a familiar saying, and in "The Lost World," a picturization of Sir Conan Doyle's romantic adventure in South America, which was given its world premier at Tremont Temple last night, it seems as if the millennium in film novelty has been reached.

MONSTERS APPEAR REAL

The brontosaurus, the pterodon, the allosaurus—all there in the flesh and as big as life, which is just about 1000 times as big as your imagination or your visits to the Natural History Museums would have led you to believe them to be.

It was very easy to imagine that the brontosaurus sometimes grew to a length of 120 feet and a weight of 40 tons, with no thought of counting his or her calories. And you could not ask for a more realistic fight than that between Messrs. Tyrannosaurus and Triceratops. Tyrannosaurus, greatest of flesh-eating giants and said to be the fiercest monster that ever lived, battled to the death with a huge specimen of the Triceratops, "they of the three-horned face."

Unprepared for Thrills

There are humor actors in this film. In fact, the opening of the story does not prepare one for the thrills to come. Professor George Challenger is being ridiculed by a body of scientists because he claims that in South America there are still living specimens of the prehistoric monsters of the palezoic and mezazoic ages. He makes up an expedition to go with him into the unexplored region, beyond the Amazon River. Sir John Roxton, explorer, Edward Malone, youthful reporter, Professor Summerlee, "beetle" expert, and Paula White, daughter of an American explorer who is supposed to be still living in "the lost world," make up the party.

All Terribly Menacing

From the time they leave the Amazon River and come into view of the plateau where the prehistoric monsters live and fight their titantic battles, the trees, the fungus, the swamps—and the seething volcano, all are terribly menacing. And what a thrill it is when the daring adventurers cross to the plateau on a bridge made of a felled tree. And then when a hungry Brontosaurus destroys their only means of escape to the earth, it remains for two of the party remaining beneath to make up a rope ladder from their hammocks. Jocko, a little monkey almost human in his knowingness, scampers up the bare wall of the towering precipice and delivers the ladder into the hands of his mistress. Then comes the thrilling descent and it is a thrilling one when the Ape Man, a grotesque in the person of Bull Montana, almost succeeds in pulling to his death the young reporter.

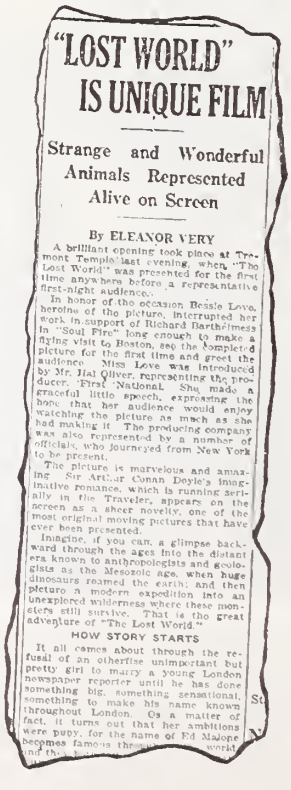
Bronty in London

All goes well until Bronty breaks out of his cage and ambles down the streets of London, nibbling at lamp posts; felling by a tap statues which have been standing for decades, playfully poking his nose through a seventh-story window and breaking up a quiet poker game; knocking out a corner of a building which is in his way and then finally meeting his end in the river, but not before he takes half the bridge with him.

We forgot to mention the love story which was a sweet one, especially as played by Bessie Love and Lloyd Hughes. Wallace Beery had an unusual role as Professor Challenger but he met the requirements, of course. Lewis Stone is always fine, and especially so as Sir John. And we liked Arthur Hoyt, the "beetle" man.

Miss Bessie Love in person and an atmospheric prologue added to the interest of the presentation.

...S WIFE DEAD



"LOST WORLD" IS UNIQUE FILM

Strange and Wonderful Animals Represented Alive on Screen

By ELEANOR VERY

A brilliant opening took place at Tremont Temple last evening, when, "The Lost World" was presented for the first time anywhere before a representative first-night audience.

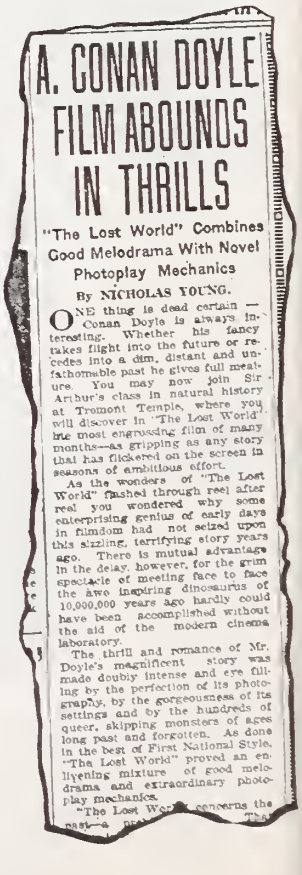
In honor of the occasion Bessie Love, heroine of the picture, interrupted her work in support of Richard Barthelmess in "Soul Fire" long enough to make a flying visit to Boston, see the completed picture for the first time and greet the audience. Miss Love was introduced by Mr. Hal Oliver, representing the producer, First National. She made a graceful little speech, expressing the hope that her audience would enjoy watching the picture as much as she had making it. The producing company was also represented by a number of officials, who journeyed from New York to be present.

The picture is marvelous and amazing. Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's imaginative romance, which is running serially in the Traveler, appears on the screen as a sheer novelty, one of the most original moving pictures that have ever been presented.

Imagine, if you can, a glimpse backward through the ages into the distant era known to anthropologists and zoologists as the Mesozoic age, when huge dinosaurs roamed the earth; and then picture a modern expedition into an unexplored wilderness where these monsters still survive. That is the great adventure of "The Lost World."

HOW STORY STARTS

It all comes about through the refusal of an otherise unimportant but pretty girl to marry a young London newspaper reporter until he has done something big, something sensational, something to make his name known throughout London. Or a matter of fact, it turns out that her ambitions were puppy, for the name of Ed Malone becomes famous the world



A. CONAN DOYLE FILM ABOUNDS IN THRILLS

"The Lost World" Combines Good Melodrama With Novel Photoplay Mechanics

By NICHOLAS YOUNG.

ONE thing is dead certain — Conan Doyle is always interesting. Whether his fancy takes flight into the future or recedes into a dim, distant and unfathomable past he gives full measure. You may now join Sir Arthur's class in natural history at Tremont Temple, where you will discover in "The Lost World" the most engrossing film of many months—as gripping as any story that has flickered on the screen in seasons of ambitious effort.

As the wonders of "The Lost World" flashed through reel after reel you wondered why some enterprising genius of early days in filmdom had not seized upon this sizzling, terrifying story years ago. There is mutual advantage in the delay, however, for the grim spectacle of meeting face to face the awe inspiring dinosaurus of 10,000,000 years ago hardly could have been accomplished without the aid of the modern cinema laboratory.

The thrill and romance of Mr. Doyle's magnificent story was made doubly intense and eye filling by the perfection of its photography, by the gorgeousness of its settings and by the hundreds of queer, skipping monsters of ages long past and forgotten. As done in the best of First National Style, "The Lost World" proved an enlivening mixture of good melodrama and extraordinary photoplay mechanics.

"The Lost World" concerns the

They Wrote Their Reviews

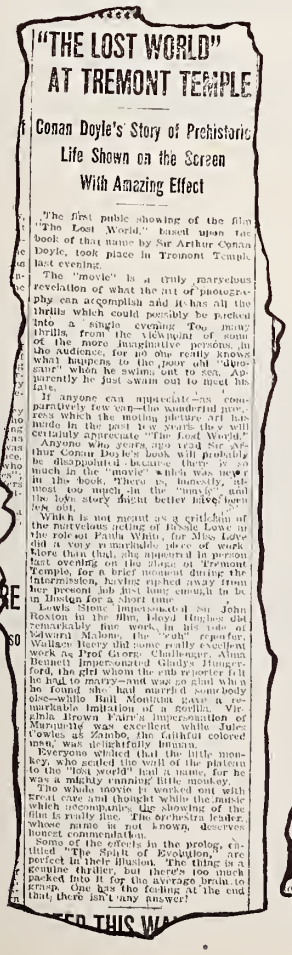
Compare "Lost World" With Screen's Biggest Successes

by restless men and women—thrills, suspense, comedy—to which may be added the awful creatures that we have always believed lived only in black bottles."

Sounds like an ad? Well, that is the way Nicholas Young concluded his review in the Boston American. A review that also contained such phrases as this, "the most engrossing film of many months, as gripping as any story that has flickered on the screen in many seasons of ambitious effort." Since space presses, I will just take words at random—"sizzling, terrifying story," "magnificent gorgeousness," "intense and eye-filling," and so on.

The Boston Globe—they don't make them any more conservative and careful of their prestige—sums its opinion up this way: " . . . A truly marvelous revelation of what the art of photography can accomplish, and it has all the thrills that could possibly be packed into a single evening. . . . If any one can appreciate—as comparatively few can—the wonder-

(Continued on page 674)



"THE LOST WORLD" AT TREMONT TEMPLE

Conan Doyle's Story of Prehistoric Life Shown on the Screen With Amazing Effect

The first public showing of the film "The Lost World," based upon the book of that name by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, took place in Tremont Temple last evening.

The "movie" is a truly marvelous revelation of what the art of photography can accomplish and it has all the thrills which could possibly be packed into a single evening. Too many thrills, from the standpoint of some of the more imaginative persons in the audience, for no one really knows what happens to the poor old "dinosaur" when he swims out to sea. Apparently he just swam out to meet his fate.

If anyone can appreciate—as comparatively few can—the wonderful progress which the motion picture art has made in the past few years they will certainly appreciate "The Lost World."

Anyone who years ago read Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's book will probably be disappointed because there is so much in the "movie" which was not in the book. There is, honestly, almost too much in the "movie" and the love story might better have been left out.

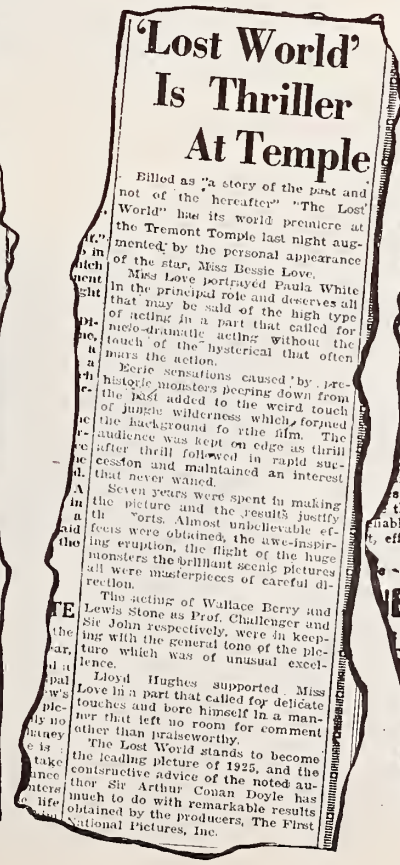
Which is not meant as a criticism of the marvelous acting of Bessie Love in the role of Paula White, for Miss Love did a very remarkable piece of work before that night appeared in person last evening on the stage of Tremont Temple, for a brief moment during the intermission, having rushed away from her present job just long enough to be in Boston for a short time.

Lewis Stone impersonated Sir John Roxton in the film, Lloyd Hughes did remarkably fine work in his role of Edward Malone, the "cub" reporter, Wallace Berry did some really excellent work as Prof. Georg Challenger, Alma Bennett impersonated Gladys Hungerford, the girl whom the cub reporter felt he had to marry—and was so glad when he found she had married somebody else—while Bull Montana gave a remarkable imitation of a gorilla. Virginia Brown Faire's impersonation of Marguerite was excellent while Julee Cowles as Zambo, the faithful colored man, was delightfully human.

Everyone wished that the little monkey, who scaled the wall of the plateau to the "lost world" had a name, for he was a mighty winning little monkey.

The whole movie is worked out with great care and thought while the music which accompanies the showing of the film is really fine. The orchestra leader, whose name is not known, deserves honest commendation.

Some of the effects in the prolog, entitled "The Spirit of Evolution," are perfect in their illusion. The thing is a genuine thriller, but there's too much packed into it for the average brain to grasp. One has the feeling at the end that there isn't any answer!



'Lost World' Is Thriller At Temple

Billed as "a story of the past and not of the hereafter" "The Lost World" has its world premiere at the Tremont Temple last night augmented by the personal appearance of the star, Miss Bessie Love.

Miss Love portrayed Paula White in the principal role and deserves all that may be said of the high type of acting in a part that called for melo-dramatic acting without the touch of the hysterical that often mars the action.

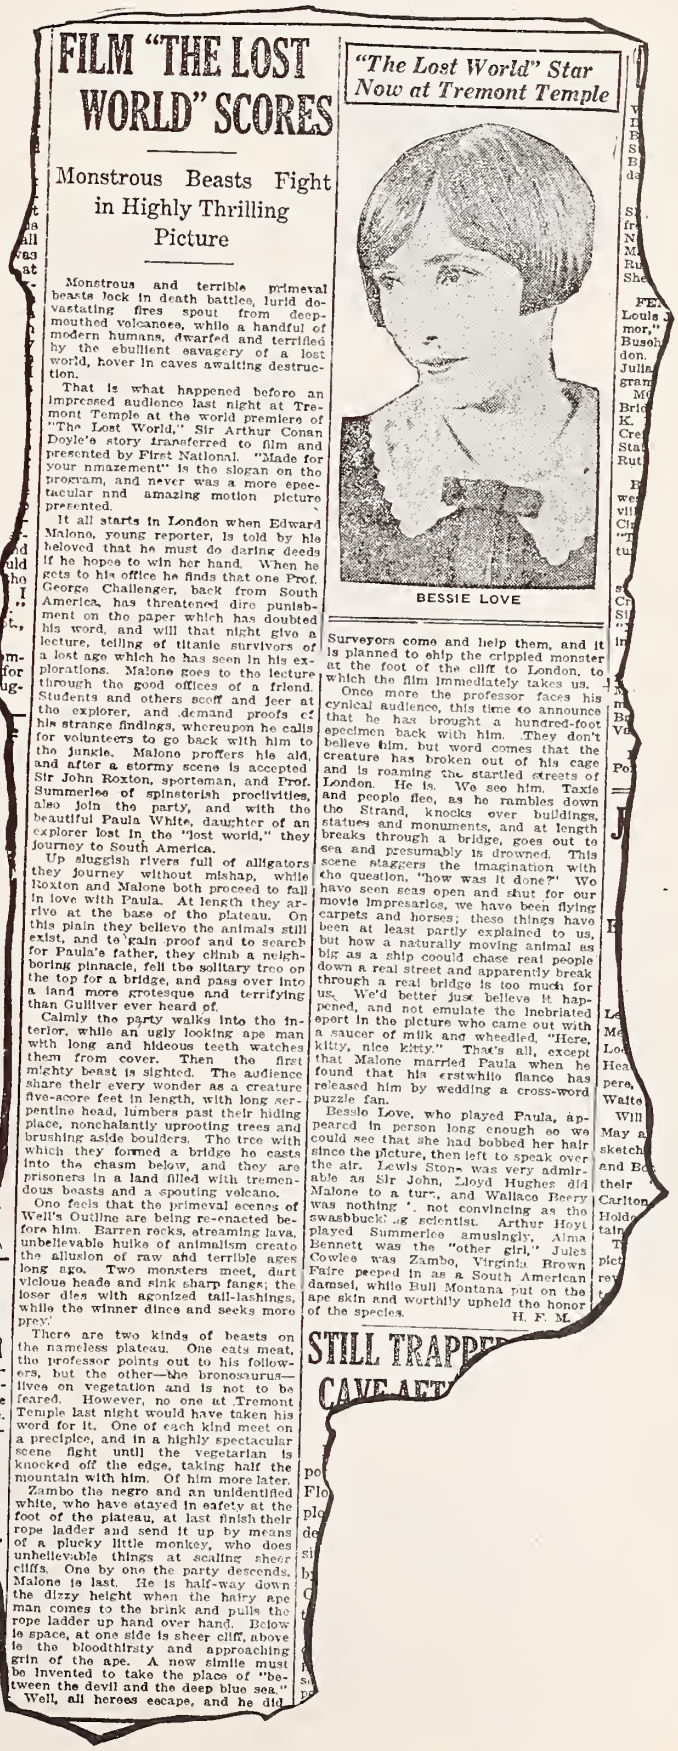
Eerie sensations caused by prehistoric monsters peering down from the past added to the weird touch of jungle wilderness which formed the background to the film. The audience was kept on edge as thrill after thrill followed in rapid succession and maintained an interest that never waned.

Seven years were spent in making the picture and the results justify the efforts. Almost unbelievable effects were obtained, the awe-inspiring eruption, the flight of the huge monsters the brilliant scenic pictures all were masterpieces of careful direction.

The acting of Wallace Berry and Lewis Stone as Prof. Challenger and Sir John respectively, were in keeping with the general tone of the picture which was of unusual excellence.

Lloyd Hughes supported Miss Love in a part that called for delicate touches and bore himself in a manner that left no room for comment other than praiseworthy.

The Lost World stands to become the leading picture of 1925, and the constructive advice of the noted author Sir Arthur Conan Doyle has much to do with remarkable results obtained by the producers, The First National Pictures, Inc.



FILM "THE LOST WORLD" SCORES

Monstrous Beasts Fight in Highly Thrilling Picture

Monstrous and terrible primeval beasts lock in death battles, lurid devastating fires spout from deep-mouthed volcanoes, while a handful of modern humans, dwarfed and terrified by the ebullient savagery of a lost world, hover in caves awaiting destruction.

That is what happened before an impressed audience last night at Tremont Temple at the world premiere of "The Lost World," Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's story transferred to film and presented by First National. "Made for your amazement" is the slogan on the program, and never was a more spectacular and amazing motion picture presented.

It all starts in London when Edward Malone, young reporter, is told by his beloved that he must do daring deeds if he hopes to win her hand. When he gets to his office he finds that one Prof. George Challenger, back from South America, has threatened dire punishment on the paper which has doubted his word, and will that night give a lecture, telling of titanic survivors of a lost age which he has seen in his explorations. Malone goes to the lecture through the good offices of a friend. Students and others scoff and jeer at the explorer, and demand proofs of his strange findings, whereupon he calls for volunteers to go back with him to the jungle. Malone proffers his aid, and after a stormy scene is accepted. Sir John Roxton, sportsman, and Prof. Summerlee of spinsterish proclivities, also join the party, and with the beautiful Paula White, daughter of an explorer lost in the "lost world," they journey to South America.

Up sluggish rivers full of alligators they journey without mishap, while Roxton and Malone both proceed to fall in love with Paula. At length they arrive at the base of the plateau. On this plain they believe the animals still exist, and to gain proof and to search for Paula's father, they climb a neighboring pinnacle, fell the solitary tree on the top for a bridge, and pass over into a land more grotesque and terrifying than Gulliver ever heard of.

Calmly the party walks into the interior, while an ugly looking ape man with long and hideous teeth watches them from cover. Then the first mighty beast is sighted. The audience share their every wonder as a creature five-score feet in length, with long serpentine head, lumbers past their hiding place, nonchalantly uprooting trees and brushing aside boulders. The tree with which they formed a bridge he casts into the chasm below, and they are prisoners in a land filled with tremendous beasts and a spouting volcano.

One feels that the primeval scenes of Well's Outline are being re-enacted before him. Barren rocks, streaming lava, unbelievable hulks of animalism create the illusion of raw and terrible ages long ago. Two monsters meet, dart vicious heads and sink sharp fangs; the loser dies with agonized tail-lashings, while the winner dines and seeks more prey.

There are two kinds of beasts on the nameless plateau. One eats meat, the professor points out to his followers, but the other—the brontosaurus—lives on vegetation and is not to be feared. However, no one at Tremont Temple last night would have taken his word for it. One of each kind meet on a precipice, and in a highly spectacular scene fight until the vegetarian is knocked off the edge, taking half the mountain with him. Of him more later.

Zambo the negro and an unidentified white, who have stayed in safety at the foot of the plateau, at last finish their rope ladder and send it up by means of a plucky little monkey, who does unbelievable things at scaling sheer cliffs. One by one the party descends, Malone is last. He is half-way down the dizzy height when the hairy ape man comes to the brink and pulls the rope ladder up hand over hand. Below is space, at one side is sheer cliff, above is the bloodthirsty and approaching grin of the ape. A new simile must be invented to take the place of "between the devil and the deep blue sea."

Well, all heroes escape, and he did.

"The Lost World" Star Now at Tremont Temple

BESSIE LOVE

Surveyors come and help them, and it is planned to ship the crippled monster at the foot of the cliff to London, to which the film immediately takes us.

Once more the professor faces his cynical audience, this time to announce that he has brought a hundred-foot specimen back with him. They don't believe him, but word comes that the creature has broken out of his cage and is roaming the startled streets of London. He is. We see him. Taxis and people flee, as he rambles down the Strand, knocks over buildings, statues and monuments, and at length breaks through a bridge, goes out to sea and presumably is drowned. This scene staggers the imagination with the question, "how was it done?" We have seen seas open and shut for our movie impresarios, we have been flying carpets and horses; these things have been at least partly explained to us, but how a naturally moving animal as big as a ship coould chase real people down a real street and apparently break through a real bridge is too much for us. We'd better just believe it happened, and not emulate the inebriated expert in the picture who came out with a saucer of milk and wheedled, "Here, kitty, nice kitty." That's all, except that Malone married Paula when he found that his erstwhile fiance has released him by wedding a cross-word puzzle fan.

Bessie Love, who played Paula, appeared in person long enough so we could see that she had bobbed her hair since the picture, then left to speak over the air. Lewis Stone was very admirable as Sir John, Lloyd Hughes did Malone to a turn, and Wallace Beery was nothing ' not convincing as the swashbuckling scientist. Arthur Hoyt played Summerlee amusingly, Alma Bennett was the "other girl," Jules Cowlee was Zambo, Virginia Brown Faire peeped in as a South American damsel, while Bull Montana put on the ape skin and worthily upheld the honor of the species.

H. F. M.

STILL TRAPPE

CAVE AFT

All the Angles of THE UNUSUAL plus a Picture to Sell

Start Early!

THERE are pictures that sell themselves automatically for a certain amount of money. No matter what advance effort is put into the job of arousing interest in them it seems to make no difference. They are the features concerning which you just say, "So-and-So in his latest picture."

There are other pictures that cannot reach a healthy box-office figure no matter what worry and thought you put into them. They are—well, you know the answer. They are the ones that for some reason or other you decide you should sell—perhaps it is a picture that appeals to you personally—but you just know when you start the campaign that you are fighting against Fate.

And so it goes.

All of which is my way of introducing a sincere and honest thought that I want to give you regarding "The Lost World."

"The Lost World" is the in-between type of picture.

Now I must explain. "The Lost World," with Conan Doyle's newspaper prominence, with the well-liked and excellent cast, with the enthusiastic newspaper reviews that are going to pour into your town from the metropolitan centres—is going to be worth a certain amount of money at the box office, and a very satisfactory figure.

But—it is going to be a shame if you take "The Lost World" and just play it as one of those easy pictures. If you just say, "Next week—'The Lost World'," and then sit back and wait for the money, you might get a lot of money—but you will miss a lot more than you get.

The clippings that are reproduced on these two pages are just a hastily chosen handful of the stories that were appearing in the Boston newspapers for the three weeks preceding the opening. They illustrate, not completely, but merely as specimens, what I have been working up to. And here is the thought:

"The Lost World" is the type of picture on which you can't start too early.

You don't have to be afraid that your editor will say, "Why, you are not playing that picture for some time, why bother me with a story now?" You don't have to be afraid that you might start too early and run out of angles, new ideas, long before the opening.

BOSTON TRAVELER, FRIDAY, JANUARY 30, 1925

Scientist Describes 'Lost World' Dangers

"Tells How Dead Man Came Out Alive, and Liv... Dead"—Conan Doyle's Thriller Begins in Traveler Monday—Movie, Also

RISKY DINOSAUR TAKES TO SCREEN

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

HORSES, dogs and now members of the extinct Dinosaur family are holding the centre of the screen, taking audits from the multitude and giving new life to filmdom. ...m Mix gallops madly across the Western wastes and his horse, Tony, shares in the honors of the chase; Rin-Tin-Tin, the dog hero of cinema, absorbs the full glory of stardom by ...aving his name in electric lights just above the front entrance. If you are still entertaining any doubt that this is the ...ge of animals in pictures, please consider "The Lost World" in which a whole flock of weird creatures is to divide interest with Bessie Love, Wallace Beery, Lewis Stone and other bright lights of the silver sheet at Tremont Temple next week. The human actors will be hard pressed for stellar honors in this fantastic story by Sir A. Conan Doyle.

THE distinguished novelist had not taken a single step into the spiritualistic future when years ago he startled his readers with "The Lost World." It proved to be a fresh and exhilarating departure from deadly literary routine of the period. Strangely enough "The Lost World" was written before, but was not published until after Sherlock Holmes had set up a new fashion in scientific crime detection. Sir Arthur plunged into the past with this novel—as far into the past as he now strives to reach into the hereafter. For seven years laboratory men have been working on the details of "The Lost World," creating by mechanical means hideous, moving monsters of prehistoric, pre-prohibition days and which, according to scientists, should have passed out of the picture 10,000,000 years ago. These are the frisky playmates of Bessie Love and her companions in "The Lost World." An astounding revelation of life in the reptilian age is what the producers promise. Interesting the fact that "The Lost World" is the first picture ever produced from a story by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle.

...storic Monsters in "Lost World" Struggle

The ter... battle between two prehistoric monsters described in Sir Arthur C... "The Lost World," which is to be published in The Traveler beginning ... 2, the day upon which the screen version will begin at Tremont Temple.

Fight to Death, One of Chapters in Conan Doyle's Thriller, Beginning in Traveler, Feb. 2, With Screen Version at Tremont Temple

A terrific ... between two prehistoric animals, witnessed by ... scientists and sportsmen, penetrated the unknown ... South America and found ... plateau where ... had continued to live ... centuries, ... chapters ... Conan Doyle's "The Lost World," to be published ... in Traveler, beginning ... date when the screen ... story will be ... Temple.

IN SOUTH AMERICAN WILDS

Bessie Love to Speak Over Radio.

Bessie Love, one of the stars of "The Lost World," coming to Tremont Temple, will be a visitor in Boston on Monday. Before attending a showing of her own picture she... broadcast from WNAC.

NEXT WEEK'S NEW BILLS

TREMONT TEMPLE—"The Lost World." A glimpse into the distant past by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, showing life on the planet 10,000,000 years ago. Interpreting the story is a cast including Bessie Love, Wallace Beery, Lewis Stone, Virginia Brown Faire and Lloyd Hughes. Adapted by Earl Hudson. First National picture.

IF A DINOSAUR SHOULD COME TO BOSTON SOME DAY WELL, "THE LOST WORLD" SHOWS WHAT WOULD HAPP...

Scenes, Almost Full Fights, the Invasion by the Reptile Version of Fifth Line ... Conan Doyle's Famous Story, Which Opens at Tremont Temple, ... Next Monday. Supplementary Movie, Topics, Scenic Line and Latest Events. Two of the Principal Players in the Film Shown Above.

Suppose a brontosaurus, and of those prehistoric animals, should run wild in the streets of Boston—what would happen? Scientific expeditions now in South America are trying to locate such an animal, which has been reported as seen in the Patagonian country. Sir Arthur Conan Doyle a number of years ago in a fantastic novel, "The Lost World," gave some graphic descriptions of these huge monstrosities of animal life. And now word comes that the novel has been dramatized for the screen and is to be shown at Tremont Temple beginning Feb. 2. Simultaneously with the opening of the super production The Boston Traveler is to start the serial, "The Lost World," in its columns. ...

When Sir Arthur Conan Doyle a number of years ago wrote his fantastic novel, "The Lost World," which has been transferred to the screen by First National Pictures, and Watterson R. Rothacker and ... to Tremont Temple, Monday, Feb. 2, little did he dream that ... recently real scientific expeditions would penetrate the South American ... of his story to prove ... the possibility that descendants of the ... prehistoric dinosaurs are still ... in unexplored regions. ... Prof. Elmer S. ... Chronologist of the ... Museum, has been ... picking ... which grew ... to serve ... Prof. Challenger ... Professor ... Which ... Prof. Challenger ... Arctic ... Professor ... Challenger ... Professor ... Challenger ... Professor ... Challenger

A World Premiere Covered by the Editor

You have both worries defeated early. The first: Because Sir A. Conan Doyle is newspaper copy. He is front page human interest. You don't have to explain, alibi, or reason with any editor about that.

Again, the photos of dinosaurs and other prehistoric animals are unusual. They don't have to be sold to the picture editor. And finally, there are a hundred and one angles for the UNUSUAL in feature stories. The UNUSUAL is the answer to the editorial desk.

What was the world like a million years ago? Is there really a "Lost Continent" somewhere in South America? Just how would you feel if you did happen to be dropped in that "Lost Continent"—where every other living creature was of a race a million years old? How did the picture producer ever produce such weird effects?

Those are a few of the questions. And it is the questions that can be asked that make the UNUSUAL in newspaper features, according to the editorial definition.

Then there is the second worry. Is there any danger of running out of material or DIFFERENT angles.

We have answered that with a few of the queries above. But in addition, don't forget that there are STARS—that there is real human interest—in "The Lost World."

Which means that you have all of the UNUSUAL that Conan Doyle's story gives you, all of the novelty that the picture itself offers—and, in addition, you have all of the angles that the ordinary big picture, with an exceptional cast of names, has to offer. Isn't that a combination?

Boston is not the easiest newspaper city in the world. Experienced press agents will tell you that it is one of the hardest. So the proof is in the clippings, and I have, frankly, had to make a very limited selection of published stories to show you here what happened in Boston.

The answer is that there must be that peculiar SOMETHING—nobody ever gets far defining it—about "The Lost World" that makes newspaper copy. Bear in mind that the campaign in the Hub City was not handled by an avalanche of home office press agents. One lone representative, Hal Olver, was on the job. His problem, his job, was just the same one that your press agent will have, or you yourself will have, if you handle the work. If you make use of your opportunities as he did—you will get the same results.

The point I want to make is: You are losing DOLLARS with each thing you don't do in advance. The representative of another trade paper met us in Boston on his arrival for the opening night with these words, "This picture must have the town on edge. We asked the taxi driver where 'The Lost World' was showing, and he spent the rest of the ride telling us what a great picture he had heard it was." Mind you, the picture hadn't opened yet. But full use of the opportunities present had even the taxi driver convinced that it was a picture that everyone was talking about.

If you can do any better—I want to know about it. And if you don't do as well—blame yourself.

HOW 'LOST WORLD' SCREEN STAR CHANGED HER NAME AND WON SUCCESS THROUGH 'NUMEROLOGY'

By BESSIE LOVE

Nothing in this universe of sorrows and joys is more intensely interesting or fascinating than that collection of atoms attuned to move at a human vibration, this vibration being commonly called "Self."

This self is a persevering and conscient seeker: a seeker many times for recognition, for flattery and for praise, but, in reality, a seeker for real knowledge that it may better probe and learn of that mysterious entity, termed "Self," and the true position of this "self" among these unexplainable laws of nature, which are commonly called 'Life's riddles."

BESSIE LOVE, Star of Film "The Lost World," Opening at Tremont Temple Tomorrow

Brought up Like Any Other Girl

I was brought up just like any other girl, school, high school, and then its finishing school. My parents were extremely fond of their "baby girl" as my two brothers were shifting for themselves. My father, a doctor of medicine, wanted his daughter to study medicine, and my mother differed with him, wanting me to study art. I myself had no choice at all—it was either one or the other for me, and as I hated medicine, and did not think I was capable of the higher branches of "art," I was indeed a very unhappy school-girl.

I was given a course in art while attending finishing school, where I was preparing to enter a medical college. It was at this same school that I discovered names meant much to the wearer in this life. My girl chum and room-mate told me of a lady in town who made a study of "numerology," or the science of applying names and numbers to a given subject with happier results. In spite of curiosity I wished this lady with my chum and allowed me to "cast my name and birth number."

She told me many interesting things, among them that my name of "Helen Wills" was the one big drawback in my life.

"I don't like the letter 'H' for a girl with your birth number. They do not vibrate," she said. "You are something added with letter 'H' which does not belong in your name."

ASTONISHED AT REPLY

I was astonished at her reply. "Change your name, or, better still, I will cast a new name for you."

It was perfectly simple, after it was explained to me. I learned that every letter of the alphabet has its number, and that each number had its digit, these digits or numbers must vibrate to the birth path of a person. For instance, one might be named Mary, and having been born on the third day of September, 1901, the name is suited to her. But should her birth occur on the third of September, 1902, the name of Mary no longer suits her.

After much figuring, I was told that Bessie was my only salvation, and, more in fun than anything else, I half adopted the name of Hazel. My chum having spread the news around the school, I was soon addressed everywhere I went as "Bessie." It was strange at first, but I soon grew to like the name and, to my astonishment, I seemed to take a new interest in life. I had ideas of my own regarding my future, and the most astonishing thing of all was that I suffered from no more headaches!

more apply fit hundreds of other girls, but in my case it did not happen to vibrate with the number of my birth date.

MISS LOVE ARRIVES TODAY

An example of the system followed in Numerology is given by Miss Love, as follows:

Each letter in the alphabet has its numerical value as follows:

A B C D E F G H I J K L M
1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 1 2 3 4
N O P Q R S T U V W X Y Z
5 6 7 8 9 1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8

The numbers run from one to nine only as there are really but nine numerals, all other numbers being but combinations of two or more of the numerals from one to nine.

Every number or combination of numbers has a digit. The number 10 is a combination of 1 and 8, 94 is a combination of 9 and 4, etc. All compound numbers must be brought to a single unit. To illustrate: Take the number 47. Reducing it, we have: 4x7 equal 11 now, as 11 is still a union of 1 and 1 and a compound number, we again add and find that 1x1 equal 2: Hence, the digit value of 47 is 2 (4x7 equal 11:1x7 equal 2).

Taking the name HELEN.

H E L E N
8 5 3 5 5—34335

Reduce the number of the name to a digit or single unit and we have:

34335 or 8x5x3x5x5 equal 26—2x6 equal 8

We find that EIGHT is the digit of the name of Helen.

Looking up the numeral EIGHT we find that it is the scientific mental number. It is the number of business, of material achievement; of self-assertiveness and business success. It is classed as a vibration of accomplishment, attainment and acquirement.

"If we (which more having to do with the number eight—but unless the name digit VIBRATES with the BIRTH PATH or BIRTH DAY DIGIT, which is worked out in much the same manner, the person is named wrong.

EXAMPLE OF SYSTEM

Miss Love will arrive in Boston today

Cannibals and Huge Apes in Doyle's "Lost World"

A cannibal sentry on lookout watching the movements of the white explorers and adventurers camped on one of the branches of the Amazon. This story will be printed in the Traveler beginning next Monday, the same day that it will appear in film form at Tremont Temple.

Great Novel of South American Mystery and Adventure to Start Serially in Traveler Next Monday, Feb. 2

Huge apes, that show a cunning almost human, and wild men, cannibals, of South America, who are only a few degrees advanced in mentality beyond the animals, all figure largely in Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's great novel of mystery, adventure and romance, "The Lost World," which will be printed serially in the Traveler beginning Monday, Feb. 2, the same day it is shown in its screen form at Tremont Temple.

CANNIBALS ON TRAILS

The first scene reveals the adventurers in "The Lost World" encountered on that lofty plateau in South Africa, where life was just the same as it had been 100,000 centuries ago were not the only menace to the lives of the explorers, cannibals were on their trail day after day and many the stirring fight that occurred, although the natives were armed only with poisoned bows and arrows and could not stand up against modern rifles and automatics. From behind great trees, from the tops of cliffs and from every possible hiding place they struck at the white encroachers, doing their best to put an end to the invasion of their homes.

Of such thrilling adventures and scarce-believable escapes is "The Lost World" made up, and as it is written in Conan Doyle's always gripping and enthralling manner, it makes a book that is full of adventure and during dull moments can afford to miss. The first installment will be printed in the Traveler next Monday and the story will be continued daily. In order to be sure of not missing any of the installments, order the Traveler now, then you will run no risk of missing any of the [illegible]

...ost World's" Monsters Had Unbelievable Power

Two of the prehistoric monsters met with in Conan Doyle's "The Lost World," which starts in the Traveler next Monday, Feb. 2, at the same time it is being shown in film form at Tremont Temple.

Mammoths, in Traveler Serial Starting Monday, Could Pull Thirty Freight Cars and Make Kindling Wood of Houses

If the prehistoric monsters described in Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's "The Lost World," which is to be printed in the Boston Traveler be-years ago, and that it would take 40 butchers working three days to carve him up for food—if anyone wanted to eat him.

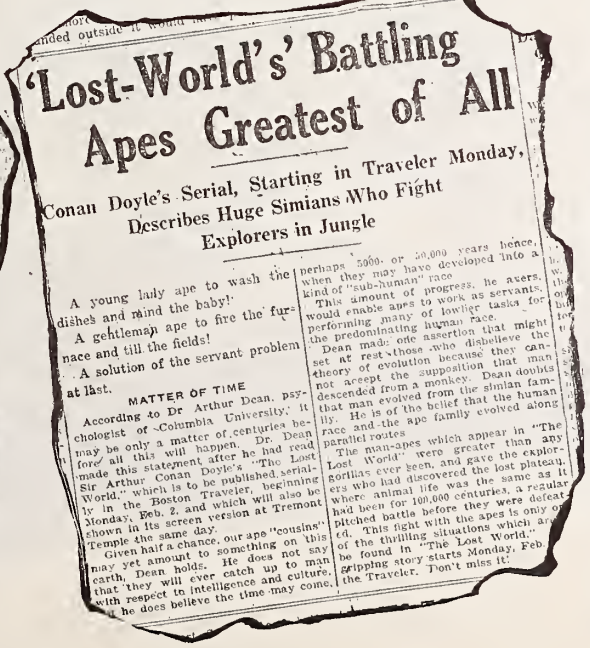
Not only were such monsters huge in size but they were [illegible] a hide like



'Lost-World's' Battling Apes Greatest of All

Conan Doyle's Serial, Starting in Traveler Monday, Describes Huge Simians Who Fight Explorers in Jungle

A young lady ape to wash the dishes and mind the baby!

A gentleman ape to fire the furnace and till the fields!

A solution of the servant problem at last.

MATTER OF TIME

According to Dr Arthur Dean, psychologist of Columbia University, it may be only a matter of centuries before all this will happen. Dr. Dean made this statement after he had read Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's "The Lost World," which is to be published serially in the Boston Traveler, beginning Monday, Feb. 2, and which will also be shown in its screen version at Tremont Temple the same day.

Given half a chance, our ape "cousins" may yet amount to something on this earth, Dean holds. He does not say that they will ever catch up to man with respect to intelligence and culture, he does believe the time may come, perhaps 5000, or 50,000 years hence, when they may have developed into a kind of "sub-human" race.

This amount of progress, he avers, would enable apes to work as servants, performing many of lowlier tasks for the predominating human race.

Dean made one assertion that might set at rest those who disbelieve the theory of evolution because they cannot accept the supposition that man descended from a monkey. Dean doubts that man evolved from the simian family. He is of the belief that the human race and the ape family evolved along parallel routes.

The man-apes which appear in "The Lost World" were greater than any gorillas ever seen, and gave the explorers who had discovered the lost plateau, where animal life was the same as it had been for 100,000 centuries, a regular pitched battle before they were defeated. This fight with the apes is only one of the thrilling situations which are to be found in "The Lost World," gripping story starts Monday, Feb. the Traveler. Don't miss it.

Front Page Stuff

A Feature That Breaks On the Front Page Is Surely a Feature

REMEMBER the old-time film press book that practically shouted on every page, "Rush to your newspaper editor with these stories! He will embrace you and hand you his check book! Rush!" What a lot of bunk! And how sore they used to make the real showman who knew that his local newspaper editor wasn't waiting with open arms and an aching desire to hand the front page over to the first mimeo purveyor to arrive.

Well, I know all that. And still I almost caught myself writing just as extravagant an opening to this page. Can you beat it?

I can't help it.

I don't suppose it is my place to wax enthusiastic, but here, in my opinion, is a feature to warm an editor's heart.

The feature has been devised by the exploitation department of Associated First National and is a test of the newspaper reader's powers of observation. I have seen it break for FRONT PAGE STUFF. The proof of the pudding is in the eating. It can be used as a simple newspaper feature, with the readers testing their own powers, and awaiting the answers on later days—or it can be made a contest. ONLY, IF YOUR NEWSPAPER EDITOR DECIDES TO MAKE IT A CONTEST, WITH PRIZE AWARDS, BE SURE THAT YOU OR THE EDITOR GETS IN TOUCH WITH YOUR LOCAL POSTMASTER. He will give you the rules of the Post Office Department in regard to contests and with his help you can prepare your "official conditions." It is an easy matter to be RIGHT on the Post Office regulations in the first place, and a difficult thing to get straightened out if you have stepped out on the wrong foot. And you don't want to be responsible for getting your editor into trouble. Especially as, in this case, the contest feature is not an absolute necessity—readers will follow it as a local interest feature with all the appeal of the "Inquiring Reporter" and "Inquiring Photographer" features now so popular with newspapers.

The idea is that, following the announcement I have reproduced below, the newspaper for a series of days asks questions about local points of interest. For example: "On what street corner in Detroit can you stand and see four large clocks?" Or—"Where, in this city, does a brass panel outside an office building mark a certain incident of importance in America's history?" Or—"What street in this city winds in its course so as to form a letter "U" crossing a single thoroughfare twice?"

Here's Your Feature—Ready Made

Do you know your own city? Do you know where each street begins and where it ends? Do you know the public buildings, their location, and what they look like?

COULD YOU GO AWAY FROM HERE FOR A YEAR AND RETURN TO FIND A CERTAIN LOCATION WITHOUT AN ADDRESS OR GUIDE?

DO YOU KNOW OUR CITY AND ITS PEOPLE, LIKE DR. CHALLENGER, SCIENTIFIC EXPLORER, KNEW THE TRAILS AND LANDMARKS LEADING TO THE "LOST WORLD"?

READ THE PROBLEM THAT DR. CHALLENGER HAD TO SOLVE AND THEN JOIN IN THE FASCINATING GAME DEVISED BY THIS PAPER:

THE PROBLEM OF "THE LOST WORLD"

In South America, along the Amazon, there was a vast territory as large as the map of Europe, as YET UNEXPLORED! Monsters of the prehistoric age and as large as houses were said to be still there and alive! Bones of these creatures had been discovered by scientists imbedded in the rocks of the North American continent (United States)—But other scientists had declared that these animals had been dead TEN MILLION YEARS! Still, Dr. Challenger had a clue! It was but a small sketchbook of an American artist, but he followed the trails and landmarks therein to the "Lost World"—He returned to civilization to be sneered at and mocked as an imposter. His reputation was at stake; but he had been there once and could go again. He did more. HE LED AN EXPEDITION TO THE "LOST WORLD" AND WAS ONLY GUIDED BY SIGNS AND LANDMARKS HE HAD OBSERVED ON HIS PREVIOUS VISIT.

That is the story of Dr. Challenger and "The Lost World"—Could YOU have done the same thing? CAN YOU OBSERVE AND STORE AWAY THE KNOWLEDGE YOU OBTAIN BY OBSERVATION FOR SOME FUTURE USE?

Try it! Join in this game of wits!

Some of the Scenes That Made Boston Gasp

STILLS cannot tell the tale on this picture—because there is something about actually getting the effect of REALITY to the thrills and gasps that a motionless photograph fails to bring. But the screen does it—Oh, boy!

Big Moments in One of the Year's Big Pictures

"Read It—

"READ It—See It!"—there's a phrase that has the ring of box-office money to it! If you could see it as I have for the past two weeks—on the sides of newspaper delivery wagons encountered all over Boston, on the billboards, and staring at me from the columns of newspapers, you would realize with what direct force it must hit Mr. and Mrs. Public. It seemed almost a command—"Read It—See It!"

The name of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle makes of "The Lost World" one of the distinctly outstanding newspaper serial bets of the year. Sir Arthur has a penchant for front page news values—from his Sherlock Holmes days down to his current psychic investigations. So, to the merit of his story-telling ability, there has always been added the strength of his news prominence, the fact that all readers, even those not ordinarily followers of fiction, want to know what Conan Doyle is saying.

In connection with the premiere the Boston Traveler, one of the city's leading papers, published the serialization, the first instalment appearing simultaneously with the opening of the picture's run. For two weeks previously the newspaper used every possible means to acquaint every man, woman and child in the Hub City with the coming

A. CONAN DOYLE'S
Great Novel
"The Lost World"
WILL BE PUBLISHED IN SERIAL FORM DAILY IN THE Boston Traveler
BEGINNING MONDAY, FEBRUARY SECOND
Illustrated with Scenes from the Film Version to Be Shown Same Date at TREMONT TEMPLE
"The Lost World" Is a Strange Blending of the Twentieth Century and the Jurassic Period of 10,000,000 Years Ago. The Masterful Pen of Doyle Will Take You on a Trip to a Magic Plateau in Unexplored South America Where Forms of Life Have Remained Unchanged for 100,000 Centuries.
The Boston Traveler Feels You Will Enjoy the Vicarious Thrill of Adventuring Among Prehistoric Dinosaurs Mightier Than Half a Dozen Elephants, and in the End, Returning to the Twentieth Century, the Lovers Find Their Happiness Back in London.
Sensational Discoveries in Recent Years of Fossil Remains of Prehistoric Life Have Greatly Stimulated Public Interest in What the World Was Like Millions of Years Ago. Doyle Gives Our Readers a Great Novel of MYSTERY, ROMANCE AND ADVENTURE in "The Lost World"
THE FIRST GENEROUS INSTALLMENT OF "THE WEIRDEST STORY EVER TOLD" BEGINS MONDAY, FEBRUARY SECOND in THE
Boston Traveler
Make Your Reservations Now from Your Newsdealer or Newsboy

THE LOST WORLD
BY SIR ARTHUR CONAN DO
Author of "The Refugees," "Sir Nigel," "The Adventures of Sherlock
BEGINNING MONDAY, FEBRUAR
WILL BE PUBLISHED DAILY IN SERIAL FORM I
Boston Trave
"A Story of the Past and Not of the Hereafter." "T World" Is Unlike Any Story You Have Ever Read.
Will Amaze You—Enthrall You—Entertain You
IT IS CHUCK FULL MYSTERY
ROMANCE
AND ADVENTUR
As Only A. Conan Doyle Could T
A masterful, strange blending of Twentieth Century and the Juras
Period of 10,000,000 years ag
Doyle leads you on a trip to magic plateau in unexplored Sou
America, where forms of life hav remained unchanged for 100,00
Centuries. You will enjoy the vica rious thrill of adventuring among prehistoric dinosaurs, mightier than half a dozen elephants, and in the end, returning to the 20th Century, the lovers find their happiness back in London.
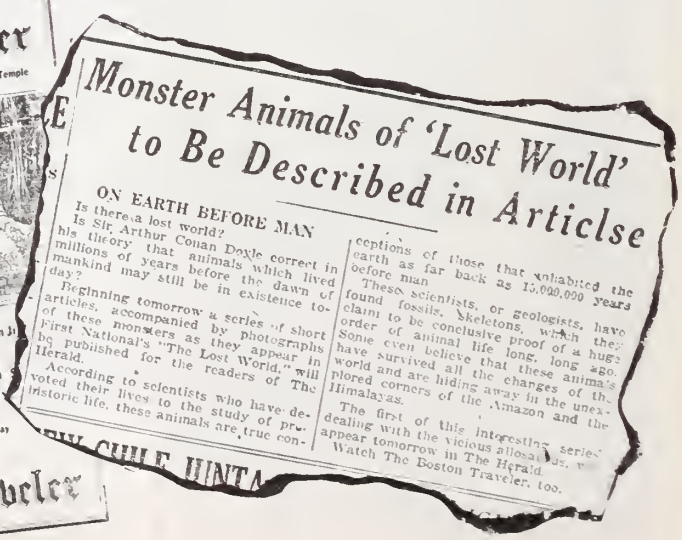
READ THIS THRILLING STORY
BEGINNING NEXT MONDAY, FEBRUARY 2nd, IN THE
Boston Traveler
Order Your Copy from Your Newsboy or Newsdealer
The LOST WORLD
CONAN DOYLE
Picture to Be Shown at
TREMONT TEMPLE

"The LOST WORLD"
By
A. CONAN DOYLE
Starts Monday in The
Boston Traveler
Illustrated with Photographs from the Photoplay Showing at Tremont Temple
A Story of Primitive Emotions in the South American J
More Thrilling Than Death—
More Poignant Than
It Will Amaze You—Enthrall You—Entertain
Be Sure and Start This Amazing Story Monday
in The
Boston Traveler



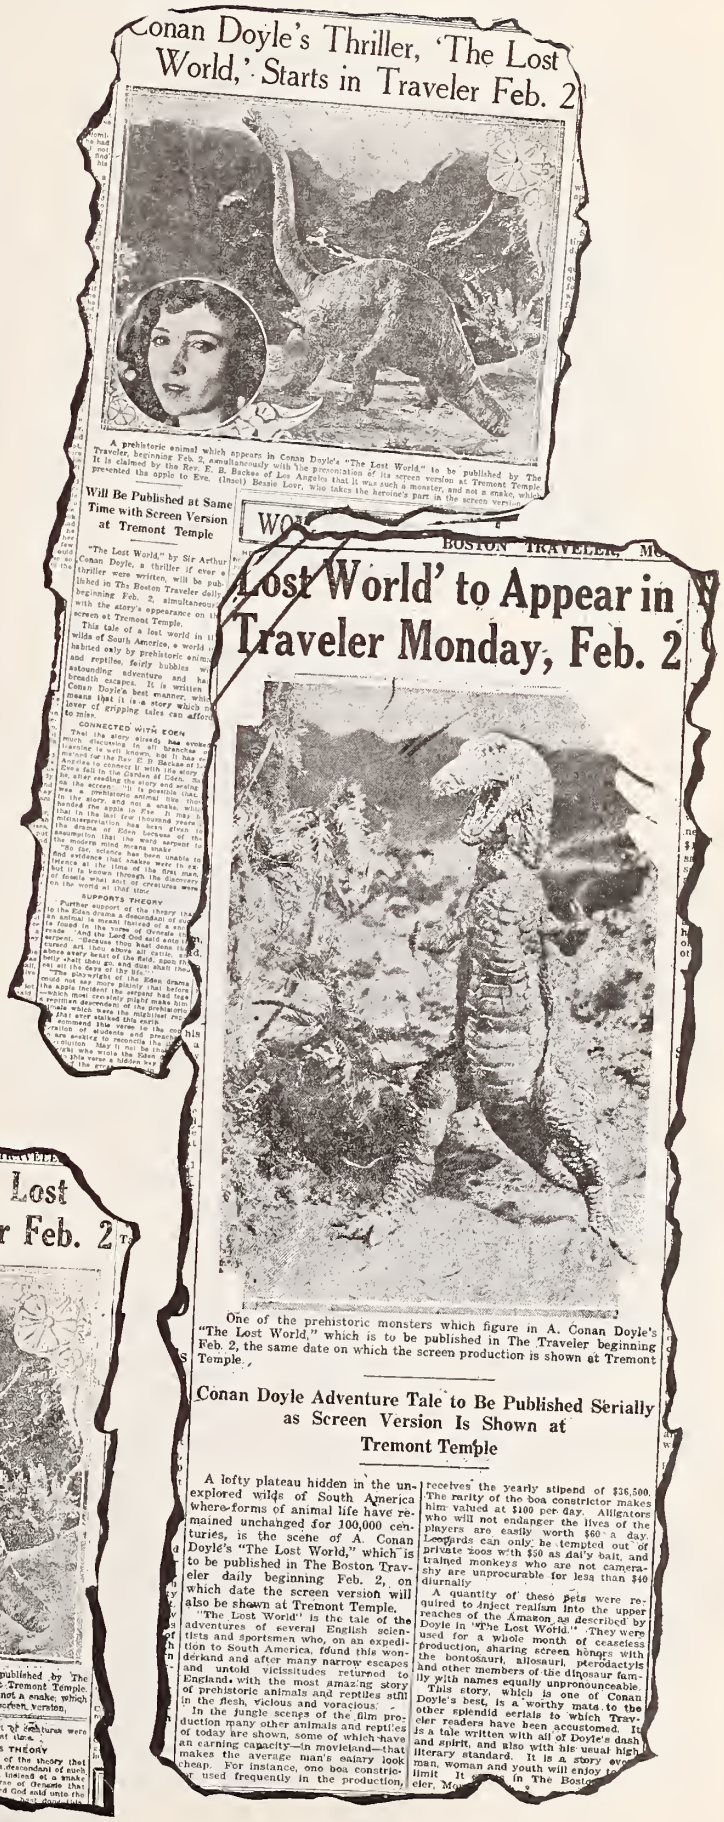
Monster Animals of 'Lost World' to Be Described in Articlse
ON EARTH BEFORE MAN
Is there a lost world?
Is Sir Arthur Conan Doyle correct in his theory that animals which lived millions of years before the dawn of mankind may still be in existence today?
Beginning tomorrow a series of short articles, accompanied by photographs of these monsters as they appear in First National's "The Lost World," will be published for the readers of The Herald.
According to scientists who have devoted their lives to the study of prehistoric life, these animals are true conceptions of those that inhabited the earth as far back as 15,000,000 years before man.
These scientists, or geologists, have found fossils, skeletons, which they claim to be conclusive proof of a huge order of animal life long, long ago. Some even believe that these animals have survived all the changes of the world and are hiding away in the unexplored corners of the Amazon and the Himalayas.
The first of this interesting series dealing with the vicious alligator, will appear tomorrow in The Herald.
Watch The Boston Traveler, too.

See It"

of the story—and the PICTURE. It was a tie-up of inestimable strength, and one that is available in almost every city—if you go after it.

Perhaps the work has already been done for you. From information at hand I feel safe in saying that the serial version of "The Lost World" will appear in an unprecedented number of newspapers covering every corner of the country. If, by any chance, it has not been announced for your city, when you begin to make your plans for "The Lost World" I would advise that you get in touch with Mark Kellogg, Advertising Manager, Associated First National Pictures, 383 Madison Avenue, New York City.

And when the story is announced—do as the Tremont Temple did in Boston—COOPERATE with the newspaper. Don't look for one-way favors. In Boston "snipes" saying "Read the story in The Boston Traveler" were placed on all posters, similar notices were inserted in the ads. This was neither demanded by the newspaper, nor promised it, but was volunteered as an evidence of the fact that picture folk believe in FIFTY-FIFTY co-operation. The result was a spirit of and energy on the newspaper's part that could never have been bought.



Conan Doyle's Thriller, 'The Lost World,' Starts in Traveler Feb. 2

A prehistoric animal which appears in Conan Doyle's "The Lost World," to be published by The Traveler, beginning Feb. 2, simultaneously with the presentation of its screen version at Tremont Temple. It is claimed by the Rev. F. B. Backus of Los Angeles that it was such a monster, and not a snake, which presented the apple to Eve. (Inset) Bessie Love, who takes the heroine's part in the screen version.

Will Be Published at Same Time with Screen Version at Tremont Temple

"The Lost World," by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, a thriller if ever a thriller were written, will be published in The Boston Traveler daily beginning Feb. 2, simultaneously with the story's appearance on the screen at Tremont Temple.

This tale of a lost world in the wilds of South America, a world inhabited only by prehistoric animals and reptiles, feirly bubbles with astounding adventure and breadth escapes. It is written in Conan Doyle's best manner, which means that it is a story which no lover of gripping tales can afford to miss.

CONNECTED WITH EDEN

That the story already has evoked much discussion in all branches of learning is well known, but it has remained for the Rev. F. B. Backus of Los Angeles to connect it with the story of Eden in the Garden of Eden. So far, after reading the story and seeing the screen version, it is possible that the prehistoric animal that figures in the story, and not a snake, which handed the apple to Eve. It may be that in the last few thousand years the interpretation has been given to the drama of Eden because of the assumption that the word serpent to the modern mind means snake. So far, science has been unable to find evidence that snakes were in existence at the time of the first man, but it is known through the discovery of fossils what sort of creatures were on the world at that time.

SUPPORTS THEORY

Further support of the theory that in the Eden drama a descendant of such an animal is meant instead of a snake is found in the verse of Genesis that reads: "And the Lord God said unto the serpent, 'Because thou hast done this thou art [illegible] above all cattle, and above every beast of the field; upon thy belly shalt thou go, and dust shalt thou eat all the days of thy life.'"

"The writer of the Eden drama would not say more plainly that before the apple incident the serpent had legs—which most certainly plainly makes him a reptilian descendant of the prehistoric [illegible] which were the mightiest of animals. I commend this verse to the consideration of students and preachers who are seeking to reconcile the Mosaic solution. May it not be that the writer who wrote the Eden story knew what he was writing about when he wrote this verse a hidden key to the [illegible]

BOSTON TRAVELER, Mo

'Lost World' to Appear in Traveler Monday, Feb. 2

One of the prehistoric monsters which figure in A. Conan Doyle's "The Lost World," which is to be published in The Traveler beginning Feb. 2, the same date on which the screen production is shown at Tremont Temple.

Conan Doyle Adventure Tale to Be Published Serially as Screen Version Is Shown at Tremont Temple

A lofty plateau hidden in the unexplored wilds of South America where forms of animal life have remained unchanged for 100,000 centuries, is the scene of A. Conan Doyle's "The Lost World," which is to be published in The Boston Traveler daily beginning Feb. 2, on which date the screen version will also be shown at Tremont Temple.

"The Lost World" is the tale of the adventures of several English scientists and sportsmen who, on an expedition to South America, found this wonderland and after many narrow escapes and untold vicissitudes returned to England with the most amazing story of prehistoric animals and reptiles still in the flesh, vicious and voracious.

In the jungle scenes of the film production many other animals and reptiles of today are shown, some of which have an earning capacity—in movieland—that makes the average man's salary look cheap. For instance, one boa constrictor used frequently in the production, receives the yearly stipend of $36,500. The rarity of the boa constrictor makes him valued at $100 per day. Alligators who will not endanger the lives of the players are easily worth $60 a day. Leopards can only be tempted out of private zoos with $50 as daily bait, and trained monkeys who are not camera-shy are unprocurable for less than $40 diurnally.

A quantity of these pets were required to inject realism into the upper reaches of the Amazon as described by Doyle in "The Lost World." They were used for a whole month of ceaseless production, sharing screen honors with the bontosauri, allosauri, pterodactyls and other members of the dinosaur family with names equally unpronounceable.

This story, which is one of Conan Doyle's best, is a worthy mate to the other splendid serials to which Traveler readers have been accustomed. It is a tale written with all of Doyle's dash and spirit, and also with his usual high literary standard. It is a story every man, woman and youth will enjoy to the limit. It starts in The Boston Traveler, Monday.

Right off the Reel

By ELEANOR VERY

COMING NEXT WEEK

Bessie Love and Lewis Stone in a scene from Conan Doyle's story "The Lost World," which will come to Boston next Monday in more ways than one—as a film at Tremont Temple, and as a serial story in the Traveler

Mystery Story, "The Lost World," Coming Next Week

HARD AT WORK

Conan Doyle's Thriller, 'The Lost World,' Starts in Traveler Feb. 2

A prehistoric animal which appears in Conan Doyle's "The Lost World," to be published by The Traveler, beginning Feb. 2, simultaneously with the presentation of its screen version at Tremont Temple. It is claimed by the Rev. F. B. Backus of Los Angeles that it was such a monster, and not a snake, which presented the apple to Eve. (Inset) Bessie Love, who takes the heroine's part in the screen version.

Will Be Published at Same Time with Screen Version at Tremont Temple

"The Lost World," by Sir Arthur [illegible]yle, a thriller if ever a

Conan Doyle's best manner, which means that it is a story which no lover of gripping tales can afford to miss.

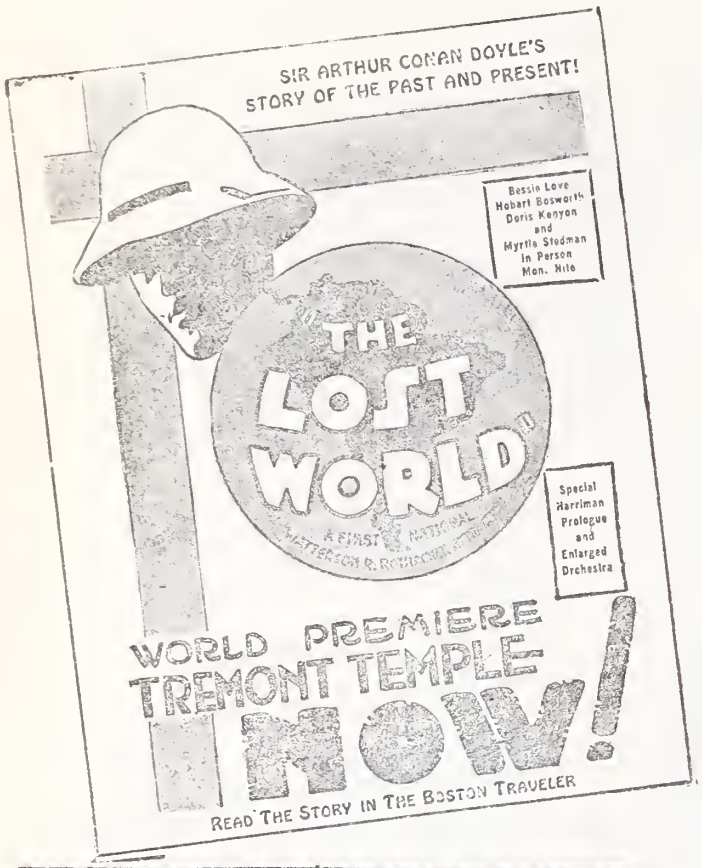
CONNECTED WITH EDEN

That the story already has evoked much discussion in all branches of learning is well known, but it has remained for the Rev. F. B. Backus of Los Angeles to connect it with the story

SUPPORTS THEORY

"Further support of the theory that in the Eden drama a descendant of such an animal is meant instead of a snake is found in the verse of Genesis that reads: "And the Lord God said unto the

Ad Copy That Sold Boston



TREMONT TEMPLE
Starting MON. FEB. 2
WORLD PREMIERE OF
THE LOST WORLD
A FIRST NATIONAL ATTRACTION
First National's picturization of Sir A. CONAN DOYLE'S fantastical masterpiece with WALLACE BEERY,
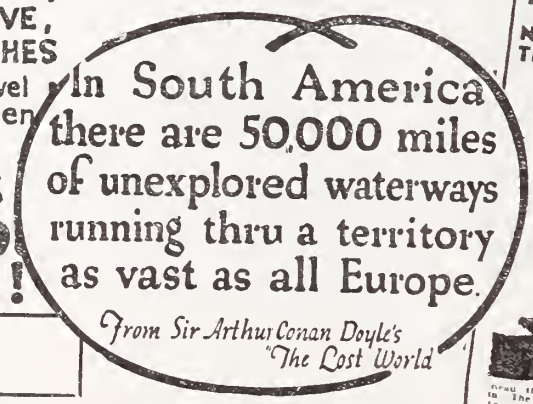
LEWIS STONE,
BESSIE LOVE,
LLOYD HUGHES
and most novel cast ever seen
SOMETHING NEW AT LAST!
MONSTERS AS BIG AS HOUSES TO MAKE YO GRIP YOUR SEAT!
"A STORY OF THE PAST AND NOT OF THE HEREAFTER"
READ THE STORY IN THE BOSTON TRAVELER!



In South America there are 50,000 miles of unexplored waterways running thru a territory as vast as all Europe.
From Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's "The Lost World"

The advertisements reproduced on the page herewith will give an idea of the campaign that preceded the world premiere of "The Lost World" in Boston on February 2nd.

They did the trick. They produced an opening night that was a "sell out" and was ninety-eight per cent cash. (This wasn't a New York premiere with all the seats except those of the critics occupied by friends and relatives.) They repeated the trick for the days following the opening, up until the day I am writing this, which is Thursday morning.

But after seeing the picture itself there is one suggestion I would make to the exhibitor who is going to play this picture later, and benefit by lessons learned in early engagements.

The picture is a "thriller"—it is the gasps and the amazement that make up the evening's entertainment. So, in looking over the ads reproduced herewith, those are the angles I would select on which to base my own campaign. If you promise them thrills that they never had before—you will deliver.

That closing sentence reminds me of the second suggestion that I would make. "The Lost World" is a freak. It is one of those pictures that come every now and then and defy comparison. It cannot be compared to this, you can't say it is "better than that," or "almost as good as the other one."

It is different. It is in a class by itself. It may not be the type of picture your audiences would want to see seven nights a week, nor fifty-two weeks a year. But it is the type of picture that produces this situation: If Miss Mary Smith hasn't seen it, and Miss Jones tells her all about its wonders and thrills—Miss Smith is going to be gol darned sore if it has left town and she can't see it.

It is like living in a small town when the circus comes. You can't let the circus leave town without seeing it.

Tell 'Em It Is "DIFFERENT"

You have a pretty good idea of what circuses are like—but somehow or other you don't "belong" if your friend says, "Did you see the feller do the Loop the Loop," and you have to admit that you did not see it.

They won't want to admit that they didn't see it. And if they see it—they'll want to talk about it.

So—if I were you—I would put every ounce of thought into getting the advertising angle that conveyed the idea: "When Everyone Else Is Talking About It You Won't Want to Admit That You Didn't See It."

Get the idea? You know your own city, and how best to do it. But get the idea over: "You can miss many pictures and just miss another love story, but if you miss 'The Lost World' you will have missed the picture they will all be talking about for years to come."

And a final thought.

Though the awe-inspiring prehistoric monsters are the punch of "The Lost World"—don't overplay them in the way of illustration in your ad. copy, with the consequent danger of having readers forget that there are human players in the picture, and human interest in the story. Use photos of Bessie Love, Lewis Stone, Wallace Beery, and the other stars prominently and in combination with your "thrill" talk, for they play a real part and a great part in the entertainment afforded the spectator. The audience will go away saying "How did they do it?"—referring to the mastodons—but picture-going folks would never have enjoyed the evening so well had there not been the suspense of watching real human beings in truly terrifying situations, and unfolding a delightful little story. Keep that in mind and don't let your enthusiasm over the massive effects lead you to the point where you might keep away some of the fan money that would have responded to the real names in the cast and the expectation of seeing a real love story.

HERE THEY ARE!
A World of New Thrills—
New Perils—
New Adventures—
Made for Your Amazement.
TRICERATOPS
SPINED TRICERATOPS FIGHTING AN ALLOSAURUS
"BULL" MONTANA
BRONTOSAURUS
SPINED TRICERATOPS
The Above Photographs Taken from Scenes of the Photoplay to Be Shown Same Date at TREMONT TEMPLE
IN
SIR A. CONAN DOYLE'S
GREAT STORY
"The Lost World"
You will want to read this great novel as only A. Conan Doyle could write it. A story of primitive emotions in the South American jungle. It will amaze you—enthrall you—entertain you.
First Generous Instalment Begins (Next) Monday
in the
Boston Traveler
A STORY OF THE PAST AND NOT OF THE HEREAFTER
Order Your Boston Traveler Reserved Today by Your Newsboy or Newsdealer

Diplodocus, Monster Measuring 87 Feet, Described in 'Lost World'
THE DIPLODOCUS
(As pictured in First National's "The Lost World," which will appear in story form exclusively in The Boston Traveler, starting Feb. 2.)
More commonly identified with his brother, the Morosaurus (Stupid Lizard), the Diplodocus was an amphibious monster of the Lower Cretaceous period (between the Jurassic and the manchic) of the Mesozoic age, at 000,000 years ago. It was of the Brontosaurus type, but exceeded it in length.
It measured upwards of 87 feet and belonged to the older of the two principal dinosaur faunas. It had five toes on each foot and blunt turtle-like claws, one on the fore foot and three on the hind foot. It was herbivorous and unarmored, an easy prey for its horned and bony contemporaries.
(Tomorrow—The Pterodactyl)

A World Premiere Covered by the Editor

Hitch To the Cross-Word Craze

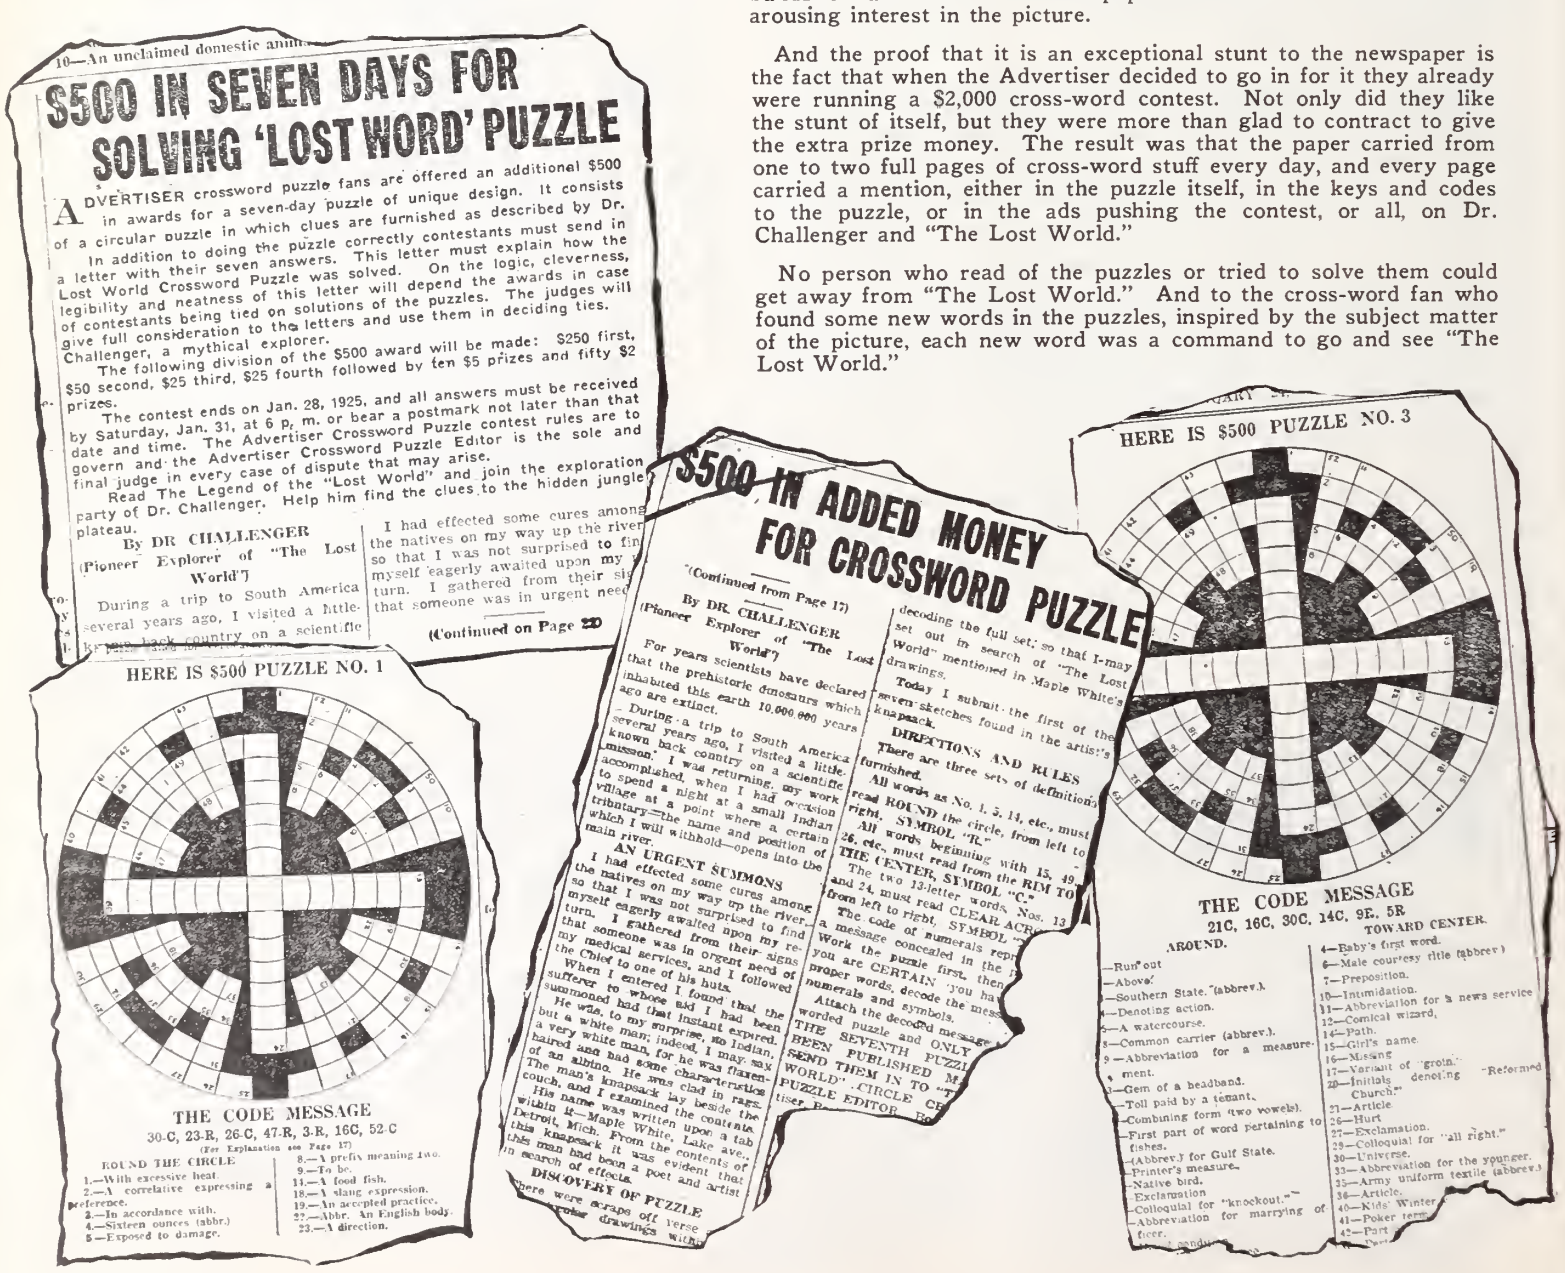
Here's a Chance To Do It With Several Different Angles

NO single idea or fad has ever caught on with the general public to the same extent as has the cross-word craze—and never has a popular idea been more profitably hooked to sell theatre seats than it was for "The Lost World" in Boston. And the beauty of it all is that the same stunt that was worked by First National with the Boston Advertiser can be harnessed by any exhibitor—small town or big city—to his own newspaper.

I have seen all kinds of ideas "sold" to newspapers—have seen them succeed, and have seen them flop. But here is one that actually builds circulation for the newspaper at the same time that it is arousing interest in the picture.

And the proof that it is an exceptional stunt to the newspaper is the fact that when the Advertiser decided to go in for it they already were running a $2,000 cross-word contest. Not only did they like the stunt of itself, but they were more than glad to contract to give the extra prize money. The result was that the paper carried from one to two full pages of cross-word stuff every day, and every page carried a mention, either in the puzzle itself, in the keys and codes to the puzzle, or in the ads pushing the contest, or all, on Dr. Challenger and "The Lost World."

No person who read of the puzzles or tried to solve them could get away from "The Lost World." And to the cross-word fan who found some new words in the puzzles, inspired by the subject matter of the picture, each new word was a command to go and see "The Lost World."



10—An unclaimed domestic animal
$500 IN SEVEN DAYS FOR SOLVING 'LOST WORD' PUZZLE
ADVERTISER crossword puzzle fans are offered an additional $500 in awards for a seven-day puzzle of unique design. It consists of a circular puzzle in which clues are furnished as described by Dr. Challenger, a mythical explorer.
In addition to doing the puzzle correctly contestants must send in a letter with their seven answers. This letter must explain how the Lost World Crossword Puzzle was solved. On the logic, cleverness, legibility and neatness of this letter will depend the awards in case of contestants being tied on solutions of the puzzles. The judges will give full consideration to the letters and use them in deciding ties.
The following division of the $500 award will be made: $250 first, $50 second, $25 third, $25 fourth followed by ten $5 prizes and fifty $2 prizes.
The contest ends on Jan. 28, 1925, and all answers must be received by Saturday, Jan. 31, at 6 p. m. or bear a postmark not later than that date and time. The Advertiser Crossword Puzzle contest rules are to govern and the Advertiser Crossword Puzzle Editor is the sole and final judge in every case of dispute that may arise.
Read The Legend of the "Lost World" and join the exploration party of Dr. Challenger. Help him find the clues to the hidden jungle plateau.
By DR CHALLENGER
(Pioneer Explorer of "The Lost World")
During a trip to South America several years ago, I visited a little-
I had effected some cures among the natives on my way up the river so that I was not surprised to find myself eagerly awaited upon my turn. I gathered from their signs that someone was in urgent need
(Continued on Page 20)
HERE IS $500 PUZZLE NO. 1
THE CODE MESSAGE
30-C, 23-R, 26-C, 47-R, 3-R, 16C, 52-C
(For Explanation see Page 17)
ROUND THE CIRCLE
1.—With excessive heat.
2.—A correlative expressing a preference.
3.—In accordance with.
4.—Sixteen ounces (abbr.)
5—Exposed to damage.
8.—A prefix meaning two.
9.—To be.
11.—A food fish.
18.—A slang expression.
19.—An accepted practice.
22.—Abbr. An English body.
23.—A direction.
$500 IN ADDED MONEY FOR CROSSWORD PUZZLE
(Continued from Page 17)
By DR. CHALLENGER
(Pioneer Explorer of "The Lost World")
For years scientists have declared that the prehistoric dinosaurs which inhabited this earth 10,000,000 years ago are extinct.
During a trip to South America several years ago, I visited a little-known back country on a scientific mission. I was returning, my work accomplished, when I had occasion to spend a night at a small Indian village at a point where a certain tributary—the name and position of which I will withhold—opens into the main river.
AN URGENT SUMMONS
I had effected some cures among the natives on my way up the river, so that I was not surprised to find myself eagerly awaited upon my return. I gathered from their signs that someone was in urgent need of my medical services, and I followed the Chief to one of his huts.
When I entered I found that the sufferer to whose aid I had been summoned had that instant expired.
He was, to my surprise, no Indian, but a white man; indeed, I may say a very white man, for he was flaxen-haired and had some characteristics of an albino. He was clad in rags. The man's knapsack lay beside the couch, and I examined the contents. His name was written upon a tab within it—Maple White, Lake ave., Detroit, Mich. From the contents of this knapsack it was evident that this man had been a poet and artist in search of effects.
DISCOVERY OF PUZZLE
There were scraps of verse ... colour drawings with decoding the full set; so that I may set out in search of "The Lost World" mentioned in Maple White's drawings.
Today I submit the first of the seven sketches found in the artist's knapsack.
DIRECTIONS AND RULES
There are three sets of definitions furnished.
All words as No. 1, 5, 14, etc., must read ROUND the circle, from left to right. SYMBOL "R."
All words beginning with 15, 49, 26, etc., must read from the RIM TO THE CENTER, SYMBOL "C."
The two 13-letter words, Nos. 13 and 24, must read CLEAR ACR... from left to right. SYMBOL "..."
The code of numerals repr... a message concealed in the ...
Work the puzzle first, then ... you are CERTAIN you ha... proper words, decode the mess... numerals and symbols.
Attach the decoded message ... worded puzzle and ONLY ... THE SEVENTH PUZZL... BEEN PUBLISHED M... SEND THEM IN TO "T... WORLD" CIRCLE CE... PUZZLE EDITOR, B...
HERE IS $500 PUZZLE NO. 3
THE CODE MESSAGE
21C, 16C, 30C, 14C, 9E., 5R
TOWARD CENTER.
AROUND.
—Run out
—Above.
—Southern State. (abbrev.).
—Denoting action.
—A watercourse.
—Common carrier (abbrev.).
—Abbreviation for a measurement.
—Gem of a headband.
—Toll paid by a tenant.
—Combining form (two vowels).
—First part of word pertaining to fishes.
—(Abbrev.) for Gulf State.
—Printer's measure.
—Native bird.
—Exclamation
—Colloquial for "knockout."
—Abbreviation for marrying of ficer.
4—Baby's first word.
6—Male courtesy title (abbrev.)
7—Preposition.
10—Intimidation.
11—Abbreviation for a news service
12—Comical wizard.
14—Path.
15—Girl's name.
16—Messenger
17—Variant of "groin."
20—Initials denoting Reformed Church."
21—Article
26—Hurt
27—Exclamation.
28—Colloquial for "all right."
30—Universe.
33—Abbreviation for the younger.
35—Army uniform textile (abbrev.)
36—Article.
40—Kids' Winter
41—Poker term
42—Part

All of which is all very well from the exhibitor's point of view, but how about the newspaper, you ask? How about the fact that you've been going to the newspaper with so-called real ideas for years past—and getting only so much as they thought they had to give you to keep you happy?

Here's the answer: There's one thing a newspaper—any newspaper—needs more than anything else. Circulation. Cross-words will get it for your newspaper man. He knows that, because he probably already is paying money to some newspaper syndicate to furnish him with cross-word puzzles. In other words, he is paying for something that you can GIVE him.

With this particular idea you can go to your newspaper man and offer him a series of puzzles differing greatly from the average—differing in shape, appearance and in general construction. You can offer him a really constructive circulation builder. And when you can offer a newspaper something like that—you are offering something that sells itself, as well as something that makes a needed friend for future cooperative dealings.

One excellent feature of the cross-word idea as worked out by the First National experts is the fact that, even in the event that you cannot sell it to any of your local newspapers (which is very unlikely) you can conduct the contest on your own. This you can do either by having the puzzles printed and distributed as throw-aways, by using them in your programs in advance of the showing, or in any other such manner as may suggest itself.

By all means it is distinctly up to you to use the cross-word idea. Millions of folks are ardent cross-word fans, and every one of those millions is a potential customer. All you have to do is to get a cross-word fan started on the puzzles—a job that should be about as difficult as getting a duck to swim—and leave it to the puzzles and their solutions themselves to sell the fans the idea of spending money to see the picture.

I've saved the big idea for the finish. You will notice that these cross-word puzzles are really "Circle Word Puzzles." Get the idea? A two-way kick? First, because it gives you a chance to tell one editor, "Here's something different, not the same as all the papers are running." That's good. Second, because if you follow the right plan all your "Lost World" name plates will be in globe shape. Which means a community of thought between the "Lost World" circular puzzles and the "Lost World" circular ads. Not a million dollar idea but —at least—another bit of "using every possible angle and opportunity."

ERTISER TELEPHONE MA...

$500 EXTRA, 7 DAYS

NEW YEAR'S PUZZLE SERIES NO. 28

PUZZLE N. 7 IN $500 SERIES

PAGE

$500 IN ADDED MONEY FOR CROSSWORD PUZZLE

(Continued from Page Eight)

final judge in every case of dispute that may arise.

Read The Legend of the "Lost World" and join the exploration party of Dr. Challenger. Help him find the clues to the hidden jungle plateau.

By DR CHALLENGER

(Pioneer Explorer of "The Lost World")

During a trip to South America several years ago, I visited a little-known back country on a scientific mission.

In a native village I arrived just as a white died. He was clad in rags. The man's knapsack lay beside the couch, and I examined the contents within it—Maple White, Lake ave., Detroit, Mich.

There were scraps off verse and seven circular drawings within a sketchbook.

I examined these in detail. They were odd, even for an artist's sketches. The drawings were black and white squares within a circle, the white squares bearing numerals and below each circle a code of numerals.

Later, upon my return to civilization, I decoded some of these drawings and am now asking the help of the ADVERTISER READERS in decoding the full set, so that I may find out in search of "The Lost World" mentioned in Maple White's drawings.

Today I submit the fifth of the seven sketches found in the artist's knapsack.

DIRECTIONS AND RULES

There are three sets of definitions furnished.

All words as No. 1, 5, 14, etc., must read ROUND the circle, from left to right. SYMBOL "R."

All words beginning with 15, 49, 26, etc., must read from the RIM TO THE CENTER, SYMBOL "C."

The two 13-letter words, Nos. 13 and 24, must read CLEAR ACROSS, from left to right. SYMBOL "X."

The code of numerals represents a message concealed in the puzzle. Work the puzzle first, then when you are CERTAIN you have the proper words, decode the message of numerals and symbols.

Attach the decoded message to the worded puzzle and ONLY AFTER THE SEVENTH PUZZLE HAS BEEN PUBLISHED MAY YOU SEND THEM IN TO "THE LOST WORLD" CIRCLE CROSSWORD PUZZLE EDITOR, Boston Advertiser, Boston, Mass.

HERE IS $500 PUZZLE NO. 3

THE CODE MESSAGE

43-C, 10-C, 5-R, 45-C.

AROUND

1—One who encroaches.
2—Postscript (abbrev.).
3—Note of scale.
4—Nickname for a countryman.
5—Passage or route.
8—Chemical symbol for erbium.
9—Alternative meaning whether.
13—To commit.
14—To send away.
18—Toward.
19—Rescind.
22—Abbrev. for Yukon territory.
23—You and I.
25—Actuality.
31—A commissioned officer (abbrev.)
32—Act.
33—Baseball position (abbrev.)
striking together.
...brev. for Empire State.
...niation.
...of communications.
...for the display of Royal O...
12—Abbrev. for year.
14—Town in New Hampshire.
15—A stride.
16—A small particle.
17—What we say of bread w... it gets old.
20—Lavish affection on.
21—Uncooked.
26—An urchin (Myth.)
27—Near.
28—Initials of a common
30—State of being young.
33—A Canadian railroad
35—Possessive of I.
36—Abbrev. for company
40—Bathes in warmth.
41—Chafe or te Yex.
42—A fountain.
43—To drive up to or
45—Body of water.
49—Initials of a B... school.
50—Measure of type.
51—Note...
53—...

$500 IN SEVEN DAYS FOR SOLVING 'LOST WORLD' PUZZLE

ADVERTISER crossword puzzle fans are offered an additional $500 in awards for a seven-day puzzle of unique design. It consists of a circular puzzle in which clues are furnished as described by Dr. Challenger, a mythical explorer.

In addition to doing the puzzle correctly contestants must send in a letter with their seven answers. This letter must explain how the Lost World Crossword Puzzle was solved. On the logic, cleverness, legibility and neatness of this letter will depend the awards in case of contestants being tied on solutions of the puzzles. The judges will give full consideration to the letters and use them in deciding ties.

The following division of the $500 award will be made: $250 first, $50 second, $25 third, $25 fourth followed by ten $5 prizes and fifty $2 prizes.

The contest ends on Jan. 28, 1925, and all answers must be received by Saturday, Jan. 31, at 6 p. m. or bear a postmark not later than that date and time. The Advertiser Crossw... govern and the Advertiser Crossword... final judge in every case of dispute th...

Read The Legend of the "Lost W... party of Dr. Challenger. Help him fin... plateau.

By DR CHALLENGER

(Pioneer Explorer of "The Lost ... World")

During a trip to South America several years ago, I visited a little-known back country on a scientific mission.

In a native village I arrived just as a white died. He was clad in rags. The man's knapsack lay beside the couch, and I examined the contents.

$500 IN ADDED MONEY FOR CROSSWORD PUZZLE

(Continued from Page 17)

my medical services, and I followed the Chief to one of his huts. When I entered I found that the sufferer, whose aid I had been summoned had that instant expired. He was, to my surprise, no Indian, but a white man, for he was flaxen-haired and had some characteristics of an albino. He was clad in rags. The man's knapsack lay beside the couch, and I examined the contents. His name was written upon a tab within it—Maple White, Lake ave., Detroit, Mich.

There were scraps off verse and seven circular drawings within a sketchbook.

I examined these in detail. They were odd, even for an artist's sketches. The drawings were black and white squares within a circle, the white squares bearing numerals and below each circle a code of numerals.

Later, upon my return to civilization, I decoded some of these drawings and am now asking the help of the ADVERTISER READERS in decoding the full set, so that I ... out in search of "The Lost World" mentioned in Maple White's drawings.

Today I submit the second of the seven sketches found in the artist's knapsack.

DIRECTIONS AND RULES

There are three sets of definitions furnished.

All words as No. 1, 5, 14, etc., must read ROUND the circle, from left to right. SYMBOL "R."

All words beginning with 15, 49, 26, etc., must read from the RIM TO THE CENTER, SYMBOL "C."

The two 13-letter words, Nos. 13 and 24, must read CLEAR ACROSS, from left to right. SYMBOL "X."

The code of numerals represents a message concealed in the puzzle. Work the puzzle first, then when you are CERTAIN you have the proper words, decode the message of numerals and symbols.

Attach the decoded message to the worded puzzle and ONLY AFTER THE SEVENTH PUZZLE HAS BEEN PUBLISHED MAY YOU SEND THEM IN TO "THE LOST WORLD" CIRCLE CROSSWORD PUZZLE EDITOR, Boston Advertiser, Boston, Mass.

...nd 8

$500 IN SEVEN DAYS FOR SOLVING 'LOST WORLD' PUZZLE

ADVERTISER crossword puzzle fans are offered an additional $500 in awards for a seven-day puzzle of unique design. It consists of a circular puzzle in which clues are furnished as described by Dr. Challenger, a mythical explorer.

In addition to doing the puzzle correctly contestants must send in a letter with their seven answers. This letter must explain how the Lost World Crossword Puzzle was solved. On the logic, cleverness, legibility and neatness of this letter will depend the awards in case of contestants being tied on solutions of the puzzles. The judges will give full consideration to the letters and use them in deciding ties.

The following division of the $500 award will be made: $250 first, $50 second, $25 third, $25 fourth followed by ten $5 prizes and fifty $2 prizes.

Readers are urged to watch Tuesday's Advertiser for important news on this contest.

The contest ends on Jan. 28, 1925, and all answers must be received by Saturday, Jan. 31, at 6 p. m. or bear a postmark not later than that date and time. The Advertiser Crossword Puzzle contest rules are to govern and the Advertiser Crossword Puzzle Editor is the sole and

(Continued on Page 20)

Start Early—It Means Money For You!

TAKE this thought away with you as you conclude the story of the advance campaign and premiere performance of "The Lost World" in Boston: This First National-Watterson Rothacker production was launched in Boston just as any key city exhibitor could present it. There was no flood of "home office money"—no avalanche of publicity and exploitation representatives and home office executives. While the opening was under the control of the home office through Mark Kellogg, advertising manager, and the immediate direction of Allen Glenn, exploitation manager, First National sought in every way to make it a natural, and not a "forced" test of the production. This is important—I would not feel that I was helping exhibitors in any way if I were telling of a New York campaign that cost thirty thousand dollars in hopes of getting fifteen thousand at the box office. . . . All that First National did was to START EARLY—and I leave that parting word with you. It means money.

(Continued from page 663)

ful progress which the motion picture art has made in the past few years they will certainly appreciate 'The Lost World.' "

Then we turn to the Boston Traveler, which opens its review with the words, "A brilliant opening took place last evening at the Tremont Temple." But now we are beginning to find trouble, for the quantity of adjectives is limited and the reviewer has to use the same ones that the previous critics have employed. Doesn't this sound familiar: "The picture is marvelous and amazing . . . a sheer novelty, one of the most original moving pictures that has ever been presented."

The Traveler gave all but an inch of an entire column to the review so I will have to skip through and look for words. Again they are the same ones that I have found in the other papers: "fearful adventures," "holds the interest tense," "extremely well made," "full of humor," "not forced comedy," "it is believable that it took seven years in preparation and making," and—oh, shucks, why go on with all this repetition?

But here is a Traveler sentence that I must give you:

"As in 'The Covered Wagon' when nothing seems to matter so much as that those pioneers should win through to Oregon, the spectator of 'The Lost World' roots fiercely for these explorers, wants with all his heart to see them return victorious to London. And when they do, bringing with them their trophy, a live brontosaurus, it's glorious."

Gosh, I've got to rush through this or the page will be filled up and I won't have given you all the papers in my list. So I'll just give a sentence from The Telegram that tells its whole story: " 'The Lost World' stands to become the leading picture of 1925." Don't need any more from The Telegram, do we?

Let's see what The Boston Herald has to say: " 'Made for your amazement!' is the slogan on the program, and never was a more spectacular and amazing picture presented." And then this: "This scene staggers the imagination. We have seen seas open and shut, we have seen flying carpets and houses; these things have been at least partly explained to us, but how a naturally moving animal as big as a ship could chase real people down a real street and apparently break through a real bridge is too much for us."

The revered Boston Post calls on ten point for an opening paragraph to declare: "It seems as if the millenium in film novelty has been reached." After which introduction Prunella Hall, the critic, uses for her favorite word "thrilling"—a relief from the "amazing and marvelous" of the other papers.

But I can't close this resume of the Boston's reviews without confessing that in one paper I found a bit of complaint. Honest. And here it is, from The Globe, "A genuine thriller, almost TOO MANY THRILLS."

Did you ever expect to see the day when you'd read that a picture was apt to give your audience TOO MANY thrills?

Neither did I.

EXHIBITORS' NEWS AND VIEWS

EDITED BY SUMNER SMITH

Cohoes, N. Y., Fire Loss Big; Buettner Will Build Again

Undismayed by the fire of two or three weeks ago, which totally destroyed the Strand Theatre in Mechanicsville, N. Y., Louis Buettner of Cohoes, president of the company which operated the house, announces that a bigger and better Strand will be built at once and that the city, instead of being the loser, will really be a gainer. Hardly had the ruins cooled before Mr. Buettner and his associates were in consultation with an architect who is now busy with the plans for a 1,100-seat house that will be built upon the same site and for which ground will be broken as soon as the weather permits. Workmen are already engaged in clearing away the ruins and within a week or two it is expected that the insurance companies will adjust the loss. While in Albany the other day Mr. Buettner stated that the house was valued at $118,000, and that even if the full amount of the insurance, amounting to $85,000, is paid, the company will be a considerable loser.

Back to nature is the slogan of Nate Robbins and Rae Candee of Utica. What does it matter if the mercury ranges far below the zero mark? The two spent a portion of last week at the Robbins camp in the Adirondacks, enjoying the snowshoeing and returning home with reddened faces and appetites that threatened destruction to every restaurant in Utica.

The Albany Zone committee has moved into its new headquarters in the Mark Strand Building. Exhibitors throughout the district are remitting in considerable numbers and many are also taking advantage of the service being given. Al Bothner, formely of Troy, now manager of Smalley's house in Mohawk, was one of the first to utilize the committee, telephoning the other day for paper and other things needed for his show. Others have sent word in for a list of tax-free music. There is some talk of having the committee meet once a month instead of at longer intervals. Each member of the Zone is to receive a membership card in a black leather case.

Uly S. Hill, managing-director of the Strand group of theatres in this section, will never again live in a city; that is, if he has anything to say about it, and the chances are that he will. Although Mr. Hill manages theatres in both Albany and Troy, he resides at West Sandlake, some ten miles or so outside of Troy. The house was built many years ago and Mr. Hill and his family are as snug as the proverbial "bug in a rug."

There was a time when Jake Rosenthal of the Rose Theatre in Troy was as punctual as the clock in reaching his house at 9 a. m. Now it's along toward noon when Jake shows up, looking a bit sleepy-eyed. Radio is the answer. Mr. Rosenthal, however, is lucky in having children who help him out. As a rule, his daughter Cecilia is at the ticket office, but last week she was sick with a cold and Mr. Rosenthal's son was on the job.

The Star at Newport has changed hands, H. B. Olds selling out to Schultz and Wright. Instead of running films on Saturday night, the new owners are staging basketball games that evening and running films on Wednesday and Friday nights.

Harry Lazarus, who formerly ran the Pine Hills Theatre in Albany and later moved to Kingston where he has been operating a house for two years, is planning to construct a new theatre that will be one of the largest and handsomest in Ulster County.

Up in Philadelphia there is an exhibitor by the name of D. C. Aldrich, who attracted a lot of attention last summer by allowing his patrons to first see the show and then pay what they thought it was worth as they left the theatre. He has discontinued the practice, but is branching out and will shortly open a theatre in Evans Mills.

Bowlers from the Troy Theatre are again bowling a lusty ball. A team consisting of Walter Roberts, Ben Stern, John Gamble, Ernest Burleigh and Fred Anderson stacked against the Elks Five last week and walked off with first honors.

Jacob Elias of the Corn Hill Theatre in Utica doesn't depend on his own good judgment in buying pictures. He makes it a family proposition, or, at least, so declare film salesmen. Jacob passes on a picture, so does his wife, and then right down the line, including the son. Judging from the way his pictures please the crowds, his scheme is not such a bad one after all.

Exhibitors in this section shivered and shook during the past week, the theatres experiencing one of the toughest six-day periods in many a year. If you don't believe it, ask Mrs. G. H. Brown of the New Theatre in Old Forge, who reported 50 below, or Alec Papayanakos of Potsdam, who tried to do business with the mercury hitting 48 below, or Bill Benton, with houses in Saratoga and Plattsburg, where the mercury almost vanished, or Dave Seymour of Saranac Lake, with 38 below. And then not satisfied with this, the weather man put on a sketch last Thursday night that blocked trolleys and railroad trains in all the larger cities as a blizzard kept everyone indoors.

Bill Smalley is at it again. Finding everyone in Sidney just plain "nuts" over crossword puzzles, Mr. Smalley is now offering $5 for the first solution handed in to a crossword puzzle printed on the back of his program, and two tickets for the next 100 persons submitting correct solutions, with the provision, however, that the winners be in the theatre at the time the answers are read.

Mrs. I. M. Arquette of Parishville has closed her house for the winter, except for an occasional picture. At the present time Parishville is buried beneath a four-foot blanket of snow.

Boys are believed to be responsible for the loss of several reels from theatres in Albany, Schenectady, Troy and Cohoes. The

(Continued on next page)

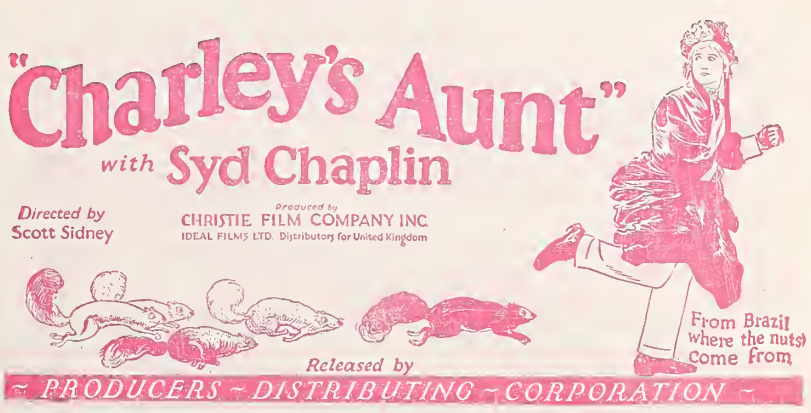
Albany Wise Cracks

Tony Veiller of the Lincoln Theatre in Troy received a letter last week from a woman who had heard him talk over the radio and wanted his advice in regard to writing scenarios that would be acceptable. If Tony knew the answer, he probably would, with his newspaper training, not be managing a house.

There is a pretty good story going the rounds of Troy, giving the reason why Mrs. Walter Roberts, wife of the manager of the Troy Theatre, postponed her trip to New York City. It seems that Mrs. Roberts was considerably worried as to just what might happen to her husband when he was initiated into the Elks, so she decided to wait until the event happened. Upon seeing her husband alive and well, she packed her bag and is now spending a few days with relatives in the metropolis.

"Just a minute" is a favorite expression with C. L. Deyo, a well known exhibitor in Schoharie. Film salesmen declare that he uses it every five minutes or so, but that the minute, especially when he doesn't want to buy, sometimes stretches into a good half hour.

Every item of news that you read in this department about exhibitors, many of whom you probably know or have heard of, is planned to foster the spirit of good fellowship, the get-together idea. So is the dependable material that appears in Straight From the Shoulder reports. You can derive interest from News and Views; you can get much of practical booking benefit from Straight From the Shoulder. And you can help, too, by sending your reports to the latter department.



Scene from "Classmates," the Richard Barthelmess success, a First National picture, showing a detail of the U. S. military academy at West Point, N. Y.

News from Buffalo, N. Y.

J. H. Michael, chairman of Buffalo Zone, M. P. T. O. of New York, has appointed the following exhibitors to sit with representatives of the exchanges on the arbitration board. For meetings in February: Howard J. Smith, manager of the Palace, chairman; Johnny Carr, Shea's North Park; Al Teschmacher, Casino, with J. N. Morris of the Happy Hour as alternate. For March: A. C. Hayman, state treasurer and proprietor of the Strand and Cartaract, Niagara Falls, chairman; Arthur L. Skinner, Victoria; Mat. Vallelly, Family, Lackawanna, N. Y., and D. Dillemuth, Broadway Lyceum, Buffalo, alternate.

A thief forced the door of the lobby of Shea's Hippodrome on the evening of January 30, entered the box office by picking the lock on the door and got away with $33.

R. S. Averill, manager of the Olympic, put over some good exploitation stunts on "The Tornado" last week when he arranged with the Buffalo Evening Post to publish a cross-word puzzle on the picture.

The following changes in house ownership have taken place recently in Western New York. Mr. Stickney has succeeded H. C. Lee at the Auditorium in Prattsburg, A. G. Croucher now has the Crescent in Newark, Mr. Sapper has succeeded L. B. Coler at the Pastime in Manchester, A. Czosnyka is running the A. C. in Lackawanna, John Karcanes is operating the Auditorium in Andover, H. H. Menter has taken over the Clinton in Buffalo and Joseph Meyers is running the Art in Buffalo.

Dewey Michaels, head of Michaels Theatrical Enterprises, with offices in the Bramson building, Buffalo, has taken over the old Victor Theatre on Genesee street.

The Temple Theatre on William street, Buffalo, has been sold at a foreclosure sale and the Zora Realty Company will soon reopen it with exclusive pictures.

Three hundred and fifty persons narrowly escaped death when the roof of the Elmwood Theatre, Syracuse, collapsed two minutes after the close of the last performance on the night of January 29. The cavein was caused by the heavy snowfall.

Allan S. Moritz, former manager of the Paramount exchange and recently connected with other local distributing offices, has taken over the lease of the Lumberg Theatre, Niagara Falls, from A. M. Atlas.

Albany, N. Y.

(Continued from preceding page)

loss has reached such proportions that several of the film exchanges in Albany have gotten together and employed a private detective.

Negotiations are pending which may result in the Strand in Hudson Falls, a 900-seat house, being taken over by Keith's, which practically fixes the prices of pictures in the neighboring city of Glens Falls. The theatre was well described some months ago when a son-in-law of Marcus Loew, spending his vacation nearby, declared that it was one of the prettiest theatres he had ever visited.

"Health before pictures," declared Mike Kallet of the Madison Theatre in Oneida last week. Mr. Kallet is back on the job but feeling rather wobbly, and is planning on spending a few weeks in Florida.

Cohoes is certainly delivering the goods this winter when it comes to attending the picture theatres. Louis Buettner stated last week that the present winter was the best he had ever known, and furthermore that business during the holidays, when a slump generally occurs, proved the best in the existence of the theatres there. All of which may account for the fact that Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Shearer, associated with Mr. Buettner, are spending the winter in Florida, leaving a week ago and being aboard one of the trains that passed through the flooded sections.

A. C. Wyer of Delhi is going it alone these days, his son, who has been his assistant, being away at college. But Mr. Wyer, who used to be a newspaperman along Broadway and now runs the weekly paper at Delhi as well as the theatre, is a hustler and seems to be taking care of all ends.

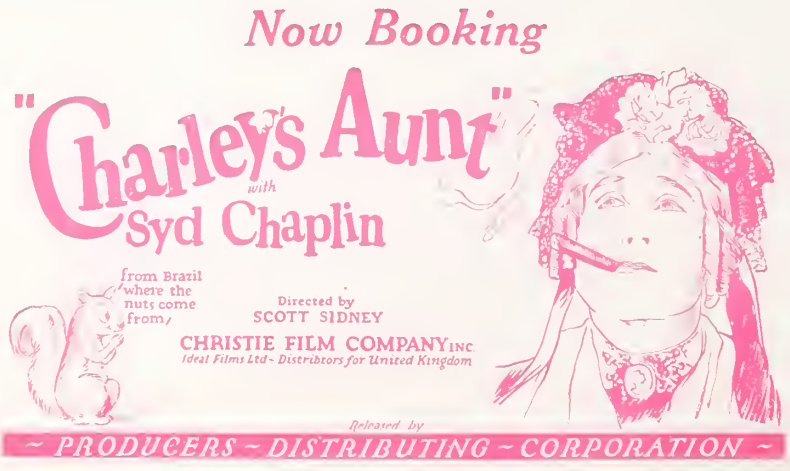
J. M. Moran of Coxsackie lost two hours' sleep the other day all because of the eclipse. Mr. Moran was up at 8 a. m. Realizing that it was the chance of a lifetime, Mr. Moran set the old alarm clock, hopped out and was fortunate enough to catch the eclipse in its totality.

Ernest Tetrault now is manager of the Grand in Watervliet, succeeding his brother George, who is handling the garage next door. Mr. Tetrault looks like a youngster but admits to 27 years.

Ben Apple at the King Theatre in Troy is meeting many of his old-time friends these days, men and women whom he hadn't seen for the last five or six years, during which he was running the American Theatre.

PRISCILLA DEAN

Starring in "The Crimson Runner," a Producers Distributing Corporation release.



Harry Carey, Lillian Rich and Francis Ford in Hunt Stromberg's production, "Soft Shoes," released by Producers Distributing Corporation.

Michigan

Fitzpatrick & McElroy, who operate a string of theatres in Michigan, have announced plans for the new Maltz Theatre at Alpena, Mich., to take the place of the house recently destroyed by fire there at a loss of $200,000. The theatre will be erected at once.

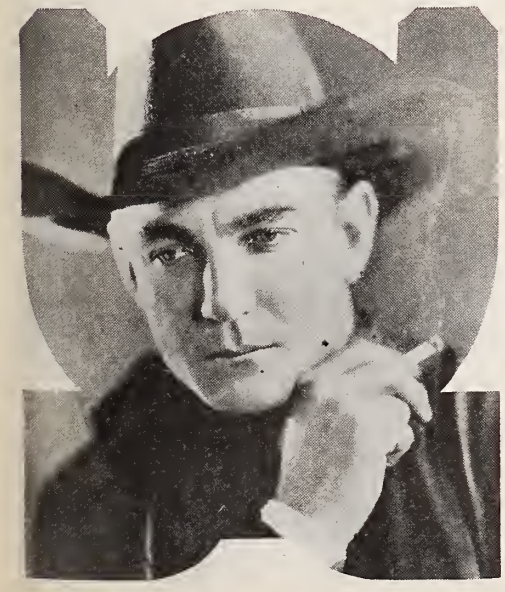
John H. Kunsky has left for Palm Beach and Miami, where he will remain away from the cares of business until April 1. Upon his return, George W. Trendle, his associate and general manager of the Kunsky enterprises, will make a hurried trip to Bermuda.

Sam Katz, of Balaban & Katz of Chicago, who recently became interested in a partnership association with the John H. Kunsky interests in Detroit, made a hurried trip last week to confer with Messrs. Kunsky and Trendle over business matters.

William Hurlbut, president of the Favorite Film Company, and one of his employes, had a narrow escape from death the other day when his automobile struck soft gravel and looped the loop twice. Hurlbut was on his way to Grand Rapids at the time and escaped with only a few bruises.

Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Butterfield have sailed for Europe on a six weeks' cruise of the Mediterranean. During Mr. Butterfield's absence Edward C. Beatty, general manager of the Bijou Enterprises, will be in charge.

A good tie-up: News of exhibitors from these pages; tips on pictures from Straight From the Shoulder reports; exploitation for your house from Selling the Picture to the Public.



BUCK JONES
Fox star now making "The Timber Wolf."

Delayed Illinois Meeting to Be Held in Peoria, Feb. 19

The illness of President Charles Nathan of the Illinois Motion Picture Exhibitors Association has delayed the meeting scheduled for Peoria early in January. A new date, Thursday, February 19, has been set at Hotel Jefferson in Peoria. This new date was decided at a meeting held here last week attended by the officials of the organization. Among the important matters to come up before the meeting will be the anti-carnival bill that was drawn by Robert Scholes, now speaker of the Illinois House of Representatives, the anti-daylight saving bill to be introduced at the present sitting of the legislature, and several other matters of interest to the live exhibitors of the state.

Marks Brothers, who operate the Broadway Strand and other picture houses in Chicago, have decided to go ahead with the 3000-seat house they have had under consideration for some time to be erected at Devon and Sheridan Road. It is reported that the Longaere Engineering and Construction Company, that built the State Lake, Woods, Apollo and other theatres in the East, will handle the work.

M. Dawson, former manager of the Primrose Theatre, will open a picture theatre at Morris, Ill.

The Navarre Theatre at Bourbon, under the management of R. D. Taylor, has been temporarily closed for repairs and will reopen at an early date.

George Walker of the New Subway Theatre at Elkhart came to Chicago last Friday to buy a new organ.

A. R. Workman of the Coliseum Theatre at Marseilles, Ill., is having plans drawn for an 800-seat theatre on the property of the Knights of Pythias Lodge.

George Walcis has closed his Columbus Theatre at Indiana Harbor to open his Indiana Theatre in that city.

Frank Schaefer of the Crystal Theatre, Chicago, is back on the job after giving the Florida resorts the once-over.

Manager Newell of the firm of Newell and Rectchin, who operate the Howard and Adelphi Theatres, in Chicago, is on a trip south and will make a tour through the Panama Canal before returning to the city.

The oldtimers in the theatrical circles will be sorry to hear of the death of John H. Havilin, who at the height of his career operated four theatres in Chicago besides a string in other cities of the country.

D. H. Rockefeller has leased the Dreamland Theatre at Gibbon to Rex Randall.

F. H. Graaf has reopened the Grand Theatre at Estherville, Iowa, and installed a fine pipe organ.

The Elkader Theatre, Chicago, has been taken over by Robert Bernau, who will operate the house on an exclusive picture policy.

A. L. Burnstine, owner of the Empress Theatre at Springfield, decided to meet radio competition by borrowing a $350 radio set from a local music house and tuning in on the evening air programs. A radio burglar upset the scheme by stealing the equipment.

Manager Joseph Desberger of the Washington Square Theatre at Quincy, is adding three acts of vaudeville to his program.

Now Booking

Douglas MacLean, Lillian Rich and Helen Ferguson in "Never Say Die," released by Associated Exhibitors.

Pittsburgh Children's Shows Proving Outstanding Success

The shows for children, fostered by the Child Conservation League, given Saturday mornings at several of the Rowland and Clark theatres in Pittsburgh, are proving a great success and will eventually result in greater interest among the adult population. The experiment was started at the Liberty a few weeks ago and proved such an instant success that six R. & C. theatres in as many different sections of the city are now presenting these Saturday morning shows, which are getting much free publicity from the newspapers, the Child Conservation League having among its patronesses many of the most prominent women in the city.

All exhibitors of the West Virgina territory are cordially invited to take part in the fifth annual convention of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of Western Pennsylvania, which will be held at Washington, Pa., April 21, 22 and 23. They will be heartily welcomed and will benefit by the attendance. All those who expect to attend should notify Secretary Fred J. Herrington, of the Western Pennsylvania Association, so that the proper arrangements can be made. It is desired to place some West Virginia exhibitors on the various committees.

The parents of Tom Mix are to celebrate their golden wedding anniversary at their home in DuBois, Pa., on February 6, and the popular screen star is expected to be on hand at the celebration. A. P. Way of the Avenue and Carlton theatres, DuBois, has donated his orchestra to furnish the music for the occasion, and also has secured a pre-release showing of Mix's newest feature, "The Deadwood Coach," to show that day.

Carl McIntyre is installing a picture show at Shirley, W. Va., in a furniture storeroom formerly used by the J. B. Smith Store Company.

The old Homewood Theatre at 814 Homewood avenue, Pittsburgh, is to be reopened early in February by Harvey Worthington, a well known local business man. The house will be known as the Homewood and the capacity will be 300. The house has been rebuilt inside and out.

The sale of all properties at Wellsburg, W. Va., formerly owned and operated by the Baer Amusement Company, valued at $400,000, to Anas Brothers, has been completed, according to an announcement made by N. G. Anas of the Strand Theatre. A corporation composed of A. G. Anas, W. G. Anas and N. G. Anas will in the future own and control all properties acquired through the transaction as well as all now owned by the Anas Brothers. Through the purchase of these properties the new concern becomes in possession of the Palace Theatre, located at Wellsburg, two theatres located in Weirton and one in New Cumberland.

John H. Geisler, formerly of the Grandview Theatre, Duquesne Heights, took over M. F. Tyson's Jewel Theatre on Spring Garden avenue, North Side, on January 21. Mr. Geisler is already redecorating and remodeling the house. Other improvements include the installation of a new organ and a steam heating plant.

J. M. Reynolds, resident manager of the Strand Theatre, Grove City, owned by the Alpha Motion Picture Company, came to town several days ago to say "hello" to some of his old-time friends. Reynolds doesn't get to town very often.

Exhibitor visitors seen on Film Row the past few days included: Theodore Mikalowsky, Masontown; B. W. Redfoot, Windber; Pete Parros, Erie, and "Nick" Anas of West Virginia.

Are you getting all the interest you should from News and Views? If not, drop a line to the editor of the department saying how it can be made more readable.

Ohio

The Lorain-Fulton Theatre, located at Lorain avenue and Fulton road, Cleveland, has been taken over by the Ohio Amusement Company, which organization operates twelve theatres in Greater Cleveland. The new owners have entirely redecorated the house.

The Liberty Theatre, Pikeville, Ky., a new house and one of the finest in that section, has closed. No reason is assigned.

The Cleveland Theatres Company, Cleveland, is among the new incorporations. E. R. Walter, E. K. McFarland, R. L. Ravitch and others are interested.

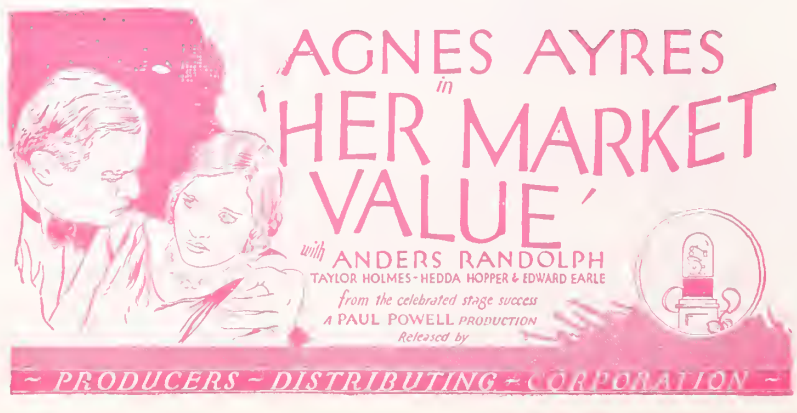
The Cavnah-Kessler Theatre Company, Canton, is erecting a new house at the corner of Cleveland avenue and Fifth street at an estimated cost fo $150,000.

Louisville

Yeggs visited a number of Louisville offices on the evening of Jan. 25, entering several safes by crude methods. At the East Broadway Theatre, $300 was taken from a cigar box hidden under the old safe, which was wrecked by yeggs some months ago and which had not been used since. Three doors were broken down in reaching the box office.

Following reports to the police department of pickpockets working the theatre crowds in the smaller picture houses of Louisville, local detectives on Jan. 25, picked up two men at the Star Theatre who on examination proved to have long records as pickpockets in many cities, the Bertillion record showing them up in a hurry. This will probably stop the local trouble which started recently.

DIANA MILLER
Featured player in the Fox special, "The Hunted Woman."



MAE MARSH
Playing in Vitagraph's "In the Garden of Charity."

Seattle

The Twin City Theatres Company, Inc., operating five houses in Centralia and Chehalis, have extensive plans under way for remodeling and redecorating in Centralia. Frank Graham is local manager of the Grand and Liberty in that city. His program of alterations and refurnishings reads as follows: At the Liberty the entire stage is to be torn out and a new proscenium arch and new stage will be erected. Throughout the house new draperies, carpets, furnishings and seats will be added, virtually making the house over. A similar program will be carried out at the Grand, with the exception that less extensive alterations will be made to the stage.

A new house is rumored for Sedro Woolley, Wash. A number of business men of the town are said to be promoting the venture, having secured a lot on Main street for the purpose. E. G. (Dad) Abbott operates the Dream Theatre, the only house in the town at present.

The Washington Education Association has gone on record as favoring censorship in requesting that legislation be enacted for state censorship of films and advertising during the present session of the legislature.

Fulton Cook of the Bungalo Theatre, St. Mary's, Idaho, has left for a business trip to California. He stopped over in Spokane for a day or so en route.

Manager Robert Bender of the Columbia Theatre has announced the arrival of Francesco Longo, master pianist and former protege of Oscar Hammerstein, as director of his All Artist orchestra.

The Dream Theatre, Onalaska, is reported to have changed hands. A. J. Parrott was the former owner.

The Anzier Theatre, Twenty-third avenue and East Madison street, Seattle, opened on January 24. It is a Frank Edwards house. Mr. Pollock is manager.

I. D. Winkler is reseating his Market Theatre at First avenue and Pike street.

Benjamin F. Fey's Renton Theatre, which was partly destroyed by fire a day or two before its opening, has been rushed to completion and was to open on February 1. Mr. Fey has built an addition in the rear, which houses a modern heating plant of a type particularly suited to his needs. He will have a beautiful little house.

San Francisco

Sol Lesser, former San Franciscan, and Harry C. Arthur, of Los Angeles, general manager of West Coast Theatres, Inc., were recent visitors here to confer with A. M. Bowles, manager of the Northern California interests of this organization. They returned but recently from an eastern business trip.

L. Phillips of Melbourne, Australia, and one of the leading exhibitors of that country, arrived at San Francisco late in January on a business trip. He recently completed the Capitol Theatre in Melbourne, the largest and finest theatre in Australia.

The leading picture theatres in San Francisco co-operated with the citizens' committee in offering entertainment to the men of the Japanese training squadron which visited this port late in January, admitting them to matinees free of charge during their stay.

Aaron Goldberg, who conducts a chain of small theatres in the downtown district, has arranged to take over the Unique Theatre on Market street.

The breaking of records has become a favorite pastime with the houses of the Herbert L. Rothchild Entertainment, Inc., San Francisco. Recently the California Theatre turned the trick with "Peter Pan," and right on top of this the Imperial Theatre broke its former showing with "Greed." The opening day records on "Peter Pan" have since been broken with "The Salvation Hunters," which received its world premiere at the California Theatre on January 24. Despite the fact that this production was without prominent stars and was virtually unknown, Manager Nat Holt and Director of Publicity Charles Kurtzman worked out a campaign of publicity that came in for wide attention and produced definite results.

W. A. Crank, formerly an exchange manager at San Francisco, has been made manager of the interests of the National Theatres Syndicate at Chico, Cal.

Among the recent visitors on San Francisco's Film Row have been A. G. Clapp of the Sonora Theatre, Sonora, Cal.; W. F. Jacobs, Auburn Theatre, Auburn, Cal.; Max Weiss, Lyric Theatre, Sacramento, Cal.; A. S. Pillsbury, Pillsbury Pictures, Yosemite Valley, and J. J. Wood of Redding and Red Bluff, Cal.

P. Kyrios of the Rex Theatre, Santa Clara, Cal., has arranged to erect a new house in that city.

The Oakland Amusement Company has been incorporated at Oakland, Cal., to operate the new Orpheum Theatre in that city, formerly the Fox-Oakland.

Construction work has commenced on a 1,400-seat picture house in the Thousand Oaks district of Berkeley, Cal. It will be operated by the Blumenfeld Theatre Circuit.

GEORGE O'BRIEN
The new Fox star who has just started work on his first starring vehicle for the new season, "Once to Every Man."

Los Angeles

When the Mission closed its doors last week preparatory to being torn down to make room for the new Orpheum Theatre which soon goes up at Ninth and Broadway, it didn't even phase the Warner Brothers, who had leased the theatre for its first runs. Sam Warner immediately made a deal with Paramount to lease the Rialto for sixteen weeks, with options for a longer period. The Rialto has long been a stronghold for Paramount's extended runs since it was taken over by Sid Grauman five years ago from Tom Quinn. This leaves Paramount only two downtown Broadway theatres, the Metropolitan and the Million Dollar. Paramount will retain active management of the Rialto with its entire theatre personnel, but only Warner Brothers' films will be shown.

L. L. Bard will finance a $400,000 theatre building to be built immediately on the northwest corner of Adams street and Crenshaw boulevard. The structure will be of "Class A" reinforced concrete construction with an auditorium to seat 2,200. The building will also contain four stores, eight offices and twelve apartment suites.

Jeff Lazarus is arranging the celebration of the second anniversary of Grauman's Metropolitan with a thirty-foot birthday cake containing many surprises for the press. Lazarus is planning on bringing some of the foremost musical stars from New York for long-run prologues starting with the celebration.

Now Booking
Florence Vidor
in
"The GIRL of GOLD"
With Malcolm MacGregor, Claire DuBrey, Alan Roscoe, Bessie Eyton and Charles French
Directed by . . . . . John Ince
Released by
PRODUCERS DISTRIBUTING CORPORATION

KATHRYN McGUIRE

Buster Keaton's leading lady in Metro-Goldwyn's "Sherlock, Jr., and "The Navigator."

Massachusetts

An agreement for judgment for the plaintiff for $2,739.57, without costs, in the case of Perry A. Smedley against Hiram C. Walden, both of Williamstown, Mass., has been filed in superior court. This case has been in the courts since December, 1917. It grew out of the erection by Mr. Smedley of a picture theatre and business block in Williamstown for Mr. Walden. The plantiff claimed that the defendant refused to pay him $2,293.26, with interest, due him. Included in this bill was several hundred dollars alleged to be due for extra work and material furnished.

The defendant, in his answer, claimed that the plaintiff had not completed the work in accordance with the agreement.

Plans are reported being made for the construction of a $500,000 theatre building in Harvard Square, Cambridge.

Samuel J. Spector has bought a tract of 105,000 feet of land in the Malden business section. Plans will be made for the construction of a building containing a picture theatre and several stores.

An exhibitor fell down hard on a poor picture: he told his fellows through Straight From the Shoulder reports: so did others who made money on other pictures. And they're still telling you these inside tips—you can contribute too. Send in your tips as soon as you've read the pages of reports this week.

Canada

Business at a number of the leading picture houses in Ottawa, Ontario, has been holding up wonderfully well. Ben Stapleton, the pioneer exhibitor of Ottawa, reported on January 30 that the revenue at the Centre Theatre had been steadily increasing during the winter season. Manager Franklin of the B. F. Keith Theatre merely points to the big crowds which throng this theatre every afternoon and night when asked about business conditions. Manager Leonard Bishop of the Regent Theatre, Ottawa, won first prize in the bonus competition which was staged in Eastern Canada by Famous Players Canadian Corporation for the three recent months. Sol. Coplan of the Imperial Theatre is rebuilding the patronage at that house.

Manager Leonard Bishop of the Regent Theatre, Ottawa, Ontario, made a special sport attraction of the short subject, "The Chase," a skiing picture which was taken at St. Moritz, Switzerland, presented along with "Tongues of Flame," starring Thomas Meighan, during the week of February 2. Manager Bishop used advertising display space on the sport pages of local newspapers, secured extra publicity readers on the sport pages and obtained space from the ski editors of the respective papers.

Two of Ottawa's theatres which have not shown much sign of life during recent months have taken on new activity. The Russell Theatre, in which Jule and J. J. Allen formerly had a substantial interest, is reopening under the direction of W. Green with a varied list of bookings. The Franklin Theatre, under the lease of J. M. Franklin, who now is manager of B. F. Keith's Theatre, Ottawa, also reopened on February 2 with the presentation of the travel feature, "The Lost Tribe," under the auspices of the Victorian Order of Nurses.

The judges at a fancy dress carnival in the Auditorium of Ottawa were the managers of three of the leading theatres of the Canadian Capital. The officials included A. H. Coplan, proprietor of the Imperial; J. M. Franklin, manager of B. F. Keith's Theatre, and Leonard Bishop, manager of the Regent.

Texas

The Wichita Theatre Company, Wichita Falls, Texas, has been incorporated with a capital stock of $50,000. The incorporators are J. W. Faratee, Annie Lee Faratee, O. M. Rahl and Della Rahl.

H. T. Hodge has opened his new theatre at Ballinger, Texas. The house is modern and seats about 450.

J. J. Keeling is building a new theatre at Santa Anna, Texas.

J. F. Houdek is rebuilding his Lyric Theatre at Ennis, Texas, and is installing a new $7,500 pipe organ.

MABEL BALLIN

As she appears in "Riders of the Purple Sage," a William Fox special in which Tom Mix is starred

Milwaukee

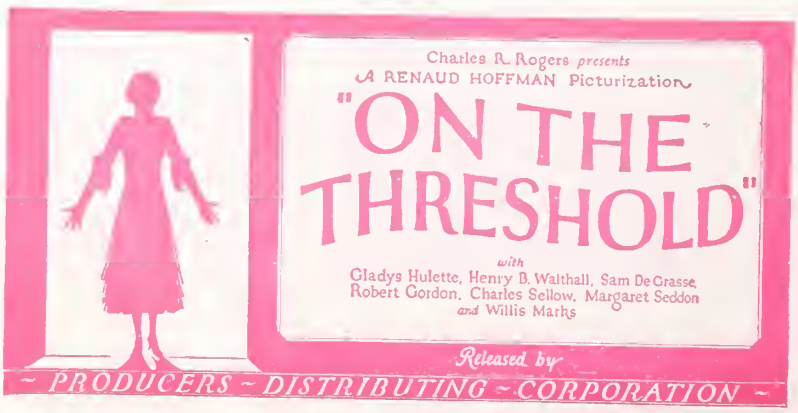
Midwest, Ludwig and the Milwaukee Film Company have been admitted to membership in the Milwaukee Film Board of Trade, it is announced by Ben Koenig, secretary of the organization.

Roy Wheeler, manager of Saxe's Tivoli in Milwaukee, has received word of the death of his father.

In line with his policy of featuring stage presentations at the Alhambra Theatre, downtown Milwaukee house, O. J. Wooden, manager, has announced that Priscilla Dean and a company of six will appear in person in connection with the showing of her picture, "A Cafe in Cairo."

William Seymour has succeeded A. J. Meininger as manager of Ascher's Merrill Theatre in Milwaukee. Mr. Meininger will manage a vaudeville house for Ascher in some other city, it has been announced.

Now Booking



Claire Windsor (as the sweet miss of 1897) and her fiance, Bert Lytell. Miss Windsor was snapped at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio while enacting this role in Hobart Henley's production of "The Square Peg."

Scenes from Harry Langdon's latest Mack Sennett comedy for Pathe, "Boobs in the Wood."

St. Louis Territorial News

Citizens of Webster Groves, Mo., living in the vicinity of what is known as Tuxedo Park will send a delegation before the City Council on February 9 to formally protest against the opening of a negro theatre on Shady avenue, Tuxedo Park. The house was to be erected at a cost of $40,000. There are no building restrictions on Shady avenue, so a motion picture house is permissible under the law. However, a zoning ordinance passed some time ago restricts neighborhood buildings to dwellings.

Livingston Lanning, manager of the Loew State Theatre, Eighth street and Washington avenue, St. Louis, resigned from that position effective on February 1. He has not announced his future plans. During Lanning's regime the State Theatre assumed a decided position in the St. Louis show world. He has had considerable experience with the picture patrons of St. Louis and is regarded as one of the best showmen in Southwest.

Arthur B. Williams, manager of the Rivoli Theatre, St. Louis, has left William Goldman's organization. Aaron Fineshriber has returned to the Rivoli from the Kings, while Al J. Marks is temporarily in charge at the Kings.

"The Hunchback of Notre Dame" added to its list of house records recently when Steve Farrar of the Orpheum Theatre, Harrisburg, Ill., packed the Orpheum at every performance during a three-day run there. The Orpheum has 700 seats and is situated in a town of 7,000 inhabitants. Farrar worked the schools, churches and newspapers.

Leo Keiler, prominent Paducah, Ky., exhibitor, motored to St. Louis with his boy, who had his tonsils and adenoids removed at Barnes Hospital, St. Louis. The operation was successful and the youngster later returned home with his papa.

Visitors of the week include John Rees and wife of Wellsville, Mo.; Tom Reed, Duquoin, Ill., S. E. Pertle, Jerseyville, Ill.; Billy Sohm of Quincy, Ill.; L. J. Keuss, New Athens, Ill.; John Spaulding, Litchfield, Ill.; Oscar Wesley of Gillespie, Ill. and William McNamara of Virden, Ill.

"Big Hearted Steve" Brady, owner of the Broadway Theatre, Cape Girardeau, Mo., cooperated in the Fire Prevention Week program put on by the Missouri Fire Prevention Association and leading insurance men of the state at the Cape on January 28 and 29. He donated the use of his big theatre on January 28, when Harry K. Rodgers, known as the "Fire Clown," put on his act for the benefit of some 1,800 school children of the city.

J. Schmidt of Pocahontas, Ill., has sold his hotel in that city, the sale to go into effect on February 15, and in the future will devote his entire time to his picture house there.

Louis Sidney is temporarily in charge at Loew's State Theatre, St. Louis, pending the appointment of a permanent manager.

The Select Theatre, Parkin, Ark., is being dismantled.

Mrs. Hilda C. Brown has purchased the Majestic Theatre, Green Forest, Ark.

Guy Wampler has taken over the Royal Theatre, Palestine, Ill., formerly operated by Hawkins & Saulsberry.

C. W. Tipton, owner of the New Theatre, Manila, Ark., has added the Pathe Theatre, Monette, Ark., to his string.

Houses reported closed include: Ideal Theatre, Beaver Dam, Ky.; Princess Theatre, Earl, Ark., and Carlisle Theatre, Emden, Mo.

The Columbia Theatre, St. Louis, Mo., has returned to pictures and vaudeville and will change its program three times a week. On Saturdays and Sundays a feature picture, news and five acts of vaudeville will be put on. Changing on Monday and again on Wednesday, the bill will include a feature, comedy and news and a novelty act.

J. Bucklin has taken over the management of the Lang Family Theatre, 5118 Shaw avenue, St. Louis. He formerly was manager for the St. Louis Exhibitors Supply Company.

C. N. Braswell is the owner of theatres in Cadiz, Marion and Eddyville, Ky., reports to the contrary notwithstanding.

The Avalon Theatre, Lawrenceville, Ill., has re-opened. The Phoenix Theatre has been closed. Both houses are owned by Mrs. Hurley B. Gould.

He Laughs It Off

The cross-word craze has hit the St. Louis Picture Row and many of the contract chasers and office workers spend considerable time doping out the puzzles that appear in the daily papers, or in figuring up new ones for their friends to solve. One film peddler had all the boys guessing with one twister for some time, but now that the answer is out it is causing much laughter that it stumped the boys so long.

"What's a word of ten letters meaning 'to laugh it off,'" this dopster asked. The answer is P-A-S-M-E-Z-O-G-L-U.

Hector H. E. Pasmezoglu, owner of the Delmar, Criterion, Congress, Plaza and Yale theatres, has the reputation of being able to throw off life's cares and worries in better spirit than any man in the local film world. He laughs 'em off.

Oklahoma

A replevin suit has been filed in a Justice of the Peace Court at McAlester, Olka., to recover possession of a pair of long steer horns which were obtained to advertise the days of "North of 36." Jake Weaver of Kiowa is the plaintiff and the Palace Theatre, McAlester, the defendant. Weaver alleges that he was the owner of the horns and loaned them to the Palace. The Palace went into brankruptcy and the horns were sold as part of the fixtures.

The City of Okmulgee, Okla., is considering the purchase of the Hippodrome Theatre to be used as a municipal auditorium.

Scenes from Paramount's "The Crowded Hour," with Bebe Daniels featured.

Kansas Territorial News

The Liberty Theatre, first-run, downtown house of Kansas City, has changed its policy to Saturday opening, instead of Sunday, marking a departure from a custom long observed. All other houses change their programs on Sunday, Jack Stebbins, newly appointed manager, is a firm believer in Saturday picture openings due to the fact that all legitimate theatres change programs on Sundays. Mr. Stebbins, a veteran showman who came to Kansas City from Oakland, Cal., where he formerly managed the Oakland Theatre, also plans to redecorate the Liberty and make other physical improvements. The theatre is a Universal-leased house.

Among out-of-town exhibitors in the Kansas City market last week were: Sam Blair, Majestic, Bellville, Kas.; Oscar Reinke, Orpheum, St. Joseph, Mo.; Willard Frazier, Paola, Kas.; C. E. Montrey, Park, St. Joseph, Mo.; Frank Long, Olive, St. Joseph, Mo.; R. B. Thomson, Auditorium, Excelsior Springs, Mo.; C. P. Rogers, Whiteway, Concordia, Kas.; F. G. Weary, Farris, Richmond, Mo.; F. C. Andrews, Gem, Olathe, Kas.; Charles Sears, Star, Nevada, Mo.

The new Rialto Theatre, Kansas City, completed a few months ago at a cost of $100,000, has been purchased by a syndicate of persons and will be managed by Benoni Franks, operating under the policy of Junior Orpheum Vaudeville in conjunction with pictures. The theatre is a negro house, a negro jazz orchestra being one of its features.

It may have been the weather or it may have been the show, but, any way, 9,300 tickets were purchased at the Mainstreet Theatre, Kansas City, Sunday to see Priscilla Dean in her personal appearance in conjunction with the P. D. C. production in which she stars, "A Cafe In Cairo."

Earle S. Nesbitt, former advertising manager of the Mainstreet Theatre, Kansas City, and for ten years an exhibitor in Tarkio, Mo., has deserted the film industry to become development manager of radio station WHB in Kansas City.

Jack Roth, manager of the Isis Theatre, suburban house of Kansas City, is achieving unusual success in employing high school girls and boys for musical and novelty numbers in addition to the feature picture. Not only has he succeeded in having photographs of the "talent" run in daily newspapers, along with stories, but the policy is attracting a large number of high school pupils, friends of the "talent," at the theatre.

Exhibitors of St. Joseph, Mo., are anxiously awaiting the production of the first picture in which Georgia Hale, St. Joseph girl who has succeeded Lita Gray, Mrs. Charlie Chaplin, is starred. Miss Hale is a popular favorite in the ol' home town.

Here is what one woman fan of Kansas City thinks of the modern picture theatre, as was published in the Kansas City Star:

"I go to our largest motion picture houses, partly to hear the splendid music of the orchestra or organs. I generally go alone so that I can avoid a talkative companion and revel in the sweet melodies. Am I alone to listen? Not on your life. The women—not the men—on all sides of me chatter so that they almost drown out the music. I tell you it makes me mad—mad 'clean' through—and I should enjoy shaking some of these women. Surely we all go to have a little common courtesy for each other, but it is the same in all theatres.

(Signed) MRS. M. MAY."

A tip in time saves an exhibitor's box office. Straight From the Shoulder reports will help you; help others by sending your reports to Van.

Arkansas

The Yellowville Theatre Company has opened a new theatre in the Rex Hotel at Yellowville, Ark.

Roy Redman has purchased the Leslie Theatre at Leslie, Ark.

C. E. Smith has opened a new theatre at Lockesburg, Ark.

C. W. Tipton has purchased the Manila Theatre at Monette, Ark.

New Hampshire

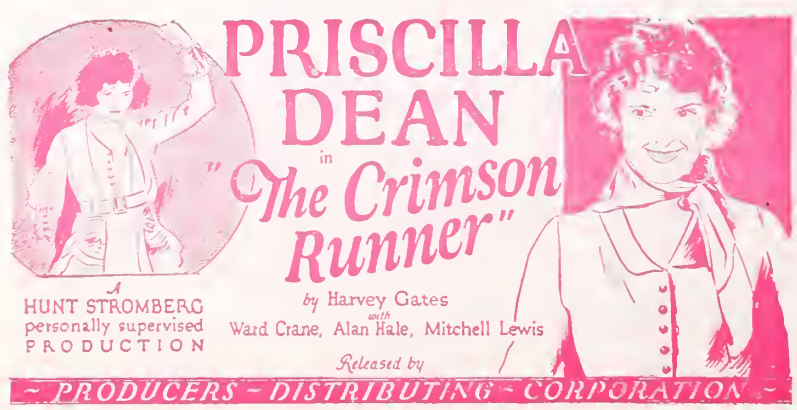
Just as the press in all its divisions is ever on the alert to safeguard our national interest and was made constitutionally free for that purpose, National President M. J. O'Toole of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America told the members of the Kiwanis Club at the Eagle Hotel in Concord, N. H., on February 2 that the picture theatre screen as the screen press will be ever loyal, patriotic and sure on every occasion.

He said that every form of American life, economic, commercial and social, is based on national security and that theatre owners, as the custodians of the screen press, can and will convey the safeguarding message of Kiwanians and others to the people.

Exhibitors all over the United States and abroad turn to Straight From the Shoulder for dependable tips on pictures they plan to run. They send tips on their own shows, too. Do you?

LUCILLE HUTTON

Tom Mix's leading lady in "Dick Turpin," the current Fox release.



STRAIGHT from the SHOULDER REPORTS

A DEPARTMENT FOR THE INFORMATION OF EXHIBITORS

EDITED BY A. VAN BUREN POWELL

These dependable tips come from exhibitors who tell the truth about pictures to help you book your program intelligently. "It is my utmost desire to serve my fellow man," is their motto.

Use the tips; follow the advice of exhibitors who agree with your experience on pictures you both have run.

Send tips to help others. This is your department, run for you and maintained by your good-will.

Associated Exhibitors

(INCLUDES SELZNICK)

NEVER SAY DIE. (6 reels). Star, Douglas MacLean. A dandy good comedy for any house. Went over good. Tone good. Sunday, yes. All classes, town of 2,500. Admission 10-30. A. C. Gordon, Star Theatre (450 seats), Weiser, Idaho.

TWENTY DOLLARS A WEEK. Star, George Arliss. This is a fine program picture. A good story and good acting. Tone good. Special, no. Fine audience appeal. General class, town of 1,900. Admission 10-20, 10-25. J. E. Hubbell, Palace Theatre (325 seats), Worthington, Indiana.

TWENTY DOLLARS A WEEK. Star, George Arliss. Arliss used to be a good star but is handled very poorly in this one. Picture has no pep, and audience gave a sigh of relief when it was all over. It was a good filler, if your crowd isn't critical. Tone fine. Sunday, yes. Special, no. Audience appeal fifty per cent. All classes, town of 6,000. Admission 10-20-30. Frank H. Wotton, Park Theatre (600 seats), Lebanon, New Hampshire.

WIFE IN NAME ONLY. Star, Edmund Lowe. Very good program picture. Will please most of them. Tone good. Hardly suitable for Sunday. Special, no. Average audience appeal. General class, town of 1,900. Admission 10-20, 10-25. J. E. Hubbell, Palace Theatre (325 seats), Worthington, Indiana.

F. B. O.

AMERICAN MANNERS. (5,200 feet). Star cast. At least a clean picture. You can't say that about many coming from some producers. Sunday, no. Special, no. All classes, town of 3,500. Admission 10-35. A. E. Jarboe, Royal Theatre (500 seats), Cameron, Missouri.

BLOW YOUR OWN HORN. (6,315 feet). Star, Ralph Lewis. Very good program picture. Had several favorable comments on this picture. Some good comedy. Tone good. Sunday, yes. Fairly good audience appeal. All classes, town of 1,900. Admission 10-25, 10-20. J. E. Hubbell, Palace Theatre (325 seats), Worthington, Indiana.

CHEAP KISSES. (6,538 feet). Star, Cullen Landis. A mighty fine picture for the kind of title it has. Tone good. Sunday, yes. Special, yes. Audience appeal eighty per cent. Small town class, town of 300. Admission 10-25. Roy E. Cline, Osage Theatre (200 seats), Osage, Oklahoma.

DANGEROUS COWARD. (6 reels). Star, Fred Thomson. This picture is a little draggy in places but it has lots of punch to it at that. You won't go wrong on these Thomsons. Tone good. Sunday, yes. Special, no. Fine audience appeal. General class, town of 1,900. Admission 10-20, 10-25. J. E. Hubbell, Palace Theatre (325 seats), Worthington, Indiana.

GALLOPING GALLAGHER. (4,700 feet). Star, Fred Thomson. Very good western. Wonderful horse. Tone okay. Sunday, yes. Special, no. Good appeal. W. F. Lolbl, Chimes Theatre, Cedarburg, Wisconsin.

LOVE PIRATE. Star, Carmel Myers. Can't say very much for this picture. Not much to it. Tone no good. Sunday, no. No appeal. All classes, town of 1,900. Admission 10-20, 10-25. J. E. Hubbell, Palace Theatre (325 seats), Worthington, Indiana.

MASK OF LOPEZ. (4,900 feet). Star, Fred Thomson. Very fine entertainment; everyone pleased. Fred is a coming favorite. Tone good. Sunday, yes. Special, no. Good audience appeal. General class, town of 1,900. Admission 10-20, 10-25. J. E. Hubbell, Palace Theatre (325 seats), Worthington, Indiana.

MESSALINA. (8,475 feet). Star cast. A great picture for an Italian community. Brother exhibitors, take a tip from me and insert an ad in your local Italian newspaper and you will clean up on this one. Not suitable for a big house. Tone good. Sunday, yes. Good appeal. All classes in big city. Admission ten cents. Stephen G. Brenner, Eagle Theatre (298 seats), Baltimore, Maryland.

MILLIONAIRE COWBOY. (4,841 feet). Star, Lefty Flynn. Just another western with no drawing power. Lefty Flynn is no good here, but had to book him to get what we did want. Audience appeal seventy per cent. Admission 10-25. S. A. Hendrix, Princess Theatre, Cotton Plant, Arkansas.

NORTH OF NEVADA. (5,000 feet). Star, Fred Thomson. Can't compare with Mix. We did a fair business for two days. General class, city of 30,000. Admission 25-35. C. D. Buss, Strand Theatre (700 seats), Easton, Pennsylvania.

NORTH OF NEVADA. (5,000 feet). Star, Fred Thomson. The usual run of the Thomson series; not wonderfully good nor is it bad. A little above average perhaps. The story does not tire the brain; it simply serves as a vehicle for a few of "Silver King's" tricks and Fred's gymnastics, all of which make rip-roarin' entertainment for the fan that glories in the west as pictures in the movies. Tone fair. Sunday, no. Special, no. Average audience appeal. Rural class, town of 300. Admission 10-30, special 15-40. Charles W. Lewis, I. O. O. F. Theatre (225 seats), Grand Gorge, New York.

ON TIME. (6,030 feet). Star, Richard Talmadge. Fair program picture; some said good, others said bum. Nothing very startling about it. Tone only fair. Sunday, no. Not much audience appeal. All classes, town of 1,900. Admission 10-20, 10-25. J. E. Hubbell, Palace Theatre (325 seats), Worthington, Indiana.

ON TIME. (6,030 feet). Star, Richard Talmadge. Very good program picture. Well acted. Tone okay. Sunday, yes. Fair audience appeal. Small town and country class, town of 450. Admission 10-30-35. A. F. Thomas, Pastime Theatre (250 seats), Almyra, Arkansas.

SILENT STRANGER. (5 reels). Star, Fred Thomson. Our second "Thomson," and much better than the first one. Fred is not an actor, by a long ways; in fact, the horse is far ahead of Fred, but the two together make a good team and, given suitable stories, there is no question of their drawing power. Tone fair. Sunday, no. Special, no. General audience appeal. Rural class, town of 300. Admission 10-30, special 15-40. Charles W. Lewis, I. O. O. F. Theatre (225 seats), Grand Gorge, New York.

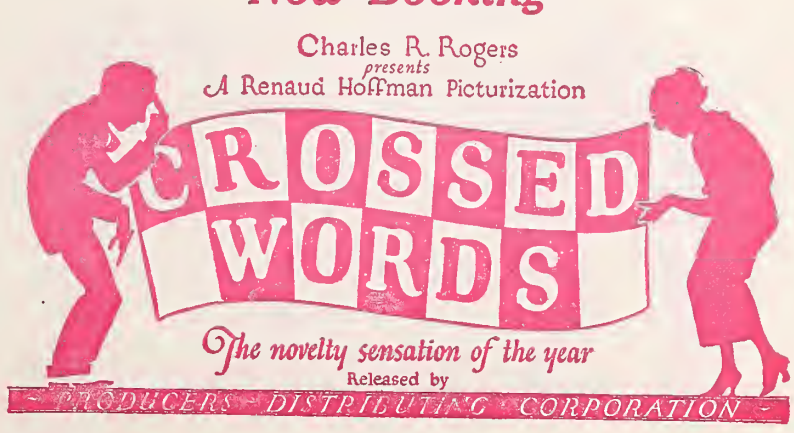
STEPPING LIVELY. (5,317 feet). Star, Richard Talmadge. Not as much action in this as in previous releases but a very good story. Will please Talmadge fans. Watch out, Talmadge, Kenneth McDonald is after you. Tone okay. Sunday, no. Good appeal. All classes in big city. Admission ten cents. Stephen G. Brenner, Eagle Theatre (298 seats), Baltimore, Maryland.

THUNDERING HOOFS. (5,015 feet). Star, Fred Thomson. For action this cannot be beat and will please those liking action, and it also pleased several who did not care for this type show but told me that they really enjoyed it. A. Mitchell, Dixie Theatre, Russellville, Kentucky.

TRIGGER FINGERS. (4,775 feet). Star cast. Will please the western fans, and is a very good western feature. Tone good. Sunday, no. Special, no. Audience appeal eighty per cent. Small town class, town of 300. Admission 10-25. Roy E. Cline, Osage Theatre (200 seats), Osage, Oklahoma.

TRIGGER FINGERS. (4,775 feet). Star, Bob Custer. A good western with plenty of action, and this Custer is a comer. Will do for anybody that likes action. Sunday, no. Special, no. Good appeal. Working class, city of 14,000. Admission 10-20. G. M. Bertling, Favorite Theatre (195 seats), Piqua, Ohio.

UNKNOWN PURPLE. (6,950 feet). Star cast. Show Terry, Walthall, Ferguson, Arthur, Lee. A good mystery play, fine story, good directing, but the color hurts your eyes.



Little too deep to play but it went over well. Admission 15-30. Robert W. Hines, Hines Theatre (150 seats), Loyalton, South Dakota.

First National

BRASS BOTTLE. (5,790 feet). Star cast. Terrible; worth about five cents a reel to the exhibitor. No tone. Audience appeal forty per cent. City of 200,000. Admission 10-20. R. M. Kennedy, Royal Theatre (350 seats), Birmingham, Alabama.

CYTHEREA. (7,400 feet). Star cast. A good show of its kind but not for the small towns. Failed to draw. Tone fair. Possibly suitable for Sunday. Special, no. Fair audience appeal. Family and student class, town of 4,000. Admission 10-25. R. J. Relf, Star Theatre (600 seats), Decorah, Iowa.

EAST IS WEST. (7,737 feet). Star, Constance Talmadge. A good picture that the name will draw patrons. A picture that is a little rough in places but will get by. Tone fair. Sunday, no. Town and country class, town of 7,000. Admission 10-20. W. F. Denney, Electric Theatre (250 seats), Lowry City, Missouri.

FLOWING GOLD. (8,005 feet). Star cast. My patrons thought this equal to special. Sunday, okay. All classes, town of 3,500. Admission 10-25. A. E. Jarboe, Royal Theatre (500 seats), Cameron, Missouri.

HER NIGHT OF ROMANCE. (7,211 feet). Star, Constance Talmadge. Very good comedy drama throughout. Quite a bit better than her former pictures, "Goldfish" and "Dulcy." About the best she has done since "East Is West." Tone okay. Sunday, yes. Good audience appeal. Suburban class, town of 2,000. Admission 10-30. H. Warren Rible, Mayfield Theatre (210 seats), Mayfield, California.

HER TEMPORARY HUSBAND. (6,723 feet). Star, Syd Chaplin. A comedy drama from start to finish that kept the audience laughing all the time. It pleased and satisfied what they came for. Tone okay. Sunday, yes. Not suitable for special. Audience appeal ninety per cent. Town and country class, town of 1,000. Admission 10-25. C. R. Seff, New Radio Theatre (250 seats), Correctionville, Iowa.

HUNTRESS. (6,236 feet). Star, Colleen Moore. Here is a good picture that will please. Action and also some comedy and the scenery is good on the western part. Town and country class, town of 7,000. Admission 10-20. W. F. Denney, Electric Theatre (250 seats), Lowry City, Missouri.

LILIES OF THE FIELD. (8,500 feet). Star, Corinne Griffith. This picture caused more favorable comment than anything we have had in a long time. Hokum? Yes, but effective hokum. The direction is fine and the work of the cast splendid. An excellent picture. Tone okay. Sunday, yes. Special, yes. High appeal. Best class, city of 14,000. Admission 10-35. E. W. Collins, Grand Theatre (700 seats), Jonesboro, Arkansas.

MARRIAGE CHEAT. (7 reels). Star cast. You never know what is going to happen next in a picture anymore. They don't seem to care what they put in. In this one shows awful pains of mother in child birth. A. E. Jarboe, Royal Theatre, Cameron, Missouri.

Between Ourselves

A get-together place where we can talk things over

"The whole town was talking about the picture the next day"—and you had the picture for only the day BEFORE THEY WERE TALKING!

"The finest advertising I can get is the mouth-to-mouth advertising of my patrons,"—and yet, at the time that such advertising is being passed out—the picture IS SOMEWHERE ELSE!

..How about it, folks?

E. N. Prescott has brought up the important point in a letter.

Read his letter—AND THEN COME ON IN AND TALK ABOUT IT!

Can that highly valuable advertising be capitalized? Have YOU done it?

IF NOT—WHY NOT?
IF SO—HOW?

VAN.

MEANEST MAN IN THE WORLD. (6,500 feet). Star, Bert Lytell. Fair offering. Nice comedy drama; nothing big and no drawing power. Tone okay. Sunday, yes. Special, no. Fair audience appeal. Town and country class, town of 1,000. Admission 10-25. C. R. Seff, New Radio Theatre (250 seats), Correctionville, Iowa.

ONLY WOMAN. (6,700 feet). Star, Norma Talmadge. Satisfactory but only a fair business. City of 10,000. Admission 10-25. Vine Theatre, Mt. Vernon, Ohio.

SEA HAWK. (12,045 feet). Star, Milton Sills. The greatest picture the writer has ever seen. Directed perfectly, staged wonderfully and acted magnificently. Will please any audience at advanced prices. It's a magnificent piece of work, a monument to the motion picture industry. Play it and step on it to the limit. Business only fair here. Tone okay. Sunday, yes. Absolutely suitable for special. High audience appeal. Best classes, city of 14,000. Admission 10-35. E. W. Collins, Grand Theatre (700 seats), Jonesboro, Arkansas.

SELF MADE FAILURE. (8 reels). Star, Lloyd Hamilton. Not up to First National's high standard. He should be starred in two-reel comedies. This is the first one in a long time from this company that was disappointing. Well, we don't expect them all to be "Covered Wagons." Tone fair. Sunday, yes. Special, no. Appeal forty per cent. All classes, town of 6,000. Admission 10-20-30. Frank H. Wotton, Park Theatre (600 seats), Lebanon, New Hampshire.

SMILIN' THRU. (8 reels). Star, Norma Talmadge. While this is a little old, it is a real picture that will please. The kind that elevates the standing of your theatre. Tone good. Sunday, yes. Special, yes. Good audience appeal. General class, town of 1,900. Admission 10-20, 10-25. J. E. Hubbell, Palace Theatre (325 seats), Worthington, Indiana.

SONNY. (6,900 feet). Star, Richard Barthelmess. Here also is a good picture that sure pleased here. Good story, good cast. This picture will please most any audience. Town and country class, town of 7,000. Admission 10-20. W. F. Denney, Electric Theatre (250 seats), Lowry City, Missouri.

TOL'ABLE DAVID. (7,118 feet). Star, Richard Barthelmess. This is a little old but it is a real picture and a wonderful story. This class of pictures makes a reputation for your theatre. Tone fine. Sunday, yes. Wonderful appeal. All classes, town of 1,900. Admission 10-20, 10-25. J. E. Hubbell, Palace Theatre (325 seats), Worthington, Indiana.

TROUBLE. (4,800 feet). Star, Jackie Coogan. A wonderful story and Jackie puts the pep in it and you can't help but put your okay on it, and then, too, Jackie brings them in. A good box office bet. Tone fine. Sunday, yes. Special, yes. Excellent audience appeal. General class, town of 1,900. Admission 10-20, 10-25. J. E. Hubbell, Palace Theatre (325 seats), Worthington, Indiana.

WANTERS. (6,871 feet). Star, Marie Prevost. Very good comedy drama, with Marie Prevost in the title role. Lots of laughs and a lot of truth in this picture that pokes fun at society. Tone okay. Sunday, yes. Audience appeal excellent. Suburban class, town of 2,000. Admission 10-30. H. Warren Rible, Mayfield Theatre (210 seats), Mayfield, California.

WHEN A MAN'S A MAN. (6,910 feet). Star cast. A wonderful picture. Has everything that will please a small town audience. Play it. Had fair crowd owing to bad weather. Tone fair. Sunday, no. Audience appeal Good. Town and country class, town of 7,000. Admission 10-20. W. F. Denney, Electric Theatre (250 seats), Lowry City, Missouri.

Fox

CIRCUS COWBOY. (6,400 feet). Star, Buck Jones. Good one-day picture. Elite Theatre, Placerville, California.

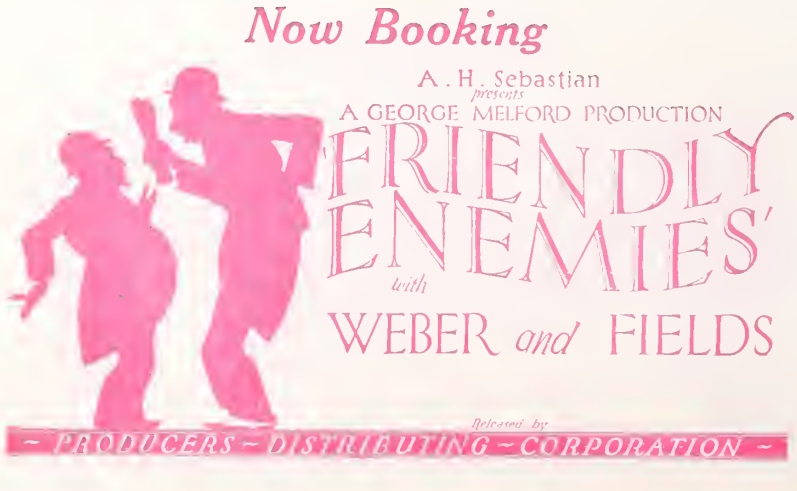
ELEVENTH HOUR. (6,819 feet). Star, Buck Jones. Rental too high for this small town; only a slight profit. Picture has many thrills and is worth seeing. Tone good. Sunday, yes. Good audience appeal. Farmers and merchants, town of 1,650. Mrs. J. B. Travelle, Elite Theatre, Placerville, California.

MILE A MINUTE ROMEO. (4,800 feet). Star, Tom Mix. Splendid picture. Elite Theatre, Placerville, California.

ST. ELMO. (6 reels). Star, John Gilbert. Good picture but too many church scenes in last reel. Not a special but sells for one. Tone okay. Sunday, yes. Fair audience appeal. Small town and country class, town of 430. Admission 10-30-35. A. F. Thomas, Pastime Theatre (250 seats), Almyra, Arkansas.

SHADOW OF THE EAST. (5,874 feet). Star, Frank Mayo. Can't say very much for this one, although it is as good as the usual run of Fox's specials. Frank Mayo does some good acting. Tone, none. Sunday, no. Audience appeal eighty per cent. Admission 10-25. S. A. Hendrix, Princess Theatre, Cotton Plant, Arkansas.

TEMPLE OF VENUS. (8,000 feet). Star cast. I hope there are no more of this type of picture in existence. This one is absolutely rotten. Nothing but a lot of jazzy stuff. Small town exhibitors, watch your step. Tone undecided. Sunday, no. Good appeal to certain classes. All classes in big city.



Mouth-to-Mouth Advertising! Wasted?

"Dear 'Gang': The breezes that are blowing at this writing don't whisper anything about Summer and Mr. Thermometer looks 'down at the heel' at a tilt of 30 degrees below zero, with a promise of crawling into his boots still further. Nancy Hanks (the car) is hiding in the garage and stoutly refused to move around until Dame Nature changes her garments.

"To overcome these small trifles, have got acquainted with some devilish contraption called a 'snow-mo-beel' which gets me around my circuit very nicely, thank you!

"Now, can some of you good scouts help me to sift out a thing I've had on my mind for some time?

'As you know, my towns are small, and usually play ONLY ONE DAY, unless on some specials.

"NOW AND THEN WE PLAY SOME PRODUCTION THAT HAS THE TOWNS TALKING THE NEXT DAY, OR, MAYBE MANY DAYS AFTER.

"MY THEORY IS THAT SUCH A PRODUCTION WOULD STAND AN EXTRA DAY TO BIGGER BUSINESS THAN ON THE FIRST DAY, DUE TO THE WORD-OF-MOUTH ADVERTISING THE PUBLIC WOULD GIVE IT—WHICH ADVERTISING IS BEYOND ANY OTHER TYPE IT HAS EVER BEEN MY GOOD FORTUNE TO FIND.

"We find in our programs, many times, a real gem, that the public stops you on the street and tells you how much he or she enjoyed the show and the fellow who did not see it tells you that somebody said it was great.

"MY THEORY IS THAT IF SUCH A PICTURE WAS ON FOR A TWO DAYS RUN OR EVEN LONGER, I WOULD BENEFIT BY THE UNCOUNTABLE VALUE OF THIS MOUTH-TO-MOUTH ADVERTISING. The phenomenal business on an extended run of 'The Covered Wagon' is still fresh in my memory and I firmly believe that on some production (perhaps of even less magnitude) this extra time could be utilized to fine business.

"'GANG', KINDLY LET ME KNOW YOUR VIEWS AND EXPERIENCES ALONG THIS LINE, WON'T YOU PLEASE?" E. N. Prescott, Prescott Circuit, Union Maine.

Come on, fellows—let's discuss this. Maybe something will come up that will benefit a whole lot of exhibitors. SAY YOUR SAY.

Admission ten cents. Stephen G. Brenner, Eagle Theatre (298 seats), Baltimore, Maryland.

TROUBLE SHOOTER. (5,702 feet). Star, Tom Mix. One of Tom Mix's best pictures. Plenty of action and thrills, and Tony is just wonderful but we got one of the worst prints we ever ran. Don't know why Fox will send out such stuff. Audience appeal ninety-five per cent. Admission 10-25. S. A. Hendrix, Princess Theatre, Cotton Plant, Arkansas.

TROUBLE SHOOTER. (5,702 feet). Star, Tom Mix. Print cut all up as usual; otherwise what we saw was okay. Tone okay. Sunday, yes. Audience appeal eighty per cent. City of 200,000. Admission 10-20. R. M. Kennedy, Royal Theatre (350 seats), Birmingham, Alabama.

WESTERN LUCK. (5,020 feet). Star, Buck Jones. Jones at his best in a combination comedy, society and western drama. Best he has done for a long time. Good picture to book. Suburban class, town of 2,000. Admission 10-30. H. Warren Rible, Mayfield Theatre (210 seats), Mayfield, California.

Metro-Goldwyn

EAGLE'S FEATHER. (6,500 feet). Star, James Kirkwood. Some western in seven reels. The story will hold an audience. Plenty of action at the finish. Tone good. Strong audience appeal. Working class, city of 100,000. Admission 10-15-20. W. C. Budge, Comedy Theatre (275 seats), Jamaica, New York.

EAGLE'S FEATHER. (6,500 feet). Star, James Kirkwood. A good picture. Entertaining. Good business. General class, city of 30,000. Admission 25-35. C. D. Buss, Strand Theatre (700 seats), Easton, Pennsylvania.

HELD TO ANSWER. (5,601 feet). Star, House Peters. As many good pictures as there are on the market, it's best to leave this kind alone. No drawing power. Good Sunday picture. Special, no. Audience appeal sixty per cent. Town and country class, town of 1,000. Admission 10-25. C. R. Seff, New Radio Theatre (250 seats), Correctionville, Iowa.

HE WHO GETS SLAPPED. (6,613 feet). Star cast. Many good comments on this. Tone okay. Sunday, yes. Audience appeal very good. Chimes Theatre, Cedarburg, Wisconsin.

HIS HOUR. (6,300 feet). Star, Eileen Pringle. Wonderful production; more than expectations, but no good for small town. Watch your buying. Metro-Goldwyn has Paramount price ideas. Special, no. Good appeal. Mixed class, city of 15,009. Admission 25-30. Herbert A. Shaw, Metropolitan Theatre (1,300 seats), Morgantown, West Virginia.

IN THE PALACE OF THE KING. (9,000 feet). Star cast. The last Metro-Goldwyn lemon for us. We played it two nights and starved. The second night we played to a huge crowd of thirty-six people. Count 'em! There never could have been any sane reason in putting such an insane picture on the market. No entertainment value at all. Metro-Goldwyn has always given us poor prints and this one followed the rule. The last reel had one hundred twenty-seven splices in it. That would mean that there were over one thousand splices in the eight reels. Some print! Besides, it was about the dirtiest piece of film I have ever seen. The picture's appearance on the screen with the numerous splices and dirty film was terrible. Better class, town of 4,500. Admission 10-15. C. A. Anglemire, "Y" Theatre (404 seats), Nazareth, Pennsylvania.

LITTLE OLD NEW YORK. (10,000 feet). Star, Marion Davies. Good. Make more pictures like this and the industry will build up and not go down like it has. Tone good. Sunday, yes. All classes, town of 2,500. Admission 10-30. A. C. Gordon, Star Theatre (450 seats), Weiser, Idaho.

LITTLE ROBINSON CRUSOE. (6,216 feet). Star, Jackie Coogan. Good for any day in week. Special, no. All classes, town of 3,500. Admission 10-25. A. E. Jarboe, Royal Theatre (500 seats), Cameron, Missouri.

LONG LIVE THE KING. (9,364 feet). Star, Jackie Coogan. A fine production of a "mythical kingdom" story. It is elaborately done and pleases everyone, but Jackie does not draw for us except among the kids. Tone okay. Sunday, yes. Special, no. Good appeal. Best class, city of 14,000. Admission 10-35. E. W. Collins, Grand Theatre (700 seats), Jonesboro, Arkansas.

OUR HOSPITALITY. (6,220 feet). Star, Buster Keaton. When you get tired of society dramas and westerns, give your audience laughs, thrills and roars at Buster. Tone good. Audience appeal good. Working class, city of 100,000. Admission 10-15-20. W. C. Budge, Comedy Theatre (275 seats), Jamaica, New York.

PLEASURE MAD. (7,547 feet). Star cast. Good picture, but public seems to be tired of this type of story. General class city of 30,000. Admission 25-35. C. D. Buss, Strand Theatre (700 seats), Easton, Pennsylvania.

RECOIL. (6,800 feet). Star, Betty Blythe. A great big picture, and a real special. The ladies fell hard for this one, and the men liked it also. Everybody satisfied, and many favorable comments from patrons. The cabaret scenes were especially fine. Tone, fair. Sunday, no. Special, yes. Audience appeal, ninety per cent. All classes town of 6,000. Admission 10-20-30. Frank H. Wotton, Park Theatre (600 seats), Lebanon, New Hampshire.

SHOOTING OF DAN McGREW. (6,318 feet). Star cast. This is a little old but draws them in and puts the coin in the old box office. Tone, good. Sunday, yes. Special, yes. Audience appeal, ninety-eight per cent. Small town class town of 300. Admission 10-25. Roy E. Cline, Osage Theatre (200 seats), Osage, Oklahoma.

SHOOTING OF DAN McGREW. (6,318 feet). Star cast. Wonderful entertainment. This picture should please any audience. Good scenes. Plenty of action. Tone, good. Strong audience appeal. Working class city of 100,000. Admission 10-15-20. W. C. Budge, Comedy Theatre (275 seats), Jamaica, New York.

SHOOTING OF DAN McGREW. (6,318 feet). Star, Lew Cody. If the producers would make more of these he would find it a paying proposition from all angles. A real picture. Pleased all. Tone, okay. Sunday, yes. Special, yes. Audience appeal, one hundred per cent. Town and country class town of 1,000. Admission 10-25. C. R. Seff, New Radio Theatre (250 seats), Correctionville, Iowa.

SINNERS IN SILK. (5,750 feet). Star cast. A good picture but too hot for Sunday and I played it on this day. Sunday, no. Special, no. All classes town of 3,500. Admission 10-35. A. E. Jarboe, Royal Theatre (500 seats), Cameron, Missouri.

SILENT ACCUSER. (6 reels). Star, Peter The Great (dog). A dandy dog picture but for some reason did not pull. All classes town of 3,500. Admission 10-25. A. E. Jarboe, Royal Theatre (500 seats), Cameron, Missouri.

THY NAME IS WOMAN. (9,087 feet). Star cast. Very good picture. W. F. Loibl, Chimes Theatre, Cedarburg, Wisconsin.

WIFE'S ROMANCE. Star, Clara Kimball Young. If you change every day this will be all right but you won't be able to run it any longer and get away with it. Tone, good. Sunday, yes. Audience appeal, fifty per cent. All classes town of 2,800. Admission 15-25. D. W. Strayer, Mt. Joy Theatre (250 seats), Mt. Joy, Pennsylvania.

WINE OF YOUTH. (6,600 feet). Star, Johnny Walker. Good picture throughout for large houses. Very interesting. Paper not strong for drawing power. Special sign does the business. Mixed class city of 15,009. Admission 25-30. Herbert A. Shaw, Metropolitan Theatre (1,300 seats), Morgantown, West Virginia.

WOMEN WHO GIVE. (7,500 feet). Star cast. Very good picture that seemed one hundred per cent audience picture. Tone, okay. Sunday, yes. Special yes. Best audience appeal. W. F. Loibl, Chimes Theatre, Cedarburg, Wisconsin.

Paramount

ALASKAN. (6,738 feet). Star, Thomas Meighan. Good background but poor story. We paid just exactly twice too much rental. Tone, good. Sunday, yes. All classes town of 2,500. Admission 10-30. A. C. Bordon, Star Theatre (450 seats), Weiser, Idaho.

BIG BROTHER. (7,080 feet). Star, Tom Moore. A good picture that is all. Sunday, yes. Admission 15-25. E. C. Bays, Globe Theatre, Buena Vista, Virginia.

BREAKING POINT. (5,788 feet). Star cast. An average program show. The print on this one was poor. One of the reels had a bent hub causing three stops during showing. Better prints are needed to compete with the radio. Tone, fair. Fair audience appeal Better class town of 4,500. Admission 10-15. C. A. Anglemire, "Y" Theatre (404 seats), Nazareth, Pennsylvania.

CALL OF THE CANYON. (6,982 feet). Star, Lois Wilson. Mighty good, but not exactly the type one expects from a Zane Grey story. Played this in zero weather, to business a trifle below average, so cannot determine its "pull." I'd recommend this to any house. Tone, good. Sunday, yes, special, no. General appeal. Rural class town of 300. Admission 10-30, special, 15-40. Charles W. Lewis, I. O. O. F. Theatre (225 seats), Grand Gorge, New York.

CHANGING HUSBANDS. (6,799 feet). Star, Leatrice Joy. This is a light comedy picture with rather an exaggerated or preposterous plot. Two women of strong resemblance change places and in the end change husbands. Leatrice Joy is as usual good in a dual role and Raymond Griffith and ZaZu Pitts are splendid in comedy parts. A more than average good evening's entertainment. City and country class, town of 3,000. Admission 10-30. George W. Walther, Dixie Theatre, (500 seats), Kerrville, Texas.

CITY THAT NEVER SLEEPS. (6,007 feet). Star, Virginia Lee Corbin. Very good attraction. Worth seeing anywhere. Tone, good. Sunday, yes. Good appeal. Farmers and merchants town of 1,650. Mrs. J. B. Travelle, Elite Theatre, Placerville, California.

Better Business Built by Barnett

"Dear Van and 'Gang': I would like to say a few words in regard to an idea, new for me, that I am trying out to increase business: namely, Amateur Night.

"This surely ought to go over big anywhere; especially in a small town where everybody knows one another.

"I offered a first and second prize, in money, and also a smaller cash prize to anyone who went (participated) and did not receive either of the larger prizes.

"It was a big success with me and I put it on, on one of the worst nights of the year, a terrible snow storm. I drew a good house, considering the weather, and everyone present enjoyed it immensely.

"I have heard so many good comments on it that I am going to run another in a few weeks. It should take anywhere, because it gives your patrons a change. Try it once and be convinced." T. L. Barnett, Finn's Theatre, Jewett City, Connecticut.

CODE OF THE SEA. (6,038 feet). Star, Rod LaRocque. One of the best sea pictures I have played. Sunday, okay. Special, no. All classes town of 3,500. Admission 10-35. A. E. Jarboe, Royal Theatre (500 seats), Cameron, Missouri.

DAUGHTER OF LUXURY. Star, Agnes Ayres. Nothing much to this, pretty scenes but no action and the actors acted like wooden figures with the possible exception of Miss Ayres, and she did not make a hit with me. Small town class and farmers town of 600. Admission 10-20, 10-30. H. W. Batchelder, Galt Theatre (175 seats), Galt, California.

FEET OF CLAY. (9,746 feet). Star cast. A good picture for any house. Did a fair business. Tone, good. Sunday, yes. Special, yes. All classes town of 2,500. Admission 10-30. A. C. Gordon, Star Theatre (450 seats), Weiser, Idaho.

GARDEN OF WEEDS. (6,250 feet). Star, Betty Compson. Shame on Paramount, ditto Betty, ditto Jimmy Cruze. Had lots of complaints on this and no compliments. Can't expect anything the second night on this kind of trash. Page Will Hays. Tone, bad. Sunday, no. Wasn't any audience appeal. Joe Hewitt, Strand Theatre, Robinson, Illinois.

HERITAGE OF THE DESERT. (5,785 feet). Star, Ernest Torrence. This picture stood them up and everyone was pleased. Print fine, but photography in a few scenes was rotten, that was only thing that marred a good picture. Tone, objectionable. Sunday, no. Audience appeal, ninety percent. All classes town of 2,800. Admission 15-25. D. W. Strayer, Mt. Joy Theatre (250 seats), Mt. Joy, Pennsylvania.

HOLLYWOOD. (8,100 feet). Star cast. We paid too much for what there was to it. Some of the audience knew some of the "personalities" when they had a label stuck on them. Couldn't advise any other small towner to show it unless they got it cheaper than we did. L. E. Smith, Town Hall, Pittsford, Vermont.

HOLLYWOOD. (8,100 feet). Star cast. Movie propaganda, yet at the same time good entertainment. Pleased here, at special prices, but may not appeal where the gentle satire is beyond the comprehension of the western type fan. Tone, okay. Sunday, yes. Special, no. Average audience appeal. Rural class town of 300. Admission 10-30, special 15-40. Charles W. Lewis, I. O. O. F. Theatre (225 seats), Grand Gorge, New York.

ICEBOUND. (6,471 feet). Star cast. No good here. Too slow and draggy. Tone, fair. Possibly suitable for Sunday. Special, no. Poor audience appeal. Family and student class town of 4,000. Admission 10-25. R. J. Relf, Star Theatre (600 seats), Decorah, Iowa.

LIGHT THAT FAILED. (7,012 feet). Star, Jacqueline Logan. It also failed to draw us enough money to keep out of the red inkwell. To me the picture was good. The title and posters must have looked bum to the public from the attendance we had. Tone, Lige Conley in a scene from "Step Lightly," an Educational-Mermaid comedy distributed by Educational Film Exchanges, Inc.

good. Fair audience appeal. Better class town of 4,500. Admission 10-15. C. A. Anglemire, "Y" Theatre (404 seats), Nazareth, Pennsylvania.

LILY OF THE DUST. (6,811 feet). Star, Pola Negri. This is absolutely junk. Didn't draw and we were glad it didn't after hearing the patrons' knocks. Tone, none. Not suitable for Sunday. No appeal. Country class town of 3,300. Admission 15-30. P. L. Vann, Opera House (650 seats), Greenville, Alabama.

MANHANDLED. (6,998 feet). Star, Gloria Swanson. This is the best of the famous forty we have yet played. It is a splendid picture from start to finish. Tone, doubtful. Sunday, no. Appeal, okay. Country class town of 3,300. Admission 15-30. P. L. Vann, Opera House (650 seats), Greenville, Alabama.

MANHATTAN. (6,415 feet). Star, Richard Dix. A good picture. Has everything. Tone O. K. Good appeal. Yes for Sunday. Draw family and student class, town 4,000. Admission 10-25. R. J. Relf, Star Theatre (600 seats), Decorah, Iowa.

MAN MUST LIVE. Star cast. Good picture. Interesting story. Tone, good. Sunday, yes. Box office good. Elite Theatre, Placerville, California.

MAN WHO FIGHTS ALONE. (6,337 feet). Star, William Farnum. Although this is a very good picture I think it will disappoint a good many because, judging by the title, they will expect to see a lot of action; but the action for which he is famous, is missing. O. K. Tone. Sunday yes. As Special, no. Good appeal. T. L. Barnett, Finn's Theatre (600 seats), Jewett City, Connecticut.

MAN WHO FIGHTS ALONE. (6,337 feet). Star, William Farnum. In the old days this star was a whizz. He was miserably miscast in this and overacted like a big school boy. Fault perhaps of the director. Farnum is an actor, just give him something to act in, he can do it. Best class city of 10,000. Admission 10-20. Ned Pedigo, Pollard Theatre, Guthrie, Oklahoma.

MEN. (6,564 feet). Star, Pola Negri. Altogether too suggestive is my personal opinion of this one. The industry is better off without such pictures. Pola does some good work, but the fault is with the story. Tone bad. No for Sunday. Not for Special. Poor audience appeal. Draw mixed class, town 3,000. Admission 20-25. T. L. Barnett, Finn's Theatre (600 seats), Jewett City, Connecticut.

MERTON OF THE MOVIES. (7,655 feet). Star, Glenn Hunter. First part dragged but last half okay. Eight reels killed it. Tone, okay. Sunday, yes. Special, no. Good audience appeal. Family and student class town of 4,000. Admission 10-25. R. J. Relf, Star Theatre (600 seats), Decorah, Iowa.

MISS BLUEBEARD. Star, Bebe Daniels. It's great for it's comedy value. Never heard such continual laughter in our house before. The close-ups are mighty poor but you will get your money's worth on this one. N. H. Lamere, Opera House, Ludlow, Vermont.

MONSIEUR BEAUCAIRE. (9,932 feet). Star, Rudolph Valentino. Very poor. Valentino's imitation of John Barrymore in "Beau Brummel" fell flat. Valentino hasn't a chance. Tone, fair. Sunday, yes. Audience appeal, sixty per cent. City of 200,000. Admission 10-20. R. M. Kennedy, Royal Theatre (350 seats), Birmingham, Alabama.

MORAL SINNER. (5,455 feet). Star, Dorothy Dalton. Just another picture. Nothing extremely bad or good about it. Don't promise much for it. Tone, okay. Sunday, yes. Special, no. Ordinary audience appeal. Best classes city of 14,000. Admission 10-35. E. W. Collins, Grand Theatre (700 seats), Jonesboro, Arkansas.

NEXT CORNER. (7,081 feet). Star cast. Poor picture not worth booking if you got it for nothing. Tone, none. Sunday, no. All classes town of 2,500. Admission 10-30. A. C. Gordon, Star Theatre (450 seats), Weiser, Idaho.

PETER THE GREAT. (7 reels). If I get a few more of them like this I would better close up and save my money. Why do they want to give the small town such stuff? Draw miners, town about 2,000. Admission 10-25. Arch Catalano, Victory Theatre (275 seats), Rossiter, Pennsylvania.

SAINTED DEVIL. (8,633 feet). Star, Rudolph Valentino. This by all means should have been called the "Scented Devil" because people could smell it out on the street. Terrible. I can't put this star over. It cannot be done. No excuse for one so poor as "Sainted Devil." Lost me money? Sure it did. Best class city of 10,000. Admission 10-20. Ned Pedigo, Pollard Theatre, Guthrie, Oklahoma.

SIDE SHOW OF LIFE. (7,511 feet). Star, Ernest Torrence. Just another program picture and will fairly get by as much. Will please few but not many. Torrence doesn't belong here. Tone, okay. Sunday, yes. Not suitable for special. Audience appeal, sixty per cent. Small town class town of 6,000. Admission 10-30. L. O. Davis, Virginia Theatre (600 seats), Hazard, Kentucky.

THREE LIVE GHOSTS. Star cast. This is an old picture. It was good in condition and subject. Shown at the "Old Men's Home," pleased immensely. A comedy-drama that went over "big" with a better-class audience. Tone and appeal good. Yes for Sunday. Mitchell Conery, Conoat Projection Service, Menands, New York.

Pathe

DR. JACK. (4,700 feet). Star, Harold Lloyd. Not much use in reporting on this one except to say that if you did not run it yet do so at once. Print fine. Tone, good. Sunday, yes. Audience appeal, one hundred per cent. All classes town of 2,800. Admission 15-25. D. W. Strayer, Mt. Joy Theatre (250 seats), Mt. Joy, Pennsylvania.

HOT WATER. (5,000 feet). Star, Harold Lloyd. Fine comedy if you buy it right. Not his best. Watch your buying. Ran it four days. Special, yes. Audience appeal, good. Mixed class city of 15,009. Admission 25-30. Herbert A. Shaw, Metropolitan Theatre (1,300 seats), Morgantown, West Virginia.

KING OF WILD HORSES. (5 reels). Star Rex. The only Pathe feature I have run and was able to get by without losing money. This is an extra good one. Tone, good. Sunday, yes. Special, yes. Audience appeal ninety-eight per cent. Small town class town of 300. Admission 10-25. Roy E. Cline, Osage Theatre (200 seats), Osage, Oklahoma.

SHIRLEY MASON
Fox star in "The Scarlet Honeymoon."

NANOOK OF THE NORTH. (6 reels). Star cast. As a good picture, this is a joke. My advice to anyone with good common sense is to stay away from it. If you must run it, move out of town for a while. What is it about anyway? No tone at all. Sunday, no day. No appeal. Mitchell Conery, Conoat Projection Service, Menands, New York.

Principal

DARING YOUTH. Star, Bebe Daniels. A fairly good program show. The titles and some of the situations were funny and brought some hearty chuckles from our audiences. Pretty peppy show. Tone, fair. Appeal, good. Better class town of 4,500. Admission 10-15. C. A. Anglemire, "Y" Theatre (404 seats), Nazareth, Pennsylvania.

MINE WITH THE IRON DOOR. Star cast. Although strongly advertised as being a Harold Bell Wright story picture flopped at box office. General class city of 30,000. Admission 25-35. C. D. Buss, Strand Theatre (700 seats), Easton, Pennsylvania.

Producers' Dist. Corp.

FLAMING FORTIES. (5,770 feet). Star, Harry Carey. Very good picture. Pleased the patrons. Tone, good. Sunday, yes. Good appeal. Farmers and merchants town of 1,650. Mrs. J. B. Travelle, Elite Theatre, Placerville, California.

LEGEND OF HOLLYWOOD. (5,414 feet). Star cast. Just a good program picture and we can't kick as others will make up for the ones not so strong. Buy all Producers, boys. You can't go wrong. A. D. Steele, Empress Theatre, Smithfield, Utah.

OLD FOOL. (6,147 feet). Star cast. Very good show; acting was good until the last reel; I thought they were very poor in the wild West stuff, the rest was good. Tone, good. Sunday, yes. Not suitable for a special. Fair audience appeal. Small town class and farmers town of 600. Admission 10-20, 10-30. H. W. Batchelder, Galt Theatre (175 seats), Galt, California.

RAMSHACKLE HOUSE. (6,257 feet). Star cast. Swell. We have all good comments and are pleased to tell you that we made more money on this one than any other picture in 1924. A. D. Steele, Empress Theatre, Smithfield, Utah.

ROARING RAILS. (5,753 feet). Star cast. Keep them coming. They can't be beat; always fine service from Producers and a real bunch in office to do business with. A. E. Steele, Empress Theatre, Smithfield, Utah.

TIGER THOMPSON. (5,700 feet). Star, Harry Carey. This one is another good Carey and it is as good as the "Lightning Rider" and it was some picture. Sunday, no. Special, no. Good audience appeal. Working class city of 14,000. Admission 10-20. G. M. Bertling, Favorite Theatre (195 seats), Piqua, Ohio.

WELCOME STRANGER. (6,618 feet). Star cast. A treat of laughter for any house. The more we can get like this the better people will like pictures. W. L. Duncan, Y. M. C. A. Theatre, Carneys Point, New Jersey.

United Artists

GARRISON'S FINISH. Star, Jack Pickford. Here is a clean cut racing story that all the countryside will like. We couldn't find anyone who didn't praise it to the skies. For boys and girls, it was of the type that you like to have them see, for they will come back for more. A beautiful print was sent to us. It is a great buy every way you look at it. L. E. Smith, Town Hall, Pittsford, Vermont.

ROBIN HOOD. Star, Douglas Fairbanks. This was the finest picture ever put before our townspeople and even though it cost us a lot of money, we made lots. The school co-operated with us and the young people had a real lesson in history. It was a picture full of buoyancy and the kind that left a good taste in everyone's mouth. Can't say too much for it. L. E. Smith, Town Hall, Pittsford, Vermont.

Universal

BIG TIMBER. (4,650 feet). Star, William Desmond. A fairly good picture of the timber country with action galore. However, not a bit better than many others of the same type. T. L. Barnett, Finn's Theatre, Jewett City, Connecticut.

HOOK AND LADDER. (6 reels). Star cast. Good program picture. Tone, good. Sunday, yes. Box office good. Elite Theatre, Placerville, California.

HOOK AND LADDER. (6 reels). Star, Hoot Gibson. Nothing to brag about. Hoot don't seem to please like he used to. However, this picture has some comedy and a few clever Sunday, unless Hoot is a favorite. Fair audience appeal. All classes town of 1,900. Admission 10-25, 10-20. J. E. Hubbell, Palace Theatre, (325 seats), Worthington, Indiana.

LEW FIELDS
Co-starring with Joe Weber in "Friendly Enemies" for Producers Distributing Corporation release.

HUNCHBACK OF NOTRE DAME. (11,000 feet). Star, Lon Chaney. One of the greatest pictures I have ever run. Pleased all. Work of Chaney marvelous. Buy it and boost it. Tone, okay. Sunday, yes. Special, yes. Best audience appeal. Town and country class town of 1,000. Admission 10-25. C. R. Seff, New Radio Theatre (250 seats), Correctionville, Iowa.

RIDE FOR YOUR LIFE. (5,310 feet). Star, Hoot Gibson. Poorest picture Universal or Hoot has given me in a long time. At that, a fair western that will please those who can overlook, not see the silly plot. Tone, good. Sunday, yes. Special, no. Audience appeal, sixty-five per cent. Small town class town of 2,500. Admission 10-25. A. L. Middleton, Grand Theatre (500 seats), DeQueen, Arkansas.

RIDE FOR YOUR LIFE. (5,318 feet). Star cast. Good program picture. Tone, good. Sunday, yes. Box office good. Elite Theatre, Placerville, California.

SIGNAL TOWER. (6,714 feet). Star, Virginia Valli. One of the best pictures produced. Very good business. General class city of 30,000. Admission 25-35. C. D. Buss, Strand Theatre (700 seats), Easton, Pennsylvania.

TORNADO. (6,576 feet). Star, House Peters. A real picture if you advertise it. Ending bad. Comes out of the climax too soon. Mixed class city of 15,009. Admission 25-30. Herbert A. Shaw, Metropolitan Theatre (1,300 seats), Morgantown, West Virginia.

Vitagraph

BORROWED HUSBANDS. (7,000 feet). Star, Florence Vidor. Fair program picture. Story rather far fetched. Some said they liked it, others said not so good. Good crowd drawing title, however. Tone, medium. Sunday, no. Special, no. Audience appeal, fifty per cent. All classes town of 6,000. Admission 10-20-30. Frank H. Wotton, Park Theatre (600 seats), Lebanon, New Hampshire.

CAPTAIN BLOOD. (10,680 feet). Star, J. Warren Kerrigan. This is indeed a wonderful picture. A great story and some wonderful acting. Just a little draggy in a few places, but it will hold your interest all the way through, if it could have been condensed about one reel it would be a knockout. The trouble with it is, it is too high class for a great many. Tone, fine. Sunday, yes. Excellent audience appeal. All classes

JOE WEBER
Starring in "Friendly Enemies," released by Producers Distributing Corporation.

town of 1,900. Admission 10-25, 10-20. J. E. Hubell, Palace Theatre (325 seats), Worthington, Indiana.

MAN NEXT DOOR. (7 reels). Star cast. A very interesting story of blue blood against red blood. The children marry and settle the blood question. Working class city of 1,000,000. Admission 10-15-20. W. C. Budge, Comedy Theatre (297 seats), Jamaica, New York.

Warner Bros.

BEING RESPECTABLE. (7,500 feet). Star, Monte Blue. Like all the rest of the Warner Brothers' pictures we have got. A good one, but failed to draw. Through no fault of the picture. Seemed to please the few who saw it. Tone, very good. Sunday, yes. Audience appeal, eighty-five percent. Admission 10-25. S. A. Hendrix, Princess Theatre, Cotton Plant, Arkansas.

HER MARRIAGE VOW. (7,100 feet). Star cast. A different eternal triangle story that gets under the skin but has good comedy relief and pleased my folks immensely. Great deal better than I expected. Tone, good. Sunday, yes. Special, yes. Audience appeal, one hundred percent. Small town class of 2,500. Admission 10-25. A. L. Middleton, Grand Theatre (500 seats), DeQueen, Arkansas.

LOVER'S LANE. (6,000 feet). Star cast. Very good little program picture adapted from Clyde Fitch's popular play and story. Good work on the part of Gertrude Olmstead and rest of cast. Tone, okay. Suburban class town of 2,000. Admission 10-30. H. Warren Rible, Mayfield Theatre (210 seats), Mayfield, California.

MARRIAGE CIRCLE. (8,500 feet). Star cast. A positive hit that will register anywhere. One of the cleverest pictures of the decade. Handsomely done, ably acted and superbly directed. Tone, okay. Sunday, yes. Special, yes. High appeal. Best class city of 14,000. Admission 10-35. E. W. Collins, Grand Theatre (700 seats), Jonesboro, Arkansas.

PRINTER'S DEVIL. (7 reels). Star, Wesley Barry. Fair program picture not nearly so good as "George Washington, Jr." But rambles along and creates a good deal of laughter by burlesquing small town people. Tone, good. Sunday, yes. Special, no. Audience appeal, ninety per cent. Small town class town of 2,500. Admission 10-25. A. L. Middleton, Grand Theatre (500 seats), DeQueen, Arkansas.

TENTH WOMAN. (5,250 feet). Star, June Marlow. They spoke well of this and pleased, fair business. A good sample of putting a feature in six reels and no dragging. Tone, okay. Sunday, yes. Special, no. Good audience appeal. Family and student class town of 4,000. Admission 10-25. R. J. Relf, Star Theatre (600 seats), Decorah, Iowa.

Comedies

ANDY'S TEMPTATION. (Universal). This one proved to be the best of this series; kept them laughing from start to finish. Print new. Tone, okay. Sunday, yes. Good audience appeal. All classes in big city. Admission ten cents. Stephen G. Brenner, Eagle Theatre (298 seats), Baltimore, Maryland.

BARNUM JR. (Educational). A good comic—second reel is very funny. All classes town of 2,800. Admission 15-25. D. W. Strayer, Mt. Joy Theatre (250 seats), Mt. Joy, Pennsylvania.

CAT'S MEOW. (Mack Sennett). Star, Harry Langdon. This is a wow. Star and stunts original. This bird Langdon introduced in this comedy as an open faced youth lives up to the name and sure gets the laughter. Tone, good. Sunday, yes. Audience appeal, one hundred per cent. Small town class town of 2,500. Admission 10-25. A. L. Middleton, Grand Theatre, (500 seats), DeQueen, Arkansas.

COLLEGE COWBOY. (Universal). Star, Joe Bonomo. Boys, here's a two reeler that is a riot. More thrills than a five reeler. Sunday, yes. Admission 15-25. E. C. Bays, Globe Theatre, Buena Vista, Virginia.

DOWN TO THE SEA IN SHOES. (Pathe). A regular laugh producer, very funny the whole way through. Run it, it will help many a week feature. Sunday, yes. All classes town of 2,800. Admission 15-25. D. W. Strayer, Mt. Joy Theatre (250 seats), Mt. Joy, Pennsylvania.

GEE WHIZ GENEVIEVE. (Pathe). Star, Will Rogers. Best we have had for some time with this star. Business and farming class town of 2,200. Admission 10-25. A. F. Jenkins, Community Theatre, David City, Nebraska.

GO EASY. (Educational). Star, Cliff Bowes. Not a laugh in it. Full of old moth eaten gags that everybody has seen before. A very poor Cameo comedy, but they have some good ones, too. Tone, okay. Poor audience appeal. Better class town of 4,500. Admission 10-15. C. A. Anglemire, "Y" Theatre (404 seats), Nazareth, Pennsylvania.

GRANDPA'S GIRL. (Educational). Star cast. An average Christie comedy. Everybody seemed to enjoy it. It had some good comedy situations in it. Print was in excellent shape as usual. Tone, okay. Fair audience appeal. Better class town of 4,500. Admission 10-15. C. A. Angelmire, "Y" Theatre (404 seats), Nazareth, Pennsylvania.

HIGHBROW STUFF. (Pathe). Star, Will Rogers. This is a dandy little comedy that no one can object to and that everyone will enjoy. It is a take off on the "highbrow" drama as considered higher class than the movie and has many clever situations. Tone, fine. Sunday, yes. Universal audience appeal. Universal class town of 3,200. Admission 10-20-30. Charles Lee Hyde, Grand Theatre, Pierre, South Dakota.

Boosts Blank

Says Steve—Stephen G. Brenner, Eagle Theatre, Baltimore, Maryland, of the revised report blank:

"This report blank is an improvement on the former styles.

"Thanks are due to friend Davis."

HUSTLIN' HANK. (Pathe). Star, Will Rogers. Fair comedy. Small town class and farmers town of 800. Admission 10-25. Welty & Son, Mid-Way Theatre (500 seats), Hill City, Kansas.

LODGE NIGHT. (Pathe). "Our Gang." This is a very good comedy. One of the best on this series. A good comedy for Saturday, especially, as the children will like it. Tone, good. Sunday, yes. Appeal, very good. Junior class town of 1,000. Mitchell Conery, Conoat Projection Service, Menands, New York.

MY FRIEND. (Educational). The first reel not so good but the second is a scream. Run it with a weak feature and they will be pleased. Sunday, yes. All classes town of 2,800. Admission 15-25. D. W. Strayer, Mt. Joy Theatre (250 seats), Mt. Joy, Pennsylvania.

PLEASANT JOURNEY. (Pathe). "Our Gang." Only fairly amusing. Not up to the consistent standard of these comedies. Tone, good. Sunday, yes. Good audience appeal. Mitchell Conery, Conoat Projection Service, Menands, New York.

TOOTSIE WOOTSIE. (Educational). A dandy comedy. Everybody had a good word for this comedy. Glad we had it to help along a weak sister feature. Tone, okay. Audience appeal, fine. Better class town of 4,500. Admission 10-15. C. A. Anglemire, "Y" Theatre (404 seats), Nazareth, Pennsylvania.

TROUBLE FIXER. (Universal Century Comedy). Star, Wanda Wiley. Just fair. A few laughs but mostly forced situations. Small town class town of 2,500. Admission 10-25. A. L. Middleton, Grand Theatre (500 seats), DeQueen, Arkansas.

Serials

FAST EXPRESS. (Universal). Star, William Duncan. The best serial in two years. Only criticism is their old method of repeating two hundred feet of the preceding episode each time. Wonder how long we'll have this. Tone, good. Sunday, yes. Audience appeal, one hundred per cent. Small town class, town of 2,50. Admission 10-25. A. L. Middleton, Grand Theatre (500 seats), De Queen, Arkansas.

WOLVES OF THE NORTH. (Universal). Star, William Duncan. The poorest serial,

That good scout, O. J. Ramey, drops out through selling his theatre to Mr. Charles MacFadden. We will miss friend Ramey. Hope Mr. MacFadden will jump in and help out with tips.

Lee. D. Balsly quits reporting because he is distributing Western pictures. Manager Stebbins, of the Liberty, is invited to give a hand. We'll all appreciate his tips.

William Duncan has ever made. No pep. Too slow. Has no drawing power. Has some pretty snow scenes in it. Audience appeal, seventy per cent. Admission 10-25. S. A. Hendrix, Princess Theatre, Cotton Plant, Arkansas.

Short Subjects

AESOP'S FABLES. (Pathe). These have the desired effect we are looking for, namely adding a little spice in the beginning of the show to set every one feeling good. They do it too. L. E. Smith, Town Hall, Pittsford, Vermont.

FIGHT AND WIN. (Universal). Boys, don't book this just because you are a supporter of champion Dempsey the prize fighter. Jack is okay in the ring but on the screen he is a lemon. His popularity will draw 'em for a few episodes but no more. In fact his "mug" will keep them away. He's a corking good fighter but a poor actor and a poorer drawing attraction on the screen. H. N. Lamere, Hammond Theatre, Ludlow, Vermont.

GO GETTERS. (F. B. O.) O'Hara and Vaughn. A good comedy drama. Can't go wrong on buying it. Tone, good. Sunday, yes. Audience appeal, ninety-five per cent. Farm and city class. Admission 15-30. Robert W. Hines, Hines Theatre (150 seats), Loyalton, South Dakota.

PATHE NEWS. (Pathe). Never heard a kick in a year's showing. On the other hand, have had some fine compliments on this News. Heard a small boy say one day "If you've got the News tonight I'm coming." The football scenes in season suited us to a T, in fact all the sports do. L. E. Smith, Town Hall, Pittsford, Vermont.

SHE'S IN AGAIN. (Pathe). A very good picture. A cartoon that is very clever, etc. This is the one that shows "raining cats and dogs." Tone, good. Sunday, yes. Good audience appeal. Junior class town of 1,000. Mitchell Conery, Conoat Projection Service, Menands, New York.

SAGEBRUSHING THROUGH YELLOWSTONE PARK. (Vitagraph). A very interesting picture showing the natural wonders of this National Park. It is not a scenicly beautiful picture as there are no particularly finished tints but it is interesting. Tone, good. Sunday, yes. Good appeal. Junior class town of 1,000. Mitchell Conery, Conoat Projection Service, Menands, New York.

Independents

BATTLING FOOL. (State Right). Star, William Fairbanks. Mighty good program picture. Lots of action, and drew applause. Smiling Bill at last has a director, and he is coming fast. He's a new star for us, but is making a fine impression. Tone, good. Sunday, no. Special, no. Audience appeal, seventy-five per cent. All classes town of 6,000. Admission 10-20-30. Frank H. Wotton, Park Theatre (600 seats), Lebanon, New Hampshire.

BRINGING HOME THE BACON. (State Right). Star, Buffalo Bill Jr. Here is the coming western star that has got everything. He makes you like westerns. Sunday, no. Special, no. Good audience appeal. Working class city of 14,000. Admission 10-20. G. M. Bertling, Favorite Theatre (195 seats), Piqua, Ohio.

FIGHTING THROUGH. (State Right). Star, Bill Patton. Will get by as an ordinary western, and please the western fans. Tone, good. Sunday, no. Special, no. Audience appeal, fifty-five per cent. Small town class town of 300. Admission 10-25. Roy E. Cline, Osage Theatre (200 seats), Osage, Oklahoma.

FOOLISH VIRGIN. (State Right). Star, Elaine Hammerstein. Three days to only average business. Not a very strong picture. General class city of 30,000. Admission 25-35. C. D. Buss, Strand Theatre (700 seats), Easton, Pennsylvania.

FOR YOU MY BOY. (State Right). Star cast. This is an old one, but a very fair picture without a love story. It is clean, and wholesome, and if the audience doesn't rave about it, they won't slam it. Tone, good. Sunday, no. Special, no. Audience appeal, fifty per cent. All classes town of 6,000. Admission 10-20-30. Frank H. Wotton, Park Theatre (600 seats), Lebanon, New Hampshire.

GETTING HER MAN. (State Right). Star cast. Nothing extra. Will please the western fans, if you can get them in. I could not on account of title. Tone, good. Sunday, no. Special, no. Audience appeal, fifty per cent. Small town class town of 300. Admission 10-25. Roy E. Cline, Osage Theatre (200 seats), Osage, Oklahoma.

HELION. (State Right). Star, J. B. Warner. Not much of a picture. Poor title. Star does not draw here. Average attendance. Tone, none. Sunday, no. Audience appeal, seventy percent. Admission 10-25. S. A. Hendrix Princess Theatre, Cotton Plant, Arkansas.

LOOPED FOR LIFE. (State Right). Star, Art Acord. Not as good as "Fighting For Justice." Star's previous picture but will please western fans. Print new. Tone, okay. Sunday, no. Good appeal. All classes in big city. Admission ten cents. Stephen G. Brenner, Eagle Theatre (298 seats), Baltimore, Maryland.

"Get out of here," commands Viola Dana to Eddie Phillips when he demands she give him part of the money she received as prize winner in "The Beauty Prize," the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production in which she plays the leading role.

NOTORIETY. (State Right). Star cast. A good drama with a little of everything in it. Will do for anybody's house. Can't go wrong on this one. Tone, good. Sunday, yes. Special, no. Good audience appeal. Working class city of 14,000. Admission 10-20. G. M. Bertling, Favorite Theatre (195 seats), Piqua, Ohio.

RAINBOW RANGERS. (Arrow). Star, Pete Morrison. A real good western, more laughs than a five reel comedy. Admission 15-25. E. C. Bays, Globe Theatre, Buena Vista, Virginia.

RIDING MAD. (Arrow). Star, Yakima Canutt. Canutt sure is a good rider. I hope he'll win the next rodeo. Sunday, yes. Special, yes. Admission 15-25. E. C. Bays, Globe Theatre, Buena Vista, Virginia.

ROUGH RIDIN' (Artelass). Star, Buddy Roosevelt. Fairly good average western. Tone, okay. Sunday, yes. Audience appeal, seventy per cent. City of 200,000. Admission 10-20. R. M. Kennedy, Royal Theatre (350 seats), Birmingham, Alabama.

SLOW AS LIGHTNING. (State Right). Star, Kenneth McDonald. Boys, here is another new star and believe me he is going to surprise you by filling your seats. This is a fair story and has a very good supporting cast. Lots of comedy and stunts. Tone, okay. Sunday, no. Good audience appeal. All classes in big city. Admission ten cents. Stephen G. Brenner, Eagle Theatre (298 seats), Baltimore, Maryland.

SOULS IN BONDAGE. (State Right). Star cast. To those exhibitors hard pressed for a Sunday drama they will find this one well suited for any audience. Tone, good. Sunday, yes. Good appeal. Working class city of 100,000. Admission 10-15-20. W. C. Budge, Comedy Theatre (275 seats), Jamaica, New York.

WOMEN AND GOLD. (State Right). Star cast. Fine picture but made for small houses. No good for large houses. Special, no. Good audience appeal. Mixed class city of 15,009. Admission 25-30. Herbert A. Shaw, Metropolitan Theatre (1,300 seats), Morgantown, West Virginia.

Now Booking

The funniest farce in 40 years

"CHARLEY'S AUNT"

with Syd Chaplin

PRODUCED BY
CHRISTIE FILM COMPANY, INC.
IDEAL FILMS LTD. DISTRIBTORS FOR UNITED KINGDOM
RELEASED BY
Producers Distributing Corporation

SELLING the PICTURE to the PUBLIC

EDITED BY EPES WINTHROP SARGENT

Southern Enterprises Managers Obtain Better Results from Smaller Spending

AT the convention of Southern Enterprises, held in Atlanta a couple of weeks ago, one of the most interesting speeches was that made by Lem L. Stewart, director of exploitation.

Most of the talks were upon the future plans, but Lem gave a review of what had been done and the highlight of his speech was the fact that in 1924 the houses had effected a reduction of about 5 per cent. in their advertising and exploitation costs.

This was in the face of rising newspaper rates and slightly increased costs for accessories and was attributed by the speaker to the improved class of advertising done, since the receipts were greater, while the costs were one-twentieth less.

The cost was divided between newspaper work and all other forms of advertising and exploitation almost equally. There was a difference of less than $100 between the two sums.

Better Work Counted

Under the system obtaining a couple of years ago, the rising space costs would have made the newspaper work cost about two-thirds of the entire sum instead of practically half. As it is, the five per cent. reduction in space cost represented considerably more than a five per cent. reduction in space taken. Probably a 25 per cent. reduction in the area of space taken would be closer to the figure, and yet the results were decidedly more profitable.

To state it in other terms, using three-fourths of the previous space, but employing better copy and more attractive display, brought better financial results.

This was the highlight in the speech, for this is one of the points on which Lem has strenuously and consistently fought.

This would be only of passing interest did it apply to the Southern Enterprises alone, but it proves in terms of figures what applies to every house in every town. It is not quantity but quality which counts, though quality applies equally to copy and display.

Two or three years ago there was no general rule as to advertising. Newspaper spaces would creep up and up until a full page was necessary to mark the big production.

Smaller Spaces Work

Today better results are obtained with a practical maximum of a quarter page and a minimum of two single column inches. If more than a quarter page is taken, the result is gained through co-operation with merchants, which costs the house nothing more than a few ticket prizes or a relatively modest outlay of cash.

Smaller spaces, better written and better displayed, bring greater results than carelessly prepared full pages.

The Right Angle

Much of this result has been due to a better appreciation on the part of the resident managers of the need for the proper audience appeal. The 1924 copy was written from the local slant rather than as an adaptation of prepared campaign book copy, and every line counted for sales.

Much the same applies to the handling of accessories. Save in isolated instances the use of windshield stickers, steering wheel hangers and similar irritants has been abandoned. Where stickers are used they are applied with the permission of the car owner, and he does not find his driver's seat and steering gear cluttered with a lot of stuff that must be removed. The merchant adaptation of the car advertising stunt has resulted in what was a novelty becoming a first class nuisance

Car advertising today has at least a passive if not an actively negative result.

Lithographic Practise

More care has been used in the selection of lithographic material. Paper which will not only not sell but perhaps create a bad impression is avoided in favor of better pieces, and in most places a lithograph stays up for a full week, since it has been shown that paper does not become fully effective if displayed only for a day or two.

More care has been exercised in the selection of the stands. The poor ones have been eliminated. A good stand is required or paper is not used, since it has been demonstrated that good paper is wasted in a poor location and does not pay its cost.

To sum up the entire speech, the better the advertising the better the return and the smaller the cost.

Mr. Stewart was speaking only of his own circuit, but precisely the same thing applies to all houses, independent or chain.

And Lem might have added with entire truth that he was importantly responsible for the improvement through his constructive letters and criticisms. When he prepared for this speech he got out two portfolios, one of good and one of poor newspaper advertisements, and he had to go outside the circuit for the poor examples.

Hooked Hardware

Two hardware stores responded to the suggestion of the American Theatre, Evansville, Ind., on True As Steel, the general idea being that the steel in the tools on display was as good as the Metro-Goldwyn release to which they were tied. One of the stores also bannered its delivery truck to carry along the idea. Almost any hardware store will fall for this idea.

A Pro-Dis-Co. Release

A NICE WAY TO SELL MIAMI ON A SNOWY WEEK IN DECEMBER. IT COMES FROM HARRISBURG

The Victoria Theatre made three sand piles in the lobby, peopled these with cutout bathing girls and asked, "Why go to Florida when you can see Miami here for thirty cents?" We don't believe that it hurt the sale of any railroad tickets to the South, but it certainly did run up the attendance at the Victoria on this Producers Distributing picture.

R. Al. Jones Has Chaucer Licked

R. Al. Jones, of the Victory Theatre, Providence, R. I., sends in a poem on a four-page herald on So This is Marriage that beats anything Chaucer ever wrote for poor spelling. The last line reads "When they see So This Is Marriage." If you have nothing to do for a couple of days you can work out the rest of it from this hint.

When fur stews can this seal Leer Im,
Toot rye toom ache theme e'en ink Lear,
Youth inked wood bee but weigh sting thyme,
Use eh, "It's imp lean on scents sheer."

Gnome atter, Anna ies align,
Nation mice lender verse says knot,
Fork rip tick poet real Ike mine,
How Arron weal Delymeans allot.

Rest less Maud earn flap purr why hives,
Li Ving Inn tea his Jay as Dan Sing age,
We ill bee caw sh U. S. how tea hay by and Dely.
When tea hay sea "Sew tea hisis Ma rye age."

Above is the legend "Can you make this rhyme? This is not" and below the verses is "A cross word puzzle. So This is Marriage." The front is printed up "Intention of Marriage" with other text conforming to the Providence preliminary to the marriage license. Inside it is straight advertising for the picture.

It's good stuff if you don't go crazy over it. It's good stuff if you do.

Stage Wedding

J. C. Wodetsky recently took the management of the Liberty Theatre, Terre Haute, Ind., and to make a splash he arranged a stage wedding for The Marriage Circle, working along the usual lines.

Some twenty merchants contributed presents including the wedding supper and the first week's laundry, and then went into a cooperative page to tell all about it, giving a very effective double truck.

It's an old stunt, but where it is new it still has a wonderful pull on public interest, and of course the newspapers take up whatever interests the public; particularly when they stand to get a double page ad out of the idea.

Made Own Props for An America Prologue

Harry Steel, of the People's Theatre, Greenville, Miss., broke all his records with America, but he helped the picture with his local production.

You will recall that he has an unorganized, but very complete, local stock company, and he made an unusually large presentation for this picture, employing some forty persons. He got a Patriotic Pageant that got two thirds of a column for review and a lot of preliminary notice.

Mr. Steel has no cinch putting these productions on, for he cannot send around the corner and hire what he wants. For example, for the tableau of The Spirit of '76 he had to make his own old time drums out of pasteboard, and lacking a continental flag with thirteen stars, he made one of paper that looked as well as bunting.

He also made a heavy prologue production for Dorothy Vernon, while a double truck co-op was his best bet for Peter Pan.

These three all came the same week, and Mr. Seel not only swung them all, but in the absence of his leader, who was ill, he had to handle the orchestra, which came easy, because he had had experience.

Production Hints from Edward L. Hyman

Managing Director, Mark-Strand Theatre, Brooklyn

COLLEEN MOORE'S production, "So Big," served as the inspiration for an atmospheric prologue that went over with a bang in Brooklyn, the two incidents providing the major part of a show which had six incidents altogether. "So Big" required one hour and thirty-four minutes in the telling, while the prologue that immediately preceded it and was tied up to it by means of a scrim took up ten minutes. The other four numbers of the show were the overture, Flowtow's "Merry Wives of Windsor," a tenor aria, a xylophone speciality and the Topical Review. The whole performance covered two hours and eight minutes.

Selections from "Merry Wives of Windsor," running eight minutes, was the overture, with the following lights: One rose-pink Mestrum flood of 160 amperes and one lemon Mestrum flood, both from the dome, on musicians from each side, meeting at center; two violet Mestrum floods from the booth covering orchestra; light pink and lemon entrance spots hitting the top of set and ceiling drapes; arch spots of rose-pink and green blending on the silver draw curtains of production stage; blue borders on orchestra stage.

Operatic tenor sang the aria, "Like a Dream," from Flotow's "Martha," on the apron of the big stage, lighted as follows: arch spots of rose-pink and green streaking the silver draw curtains of small stage; one violet flood at either side of orchestra; blue borders large stage, and orange spot on singer from the dome. Four minutes.

Harry Breuer, xylophonist, former vaudeville star and now in the thirty-five-piece orchestra here, did a turn on the production stage, called "Opera a la Carte." This was an operatic medley, jazzed in spots, with orchestra accompaniment. Setting was deep blue plush cyclorama used as back drop, with xylophone center stage draped in white satin upon which were sewed vari-colored rhinestones. Breuer wore all-white serge suit. From the booth two violet Mestrum floods covered the set and sparkled the gems. Four minutes for "Opera a la Carte," with "World Is Waiting for the Sunrise" and "Nola" put in as encores.

The atmospheric prologue was billed as Days of a Bye-gone Age, and opened with the orchestra playing Herbert's "Little Old New York" as the introduction. Opening scene showed a painted drop, a transparency, of an old city street. Inhabitants of grandmother's time were promenading, the women with their bustles, and one or two men with the high-wheel bicycle. The music went into Strauss' Polka and the premiere danseuse, one of the promenaders, danced to it, with a little comedy touch with the bustle. At finish of this the front lighting, which had been amber and orange floods from the booth, with spots of same color from the sides, dimmed out and lights came up behind the transparency to show the parlor of a home of the period. Props were old sofa, organ, pictures of relatives on the wall, fire-place, table, chairs, window curtains, etc. Seated and standing were three men and two women. First was "When the Corn Is Waving," by mixed quartette, then "I'm Alongin', Dear, for You," by tenor; "When Lights Are Low," by contralto; Quilting Party dance by ensemble to tune of "Arkansas Traveler," played by "fiddler," and "Sweetest Story Ever Told," by soprano. For "When Lights Are Low" all lights were dimmed out except magenta glow from the fireplace. For the final number all lights dimmed except pale blue, for moonlight, coming through open window upon the singer and those seated about. At final note the production was thrown on the screen to tie it up closely.

A First National Release

ONE OF THE SCENES IN THE HYMAN PROLOGUE ON SO BIG

See just above for a detailed description of this effective prologue, planned by Edward L. Hyman, of the Mark-Strand Theatre, Brooklyn. It created the proper atmosphere for the picture by taking the spectator back to the period of the play.

A First National Release

A NICE DISPLAY ON THE SEA HAWK FROM SWANKE

You miss the vivid coloring of this display, but you get a hint of the strength of the appeal. It is more elaborate than most of the displays from the Rialto, El Dorado, Ark., but it brought an exceptional four days' business, so it paid.

Gets Tent Show to Advertise His Show

Tent shows are poison to the established theatres, and most managers have a descending scale which winds up with pirates, sneak thieves, dogs and tent show managers.

When a tent show blew into Laredo, Texas, for a couple of weeks, Jack Rowley, of the Royal, Strand and Rialto, figured that he would only hurt his toes kicking at the visitors, so instead he passed the players into his matinees, and was glad they left him at least the matinees.

But on the first Saturday he reminded the manager that the tent show was to be closed Sunday and asked permission to advertise his Sunday show with cards on either side of the stage.

Permission was not only granted, but on the following Saturday, the closing night, the announcer of the show not only called attention to the cards for The Fighting Blade but put in a good word for Flowing Gold and told the audience that both First Nationals were well worth their while.

It brought a business that helped make up some of the loss on the previous weeks. That's better than grouching.

Evins' Inspiration

Shirt boards are old stuff and so are department store inserts. But J. G. Evins hooked the telegraph company to stuffers on Manhattan. They read: "Wire the Postal when wiring Manhattan, but see Richard Dix in Manhattan at the Lucas Theatre," and then he gave the dates.

It's a more limited circulation, but it's a good idea.

Repeated

For Our Hospitality it was suggested in the press book that an old fashioned high wheel bicycle would be a good perambulator to link to the suggestion of other days.

A surprisingly large number of high wheels were dug out of the cellars and attics and used for the promotion of the story. Now comes the Rivoli Theatre, La Crosse, Wis., to take a repeat. The same wheel was used, with the rider in a sailor's dress, to announce The Navigator. The revival was suggested by Morris Abrams, a Metro-Goldwyn exploiteer, who figured that those who had seen the first picture would be reminded of their laughs and hustle to see The Navigator. It appears to have been good dope.

Shifted It

"For the City That Never Sleeps" J. G. Evins, of the Lucas Theatre, Savannah, Ga., used a painting of the hereinbefore mentioned city, all lit up with a torchlight parade.

That was plenty good, but read the rest. When the play came along, he moved the display over to the Odeon with a paster for the Lucas, and he made a fresh display for the home lobby, killing two birds with one lobby display, if you don't mind mixed metaphors.

Pony Ballyhoo and Clowns Helped He

Loew's Palace Theatre, Washington, D. C., dug out an elaborate ballyhoo on "He Who Gets Slapped. The outfit consisted of a two-pony cart, with two pony outriders, a girl and five boys, one of the latter being an acrobat.

Costumed as clowns, they drove around the streets, blowing horns, using balloons and other germane noise makers, and for six days they were all over the shopping districts.

Five thousand clown hats were distributed through one of the newspapers and the paper also cooperated in two prize stunts. One was for the solution of a cross word puzzle, bearing on the production. The other was for the best filling in of the outlined face of the clown. Only the outlines were given and it remained for the contestants to fill in the features and give expression to the blank space.

This last is worth noting, for scores will essay to pencil in the features where one would attempt to make a complete clown drawing, and of course the greater number of contestants, the greater the interest in the idea.

Rates for Names

Not expecting to do a lot of business the week before Christmas, Frank H. Burns, of the Beacham Theatre, Orlando, Fla., put on a special matinee rate for Meighan in "Tongues of Flame."

Any woman could gain admission for half the usual price if she turned in a list of five names and addresses. It got him about 400 new names for his mailing list and more money than he would have taken in at full price.

Though not previously announced, each woman was given a fanfoto of Meighan, and the surprise made the gift seem much more valuable than would have been the case had it been promised.

A Paramount Release

FIND THE MIS-SPELLED WORD ON THAT BANNER AND GET A CIGAR

Just to help you get started, this is the front of the Kinema Club Theatre, Kobe, Japan, and the attraction is The Covered Wagon, which hung up a new record for Japan. The pictorial banner is partly cutout and partly native painting.

Old Material Is as Good as New

Arthur Swanke, of the Rialto Theatre, El Dorado, Ark., sends in a front on Dorothy Vernon, of Haddon Hall, which shows what can be done with scraps.

The basis of the display, the side pieces and banner, were first used on America, while the two men-at-arms were used for Barthelmess in The Fighting Blade, which was some time ago.

The side pieces were black and white with the men in white and grey, while the banner is black lettering on lavender and yellow quarterings.

It made a strong flash and got the picture off to a start that held up for the day run.

Make a note of that lavender and yellow for a color combination. That really is the best of Swanke's work. He seems to have a natural eye for unusual color combinations.

A United Artists' Release

A DOROTHY VERNON FRONT MADE OVER FROM OLD PARTS

This front of the Rialto Theatre, El Dorado, Ark., is remade from fronts on America and The Fighting Blade, but you would never know it after Arthur Swanke got through with the job. He gets some striking color schemes for his displays.

Silks for Sinners

The big smash on "Sinners in Silk" at the American Theatre, Evansville, Ind., was a window filled with silk dresses and liberally supplied with stills on the production. As this was worked during the holiday shopping period, the window got extra circulation, and at the same time the stills got the attention for the window. Two smaller displays of silk hosiery supplemented the large window, and 5000 laundry inserts were used.

Burns Enlarged a Store Display

Before he was ready to advertise Baby Peggy in "Captain January," Frank H. Burns, publicity man for the Beacham Theatre, Orlando, Fla., happened to pass a store in which there was a small display of Baby Peggy dresses.

He hustled in to see the advertising man and learned that he had intended to redress the window in a couple of days. When he learned that the little star was due presently, he changed his plans and instead of drawing out the display, the raised it to fill the entire window, with a supply of stills and other material supplied by Burns and with the announcement that Peggy would be seen very shortly.

He ran mention of the play in the store newspaper advertising for two days.

Seaside Campaign Is Made Standard

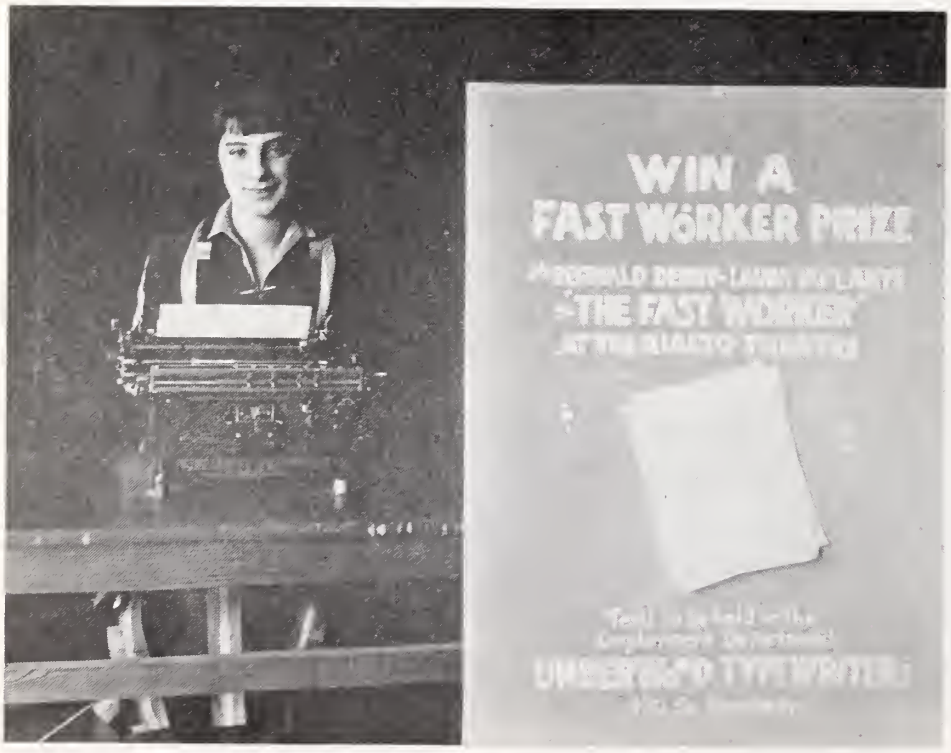
Most persons think of Coney Island and the Rockaways as Summer resorts, yet both of them have large, permanent populations, even though the merry-go-rounds and bathing houses may be boarded up after Labor Day.

The Strand Theatre, Rockaway, was selected as the tryout for "Is Love Everything?" and the campaign was so successful that it has been adopted by the Fox and Poli circuits as well as individual houses.

One interesting feature that should carry universal appeal is a special phonograph record, made by the Brunswick people, announcing the coming of the play and telling about it. It can be handled to suggest a radio announcement or used straight as a record.

A bombing plane distributed "Air Mail Lettergrams" about the play, the services of the plane and its pilot being obtained without cost as the owner wanted to try it out. Several well known residents were taken up for short flights.

Even more interesting—and practicable—was the presentation of several scenes from the play in the window of a vacant store. This window was set with furniture borrowed for a credit card, and several girls took part in the scenes in return for passes and experience. They also were driven around town in a bannered car. Here is a stunt that can be sized to fit any town. It combines the local talent appeal with the pull of the live persons in a show window, and has a direct bearing upon the play. Try it out. It's good.



A Universal Release

HELD SPEED CONTESTS FOR LOCAL FAST WORKERS

The employment department of the Los Angeles Underwood Agency held a contest in its window and gave ticket prizes to the ones who lived up to the title of the Universal play. It cost Grauman's only ten tickets for a fine window ballyhoo.

It will not always work, but the Amuse-U Theatre, Corpus Christi, Texas, took advantage of a "norther" just after Christmas to advertise Husbands and Lovers.

The town was frozen to the marrow and it responded to the appeal of "Come in. The picture is a warm one and so is the house." Lots of the patrons went in just to get warm, but they liked the picture, too.

A Principal Release

AN INTERESTING LOBBY MODEL ON THE MINE WITH THE IRON DOOR

This was built by Arthur W. Pinkham, of the Park Theatre, Bangor, Maine, who backed this with real Indians and a generally intensive campaign, including a special morning matinee for the children. The Indians also ballyhooed.

Had Real Indians for His Ballyhoo

It's a far drive from Maine to the Indian country, but there are a lot of Indians still in Maine and Arthur W. Pinkham used several, in blankets, for his ballyhoo on The Mine With the Iron Door when he played that at the Park Theatre, Bangor.

The Indians were permitted to offer tickets for the special Children's Matinee on Saturday to the pupils of the grade schools, and one of them stood around in the lobby in advance of the opening, handing out heralds. The braves were obtained from the Indian Branch of the local Boy Scouts; probably Pasamaquoddys.

Mr. Pinkham also constructed an unusually neat scene model for his lobby display, and writes that his art department gets out at least one good lobby display each week. If they are as good as this we hope that he sends more in, for this is very cleverly done, and nothing carries greater appeal than a miniature of any sort.

The Park is a unit of the William P. Gray Circuit and evidently Mr. Pinkham wants to prove that Edgar Hart is not the only hustler in the outfit.

A Flapper Contest on Wine of Youth

Working with the Sun Theatre, Buddy Hooton put over a number of good stunts on "Wine of Youth" for its Omaha run.

For one thing he revived the Flapper Contest and found it still to be in good working order. Motion pictures of the contestants were made and later were shown in the window of the Union Outfitting Company, which had donated the prizes in consideration of the use of this trade attractor. Balloting for the winners was done the following week, when "Circe the Enchantress" was the attraction. Each patron was supplied with a ballot to be cast for the preferred candidate, the film being run at each showing of Circe.

The contest and the times and places of showing were announced from the bandstand of the largest dance hall in town and here and at a somewhat smaller place 2,500 marriage license novelties were passed out.

Made Lobby Showing in House Rest Room

When In Hollywood with Potash and Perlmutter came to the Premier Theatre, Brooklyn, they found a studio that even the most exacting director must approve. The Premier is the leading house in the "Brownsville" section of Brooklyn, and Brownsville is almost wholly Jewish in population; one of those towns within a town such as abound in New York. It was felt that Potash and Perlmutter should make an especial appeal, and because of that the management decided to put it over as thoroughly as possible.

There is a rest room about 50 by 70 feet opening off the lobby and this was converted into a studio with the use of some spare scenery, such spot and flood lamps as were not being used and any other material that could be temporarily spared from an ample stage equipment.

It made a splendid flash and the legend on the strip over the top, which reads, "The Studio of Potash and Perlmutter in Hollywood," and the dated card in the set, announcing that this was a scene from the play, got everyone talking.

The Premier knows that the bigger the film, the better it will repay concentrated effort. It knows that it is better to spend money on the big things than to waste the same money in an effort to bolster up the weak offerings, and the idea worked out just that way with this engagement. They packed the house.

Got Much for $10

A. R. Lynch, of the Lyric Theatre, Jacksonville, had A Sainted Devil for a two day run, and he put it over to good business with a contest for the best reply to the question "Why is Valentino the most popular male star on the screen today?" In trying to win the $10, split $5, $3 and $2, the contestants sold themselves and their friends on the idea that he really was.

A clever stunt was to use extra paper, particularly 24-sheets, to create the impression of bigness, but a cooperative page saved the cost of extra advertising. He also got a front page box in one paper with a few passes for the usual classified ad hook-in.

If you are helped by any of these schemes, why not drop a line to the originator and thank him for the tip? He will appreciate it.

A First National Release

A GOOD LOBBY DISPLAY ON POTASH AND PERLMUTTER

This is not the front lobby, but a rest room off the main entrance. It belongs to the Premier Theatre, Brooklyn, and raiding the stage for extra props gave the ex-clothiers a very fancy studio for testing out their vamp applicants.

Gets Nice Effects With Pastel Work

Ben F. Caldwell, art director and production manager of the Circle Theatre, Indianapolis, sends in a photograph showing some of the pastel portraits he has made for lobby use. The picture of Mae Busch he is working on looks rather washy, because the color values do not show up, and in pastel it is the soft blends that give this medium its great charm. Over on the right is a picture of Barthelmess, while below is Mildred Harris, in charcoal.

A First National Release

WORKING IN PASTEL

This latter, which also was used for Frivolous Sal, shows up the best of the three, because the charcoal sketch values come out more distinctly, but the drafting in all three is excellent, and the effects are worth the extra trouble and the decidedly higher costs for Caldwell works in pastel and not in colored crayons, though pastel is merely a fine grade of crayon in the last analysis.

A Fox Release

HOW THEY VISION THE INFERNO IN JERSEY CITY

The lobby of the Central Theatre dressed for the showing of the Fox production. Red crepe paper dresses the ceiling, while a woman and three men work inside of a three-panel screen to get interest during the busy hours.

This will interest only the larger houses, but these certainly should be interested, for these posters are a material help to the Circle.

Played to Hubby

Just to be different the Pastime Theatre, Kansas City, upended an old stunt. To get attention for "The Signal Tower" Charles W. Goodell advertised that he would give free admission to any man who came accompanied by his wife.

Not many men could get off to the matinees, but they all read the advertisement and appreciated the kindly thought that men were entitled to the best of it now and then.

Printed a Puzzle in the Ad. Columns

Most managers lay off their cross word puzzles to some newspaper, but down in St. Louis the Skouras Brothers put theirs in the advertising columns, and then hitched it to their house publication by announcing that the answer would be printed in Screenings, which brought this issue to the attention of a number who were not receiving it regularly.

Several hundred replies were received, and 100 passes were awarded the best replies. As the picture was being shown at three houses, the Grand Central, West End Lyric and Capitol, the proportion to any one house was not extravagant.

Another stunt was the use of a card slotted to receive a Lincoln penny with the announcement that "this Lincoln penny and others just like it" would provide admission to any of the three theatres.

Effective lobby displays, mostly cutout, were made at the three houses.

A Vitagraph Release

NOVEL STILL FRAMES FROM PORTLAND ON CAPTAIN BLOOD

Blood sailed a long, low, rakish craft and these frames are built on the same lines. A tall man may have to go down on all fours in the lobby of the Rivoli Theatre, Portland, Oregon, but he is bound to notice this nice display.

Loaned the Cradle

When The Sea Hawk came to Florence, S. C., a local man loaned the Opera House one of the most novel lobby displays yet used in this picture.

Some years before the general contours of the galleon type had suggested to him the idea of a novel cradle for his first born, and this cradle, handsomely built in mahogany, was not only a good representation of the ships used in the play, but it carried a local and human interest appeal of unusual strength.

Pace and Bouma, of the Rialto Theatre, Pocahontas, Ia., send in copies of a compact little four page monthly program. We cannot reproduce because the examples are on colored stock, but we think that if you want a good model, they will be glad to send you one if you supply the return envelope.

Woodcut Style is Not Attractive

This odd use of a single column cut is from the Randolph Theatre, Chicago, where a single column three-inch has been set diagonally in a space sixty lines by two, or a trifle over a two fours. The placement rather than the cut is what gets the attention. The drawing seems to be an attempt to imitate the old style woodcut. This has been done with success in certain types of display, but here the drawing is out of proportion and suggests a monster rather than a hero, which of course would put the girl in an unpleasant predicament. It is the reverse of a pretty cut, yet it is difficult to say what the reaction of the public will be. It may help sales or it may hurt. It may suggest an unpleasant type of story; which The Tornado is not, but the chances are that the other sales efforts overcame this erroneous impression. One thing is certain. You cannot overlook the cut. Between the strength of the drawing and the display value of the white, it is the biggest thing on the page, regardless of the fact that there are not many larger spaces. In a Chicago paper you cannot well sell on involved reading matter. The city man skims over the paper. He does not read every line of it, as does his country cousin. He has to rush through the morning paper on his way to work and skin the evening edition on his way home. Sundays he has from two to four Sunday papers to look at, and he is not wasting time to read even the advertisements. In getting the city man you have to reach out of the sheet and slap him in the eye as he is turning the page. For this reason the somewhat uncouth Tornado cut is better than would be a better design with a lot of involved detail and no especial point of focus. In a small town you can use argument, but in the city you must sell at first glance or not at all, unless you build up the newspaper appeal with lithographs and stunts, and the stronger the flash the better, providing the flash is not repellant.

A Universal Release

A THREE IN TWO FOURS

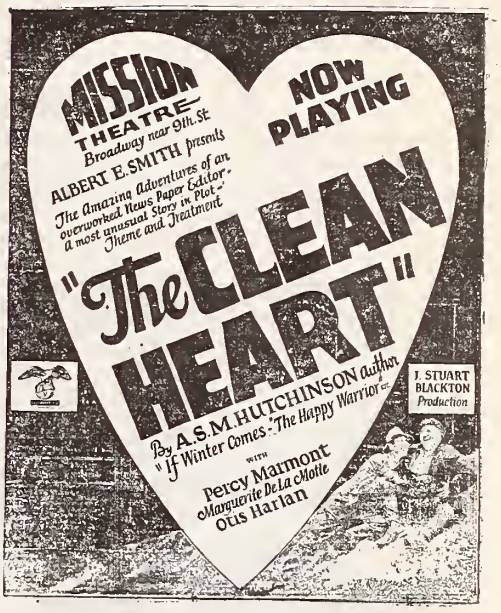
Manuscript Ad is Waster of Space

We think that most of the space in this three fours from the Sun Theatre, Omaha. is wasted. Hand writing seldom reproduces well and when it is reduced from the original size it is still less legible. Here it seems to form an attractor rather than a sales point, and combined with the up-ended regular display gets attention through novelty. If anyone takes the trouble to read it through there is little conviction. It probably carries some interest through being signed by Conrad Nagel, but properly this should be signed by the character played by Nagel, since he refers to his role and not his personal experience. The result is that the supposed letter is not convincing. We question whether it sold many tickets. Business probably came through the use of the player names and the appeal of the title, but the value of this letter, if any, is due almost wholly to the mechanical fact that it is in handwriting instead of type, and a cut probably would have brought a better result from this angle. This seems to be an effort to get something different, but poor copy and a none too legible handwriting combine to lower the value of the idea. Handwritten copy should be used only wherein it may be read with reasonable ease, and there should be a real message conveyed. This lacks the ring of conviction.

Well Shaped Ad Lacks the Punch

This design for The Clean Heart at the Mission Theatre, Los Angeles, it aptly selected, and demands immediate attention, but the invention seems to have stopped with the selection of the heart shape. The copy is weak and is handicapped by being lettered in, though in so large a space the mortising of type would have been a simple matter. Hand lettering is excusable in a small space, but in this four column width there was plenty of room for a mortise and type display. The text suggests that the copy writer knew that he was expected to fill the space, so he did, without enthusiasm or special appeal. "The amazing adventures of an overworked newspaper editor" is about as good a salesman as "A most unusual story in plot, theme and treatment." Neither section means anything in particular. There is no suggestion of real punch in the fact that the story is about a newspaper editor, and the second section might as well be kept in stock and cut off in lengths to fit the space. The Clean Heart means very little to the average reader. He cannot be sold that title unless it is in connection with the earlier success of If Winter Comes. Percy Marmont now means some-

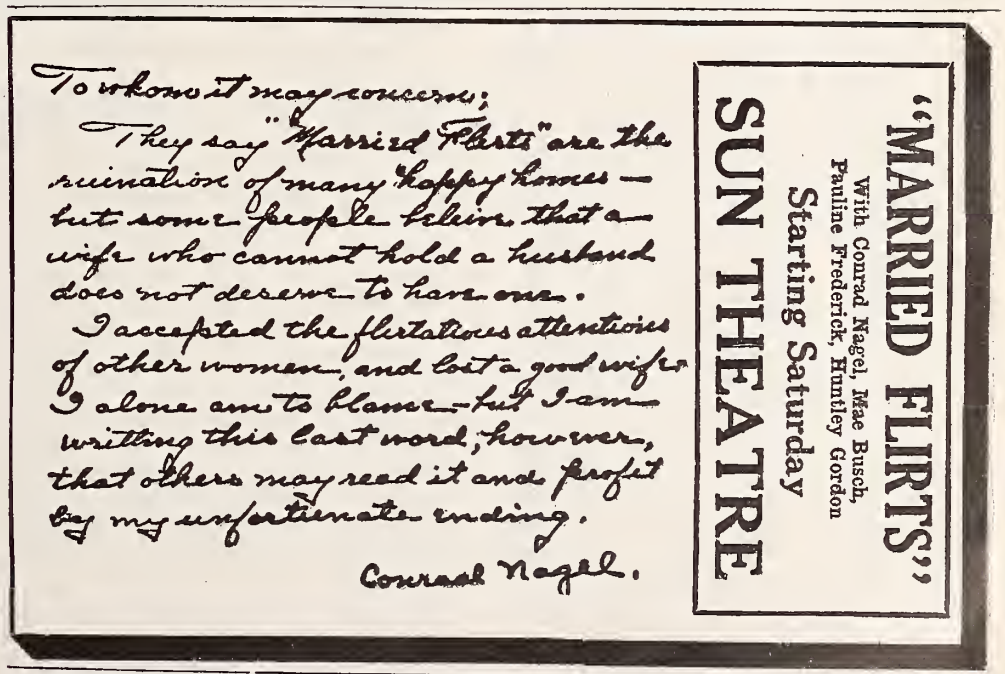


MISSION THEATRE
Broadway near 9th St
NOW PLAYING
ALBERT E. SMITH presents
The Amazing Adventures of an overworked News Paper Editor - a most unusual Story in Plot - Theme and Treatment
"The CLEAN HEART"
By A.S.M. HUTCHINSON author "If Winter Comes" - "The Happy Warrior" etc.
WITH
Percy Marmont
Marguerite De La Motte
Otis Harlan
J. STUART BLACKTON Production

A Vitagraph Release

A CAPITAL SHAPE AD

thing to the average fan, but he would mean more if the "with" had been reduced to permit more space between his name and that of Miss de la Motte. There is no display of anything but the title, and the title is the least valuable of the factors. It would have been well had the matter outside the shape been shifted. The Vitagraph trade mark could have been sunk to the bottom of the space over to the right, and the Blackton box moved over and placed lower down on the left where it could have been made larger. In the light of some of his recent productions, Mr. Blackton's name would have paid for a better display, and there is a large area of black over on the left where he could have given greater prominence. The Vitagraph trade mark is so blurred that the average



To whom it may concern:
They say "Married Flirts" are the ruination of many happy homes — but some people believe that a wife who cannot hold a husband does not deserve to have one.
I accepted the flirtatious attentions of other women, and lost a good wife. I alone am to blame — but I am writing this last word, however, that others may read it and profit by my unfortunate ending.
Conrad Nagel.
"MARRIED FLIRTS"
With Conrad Nagel, Mae Busch, Pauline Frederick, Huntley Gordon
Starting Saturday
SUN THEATRE

A Metro-Goldwyn Release

A NOT VERY SUCCESSFUL EFFORT TO GAIN ATTENTION WITH HANDWRITING

reader will not know what it is. Only those familiar with the marks will know what it is, for even a strong magnifying glass does not reveal the name clearly, and it is just a design in the original size. This display makes only about a thirty percent use of the available appeal.

Three Tint Ad is a Novelty

Taken by itself we don't think so much of this three tens from Loew's State Theatre, Los Angeles. Most of the talk is against a benday ground that sinks it in a little, and the effect of the two shades of black is to make the white in the oval suggest a grey. If we were dissecting this for a group of students we would tell them that this violated about every rule of proper display. This would be a theoretical truth, and yet it is equally true that this is an exceptionally good advertisement when you drop it into a page along with a lot of usual advertisements. It's so different that it is exceptionally good even though it does violate most of the rules of good display. No rule holds good more than ninety per cent. of the time, and by smashing a whole lot of traditions the press agent has achieved a striking effect. He had the good sense to hold his letters so large that they can fight up through the tint ground, but then if he had not possessed better than usual sense he would not have known that he could do so well with this, and probably would have stuck to the conventional. The only real chance he took was with the halftone, and this came through very nicely. He had to gamble on that, but he won. Had he lost, this still would have been a good display. However it naturally is better with a good cut. Selecting an oval for his black, and then placing an oval within this gives him a maximum amount of attention. The circle is supposed to be the best attractor, but the oval is practically as good, and this oval is emphasized by the lines in the white. All by itself it might not be so good, but it is good enough to go into the theatrical page and make the entire space merely a background to its own appeal. It takes careful handling to get such a result, but the main point is to be sure not to set any important lines in a letter so small that the tint cannot be overcome. Look to this as carefully as this pressman has done and you'll have a good result if you do break about nine of the ten commandments of advertising. .

A Metro-Goldwyn Release

IT GETS ATTENTION

Nice Arrangement in This Panel Set

No one would suppose that this was a Pittsburgh advertisement. It is, for Loew's Aldine Theatre in that city adapted this space, and gets a maximum of display. Placing each program item in its own panel gives an even exploitation to the smaller features as well as the film attraction without detracting from the latter. The value of this arrangement is that it gives big display to comparatively small type faces through isolation. You can run The Silent Accuser in letters twice as large to reach from side to side of the space, and you would get no greater appeal. Probably you would get less, for if the title were run over to the side rules it would then come into competition with the matter in the adjoining spaces, and it would not make as good a fight. Here the small faces are segregated in this panel of ruled lines, and if the title is well displayed within its space, it is as well displayed as though four times the space were taken to give it the same chance set up against competitive material. It's the same idea as white space. You set the type by itself, and the largest line in that space is the big display line, though it may not exceed an eighteen point. The type is not called upon to fight its neighbors, the white space looks after that. This virtually is a collection of four display advertisements under a single general heading, each giving good display to its particular offering. The entire space is about 9½ inches across three. A quarter page in the usual arrangement, would have given no greater display, and would have cost more than double. Panels against a white ground will work well, but this linear background is better still. But we are lost in amazement that Pittsburgh, of all places, should have gone to straight type where the panels had to be drawn. If we were handing out medals one certainly would go to the Aldine.

A Metro-Goldwyn Release

AN EFFECTIVE DESIGN

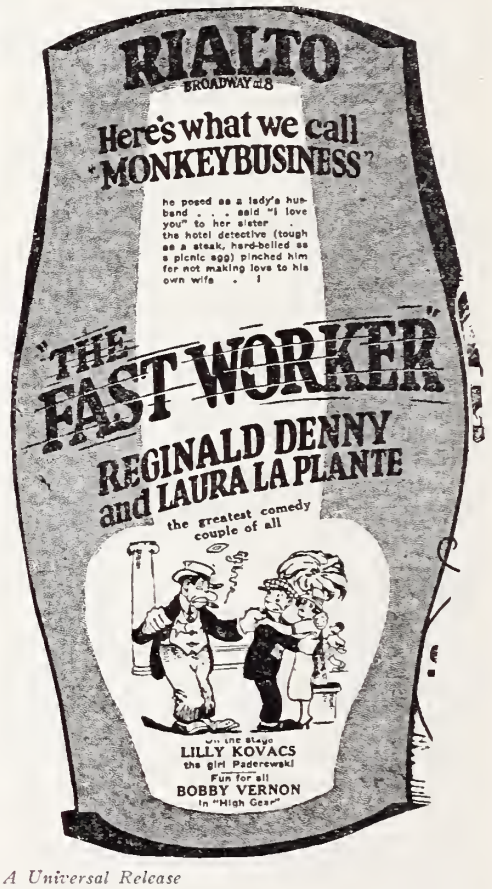
Odd Design is A Good Attractor

This is about a three nines from the Rialto Theatre, Los Angeles; evidently a portion of a combination display for the Grauman houses. It goes to show what attention an odd design will attract, and it would be even better if used singly in this form. But the design is merely a secondary



RIALTO
BROADWAY at 8
Here's what we call "MONKEYBUSINESS"
he posed as a lady's husband . . . said "I love you" to her sister . . . the hotel detective (tough as a steak, hard-boiled as a picnic egg) pinched him for not making love to his own wife . . .
"THE FAST WORKER"
REGINALD DENNY and LAURA LA PLANTE the greatest comedy couple of all LILLY KOVACS
the girl Paderewski
Fun for all
BOBBY VERNON
in "High Gear"

A Universal Release

SNAPPY COPY

matter to the text. Design alone seldom sells tickets. It can only draw attention to the copy, and that, if it is the right sort, will do the selling. This copy sells with a minimum of effort. That little bank in the centre, just above the title, tells you the gist of the plot without revealing it, and if you have a fair amount of curiosity you will wish to know more about it. Even in the style there is the suggestion of comedy in the lines: "He posed as a lady's husband. * * * Said I love you to her sister * * * the hotel detective, (tough as a steak, hard boiled as a picnic egg,) * * * pinched him for not making love to his own wife." That should give the average reader the idea that he could see something entertaining by going to the Rialto. It forms a decidedly good appeal and should have gotten the money.

NEWEST REVIEWS and COMMENTS

EDITED BY CHARLES S. SEWELL

"The Lady"

Norma Talmadge Remarkable in First National Picture Rich in Emotional Appeal

Reviewed by Sumner Smith

Norma Talmadge can go on and on. Her beauty is an added feature of her appeal, not the essence of it. When youthful roles are no longer her forte, she can still stir the emotions of her audiences in more mature parts. "Secrets" suggested this happy future for the First National star, and now "The Lady," an even more poignant and certainly smoother story, establishes it beyond the shadow of a doubt.

Men will like "The Lady" but women will go into ecstasies over it. That is because of its wealth of emotional appeal. Martin Brown's drama has a gripping story, a sure treatment of plot and a plenitude of incidental detail that both advances the plot and supplies beautiful characterization. In a word, it is well-knit, fascinating drama.

Though the story is told by the flash-back method, it does not suffer in coherence or intensity. The movement is smooth throughout and events telescope into a perfect unit of emotion.

Norma is marvelous as the woman bereft of her baby son by an unfeeling father-in-law. Through her life she searches for him, and while she is telling the story of her life he appears as a soldier involved in a cafe brawl. Then he proves himself a gentleman.

The characterization by Norma plays constantly upon two thoughts—mother love and a desire to be considered a lady. Norma handles these two phases quite as adeptly as the play provides them. She reaches heights of emotionalism hitherto unattained by her. And yet she never becomes banal or ultra-sensational. It is superb acting.

Perhaps Norma's finest work is in wandering the streets of London looking for her son, then in identifying him in the cafe. To her characterization of the old woman she lends, besides the skilled tricks of an expert actress, a definite spirituality that cannot be explained except as a part of Norma's personal self. Her attitudes are perfection, her facial expressions perfection, and there is that something else which touches them with fire and beauty.

Don't miss Norma in this. More than any picture we have seen in a long while, it seems like the sure combination of artistry and box office appeal. Especially will it thrill the women.

This has been all about Norma and the story. The other players are entitled to full recognition. Their roles are justly subordinated to hers, for each of them by contrast and inference develops her characterization and awakens the fullest measure of sympathy for her, and the picture would have missed fire if they had not been cleverly acted and a good appreciation of values shown by Director Frank Borzage. Therefore, Norma must share her triumph with such able artists as George Hackathorne, Margaret Seddon, Alf Goulding and Emily Fitzroy, to mention only a few of a splendid cast. Hackathorne is particularly fine. Though he has only one short series of scenes, where the mother discovers him to be her son, he will be remembered for his work in "The Lady."

Cast

Polly Pearl.....Norma Talmadge
Leonard St. Aubyns.....Wallace MacDonald
St. Aubyns, Sr.....Brandon Hurst
Tom Robinson.....Alf Goulding
Fannie LeClair.....Doris Lloyd
Freckles .....John Fox, Jr.
Mme. Chatellier.....Paulette Duval
Mme. Blanche.....Emily Fitzroy
John Cairns.....John Herdman
Mrs. Cairns.....Margaret Seddon
Mr. Grave.....Myles McCarthy
Leonard Cairns.....George Hackathorne
Mr. Wendover.....Marc McDermott
Blackie .....Walter Long

Story by Martin Brown.
Adapted by Frances Marion.
Directed by Frank Borzage.
Length, 7,357 feet.

Story

Polly Pearl, English music hall singer, marries Leonard St. Aubyns, scion of nobility, only to lose his love when his father casts him out. She ekes out a living in a dingy French cafe as entertainer. The elder St. Aubyns appears to claim her baby son after the death of its father, but Polly manages to have it spirited away by a minister's wife. Thereafter she endeavors to find the boy, searching the streets of London for weeks, but fails. As she is telling the story of her life in her French cafe, a brawl starts between an English soldier and a Frenchman. The Englishman's comrade in intervening accidentally shoots his friend and is himself knocked unconscious. From his identification tag Polly learns that he is her son. She tries to take upon herself the blame for the accident, but her son will not have it that way. To her delight he proves himself a gentleman, and this joy is added to her discovery of him.

Features Reviewed in This Issue

Cheaper to Marry (Metro-Goldwyn).
Fear-Bound (Vitagraph).
Folly of Vanity (Fox).
Forty Winks (Paramount).
Lady, The (First National).
Miss Bluebeard (Paramount).
Range Terror, The (F. B. O.).
Roaring Adventure (Universal).
Salvation Hunters, The (United Artists).
Tales of a Thousand and One Nights (Davis).

"Tales of a Thousand and One Nights"

Davis Distributing Division Presents French Version of an Arabian Nights Tale

Reviewed by Epes W. Sargent

Opulent oriental coloring seldom replaces plot-interest, and in this regard Davis Distributing Division's offering of the product of the Societie des Films Albatross, being released on the independent market, differs little from the others. These tales which have delighted the Arabs for centuries are too simple to carry sustained plot value. They are episodic and the characters are too unreal to win the sympathy that is lavished upon the poor but honest working girl or the flapper of our own day.

The story of Gul-y-Hanur is spectacle, rather than drama, but this is spectacle made in authentic locales. No California sand dune was pressed into service for the Sahara. The picture was made in the vicinity of Tunis and the studio interior sets are painted to match the actual interiors used in many of the scenes. The interiors suffer somewhat from a lack of sufficient illumination, but they always are interesting, and most of the exterior shots are of unusual beauty, though the photography here is often obscure.

The production has been made with care, but the story has been developed with a too slavish adherence to the original story, and the story covers too much ground to be condensed into proper feature length. The result is a series of illustrated episodes rather than an engrossing tale, and the spectacular side is thus made unduly important. The costuming is rich and the scenes are well peopled where the action calls for a mob, while Mlle. Kovanko, as the Princess, is a charming figure, properly youthful and yet an able actress, and Rimsky, as the Prince, is a manly though too exotic a figure. Janeau, a repulsive dwarf, who has been seen in other productions, walks away with the dramatic honors, though his role is comparatively a small one. He is about the only one who is given a chance really to act.

The director has concerned himself more with the pageant than the development of what dramatic idea there is. The story will interest as a novelty, but it will not class with the greatest of the foreign pictures.

Cast

Shahriar .....Mons. Ivanoff
Scheherazade .....Mlle. Boldireff
Caliph Abdelcadus.....Mons. Maillard
Princess .....Mlle. Kovanko
Sultan Mahmoud.....Mons. Maltzeff
Prince Soleiman.....Mons. Rimsky
Ibrahim, Vizier.....Mons. Olivier
Sultan Salamandra.....Mons. Bartkevitch
The Dwarf.....Mons. Janeau

Story from The Arabian Nights Entertainment
Directed by Mons. Tourjansky.
Length, 6,800 feet.

Story

Gul-y-Hanur, daughter of the Caliph Abdeleadus, goes to visit her sister, but is shipwrecked on an inhospitable coast where the worship of the One True God is a profanation of their own worship of Nardoun, and for her impiety she is given to the Prince Soleiman, son of the Sultan, who is secretly a professor of Islam. He aids her to escape, but his own apostacy being discovered, he is sentenced to death. Allah causes the impious inhabitants to turn to stone. Soleiman, left free, rejoins the princess and eventually they return to her own land, where the Caliph abdicates in favor of his new son-in-law.

"Roaring Adventure"

Jack Hoxie Stars in Another Excellent Universal Western Production

Reviewed by Sumner Smith

These Jack Hoxie productions certainly maintain a high average as western productions. "Roaring Adventure," the latest, is a worthy companion of all that have gone before. It presents Hoxie in "civies" rather than the conventional cowboy garb, but mingles him with a ranch and horses and the gray dust that trails galloping riders. As investigator of conditions on his father's ranch he is given a role that fits him perfectly.

Probably the best part of the picture deals with a gun fight between desperadoes trying to thieve cattle and a sheriff's posse. Here Director Clifford Smith has seen to it that not only is the action fast and exciting, but that the backgrounds are striking. The entire episode is well staged.

The story, written by Jack Rollins, is well knit and convincing, and the characters are uniformly well played. Francis Ford plays both the owner of the ranch and the town banker. Mary McAllister is charming as the heroine and should develop into a good actress. She has good looks and her work is natural and unaffected. Marin Sais is called upon to elicit sympathy for herself as the woman who loved and lost, and registers the point well. J. Gordon Russell is excellent as the repentant thief.

Western fans should thoroughly enjoy "Roaring Adventure." It has plenty of action, sympathetic acting and a logical story. Incidentally, it seems that the plots of these western stories, while not varying greatly from the accepted pattern, have improved immensely within the last two years. More care is taken with characterization and incident, and more realism is the reward.

Cast

Duffy Burns.....Jack Hoxie
Gloria Carpenter.....Mary McAllister
Katherine Dodd.....Marin Sais
Robert Carpenter.....J. Gordon Russell
Brute Kilroy.....Jack Pratt
Col. Burns.....Francis Ford
Bennett Hardy.....Francis Ford
Kitty Dodd (aged 5).....Margaret Smith

From the story by Jack Rollins.
Adapted by Isadore Bernstein.
Directed by Clifford Smith.
Photographed by Harry Neumann.
Length, 4,800 feet.

Story

Duffy Burns, easterner since college days, visits his father in the cattle country and learns that rustlers are depleting the stock. He obtains employment on his father's ranch without disclosing his identity and falls in love with Gloria Carpenter, daughter of one of the thieves. In league with him is a widow he has befriended, and Gloria cannot understand the friendship. Duffy and a sheriff's posse frustrate the thieves' attempt at a "clean-up," Gloria's father reforms and Duffy wins the girl.

"Forty Winks"

An Honorable Old Play Is Clowned Into a Fast-Moving Farce in This Paramount Feature

Reviewed by Epes W. Sargent

Silver-haired old ladies who treasure memories of E. H. Sothern in his delightful portrayal of the name part in "Lord Chumley" should keep away from the Paramount production of "Forty Winks," but unless you were a giddy matinee gusher of the early nineties you'll enjoy this production which starts as a drama, works over into a farce and winds up with the extravaganza of a Sennett burlesque.

In all its phases it is good entertainment, and this somewhat peculiar construction of the continuity provides what is too often lacking in a farce: continuous acceleration. It does not, like so many comedy efforts, fail toward the close because too quick a tempo has been accepted at the start. Moreover, this commencement gives to the plot the full value of dramatic interest, which clings to the stressed action toward the close. It still motivates the utterly improbable situations in which the players find themselves. In this sense it is an exceptionally fine piece of constructive work, and the scenarist has attained the end sought.

Here is a farce without a single lagging moment. It sweeps along with irresistible movement to a screaming close. You laugh even at death, for one of the most delightful moments comes when the villain is blown to Kingdom Come by a shell from a battleship. It is farce with a strong flavoring of horseplay and yet, with it all the action retains some of the dignity of the drama to the very end. In three words it's delightful entertainment.

Viola Dana is the featured player, but the course of the story forces her into third place through no lack of her own. The honors go to Raymond Giffith, who has a part that is tailored to his exact measure. He plays it with just the touch of gravity that gives full value to the clowning. Anna May Wong, as an adventuress, is very good indeed, and Theodore Roberts cannot well be poor. Cyril Chadwick is just heavy enough to be a farcical villain and the others all contribute their share, not forgetting a very competent dog.

The story abounds in invention, and the directors have brought out its merits to the full. In a Famous Forty it is well up in the first ten.

Cast

Eleanor Butterworth.....Viola Dana
Lord Chumley.....Raymond Griffith
Adam Butterworth.....Theodore Roberts
Gaspar Le Sage.....Cyril Chadwick
Annabelle Wu.....Anna May Wong
Lt. Butterworth.....William Boyd

From the stage play, "Lord Chumley," by David Belasco and Henry V. DeMille.
Scenario by Bertram Milhauser.
Directed by Frank Urson and Paul Iribe.
Length, 6,293 feet.

Story

Gaspar Le Sage, attorney to the Butterworths and suitor for the hand of Eleanor Butterworth, persuades Annabelle Wu, a Eurasian, to vamp Lt. Butterworth and with his keys obtain the plans for a coast defense movement. Suspicion falls upon Lord Cholmondeley, of the British secret service, who is engaged to Eleanor. Le Sage offers to recover the papers if Eleanor will marry him, but "Chumley" forestalls him and gets the papers and the girl after a lively and variegated chase.

"The Range Terror"

Bob Custer's Third Western for F. B. O. Has Some Tensely Dramatic Scenes and Should Please

Reviewed by C. S. Sewell

As the third offering in the "Texas Ranger" series produced by Independent Pictures Corporation starring Bob Custer, F. B. O. is offering "The Range Terror," in which the star appears as a recruit in this famous organization who proves his mettle in connection with the adventures which form the plot.

The story concerns two strangers who seek refuge in a shack to escape a violent storm; one robs and kills the other. The hero, on patrol, meets the victim's dog bearing a message and starts out to ferret out the murderer, knowing only that the murderer had one finger shot off and his horse had a broken shoe. The romantic element is supplied in the person of the dead man's sister, who aids the ranger in discovering the murderer.

The opening scenes dealing with the murder reveal unusually tense drama. However, there is a let-down when the star starts out after his man, and it seems as if this quest has been unnecessarily prolonged to build up the romantic element, for the star is quite sure of his man early in the footage. The familiar idea of the girl gaining the friendship of the suspect is used and the jealousy angle is worked up between her and a vamp and adventuress.

The action again speeds up when the hero forces the villain to take off his glove, revealing the fact that one finger is missing, and this is followed by the chase of the villain and his henchmen, a fire in the dance hall and a fight between the two women. An out of the ordinary ending shows the hero capturing the henchmen, while the villain himself is attacked and killed by the dead man's dog. Only enough of this is shown to produce the effect as the attack occurs in the bushes.

Altogether, "The Range Terror" should prove a satisfactory program attraction for the average theatre that caters to "western" fans.

Cast

Speed Meredith.....Bob Custer
Virginia Allen.....Thais Valdemar
Reagan.....Henry J. Hebert
Teresa.....Claire DeLorez
Bud Allen.....Doris Bullock

Story by James Oromont.
Scenario by George H. Plympton.
Directed by W. J. Craft.
Length, 4,753 feet.

Story

Meredith, a new member of the Texas Rangers, on a stormy night sees a dog with a note, and following him finds a wounded man who dies in his arms after telling him he was shot and robbed but that the robber lost a finger. Meredith gets busy. Soon after, the dead man's sister, Virginia, appears, and as Meredith suspects Reagan, the owner of a dance hall, he gets Virginia to pose as a dance girl to help him. She discovers that Reagan has her brother's money belt. Meredith brings about a situation whereby he forces Reagan to take off his glove and finds a finger missing. Reagan and his henchmen escape and Meredith follows. While he is subduing the two henchmen the dead man's dog attacks and kills Reagan. Meredith decorates the dog with a ranger's badge and tells Virginia he needs another partner, and she agrees with him.

"The Salvation Hunters"

New Director Offers Symbolical Picture That Is Radically Different

REVIEWED BY C. S. SEWELL

PROBABLY no picture has excited greater advance interest in the trade or caused greater discussion among those who have seen it than "The Salvation Hunters," which is being distributed through United Artists. Why is this? True, it is the work of a new director, but this means nothing. The answer is found in the fact that here is a picture that measures fully up to that much abused word, "different."

But how is "The Salvation Hunters" different? In story, technique, acting and direction it gets away from commonly accepted standards. So radical is this departure that it is bound to provoke a variety of opinions, both pro and con, as to its artistic values, its effect on future production and its box office possibility.

Just what has this new director, Josef Von Sternberg, sought to do? According to the subtitles he has endeavored to present a picturization of a thought—that through unswerving faith we can eventually find the light and rise above the forces which tend to cast us down.

Here Von Sternberg makes his first radical departure. Other feature pictures follow the novel in form, taking their characters through a gamut of experiences, clear to the goal of romance, success, or wherever the story leads. Von Sternberg, however, has adapted the literary form of the ideal short story which concentrates on one person in one closely knit series of situations and details the effect they produce. It may represent but one episode, probably the turning point, in the hero's life.

Such is the case with "The Salvation Hunters." First it presents the hero, a girl and a little child in the most sordid surroundings, takes them out of this into a series of difficulties of another type, shows the hero conquering these by overcoming his greatest weakness, cowardice, and leaves the trio facing life with renewed hope backed up by courage. In this respect it will doubtless disappoint the average fan who is accustomed to seeing the characters carried along to the ultimate solution of their difficulties.

How does his treatment of this theme differ from accustomed handling? By the employment of symbolism, exceptional simplicity and straightforwardness in direction and unusual restraint in the acting of his players; by reducing his sets to the minimum, discarding the obvious as far as possible and avoiding the theatric.

How well has he succeeded in his endeavor? Some who feel the power of the big underlying thought will keep it before them and consider that he has accomplished all that he set out to do and at the same time revolutionized motion picture direction. Others, the less imaginative and more analytical, will question this.

These will find, first, surroundings that are extremely sordid and unpleasant, for he paints the water-front home of his characters as a place of rotting lumber and dead fish, of scavengers, of derelict vessels and men, of mud symbolized by the huge dredge that is continually bringing it up from the bottom of the harbor. And when his characters seek to get away from the "mud" they are pictured as entering a city of smoke and grime, of paupers and beggars and homeless, and immediately falling into the hands of a man with evil intent who uses devilish ingenuity to drag the girl down and whose female companion is characterized as having fallen as low as the stockings that fall slovenly about her feet. True, this is a picturization of one phase of life, but there is another side, which Von Sternberg does not touch; the beauties of the seashore and the city or the better things of life are not mentioned. Even in a view of the open country there is cynical reference to the real estate signs that dot it.

His three characters they will find to be rather uninteresting as types, a boy who is a weakling, a coward, too listless to make a very determined effort to get a job even when goaded by the pangs of hunger, content to sit and dream and hope, who makes only a half-hearted attempt to prevent the girl from starting on the road of shame. His one redeeming trait is his faith, but he does not back this up with effort. The girl is another listless type, contemptuous of life, bowed down by forces she has ceased to combat, making no effort to get honest employment but willing to succumb to a life of shame, and saved by a man who senses the true situation and gives the little kid a bill, and even this character is shown as experiencing a change of feeling toward her. The only other characters are the man who seeks to drag the girl down, his fallen companion and another man who seeks to mistreat the little boy.

Has Von Sternberg Succeeded?

Has Von Sternberg definitely established his characterizations? He has stamped the boy as a coward, but this result is achieved largely through a subtitle, for there is no definite act of real cowardice shown, rather is he listless and lacking in the force to really battle the obstacles he encounters. Why does "The Brute" use such consideration, patience and restraint in dealing with the girl! Is this true to life with a man of his type?

How about drama? There is undoubted force in the underlying thought but very little in the action of the characters. The scenes that are dramatic are the sequences where the girl goes out on the street and immediately returns with a man, and the scene in which she takes him to the room occupied by the trio, his quick perception of the truth, his departure and his waiting outside the door. Here we have an unusually daring sex situation, handled bluntly, which may grate on those who like the sugar-coated and subtle. Also in the climax there is a fight between the hero and the evil man which has good snap, but here Mr. Von Sternberg has used ordinary movie technique, for the fight resembles many others. He also resorted to the usual method of preparing for his climax, by having a scene early in the picture where the hero begins to get away from his nature when he is goaded on by the girl, by going to the rescue of the child who is being mistreated. It is a similar scene but with greater provocation that causes him to conquer himself and fate by chastising the villain, but in this he gets away from the usual by not having the girl as the cause.

As to Von Sternberg's employment of symbolism. Much has been said about this. Some of this is obvious and hammered home with sledge-hammer blows by titles and repetition, such is the case with the dredge bringing up mud from the darkness of the harbor bottom to the sunlight, doubly symbolical of the surroundings and the striving of the hero's struggle for the light. Also the fight which regenerates him culminates behind a real estate sign reading, "Here's where dreams come true." There are other symbolical touches, some so subtle that a great majority will not get them.

The cast, faced with the difficult task of unusual restraint, do exceptional work; practically all are unknown except little Bruce Guerin and Stuart Holmes, though some have appeared in a few other productions. George K. Arthur is fine as the boy, and Georgia Hale all that could be desired as the girl. Olaf Hytten as the villain, "The Brute," whose work more nearly approaches that of the ordinary type of this kind, is excellent.

A story of this kind to achieve its ideal form should be without subtitles, and much of it is put over this way, but they at times assist greatly at important points, as in characterizing the hero as a coward and in the explanatory title at the end which points to the pair walking erect with brightened eyes, and faces pointed toward the sun.

In this picture Mr. Von Sternberg does achieve unusual suspense by making you constantly wonder what will come next, but the restraint and deliberateness of the direction, the holding of the scenes in which there is no action, and the cut-backs again and again become somewhat tiring and tend to make the picture draggy.

While Mr. Von Sternberg does not appear to have achieved his ideal goal, he has succeeded in traveling a long way toward it. Certainly he has a picture that will interest the student of the motion picture and the intelligent patron, for it will make them think and cause a diversity of opinion. So radical a departure is it that its box-office effect is problematical. Its appeal to the average theatregoer is doubtful but its very "difference" if sufficiently exploited may serve to bring them in.

Cast

The Boy ..... George K. Arthur
The Girl ..... Georgia Hale
The Child ..... Bruce Guerin
The Man ..... Otto Matiesen
The Woman ..... Nellie Ely Baker
The Brute ..... Olaf Hytten
The Gentleman ..... Stuart Holmes
Written and directed by Josef Von Sternberg.
Length, 5,930 feet.

Story

Along the river front, in the sordid surroundings of rotting boats, dead fish and misery, lived a boy who was a failure and a coward but who dreamed of better things. There was also a girl, a bit of human wreckage, who looked on life with contemptuous eyes, and a small waif whose parents were

(Continued on page 703)

"Miss Bluebeard"

Bebe Daniels Stars in Exceptionally Amusing Adaptation of Rollicking Stage Farce Comedy

Reviewed by C. S. Sewell

In its screen form, under the title, "Miss Bluebeard," Avery Hopwood's stage play, "Little Miss Bluebeard," proves an admirable vehicle for Bebe Daniels, the Paramount star. It is a rollicking farce comedy that almost any type of patron should find thoroughly amusing. At the Rivoli Theatre, New York, there was hardly a moment during the entire 6,453 feet when someone in the audience was not laughing out loud or chuckling audibly, and during most of the time the laughter was quite general.

The idea of the story is that a young actress, through an amusing blunder, finds herself married to a chap who has used another man's name, and the question arises as to which is really her husband or whether she has two of them. The fellow she actually married is engaged, while the other fellow, a composer, has affairs with several other women. This combination, aided by a convenient friend who is pressed into service to help straighten the tangled situation, results in a series of complications of a familiar farce comedy type but with more pep and humor than usual.

The action is quite sophisticated and at times risque, notably where, unknown to each other, the heroine and the friend get into the same bed. There is nothing, however, at all suggestive in this scene, but there is a lot of good, clever comedy.

Written by Avery Hopwood, one of the most experienced and prolific authors of Broadway successes, the story is expertly constructed and cleverly makes use of every possibility to produce laughter. Frank Tuttle has done fine work in directing and is aided by an excellent cast.

As the French actress, Bebe Daniels has a congenial role. Robert Frazer is well cast as the composer, while Kenneth MacKenna is satisfactory as the other fellow. Raymond Griffith in the role of the eccentric friend scores heavily and provides a lot of the laughs. Ivan Simpson adds his share to the hilarity as the butler.

As is usual with farce comedy, a number of the situations are far-fetched, but they get the laughs, and that is what counts. We heartily recommend "Miss Bluebeard," for we believe the great majority go to the theatre to be amused, and this picture surely fills the bill.

Cast

Collette Girard ..... Bebe Daniels
Larry Charters ..... Robert Frazer
Bob Hawley ..... Kenneth MacKenna
Hon. Bertie Bird ..... Raymond Griffith
Lulu ..... Martha Madison
Gloria Harding ..... Diana Kane
Col. Harding ..... Lawrence D'Orsay
Eva ..... Florence Billings
Bounds ..... Ivan Simpson

Based on play "Little Miss Bluebeard" by Avery Hopwood.
Scenario by Townsend Martin.
Directed by Frank Tuttle.
Length, 6,453 feet.

Story

Larry Charters, a composer is so annoyed by women chasing him that he has his friend Bob Hawley impersonate him. On a train Bob meets Collette, a French actress. They get left at a station and seek the mayor to secure rooms for the night. Believing they are a couple he is to marry, the Mayor marries Collette to Bob under the name of Charters. Collette is all fussed up and does not know who she really married. Returning to Paris, Charters is so impressed with Collette that he persuades her to remain at his apartment in order to avoid talk. The appearance of his friend Bertie and two of his lady admirers causes a general mix-up. Bob is nearly crazy as he is engaged to Gloria who turns out to be a school friend of Collette. All go to a house party. Collette tells Gloria about the whole affair but they continue to profess ignorance. To test Charter's love, Collette disguises as Lulu one of Charter's admirers and goes to his room. Charters has changed rooms with Bertie, but returns to his own room. Collette hides in Bob's room, Gloria walks in her sleep. There is general confusion and chasing around, but finally all is straightened out and Collette feels sure of Charter's love.

"The Folly of Vanity"

Interesting Modern Story and Spectacular Under-Sea Fantasy Are Combined in This Fox Feature

Reviewed by C. S. Sewell

A modern human interest story based on a woman's vanity, and an allegorical fantasy in which she learns the folly of her course, are the ingredients of the William Fox production, "The Folly of Vanity."

First we see a newly married couple who have their first disagreement over the bride's purchase of a necklace of artificial pearls. This develops into a situation where she is tempted by her vanity to accept real ones from a wealthy man and actually does compromise by wearing them for a time to restore their lustre. By means of a dream sequence, while they are on a yacht she believes she is being attacked and throws herself into the sea.

Here the fantasy begins and she is shown visiting Neptune's court where an elaborate celebration is given in her honor. It is discovered by an imprint on her neck made by the pearls that she has the mark of vanity and she is cast out. Awakening, she has learned her lesson, returns the pearls to their owner and is glad to patch up the quarrel she had with her husband over them.

Because of the entirely different nature of the two parts of the story, Fox employed two directors, Henry Otto handling the fantasy and Maurice Elvey the modern story. Mr. Elvey's section holds the interest because of its true-to-life situations and some good comedy and human interest touches that will appeal especially to married couples. The comedy is clean-cut and will cause many smiles.

In the fantasy the main appeal is to the eye, and as in his previous productions, Henry Otto has produced scenes of striking beauty which are enhanced by tinting the film in several different shades. Following the introduction to Neptune's court there is a succession of beautifully photographed scenes, some representing underwater situations, and by clever photography you see these as if you were looking down through the ocean; others, such as the carnival, with high diving from the rocks, are exceedingly picturesque scenic shots of rugged coast land. Neptune is pictured as surrounded by beautiful maidens scantily clad or apparently unclad. These scenes have been handled artistically.

Billie Dove is exceedingly attractive in the leading role and Jack Mulhall gives a good performance as her husband. Betty Blythe shows to advantage as a wealthy, worldly-wise widow who wears striking gowns, and John Sainpolis is well cast as the man of wealth who tempts the bride.

As considerable footage is consumed in the gorgeous fantasy it naturally has the effect of breaking the continuity of the modern story. We believe, however, that this combination of interesting and amusing modern sequences and beautiful and spectacular fantasy will furnish pleasing entertainment for the majority.

Cast

Alice ..... Billie Dove
Robert ..... Jack Mulhall
Mrs. Ridgeway ..... Betty Blythe
Ridgeway ..... John Sainpolis
Old Roue ..... Paul Weigel
Witch ..... Lola Drovner
Neptune ..... Bob Klein
Diren ..... Edna Gregory

Story by Charles Darnton.
Director of Modern Story—Maurice Elvey.
Director of Fantasy—Henry Otto.
Length, 5,250 feet.

Story

Alice, a beautiful young wife, loves jewelry and spends money intended for other purposes to buy an imitation pearl necklace. Robert, her husband, invites a wealthy client, Ridgeway, to dinner. Ridgeway is a connisseur of pearls and beautiful women and he invites the young couple to a party he is giving. Robert chides Alice for buying the pearls and declines the invitation. Alice determines to go and has her way. Ridgeway presents his guests with expensive jewelry as souvenirs and, unable to persuade Alice to take any, insists that she wear a beautiful necklace to restore the lustre of the pearls. The whole crowd is invited on a yacht cruise and Ridgeway is attentive to Alice, while a wealthy widow attracts Robert. Alice and Robert have a quarrel. Alice dreams that Ridgeway attempts to attack her, and jumping into the sea is carried to Neptune's court where all the beauties are shown her and a festival held in her honor. A witch discovers the pearls have made a mark of vanity on her neck, and Neptune orders her cast out. Awakening, she returns the necklace to Ridgeway and by error gets into Robert's room and a reconciliation occurs.

"Cheaper to Marry"

Unusually Capable Acting and Fine Comedy Make This Metro-Goldwyn Feature Good Entertainment

Reviewed by C. S. Sewell

As the title of this Metro-Goldwyn production, "Cheaper to Marry," indicates, the idea of the story is that in the long run it is cheaper in every way and far better to marry than to adopt a more unconventional mode of living. This is worked out by means of two partners who follow the divergent paths. Happiness and prosperity comes to the one who marries his sweetheart, while disillusionment, ruin and finally suicide is the fate of the other.

It is a story of today; the two men are Wall Street brokers, the wife is a hard-working artist and the other woman plays the game for all she can get out of it and turns on her benefactor.

The story interest is light and lacking in action during a majority of its length. The early footage is taken up with scenes between the partners in their office and a party at the other woman's home which is filmed at considerable length in developing the contrast between the two couples and painting their respective characters. The lack of incident in this portion of the picture is made up by the introduction of comedy that follows familiar lines, with an eccentric girl who hounds a banker. First he considers her a pest, but of course he falls for her before the picture is over. There is excellent comedy in these scenes which are handled by the accomplished comedienne, Louise Fazenda, and that sterling actor, Claude Gillingwater. It seems rather strange to see him in comedy, but his work and especially his expressions of disgust are excellent and good for many laughs. While brightening up the film and furnishing enjoyment, these scenes are held so long that they tend to break the continuity of the story.

The entire cast is excellent and do much to bolster up the story. Conrad Nagel and Marguerite de la Motte could hardly be improved upon as the married couple. Lewis Stone is finely cast as the worldly partner, and Paulette Duval makes a distinctly pleasing impression as the other woman. She is a strikingly beautiful woman of the French type who commands your attention whether in a bathing suit or evening gown, and her great number of gorgeous gowns will be the delight and envy of the women in the audience, while the men will admire the striking tout ensemble.

The picture has been produced on a high class scale, with good taste, and has been well directed by Robert Z. Leonard. Its only weakness is the slightness of the story and lack of incident in the earlier reels for those who demand action. To compensate there is good comedy and plenty of action in the climax, which centers around the excitement of a wild market on the stock exchange.

We believe that "Cheaper to Marry" will provide pleasing entertainment for most audiences.

Cast

Dick .....Conrad Nagel
Jim Knight.....Lewis Stone
Evelyn .....Paulette Duval
Doris .....Marguerite de la Motte
Flora .....Louise Fazenda
Riddle .....Claude Gillingwater
Dal Whitney.....Richard Wayne

Based on stage play by Samuel Shipman.
Directed by Robert Z. Leonard.
Length, 5,921 feet.

Story

On being taken into the firm of Knight & Tyler, Dick Tyler proposes to Doris, an artist, and is accepted. Jim Knight, his partner, on hearing this tells him he is making a mistake as a wife interferes too much with a young man in business. Attending a dinner given by her old schoolmate, Evelyn, Doris is impressed by her luxurious mode of living. Dick is surprised to find that Jim is there and soon learns that Evelyn is his mistress. A crisis arises in business and it develops that Jim has squandered the firm's surplus on Doris. He goes to her for aid but she turns him down. Doris pleads with a banker friend, who is so much impressed that he agrees to accept Dick's personal note to tide them over. They go to inform Jim, but find he has taken his own life. The banker marries Doris' friend, Flora, and the two couples, contrasting their own with Jim's experience, decide that it is better and cheaper in every way to marry.

"Fear-Bound"

Vitagraph Offers Will Nigh in Powerful Characterization of Heavy and Intensely Dramatic Role

Reviewed by C. S. Sewell

Some time ago Will Nigh produced a single-reel film in which a man returned home and rather than let the world know he was a coward, one of his family shot directly into the cupboard in which he had hidden, when the officers of the law arrived. In a different setting, this tremendously dramatic situation is presented in the opening reel of "Fear-Bound," Mr. Nigh's production for Vitagraph, and is an indication of the nature of the entire picture.

The wounded man is nursed back to health by the loving sister who shot him, and the story is built around his abject fear when ever a situation arose requiring courage. All the main characters are moulded so as to intensify the dramatic side. There is the shiftless and criminal father, two equally worthless sons, and the stern and unrelenting mother whom they deserted years before.

To offset this intensity, excellent comedy is introduced by the minor characters and it registers with especial strength in contrast to the heavy drama. The story is melodramatic, with the climax being furnished with the return of the vicious father and brothers, who play upon the hero's fear and loot a money wagon he is supposed to guard. These characters have been painted so as to make them distinctly repulsive. They are degraded, dirty and vicious; you cannot admire the hero in the earlier reels, and the only one who gets your full sympathy is his loving sister.

There is a tenseness throughout the whole film that holds the attention, and plenty of stirring action when the hero finds himself and attacks his father and brothers. His regeneration, however, is not altogether convincing, nor is it explained why one of the brothers suddenly aids him.

The outstanding impression of this picture is that it is an unusually forceful and dramatic character study of a fear-crazed man, and so compelling and unusually forceful is Mr. Nigh's interpretation of this role that it far overshadows the other elements. The general atmosphere is in keeping with the rather drab story, and altogether "Fear-Bound" is rather heavy screen fare for the average patron.

The work of the entire cast is excellent, but the reaction to the entire picture will depend upon the audience's attitude toward this one characterization, whether the tremendous dramatic force compensates for the somewhat unpleasant theme.

An unusual angle of this picture is the fact that the leading character does not figure in the romance. This is supplied by his sister and a fellow who befriends her.

Cast

Falfi Tumble.....Marjorie Daw
Jim Tumble.....Will Nigh
Tod Vane.....Niles Welch
Ma Tumble.....Louise Mackintosh
Pa Tumble.....Ed. F. Roseman
Luke Tumble.....James Bradbury, Jr.
Ed. Tumble.....Warner Richmond
Alkali Red.....D. MacReynolds
Fluffy Ralston.....Jean Jarvie
Cooky .....Frank Conlon

Story not credited.
Directed by Will Nigh
Length, 5,700 feet.

Story

Deserted by her shiftless husband and three sons, Ma Tumble works the little farm and raises her infant daughter, Falfi. Fifteen years later Falfi finds a stranger who proves to be the youngest son, Jim. Falfi pleads so with Ma that she lets him stay. The arrival of the sheriff finds Jim crazed with fear as he aided his father and brothers in a bank robbery. A soldier appears and tells the family Jim died in France a hero. To escape the law, the family moves to another state and Falfi opens a restaurant. All goes well until Pa and the boys appear. The soldier, Tod, now a mine owner, gets him a job as guard at the mine and, though afraid, Jim accepts. When money is to be transported, his shiftless father makes him change uniforms with his brother and they rob the money wagon. Jim, cowering with fear, binds himself to the bed, but Ma discovers the deception and he admits he was always a coward and in France hid so as to be captured. He slinks away from the house in terror and meets his father and brothers. The youngest taunts him with being yellow and suddenly he finds himself and fights them all. Finally his younger brother aids him and they subdue the others. Jim is again proclaimed a hero and Tod marries Falfi.

"Salvation Hunters"

(Continued from page 701)

killed by the huge dredge on which the girl lives. Spurred on by hope, the boy persuaded the girl to leave with him "to get away from the mud." They journeyed to a city and came in contact with a man of evil intent who gave them shelter and figured on hunger aiding him. The boy gave up after trying fitfully to get a job. The girl went out on the street and brought back a man who when he realized the situation gave the child money and departed. The chap with evil intent took them all to the country in the hope of furthering his design. The little fellow annoyed him and he started to mistreat him. This awakened the boy, who found courage and overcame him in a fierce fight. This overcame the girl's disgust for his weakness and, sure of himself, the boy and the girl started out looking with hope and confidence to the future.

Motion Picture Producers knew only one dependable NEGATIVE Raw Stock, until—proved its superior quality.

GOERZ NEGATIVE
RAW STOCK

They naturally prefer GOERZ Stock, registering more detail and definition, even under poor lighting conditions, in fact, the only stock doing full justice to the cameraman's GOERZ lens.

GOERZ
POSITIVE RAW STOCK

GOERZ
NEGATIVE RAW STOCK

GOERZ
PANCHROMATIC STOCK

Sole Distributors:

Fish-Schurman Corp.
45 WEST 45th STREET
NEW YORK CITY

THE PEP OF THE PROGRAM

NEWS AND REVIEWS OF SHORT SUBJECTS AND SERIALS

"Change the Needle"

(Pathe—Comedy—Two Reels)

The scenes of this Arthur Stone vehicle are laid in a burlesque phonograph factory. The action is frankly slapstick, and though no new gags are introduced, it is generally effective. The chief complication is the effort of phonograph officials to persuade an opera singer and her husband to sing a duet without fighting with each other. Just when it seems that domestic peace has been attained, a chicken or a dog interrupts the singing, and temperamental hostilities are again begun. When at last the cherished record is complete, Stone holds it in one hand while kissing a girl and it melts. The sets in this subject are extremely good, somebody having shown a lot of imagination in their construction. "Change the Needle" ought to please all slapstick fans.—S. S.

"The Family Entrance"

(Pathe—Comedy—One Reel)

Where other Hal Roach-Charlie Chase comedies have dealt with rather broad humor, this latest offering is more subtle. It deals with the visit of a man and wife and young brother and baby to the "movies." The first essay at comedy shows the family rushing dinner to get to the theatre on time, the second their attempt to slip their younger brother by the turnstile as under age, the third the annoyance caused theatre patrons by their little girl, who must be taken to a waiting room every few minutes. There is little other humor in this subject.—S. S.

"High Hopes"

(Educational—Comedy—One Reel)

The action of this Cameo Comedy featuring Cliff Bowes, Virginia Vance and Ruth Hiatt occurs in a beauty parlor, with Virginia as the manicurist and Cliff as her admirer. An irate boss, a salesman who sells beauty mud and a jealous wife, plus machinery for permanent waving, offer opportunity for slapstick comedy that is mildly amusing, including a scene where dumb Cliff is responsible for the boss being covered with cement instead of mud as a demonstration of its beauty value. A mallet is finally necessary to remove the cement.—C. S. S.

"Pathe Review No. 7"

(Pathe—Magazine—One Reel)

There are three features in this short subject. Most interesting is the second of a series of camera novelties titled "Hot Dog." Special camera effects invented by Alvin Knechtel show how trained dogs do their stunts. They are shown leaping forward and backward, and suspended in air. Most striking of all the effects is that of a dog jumping out of his own shadow, as it were, and then returning to it. The first of "The Secrets of Nature" series shows what an ideal husband is Mr. Stickleback, the fish. A Pathecolor of Salt Lake City completed the Review.—S. S.

"Shorts" Reviewed in This Issue

Bigger and Better Jails (Pathe).
Change the Needle (Pathe).
Family Entrance, The (Pathe).
Her Daily Dozen (Universal).
High Hopes (Educational).
Pathe Review No. 7 (Pathe).
Sir Walter Raleigh (Universal).
Taming the East (Universal).
Wild Cat Willie (Educational)

"Sir Walter Raleigh"

(Universal—Comedy—One Reel)

Sir Walter Raleigh is the latest target for the producers of Universal's Hysterical History Series. "Walt" is shown returning to England and passing around a box of cigars. A rival gets him in dutch but he regains favor by means of the famous cloak episode where he placed his cloak over a mud puddle so Queen Elizabeth could cross. This idea is amusingly burlesqued by showing his successively taking off other garments as more puddles are reached until he has to use a barrel. It is up to the standard of this series as a laugh getter.—C. S. S.

"Bigger and Better Jails"

(Pathe—Fable—One Reel)

In this Aesop's Film Fable, Cartoonist Paul Terry shows a wholesale jail delivery of mice, one elephant and a cat. The moral must be that the arm of the law is long, because in the end the miscreants again find themselves behind the bars. This subject is replete with humor and rich in imagination. One of the best bits is the method employed by the prisoners to knock off the guards as they parade the walls. The mouse throws rocks and the cat, pretending to be playing ball, bats them so as to knock each guard unconscious.—S. S.

The House of FEATURETTES

Presents "Ko-Ko in Toyland" at the Rivoli Theatre, N. Y., this week. It is Fleischer's latest "Inkwell" Cartoon, and probably his most entertaining. Other Red Seal Featurettes are presented regularly every week in Broadway picture houses. The program comprises 120 First Run Novelties 1924-1925.

Edwin Miles Fadman, Pres.
1600 BROADWAY NEW YORK CITY

"Her Daily Dozen"

(Universal—Comedy—Two Reels)

Century is offering a new star in this two-reel comedy, an attractive little blond, Edna Marian, who appears in the role of a slavey in a boarding house. A new comedian, Eddie Gordon, also appears in support of Miss Marian. Gordon is not only funny but is a good acrobat and his falls and tumbles are among the highlights of the picture. The action concerns a boarder who owes rent and eludes the landlady. He goes to market with the slavey and has an awful time getting home with an armful of bundles. Later he gets a job as instructor in a gym when the boss takes a shine to Edna, who joins the class. These situations give opportunities for an attractive display of feminine beauty in gym costumes and considerable slapstick in the fights between Gordon and the boss. The action is disconnected and the situations are familiar, but there is considerable material that will amuse slapstick fans.—C. S. S.

"Taming the East"

(Universal—Comedy—Two Reels)

Now that Buddy Messinger is getting to be a big boy, his last few comedies for Century would indicate that he has definitely gotten away from kid roles. In this comedy Buddy and his big fat pal, Hilliard Karr, don cowboy regalia and seek to pose as "western bad men." Fate, however, decrees that they become heroes when they succeed in preventing the rascally sheriff from committing a robbery. Invited to the banker's home, they appear in nondescript western and evening attire and act like bulls in a china shop, finally wrecking the place when cartridges which Karr puts in his pocket start to explode. There are several slapstick gags in which a goat's propensity for "butting" figures, and also a scene where they appear to be breaking a broncho where in reality they are riding a hobby horse on the other side of a fence. While the humor is not hilarious, several of the situations are amusing.—C. S. S.

"Wild Cat Willie"

(Educational—Comedy—Two Reels)

Produced under the supervision of Jack White, this Juvenile Comedy distributed by Educational and directed by Arvid Gilstrom shows the familiar gang of youngsters engaged in a football game. There are a number of amusing moments and some clever trick stuff with the ball, with a particularly good title about hiding the ball in the dark when the little pickaninny secretes it and makes a record run. A bright little baby also figures in the action, stopping the game and being marooned in a cart that a dog runs away with, causing a chase and plenty of excitement and opportunity for the freckle-faced lad to prove a hero. It should prove of average amusement to grown-ups and delight the kiddies, especially the boys in the audience.—C. S. S.

ALICE TERRY

As she appears in "Confessions of a Queen," Victor Seastrom's latest Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production.

Fox Films on Broadway Approach Record Mark

WHEREVER the eye wanders along New York's celebrated Rialto, between Thirty-ninth Street and Fifty-third Street, this week, it is sure to fall upon a sign reading "William Fox presents, etc."

The reasons for this are the Fox Film Corporation's exceptional productions that are being featured at four of the front rank theatres on New York's "Main Street."

One starts south on Broadway at Fifty-third Street and the first thing that attracts the eye is a gigantic electric sign telling the world that Tom Mix is appearing at the Piccadilly Theatre in "Dick Turpin."

Further south, where Broadway crosses Seventh Avenue, a large sign, read by millions, announces that William Fox is presenting "The Iron Horse" at the Lyric Theatre, on 42nd Street, just off Broadway.

At 47th Street one of the most beautifully dressed lobbies on the street of gorgeous lobbies, that of the Central Theatre, attracts you and you again see the name Fox, announcing the presentation of "Folly of Vanity." The lobby of this theatre is an irresistible thing, as attested by the steady crowds pouring in and out of the theatre.

The best known corner in the world, Broadway and Forty-second Street, is reached, and your eye wanders to the right and you see the home of "The Iron Horse." The Lyric Theatre seems to be the permanent home of this great production. It has been there seven months and from all appearances will be there seven more.

Approaching the end of the Rialto, at Broadway and 41st Street, and again you see the work of William Fox being presented in a blazing sign. "The Dancers" fresh from a successful run at the Central Theatre is getting its second Broadway showing at the B. S. Moss Broadway Theatre.

Patheserial Producing Units Are Busy on New Subjects

TWO Patheserial producing units are engaged on new subjects scheduled for release during the coming spring. On the West Coast camera work is being rapidly completed on "Idaho," with Mahlon Hamilton and Vivian Rich in the featured roles. At Miami, Fla., another Patheserial company under the direction of George B. Seitz has just begun the filming of a serial adaptation of Albert Payson Terhune's novel, "Black Caesar's Clan."

"Idaho," which is being produced by C. W. Patton, is a chapter production of western atmosphere and action. The story, which was written originally by Theodore Burrell under the title of "The Girl Vigilante" is laid in the West of Civil War days, when the Federal Government had to concentrate its military forces in the East and South to defeat the Confederacy and thus leave the unsettled West exposed to ruthless bands of criminals. The action is built around the efforts of the hastily organized police force, known as "The Vigilantes," to protect the isolated communities from the ravages of these lawless bands. Frank Leon Smith is responsible for the screen adaptation.

Porter Heads Production

Christie Vice-President Completes Nine Years of Service

Changes in the personnel of the Christie Studios have taken place, chief of which is that of Fred L. Porter, who, in addition to his duties as vice-president of the corporation, assumes charge of the production department, taking over the affairs formerly handled by Harry D. Edwards, who has gone with Warner Brothers as production manager.

Mr. Porter has just completed nine years of service with the Christie corporation, having been in the organization since its inception, January 6, 1916. He has finished ten years in the studio itself, since he was at that location as studio manager before Al Christie took it over and organized his own company, nine years ago this month.

In his new duties Mr. Porter will be assisted by Miss Ethel La Blanche, who has been with the organization for six years and who is now made assistant production manager.

The Original "Charley"

Brandon Hurst, creator of the role of Charley in "Charley's Aunt," who is now in picture work in Hollywood, said it was the thrill of a lifetime when he witnessed the private screening of the farce at the Writers Club in Los Angeles. Mr. Hurst said he had been looking forward eagerly to seeing "Charley's Aunt" on the screen, and would not have missed the preview at The Writers' for a thousand dollars. He wiped tears of laughter from his eyes after the showing and commented: "It's funnier than the play ever was. And that's a lot."

Warner Baxter, Billie Dove, Gladys Roy (stunt aviatrix) and Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., watching the aerial circus at Long Beach, Cal., during the filming of Paramount's "The Air Mail."

Jans Off to Key Cities

Producer is Selling "Playthings of Desire" and "The Mad Dancer"

Herman F. Jans, president of Jans Productions Inc., left last week for a trip around the circuit of key cities in the interests of the series of six new productions he is producing for the independent market.

He will close up what little territory still remains open and arrange for premiere showings of the first two features in the series, "Playthings of Desire," featuring Estelle Taylor and Mahlon Hamilton; and "The Mad Dancer" with Ann Pennington, Johnie Walker and Vincent Lopez, both of which have been completed and are ready for presentation.

Mr. Jans will be out of the city for probably ten days or two weeks and on his return will begin preparations for the filming of the third production in the series. It will be "Ermine and Rhinestones," by Louise Winter but as yet no casting has been done nor has it been determined at what studio the picture will be made.

Use Kelley Color Process

Production Work Started on "The White Mice," the Wilson Wetherald Picture

Actual production was started recently on the Wilson-Wetherald Production "The White Mice," adapted from Richard Harding Davis' famous novel of the same name.

"The White Mice" will be shot in Kelley Color. It is the first attempt of Wilson-Wetherald, Inc. to make a full length feature, using the famous color system that they have developed. Heretofore they have specialized in short reel subjects.

Jaqueline Logan will be seen in the leading role. Others in the cast are: Bigelow Cooper, Ernest Hilliard, Reginald Sheffield, Harlan Knight, Williams Wadsworth, Lucius Henderson, F. Vaux Wilson and Muriel Kingston.

William Powell will be seen in the leading role opposite Miss Logan.

E. H. Griffith is directing "The White Mice" which is being shot at the Paragon Studios.

Flint Visits New York

Los Angeles Banker, Warner Bros. Guest, Has Busy Time in Gotham

Among celebrities from the West Coast gathered at the Warner Bros. offices this week is Motley H. Flint, executive vice-chairman of the Pacific Southwest Trust and Savings Co., of Los Angeles.

Mr. Flint, Past Grandmaster of the F. and A. M. of California, is visiting the Warners and was guest of honor last night (Thursday) at the Pacific Lodge, F. and A. M., of New York.

Mr. Flint takes a lively interest in the affairs of the motion picture industry and his bank numbers many clients from the studios in Hollywood.

Famous Restaurant Reproduced

Luchow's restaurant, in New York City, one of the most famous restaurants in America, in pre-prohibition days, has been reproduced with absolute fidelity for "Friendly Enemies," in which Joe Weber and Lou Fields will be starred on the Producers Distributing Corporation program.

Warner's Rin-Tin-Tin Is Very Much Alive

For the last week the offices of Warner Bros. in New York City and the studio at Hollywood have been deluged by inquiries from newspaper offices motion picture fans, etc., inquiring the truth of a report that Rin-Tin-Tin had been killed.

A dog working on location met with an accident that resulted in its death, and a newspaper printed a report that it was the Warner Bros. animal.

There is absolutely no truth in the Rin-Tin-Tin story. There was no accident in which the dog was concerned. At present, Rin-Tin-Tin is up around Truckee somewhere making his new picture "Tracked in the Snow Country," and on his return will start on a world tour.

Larkin in Auto Smash

Star in Rayart Series Escapes Serious Injury in Hollywood.

George Larkin had a narrow escape early last Saturday morning from serious if not fatal injury in Hollywood, Cal., when his Paige limousine overturned.

Larkin was on his way to the Metro studio when, in crossing a street, he saw a collision with another car was unavoidable.

He turned his car sharply to give a glancing blow, but was overturned in the machine. With him was Olive Kirby, his wife. Mrs. Larkin was badly cut on the wrist. Larkin was bruised.

After being attended by a doctor they proceeded to the studio. The glass on the left side and front of their car was smashed.

As Larkin landed in the heap he reached up and shut off the engine. Mrs. Larkin neither screamed nor fainted.

Larkin is making a series of six pictures known as Metropolitan Melodramas for Rayart release. The third of the series, "The Right Man," is scheduled for an early release.

Prologue for "Iron Horse"

When "The Iron Horse," which is still playing at the Lyric Theatre, is given its western premiere in Los Angeles there will be a ready-made prologue awaiting the theatre that gives the romance of the rails its Angelano presentation. J. Farrell MacDonald, who was a stage director before he entered the movies, is spending his evenings writing a suitable prologue, especially prepared for Los Angeles use, with the western touches with which MacDonald is familiar. MacDonald has the outstanding character role in this William Fox production, that of "Corporal Casey," the railroad section boss.

"Silent Salverson"

"Beyond the Border," the first picture in the new Harry Carey series being produced by Hunt Stromberg for release through Producers Distributing Corporation, was completed this week and casting of the second picture, "Silent Salverson," was started with the signing of Trilby Clark as Carey's newest leading lady.

Preview of "Super Speed"

Mildred Harris Seen in Support of Reed Howes, Rayart Star

Rayart Pictures Corporation gave their first trade showing on Monday last at the Interocean Projection Rooms, 218 West 42nd Street, New York City.

The picture shown was "Super Speed," a modern comedy-drama starring Reed Howes, who is under contract with Harry J. Brown, the producer, to make six or more pictures for Rayart release. Mildred Harris is featured in support of the star.

Others in the cast are: Sheldon Lewis, Charles Clary, George Williams and Martin Turner.

An unusually representative group of reviewers was assembled, including: Larry Reid, Motion Picture News; Charles S. Sewell, Moving Picture World; Dick O'Brien, Exhibitors' Trade Review; Arthur W. Eddy, Billboard; A. Chester Keel; Dorothy Herzog, Daily Mirror; Grace Carson; Mary Boyle, Photoplay; Martin Dickstein, Screenland; Mrs. O'Brien, Movie Weekly, and H. A. Woodmansee, Movie Thrillers.

Chadwick's Newest Star

George Walsh, in "American Pluck," Will Be Directed by Edmund Lawrence

George Walsh, newest star of the Chadwick Pictures Corporation, left New York for Los Angeles last Monday to start work on "American Pluck," first of a series of six romantic comedy dramas he will make for that company. Accompaning Mr. Walsh on his trip west was Edmund Lawrence, who will direct the star.

"American Pluck," written especially for the star, will be typical of the several Walsh pictures that are to follow. It is the intention of I. E. Chadwick, president of the company, to produce a series of fast-moving action stories, with Mr. Walsh playing roles that typify the aggressive, clean-cut, dare-devil man that is the ideal of every American boy.

Production on "American Pluck" will be started at the Chadwick West Coast Studios as soon as possible after the arrival of the star. The cast will be announced shortly.

Langdon's Popularity Increasing

It looks as though Pathe will shortly release another and new series of feature length comedies, if the fan demand on exhibitors is carried to the Pathe offices.

Harry Langdon is fast becoming one of the most favored of comedians the screen has yet introduced. He has set a new standard for short length laughfilms, in which a distinctive character has been introduced, and his subtlety of expression and action is being accorded surprising and enthusiastic reception wherever he appears, with the result that requests are received daily suggesting that he be presented in longer length stories. Rumor has it that his producer, Mack Sennett, will shortly announce feature length comedies for his comedy ace.

Metro Buys "Sun Up"

"Sun Up" Lulu Vollmer's sensational drama of Kentucky mountains has been bought by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, it is announced by that company. "Sun Up" was produced on Broadway last season, and scored a remarkable success, running all season.

T. Hayes Hunter Directing "Wildfire" at Vitagraph

A DEAL recognized in picture circles as of deep importance was closed when John B. Rock, general manager of Vitagraph, and HenryM. Hobart, of Hobart Pictures Corporation, signed a contract under the terms of which the Hobart organization will produce four special pictures for Vitagraph distribution.

Announcement was made almost simultaneously of the selection of the thrilling racing melodrama, "Wild-Fire," as the first in this series of attractions. This will be a picturization of the stage play of the same name, which created a furore some years ago, and which Lillian Russell accounted one of her greatest successes.

Production work will be carried on at Vitagraph's Brooklyn studio, starting immediately, with T. Hayes Hunter directing. The work of selecting the cast is now almost finished and other necessary preliminaries are being rapidly brought to a close. Announcement of the subjects to follow "Wild-Fire" is yet to be made.

T. Hayes Hunter was for three years stage manager for David Belasco and produced, in co-operation with him, "The Girl of the Golden West" and other highly successful plays. As director-general of the Biograph Company he produced Klaw and Erlanger Biograph features, and, subsequently, as an independent producer and director, has been responsible for a large number of popular screen offerings.

JACKIE COOGAN
In his latest Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production, "The Rag Man."

"Don't Shoot the Players—They're Doing Their Best"

A SERIES of near disasters, two of which almost resulted in fatalities, has attended the making of "Great Guns," Bobby Vernon's latest two-reel comedy for Educational distribution.

During the actual filming of the picture, the barge upon which the company was working sprung a leak and sank during the night, resulting in the loss of several valuable props and delaying the work of production until the barge could be raised.

Part of the picture called for scenes on the target range of the navy. Director Harold Beaudine and his staff checked up carefully with the ordinance officers of the fleet to make sure that the navy would not actually fire at the target on which they were working. However, they were within range of the coast defense guns, and a tug towing the red target for the guns crossed the range while the guns of the land forts fired at it repeatedly.

While several of the big shells flew uncomfortably close to the movie company, no one was hurt.

The picture was filmed at Catalina Island and the company embarked for the location in a power schooner, with Director Baudine following in a runabout. During a fog he became separated from the larger vessel and was lost at sea, wandering about for twelve hours in the vicinity of the island before he recovered his bearings. Barely enough gasoline remained in the tank to enable him to make a beach on the opposite side of the island from his destination.

"Stars Supporting Star" Idea Proves a Winner, Says Steiner

WILLIAM STEINER announced last week that he is rapidly completing the cast in support of Edith Thornton in the latter's forthcoming feature production for the Steiner franchise holders.

The cast includes Earl Williams, Crauford Kent, Joseph Kilgour, Niles Welch, Melbourne MacDowell, Wilfred Lucas, Robert Ellis, Helen Lynch and Eddie Phillips.

The two previous Edith Thornton productions for the Steiner programme, "Virtue's Revolt" and "On Probation," have met with the approval of the public and showmen alike, and the forthcoming Steiner-Thornton feature will be right up to the high standard demanded by the exacting producer.

"We have found that the public appreciates our use of the best players in the screen world, and we will continue casting only 'electric light names,'" Mr. Steiner said last week.

"With a good story, excellent direction, and the best of everything else, there is no reason why we should engage a cast unless every member of it is well known and admired by the fans.

"From the showmen's angle, they have better advertising and exploitation facts to work on as a result of our 'stars supporting stars' system. From every angle the idea is a winner."

"The Rainbow Trail"

Doc Roberts, Carrol Halloway and Diana Miller have been added to the cast of "The Rainbow Trail," the Tom Mix starring photoplay, now in production at the Fox Film Corporation's West Coast Studios. "The Rainbow Trail" is an adaption from Zane Grey's novel, and is a sequel to "Riders of the Purple Sage," recently completed by Mix.

A "Command" Performance

President Coolidge Requests Showing of "Charley's Aunt" at White House

Following a screening of "Charley's Aunt" on board the Mayflower, last Tuesday, President Coolidge made a request for a showing of the Al. Christie feature at the White House next Sunday evening.

The showing on the Mayflower was arranged through the courtesy of the Washington office of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, Inc., and was given privately before the officers of the President's yacht.

The President was not present, but the reports of the showing that reached him prompted the request of the White House screening, which was granted.

Camera Work Completed

Camera work is finished on B. P. Schulberg's screen version of David Belasco's play, "The Boomerang." The production is now being edited and will be released March first. In its cast are Anita Stewart, Bert Lytell and Donald Keith, the recent screen find whom Schulberg is now featuring.

Another Schulberg production, "The Mansion of Aching Hearts," being directed by James P. Hogan, is nearing completion. Its featured players consist of Ethel Clayton, Cullen Landis, Barbara Bedford and Sam de Grasse.

Neilan to Film West Novel

"The Return of the Soldier," Rebecca West's most famous novel, which created a great stir when it was published, is going to be screened by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. Marshall Neilan, it was announced this week, will make this his next Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production to follow "The Sporting Venus."

Blanche Sweet is playing the titular character of "The Sporting Venus," with Ronald Colman and Lew Cody opposite her in featured roles. Josephine Crowell, Edward Martindell, Hank Mann, Kate Price, and others are also in the cast. Miss Crowell is playing the queen in "The Merry Widow." Miss Price recently appeared in "The Wife of the Centaur."

Ben Alexander, Mae Busch and Eugene O'Brien in First National's "Frivolous Sal."

"Salvation Hunters" Has Big Premiere at the California

WHAT is considered the most phenomenal and sensational opening on the west coast, particularly from the box-office point of view, marked the world's premiere of Josef von Sternberg's "Salvation Hunters," this week at the California Theatre, in San Francisco.

Every bit of the tremendous enthusiasm that was lavished on this sensational picture by the few who were privileged to view it prior to this opening, certainly was justified, for the public actually swarmed the theatre and mobbed the box-office to the tune of breaking every record that had existed for seven years at the California Theatre. And not only has it been a sensation from the box-office receipts alone, but also from the viewpoint of the critics and the public alike, who have unanimously agreed that it is the greatest thing the art of the cinema has had to offer the public for many years.

Word to this effect was received by Hiram Abrams, president of the United Artists Corporation, which company is handling the distribution of the picture. In a wire to Mr. Abrams, Herbert L. Rothschild of the California Theatre, said:

"'Salvation Hunters' which is now playing our California Theatre broke all records of seven years standing on its opening days, Saturday and Sunday. No picture of recent years has developed as much discussion as 'Salvation Hunters' and we anticipate extraordinary business with this production."

In another wire from the west coast Mr. Abrams was advised as follows:

"'Salvation Hunters,' von Sternberg's production grossed over $4,300 on the opening day and over $4,900 on the second day. These figures absolutely break every box-office record for the two opening days for this theatre and they have never before played to such phenomenal business on any production.

"It has become necessary for the management to open the theatre one hour earlier each day to accommodate the tremendous crowds that have swarmed to see this sensational picture.

"There is absolutely every indication that all existing box-office records for the California Theatre will be smashed to smithereens.

"Not only has the public waxed enthusiastic over this picture, but all the critics were unaimous in their praise of the production; in fact they used superlatives in describing the production, the like of which no picture has ever before received."

The Eastern premiere of "Salvation Hunters" will be at the Mark Strand Theatre in New York next week, beginning Sunday, February 1. Joseph Plunkett, managing director of this playhouse has declared this production one of the greatest that he has ever seen, and he has contrived one of the most elaborate presentations for the picture that the New York movie fans have had an opportunity of enjoying.

Gloria Hale, who plays "the girl" in the picture, will be Charlie Chaplin's next leading lady. Opposite her is George Arthur, as "the boy," while others in the cast are Bruce Guerin, Otto Matiesen, Nellie Bly Baker, Olaf Hytten and Stuart Holmes.

Sally Long Makes Screen Debut

Flo Ziegfeld has lost another beauty. She has been accepted by producers of the silent drama as splendid material for many of their forthcoming productions. The newcomer is Sally Long, who has been featured in the Follies, "Scandals" and "Kidd Boots."

Almost before people were aware of the fact she had reached the Film Capitol, the Warner Brothers' production of "The Man Without a Conscience" was publicizing her name in a prominent spot in the cast. When Famous Players-Lasky started "The Dress-Maker From Paris," the new starring vehicle for Leatrice Joy, Sally Long was one of the first players, outside of the principals in the cast, to be selected for a part, and now before the production is more than half completed overtures are being made for her services at other studios.

Asher Engages MacGregor

Malcolm MacGregor, one of the most popular of the younger leading men on the screen, has been engaged by Eph Asher to appear with Corinne Griffith in "The National Anthem," the next starring vehicle for the gifted and famous First National star. Mr. MacGregor's latest success to be released was "Smoldering Fires," in which he played the male lead opposite Pauline Frederick.

Chadwick, in Los Angeles, Will Supervise Pictures

I. E. CHADWICK, President of the Chadwick Pictures Corporation, left New York last Thursday for an extended stay in Los Angeles. He will remain at the company's West Coast production headquarters for several months.

The reason for Mr. Chadick's protracted visit in California was announced at the offices of the corporation recently as follows:

"With 'The Midnight Girl,' starring Lila Lee, sixth of the Chadwick Nine, now in production at the Long Island Studios, Mr. Chadwick is leaving for California to supervise personally the making of 'Sunshine of Paradise Alley' and 'The Romance of an Actress,' special productions on the company's 1924-1925 schedule.

"At the same time, Mr. Chadwick will make preparations for the first productions on the company's 1925-26 schedule. The first of these will be a screen version of Louis K. Anspacher's drama, 'The Unchastened Woman,' which will provide the vehicle for the return of Theda Bara.

Another production to be started shortly is 'American Pluck,' first of the George Walsh romantic comedy-dramas.

"Who Cares" Arrives

Columbia Pictures Corp. announces that the sixth of the eight Columbia Pictures has been received from the coast. It will be released under the original title "Who Cares" as written by Cosmo Hamilton, the author of the book.

A fine cast was assembled for the picture; it includes such well know players as Dorothy Devoree, William Haines, Beverly Bayne, Lloyd Whitlock, Charlie Murray, Ralph Lewis, Vera Lewis, Wanda Hawley, Viola Vale and William Austin.

Lon Chaney, Norma Shearer, Marc MacDermott, Tully Marshall and John Gilbert in "He Who Gets Slapped," a Victor Seastrom production for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

Moomaw at Work

Camera work on Lewis H. Moomaw's feature, tentatively titled "The Greatest Thing," probably the most ambitious screen production ever undertaken by a motion-picture company in the Northwest, will be started shortly in and around Portland, Oregon, for Associated Exhibitors distribution. Moomaw, remembered for his fine work in "The Cheechachos," is handling the direction of "The Greatest Thing" and is also the author of the story.

"Lincoln" in Dallas

As the result of the recent test showing of "Abraham Lincoln" in Dallas, Texas, a contract has been closed for an early showing of the production at the Capitol, owned by Stinnett and Charninsky. Mr. Charninsky concluded negotiations for the rental of the picture for Dallas during his recent visit to New York.

Pictures for New Houses

The Los Angeles office of Producers Distributing Corporation continues to take first honors in the matter of opening new theatres. During the last six months this office has supplied the initial attraction at eight new theatres, and this month supplied the opening attractions at the Carter Theatre, Long Beach, and the United at Alhambra, Cal. The Carter opened on January 21 with "The Siren of Seville," starring Priscilla Dean, and the United opened on January 23 with "Roaring Rails," starring Harry Carey.

Laemmle Orders Clean-up on U's Programme Pictures

IN September, Universal discontinued the practise of making program pictures. However, that didn't mean that Universal didn't have plenty of program pictures, already made, for sale. It simply meant that the emphasis of Universal advertising and selling was directed at the bigger and more important pictures which Universal started to produce then.

Very naturally with its interest centered on the bigger product, bookings in the program pictures fell off. Just before Mr. Laemmle left for Universal City, he looked over the program picture sales, and realized that, due to the lack of advertising, much very valuable photoplay material was not being utilized by the exhibitors who normally would have booked these program pictures. Therefore he ordered the Universal sales directors to clean up this program situation and write it off of the Universal books.

Universal salesmen have been given lists of these program pictures and have been instructed to make very liberal terms to exhibitors for them in consideration of volume of booking and immediate dates, so that by the end of June all of the bookings on Universal's Special Attraction program will have been completed. It will then be possible to retire these prints and close the books on Universal Special Attractions.

In order to make still more attractive prices, Mr. Laemmle has permitted the sales directors to write off immediately the overhead charges which would normally have to be figured in the sales price of these Special Attraction photoplays. A list of thirty of the most representative of these Special Attractions include the following.

Among the all-star successes are "The Slanderers," with Johnny Walker and Gladys Hulette; "Legally Dead" with Milton Sills; "Riders Up" with Creighton Hale; "The Night Message" and "The Ghost Patrol."

Then there are "The Gentleman from America," "Dead Game," "Shootin' For Love," "Out O' Luck," "The Ramblin' Kid," and "Ride For Your Life," starring Hoot Gibson; "Don Quickshot of the Rio Grande," "The Red Warning," "The Phantom Horseman" and "The Galloping Act," starring Jack Hoxie; "Excitement," "The Dangerous Blonde" and "Young Ideas" starring Laura La Plante; "McGuire of the Mounted," "Shadows of the North" and "The Breathless Moment," starring William Desmond.

Also "The Love Letter," "Crossed Wires" and "Sawdust," starring Gladys Walton; "Nobody's Bride," "The Victor," "Jack O' Clubs" and "High Speed" starring Herbert Rawlinson and "The Flaming Hour" and "The First Degree" starring Frank Mayo.

Many of these pictures are now being shown first-run in big houses, Universal reports, and are doing even better than many current releases.

"Shenandoah" to be Special Schulberg Picture Next Season

ONE of the most significant production announcements for next year, issued thus far, came from B. P. Schulberg when he made public that his producing organization will make an elaborate screen version of the famous American play, "Shenandoah," as one of its first releases for 1925-26.

"Shenandoah" is a spectacular drama full of pictorial effects and swift moving plot. Its background of Civil War days will be transformed to the screen on a large scale.

With the exception of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," "Shenandoah" has received the widest presentation of any American drama ever staged. Written by Bronson Howard, it was first presented in 1888 with General Sherman as guest of honor at the opening performance. Wilton Lackaye, Henry Miller and Effie Shannon appeared in the original cast.

For the last thirty-six years the play has been a regular feature of stock repetoire and has been presented in practically every city and town in America, reaching an audience of many millions. It has had five revivals on the New York stage.

"Shenandoah" was the first stage piece to dramatize in a spectacular way the colorful era of the Civil War. It established a vogue for war plays that resulted in "Barbara Frietchie," "The Warrens of Virginia," "The Girl I Left Behind Me," and others. The Bronson Howard play, however, reached double the audience of its successors.

"Mad Dancer" Completed

William B. Laub has completed the cutting and editing of Herman F. Jans' latest feature, "The Mad Dancer" which features Ann Pennington, Johnnie Walker and Vincent Lopez and his Band. Laub will now begin the work of preparing the scenario for "Ermine and Rhinestones," third of the new series of six Jans productions.

Marie Prevost and Helene Chadwick in a scene from Warner Brothers' "The Dark Swan."

First National Requires More Studio Room in East

ALTHOUGH it was the original plan of Richard A. Rowland, General Manager of First National Productions, to produce in the East with only two units, conditions have now been found so favorable in New York that he will have two more units at work before the latest two are completed.

This will mean four units operating at once in New York under the banner of First National Productions. "Chickie" and "The Necessary Evil" are now being made, and the other two to be started shortly will be "The Half Way Girl" and "The Making of O'Malley."

The exteriors of both these photoplays will be taken in Florida, the interiors being "shot" in New York. With four productions running simultaneously, it is Mr. Rowland's plan to engage additional studio space. A deal is now pending whereby First National will lease another big New York studio.

Already since coming East, First National has completed in the New York studio two pictures. These were: "I Want My Man" and "One Way Street." No sooner had the sets of these been struck when the present two were started and the studio is a beehive of industry.

The casts of "Chickie" and "The Necessary Evil" were recruited for the most part from Hollywood. "Chickie," an adaptation from the novel by Elinore Meherin, is to boast a truly all-star cast. Dorothy Mackaill is to play the titular role, and with her are such luminaries as John Bowers, Marguerite de la Motte, Hobart Bosworth, Myrtle Stedman, Gladys Brockwell and Paul Nicholson. John Francis Dillon, who handled the megaphone on "Flaming Youth," "Lilies of the Field," "Flirting With Love," and "One Way Street," is to direct this picture.

"The Necessary Evil," an adaptation of the Stephen Vincent Benet story "Uriah's Son," is to be a co-featuring vehicle for Ben Lyon and Viola Dana.

George Archainbaud was brought from Hollywood especially to take over its direction. Supporting Lyon and Miss Dana in "The Necessary Evil" are Frank Mayo, Gladys Brockwell, Mary Thurman, Martha Madison and Betty Jewel.

The casting directors are now filling the roles of "The Making of O'Malley," a picture in which Milton Sills appears in the uniform of a New York policeman, and "The Half Way Girl," a featuring vehicle for Doris Kenyon.

To Start on "Nothing to Wear"

Within the next two weeks it is expected that Hobart Henley will start production at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios Culver City on "Nothing to Wear," an original screen story by Samuel Shipman.

Robert Z. Leonard recently completed the film production of "Cheaper to Marry" from an adaptation by Alice D. G. Miller. Conrad Nagel, Paulette Duval, Lewis Stone, Marguerite de la Motte, Louise Fazenda and Claude Gillingwater have leading roles in the screen version.

Betty Compson's Next

"Eve's Secret," Betty Compson's first starring vehicle in 1925, will go into production at the Paramount West Coast studio within the next week, according to an announcement made by Jesse L. Lasky, in charge of production of Famous Players-Lasky Corporation.

"Eve's Secret" is an adaptation of "Moonflower," the stage play in which Elsie Ferguson recently scored a tremendous success in the east. Clarence Badger will produce the photoplay.

Fleming on From Coast

J. J. Fleming, president of Fleming Productions, Inc. arrived in New York this week for conference with J. Charles Davis 2nd, president of Davis Distributing Division, Inc. which is handling all the Fleming Productions, regardng the new series of Eight American Youth Dramas starring F. Schuman-Heink, son of Mme. Schuman-Heink the famous opera star as well as a new series of eight out door releases starring Al. Ferguson.

To Direct "Fox Varieties"

Ray Hall, veteran short subject production director and news reel editor, has been appointed by Fox to the post of production director of "Fox Varieties," new one-reel entertainment films, which will be released by that company beginning April 12. Mr. Hall succeeds Charles Sarver who is assigned to important studio duties in the production department of the company.

Christie Packs Two Hours of Fun in Thirty Minutes

SPEED, says Charles Christie, general manager of the Christie Film Company, who is at present in New York conferring with E. W. Hammons, president of Educational Film Exchanges, Inc., is the essence of modern progress.

"Almost every invention of note in the last half-century has had to do with the conservation of time," says Mr. Christie. "The telegraph, telephone, automobile, airplane, the fast ocean steamship and radio—all of these inventions enable people to save time.

"Motion pictures are also big time-savers, though few people regard them as such. The story of a long book can be told on the screen in much shorter time than it is possible to read the book. In the rush to save time people demand speed in their amusements.

"Speed in comedy is just as welcome, and even more essential, than speed in dramatic pictures. More amusement can be encompassed by two reels of fast comedy action now than it was possible to include in the same time a few years back. We have increased the speed of Christie Comedies the last year until we are now offering more entertainment in two reels than was formerly presented in five or six reel comedy. The result is concentrated amusement—two hours of fun in thirty minutes.

Second Butterfly Comedy

W. Ray Johnston, president of Rayart pictures, announces that "The Raid," second of the Butterfly Comedies produced by Sherwood MacDonald for Rayart release, has been received in New York. The cast includes: Joe Banner, Gloria Joy, Max Asher, Kewpie King, Dorothy Cleveland, Howard Higbee and the Butterfly Chorus.

Finishes Thirty-eighth Comedy

Hal Roach Lot a Bee-Hive of Activity on Pathe Productions

Director "Bob" McGowan has just finished camera work on the thirty-eighth "Our Gang" comedy for Hal Roach. The second picture of the fourth series of what are universally conceded to be the most successful two-reel comedies on the screen, will be released as "First Love."

While the cutting of the picture is in progress, Director McGowan will start work on his next picture with Farina, Mickey, Joe, Jack, Mary and Gene. The nature of the story embodied in this production is in a degree a "western," as the inimitable neighborhood rascals are cowboys who go adventuring westward.

In addition to "First Love," three other Hal Roach productions are in the final stages of editing and will be sent East to the Pathe headquarters this week. The three pictures are: one starring Arthur Stone under the title of "The Hard Working Loafer," directed by Eugene DeRue; "Sherlock Slueth," also starring Arthur Stone and directed by Ralph Ceder; and an untitled Glenn Tryon-Blanche Mehaffey comedy.

Von Sternberg Starts "Escape"

Josef von Sternberg starts work at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios at Culver City, on "Escape," his first production under a contract with this company.

"Escape" is Alden Brooks novel, described as satirical study in psychology, and is laid entirely in France. It is a story of the present day, full of situations and characters which are counted on to make the screen version a big success.

Renewing Old Friendships

May Robson, celebrated actress, now playing in Los Angeles in a comedy written by herself, was a recent visitor at the Hollywood Studios, where she renewed acquaintance with Weber and Fields, who are making "Friendly Enemies" under George Melford's direction for release through Producers Distributing Corporation. Miss Robson appeared in "Sapolio," a burlesque of "Sappho." nearly a score of years ago. This was one of the Weberfields successes, and Miss Robson played the mother role.

Scene from the Hal Roach-Charley Chase Pathe comedy, "Fighting Fluid."

Century Announces Four Comedies for February

ABE STERN, vice-president of the Century Film Corporation, has just announced four Century Comedies for release through all Universal exchanges during the month of February. Three of them are star comedies made with three of Century's quartet of comedy stars, Wanda Wiley, Edna Marian and Al Alt. The fourth is a Buddy Messinger comedy.

Wanda Wiley, the young comedienne who had her first showing on Broadway in the Rialto Theatre last week, starts off the month of February for Century. On February 4th, her latest picture, "Nobody's Sweetheart," will be released. It was directed by William Watson, well known as a comedy director. Harry McCoy plays the leading role opposite Miss Wiley.

"Nobodys Sweetheart" shows the Century comedienne in a series of side-splitting adventures arising from her attempts to be a detective. Exhibitors report that this young woman is getting better and better with each succeeding picture. Her current release gives her ample opportunity to display her ability as a fun-maker.

The second Century release in February will be "My Baby Doll," a novelty comedy starring Miss Marian. She is supported by Arthur Lake, Larry Richardson and Jane Shirley. Edward I. Luddy directed this two-reeler, which, according to reports from a number of theatres which have shown its pre-release, is an unusually good comedy, and gets many laughs.

In it Miss Marian, working in a toy-shop, poses as one of the dolls and is taken to the home where her sweetheart lives. A hilarious series of antics follows until her identity is established. It is an exceptionally good comedy for children.

The following Century release will be "Dangerous Peach," starring Al Alt. This is a bright and snappy two-reeler directed by Jess Robbins, long noted as a comedy director. It is one of the best comedies ever turned out by Alt, who long has been a favorite in houses booking Century Comedies.

The final Century of the month will be a Buddy Messinger picture entitled "Sailing Along," which takes place aboard ship, showing Buddy, as a sailor, trying to make love to a pretty passenger, with one of the ship's officers as a rival. Harry McCoy is the rival and Stella Doyle the girl. The locale admits of many very funny situations. Charles Lamont directed it.

Alyce Mills, Schulberg Star, Featured in "Faint Perfume"

ANOTHER youthful player of promise was added this week to B. P. Schulberg's stock company when the producer signed Alyce Mills to a long term contract. Mr. Schulberg, who has been very successful in developing new screen talent, predicts immediate recognition for this new actress.

Miss Mills will leave for Hollywood next week where she will play her first featured role for B. P. Schulberg in his production of Zona Gale's novel, "Faint Perfume," which is to be started in the very near future. This story will be next on the directorial schedule of Gasnier. Miss Mills will also appear in prominent roles in Schulberg releases for next season.

Most of the actress' work to date has been in productions made in the east. She played the leading part in William Fox's "Daughters of the Night" and was seen in support of Benny Leonard in the "Flying Fists" sreies.

Alyce Mills is Mr. Schulberg's second recent discovery in his search for new screen faces. He recently signed a young juvenile, Donald Keith, to a similar contract. Keith is being co-featured with Anita Stewart and Bert Lyell in "The Boomerang."

Chase and Stone Comedies Head Pathe List for Feb. 15

PATHE program of releases for the week of February 15 carries considerable diversity in the way of dramaticc and comedy offerings. Heading the list is a Hal Roach-Charlie Chase comedy, titled "The Family Entrance"; an Arthur Stone comedy entitled "Change the Needle"; and a rapid-fire, actionful chapter of the Patheserial, "Galloping Hoofs," featuring Allene Ray and Johnnie Walker.

"Change the Needle" is the fifth two-reel comedy starring Arthur Stone, made under the Hal Roach banner. Stone was recently recruited from the vaudeville field, and his latest comedy, "Change the needle," is considered one of the best pictures this comedian has yet made for the screen.

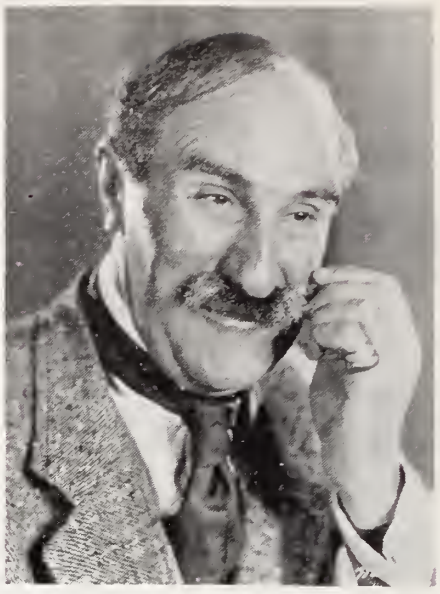
A small-town motion-picture theatre and the troubles of a family man who has taken his domestic charges to the movies afford Charlie Chase many situations for real laughs in "The Family Entrance." Leo McCarey handled the direction in on this production, which carries a supporting cast consisting of Katherine Grant, "Lassie Lou" Ahearn, Noah Young, Jack Gavin, Ed Porter, and Jerome LaPlanche.

The ninth and next-to-the-final chapter of the exciting racetrack Patheserial, "Galloping Hoofs," is entitled "Tricked." In this chapter the action of the story centers for the most part in New York City, where the villainous gang make their final attempt to gain possession of the mysterious sealed box before it is delivered to the proper authorities for opening.

Pathe Review No. 7 presents the second of a series of camera novelties under the title of "Hot Dog." This subject shows some of the marvelous motion-picture camera effects secured by the new "Process Camera" invented by Alvin Knechtel. A troupe of trained dogs are shown on the screen going through a series of stunts that defy the laws of space and gravity.

The first of the series of "The Secrets of Nature" is also released in Pathe Review No. 7. This series will disclose intensely interesting phases in the lives of animals and insects. Mr. Stickleback, the fish, who makes an ideal husband, is the hero of the first installment. A Pathecolor of the city of Salt Lake in the "Visiting Our Own America" series closes the Review.

In the Aesop's Film Fables for the week the funny little cartoon characters carry on a campaign for "Bigger and Better Jails" "Topics of the Day" No. 7 and Pathe News Nos. 16 and 17 complete the program for this week.



ERNEST TORRENCE

Soon to be seen in Paramount's "The Dressmaker of Paris."

Scene from episode 5 of "Galloping Hoofs," in which Johnny Walker and Allene Ray are featured by Pathe.

"Lilies of the Streets" New Underworld Melodrama

CONFERENCES extending over a period of two weeks finally resulted in a title for F. B. O.'s big underworld melodrama, which Belban Productions are shooting at the Whitman Bennett Studios, in Yonkers.

"Lilies of the Streets" has finally been decided upon.

The title fits the story, which was written by Elizabeth J. Monroe, Mrs. Mary E. Hamilton's assistant in police work, snugly.

Shooting on interiors will be concluded next week, when the entire company will go to downtown New York to shoot exteriors. The tenderloin, the Bowery and downtown sections of Third Avenue will be utilized for these scenes.

Nat G. Rothstein, Director of Publicity and Advertising at F. B. O., has a huge exploitation campaign for "Lilies of the Streets" under way. Mrs. Mary E. Hamilton, America's only woman police chief, has been promised full cooperation by police chiefs throughout the United States in exploiting the picture, which deals with the experiences of a young girl in a big city, and the danger of bad associations.

The cast is headed by Virginia Lee Corbin, Johnnie Walker and Mrs. Hamilton. Prominent in support of these three luminaries are Wheeler Oakman, as the heavy, Peggy Kelly, Irma Harrison, Theodore Babcock, Elizabeth J. Monroe, and Dorothy Cummings. Harry Chandlee prepared the adaptation and continuity, and Joseph Levering is directing, with Edward Paul and Charles Davis behind the cameras. Harry Weil who was associated with Frank Lloyd for eleven years, is acting as production manager.

Samuel J. Briskin and George H. Davis, officiating heads of Belban Productions, expressed great enthusiasm when the rushes of the first week's work were shown, and feel they have an unusually big underworld production in "Lilies of the Streets." F. B. O. will list the picture as one of the specials for 1925.

"Forbidden Cargo" Completed

Tom Buckingham has completed "Forbidden Cargo," the fourth Evelyn Brent production for Film Booking Offices. It is a sea story by Fred Kennedy Myton and concerns the romance and adventures of a girl who captains a rum-running ship in the South Atlantic. The company recently returned from Balboa and other west coast resorts where the sea action was filmed. Others in the cast are Robert Ellis and Boris Karloff.

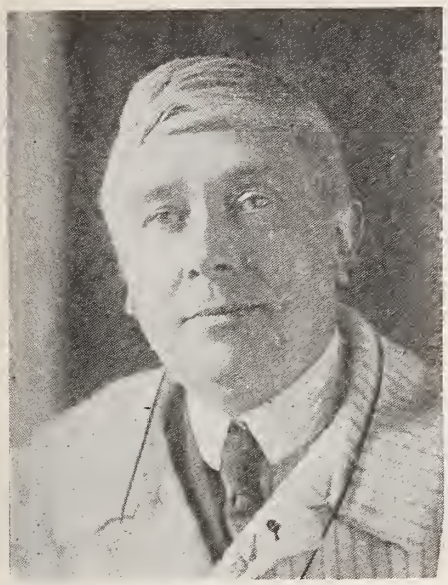


Photo copyright—Mishkin.

MAURICE MAETERLINCK

Maurice Maeterlinck Now with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

MAURICE MAETERLINCK, the famed Belgian writer, has been signed by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer to write three original scenarios for the screen.

"The Power of the Dead" is the tentative title of the first Maeterlinck story under his Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer contract. The tentative title of the second story is "The Power of Good." Maeterlinck's third contribution to Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer is not yet titled.

This deal with one of the most famous and greatest living writers is expected to create wide comment throughout the world. Maeterlinck is one of the first of the prominent literary minds to recognize the genuins are of the motion picture, and write directly for the screen.

Maeterlinck has been making a thorough study of motion picture technique, and has expressed himself as thoroughly in sympathy with motion picture methods of story telling.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer executives stated this week they were highly elated with the acquisition of the Maeterlinck scripts, and expect their production to be among the high lights of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's future program.

Maeterlinck's play, "The Bluebird," is still one of the most successful that has ever been produced in the theatre, and his other dramatic works have had little short of sensational success.

The step of Maeterlinck in turning his efforts to photoplay composition is in line with the attitude that is becoming more general throughout the literary world. With Maeterlinck's entrance as a writer of original screen scripts, it is expected that his action will have a tremendous effect on influencing the leading authors of the present to do likewise.

The present titles of the Maeterlinck stories will undoubtedly be changed when they are filmed by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. Among Maeterlinck's dramas are "Monna Vanna," "Pelleas and Melisande," "The Burgomaster of Stilemonde," "The Betrothal," "Sister Beatrice," and "The Death of Tintatile." "Monna Vanna" and "The Blue Bird," have been screened. Jane Cowl produced "Pelleas and Melisande" on Broadway last season.

In view of Maeterlinck's stage successes, much is expected of his first original screen plays.

Prince Troubetzkoy Plays in "The Roofs of New York"

UNIVERSAL has decided to make a picture in the East. In fact, it will make a picture in New York City. According to the statement issued, this doesn't mean that Universal is moving its producing center from Universal City or intends to establish a dual producing system or anything of that kind. It merely means that Universal will make a New York story, and instead of building New York at Universal City it will photograph the whole picture in New York. The title of the production is the key to the entire situation. The story will be called "The Roofs of New York." Although Universal has a studio in Fort Lee, the company has not made any productions in it since the time it decided to center its entire production activity in Universal City, about seven years ago. Universal City was opened in March 1915.

Coincidentally, Carl Laemmle has signed a long-time contract with Prince Youcca Troubetzkoy, whose first picture work in this country will be in "The Roofs of New York." The Prince is a handsome young aristocrat, scion of one of the most noted of the old Russian families. During the war the immense fortune possessed by the family was lost. Since that time the young Prince has developed a talent for acting and has had considerable experience in motion picture work in Europe. He is handsome (of the Thomas Meighan type), six feet tall, about twenty-two years of age, with a figure like a drill sergeant. He speaks English almost as well as he does Russian, French and German.

The following statement was issued from the Universal offices, 730 Fifth Avenue yesterday.

"Universal has engaged William Nigh, one of the most resourceful and successful directors in the moving picture business, to make a production of "The Roofs of New York." This production will be made in New York City. Space has just been engaged at the Cosmopolitan studio until such time as the Universal studio in Fort Lee is vacated and will be available for this production. Mr. Nigh will be engaged for the next week revising and editing the scenario.

"The only player engaged so far is the Prince Youcca Troubetzkoy, who will arrive on the Berengaria on Tuesday, February 3rd. Carl Laemmle, president of Universal, engaged Prince Troubetzkoy last summer when he was in Paris, on a long-time contract, to play in Universal productions. This is the Prince's first visit to New York, although the Troubetzkoy family is probably better known in America than any other Russian aristocratic name. The noted sculptor, Paul Troubetzkoy, is one of his uncles, and the painter, Pierre Troubetzkoy, who married Amelie Reeves, is another uncle. They have a beautiful home in Albemarle County, Virginia. The Prince's father is an intimate friend of Prince Cyril, whose wife was recently invited by New York society to visit America. Cyril is said to be a pretender to the Russian throne."

Hudson Adds to Staff

Earl Hudson has added another newspaperman to the staff of former newsgatherers under his command at the First National studios in New York. The latest acquisition is Harold R. Hall, of Boston. Hall for the last four years has been assistant city editor and feature writer of the Boston American. He has also been successful as a magazine writer.

Douglas MacLean in a scene from "Never S ay Die," which Encore Pictures is releasing through Associated Exhibitors.

Complete Exterior Scenes

Work Will Start Soon on Interiors For "The Cracker Jack," Latest Hines Feature

Exteriors on "The Cracker Jack," Johnny Hines' latest feature for East Coast Films Incorporated, were finally completed this week at Miami, Fla., after four weeks of consistent shooting. With three cameramen on location, over four hundred scenes were filmed and approximately thirty thousand feet of negative used. As a result, the entire cast including Johnny Hines, Sigrid Holmquist, J. Barney Sherry, Horace Haines, Bradley Barker and Vonda Case has left Miami for New York.

During the interval that the cast was on location in the south, a complete technical force has been at work at the Tec-Art Studio in New York, where to date eight big sets have already been completed. As soon as Hines and his supporting cast arrive, production on the interiors, which is expected to consume four weeks, will begin.

Cast in Leading Roles

George O'Brien, now a full fledged Fox star, and Billie Dove have been cast in the leading roles in the Fox screen version of Larry Evans' popular novel, "Once to Every Man," now in the course of production at the Fox West Coast Studios. John Ford is directing the picturization of the Evans story.

The new Ford production will be released as part of the Fox company's 1925-1926 program of special productions and is the second of the next season's productions that the young director has worked on.

"One of the 6 Best Pictures of the Month."
—Photoplay Magazine.
C. C. Burr Presents
JOHNNY HINES IN

The EARLY BIRD
Coming—"The Crackerjack"
Produced and Distributed by
EAST COAST FILMS, Incorporated
C. C. Burr, Managing Director
135 West 44th Street, New York, N. Y.
Foreign rights controlled by
Simmons-Kann Enterprises, Inc.
220 West 42 St. N. Y. C.

Langdon Pictures on Broadway

Harry Langdon has been seen on Broadway's screens quite often before and has won his measure of adulation from the photoplay scribes that cover New York's most important first-run theatres. Langdon outdid himself, however, the week of January 25th when two of his comedies played day and date engagements at two of Broadway's newest cinema palaces.

"The Sea Squawk" appeared on the program of the Piccadilly Theatre. "The Marriage Wow" was presented at B. S. Moss's New Colony Theatre.

"Getting 'Em Right"

"Getting 'Em Right" is the next of the Star Reporter series of Metropolitan Melodramas starring George Larkin, to be released by Rayart. The picture has gone into production on the Coast under the direction of Jack Harvey, supervised by George Blaisdell. Jane Thomas, recently featured in "The Hoosier Schoolmaster," plays opposite Larkin.

ALYCE MILLS
Who has been signed by B. P. Schulberg to a long-term contract.

Educational Producing Units Rushing Work on Comedies

ALL units producing comedies for distribution by Educational Film Exchanges, Inc., are working full time and both the Christie Studios and the Fine Arts Studios in Los Angeles are humming with activity as the second half of the winter producing season gets under way.

At the Christie Studio, Bobby Vernon is putting the finishing touches on "Great Guns," the comedy for which Vernon and his company went to Catalina. This will be a comedy somewhat different from the previous releases of the Vernon series, and Charles Christie, now in New York, predicts that it will be one of the best comedies of the season.

Walter Hiers, since his return from Dallas, Texas, where he made a flying visit as the guest of the Real Estate Board, is working on a picture which will reach the screen under the title of "Rarin' Romeo."

Jimmie Adams is working in "Love Goofy," while Neal Burns is between pictures.

At the Fine Arts Studio, where Hamilton, Mermaid, Cameo and Juvenile Comedies are produced, Lloyd Hamilton is working in "King Cotton," finishing the interior scenes for the comedy for which the Hamilton company visited Brawley, Cal. This will be a "Down in Dixie" picture, with the cotton fields as a background of much of the comedy.

Lige Conley is working in "Night Hawks," a picture revolving around a shipyard. One of the largest sets built on the stages of the Fine Arts Studio since "Intolerance" has been erected for this comedy.

Al St. John is finishing his first picture under the Mermaid banner. It has been titled "Red Pepper." Judy King and Babe London will be seen in his support.

Eddie Nelson, who was engaged to play leads in Cameo Comedies, will start a Mermaid Comedy as soon as he is finished with his present Cameo Comedy, "Welcome Danger." Selma O'Neil will be his leading lady. Cliff Bowes and Virginia Vance are working in Cameo Comedies, while the Juvenile cast, headed by Jack McHugh and Tom Hicks, are just starting a comedy to follow the release of "Wild Cat Willie."

Both new novelty series added to Educational's program at the beginning of the year have gotten away to a flying start, and have already been booked in many of the large representative circuits throughout the country.

"Judge's Crossword Puzzles," the series of one-reel novelty reels using the present cross-word craze as a basis for the comedy, has met with an exceptional reception in the key cities. The entire Loew circuit in New York and every Loew theatre in the United States has booked this series and has already started to play them.

Chicago is well under way with the entire Ascher circuit already booked as well as the circuit controlled by H. Schoenstadt & Son. In California the entire West Coast circuit has signed for the series.

The Paris Creations in Color, produced by McCall Fashion News and which presents Hope Hampton in the latest creations of Parisian designers, has also been booked in several large theatres and circuits, including the West Coast Circuit in California. One of the large bookings is Saxe's new Wisconsin Theatre in Milwaukee.

Earle Foxe Now a Star

Beginning with "A Spanish Romeo," latest of the Fox Film Corporation Van Bibber comedies from the stories by Richard Harding Davis, Earle Foxe, who played the title role in the earlier releases, will be the star of these two-reel polite comedies, it is announced by the Fox company. Earle's elevation to stardom is the result of his excellent work in the Davis stories.

PAULINE STARKE
In the William Fox special, "The Man Without a Country."

New Loew Policy

Will Present First Run Pictures in Neighborhood Theatres

Reversing the general custom of showing a picture first on Broadway, Marcus Loew will try out a new scheme in his Harlem and Bronx Theatres next week by giving the picture "One Glorious Night," a C. B. C. picture, featuring Elaine Hammerstein, its first trial in those territories. The experiment will be made only in Loew theatres playing pictures exclusively which heretofore have not only had to wait until after the Broadway showing, but engagements in the Loew combination theatres as well.

"One Glorious Night" is a first rate motion picture according to the Loew bookers, and Miss Hammerstein has in her support such well known players as Al Roscoe, Phyllis Haver and Freeman Wood. Scott Dunlap directed. The story deals with the choice made by a girl in two proposals in marriage, one offering wealth and luxury and the other poverty, but both with a promise of love. Loew's Harlem, Burnside and Elsmere will get it first, on February 3rd and 4th. Other neighborhood picture houses will follow immediately.

Laemmle Arrives on the Coast Finds Production Speeding Up

WHEN Carl Laemmle, president of Universal, arrived in Los Angeles this week, he found the "U" lot in the midst of heavy activities with four companies at work and preparation under way for the immediate production of seven other pictures, four of which will be big Universal-Jewel features.

The Jewel features now in production are "Lorraine of the Lions," starring Norman Kerry and Reginald Denny's latest starring vehicle, "I'll Show You the Town," which is being directed by Harry Pollard. "The Ace of Spades" also is in production and "Dangers of the Deep," another serial, is ready for filming.

"Lorraine of the Lions," to be one of the feature specials of the year, is an original story written especially for Norman Kerry by Isadore Bernstein. Patsy Ruth Miller has the leading feminine role, while others in the cast include Joseph Dowling, Philo McCullough, Fred Humes, Harry Todd, Doreen Turner and Jack Goodrich. A tropical jungle covering an area of six acres has been erected on the Universal lot for many of the scenes in the film. The production is under the direction of Edward Sedgwick, assisted by Tenny Wright.

"I'll Show You the Town" is adapted from the story by Elmer Davis. The cast supporting Reginald Denny includes Marian Nixon, Lilyan Tashman, Cissy Fitzgerald, Ed. Kimball, William A. Carroll, Hayden Stevenson and Lee Moran.

Among the pictures scheduled for early production are "The Teaser," "The Goose Woman," "Peacock Feathers" and "The Prince."

"The Teaser," co-starring Laura La Plante and Pat O'Malley, is adapted from Pamela Wynne's story of the same name and will be produced under the direction of William Seiter.

Clarence Brown, whose last picture for Universal was "Smouldering Fires," which co-starred Pauline Frederick and Laura La Plante, will direct "The Goose Woman," Rex Beach's sensational newspaper story, the adaptation of which was prepared by Melville Brown. The cast for "The Goose Woman" will include Louise Dresser, who will play the title role; Jack Pickford, Constance Bennett, James O. Barrows and George Cooper.

"Peacock Feathers" will be Virginia Valli's next starring vehicle, is adapted from the magazine story of the same name by Temple Bailey. King Baggot will direct the production.

"The Ace of Spades," a chapter play now in production under the direction of Henry McRae, features William Desmond and Mary McAllister. Others in the cast include Al. Smith, William A. Steele, Cathleen Calhoun, Jack Pratt, Clark Comstock and Frank Lanning.

Hoot Gibson's latest starring vehicle, "Spook Ranch," is now in production under the direction of Edward Laemmle. Gibson is supported by a cast including Helen Ferguson, Ed. Cowles, Tote DuCrow, Robert McKim and Frank Rice.

"The Prince," in which Mary Philbin will co-star with Norman Kerry, will be under the direction of Charles Brabin.

Andrews to Direct Thomson

Udell Sylvester Andrews, more commonly "Del," has been signed to direct Fred Thomson in "That Devil Quemado!" his next F. B. O. picture which will be started within a few days, according to the announcement made by B. P. Fineman, general studio manager.

This will be the first picture that Thomson has made since the stage-coach accident which laid him up for a long period with a broken leg. Casting has already begun for the new feature.

True Talk No. 29

By John B. Rock
General Manager, Vitagraph, Inc.

February 14—

Exhibitors:

If you are independent prove it!

TAKE A TIP!

BOOK VITAGRAPH PICTURES—name play dates now! Start with "Captain Blood" AND PLAY THEM ALL—clean, wholesome, actionful, audience thrillers!

"Pampered Youth," the latest, with the greatest fire scene ever filmed—a wonderful exploitation picture—is ready now.

Nazimova is the envy of every woman in America in her loveable, youthful characterization of the Apache girl in "The Redeeming Sin."

Delight Evans, in February's Screenland, says about "The Beloved Brute":

"I recommend that you do not fail to see 'The Beloved Brute' . . . it's fresh and vivid . . . the hero loves to fight . . . as played by Victor McLaglen he is an old darling, even if he is a brute."

John B. Rock

Thalberg Returns to West Coast; Has New Scripts; Signs Goulding

IRVING G. THALBERG, associate executive at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios at Culver City, returned to the coast Sunday after several weeks in New York during which future production plans were gone over with executives of the company, and a number of scripts purchased.

Lawrence Stallings, one of the authors of "What Price Glory," a current New York dramatic success, and feature writer of the New York World, accompanied Mr. Thalberg to the coast, where the writer will study screen technique.

Curtis Benton, whose original story, "White Heat," was bought by Mr. Thalburg, was also sent to the coast by the executive to develop the continuity. Benton has written a number of successes.

Edmund Goulding, well known screen author, was signed by Mr. Thalberg to write scenarios and preceded the executive to the coast. It is understood that Mr. Goulding, who has written many of the screen's outstanding successes, and is co-author of one of the most successful current Broadway dramas, will handle the megaphone for the first time under his arrangement with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. This is in line with the company's policy to develop new directors.

One of the chief contracts closed by Mr. Thalberg during his trip to New York was the purchase of two plays which will be produced by the Theatre Guild of New York during the coming year. The names of these plays are withheld until their production by the Guild.

From Samuel Shipman another original screen story was bought by Mr. Thalberg, who also purchased "The White Desert" by Courtney Ryley Cooper, a popular author of prominence. Ethel M. Dell's novel, "The Way of an Eagle," was another purchase by Mr. Thalberg.

During his stay in New York, arrangements were completed for the filming of Lulu Vollmer's drama of the Kentucky mountains, "Sun Up," produced last season.

Mr. Thalberg made other arrangements while in the East, and will probably have additional announcements to make following his return to the studios, where he will resume supervision of several Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer productions.

"While we have purchased a number of books and plays for productions, I think that our attitude toward writers of original screen scripts is becoming more general throughout the industry," Mr. Thalberg said. "We are glad to give the new writer a chance, because we think that the future progress of the motion picture lies in this direction. If new talent shows possibilities, the resources of our studios are welcome to its development."

BARBARA BEDFORD

Leading lady for Edmund Lowe in "The Champion of Lost Causes," a Fox production.

Aerial Circus Scheduled For F. B. O. Coast Convention

THE convention of the branch managers of Film Booking Office's west coast exchanges, to be held in Los Angeles the early part of next week, will be featured by an aerial circus over the company's Hollywood Studios at Melrose and Gower streets through the courtesy of Al Wilson, world-famous stunt aviator whose daring has thrilled thousands throughout the country and who is being starred by F. B. O. in a series of aerial dramas.

With the assistance of Frank Clark, Frank Tommick and Boyd Monteith, noted army aviators associated with Mr. Wilson's organization, "The Horseman of the Heavens" (as he has been called) will put on a three-ring affair high above the F. B. O. lot at noon on Monday as part of a welcome to the visiting members of the organization. Preceded by a salvo of friction bombs which will burst in midair, and a covey of descending parachutes with greetings to the film salesman. Mr. Wilson will put on a demonstration among the features of which will be acrobatic stunts on the wings of [illegible]'s whirling mount, a transfer from one plane to another while in the air, and a drop from the wing of his plane.

This spectacular introduction to Hollywood will be followed by business meetings at the F. B. O. lot at which Harry M. Berman, general sales manager, and J. I. Schnitzer, vice-president, will preside. The new $5,500,000 production program for the year of 1925, calling for the making of fifty-four pictures, will come in for discussion, with the possibility of a few changes being made in the production announcement.

A dinner and dance at the Ambassador will be given by F. B. O. for the visiting exchange managers from Denver, Seattle, Portland, Salt Lake and San Francisco, who will be represented in addition to the Los Angeles office. About sixty guests, including F. B. O. stars, directors and studio officials, have been invited.

Scene from "The Aggravatin' Kid," a new Century comedy. Buddy Messinger is the featured player in this Universal release.

Buys Rights to Belasco Play

Fox announces the purchase of the screen rights of "The Man in Evening Clothes," London, Paris and New York stage success, from David Belasco and Henry Miller, for immediate production under the title "She Wolves."

The action of the play takes place in London, Paris and New York and the night life of these world metropolises will be shown in the screen version.

CLAIRE WINDSOR
Metro-Goldwyn featured player, in "The Denial."

Fox 1924-25 Program Nearing Completion; 6 Specials in Work

FOX is entering the last lap as far as its 1924-25 release schedule is concerned. Of the twenty-eight special and giant special productions on the Fox program for the current season only six remain to be completed.

The same is true of the Shirley Mason, Edmund Lowe and Buck Jones star series releases. Of these productions, twenty-one in all, fifteen releases have been completed and are either released or ready for release.

The short subject units of the corporation are also well up to schedule with only two of the Van Bibber comedies, seven Imperial and eight Sunshine comedies, remaining to be released.

The first print of "The Hunted Woman," a special, directed by John Conway, and scheduled for release February 15, has arrived at the Fox Eastern Studios and is now in the laboratory there. This production is an adaptation from James Oliver Curwood's story of the same name, featuring Seena Owen, Francis McDonald, Cyril Chadwick and Diana Miller. Conway is now directing "Everyman's Wife," scheduled for release early this spring featuring an all star cast.

Tom Mix, having completed work on "Riders of the Purple Sage," is now at work on its sequel "The Rainbow Trail." At present he is on location shooting the outdoor sequences of this picture.

Emmett Flynn, who is directing "Everyman's Wife," scheduled for release early this spring featuring an all star cast, reports that production well on the way toward completion. The remaining special production, "She Wolves" an adaptation from the stage play "The Man in Evening Clothes," will be put in work as soon as the scenario department turns over the script.

Buck Jones is now at work on the last of his releases for the current season "The Timber Wolf," under the direction of W. S. Van Dyke. This production is from an original story by Jackson Gregory, "Wild Ridin'" another Jones starring vehicle is in the cutting room. "The Trail Rider" the Jones February release is ready for distribution.

Casting has begun for the last Shirley Mason release "The Splendid Folly." Miss Mason has just completed "The Scarlet Honeymoon," under the direction of Alan Hale. This is Hale's first directorial effort.

Halperin's "School for Wives" Pleases Vitagraph Officials

THE very best in a long line of big photoplays produced by Victor Hugo Halperin, and a picture destined to fill a place high among the many superior attractions in Vitagraph's current schedule of specials, is "School for Wives," Mr. Halperin's adaptation of Leonard Merrick's popular novel, "The House of Lynch."

This is the unanimous opinion of Vitagraph officials and executives, following their first view of the new film, at the company's studios in Brooklyn a few days ago. Albert E. Smith, president, and John B. Rock, general manager, were among the guardians of Vitagraph interests present, all of whom were moved to enthusiastic comment.

In "School for Wives," Conway Tearle is said to give an admirable characterization of Richard Keith, the young artist, whose high ideals restrain him from marrying the only daughter of Jordan B. Lynch, multi-millionaire, until she agrees to renounce the family fortune. Sigrid Holmquist is reported to be no less convincing as the heiress, Betty, who is torn between love for the painter and a training which fits her only for the enjoyment of ease and luxury.

The cast throughout is well chosen, with Peggy Kelly appearing as Lady Atherton, who tries hard to "vamp" Keith; Arthur Donaldson as Lynch himself, Allan Simpson as Howard, the thoroughly spoiled son, Dick Lee, as Tomlinson, the cynical bachelor, who "has no use for women," until one of them remembers him $50,000 worth in the distribution of a fortune, and Jill Lynn, Orlando Daly, Brian Dunlevy, Dorothy Allen, Gerald Oliver Smith, Emily Chichester and Alyce Mills in other important roles.

Adhering carefully to the main theme of Mr. Merrick's novel, Mr. Halperin, from all accounts, has evolved an uncommonly appealing picture, with romance, thrills, suspense, and comedy combining to produce high class entertainment. Some of the scenic effects are almost marvelous.

Victor Hugo Halperin not only made the adaptation and directed the production, but wrote the titles, with Edward A. Halperin supervising the production work.

Chosen as Leading Woman

Mary Beth Milford has been chosen as leading lady for Bob Custer in his next Western feature for F. B. O. It will be called "Galloping Vengeance." Miss Milford played an important role in F. B. O.'s "Fighting Blood" series.

Casting "That Devil Quemado"

The call has gone out for the cast of Fred Thomson's next western feature for Film Booking Offices. It will be called "That Devil Quemado," according to announcement by B. P. Fineman, general manager of the F. B. O. Studios. Del Andrews has been named as director and work will begin next week.

A scene from "Low Tide," a ripping Educational-Mermaid comedy with Ned Sparks and Peg O'Neill.

MARION DAVIES
Cosmopolitan - Metro - Goldwyn star, will shortly be seen in "Zander the Great."

Buys Rights to "Married?"

Just before leaving for a trip to the key cities Herman F. Jans, president of Jans Productions Inc., announced that he had purchased the screen rights to "Married?" by Marjorie Benton Cooke, published by A. L. Burt by arrangement with Doubleday, Page and Co.

It is a modern story with scenes laid both in New York City and the West and is said to provide unusual material for screen presentation.

"Married?" will precede "Ermine and Rhinestones" on the Jans schedule, the last named picture to be the fourth on the list and the first two being "Playthings of Desire," with Estelle Taylor and Mahlon Hamilton featured, and, "The Mad Dancer" with Ann Pennington, Johnnie Walker and Vincent Lopez and his band.

Bennie to Attend Premiere

Ben Alexander, 12-year-old picture star, whom Booth Tarkington calls the typical American boy, is now in New York and will attend the premiere of Vitagraph's "Pampered Youth" at the Rialto Theatre next week. The run is to begin Sunday, February 8.

Ben has an important part in this David Smith production, which is an adaptation of Booth Tarkington's Pulitzer prize-winning novel, "The Magnificent Ambersons." The present visit to New York is his first, and he is devoting every available moment to sightseeing.

"Capital Punishment"

The Castle, Chicago, will have the premiere showing of B. P. Schulberg's special. "Capital Punishment," according to information from J. G. Bachmann, head of distribution for Schulberg Productions. The picture will open early in February. The engagement at the Castle will be of indefinite duration.

ANDERSEN & LAMASURE
PEERLESS FILM CO.
MOTION PICTURE PRODUCERS
Specialists in
Commercial and Educational Subjects
Developing, Printing and Titling
MATHER BLDG.
Franklin 2698, 916 G St. N. W., Washington, D. C.

Florence Turner Returns

Florence Turner, one of the most popular stars in the early days of the motion picture, returns to the screen in the Cosmopolitan special production, "Never the Twain Shall Meet," for Metro-Goldwyn.

Miss Turner's return to pictures is due to the energy and generosity of Marion Davies, the Cosmopolitan star, who found Miss Turner alone and ill in London and brought her back to America, arranging for her return to pictures. Miss Turner's "come-back" is said to be highly successful. "Never the Twain Shall Meet," adapted by Eugene Mullin from Peter B. Kyne's popular novel, is set for release the last week in February. In the cast are Anita Stewart, Bert Lytell, Huntley Gordon, Justine Johnston, Lionel Barrymore, William Norris, George Siegmann, Emily Fitzroy and Princess Marie de Bourbon. Joseph Urban designed the interior settings.

Schulberg's February Release

J. B. Bachmann Concentrating a "Mansion of Aching Hearts"

J. G. Bachmann, general manager of distribution for B. P. Schulberg Productions, has set aside "The Mansion of Aching Hearts" as the February release on his company's current schedule. James P. Hogan recently completed this story, based on the widely known song by Harry Von Tilzer. This picture brings Ethel Clayton back to the screen after a two year's absence.

Following "The Mansion of Aching Hearts" will come the releasee of the B. P. Schulberg Special, "The Boomerang," adapted from the David Belasco play by Winchell Smith and Victor Mapes. Special titles, written from a comedy angle, are being prepared for "The Boomerang."

Anita Stewart, Bert Lytell and Donald Keith, B. P. Schulberg's new screen find, head the featured players in this latter picture which is the most ambitious production Mr. Schulberg has undertaken this year.

Neill to Direct Lowe

R. William Neill will direct Edmund Lowe in his next starring vehicle for Fox titled "The Best Man," from a story by Grace Livingston Hull Lutz, for which the cast has just been announced.

Grace Lombard has been selected to play the feminine lead opposite the star, and Adolph Milar will interpret the villain of the picture. Frank Beal, Harvey Clark and Fred Walton have important character roles. Others in the cast are Byron Douglas, Fred Butler, Wade Boteler, Fred Becker and Edward Chandler.

Phillips in Hogan Picture

Eddie Phillips whose work in "Capital Punishment" is receiving special mention from all reviewers, is playing another unique character bit in B. P. Schulberg's new production, "The Mansion of Aching Hearts" which features Ethel Clayton, Cullen Landis and Barbara Bedford.

VICTOR SEASTROM
Noted Swedish director, who produced "He Who Gets Slapped" for Metro-Goldwyn.

Vitagraph Signs Mae Marsh

Definite announcement was made at the Vitagraph executive offices in Brooklyn of the signing of Mae Marsh to play the leading role in "In the Garden of Charity," the special adaptation of Basil King's novel, which J. Stuart Blackton will produce.

The cast is to include, too, according to the official announcement, Ben Hendricks, in the leading man's part, Laska Winters, Earl Schenck, Ivor McFadden and Thomas Mills.

Plans for the production were discussed with Mr. Blackton by Albert E. Smith, president of Vitagraph, during the latter's recent business visit to the company's western studios and many of the details were then arranged.

Studio Party

An interesting studio party was given last week on the B. P. Schulberg lot in Hollywood, where the screen version of David Belasco's play, "The Boomerang" is in course of production. The guest of honor was Martha Hedman, who starred on the stage presentation when "The Boomerang" established a new long run record on Broadway some years ago. Miss Hedman presented her original "Boomerang" costume to Anita Stewart who heads the picture cast. Among those present at the festivities were B. P. Schulberg, Director Gasnier, Bert Lytell, Donald Keith, the entire "Boomerang" cast and a group of Los Angeles newspaper people.

"Roxy" Conductor

S. L. Rothafel provided the patrons at the Capitol Theatre this week with the periodic thrill of watching him conduct the theatre's huge symphony orchestra in Elgar's "Pomp and Circumstance" overture. "Roxy" has been declared by Victor Herbert and other eminent composers and musicians to be one of the greatest of natural musicians.

He led the Capitol Grand Orchestra at the 9:30 overture each evening.

Jack Warner Arrives with Prints of Two Productions

HAVING set the cameras grinding on the final production of this season's program last week at the Warner Bros.' Hollywood studio, Jack Warner, in charge of the firm's production on the west coast, boarded a train for New York on his first trip east in two years and arrived at the home office on Tuesday.

Mr. Warner made the trip for two purposes. He is here to confer with H. M. and Abe Warner on final plans for next season—S. L. Warner being on the coast for the time being—and he also personally conducted to New York the prints of "Recompense," a sequel to "Simon Called Peter," by Robert Keable, directed by Harry Beaumont, one of the Warners biggest pictures of the year with Marie Prevost and Monte Blue, and "My Wife and I," the Harriet Beecher Stowe novel directed by Millard Webb featuring Irene Rich.

Mr. Warner made two statements of interest. He said that within the next few days, Warner Bros. would make an announcement concerning their plans for next season that would be of importace to all exhibitors.

"Big things are just ahead for Warner Bros.," he stated. "I am sorry I cannot say something more direct today, but probably within three days we will be ready to make a complete announcement of our plans which have been pending for some time, and which are just about concluded."

His other statement was that after previewing "Recompense" at the Florence Theatre is Pasadena, he was so enthusiastic about it as a box-office attraction that he was willing to wager it would prove an outstanding attraction of the year.

Marie Prevost in the role of Julie Gamelyn, he said, does absolutely the best work of her career, and the same goes for Monte Blue who plays the Rev. Peter Graham.

"We have here an entirely new type of picture," he said. "While a part of it is in the war locale, it is not a war picture. It deals almost entirely with the South African trading post country, a country about which we have heard much but seen little even on the screen."

George Siegmann as Stenhouse; William C. Davidson as Colonel Donovan; John Roche, John Patrick and Virginia Brown Faire, he also lauded for their work, and praised Harry Beaumont for his splendid direction and Dorothy Farnum for her intelligent adaptation.

The manager of the Florence Theatre, he stated, has said of "Recompense" that it is "the finest picture he ever has shown in his house," and the audience gave it a wonderful reception.

Mr. Warner said he left the studio one of the busiest spots in Hollywood with everyone actively engaged cleaning up this season's program and getting ready for the new season.

In work when he left were "Eve's Lover" from the novel by Mrs. W. K. Clifford, directed by Roy del Ruth, featuring Irene Rich and Bert Lytell; "The Woman Hater," an adaptation of "The Eleventh Virgin" by Dorothy Day, directed by James Flood, featuring Helene Chadwick, Clive Brooke and William "Buster" Collier; "How Baxter Butted In," directed by William Beaudine from Julien Josephson's adaptation of the old play, featuring Matt Moore, Dorothy Devore, Cameo, the dog and pups, and the Lubitsch production the title of which will be decided on within a week.

Mr. Warner also said that "Tracked in The Snow Country" the new picture Herman Raymaker is making with Rin-Tin-Tin was finished just before he left Hollywood. This, he said, is an ideal summer picture as it is an "all-snow" production with not a foot of film taken on dry ground. He predicted that this picture would find more favor with the public than either "Where The North Begins" or "The Lighthouse by the Sea."

"I am glad to get back in New York for a visit after two years," Mr. Warner stated; "but the man who wrote 'California Here I Come' made a big hit with me, and I intend to go back just as soon as important, pending negotiations are completed and get down to work on the new program.

"And—— watch Warner Bros. this coming season."

Stowers Screen Author

Frederick Stowers is the adaptor for "The Mansion of Aching Hearts," based on the balled by Harry Von Tilzer and Arthur J. Lamb, the next release by B. P. Schulberg Productions. James P. Hogan is directing.

LAURETTE TAYLOR

Metro-Goldwyn's star in "One Night in Rome."

"Drucilla" Title Stands

After several conferences, F. B. O. and Messrs. Goebel and Erb, officiating heads of Associated Arts Corporation, have decided that the title "Drucilla With a Million," the Elizabeth Cooper novel which Associated Arts produced for F. B. O. distribution fits the story better than the title "Sudden Riches" which was decided upon last week.

Compare!

Compare the actual performance of

PATHE NEWS

with the claims and the performance of any other.

Compare the quality of every number with the quality of any other.

Remember the numbers of times when you've had it in the Pathe News days and weeks before it was in any other. In one instance a "scoop" was claimed by another news reel six months after it was shown in the Pathe News!

Performace is the only thing that counts; performance day after day, week after week, month after month.

Compare!* That's all!

Schulberg's 'Capital Punishment' Is Screened in Albany Assembly

THE unusual interest created by B. P. Schulberg's special production "Capital Punishment," was evidenced again Tuesday evening, February 3, when the film received the distinction of being the first motion picture ever screened in a state legislature.

The special showing was given in the Assembly Chamber in the State Capitol at Albany, N. Y. Two hundred senators and assemblymen were at their desks and their relatives and friends crowded the visitors' galleries, the audience aggregating some six hundred persons.

The honor guest of the occasion was Governor Alfred Smith, who with a party of twelve, took his place in a reserved section of the hall. This is the first time Governor Smith has left the chief executive's chair to occupy a seat on the floor of the legislature since the time he filled the office of assemblyman.

In the Governor's party were Mrs. Smith, Miss Emily Smith and a number of state officials including Secretary of State Florence Knapp, Lieutenant-Governor Seymour Lowman, State Tax Commissioner John F. Gilchrist and Deputy Comptroller George F. Reardon.

All previous attempts to exhibit motion pictures before legislative groups have failed, but in the case of Schulberg's "Capital Punishment," the film was of particular interest as it deals with a subject that is figuring prominently just now in the State capitol where a bill for the abolition of the death penalty in New York is now up for consideration.

A special musical program accompanied the presentation of "Capital Punishment" and at the conclusion of the film the applause was loud and sustained. Governor Smith pronounced it "a fine picture" while Mrs. Smith declared it to be "splendid entertainment."

Proper Accessories Supplied with All Jans Productions

IN a recent issue of a theatrical weekly the statement was made that few, if any, of the independent producers supplied the proper accessories for the exploitation of their pictures.

Herman F. Jans, president of Jans Productions, Inc., rises to remark that in his case at least, this is far from being true inasmuch as both of the two pictures he has already completed in his series of six have just about everything that the exhibitor could possibly want to put them over.

On both "Playthings of Desire" and "The Mad Dancer" there are available twenty-four sheets, six sheets, two three sheets and two one sheets. Hand painted lobby displays, framed, come six in a set on each feature, and there are sets of ten colored lobby displays on each production.

In the matter of cuts and mats there are a wide variety of one, two and three column star and scene layouts in screen suitable for newspaper use, as well as five advertising layouts for both pictures. In addition to this each feature has a series of four teaser cuts or mats.

National tie-ups have been arranged. On "Playthings of Desire," the publishers of the book have issued a photoplay edition, while on "The Mad Dancer," the manufacturers of the Ann Pennington Rosette Hose are cooperating on window displays, etc. Other tie-ups of equal value are being arranged from time to time.

Both "Playthings of Desire" and "The Mad Dancer" have the benefits of comprehensive press books, prepared by newspapermen and advertising experts and in them are additional type set advertisements, exploitation ideas and feature stories, shorts and reviews.

"The Monster" Ready

Roland West Production, with Lon Chaney, a Metro-Goldwyn Film

"The Monster," Roland West's special production of Crane Wilbur's Broadway hit, Lon Chaney in the leading role, will be distributed by Metro-Goldwyn, that company announced this week. March 9 has been set as the release date of "The Monster," which is the mystery type of thriller that has proven sensationally popular with theatrical audiences.

"The Monster" was produced on Broadway with Emmet Corrigan in the title role. Following the season's run in New York "The Monster" toured the United States and Canada, playing all the principal cities for two years. Wilton Lackaye played the role on tour.

Coming on top of this national popularity of the stage hit, the scren version is expected to meet with success.

"Crossed Words" Cast

Robert Agnew Opposite Gladys Hulette in Renaud Hoffman Picture

A report from Renaud Hoffman at the Hollywood Studios officially states that Robert Agnew will appear in the leading role opposite Gladys Hulette in "Crossed Words," instead of William Collier, Jr., as previously announced.

Hoffman also announces the addition of nine players to the supporting cast. These include Mildred Harris, Betty Francisco, Arthur Hoyt, J. Frank Glendon, Charlie Sellon, Frank Coffyn, Willis Marks, Hardee Kirkland and David Butler.

"Crossed Words" will be Hoffman's second 1925 release on the Producers Distributing Corporation program. The picture is now in active production and scheduled for release April 20th.

AGNES AYRES
Starring in "Her Market Value," released through Producers Distributing Corporation.

Stern Goes to Coast

Century Comedy Executive Goes to Los Angeles to Plan 1925-26 Product

Abe Stern, vice-president of Century, the producers of Century Comedies, has left New York for Los Angeles. He was accompanied by Mrs. Stern. He is bound for the Hollywood studios of the Century company where he will confer with his brother, Julius Stern, president of the comedy corporation, and plan their 1925-1926 product.

The Century corporation is trying out a new release policy this winter, based on four series of pictures made by four stars, Wanda Wiley, Eddie Gordon, Edna Marian and Al Alt. The results, even at this early date, are said to be so encouraging and conclusive that the 1925-1926 production policy of the company is expected to be changed materially from past methods.

Discussing the comedy situation on the eve of his departure Mr. Stern, predicted striking improvements in Century Comedies during the coming year.

"We are determined to take our comedies out of the filler class," he said. "We already have done it to a large extent, but we will not be satisfied until every exhibitor recognizes our product as of first-run quality.

"Our production policy, which will be enlarged upon and bettered for next year, permits us to show our comedies to exhibitors well in advance. We find that showmen are beginning to appreciate this service on comedies just as they appreciate it on features. It is another step in taking comedies out of the filler class."

Praises Clara Bow

W. A. Mutch, film critic on the London Daily Chronicle, calls Clara Bow "one of the most charming youthful personalities the cinema has ever discovered." Miss Bow's latest screen work is in "Capital Punishment," and she has now been loaned by Mr. Schulberg to Ernst Lubitsch for a featured role in his next production.

Wesley Barry and Molly Malone in young Barry's latest, "Battling Bunyan," an Associated Exhibitors' release.

Saunders Reports Big Business for Metro in West

EDWARD M. SAUNDERS, western division sales manager of Metro-Goldwyn Distributing Corporation, has returned to the home offices at New York following an extended trip throughout his territory. Mr. Saunders' visits included Chicago, Kansas City, Los Angeles and San Francisco.

At Chicago the sales head held a meeting of all the middle west district and branch managers. A similar meeting was held in Los Angeles with the district and branch managers of the far west territory attending.

"There is general and unanimous enthusiasm for Metro-Goldwyn releases in the territory I visited," Mr. Saunders said.

"I found that three of the most popular screen favorities today are Norma Shearer, John Gilbert and Eleanor Boardman, whose recent appearances in our pictures have gone a long way toward establishing their popularity. The best proof of their box-office draw for exhibitors is that theatres wherever I visited featured their names in electric lights to bring the crowds in.

Mr. Saunders visited Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios at Culver City, and reviewed prior to their release, "The Great Divide," a special production directed by Reginald Barker with Alice Terry and Conway Tearle in leading roles; Robert Z. Leonard's "Cheaper to Marry," Jackie Coogan's "The Rag Man," Frank Borzage's "Daddy Goes A-Hunting," and rushes from "The Merry Widow," the special production directed by Erich von Stroheim with Mae Murray and John Gilbert in leads.

"Miss Murray and Mr. Gilbert are splendidly teamed in 'The Merry Widow,' and with von Stroheim directing, this production is going to be one of the biggest successes ever given the industry. It has a wealth of settings that are eye-openers. I can't say too much for this picture," Mr. Saunders said.

"'The Rag Man' has greater adult appeal than any of Jackie Coogan's pictures, and for this reason, among others I expect it to have the greatest popularity anything this young star has ever done.

"'Cheaper to Marry' is one of the best comedy dramas the film business has seen. It has a punch in every foot of film, and should be a remarkably popular photoplay. The same is true of 'Daddy Goes A-Hunting,' a 'tear comedy' that has heart appeal to send it over to a smash success."

Stromberg Completes Cast

The casting of Hunt Stromberg's next Harry Carey picture, "Silent Sanderson," was completed this week with the signing of Edith Yorke, Gardner James and John Miljan to support Carey. As previously announced, Trilby, a new screen find, has been cast as the star's leading lady. "Silent Sanderson" will go into immediate production under the direction of Scott Dunlap and will be released by Producers Distributing Corporation, on April 13th.

Pathe to Handle Series of "Third Dimension" Pictures

PATHE announces an innovation in the field of motion picture entertainment. Starting next month Pathe will distribute a series of "third dimension" single-reel subjects to be released under the collective title of "Stereoscopiks," March 22 has been definitely selected as the release date for the first issue of this group of pictures.

Realizing that a distinctive line of exhibitor accessories must be prepared for the successful launching of these screen novelties, Pathe is preparing a special list of theatre aids in addition to the usual array of poster and lobby material issued in connection with its short-subject releases.

FRED NIBLO

Producer of "Ben-Hur" for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

The problem of imparting the dimension of depth to the motion picture is one with which cinematographic experts have wrestled almost since the inception of the industry. The stereoscope, an optical instrument by means of which two pictures appear as one and cause the "fused" picture to stand out in relief, was in popular use, of course, before the invention of the motion picture. The principle of stereoscopic vision utilized in this instrument has been the basis of starting point for all efforts made with a view to injecting this quality of depth into motion pictures.

Third-dimension films have been shown on the screen once before, but Ives-Leventhal, the sponsors of the process used in the Pathe "Stereoscopiks," who were also responsible for the previous "third dimension" presentations on the screen, state that the forthcoming Pathe series marks a distinct advance over all their previous efforts both in point of subject and photography.

"The 'Stereoscopiks' do something more than convey the illusion of depth," declared Mr. Leventhal, when speaking of the innovation. "They make the action taking place on the screen to appear as if actually being projected out over the footlights into the midst of the spectators themselves. The effects thus produced on the audience are such as make for a maximum of entertainment appeal, combining as they do real thrills with sure-fire laughs."

LOU MARANGELLA
Who was with the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer "Ben-Hur" company in Rome, recently returning to hop to the Coast.

Eddie Silton to Produce

Casting Agent to Make Four Feature Pictures For Associated Exhibitors

According to an announcement made this week Eddie Silton, the well known casting agent, is entering the production field and will make four feature-length pictures for the Associated Exhibitors.

Contracts were signed last week between General Manager J. S. Woody and the Silton organization whereby Associated Exhibitors are to distribute the four Silton productions during the coming season. The first picture is to be delivered in April for early fall release.

Tom Terris, the prominent director, will be associated with Silton in the production of the Associated Exhibitors pictures, which will be based on well-known published novels and will carry all-star casts. Production activities will be carried on in the East.

Off to Hollywood

Parents of the Warner Bros. Give Up Their Niles, O., Residence

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Warner, the parents of the Warner brothers, left this week for Hollywood, where they will make their home, having relinquished active management of the Warner Theatre in Niles, Ohio, which they have conducted for several years.

This is the famous theatre on State street in Niles, built by the Warner Bros. on the site of the old Opera House destroyed by fire. It was a project conceived, executed and financed by the Warner boys in their old home town, and turned over to their father and mother, who, up until the present time, have been actively in charge of its management.

With the departure of Mr. and Mrs. Warner for California, the management of the theatre will be in the hands of the boys, with a resident manager in charge.

"The Knockout Kid"

The first "Whirlwind Western," starring Jack Perrin, released through Rayart and produced by Harry Webb, has a cast that includes Molly Malone, Martin Turner, Eva Thatcher, Bud Osborne, Jack Richardson, Bob McFarland and Barney Furly. The story is called "The Knockout Kid."

"The Salvation Hunters" Wins New York's Best Reviewers

THE much-heralded "Salvation Hunters," produced by Josef von Sternberg and released by United Artists, was most enthusiastically received by all the New York newspaper critics upon the occasion of its metropolitan premiere at the Strand Theatre this week.

Not only was it declared a "dramatic gem," or "a distinctive film for persons who think," but every phase of the direction, the settings, the players and the symbolical treatment was praised the like of which is rarely ever accorded to a picture, and particularly when it is the work of a practically new and unknown producer and director.

In declaring the production a distinctive production for the film lovers who think, Louella O. Parsons, in the New York American, said: "There is beautiful thought underlying the whole story, that shines out like a good deed in a naughty world. There is also a surprising simple technique that assists the producer in telling his story without frills and without affectation. I have seldom seen a finer cast in any picture, and although Mr. von Sternberg deserves enormous credit for having made a picture with so much that is fine and real, he could not possibly have accomplished his purpose without Georgia Hale, George K. Arthur and that small boy, Bruce Guerin. Georgia Hale is an actress whose grasp of technique and whose style of portraying emotion is so unique that her performance is epoch-making in its significance. I earnestly recommend all those who like fine things in pictures to see this production."

In the New York Daily Mirror, Dorothy Herzog said: "'Salvation Hunters' rises to gripping, realistic heights never before pictured on the screen; is dramatic gem stripped of life's tinsel and jazz. A picture made for those who think. Georgia Hale, as the girl, achieves a personal triumph. Josef von Sternberg, who wrote and produced the picture, should be universally applauded for his intellectual audacity, his artistic execution and his realistic achievement."

The motion picture critic in the New York Morning World said of the production: "'Salvation Hunters' is the type of picture which will roughen the movie rut. For that it cannot be too generously commended. A new actress, too, and a new actor are found by a new director. Georgia Hale is a strange combination of Nazimova, Alice Brady and Bebe Daniels. George K. Arthur, as the hesitant, stunted hero, gave as thoughtful a performance as the films have lately seen."

In the Telegram and Mail, the critic declares that "Von Sternberg has unquestionably achieved the purpose for which he aimed—that of presenting a picture without any of the orthodox flummery of the movies."

In the Evening Post the reviewer stated: "We are prepared to state in no uncertain type that 'Salvation Hunters' is an extraordinary film. Here is a simple tale of pettiness, soul fear and despair told in the dispassioned manner and with the inexorable probing skill of a Conrad laying bare the minds of unimportant people whom we suddenly discover to have depths, lights and shadows of character quite as important as our own. This is a picture for philosophers, for those who can understand and sympathize with human frailtics, aspirations and the absorbing turmoil of spirit or weary pilgrims. There is about it a sincerity and truth so compelling and poignant in their simplicity that no slight errors of construction can dim their brilliance.

Fleming Urges Co-operation

Producer Starts for Western Studios After Studying Conditions

J. J. Fleming, president of J. J. Fleming Productions, has left New York for their studios at Beaverton, Ore. During his stay in the East Mr. Fleming completed negotiations with J. Charles Davis 2nd for the release of a new Al. Ferguson series as well as purchasing the screen rights to several well known stories for his series starring F. Schuman-Heink, son of Madame Schuman-Heink, the world-famous operatic diva.

Mr. Fleming also spent considerable time in looking over the new developments in the state right field. In commenting on the situation he said:

"I am glad to see the various independents coming into a closer community of interests to combat the combinations which are working in more or less harmony to eliminate the independents from the motion picture fields.

"It will be a mighty sad day for the exhibitor if the independent producers and distributors are forced from the industry. It would bring back a situation similar to the Czar-like rule of the old General Film. It was the independents of ten years ago that broke the iron yoke of the "G. F." and now conditions are being forced on the independents which unless drastic action is taken will force them to the wall through lack of an outlet for their productions.

"Every indcpendent producer and distributor is an anchor of safety for the exhibitor. With them out of the way 'the interests' will quickly rivet the ball and chain on every theatre owner in the country.

"In quality of productions the independents are well in the fore and are improving all the time. I certainly hope the Theatre Owners Association will begin to take action to counteract the threatened evil."

Vera Steps Up

Vera Stedman, a familiar figure in the Christie two-reelers, has been assigned to a part in the forthcoming Al. Christie feature production, "Stop Flirting," for Producers Distributing Corporation. Miss Stedman, one of the original Mack Sennett bathing girls, has stuck to the two-reel films longer than any of her aquatic companions who made up the first much-photographed Sennett beauty squad. She joined Christie comedies about five years ago and has been with the Christie organization since.

Mildred Harris and Reed Howes in a scene from Rayart's "Super Speed."

Invalid Sees Film

Dorothea Antel, Bedridden Actress, Likes Reed Howes, Rayart Star.

An unusual preview of a motion picture was given by W. Ray Johnston, president of Rayart Pictures Corporation, when he screened Reed Howes' latest thriller, "Geared To Go," for Dorothea Antel, the bedridden "Sunshine Girl." The strange showing was given at the actress's home in New York City.

Dorothea Antel, who had not seen a picture since last June, expressed keen delight in Rayart's new star. The showing was arranged by David Bader, of "Ideas," and Dorothy V. Cleveland, director of advertising and publicity for Rayart. Jack Young, well-known cameraman, projected "Geared To Go," which Mr. Johnston says will be the first of a series of bedside previews to be given for Miss Antel's entertainment.

"Courageous Fool"

"The Courageous Fool," fourth of the Reed Howes series of Harry J. Brown Productions, is nearly completed. Albert Rogell is directing. The story is by Adele Buffington. In the cast are Carmelita Geraghty and Ned Sparks.

New Film for Rayart

Rayart Pictures has acquired the Harry Webb Production, "Winning A Woman," a five-reel comedy-drama, featuring Jack Perrin, Josephine Hill, Tommy O'Brien and William H. Turner.

Irene's Reward

As a "reward" for her splendid work in "My Wife And I," Irene Rich was allowed to start the new Warner Bros. production "Eve's Lover," directed by Roy Del Ruth, the same day she finished the other. The rest between pictures consisted of forty-five minutes off for lunch.

Miss Rich has been trying to get a few weeks' vacation for some time but with the new year's schedule getting under way, there is small hope.

New York, Chicago and Los Angeles Plan Long Runs of "Charley's Aunt"

Paul C. Mooney, vice-president of Producers Distributing Corporation, announces the closing of contracts with the three biggest long-run theatres in America for the premiere showings of Al. Christie's big special, "Charley's Aunt."

B. S. Moss' new Colony Theatre, Broadway and Fifty-third street, New York City, has booked the production for an extended run beginning February 8.

Grauman's Million Dollar Theatre in Los Angeles will present "Charley's Aunt" following the present run of Cecil DeMille's "The Golden Bed."

The Orpheum, Chicago, will put on the internationally famous farce on February 7, when "The Thief of Bagdad" closes its present engagement.

These three big extended runs will give the Christie feature auspicious premiere showings clear across the country and secure nation-wide publicity that will herald the coming of the attraction in every first-run city in the United States.

Artclass Westerns Firmly Established, Producers Find

TELEGRAPHIC advices from Lester F. Scott, Jr., Producer of the Buddy Roosevelt and Buffalo Bill, Jr., series of Westerns for Weiss Brothers' Artclass Pictures Corporation, announced the completion of "Fast Fightin'," eighth and last of the popular Buddy Roosevelt series of rough riding romances early this week.

This series, which consists of eight five reel thrillo-action features, featuring Buddy Roosevelt, a comparative new comer in the field of Western drama, with its companion series, starring Buffalo Bill, Jr., has established in popular favor a brand new type of clean, outdoor action-stories, with a Western background, according to Louis Weiss, the Artclass Pictures executive whose organization handles these features.

In inaugurating the Buddy Roosevelt and Buffalo Bill, Jr., series last summer, Weiss Brothers' Artclass Pictures Corporation determined to step away from the cut-and-dried type of Western. Clean, wholesome stories, plenty of fast action and a logical and genuine plot, was the first consideration involved, and an entire elimination of the objectionable vulgarisms and lurid situations previously prevalent was demanded.

That Westerns produced under these seemingly rigid conditions would attain any wide popular vogue was doubted by many at the time, and Weiss Brothers', themselves, were not fully convinced that the features would prove fully satisfactory to the exhibitors and the picturegoing public.

The immediate success of both the Buddy Roosevelt and Buffalo Bill, Jr., series, however, quickly removed any doubts they may have had as to the public's reception of the features and since their first release, the popularity of each star has steadily increased, theatres in many territories already having rebooked some of the earlier issues of both series. Several months ago territory on both series was one hundred per cent. sold and territory is already being apportioned on the No. 2—1925 Series of eight five reel features to be made by each of these young, ridin' stars.

"When we arranged with Lester F. Scott, Jr. to produce the Buddy Roosevelt and Buffalo Bill, Jr. features," said Louis Weiss, vice-president and managing executive of Artclass," we had no idea that the series would prove so successful.

"We felt that there was room for a new type of Western story, which would have none of the crudity and lurid imitation, shown by most of the so-called Westerns then in the market. Clean stories, with plenty of action and thrills, of course, but with none of the features, which so many found objectionable in the average picture depicting life in the open, were what we aimed to get and consequently, we are more than gratified to find that in producing them we have developed what might be called a new type of picture, that has won instant recognition as wholesome and palatable entertainment among an increasingly large class of picturegoers.

"So successful have the Buddy Roosevelt and Buffalo Bill, Jr. series proven and so well established already in popular favor are the class of pictures which they present, that we not only are making a new series of eight five reel features with each of these boys, but also another series of eight features of similar type with another well known Western star, who will be supported by a different actress, whose name has box office pulling quality, in each picture.

"The three new series will be available early in April and long before that time we expect that all territory will be apportioned, most of the present holders of Buddy Roosevelt and Buffalo Bill, Jr. franchises, having already signified that they wish to control the new series in their respective territories.

"Fast Fightin'" is the eighth and last of the Buddy Roosevelt series and it is reported that it is as good, if not better, than any this popular boy has yet made.

"Buffalo Bill, Jr., his companion star, has two more to deliver on his series, "Full Speed," which is now going to the exchanges, being his sixth and latest. He is nearly through with his seventh feature, as yet unnamed, however, and the eighth will go into work at once upon its completion."

"The Lost World" Section

See pages 659 to 674

C. B. C. Releases "Who Cares?" and Announces New Picture

C. B. C. announces the release this week of their sixth Columbia Picture in the series of eight for 1924-25. This is the film version of Cosmo Hamilton's "Who Cares?" which attained great popularity at the time of its publication.

An excellent pressbook, containing a wide variety of press material, has been issued, and an additional feature has been added in the form of a special exploitation page. A tie-up can be made with the booksellers, and with Messrs Crosset and Dunlap, who are publishing the book at the present time in an inexpensive edition. A very fine Thematic cue-sheet is being issued with the press-book.

The cast includes Dorothy Devore, William Haines, Lloyd Whitlock, Beverly Bayne, Wanda Hawley, Vola Vale, Charlie Murray, Vera Lewis, Ralph Lewis, William Austin and Carrie Clark Ward.

The direction was done by David Kirkland. The continuity by Douglas Doty; titles by Walter Anthony and the photography by Allen Thompson.

"Fighting the Flames" Started

Advices from Harry Cohn state that actual work on the filming of "Fighting The Flames," seventh of the eight Columbia Pictures for 1924-25, is under way.

The direction is in the capable hands of Reeves "Breezy" Eason, with continuity written by Douglas Doty.

The cast includes William Haines, Dorothly Devore, Frankie Darrow, Charlie Murray, David Torrence, Sheldon Lewis and William Welsh.

This will be the fourth feature this year for C. B. C. that has featured William Haines. It will be Dorothy Devore's second and Charlie Murray's second. Haines was featured in "The Midnight Express," "A Fool and His Money," and "Who Cares?"

The picture affords splendid opportunities for special exploitation.

Harry Cohn Signs Tellegen

C. B. C. announce that Harry Cohn has signed Lou Tellegen to play in their forthcoming Columbia Picture, "After Business Hours." This will be the eighth and last of the present series. A recent announcement stated that Elaine Hammerstein will be a featured player in this production. The rest of the cast and the director have not as yet been selected.

Screen Snapshots

Among the many famous stars who appear in Screen Snap Shots' latest issue are Douglas Fairbanks, ZaSu Pitts, Ralph Graves, Helene Chadwick, Constance Talmadge, Robert Vignola, Rupert Hughes, Edwin Carewe, James Tully and Hank Mann.

Screen Snapshots is a one-reel special short subject issued twice a month by C. B. C.

First View of Adam Film

Premier Showing of "Tales of a Thousand and One Nights" Largely Attended

The spectacular super-special "Tales of a Thousand and One Nights" was given its premier American showing at the Town Hall, New York, on Monday evening, February 2, by the Davis Distributing Division, Inc., which is releasing this production for Ferdinand H. Adam. The hall was filled with an audience including the leading members of the motion picture industry and many society people.

The presentation was made most effective by the use of costumes and other appropriate means to create an Oriental atmosphere, in keeping with the beauty of the picture.

The elaborate production was shown entirely on its merits without any effort to emphasize it by the use of a prologue. The special musical setting was commented on by many as being exceptionally appropriate.

"Ben-Hur" Company Returns; Little Remains to Be Done

THE Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production unit engaged on "Ben-Hur" returned this week to this country. The production is practically completed, except for a few minor scenes which will be filmed at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Culver City Studios.

Ramon Novarro and members of the technicolor staff returned to New York last Saturday on the S. S. France. Other members of the production unit, including Fred Niblo, the director, and his wife, Enid Bennett, arrived on the S. S. Berengaria the first part of this week. The "Ben-Hur" cast includes May McAvoy, Francis X. Bushman, Kathleen Key, Claire McDowell, Anders Randolf, Nigel deBrulier and Frank Currier.

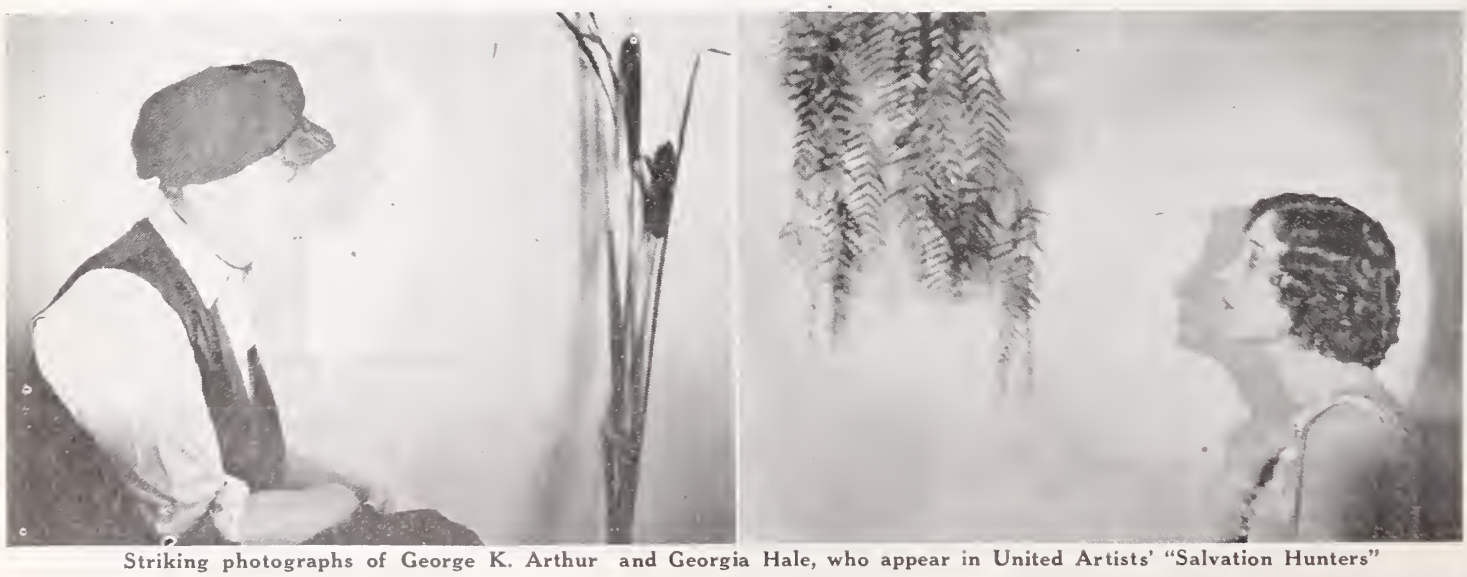
Currier was the first member of the cast to return to this country some time ago. He stated then that "Ben-Hur" was a long way toward completion. Aubrey Scotto, one of the film editors engaged on "Ben-Hur," also returned some time ago. Bess Meredyth, who was assisting Niblo, accompanied the Louis B. Mayer party on its recent return. This indicated that the entire production unit, with its work finished abroad, would shortly be back in California. When Mr. Mayer, after several months in Rome left Fred Niblo in full charge of the unit, the production head of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer stated that "Ben-Hur" would arrive in this country shortly after the new year.

While Niblo is completing the final scenes of the production, the work will be edited and prepared for a New York premiere.

The company will leave at once for the Culver City Studios, where plans have been made for completing a few remaining scenes.

Carey Wilson, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer scenarist who assisted Niblo with the editorial work, postponed his return and will remain a while longer in Rome with his wife and child.

In "Ben-Hur," Fred Niblo is said to have done one of the biggest jobs in the history of pictures, and all reports on "Ben-Hur" indicate that it will be one of the greatest photoplays attempted in screen annals, if not the greatest of all.



Striking photographs of George K. Arthur and Georgia Hale, who appear in United Artists' "Salvation Hunters"

Scenes from "Let 'Er Buck," in which Universal features Hoot Gibson.

Noy Entered Industry 1909 After Ten Years on Stage

WILFRED NOY began his career as a motion picture director with the Clarendon Film Company of London in 1909. His entry into this field came after a career of ten years on the English stage as an actor and director. Eventually he was promoted and made supervising director of the Clarendon Film Company. Later on the company was sold and as a free lance Mr. Noy made several successful pictures. Then came the war! Mr. Noy joined the royal marines and on being demobilized was made senior director of the British Actors Film Company. After that he made pictures for the Master Films, Progress Films, and others. Altogether this English director made in England and on the continent 150 pictures, 50 of which he adapted for the screen himself. Among the most prominent are the original "Lorna Doone," the original "Under the Red Robe," "The Banks of Allen Water," "Ashore," "The Gardner's Daughter."

Mr. Noy arrived in America unheralded a little less than a year ago with the idea of studying at first hand American directorial methods. He secured character roles in "Janice Meredith" and other productions being made in the East, and quietly absorbed American methods of production. During this time he also played the role of the Duke in "The Dancers" a Broadway stage success. Then came his opportunity to direct a picture here. Whitman Bennett selected him as director of the "Lost Chord" which Mr. Noy wrote and adapted himself for the screen from the famous song. Immediately following this he directed the "Fast Pace" a Howard Esterbrook production for Arrow release.

In "The Midnight Girl" which he is now making for the Chadwick Productions Mr. Noy has a subject which appeals to his sense of the dramatic. And in the selection of his cast which includes Lila Lee, Gareth Hughes, Dorelles Cassinelli, Bella Lugosi, Charlotte Walker and Ruby Blaine he believes that he has an eminent cast, that will bring out the colorful values of the story.

The Daily Sketch of London in reviewing one of Mr. Noy's pictures said: "Wilfred Noy has in one film raised the level of British pictures from dull mediocrity to brilliant artistry.

The Moving Picture World in a review said: "His 'The Last Chord' made for Dr. Shallenberger shows that he has the 'spark'" It was Mr. Noy's intention to return to England, but the demand for his services here, however, will result in his remaining in America to make pictures.

Title of Lubitsch Picture

Warner Bros, announce that the title of their third Lubitsch production now well underway at the Hollywood studio is "Kiss Me Again." This is the story written by Mr. Lubitsch and Hans Kraley. The scenes are laid in Paris and in it the director takes the eternal triangle and handles it in a humorous vein.

Marie Prevost, who is playing the lead, is said to have an unusually good part, and Monte Blue as a jealous husband who wakes up to find his wife in love with another man also has splendid opportunities. There are only three other principal roles in the cast, and these are played by Clara Bow, John Roche and Willard Louis.

American Beauties Ready for Valentino Exploitation

INDEPENDENT exhibitors dealing with state right exchanges are given ample proof that "Rudolph Valentino and his Eighty-eight American Beauties," is proving one of the unique and extraordinary box office attractions in a statement issued by the Chesterfield Motion Picture Corporation, which is releasing this usual three-reeler concurrent with the personal appearance in each city of one or more of the prize winning beauties.

"Harry Davis, one of the cleverest and shrewdest of showmen west of New York, who knows audience-values," reads the announcement, "when first appraised of the box-office value of 'Rudolph Valentino and his Eighty-eight American Beauties,' immediately inquired into the possibility of securing Miss Pittsburgh in conjunction with an appearance at the Grand Theatre. But Miss Pittsburgh was not in Pittsburgh, and neither was she elsewhere for the time being, as far as it could be ascertained. But this scarcely defeated the objective of Mr. Davis. A wire to Miss Baltimore, who was then appearing at Keith's Hippodrome, Baltimore, found a ready response, the engagement proved even greater than anticipated. Miss Baltimore and the picture proved a success such as every showman dreams of and rarely attains. The S. R. O. sign—the goal of the theatre owners' attainment, was hung out. Following Baltimore, Miss Baltimore was offered another personal appearance at the Grand in Pittsburgh in conjunction with the Beauty feature, and again the triumph exceeded expectations. With the undisputed knowledge of a pathfinder to a box office manifested along these lines, then began a joint engagement of 'Rudolph Valentino and his Sighty-eight American Beauties,' plus one (Miss Baltimore—nee Mildred Adams), over the entire Rowland-Clark Circuit covering twenty theatres and concluding at the commodious State Theatre in Erie, Pa."

Fifty of the prize winning beauties including the preeminent five chosen by Rudolph Valentino and other judges as outstanding in their pulchritudinous qualities, are available for personal appearances, one or more, the statement from the Chesterfield Motion Picture Corporation adds. The pick of American beauties are available for engagement upon short notice in any part of the United States or Canada.

P. D. C. Acquires Stories

While the Spring program is only just starting, material for the Fall is now being lined up by Producers Distributing Corporation. Two big stories, "Heaven and Earth," and "The Forbidden Road," were secured this week. The former will be produced by Hunt Stromberg as a super-special.

CURRENT and ADVANCE FILM RELEASES

Containing in compact, comprehensive form, the title, star, kind of picture, date of review in Moving Picture World, and footage on past, present and future releases

ALLIED PRODUCERS AND DISTRIBUTORS

	Kind of Picture	Review.	Feet
Loving Lies (Monte Blue)	Drama	Feh. 2..	6,526
No More Women (Moore-Bellamy)	Comedy-drama	Feh. 2..	6,186
Hill Billy (Jack Pickford)	Drama	Mar. 22..	5,734
End of the World (J. Pickford)	Comedy-drama		6,500

ARROW

Come On, Cowhoys (Hatton)	Western drama	May 24..	4,700
Mysteries of Mah Jong	Novelty	May 24..	2,000
Two After One (West)	Comedy	May 24..	2,000
Western Feuds	Western drama	July 26..	4,908
Cowboy Prince (Dearholt)	Stunt drama		4,410
Diamond Bandit (Dearholt)	Stunt drama		4,698
Lash of Pinto Pete (Dearholt)	Stunt drama		4.437
Two Fisted Sheriff (Canutt)	Western drama	Dec. 6..	4,625
Sell 'em Cowboy (Hatton)	Western drama		4.821
Ridin' Mad (Canutt)	Western drama		4.927
Desert Hawk	Western drama		4,828
Horse Sense (Hatton)	Western drama		4.648
His Majesty the Outlaw (Wilson)	Western drama		4,069
Romance and Rustlers (Canutt)	Western drama	Nov. 15..	4,939
Rip Snorter (Hatton)	Western	Nov. 23..	4,998
The Fugitive (Ben Wilson)	Western dr.	Nov. 29..	4.920
Lost Chord (Powell-Lake-Binney)	Heart interest dr.	Dec. 20..	6,300

ASSOCIATED EXHIBITORS

Yankee Consul (MacLean)	Feature comedy	Feb. 23..	6,148
When A Girl Loves (all-star)	Modern drama	May 3..	5,876
Lone Wolf (Holt-Dalton)	Crook drama	May 10..	6,000
Cheechahcos (all-star)	Northern epic	May 17..	7,000
Spitfire (all-star)	Modern drama	July 5..	6,109
Racing Luck (Monty Banks)	Comedy-drama	July 26..	6,000
Never Say Die (MacLean)	Comedy of thrills	Sep. 13..	5,803
East of Broadway (O. Moore)	Police drama	Nov. 22..	5,785
Price of a Party (H. Ford)	Modern drama	Oct. 18..	5,315
Barriers Burned Away	Spectacle	Dec. 27..	6,236
Is Love Everything?	Sex melo.	Nov. 15..	6,000
Adventurous Sex (C. Bow)	Flapper drama
Children of the Whirlwind
Great Air Mail Robbery
Battling Bunyan (Barry)	Comedy-dr.	Dec. 27..	4,718
Greatest Love of All (Beban)	Drama	Jan. 17..	6,486
Bad Company (Tearle)	Society drama	Jan. 24..	5,551
Introduce Me (Douglas MacLean)	Comedy thrills
Sky Raider (Logan)	Drama
Back to Life (Patsy Ruth Miller)	Drama

EDUCATIONAL FILM CORP.

Family Life	Jack White prod.	Mar. 29..	2,000
Bargain Day	Sid Smith	Mar. 29..	1,000
Barnnm Jr.	Juvenile comedy	Mar. 29..	2,000
The Fly	Scientific	Apr. 5..	1.000
Killing Time	Lloyd Hamilton	Apr. 5..	2,000
Dusty Dollars	Cameo comedy	Apr. 5..	1,000
Dandy Lions	Neal Burns	Apr. 12..	2,000
Safe and Sane	Jimmie Adams	Apr. 12..	2,000
There He Goes	Mermaid comedy	Apr. 19..	2,000
Heart Throbs	"Sing Them Again"	Apr. 19..	1,000
Realm of Sport	Hodge-Podge	Apr. 19..	1,000
Fold Up	Cameo comedy	Apr. 19..	1,000
Going East	Lloyd Hamilton	Apr. 26..	2,000
The Fun Shop	Humor reel	Apr. 26..	1,000
The Trader Keeps Moving	Bruce scenic	Apr. 26..	1,000
The Lady-Bird	Instructive	Apr. 26..	1,000
Cornfed	Bobby Vernon	May 3..	2,000
Out Bound	Cliff Bowes	May 3..	1.000
The Fun Shop	Humor reel	May 3..	1,000
Powder Marks	Cliff Bowes	May 3..	1,000

How to Use This Chart

First—Booking! Get accurate footage and look up date review appeared in Moving Picture World. Then you can decide if the picture will suit your audience.

Second—Play date! When you set your play date, consult this Chart to set the picture on a date that will not conflict with preceding and following pictures; avoid a sequence of similar type of story; space out your specials.

Third—Laying Out Program! This chart shows star and kind of story as well as accurate length; you can lay out a balanced program easily, avoid over—and under-length program.

Fourth—Exploitation! Through this chart find the review in Moving Picture World; this will give a good synopsis, the all-important cast and a fine line on exploitation possibilities as well as the things you'll want to soft-pedal.

Always! Turn to this Chart when you want accurate information in simple form and easy to get at a glance. AND—

File Your Moving Picture World

$1 for Your Time

Many exhibitors tell us that Moving Picture World Guide to Releases is the most accurate available to them. We know it is the most complete in that it is the only chart containing names of stars, type of picture, and all necessary information to the exhibitor.

We want it to be absolutely accurate—Moving Picture World recognizes the importance of accurate footage information, etc.

If you notice an error in FEATURE footage, or any other major error, we will pay you $1 for the effort on your part of writing us a letter telling us the correct facts.

In many territories local censorship cuts alter the footage to a minor extent. Don't write to tell us of these unimportant variations. But in any case where you feel that our figures will work a real hardship on the exhibitor following them—shoot us the word and we will shoot the dollar for your trouble.

Moving Picture World is willing to back up its complete confidence in the accuracy of its chart with its money.

We can't do more. No one else does as much. We thank you.

	Kind of Picture	Review.	Feet
Lost Chords	"Sing Them Again"	May 3..	1,000
The Junior Partner	Juvenile comedy	May 10..	2,000
The Bonehead	Tuxedo comedy	May 10..	2,000
Flowers of Hate	Wilderness Tale	May 17..	1,000
Nerve Tonic	Christie comedy	May 17..	2,000
Tiny Tour of U. S. A.	Hodge-Podge	May 17..	1,000
Air Pockets	Mermaid comedy	May 17..	2,000
Lunch Brigade	Cliff Bowes	May 24..	1,000
Dizzy Daisy	Mermaid comedy	May 24..	2,000
Good Morning	Lloyd Hamilton	May 24..	2,000
Tootsie-Wootsie	Christie comedy	May 31..	2,000
Just Waiting	Robert Bruce series	May 31..	1,000
Echoes of Youth	"Sing Them Again"	May 31..	1,000
Hot Air	Lee Moran	June 7..	2,000
In a Drop of Water	"Secrets of Life"	June 14..	1,000
Grandpa's Girl	Kathleen Clifford	June 21..	2,000
The Chase	Alps Novelty	June 21..	2,000
Snapshots of the Universe	Hodge-Podge	June 21..	1,000
The Farewell	Bruce Scenic	June 21..	1,000
Wedding Showers	Jack White prod.	June 28..	2,000
The Ex-Bartender Retires	Bruce scenic	June 28..	1,000
Family Fits	Cameo comedy	June 28..	1,000
His First Car	Tuxedo comedy	July 5..	2,000
Pardon Us	Cameo comedy	July 5..	1,000
Melodious Moments	"Sing Them Again"	July 5..	1,000
Pigskin	Mermaid comedy	July 12..	2,000
Heads On	Cliff Bowes	July 12..	1,000
Jumble in the Jungle	Hodge-Podge	July 12..	1,000
Never Again	Tuxedo comedy	Aug. 2..	2,000
Turn About	Cameo comedy	Aug. 2..	1,000
Frozen Water	Novelty	Aug. 9..	1,000
Savage Love	Jimmie Adams	Aug. 9..	2,000
Good News	Cliff Bowes	Aug. 9..	1,000
Oh, Teacher	Juvenile comedy	Aug. 23..	2,000
Boneyard Blues	Earl Hurd cartoon	Aug. 23..	1,000
Drenched	Cliff Bowes	Aug. 23..	1,000
Wild Game	Mermaid comedy	Aug. 30..	2,000
Don't Fail	Cameo comedy	Aug. 30..	1,000
Jonah Jones	Lloyd Hamilton	Sep. 6..	2,000
Hazardous Hunting	Hodge-Podge	Sep. 6..	1,000
Rough and Ready	Lige Conley	Sep. 13..	2,000
Cheer Up	Cliff Bowes	Sep. 13..	1,000
Stupid but Brave	Al St. John	Sep. 20..	2,000
Dirty Hands	Juvenile comedy	Sep. 20..	2,000
Short Change	Hiers comedy	Sep. 27..	2,000
Bright Lights	Vernon comedy	Sep. 27..	2,000
Her Boy Friend	Larry Semon	Sep. 27..	2,000
Court Plaster	Neal Burns	Oct. 4..	2,000
The Hohoken Nightingale	Hurd cartoon	Oct. 4..	1,000
Crazy-Quilt of Travel	Hodge Podge	Oct. 4..	1.000
Fast and Furious (Conley)	Comedy	Oct. 11..	2,000
No Foolin' (Bowes)	Comedy	Oct. 11..	1,000
Sawmill Four	Hurd cartoon	Oct. 18..	1,000
Why Hurry? (Adams)	Comedy	Oct. 18..	2,000
Kid Speed (L. Semon)	Comedy	Oct. 25..	2,000
Crushed (L. Hamilton)	Comedy	Oct. 25..	2,000
Empty Heads (Bowes)	Comedy	Oct. 25..	1,000
High Gear (Vernon)	Comedy	Nov. 1..	2,000
The Mosquito	Instructive	Nov. 1..	1,000
Artist's Model	Hurd cartoon	Nov. 15..	1,000
Poor Butterfly	Mermaid comedy	Nov. 15..	2,000
Watch Your Pep (Bowes)	Cameo comedy	Nov. 15..	1,000
Easy Pickin's	Christie com.	Nov. 22..	2,000
Cut Loose (Dynham-Vance)	Cameo comedy	Nov. 22..	1,000
A Fat Chance (W. Hiers)	Comedy	Nov. 29..	1,000
Go Easy (Bowes)	Cameo com.	Nov. 29..	1,000
Low Tide (J. White prod.)	Comedy	Dec. 6..	2,000
Little People of the Garden	Instructive	Dec. 6..	1,000
Earth's Oddities	Hodge-Podge	Dec. 13..	1,000
Goat Getters	Juvenile com.	Dec. 13..	2,000
French Pastry (Vernon)	Christie com.	Dec. 20..	2,000
Broadcasting	Hurd cartoon	Dec. 20..	1,000

(Continued from preceding page)

	Kind of Picture	Review.	Feet
Lovemania (St. John)	Tuxedo comedy	Dec. 27..	2,000
Mad Rush (Bowes)	Cameo comedy	Dec. 27..	1,000
Step Lightly (Lige Conley)	Mermaid com.	Jan. 3..	2,000
Hi-Fliers	Hodge-Podge	Jan. 3..	1,000
Hooked (Hamilton)	Comedy	Jan. 17..	2,000
Weak Knees (Bowes)	Cameo Com.	Jan. 17..	1,000
Have A Heart (Ruth Hiatt)	Cameo Com.	Jan. 17..	1,000
Good Spirits	Christie com.	Jan. 24..	2,000
Motor Mad	Mermaid com.	Jan. 24..	1,000
Sea Legs (Neal Burns)	Christie com.	Jan. 31..	2,000
Judge's Crossword Puzzles	Novelty	Jan. 31..	1,000
Paris Creations	Fashions	Jan. 31..	1,000
Topsy Turvy Travel	Hodge-Podge	Feb. 7..	1,000
His High Horse (Lee Moran)	Mermaid com.	Feb. 7..	2,000
He Who Gets Soaked	Hurd cartoon	Feb. 7..	1,000

FILM BOOKING OFFICES OF AMERICA

North of Nevada (F. Thomson)	Western	Mar. 15..	5,000
Galloping Gallagher (F. Thomson)	Western	Mar. 22..	4,700
Money to Burns	Tel. Girl	Mar. 29..	2,000
Yankee Madness (all-star)	Thrill-com.-dr.	Apr. 5..	4,680
His Forgotten Wife (all-star)	Drama	Apr. 12..	6,500
Silent Stranger (Fred Thomson)	Western	Apr. 19..	5,000
Beloved Vagabond (Blackwell)	Romantic drama	Apr. 26..	6,217
Girl of the Limberlost (Grey)	Rural drama	May 10..	6,000
Untamed Youth (Lewis)	Gypsy drama	May 10..	5,000
For the Love of Mike	Tel. Girl	May 17..	2,000
Danger Line (Hayakawa)	Japan drama	May 24..	5,000
Spirit of the U. S. A. (Johnson prod.)	Patriotic drama	May 31..	8,312
Dangerous Coward (F. Thomson)	Western	May 31..	6,000
Napoleon and Josephine (all-star)	Hist. romance	June 7..	6,591
Fighting Sap (F. Thomson)	Western	June 14..	5,138
There's Millions In It (all-star)	Romantic thriller	June 28..	6,000
Bee's Knees	Tel. Girl	June 28..	2,000
Swords and the Woman (DeCordoba)	Romantic drama	July 12..	6,000
Fools in the Dark (Patsy R. Miller)	Melo. farce	July 26..	7,002
Neglected Women (Seena Owen)	Society drama	Aug. 9..	6,265
Messalina	Italian spectacle	Sep. 6..	8,473
American Manners (R. Talmadge)	Thrill-com.-dr.	Sep. 6..	5,200
Desert Sheik (Hawley)	Sheik picture	Sep. 20..	5,044
Vanity's Price (A. Q. Nilsson)	Society drama	Sep. 20..	6,124
Woman Who Sinned (Busch)	Society drama		6,102
Thundering Hoofs (F. Thomson)	Western	Dec. 6..	5,033
Stepping Lively (R. Talmadge)	Comedy drama		5,317
Life's Greatest Game (J. Walker)	Baseball epic	Oct. 11..	7,010
Millionaire Cowboy (M. B. Flynn)	Western		4,841
Broken Laws (Mrs. W. Reid)	Drama	Jan. 31..	6,413
Quemado (F. Thomson)	Western
Cheap Kisses (all-star)	Jazz-drama	Nov. 15..	6,538
Go-Getters Series	Thrill comedy	Oct. 18..	2,000
Dangerous Flirt (Evelyn Brent)	Drama	Dec. 6..	5,297
Miss in the Dark (Vaughn)	Go-getters	Dec. 6..	2,000
On The Stroke of Three (Harlan)	Drama	Dec. 13..	6,767
Trigger Fingers (Bob Custer)	Tex. Ranger	Dec. 13..	4,775
Going of Cumming	Go-Getters	Dec. 13..	2,000
Laughing at Danger (R. Talmadge)	Thrill drama	Dec. 20..	5,442
Air Hawk (Al Wilson)	Airplane dr.	Dec. 20..	5,000
Who's Hooligan?	Go-getters	Dec. 20..	2,000
Heebie Jeebies (Aubrey)	Comedy	Dec. 27..	2,000
Silk Stocking Sal (Brent)	Underworld dr.	Jan. 3..	5,367
West of Hot Dog (Stan Laurel)	Comedy	Jan. 3..	2,000
No-Gun Man (Lefty Flynn)	Outdoor melo.	Jan. 17..	4,522
Flashing Spurs (Bob Custer)	Outdoor melo.	Jan. 24..	5,068
Youth and Adventure (R. Talmadge)	Outdoor melo.	Jan. 24..	5,000
Sleeping Cutie	Go-Getters	Jan. 31..	2,000
Midnight Molly (Evelyn Brent)	Crook drama	Feb. 7..	6,000

FIRST NATIONAL

Love Master (Strongheart)	Drama	Jan. 19..	6.679
Painted People (C. Moore)	Comedy	Feb. 9..	6,900
When a Man's a Man (J. Bowers)	Drama	Feb. 12..	6,807
Flowing Gold (all-star)	Drama	Mar. 1..	8,005
Lilies of the Field (C. Griffith)	Drama	Mar 22..	8.510
Galloping Fish (Ince prod.)	Comedy	Mar. 22..	5,559
Secrets (N. Talmadge)	Drama	Apr. 5..	8,446
Enchanted Cottage (R. Barthelmess)	Drama	Apr. 19	7.120
Abraham Lincoln (G. A. Billings)	Drama	Feb. 2..	9,759
Cytherea (all-star)	Society drama	May 21..	7,142
Why Men Leave Home (J. M. Stahl prod.)	Comedy-drama	May 3..	8,002
Woman on the Jury (all-star)	Drama	May 17..	7,408
Son of the Sahara (all-star)	Melodrama	May 24..	7,603
Sea Hawk (all-star)	Romantic drama	June 14..	11,527
Marriage Cheat (all-star)	Drama	June 21..	6,622
Those Who Dance (Ince prod.)	Drama		7,512
White Moth (LaMarr)	Drama	June 21	6.571
Perfect Flapper (C. Moore)	Comedy	June 28..	7,030
Self-Made Failure (B. Alexander)	Comedy	June 28..	7,285
For Sale (all-star)	Drama	July 5..	7,304
Born Rich (C. Windsor)	Society drama	Dec. 20..	7,389
Single Wives (C. Griffith)	Society drama	Aug. 9..	7.526
Girl in the Limousine (Semon)	Farce comedy	Aug. 30..	5,260
Flirting With Love (C. Moore)	Comedy	Sep. 6..	6.926
In Hollywood With Potash and Perlmutter (all-star)	Comedy	Sep. 20..	6.685
Husbands and Lovers (all-star)	Dom. drama	Nov. 8..	7,822
Madonna of the Streets (Nazimova)	Drama	Oct. 25..	7,674
Tarnish (all-star)	Comedy-drama		6.907
Her Night of Romance (C. Talmadge)	Comedy	Dec. 6..	7,211
In Every Woman's Life (all-star)	Drama	Nov. 15..	6.298
Sandra (LaMarr)	Drama	Dec. 6..	7,905
Classmates (R. Barthelmess)	Drama	Nov. 29..	6,923
Christine of the Hungry Heart (Vidor)	Drama	Nov. 1..	7,678
Silent Watcher (Glenn Hunter)	Drama	Oct. 18..	7,530
Love's Wilderness (Griffith)	Drama	Dec. 20..	7,037
So Big (C. Moore)	Drama	Jan. 17..	8,562
If I Marry Again (Doris Kenyon)	Drama	Jan. 24..	7.401
Idle Tongues (Marmont)	Comedy-drama	Dec. 27..	5.447
Sundown (all-star)	Western epic	Oct. 25..	8,641
The Only Woman (N. Tadmadge)	Domestic dr.	Nov. 8..	6.770
Inez from Hollywood (Nilsson-Stone-Astor)	Heart interest	Dec. 13..	6,967
Frivolous Sal (O'Brien-Busch-Alexander)	Western melo.	Jan. 17..	7,307
A Thief in Paradise (Doris Kenyon)	Melodrama	Jan. 24..	7.231
As Man Desires (Sills-Dana)	Melodrama	Jan. 31..	7,649
Enticement (Mary Astor)	Drama	Feb. 7..	6,224

FOX FILM CORP.

	Kind of Picture	Review.	Feet
Just Off Broadway (Gilbert)	Drama	Feb. 2..	5.444
Not a Drum Was Heard (Jones)	Drama	Feb. 9..	4,323
The Net (Castleton)	Drama	Feb. 9..	6,000
Shadow of the East (all-star)	Drama	Feb. 16..	5,874
Ladies to Board (Mix)	Comedy-drama	Feb. 23..	6,112
Blizzard (all-star)	Northern drama	Mar. 1..	5,800
Love Letters (Mason)	Comedy-drama	Mar. 8..	4,749
Wolf Man (Gilbert)	Drama	Mar. 15..	5,145
Vagabond Trail (Jones)	Drama	Mar. 22..	4,562
Arizona Express (D. Butler)	Railroad drama	Mar. 29..	6,316
Plunderer (Mayo)	Drama	Apr. 5..	5,000
A Man's Mate (Gilbert)	Drama	Apr. 5..	5,812
New England Farm	Instructive	Apr. 12..	1,000
Circus Cowboy (Jones)	Western drama	May 3..	6,400
Slippery Decks	Card expose	May 3..	1,000
Trouble Shooter (Mix)	Western drama	May 17..	5,702
He's My Pal	Imperial comedy	May 17..	2,000
Lone Chance (Gilbert)	Western drama	May 24..	4,385
When Wise Ducks Meet	Comedy	May 24..	2,000
Western Luck (Jones)	Comedy-drama	June 28..	5,000
Magic Needle	"Etching"	June 28..	1,000
Romance Ranch (Gilbert)	Comedy-drama	July 12..	4,471
Heart Buster (Mix)	Comedy-drama	July 19..	4,500
Beaten Gold	Educational	July 19..	1,000
Against All Odds (Jones)	Comedy-drama	Aug. 9..	4,899
Pain as You Enter (Moran)	Comedy	Aug. 9..	2,000
That French Lady (Mason)	Comedy-drama	Aug. 16..	5,470
Man Who Came Back (special)	Drama	Sep. 6..	8,273
Desert Outlaw (Jones)	Drama
Wolves of the Night (W. Farnum)	Drama
It Is the Law (all-star)	Drama	Sep. 13..	6,895
Dante's Inferno (special)	Drama	Oct. 11..	5,480
Cyclone Rider (all-star)	Drama	Sep. 20..	6.672
Last of the Duanes (Mix)	Drama	Aug. 30..	6,942
Iron Horse (special)	Railway drama	Sep. 13..	11,400
The Hunt	Van Bibber com.
Conquerer (W. Farnum)	Reissue
The Fight (all-star)	Drama
Oh, You Tony (Mix and Tony)	Comedy-drama	Sep. 27..	6,302
Winner Take All (Jones)	Comedy-drama	Oct. 25..	5,949
Hearts of Oak (all-star)	Drama	Oct. 11..	5,336
Great Diamond Mystery (Mason)	Comedy-drama	Nov. 1..	5,096
Warrens of Virginia (all-star)	Drama	Nov. 1..	6,535
The Race	Van Bibber com.
End of the Trail (W. Farnum)	Drama
Rambles of a Raindrop	Instructive	Sep. 27..	1,000
Daughters of the Night (all-star)	Modern drama		5,701
Painted Lady (Mackaill)	Modern drama	Oct. 4..	6,936
Jerusalem Today	Instructive	Oct. 4..	1,000
Last Man on Earth	Novelty special	Dec. 27..
Gold Heels	Race track dr.	Feb. 7..	6,020
Flames of Desire	Love drama		5,438
The Dancers	Drama	Jan. 24..	6,656
The Folly of Vanity	Dramatic fantasy
Teeth (Mix-Tony Duke)	Western drama	Nov. 15..	6,190
Tainted Souls	Modern drama
Darwin Was Right	Monkey novelty com.	Nov. 8..	4,992
Everyman's Wife	Modern mystery-drama
In Love With Love	Comedy drama	Jan. 3..	5,677
Hunting Wild Animals in Hollywood	Novelty
Honor Among Men (E. Lowe)	Romance-drama	Oct. 18..	4,960
Unreal News 4	Novelty	Oct. 11..	2,000
Van Bibber Series	Polite com.	Oct. 25..	2,000
Age of Oil	Educational	Nov. 1..	2,000
Deep Sea Panic (Parrott)	Comedy	Nov. 1..	2,000
Nickle Plated West	Sunshine comedy	Nov. 15..	2,000
The Bull Fight	Educational	Nov. 15..	1,000
My Husband's Wives (Mason-Washburn)	Comedy-dr.	Nov. 22..	4,509
Paul Jones, Jr.	Van Bibber com.	Nov. 22..	2,000
Finger Lakes	Instructive	Nov. 22..	1,000
Brass Bowl (Edmund Lowe)	Adventure dr.	Nov. 29..	5,861
Stolen Sweeties (Monkeys)	Comedy	Nov. 29..	2,000
Salt of the Earth	Educational	Nov. 29..	1,000
Gerald Cranston's Lady (James Kirkwood)	Domestic dr.	Dec. 6..	6,074
Masked Marvel (Parrott)	Comedy	Dec. 6..	2,000
The Roughneck (George O'Brien)	Melodrama	Dec. 13..	7,619
The Burglar	Van Bibber	Dec. 13..	2,000
Man Who Played Square (Jones)	Western drama	Dec. 20..	6,700
Deadwood Coach (Mix)	Western drama	Jan. 10..	6,346
Troubles of a Bride	Melodrama	Dec. 27..	4,915
Dick Turpin (Mix)	English drama	Feb. 7..	5,224
Hunted Woman	Melodrama
Arizona Romeo (Jones)	Western drama	Jan. 31..	4,694
Curlytop (Mason)	Melodrama	Jan. 10..	5,828
Stardust Trail (Mason)	Melodrama
Scuttlers (W.Farnum)	Western drama		4,686
Movie-Mad Maid (Babe London)	Slapstick	Dec. 20..	2,000
Roaring Lions at Home	Sunshine com.	Jan. 3..	2,000
Uncommon Clay	Educational	Jan. 3..	1,000
Up On the Farm (Lee Moran)	Comedy	Jan. 3..	2,000
The Violin Speaks	Educational	Jan. 10..	1,000
Dangerous Curves	Comedy	Jan. 10..	2,000
Milk Bottle Bandits	Comedy	Jan. 10..	2,000
Ports of Call (E. Lowe)	Regeneration dr.	Jan. 24..	5,500
Sleep Walker (Sid Smith)	Comedy	Jan. 24..	2,000
Hell-Roaring Range	Educational	Jan. 24..	1,000
Corsica the Beautiful	Educational	Jan. 31..	1,000
Nobody Works But Father	Slapstick	Feb. 7..	2,000

METRO-GOLDWYN

Through the Dark (Moore)	Drama	Jan. 29..	7,999
Yolanda (Davies)	Romance-dr.	Mar. 1..	10.125
Wild Oranges (all-star)	Drama	Mar. 15..	6,889
Nellie, Beautiful Cloak Model	Melodrama	Apr. 5..	6,598
Three Weeks (Pringle-Nagel)	Romantic dr.	Apr. 12..	7,483
Janice Meredith (Davies)	Romantic dr.	Aug. 23..	10,655
Rejected Woman (Rubens-Nagel)	Drama	May 3..	7,761
Heart Bandit (Dana)	Comedy-dr.	Jan. 19..	4,909
Fool's Awakening (Ford)	Drama	Feb. 16..	5,763
Man Life Passed By (Marmont)	Drama	Mar. 1..	6,459
Thy Name Is Woman (LaMarr)	Drama	Mar. 1..	9,087
Uninvited Guest (Tolley)	Drama	Mar. 8..	6,145
Happiness (L. Taylor)	Comedy-dr.	Mar. 8..	7,414
Women Who Give (all-star)	Sea drama	Mar. 22..	7,500
Boy of Flanders (Coogan)	Comedy-dr.	Apr. 5..	7,018
Shooting of Dan McGrew (all-star)	Drama	Apr. 12..	6,318
Mademoiselle Midnight (Murray)	Drama	May 17.	6,778
Sherlock, Jr. (Keaton)	Comedy	May 17..	4,065
Arab (Novarro-Terry)	Drama	July 12..	6,710

(Continued from preceding page)

	Kind of Picture	Review.	Feet
Bread (all-star)	Drama	Aug. 2..	6,726
Tess of D'Urbervilles (Sweet)	Drama	Aug. 9..	7,736
Little Robinson Crusoe (Coogan)	Comedy-dr.	Aug. 16..	6,126
Broken Barriers (all-star)	Drama	Aug. 16..	5,717
True As Steel (all-star)	Drama	Jun. 28..	6,454
Revelation (Dana)	Drama	July 5..	8,752
Recoil (Blythe-Hamilton)	Drama	July 12..	7,089
Wine of Youth (all star)	Drama	July 26..	6,805
Along Came Ruth (Dana)	Comedy-dr.	Aug. 2..	5,161
Red Lily (Bennett-Novarro)	Drama	Aug. 16..	6,975
Sinners in Silk (Menjou-Boardman)	Drama	Aug. 30..	5,750
Circe, The Enchantress (Murray)	Drama	Sep. 13..	6,882
His Hour (Pringle)	Drama	Sep. 20..	6,300
One Night in Rome (L. Taylor)	Comedy-dr.	Sep. 27..	5,883
Navigator (Keaton)	Comedy	Sep. 13..	5,[illegible]
Bandolero (all star)	Drama	Oct. 11..	6,[illegible]
Great Divide (all star)	Drama
The Snob (all star)	Drama	Nov. 8..	6,513
He Who Gets Slapped (Chaney)	Drama	Nov. 15..	6,613
Rag Man (Coogan)	Comedy-dr.
Silent Accuser (Peter, the Great)	Dog drama	Nov. 22..	5,883
So This Is Marriage (all star)	Comedy-dr.	Jan. 3..	6,300
Beauty Prize (Dana)	Comedy-dr.	Oct. 11..	5,750
Ben Hur (special cast)	Drama
Merry Widow (Murray)	Comedy-dr.
The Scandal (Novarro)	Drama
Seven Chances (Keaton)	Comedy
Sporting Venus (Sweet)	Drama
Married Flirts (all-star)	Drama	Oct. 25..	6,765
Temptress (Cosmopolitan)
The Square Peg
Zander, the Great (Cosmopolitan)
Romola (Lillian Gish)	Famous novel	Dec. 13..	12,974
Greed (Von Stroheim prod.)	Special	Dec. 20..	10,067
Chu-Chin-Chow (B. Blythe)	Spectacle
Wife of the Centaur	Drama	Jan. 17..	6,586
Dixie Handicap (Windsor-Keenan)	Drama	Jan. 10..	6,905
Cheaper to Marry (All Star) ..	Drama
A Man's World (Joyce-Marmont)	Drama
Excuse Me (Shearer-Nagel)	Farce-comedy	Feb. 7..	5,084

PARAMOUNT

Ten Commandments (all star)	Spectacular dr.	Jan. 5..	12,000
Fighting Coward (Cruze prod.)	Satirical dr.	Mar. 29..	6,433
Dawn of a To-morrow (Logan)	Slum dr.	Apr. 5..	6,084
Singer Jim McKee (W. S. Hart)	Western	Apr. 12..	7,008
Breaking Point (all star)	West-Metropolitan	Apr. 19..	6,664
Confidence Man (Meighan)	Romance dr.	Apr. 26..	6,500
Moral Sinner (Dalton)	Crook melo.	Apr. 26..	5,489
Triumph (C. DeMille prod.)	Theatrical dr.	May 3..	8,292
Bluff (Ayres-Moreno)	Drama	May 10..	6,504
Men (Negri)	Society dr.	May 17..	6,700
Wanderer of Wasteland (Holt-Technicolor)	Western	May 31..	6,086
Code of the Sea (LaRocque-Logan)	Sea melodr.	Jun. 7..	6,550
Bedroom Window (W. DeMille prod.)	Mystery dr.	Jun. 21..	6,550
Guilty One (Ayres)	Heavy mystery	Jun. 28..	5,365
Tiger Love (Melford prod.)	Modern dr.	Jun. 28..	5,325
Changing Husbands (Joy)	Dual role dr.	July 5..	6,799
Unguarded Women (Daniels-Dix)	Society dr.	July 5..	6,051
Enemy Sex (Compson)	Romantic dr.	July 12..	7,861
Side Show of Life (Torrence)	Clown dr.	Aug. 2..	7,511
Manhandled (Swanson)	Comedy-dr.	Aug. 9..	6,908
Man Who Fights Alone (W. Farnum)	Drama	Aug. 9..	6,337
Monsieur Beaucaure (Valentino)	Spectacle melo.	Aug. 23..	9,932
Empty Hands (Holt)	Forest Melo.	Aug. 30..	6,976
Lily of the Dust (Negri)	Drama	Sep. 6..	6,811
The Female (Compson)	Society dr.	Sep. 13..	6,167
Merton of the Movies (Hunter)	Travesty	Sep. 20..	7,655
Sinners in Heaven (Daniels-Dix)	Drama	Sep. 20..	6,621
Open All Night (all star)	Demestic dr.	Sep. 20..	6,881
Feet of Clay (C. DeMille prod.)	Drama	Oct. 4..	9,741
Alaskan (Meighan)	Drama	Sep. 27..	6,167
Her Love Story (Swanson)	Romance dr.	Oct. 11..	6,736
Story Without a Name (Ayres-Moreno)	Prize title	Oct. 18..	5,912
Dangerous Money (Daniels)	Comedy-dr.	Oct. 25..	6,864
Border Legion (Moreno)	Drama	Nov. 1..	7,048
Worldly Goods (Ayres)	Drama	Nov. 15—	6,055
Fast Set (Compson-Menjou)	Domestic dr.	Nov. 29..	6,574
Forbidden Paradise (Negri)	Drama	Nov. 29..	7,000
Sainted Devil (Valentino)	Drama	Dec. 6..	8,633
City That Never Sleeps (Cruze prod.)	Mother-love melo.	Oct. 11..	6,097
Manhattan (Dix)	Romantic com.	Nov. 8..	6,415
Garden of Weeds (Compson)	Drama	Nov. 15..	6,230
Wages of Virtue (Swanson)	Drama	Dec. 6..	7,093
Tongues of Flame (Meighan-Love)	Melodrama	Dec. 27..	6,763
North of 36 (Torrence-Holt-Wilson)	Historic romance	Dec. 13..	7,908
Argentine Love (Daniels-Cortez)	Spanish romance	Jan. 3..	5,970
Peter Pan (Betty Bronson)	Barrie classic	Jan. 3..	9,593
Locked Doors (Compson)	Original story	Jan. 24..	6,221
Tomorrow's Love (Ayres)	Divorce com-dr.	Jan. 24..	5,903
East of Suez (Negri)	Drama	Jan. 17..	6,821
Miss Bluebeard (Daniels)	The stage success
Golden Bed (LaRocque)	Drama of classes	Jan. 31..	8,584
Man Must Live (Dix)	Newspaper romance	Feb. 7..	6,116
Coming Through (Meighan)	New type Meighan story
The Devil's Cargo (Starke)	Drama of Old California
Lord Chumley (Dana-Griffith-Roberts)	Stage success
Top of the World (Nilsson-Kirkwood)	Africa and England		7,167
The Swan (Menjou-Howard)	Stage success
Contraband (Wilson-Noah Beery)	Bootleg drama		6,773
Madame Sans Gene (Swanson)	World Famous drama
The Thundering Herd (Holt-Wilson)	Buffalo stampede
Forty Winks (Dana-Roberts-Griffith)	Comedy		6,293
Goose Hangs High (Cruze production)	Typical		6,186

PATHE

Fields of Glory	"Sportlight"	Mar. 22..	1,000
Hunters Bold	"Spat Family"	Mar. 22..	2,000
From Rags to Riches and Back Again	Terry cartoon	Mar. 22..	1,000
Don't Forget	Charles Chase	Mar. 22..	1,000
King of Wild Horses	Rex (horse)	Mar. 29..	5,000
Big Moments From Little Pictures	Will Rogers	Mar. 29..	2,000
Fraidy Cat	Charles Chase	Mar. 29..	1,000
Shanghaied Lovers	Harry Langdon	Mar. 29..	2,000
The Champion	Terry cartoon	Mar. 29..	1,000
Dirty Little Half Breed	Frontier series	Mar. 29..	2,000
Seein' Things	"Our Gang"	Apr. 5..	2,000
Birds of Passage	Bird Novelty	Apr. 5..	3,000
Running Wild	Terry cartoon	Apr. 5..	1,000
Friend Husband	Snub Pollard	Apr. 5..	1,000
The Swift and Strong	"Sportlight"	Apr. 5..	1,000

	Kind of Picture	Review.	Feet
Girl-Shy	Harold Lloyd	Apr. 12..	7,457
Our Little Nell	"Dippy Doo Dads"	Apr. 12..	1,000
Medicine Hat	Frontier series	Apr. 12..	2,000
Brothers Under the Chin	Stan Laurel	Apr. 12..	2,000
Gateway of the West	8th Chronicle	Apr. 19..	3,000
The Hollywood Kid	Sennett comedy	Apr. 19..	2,000
Hit the High Spots	"Spat Family"	Apr. 19..	2,000
One at a Time	Earl Mohan	Apr. 19..	1,000
If Noah Lived Today	Terry cartoon	Apr. 19..	1,000
A Trip to the Pole	Terry cartoon	Apr. 26..	1,000
Sun and Snow	"Sportlight"	Apr. 26..	1,000
Get Busy	Snub Pollard	Apr. 26..	1,000
Highbrow Stuff	Will Rogers	Apr. 26..	2,000
Flickering Youth	Sennett comedy	Apr. 26..	2,000
Commencement Day	"Our Gang"	May 3..	2,000
An Ideal Farm	Terry cartoon	May 3..	1,000
Homeless Pups	Terry cartoon	May 3..	1,000
Sporting Speed	"Sportlight"	May 3..	1,000
Publicity Pays	Charles Chase	May 3..	1,000
When Winter Comes	Terry cartoon	May 10..	1,000
Near Dublin	Stan Laurel	May 10..	2,000
North of 50-50	"Dippy Doo Dads"	May 10..	1,000
The Fortieth Door	Allene Ray—serial	May 17..
April Fool	Charles Chase	May 17..	2,000
The Pilgrims	Chronicle series	May 17..	3,000
Fishin' Fever	"Sportlight"	May 17..	2,000
Black Oxfords	Sennett comedy	May 17..	2,000
Bottle Babies	"Spat Family"	May 17..	2,000
Going to Congress	Will Rogers	May 24..	2,000
Position Wanted	Charles Chase	May 24..	1,000
The Cat's Meow	Sennett comedy	May 24..	2,000
Cradle Robbers	"Our Gang"	May 31..	2,000
Building Winners	"Sportlight"	May 31..	1,000
Before Taking	Earl Mohan	May 31..	1,000
Rupert of Hee-Haw	Stan Laurel	June 7..	2,000
Yukon Jake	Ben Turpin	June 7..	2,000
Up and At 'Em	"Dippy Doo Dads"	June 7..	1,000
The Flying Carpet	Terry cartoon	June 7..	1,000
Declaration of Independence	"Chronicles"	June 14..	3,000
Fast Black	Mohan-Engle	June 14..	1,000
Lion and the Souse	Sennett comedy	June 14..	2,000
On Guard	"Sportlight"	June 14..	1,000
Suffering Shakespeare	"Spat Family"	June 14..	2,000
Young Oldfield	Charles Chase	June 21..	1,000
His New Mama	Sennett comedy	June 21..	2,000
Don't Park There	Will Rogers	June 21..	2,000
Her Memory	Will Nigh Miniature	June 21..	1,000
Solitude and Fame	"Sportlight"	June 28..	1,000
Stolen Goods	Charles Chase	June 28..	1,000
Jubilo, Jr.	"Our Gang"	June 28..	2,000
Jeffries, Jr.	Charles Chase	July 5..	1,000
The Wide Open Spaces ..	Stan Laurel	July 5..	2,000
The Body in the Bag	Terry cartoon	July 5..	1,000
Yorktown	Chronicles of America	July 12..	3,000
Why Husbands Go Mad	Charles Chase	July 12..	1,000
Desert Sheiks	Terry cartoon	July 12..	1,000
Radio Mad	"Spat Family"	July 12..	2,000
Maud Miller	Special	July 19..	2,000
Our Congressman	Will Rogers	July 19..	2,000
A Woman's Hour	Terry cartoon	July 19..	1,000
A Ten-Minute Egg	Charles Chase	July 19..	1,000
It's a Bear	"Our Gang"	July 26..	2,000
The Sport of Kings	Terry cartoon	July 26..	1,000
Our Defenders	"Sportlight"	July 26..	1,000
Seeing Nellie Home	Charles Chase	July 26..	1,000
Into the Net	Mulhall-Murphy serial	Aug. 2..
Romeo and Juliet	Sennett comedy	Aug. 2..	2,000
Flying Fever	Terry cartoon	Aug. 2..	1,000
Short Kilts	Hal Roach comedy	Aug. 2..	2,000
A Hard Boiled Tenderfoot	"Spat Family"	Aug. 9..	2,000
The Puritans	"Chronicles" series	Aug. 9..	3,000
Amelia Comes Back	Terry cartoon	Aug. 9..	1,000
The First Hundred Years	Sennett comedy	Aug. 16..	2,000
A Truthful Liar	Will Rogers	Aug. 16..	2,000
The Battling Orioles	Special	Aug. 23..	5,000
East of the Water Plug	Sennett comedy	Aug. 23..	2,000
High Society	"Our Gang"	Aug. 23..	2,000
The Prodigal Pup	Terry cartoon	Aug. 23..	1,000
Hoofbeats	"Sportlight"	Aug. 23..	1,000
House Cleaning	Terry cartoon	Aug. 23..	1,000
Alexander Hamilton	"Chronicles" series	Sep. 6..	3,000
Lizzies of the Field	Sennett comedy	Sep. 6..	2,000
Barnyard Olympics	Terry cartoon	Sep. 6..	1,000
South of the North Pole	"Spat Family"	Sep. 6..	2,000
One Third Off	Cobb-Rice comedy	Sep. 6..	2,000
The Happy Years	"Sportlight"	Sep. 6..	1,000
Why Men Work	Charles Chase	Sep. 6..	1,000
Message From the Sea	Terry cartoon	Sep. 6..	1,000
Luck of the Foolish	Harry Langdon	Sep. 13..	2,000
Outdoor Pajamas	Charles Chase	Sep. 13..	2,000
Three Foolish Weeks	Ben Turpin	Sep. 13..	2,000
In Good Old Summertime	Terry cartoon	Sep. 13..	1,000
Danger Lure	Sportlight	Oct. 11..	1,000
Dixie	Chronicles	Oct. 11..	3,000
Goofy Age (Glenn Tryon)	Comedy	Oct. 11..	2,000
10 Scars Make a Man (Allene Ray)	Serial	Oct. 18..
Black Magic	Terry cartoon	Oct. 18..	1,000
Sporting Rhythm	Sportlight	Oct. 18..	1,000
Riders of the Purple Cow	Sennett com.	Oct. 18..	2,000
Every Man for Himself	Our Gang	Oct. 18..	2,000
Hot Water (Harold Lloyd)	Feature com.	Oct. 18..	5,000
On Leave of Absence	Detective	Oct. 25..	2,000
Bungalow Boobs (Chase)	Comedy	Oct. 25..	1,000
Sky Plumber (Arthur Stone)	Comedy	Oct. 25..	2,000
Galloping Bungalows	Sennett com.	Nov. 1..	2,000
Stunts	Sportlight	Nov. 1..	1,000
Hot Stuff	Spat family	Nov. 1..	2,000
Cat and the Magnet	Terry cartoon	Nov. 1..	1,000
Fast Company	Our Gang	Nov. 15..	2,000
She Knew Her Man	Terry cartoon	Nov. 15..	1,000
Gridiron Glory	Sportlight	Nov. 15..	1,000
Love's Sweet Piffle (R. Graves)	Comedy	Nov. 22..	2,000
Are Blond Men Bashful? (Stone)	Comedy	Nov. 22..	2,000
Out of the Storm	Detective	Nov. 22..	2,000
Good Old Circus Days	Terry cartoon	Nov. 22..	1,000
All Wet (Chase)	Comedy	Nov. 29..	1,000
Deaf, Dumb and Daffy ..	Spat Family	Nov. 29..	2,000
Cannon-Ball Express	Sennett com.	Nov. 29..	2,000
Champions	Sportlight	Nov. 29..	1,000
Lumber Jacks	Terry cartoon	Nov. 29..	1,000
White Sheep (Glenn Tryon)	Special dr.	Dec. 6..	6,000

	Kind of Picture	Review.	Feet
Feet of Mud (Sennett cast)	Comedy	Dec. 6..	2,000
Meet the Missus (Tryon)	Comedy	Dec. 6..	2,000
Bucking the Bucket Shop	Detective series	Dec. 6..	2,000
She's In Again	Terry cartoon	Dec. 6..	1,000
Mysterious Mystery	Our Gang	Dec. 13..	2,000
Off His Trolley (R. Graves)	Sennett com.	Dec. 13..	2,000
Noah's Athletic Club	Terry cartoon	Dec. 13..	1,000
Just a Good Guy (Stone) ..	Comedy	Dec. 20..	2,000
Royal Razz (Chase)	Comedy	Dec. 20..	1,000
Mysteries of Old Chinatown	Terry cartoon	Dec. 20..	1,000
Nature's Rouge	Sportlight	Dec. 20..	1,000
Rubber Neck	Spat Family ..	Dec. 27..	2,000
Bull and Sand	Sennett comedy	Dec. 27..	2,000
Invaders	Sportlight	Dec. 27..	1,000
Down on the Farm	Terry cartoon	Dec. 27..	1,000
The Sea Squawk	Sennett com.	Jan. 3..	2,000
On the Ice	Terry cartoon	Jan. 3..	1,000
Galloping Hoofs (Allene Ray)	Serial	Jan. 3..
Wages of Tin (Tryon)	Comedy	Jan. 3..	2,000
Rat's Knuckles (Chase)	Comedy	Jan. 10..	1,000
Rough and Tumbling	Sportlight	Jan. 10..	1,000
Our Game Pup	Terry cartoon	Jan. 10..	1,000
The Big Town (Our Gang)	Comedy	Jan. 10..	2,000
Plumber (Graves)	Comedy	Jan. 10..	2,000
Wild Goose Chaser (Turpin)	Sennett Com.	Jan. 17..	2,000
Hello Baby (Chase)	Comedy	Jan. 17..	1,000
Laugh That Off	Spat Family	Jan. 24..	2,000
Honeymoon Hardships	Sennett comedy	Jan. 24..	2,000
Brain and Brawn	Sportlight	Jan. 24..	1,000
Boobs in the Woods (Langdon)	Sennett comedy	Jan. 31..	2,000
Hold That Thought	Terry cartoon	Jan. 31..	1,000
Fighting Fluid (Chas. Chase)	Comedy	Jan. 31..	1,000
Beloved Bozo (R. Graves)	Sennett comedy	Feb. 7..	2,000
Circus Fever	Our Gang	Feb. 7..	2,000
Biting the Dust	Terry cartoon	Feb. 7..	1,000
Transatlantic Flight	Terry cartoon		1,000

PRINCIPAL PICTURES

Listen Lester (all-star)	Comedy-drama	May	10..	6,242
Daring Youth (Daniels)	Comedy-drama	May	17..	5,975
Daughters of Pleasure (Prevost)	Drama	May	24..	6,000
Masked Dancer (H. Chadwick)	Mystery drama	May	31..	4,987
Good Bad Boy (Joe Butterworth)	Comedy-drama	June	7..	5,198
Captain January (Baby Peggy)	Sea story	July	12..	6,194
Helen's Babies (Baby Peggy)	Comedy-drama
Mine With Iron Door (all-star)	Adventure drama	Dec.	27..	7,800
Re-Creation of Brian Kent	Drama

PRODUCERS DISTRIBUTING CORP.

Grit (G. Hunter)	Crook dr	Jan.	12..	5,500
Love's Whirlpool (Lee-Kirkwood)	Drama	Mar.	22..	6,605
Hoosier Schoolmaster (Hull)	Drama	Mar.	29..	5,556
His Darker Self (L. Hamilton)	Comedy	Apr.	5..	5,000
Try and Get It (Washburn)	Comedy-dr.	Apr.	12..	5,607
Not One to Spare (all star)	Pathos dr	Apr.	19..	5,000
Wandering Husbands (Lee-Kirkwood)	Drama	May	10..	6,300
Hold Your Breath (Devore)	Thrill com	Jun.	7..	5,900
Miami (Compson)	Drama	Jun.	14..	6,317
Night Hawk (Carey)	Western	Jun.	14..	5,115
Lightning Rider (Carey)	Western	Jun.	21..	6,000
What Shall I Do? (Mackaill)	Drama	Jun.	28..	8,000
Legend of Hollywood (Marmont)	Drama	Jan.	10..	5,414
Wise Virgin (Miller)	Drama			5,951
Welcome Stranger (Vidor)	Comedy-dr.	Oct.	25..	6,618
Ramshackle House (Compson)	Comedy-dr.			6,257
Barbara Frietchie (Vidor)	Civ. War dr	Oct.	11..	7,179
Chalk Marks (M. Snow)	Drama
House of Youth (Logan)	Drama			6,669
Roaring Rails (Carey)	Railway dr	Oct.	25..	5,753
Another Scandal (Lois Wilson)	Sex theme	Nov.	1..	7,000
Another Man's Wife (Lee-Kirkwood)	Drama			5,015
Trouping With Ellen (H. Chadwick)	Comedy-dr.			6,452
Reckless Romance	Comedy feature	Nov.	22..	5,530
Siren of Seville (Dean)	Drama	Nov.	29..	6,724
Girl on the Stairs (Miller)	Comedy-dr.			6,214
Chorus Lady (Livingston)	Comedy-dr.			6,020
Cafe in Cairo (Dean)	Drama			5,656
Flaming Forties (Carey)	Western			5,770
The Mirage (Vidor)	Drama
Let Women Alone (O'Malley-Hawley)	Drama
Soft Shoes (Carey)	Western
Off the Highway (Logan)	Drama

B. P. SCHULBERG PROD.

Breath of Scandal (Blythe)	Society drama			6,940
White Man (Joyce)	Jungle romance	Nov.	22..	6,370
Triflers (Busch-Mayo)	Paris soc. dr.	Dec.	27..	6,626
Capital Punishment (Clara Bow)	Prison dr.	Jan.	24..	5,950
Boomerang (Clara Bow)	Comedy-dr.
Parasite (Bellamy-Moore-Washburn)	Drama	Jan.	31..	5,140

SELZNICK

(Through Associated Exhibitors)

Woman to Woman (Compson)	Drama	Apr.	26..	6,304
$20 a Week (Arliss)	Drama	Jun.	21..	5,900
White Shadow (Compson)	Drama
Bowery Bishop	Slum dr

UNITED ARTISTS

Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall (Pickford)	Romantic drama	May	17..	9,351
America (Griffith prod.)	Historical drama	Mar.	8..	11,442
Isn't Life Wonderful? (Dempster)	Realism	Dec.	13..	8,000
Thief of Bagdad (D. Fairbanks)	Fantasy	Mar.	29..	12,000

UNIVERSAL

Hats Off (Morrison)	Drama	Feb.	9.	2,000
Down in Jungle Town (Joe Martin)	Monkey comedy	Feb.	9 .	1,000
Fast Express (W. Duncan)	Railway serial	Feb.	9..	...
Jack o' Clubs (Rawlinson)	Western dr	Feb.	16..	4,717
Lone Larry (Sedgwick)	Comedy	Feb.	16..	2,000
You're Next	Century comedy	Feb.	16..	2,000
The Jail Bird (Edwards)	Comedy	Feb.	16..	1,000
Ride for Your Life (Gibson)	Western	Mar.	1..	5,310
Society Sensation (Valentino)	Reissue	Mar.	1..	2,000
Very Bad Man (Edwards)	Comedy	Mar.	1..	1,000
Peg of the Mounted (Baby Peggy)	Comedy	Mar.	1..	2,000

	Kind of Picture	Review	Feet
Law Forbids (Baby Peggy)	Feature dr	Mar. 8..	6,263
Swing Bad the Sailor	Leather Pushers	Mar. 8..	2,000
Sons-in-Law	Century com	Mar. 8..	2,000
Should Poker Players Marry (Edwards)	Comedy	Mar. 8..	1,000
Fool's Highway (Philbin)	Drama	Mar. 15..	6,800
Big Boy Blue	Leather Pushers	Mar. 15..	2,000
The Oriental Game (Pal)	Century com	Mar. 15..	2,000
Keep Healthy (Summerville)	Comedy	Mar. 15..	1,000
Phantom Horseman (Hoxie)	Western	Mar. 15..	4,889
Stolen Secrets (Rawlinson)	Drama	Mar. 22..	4,742
Young Tenderfoot (Messinger)	Comedy	Mar. 22..	2,000
Nobody to Love (Edwards)	Comedy	Mar. 22..	1,000
Night Message (Hulette)	Drama	Mar. 29..	4,531
Ship Ahoy (Dunn)	Comedy	Mar. 29..	1,000
That's Rich (Trimble)	Comedy	Mar. 29..	2,000
Galloping Ace (Hoxie)	Western	Apr. 5..	4,561
Hit Him Hard (Earle)	Comedy	Apr. 5..	2,000
Marry When Young (Edwards)	Comedy	Apr. 5..	1,000
Checking Out (Pal)	Century com	Apr. 12..	2,000
Spring of 1964 (Edwards)	Comedy	Apr. 12..	1,000
Excitement (LaPlante)	Comedy-dr.	Apr. 19..	4,913
Storm Daughter (Dean)	Drama	Apr. 19..	5,203
Racing Kid (Messinger)	Comedy	Apr. 19..	2,000
Forty Horse Hawkins (Gibson)	Western	Apr. 26..	5,140
One Wet Night (Edwards)	Comedy	Apr. 26..	1,000
Pretty Plungers (Follies Girls)	Century com	Apr. 26..	2,000
Riders Up (Hale)	Race drama	May 3..	4,904
Politics (Summerville)	Comedy	May 3..	1,000
Green Grocers (Dunn)	Comedy	May 3..	1,000
A Lofty Marriage (Earle)	Comedy	May 3..	2,000
Taxi, Taxi!	Comedy	May 10..	2,000
Pigskin Hero (McCoy)	Comedy	May 10..	2,000
Bulltosser (Lyons-Moran)	Relssue	May 10..	1,000
Dangerous Blonde (LaPlante)	Comedy-dr.	May 17..	4,919
Fast Steppers (New Series)	Race dr	May 10..	2,000
Ridgeway of Montana (Hoxie)	Western	May 17..	4,843
My Little Brother (Summerville)	Comedy	May 17..	1,000
The Lone Round-Up (Dougherty)	Short Western	May 17..	2,000
The Signal Tower (Super-Jewel)	Drama	May 24..	6,714
Tired Business Man (Alt-Follies Girls)	Comedy	May 24..	2,000
Honor of Men (N. Hart re-issue)	Western	May 24..	2,000
Reckless Age (Denny)	Drama	May 31..	6,954
Fighting American (all star)	Drama	May 31..	5,251
Case Dismissed (Summerville)	Comedy	May 31..	1,000
Boss of the Bar-20 (Lawrence)	Western	May 31..	2,000
Delivering the Goods (Pal)	Comedy	May 31..	2,000
The Gaiety Girl (Philbin)	Drama	Jun. 7..	7,419
High Speed (Rawlinson)	Drama	Jun. 7..	4,927
Fearless Fools (McCoy)	Century com	Jun. 7..	2,000
Rest in Pieces (Roach)	Comedy	Jun. 7..	1,000
Powerful Eye (Morrison)	Short Western	Jun. 7..	2,000
Sailor Maids (Follies Girls)	Comedy	Jun. 14..	2,000
Winning a Bride (Ridgeway)	Comedy	Jun. 14..	2,000
Family Secret (Baby Peggy)	Comedy-dr.	Jun. 21..	5,076
Back Trail (Hoxie)	Western	Jun. 21..	4,615
Fight and Win (Jack Dempsey)	Fight series	Jun. 21..	...
Please Teacher (Messinger)	Comedy	Jun. 21..	2,000
Miners Over 21 (Summerville)	Comedy	Jun. 21..	1,000
Blue Wing's Revenge (Lawrence)	Western	Jun. 28..	2,000
Dark Stairway (Rawlinson)	Drama	Jun. 28..	5,000
Iron Man (Albertini)	Serial	Jun. 28..	...
Behind the Curtain (Bryson)	Drama	July 5..	4,875
A Royal Pair	Century com	July 5..	2,000
Why Be Jealous? (Roach)	Comedy	July 5..	1,000
Young Ideas (LaPlante)	Comedy-dr.	July 12..	4,005
Her Fortunate Face	Century com	July 12..	2,000
Little Savage	Short Western	July 12..	2,000
Sawdust Trail (Gibson)	Western	July 19..	5,500
Cry Baby (Summerville)	Comedy	July 19..	1,000
Starving Beauties (Wiley)	Comedy	July 26..	2,000
Flying Eagle (Lawrence)	Short Western	July 26..	2,000
Patching Things Up (Roach)	Comedy	July 26..	2,000
Fighting Fury (Hoxie)	Western	Aug. 2..	4,491
Kid Days (Snooky)	Comedy	Aug. 2..	1,000
Her City Sport (Wiley)	Comedy	Aug. 2..	2,000
The Gun Packer (Morrison)	Western	Aug. 2..	2,000
Big Timber (Desmond)	Forest dr	Aug. 9..	4,650
Paging Money	Century com	Aug. 9..	2,000
King's Command (Lawrence)	Short Western	Aug. 9..	2,000
Love and Glory (all star)	Drama	Aug. 16..	7,084
Hit and Run (Gibson)	Baseball dr	Aug. 16..	5,504
Wolves of the North (Duncan)	Serial	Aug. 16..	...
Wine (C. Bow)	Drama	Aug. 23..	6,220
Hysterical History (Z Series)	Novelty	Aug. 23..	1,000
Sagebush Vagabond	Western	Aug. 23..	2,000
Butterfly (LaPlante)	Comedy-dr.	Aug. 30..	7,472
The Blow Out (Messinger)	Comedy	Aug. 30..	2,000
K—The Unknown (Valli-Marmont)	Drama	Sep. 6..	8,146
All's Swell on the Ocean (Dempsey)	Fight and win	Sep. 6..	2,000
So This Is Paris (Dempsey)	Fight and win	Sep. 6..	2,000
Scared Stiff	Century com	Sep. 6..	2,000
Mind the Baby (Pal)	Comdey	Sep. 13..	2,000
College Cowboy	Western	Sep. 13..	2,000
Traffic Jams (McCoy)	Comedy	Sep. 13..	2,000
Tempest Cody Gets Her Man (Walcamp)	Western	Sep. 13..	2,000
That's the Spirit (Roach)	Comedy	Sep. 13..	1,000
Measure of a Man (Desmond)	Drama	Sep. 20..	4,979
Fast Worker (Denny-LaPlante)	Drama	Sep. 20..	6,506
Low Bridge (Messinger)	Comdey	Sep. 27..	2,000
Game Hunter (Roach)	Comdey	Sep. 27..	1,000
Between Fires	Western	Sep. 27..	2,000
Rose of Paris (Philbin)	Drama	Oct. 4..	6,362
Rip Van Winkle	Hysterical Hist	Oct. 4..	1,000
Trouble Fixer	Century com	Oct. 4..	2,000
Western Wallop (Hoxie)	Ex-convict dr.	Oct. 11..	4,611
Hello, Frisco (Summerville-Dunn)	Comedy	Oct. 11..	1,000
Snappy Eyes (Wiley)	Comedy	Oct. 11..	2,000
An Eyeful (Sullivan)	Short drama	Oct. 11..	2,000
Pocahontas & John Smith	Hysterical hist.	Oct. 18..	1,000
What an Eye	Comedy	Oct. 18..	2,000
Ridin' Kid From Powder River (Gibson)	Western	Oct. 25..	5,727
Riddle Rider (Desmond-Sedgwick)	Serial	Nov. 1..
Robinson Crusoe	Hysterical hist.	Nov. 1..	1,000
Some Tomboy (Wiley)	Comedy	Nov. 1..	2,000
The Tornado (H. Peters)	Melodrama	Nov. 15..	6,375
Sweet Dreams	Century comedy	Nov. 15..	2,000
Antony and Cleopatra	Gysterical History	Nov. 15..	1,000
Speed, Boys (Trimble, Bobbles)	Century (kid)	Nov. 22..	2,000
Oh, Doctor (R. Denny)	Comedy	Nov. 29..	6,587
Omar Khayyan (Hysterical history)	Comedy	Nov. 29..	1,000
Double Cross (Sullivan)	Drama	Nov. 29..	2,000
Smouldering Fires (Frederick-LaPlante)	Drama	Dec. 13..	7,356
Hurricane Kid (Gibson)	Western	Jan. 3..	5,296
Secrets of the Night (Kirkwood-Bellamy)	Drama	Dec. 20..	6,138

(Continued from preceding page)

	Kind of Picture	Review.	Feet
Mad Whirl (May MacAvoy)	Comedy-dr.	Dec. 27..	6,184
Price of Pleasure (Valli-Kerry)	Drama
Saddle Hawk (Gibson)	Western dr.
Raffles (House Peters)	Drama
Eyes of Fools (Rubens-Marmont)	Society dr.	Jan. 24..	6,581
Fifth Avenue Models (Mary Philbin)	Drama		5,922
Up The Ladder (Valli)	Drama	Jan. 31..
Love Cargo (House Peters)	Drama
Let 'Er Back (Gibson)	Western	Jan. 3..	5,500
Dangerous Innocence (LaPlante-O'Brien)	Drama
Ridin' Thunder (Jack Hoxie)	Western
Man in Blue (Rawlinson-Bellamy)	Drama
Meddler (Desmond)	Drama
Taming the West (Gibson)	Western
Don Dare-Devil (Hoxie)	Western
Red Clay (Desmond)	Drama
Paul Revere	Hysterical histy.	Dec. 20..	1,000
Border Maid (Ed Cobb)	Drama	Dec. 20..	2,000
Family Row (Messinger)	Comedy	Dec. 20..	2,000
Present Arms (Wiley)	Comedy	Dec. 27..	2,000
Red Age (Sullivan)	Drama	Jan. 3..	2,000
Ponce de Leon	Hysterical history	Jan. 3..	1,000
Prehistoric Man	Hysterical history	Jan. 3..	1,000
Sign of the Cactus (Hoxie)	Western	Jan. 10..	4,938
Ridin' Pretty (Desmond-Forrest)	Western com.-dr.	Jan. 17..	4,812
Looking Down (Wiley)	Comedy	Jan. 24..	2,000
Aggravatin' Kid (Messinger)	Comedy	Jan. 31..	2,000
Pistol Point Proposal (Eddie Polo)	Western dr.	Jan. 31..	2,000
Whip Hand (Billy Sullivan)	Western dr.	Jan. 31..	2,000
Rembrandt	Hysterical histy.	Jan. 31..	1,000
Last Laugh (Emil Jannings)	Human drama	Feb. 7..	6,500
Fighting Ranger (Sedgwick-Daugherty)	Serial	Feb. 7..

VITAGRAPH

Between Friends (Tellegen-Nilsson)	Society dr.	Apr. 26..	6,936
Virtuous Liars (Allen-Powell)	Society dr.	Apr. 19..	5,650
One Law For The Woman (Landis)	Mining camp		6,000
Code of the Wilderness (Bowers-Calhoun)	Modern west.	July 12..	6,480
Behold This Woman (Rich)	Movie romance	Aug. 2..	6,425
Captain Blood (Star Cast)	Sabatini romance	Sep. 20..	10,680
Clean Heart or Cruelties of Life	Modern dr.	Sep. 27..	7,950
Greater Than Marriage (Tellegen-Daw)	Theatre dr.
Beloved Brnte (De La Motte)	Melodrama	Nov. 22..	6,719
Two Shall Be Born (Novak-Harlan)	Drama
Pampered Youth (Landis-Calhoun)	Drama
Redeeming Sin (Nazimova-Tellegen)	Apache dr.	Jan. 31..	6,227
Barree, Son of Kazan	Special
Fearbound (Daw-Welch)	Melodrama
Steele of Royal Mounted	Special
In the Garden of Charity	Special
Happy Warrior	Special
Alibi	Special
Road That Led Home	Special
Unknown Story	Special

WARNER BROTHERS

Conductor 1492 (Hines)	Comedy-drama	Feb. 23..	7,080
Daddies (Belasco)	Comedy-drama	Feb. 23..	7,228
George Washington, Jr. (Barry)	Comedy-drama	Mar. 22..	5,674
Beau Brummel (J. Barrymore)	Romantic drama	Apr. 12..	10,930
Broadway After Dark (Menjou)	Comedy-drama	May 31..	7,019
Babbitt (all-star)	Character drama	July 1..	7,900
Being Respectable (all-star)	Society drama	Aug. 16..	6,040
Three Women (all-star)	Society drama	Sep. 27..	8,200
How to Educate a Wife (star cast)	Society drama		6,000
Her Marriage Vow (all-star)	Society drama		7,100
Cornered (all-star)	Society drama		7,300
Lovers' Lane (all-star)	Character drama	Nov. 29..	5,100
Tenth Woman (all-star)	Society drama		6,250
Find Your Man (Rin-Tin-Tin)	Melodrama	Oct. 4..	7,300
Lover of Camille (all-star)	Romantic drama	Nov. 29..	7,180
This Woman (Rich)	Society drama	Nov. 1..	7,100
Dark Swan (Prevost-Blue-Chadwick)	Drama	Dec. 6..	6,800
Her Marriage Vow (Blue)	Family life dr.	Dec. 20..	7,190
Lighthouse by the Sea (Rin-Tin-Tin)	Melodrama	Jan. 10..	6,700
Narrow Street (D. Devore-Matt Moore)	Light comedy	Jan. 17..	6,700
Lost Lady (Irene Rich)	Social drama	Feb. 7..	6,700

MISCELLANEOUS

ARTCLASS PICTURES CORP.

Rough Ridin' (B. Roosevelt)	Thrill dr.	Apr. 26..	4,670
Rarin' to Go (Buffalo Bill, Jr.)	Thrill dr.	Aug. 2..	5,000
Battling Buddy (B. Roosevelt)	Thrill dr.	Sep. 13..	4,000
Biff Bang Buddy (B. Roosevelt)	Thrill dr.	Sep. 20..	4,500
Hutchison Series	Stunt dramas
Fast and Fearless (Buffalo Bill, Jr.)	Thrill dr.	Sep. 27..	4,500
Walloping Wallace (B. Roosevelt)	Thrill western	Oct. 11..	4,700
Hard Hittin' Hamilton (Buf. Bill, Jr.)	Thrill western	Oct. 18..	5,000
Rip Roarin' Bobert (B. Roosevelt)	Thrill dr.		4,600
Cyclone Buddy (B. Roosevelt)	Thrill dr.		4,650
Gold and Grit (B. Roosevelt)	Thrill dr.		4,650
Bringing Home the Bacon (Buffalo Bill)	Thrill dr.		4,650
After Six Days	Biblical spec.		10,000
Woman Who Believed (Ann Luther)			5,700
Deerslayer (J. W. Kerrigan)			5,000

BANNER PRODUCTIONS

Truth About Women (Hampton)	Society drama	Oct. 25..	5,600
Man Without a Heart (Harlan)	Society drama		6,000
Those Who Judge (P. R. Miller)	Society melo.		5,700
Daughters Who Pay (all-star)	Society drama		5,800
Empty Hearts (all-star)	Society drama		5,860

C. B. C.

Innocence (Nilsson)	Theatrical dr.	5,923
Discontented Husbands (J. Kirkwood)	Marriage dr.	5,421
Pal o' Mine (Rich)	Romance	6,070
Traffic in Hearts (R. Frazer)	Social uplift	5,549
Battling Fool (R. Fairbanks)	Prize fight	4,975
Foolish Virgin (E. Hammerstein)	Social drama	5,900

	Kind of Pictnre	Review.	Feet
Price She Paid (A. Rubens)	Marriage dr.		5,000
Fight for Honor (Fairbanks-Novak)	Railroad dr.		4,870
Midnight Express (Hammerstein)	Railroad melo.	Dec. 6..	5,500

C. C. BURR

Speed Spook (J. Hines)	Thrill drama	Aug. 30..	6,000
New School Teacher (Bennett)	Drama		5,900
Average Woman (Pauline Garon)	Drama	Feb. 9..	6,400
Lend Me Your Husband (Kenyon)	Drama		6,700
Youth for Sale (S. Holmquist)	Drama	Oct. 18..	6,500
The Early Bird (Hines)	Comedy	Dec. 27..	7,000
Cracker Jack (Johnny Hines)	Drama		6,500

CHADWICK PICTURES CORP.

Fire Patrol (all-star)	Melo. of Sea	May 24..	6,600
Meddling Women (L. Barrymore)	Dom. melo.	Oct. 18..	6,400
Painted Flapper (all-star)	Comedy-drama	Oct. 25..	5,600
I Am the Man (L. Barrymore)	Dom. melo.	Nov. 1..	7,000
Flattery (Bowers)	Political dr.	Nov. 8..	6,000
Tomboy (Devore-Rawlinson)	Melodramatic com.	Jan. 3..	6,000

J. J. FLEMING PROD.

Shackles of Fear (Ferguson)	Melodrama	5,000
Trail of Vengeance (Ferguson)	N. W. Police	5,000
Phantom Shadows (Ferguson)	Melodrama	5,000
Scarlet and Gold (Ferguson)	N. W. Police	5,000

INDEPENDENT PICTURES CORP.

Border Justice (Bill Cody)	Western dr.	Nov. 8..	5,452
Barriers of the Law (Desmond-Holmes)	Bootlegging dr.	Nov. 29..	4,900
Dangerous Pleasure
Bill Cody series of eight	Stunt dramas
A Desperate Adventure (F. Farnum)	Western dr.		4,200
Two-Fisted Tenderfoot (F. Farnum)	Western dr.		5,050
Baffled (F. Farnum)	Western dr.		4,940
Bandit Tamer (E. Farnum)	Comedy west.		5,240
Barriers of the Law (Desmond-Holmes)	Society dr.		4,500
Billy, The Kid (F. Farnum)	Western		4,790
Blood and Steel (Desmond-Holmes)	Society dr.		5,000
Calibre 45 (F. Farnum)	Western dr.		4,950
Courage (F. Farnum)	Western dr.		5,000
In Spider's Web (Alice Dean)	Melodrama		6,000
Moonshine (B Cody)	Western		4,900
Drug-Store Cowboy (F. Farnum)	Western com.-dr.	Feb. 7..	4,356

LUMAS FILM CORP.

Black Lightning (Thunder, the dog)	Dog dr.	Nov. 8..	5,500

RAYART

Midnight Secrets (Larkin)	Drama
Street of Tears (Santschi)	Drama
For Another Woman (Harlan)	Drama
Pell Street Mystery (Larkin)	Drama
Trail Dust (Dunbar)	Drama
Lightning Romance (Howes)	Drama
Battling Brewster (Farnum)	Drama
Easy Money (All-Star)	Drama
Butterfly Comedies (Gloria Joy)
Super Speed (Reed Howes)	Automobile com.-dr.	Feb. 7..	5,227

RED SEAL PICTURES CORP.

Marvels of Motion	Slow motion	Nov. 1..	650
Animated Hair Cartoons	Novelty	Nov. 1..	300
Vaudeville	Cartoon	Nov. 1..	1,000
Film Facts	Magazine	Nov. 1..	750
Peeps Into Puzzle-land	Novelty	Nov. 1..	750
Out of the Inkwell series	Cartoons
Vacation (Out of Inkwell)	Cartoon	Nov. 22..	1,000
Animated Hair Cartoons	Marcus cartoon	Nov. 22..	1,000
Should a Husband Tell	Gems of screen	Nov. 22..	1,000
Film Facts	Magazine	Nov. 22..	2,000
League of Nations (Out of Inkwell)	Cartoon	Nov. 29..	1,000
The Cure (Out of Inkwell)	Cartoon	Dec. 13..	1,000
Zoo's Who's Who	Gem of the screen	Dec. 27..	1,000
Film Facts	Magazine	Jan. 10..	1,000
Marvels of Motion (Issue B)	Magazine	Jan. 17..	1,000
Animated Hair Cartoons	Novelty	Jan. 24..	300
Cartoon Factory	Cartoon nov.	Jan. 24..	1,000
Mother Goose Land	Cartoon	Jan. 24..	1,000

RUSSELL PRODUCTIONS

Passing of Wolf MacLean (All-Star)	Western melo.	Nov. 29..	4,711
Courageous Coward (Jack Meehan)	Western	Dec. 6..	4,032

WM. STEINER PROD.

Payable on Demand (Maloney)	Western dr.		4,647
Lawless Men (N. Hart)	Western dr.		4,816
Black Gold (Morrison)	Western dr.		4,697
Poison (Hutchison)	Stunt dr.	Sep. 13..	5,000
Turned Up (Hutchison)	Stunt dr.	Sep. 27..	4,900
Riding Double (Maloney)	Western dr.		5,000
Tucker's Top Hand (N. Hart)	Western dr.		4,618
Rainbow Rangers (Morrison)	Western dr.		4,900
Perfect Alibi (Maloney)	Western dr.		5,100
Left Hand Brand (N. Hart)	Western dr.		4,804
Pot Luck Pards (Morrison)	Western dr.		4,977
Virtue's Revolt (Thornton)	Stage melodrama	Oct. 11..	5,275
On Probation (Edith Thornton)	Drama	Dec. 13..	5,000
Across the Dead Line	Western		5,000
Always Ridin' to Win	Western		5,000
Hidden Menace	Stunt dr.		5,000
Branded a Thief	Western		5,000
Verdict of the Desert	Western		4,745
Valley of Vanishing Men	Western		4,650

M. J. WINKLER

Alice Cans the Cannibals	Novelty com.	Jan. 3..	1,000

PROJECTION

EDITED BY F. H. RICHARDSON

Edward Schultz Dinner

Started first by the Loew men, a custom has established itself here in New York City of the projectionists of the large theatre circuits giving an annual dinner, or dinner and dance, to and in honor of their Supervisor of Projection. I have and am giving considerable space to these affairs, and last year was criticized by a few men of distant cities for so doing.

I have noa apology to offer, but an explanation seems to be in order, so here it is.

These affairs are of vast importance to you all, in that they typify, by the splendid manner in which the thing is done and the character of the men attendig them, the tremendous progress projection, the erstwhile despised thing, has made and is right now making. They show and prove to the thinking man that the projectionist is beginning to really take himself seriously, and that above all things is what is needed, because once he arrives at that stage he will discover that the industry will itself take him AND HIS PROFESSION SERIOUSLY, from which point it is but a few steps to very much "higher and better" things for projection and the projectionist.

The last affair is well described by quoting the front page of the very neatly gotten up menu. It says: "Beef Steak Dinner Tendered to Edward Schultz by the Projectionists of the Keith, Moss and Proctor Circuits, at Keen's Chop House, 107 West 44th Street, Saturday Evening, January 31, 1925."

The inside of the front page reads: Committee: Chairman John W. Henley, J. A. Harding, B. P. Berman, H. W. Mourie, N. A. Strauss and M. J. Warren. Toastmaster F. H. Richardson.

The dinner was itself excellent, and the affair characterized by the hale-fellow-well-met spirit that just simply stuck out all over everybody present. Music and "eats" were the main thing, though Toastmaster Richardson, by suggestion of the committee, made a short address, complimenting the guest of honor, Supervisor Schultz, on his record, and pointed out certain ways in which the functions of the office he administers might be broadened, to the benefit of all concerned.

After dinner the toastmaster introduced Joseph Basson, President L. U. 306, Motion Picture Projectionists of New York City, I. A. T. S. E. & M. P. M. O., Business Agent Alex. Polin, Brooklyn Business Agent James La Fante, Max Feinberg, Treasurer and Abe Horowitz, Secretary of L. U. 306, Joseph Honey, Chief and A. A. Whiteny Inspector of Department Water Supply, Gas and Electricity, City of New York, B. F. Green, Assistant Chief Examiner, whom many of the boys have, at one time or another, faced with more or less trepidation. E. M. Cannock, of the Precision Machine Company, brother of the late Frank Cannock, who was one of the pioneers in the field of projection, and who built the first United States made projector ever used in the famous old Eden Musee, where he was projectionist for several years, until he finally, in conjunction with E. S. Porter, invented the now famous Simplex, which was the first "pedestil type" projector. The pedestil feature brought forth much comment along about 1912 or thereabouts.

In addition the following were among those present: H. J. McKinnon, National Vaudeville Artists Club, A. Lang, Supervisor of Projection at the new and very beautiful Colony Theatre, the latest Broadway addition to the Moss chain of theatres, "Joe" Hornstine, General Manager Howel's Cinemaquipment Company, J. A. Kurlish, Simplex, P. A. McGuire, Powers Company, C. Fisbel, Gelatine Products, Frank Gardner, W. F. Fish and Company, M. Norden Sign Company, P. D. Reis, National Carbon Company, Edward Schultz, Jr., son of Edward Schultz, Jessie Hopkins, Past President American Projection Society, J. Soons, and P. Hoffman, of Hoffman and Soons and something like one hundred and fifty others.

During the evening Toastmaster Richardson presented to Edward Schultz, Guest of Honor, on behalf of the projectionists of the circuits and his business friends, a really superb Super-Heterodyne radio set. It had six tubes and everything. Gosh! That's the first time I've ever been jealous. Just what I wanted, and there I hadda hand it over to Schultz, and pretend I was actually tickled to do it. What I really wanted to do was sneak it out the back way and elope with it. But then, Schultz is a splendid, upstanding, four-square chap, and really I'm real glad his friends gave it to him. Wouldn't swipe it from him if I could, so that's that.

Schultz was genuinely surprised, and I liked he way he spoke. In effect he said: "Boys this really too much. I expected it was merely to be a dinner, with friends around me. I don't want you to strain your pocket books that way for me. I want your cooperation and your friendship. That is quite enough."

And, gentlemen, if you ask me, there spoke the honest, earnest MAN. "I want your cooperation and friendship!" In other words, be my real friends and do your best to forward our work. That sounds mighty good, because it was unquestionably purely an extempore and honest statement, spoken from the heart. My hand, Brother Schultz. The profession needs men looking to the forwarding of the work of projection. The rest will follow in due course.

Bluebook School

Question No. 216—Tell us of what film consists and how it is manufactured.

Question No. 217—What is the standard thickness of film? Give the standard dimensions of sprocket holes, as adopted by the Society of Motion Picture Engineers—which same are the dimensions given in the Bluebook.

Question No. 218—Name as many as you can of the various causes of damage to sprocket holes.

Question No. 219—Name as many as you can of the principal causes of damage to the film itself—to the film stock as differentiated from the sprocket holes.

Question No. 220—Exactly what is the thing we call "rain" in film?

Much Yet to Learn

Otis Kevin, Projectionist Liberty Theatre, Clearfield, Pa., orders a Bluebook and says:

Have been reading our department for some time. It has taught me many things, but still have much to learn. Started in 1908 and have learned something every day. The Bluebook School surely is GREAT. Have not answered any of the questions yet, but as soon as I receive my Bluebook and study a while I will try my luck.

I am inclosing a sample of some of the films I get here. This is one which came recently, near the end of a reel.

Brother Kevin, it isn't so much what a man actually knows which marks him as a real projectionist as it is his willingness to work and learn, and his desire to give the very best that in him lies. The man who studies and expends real effort to advance, will become a real projectionist, even though he may not actually be one now. I honor the man who, even though he knows himself lacking, adopts the title propectionist, and then SETS OUT TO LIVE UP TO IT.

It is the self satisfied, "I-know-it-all" BOOB who never gets beyond mediocracy. He may be better than you right now, but wait a bit and you will be able to look back down upon him, because he lacks ambition and energy ever to be anything but what he usually insists he is—a machine attendant. "Moving Picture Machine Operator," really means "Moving Picture Machine Attendant." Both terms stand for exactly the same thing. Even the most hard boiled nonprogressive will hardly attempt to deny that.

As to the film sample, it is a strip of film one foot long, in which there are three badly buckled splices. The buckling is mostly caused by too much cement, plus possibly a wrongly composed cement. Two of the splices were not scraped at all. The other is a narrow, very strong splice, but the sprocket holes on one side are badly mismatched.

It evidently is where the trailer is joined on, and the trailer stock is very thin. There is cement smeared on about half an inch of it, which, due to the paper-like thickness of the film, caused it to buckle very badly.

Certainly exchanges which send out film in such wretched condition are a detriment to the industry. They sell "service" to a theatre, and collect for something they do not supply, because the JUNK received IS just junk until such time as the projectionist DONATES the service necessary to put it into useable condition.

Bluebook School—Answers 186 to 190

Question No. 186—Name the advantages of metallic surface screens.

Daniel Constantino, Easton, Pa.; Harry Dobson, Toronto, Ont. (You see, my threat of the woodshed scared him; also Bennewitz woke up—though not in time for this series of questions); Allie Baron, Lodi, Cal.; Harold C. Hurlbutt, Oshkosh, Wis.; P. E. Thomas, Creston, Ia.; J. W. Rainwater, Albany, Ala.; Ralph W. Boone, White Pidgeon, Mich.; William A. Burnett, Newton, Ia., and C. H. Hanover, Burlington, Ia., all did well on this question.

I shall give you the ideas of four men—Constantino, Hanover, Thomas and Baron.

Constantino says:

The advantage of the metallic surface screen lies in the fact that, within the limits of certain angles the projectionist is able to secure a very high degree of screen brilliancy at a considerably less expenditure of electric energy than would be possible with a screen having more perfect diffusing power. This relatively high brilliancy, however, only extends over a field included in an angle of from 20 to 30 degrees on either side of the optical axis of projection.

Hanover says:

Due to the more direct reflecting powers of the metallic surface, a higher degree of brilliancy is obtained within certain angles with relation to the optical axis of projection as compared with surfaces having a higher power of diffusion.

The light gained at the central zones, however, is largely at the expense of the viewing zones (viewing zones as relates to the seating area of the auditorium) lying outside the favored angles, which brings into the matter the item of "fade-away," which was for so long a time a mystery to all of us.

Brother Thomas agrees closely with the foregoing, but adds this important item:

It is by reflection of the light from the screen surface that the screen image is made visible, and within certain limits (the limits beyond which glare is set up) the more brilliant the light the more visible will be the image, and all its various objects therein. It is because of this additional brilliancy that the metallic surface may make visible many of the finer shades of photography which would be lost to the eye with a less brilliant screen image.

?????

Thomas then continues with something I pass along for your consideration and discussion. If it be true, then it is a new one to this particular editor. He says:

A screen having greater powers of diffusion will produce a brilliant screen image at a greater expenditure of current, but (and now comes the "but."—Ed.) it has not as great a power to reflect or bring out the finer details contained in the shadows and halftones of the images.

At the risk of again having a New Hampshire snowball heaved in my general direction, I will again say: Mebby so, brother. Mebby. As I understand it, you mean when the screen brilliancy is equal in both cases.

Brother Baron replies as follows, and after reading it over I'm wondering why in Sam Hill he doesn't come across with answers to all the questions:

The metallic surface screen and the results depend upon the character of the surface. Evidences that the peaks and depressions on many metallic surface screens are smaller than on a white wall or sheet may be had by viewing the surface with a microscope. When this is the fact, the effect is visible to the eye by viewing the screen from an angle and noticing the difference in the amount of light reflected from the side and amount reflected straight back. You will usually find that away up to one side of the "picture light" becomes weaker, but as you go in front of the screen, at some distance away, it becomes brighter. For a wide house, a special surface should be made which will distribute light at rather a wide angle, while for a narrow house the highest efficiency is produced by a brilliant surface which concentrates the light to a narrow viewing angle.

The reflection of light by the screen is just as difficult and important an optical problem as is the projection of the picture itself. Even a lens that projects a 14-foot picture at a certain distance does not and cannot project an 18-foot picture at the same distance. A screen which reflects brillianly at a narrow angle cannot at the same time reflect brilliantly at a wide angle. The advantage of a metallic surface screen lies in the fact that within certain angles the projectionist is able to get a very high degree of brilliancy at a considerably less amount of light and of the electric energy than is possible with a more perfect diffusing surface. This relatively high brilliancy usually only extends over an angle of 20 to 30 degrees. Metallic screens have a tendency to discoloration of the surface in damp climates. The purchaser, if he secures a proper written guarantee against such fault, need not worry. According to the Bluebook of Projection, the purchaser, by examining table 12 to 16 may know precisely what effect he will get from any given type of screen. I do not think it is necessary to go into details of every angle of the question, for the simple reason that anyone connected with motion picture projection should own the Bluebook of Projection.

Question No. 187—What type of metallic surface screen would you recommend for a long, narrow auditorium?

Dobson, Constantino, Hurlbutt, Rainwater, Burnett, Thomas, Boone, Hanover and John Griffith, Ansonia, Conn., did well on this one.

I shall print Thomas' observations, because he gives me a deserved calling down for not defining exactly what the question means by "narrow auditorium." Then I shall set forth Griffiths' discussion of all questions from 187 to 190, inclusive.

Thomas says:

To a certain extent the characteristics of the metallic surface screen to be selected would depend upon the exact width of the auditorium, and the term "narrow auditorium" is not sufficiently definite. There are those who would regard an auditorium fifty feet wide as coming well within the meaning of "narrow."

My recommendation for a "long narrow auditorium" would be a surface giving the highest reflection efficiency within the maximum viewing angle of the said auditorium, modified, of course, by its other essential qualities.

Commercial screens having metallic surfaces vary considerably in many respects. Consulting table No. 15, page 265 of the Bluebook, class A surfaces, or possibly table 16, page 266, class B surfaces, it will be possible to select the best screen for the particular installation.

Excellent, Friend Thomas. You are quite correct. What I had in mind was an auditorium about 20 to 25 feet wide, by a hundred or more feet deep, and I should have said so.

Griffith says:

This is intended to be a reply to questions 187, 188, 189 and 190, grouped. Generally speaking, there are two types of screen surfaces, viz: (A) a high reflecting type, which always has a comparatively narrow angle of reflection. This type is represented by the Satin Finish Mirror screen at one extreme. (B) A comparatively low reflecting type, having a wide angle of diffusion. This screen is represented by zinc or white lead paint as an extreme. (Think you are in error there, John. Believe cloth or plaster would be the extreme.—Ed.)

The character of the diffusion and reflective powers of the two types may be examined by glancing at the accompanying diagram, and its accompanying data. Standing in the theatre in a position perpendicular, sidewise, to the surface of the screen (A in diagram) the viewing angle will be 0 degrees, and the reflective power of the satin finish mirror screen will be seven times greater than it would be from a painted surface, hence the image would appear seven times as bright from the mirror screen as from the painted one.

Changing Position

If we now change our position to B, which is five degrees from 0 angle, we shall find the mirror screen to be only six times as bright as a painted surface viewed from the same angle. Again changing our position to C, which is 15 degrees away from the 0 angle, or line perpendicular to the screen surface, we shall then find the mirror surface to be only two times as bright as the painted surface.

At position D, which is 25 degrees from line A, we shall find the mirror and the painted surfaces to be of equal brightness, so that only those seated within the angles represented by lines D on either side of line A will receive any advantage from the installation of a mirror screen with a satin finish, as compared to a painted surface.

If we take any position beyond line D we shall find that the painted surface is actually brighter than the mirror surface, until at the 60-degree angle the difference in favor of the painted surface would be very great indeed.

An Assumption

Let us assume there to be an aisle running parallel to the center line, the back end of which has a viewing angle of fifteen degrees. If we start at the back end and walk down this aisle we shall gradually increase the viewing angle, and the brightness of the screen surface will become less and less as we advance. If we retrace our steps we shall find the surface to grow brighter and brighter, because of the fact that as we walk backward we reduce the viewing angle. We thus see that the inverse square law is not operative with relation to screen reflection, unless the reflection be equal and even in all directions.

With the painted screen, or some other type of low reflection-high diffusion screen surface, the inverse square law is more or less operative, and the picture will not appear as bright from the rear of the auditorium as from further down front. (I would put it that the inverse square law is very much less operative in the first instance than in the second, but it is operative in different degrees in both cases. In fact I am sure that is what John really meant to say.—Ed.)

Metallic Surface a Compromise

The metallic surface screen surface is a compromise between the satin finish mirror and the paint, kalsomine or cloth screen. It may successfully be used in a long, narrow theatre, whereas the sort of screen of which the painted surface is typical is suitable for use in the wide, shallow theatre, the exact degree of compromise as between the two extremes being dependent upon the conditions in each individual case.

The selection of the right screen surface for his theatre is not the least of the problems which confront the projectionist who hopes to secure maximum results. The man who has only a limited amount of current available, as is the case in many small cities and villages, and with many city men whose managers demand an unreasonable limit on current for projection, has to solve his problem from an entirely different standpoint than does the man who has merely to consider the excellence in projection.

Governing Circumstances

With a low limit placed on the amount of current which may be used, the man is practically compelled to use a screen with high reflective power if he is to make any kind of a decent showing at the rear of the house. This he must do, even though the picture be poor from the sides.

But for the man who has plenty of light, and where the current bill is but one small item in the total expense account of the theatre, the low-power-reflection, high-power-diffusion screen surface presents greater opportunities for high grade projection.

The faults inherent in the mirror surface are also present in the metallic surface screen, though in lesser degree. The fade-away is, of course, the worst element of fault, but even the painted surface has ten per cent fade-away at 60 degrees viewing angle. As a general proposition we may figure that the higher the reflective power the greater the fade-away.

The high reflecting type of surface should never be used where the projection angle is heavy, especially if there be a balcony. If this is done, then there will be a great deal of the light reflected down into the orchestra pit, and thus lost, unless, of course, the screen be angled to square with the light beam.

Question No. 188—Would you recommend any type of metallic surface screen for a wide, shallow auditorium? Give reasons for your answer.

Everyone named agreed that they would not, giving as their reason the fact that metallic surfaces have not sufficient power of diffusion. Some did not put it exactly that way, but evidently that was what they meant, and that is, of course, the correct reason why such a screen would be unsuitable for a wide, shallow theatre. Too much fade-away.

Question No. 189—Name the maximum viewing angle for which you consider a metallic surface screen efficient.

Every one agrees on not above 30, and some even qualify their answers by saying twenty to thirty, or twenty-five to thirty.

Hanover says:

It would depend somewhat upon the screen, but I think we may safely say that no metallic surface screen is efficient beyond a 30-degree viewing angle, therefore no such surface should be used in any theatre where any proportion of the seats fall outside that angle, except that where just a few of the front side seats lie outside, and the light available for projection is limited for any one of several possible reasons, it might be better to let these few seats suffer, for the sake of better service for the far greater number within the angle and further back.

Not at all a bad suggestion. There is reason and common sense in everything, and no absolutely hard and fast rules may be laid down which must never, under any circumstances, be in any degree violated.

FIRST UNDERSTAND THE UNDERLYING PRINCIPLES, WHICH THIS "SCHOOL" IS TRYING TO TEACH YOU, AND THEN APPLY PLAIN COMMON SENSE IN THE WAY OF SUCH MODIFICATION FROM THE FIXED RULE AS THE CONDITIONS SEEM TO DEMAND.

Question No. 190—Make an intelligent comparison of the metallic surface screen, and the type of screen represented by paint, kalsomine, cloth, etc.

Hanover, Dobson, Thomas, Griffith and Burnett are, I think, the only ones who did very well on this one, and Griffith's answer has already appeared as a part of the answer to another question.

Hanover says:

To do what this question really calls for would require much space. I shall, however, try to be brief. First, the matter of comparative reflection and diffusion powers have been thoroughly taken care of in the replies to previous questions, hence need not be considered here, except to repeat that paint, kalsomine and cloth have relatively low power of reflection but high powers of diffusion, hence are suited for use where the viewing angle will exceed a maximum of perhaps thirty degrees—where the auditorium is quite wide, and perhaps not very deep. On the other hand the metallic surface screen characteristics are exactly the opposite, in greater or less degree, hence they are suited only for use in a narrow auditorium, where the viewing angle is within a maximum of 30 degrees.

The metallic surface screen may and usually does impart a somewhat harsh, metallic color to the light, which is more or less objectionable according to its amount and tone. This is not true of paint, kalsomine or cloth. The metallic screen surface is, or should be more durable than the kalsomine, cloth or paint, but on the other hand it is much more costly to refinish.

The metallic surface screen as a whole is very much more costly than is the paint, kalsomine or cloth. When the metallic surface discolors, or dulls, the manager usually is not as quick to have it refinished as he is if the surface be paint, cloth or kalsomine, because he must take it down, send it to the factory and pay a very substantial bill, all of which is not the case with either of the three other surfaces named. And while the discolored or dulled surface remains the picture suffers.

Sixteen hundred opera chairs made to sell at $4.00. Company being bankrupt will offer them arranged to fit at $2.75. Also booth asbestos curtain and about 500 yards of government standard battleship linoleum, and complete set of stage scenery and fittings. Get our price on this and save half.

Redington & Co., Scranton, Pa.

"You want Phelco!"

Smooth and quiet burning
Bright light
Steady arc
Slow burning rate
Long Condenser life

Charles W. Phellis & Co.
Incorporated
130 West 42nd Street New York
For Canada: Keystone Trading Co., Ltd., 10 Ste. Sophie Lane, Montreal

YOUR MONEY, TIME AND EFFORTS are registered on a narrow strip of negative. Unless it is expertly developed and printed you suffer

A COMPLETE LOSS

WHY TAKE THIS RISK?

Ask some of the

Free Lance Cameramen

about the quality of our laboratory work and our efficient twenty-four hour service.

FILMLAB Inc.

203 WEST 40TH STREET
NEW YORK CITY
Phone—Penn. 2373

LUXALBA CONDENSERS
Made from PYREX GLASS
are Guaranteed Against Breakage
Supplied in 4½-in. diameter
6½-in., 7½-in., 8½-in. focal lengths
$6.00 Each
Recommended by F. H. Richardson
THE LUXALBA COMPANY
L. W. Atwater, Sole Agent
111 West 42nd Street, New York

Film Damage?

What's the Real Cause?

The photographs used with this series of articles were made in the laboratories of the Famous Players-Lasky laboratories, under the supervision of Earl K. Dennison. Captions printed under each photograph are the comments Mr. Dennison made on the same.

So very much has been said in this department concerning the outrage of punch mark, scratch mark or sticker change-over marks, that it seems hardly necessary to pursue the subject further here. You all, INCLUDING THE MEN WHO DO IT, very well know that punching holes in the film, scraping off patches of the emulsion or affixing "stickers" constitutes an OUTRAGE against every theatre which must use those films thereafter, against every projectionist who must depend upon mechanical perfection in the films to enable him to place a creditable performance berore his audiences, and against the exchange which across the films.

You all very well know there is nothing even faintly resembling right about deliberately damaging the films intrusted to your care. The "man" (?) who does it knows all this just as well as does any one else, but he is just too cussed, infernally lazy to make a cue sheet or apply some other non-injurious change over signal, and thus do his work right.

Harsh words? Yes, BUT punching, scratching and otherwise abusing the films CALLS FOR HARSH WORDS. The guilty parties would probably better understand and appreciate the application of a good, stout hickory baseball bat, connected with their domes at the end of a wide, sweeping swing.

Plate 18

Mr. Dennison says: "These punch marks are made everywhere, and are used for change-over signals at the end of each reel. There is absolutely no legitimate excuse for this practice, and they should be left in the film, as the next machine attendant (operator) using them will usually make fresh ones, if they be cut out."

With this I am unable to at all agree. Neither Mr. Dennison, the Famous Players-Lasky Company or any one else has the right to ask a real projectionist, or even a good machine attendant (operator), to project such things to the screen. If cutting them out results in film wastage—which it certainly will, and rapidly, too, in some sections,—the film exchange has the remedy in its own hands, if it cares to apply it. If it does not care to apply it, then let the exchange replace the film eliminated through cutting out the punch marks, etc.

It must be remembered that the exchange comes to us with none too clean hands in this matter.

Plate 19

Mr. Dennison says: "Change Over Signals: Sometimes paper is pasted on the films for change-over signals.

As this department has many times pointed out, IF THE EXCHANGES OF ANY GIVEN SECTION WILL, AS A UNIT, ADOPT THE PLAN OF THOROUGHLY INSPECTING FILM, MAKNG EXACT RECORD OF ALL UNUSUAL DAMAGE THERETO, SUCH AS CHANGE OVER PUNCH MARKS, ETC.? AND REPORT THE DAMAGED FILM TO THE THEATRE

(Continued on page 736)

PLATE No. 18

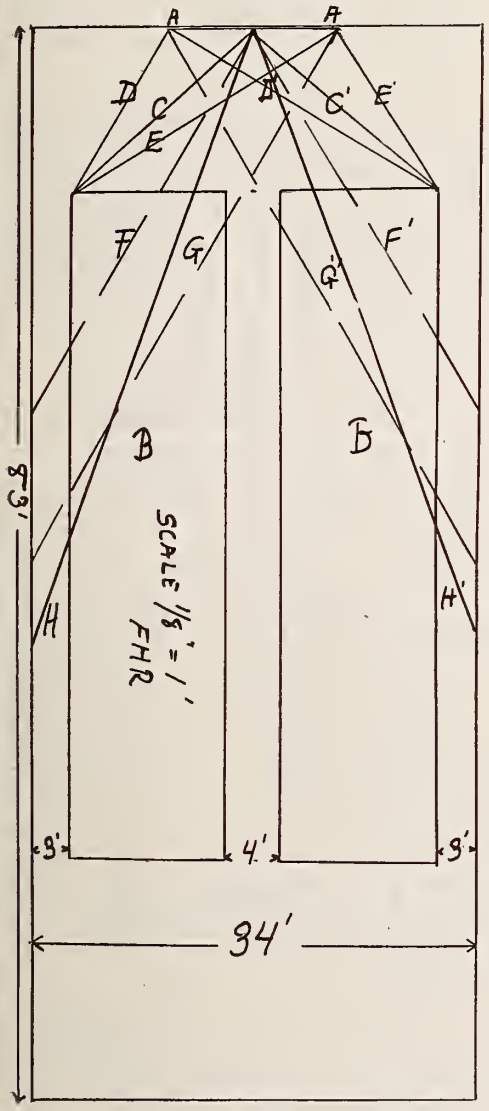
These punch marks are made by projectionists everywhere and are used for change over signals at the end of each reel. There is absolutely no excuse for this practice, and they should be left in the film as the next projectionist using the print usually makes fresh marks.

PLATE No. 19

Sometimes paper is pasted on the film for change over signals.

Screen Surface

Recently Vincent M. Tafe, Projectionist Tate Theatre, Mildred, Pa., inquired about the feasibility of silvering their kalsomined screen. I asked for certain dimensions of the theatre, after advising him not to attempt to silver the screen, telling him I would then advise as to just what would be best for the theatre in the way of a screen surface. The dimensions are now in hand. The theatre is 83 feet long. It is twelve feet from screen to first row of seats and 63 feet screen to rear row. After I had made the drawing I discovered that I had the seating wrong, in that there are two aisles. There are four seats next the wall on either side, then an aisle and a center bank of seats. This makes the situation somewhat worse than indicated in drawing, as to the front side seats.



First of all, your front row of seats is too close to the screen. The total viewing angle from the center front seat is about 56 degrees. There seems to be a lot of vacant space at the rear end. Why not fill it with seats? Probably you use it for "standees" on busy nights, but with more space in front the condition would be much better, though at that I must admit that here is a goodly percentage of "not wits" who don't seem to have intelligence enough to understand that "right up against the screen" is the very worst possible place in a motion picture theatre. They sprint right down into the very poorest seats in the entire theatre (the front row) even when the house is empty. We ought really to protect them against themselves, but it is asking considerable of an exhibitor with limited standing space, so I dunno.

Examining the drawing, you will see that the various lines are marked with letters. A A^1 is the 13 foot-wide screen. Lines C C^1 show the diffusion angle necessary to cover the front rows of seats from a point in the center of the screen. It is about a 50 degree angle, and as your seats really are, the angle is nearer 55 degrees.

The maximum angle of efficiency of a metallic surface screen is, as you may see by examining tables 12 to 17 of the Blue-book, if you have one, 20 degrees (table 14), so of course a metallic surface screen would give you a terrific fade-away for your front, side seats. But as a matter of fact the thing is much worse than that indicates, because line E shows what a terrific angle the front side seat has to the right hand edge of the picture, while line E^1 shows that the right hand front seat would have the same awful angle to the left hand side seat.

Lines D and D^1 indicate the same condition for the right hand front seats with relation to the left hand edge of the picture.

The 30 Degree Angle

Broken lines F and F^1 show the relation of a 30 degree angle from center of screen to seats, and broken lines G and G^1 show the relation of the 30-degree angle with edge of screen to seats. You will thus see that any screen surface which has not diffusion power enough to cover at least a 30-degree angle would be totally unsuited for use in your theatre, and for really good service you must have a screen with a fifty degree diffusion angle.

The heavy solid lines H and H^1 indicate the 20 degree angle from a point in center of the screen. With a 20 degree surface the situation would really not be as good as this angle indicates, because, as you will see, the right and left sides of the screen would not be so well situated with relation to the seats.

This is my first trial in the matter of explaining this matter in detail and perhaps I've not made it as clear as I might. I hope, however, you will be able to follow it at least fairly well.

The sum-up of it all is that, while a metallic surface screen would give a better result—more brilliant light—for the seats within lines H and H^1, still a very considerable number of seats would be outside these lines, and from them the results would be "not so good."

Painted Surface Best

In my opinion you can get as brilliant a picture as you really need with a good painted surface, besides a more pleasing general effect, and your diffusive angle will then cover all seats, without any appreciable fade-away at all. I would therefore advise you to proceed as follows:

Over the sheet metal surface stretch unbleached bed sheet muslin, which your merchant can secure for you wide enough to cover the picture up and down, without seam, I think. Stretch the cloth tightly and tack it firmly. Then size it with a fairly strong glue size—two coats. Allow each coat to dry thoroughly. Then prime with one coat of half zinc white and half high grade white lead, mixed with two thirds turpentine and one third boiled linseed oil. Add

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISEMENTS
Help and Situations Wanted Only

3c per word per insertion
Minimum charge 60c
Terms, Strictly Cash with Order

Copy must reach us by Tuesday noon to insure publication in that week's issue.

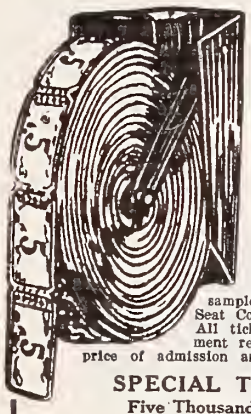
SITUATIONS WANTED

MANAGER—Projectionist desires permanent connection with first-class house. Ten years' active work as projectionist, manager, assistant manager and chief projectionist large chain of theatres. Mechanic and electrician. Go anywhere. References. Married. Box 360, Moving Picture World, New York City.

PROJECTIONIST DESIRES POSITION WITH FIRST-CLASS THEATRE, EIGHT YEARS' EXPERIENCE. REFERENCES AS TO CHARACTER AND ABILITY. L. R. ANGELL, BOX 180, PALESTINE, TEXAS.

CONCERT THEATRE ORGANIST—Now playing Robert Morton, desiring to make change, would like to hear from theatre managers desiring the services of a modern picture performer of the highest calibre. Excellent references furnished upon request. Nothing considered after March 1st. Address Organist, 442 H. Street, N. W. Washington, D. C.

WELDED WIRE REELS
For Sale by
Howells Cine Equipment Co.,
740 7th Ave., New York



SPECIAL ROLL TICKETS

Your own special Ticket, any colors, accurately numbered; every roll guaranteed. Coupon Tickets for Prize Drawings; 5,000 for $7.00. Prompt shipments. Cash with the order. Get the samples. Send diagram for Reserved Seat Coupon Tickets, serial or dated. All tickets must conform to Government regulation and bear established price of admission and tax paid.

SPECIAL TICKET PRICES

Five Thousand	$3.50
Ten Thousand	6.00
Fifteen Thousand	7.00
Twenty-five Thousand	9.00
Fifty Thousand	12.50
One Hundred Thousand	18.00

National Ticket Co. Shamokin, Pa.

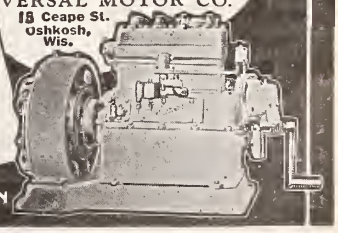
Universal MOTOR CO.
2 K.W. to 25 K.W. Four Cylinder
ELECTRIC PLANTS
mean that no small town need be without its "movie". No theatre, already established, need suffer the handicap of consistently unreliable current. No city playhouse need face the terrific loss that goes with even a single darkhouse. Traveling exhibitors can now produce the finest pictures—clear and flickerless. More "Universals" are used for permanent or emergency exhibiting purposes than any other make. No other so quiet, compact, simple or sturdy.
UNIVERSAL MOTOR CO.
18 Ceape St.
Oshkosh, Wis.
Kindly state your problem fully when writing for FREE Catalog


ILLUSTRATION SHOWS 4 K.W.

sufficient prussian or ultamarine blue to give the paint a rather decided blue tint when in the pot.

Let this dry thoroughly, and then coat with zinc white, mixed with turpentine and just a little boiled oil—just enough to act as a binder—maybe one pint of oil to three of turps. Add just a little blue, but not much. Use one or two coats of this, as may seem necessary.

Of course you could put this directly on the metal, but cloth is better, because when it becomes necessary to remove and replace the surface, as it will in time, you can just strip off the cloth. Then, too, the metal surface seldom is smooth enough to look well.

Should such a process interfere too much with the show, you could very easily make a frame of 2 x 4 or 2 x 6 timbers well braced, stretch the cloth on it, size it and paint it, and then place the frame over the old screen.

Such a surface will give you much better reflection power than the kalsomine. It may be recoated at least two or three times before it will need replacing. BUT if you use a seam in the surface, have it made very carefully.

As to Flicker

C. A. Anglemier, Projectionist "Y" Theatre, Nazareth, Pa., says:

Regarding the communication of C. L. Cleveland, Projectionist Star Theatre, Davenport, Iowa, published in January 17 issue, in which he says that he has flicker tendency, using A. C. at the arc. He said he thought it was the rotating shutter of the projector synchronizing with the alternations.

I have the same trouble he describes. I get more flicker when projection speed is increased. Everything seems to be O. K. with the projector, so far as its gears are concerned, and I have no travel ghost. Even titles show not the slightest tendency to travel ghost.

It does not seem possible that the shutter master blade is synchronizing with the dead periods of the crater, but that appears to be the only explanation. Could it be possible that the cycle would vary so that the shutter would synchronize at certain speeds of projection? It has always been said that A. C. at the arc is accompanied by flicker to a certain extent, and I suppose that will always be true.

Must Have Description

Before I say much more on this matter I want a minute description of this thing you are calling "flicker." Synchronization of dead periods and the rotating shutter blades do NOT cause flicker. It just simply diminishes the screen illumination very greatly, BUT since it is very highly improbable that the synchronization would remain exactly in time for more than a second or two, the effect is a dimming and brightening of the light, which may or may not occur constantly and frequently at whatever speed of projection synchronization occurs—the projection speed at which it occurs will depend upon the cycle frequency, and cycle frequency is not necessarily exactly constant. Any slight variation in generator armature speed changes the cycle frequency, and I believe armature speed is subject to pretty fairly constant slight changes.

Theoretically there is constant flicker in an A. C. arc. In practise, however, there is no such thing with 60 cycle current, because while it really is present, it is so very rapid that it is not perceptible to the human eye. Theoretically, and I suppose in fact, there is flicker in every incandescent lamp operating on A. C. Certainly there must be, considerable eye. Due to the relatively high resistance of the incandescent filament the flicker tendency might be ironed out to some extent, as compared to the arc, but all the same the human eye is totally unable, or so I believe, to discern action which occurs at the rate of 120 per second, as do 60 cycle alternations.

This matter will receive no more attention until such time as some one sends in a very careful, detailed description of the thing you are calling "flicker." I don't know what you really have got, but don't believe it is flicker. I think it must certainly be synchronization between shutter blades and dead periods of arc.

Outraged Film

C. V. Hile, Projectionist Majestic Theatre, Akron, Ohio, says:

Have been an interested reader of your instructive department (OUR, not "your"—I am merely the editor of OUR department.—F. H. R.) for quite some while, and for the first time take the liberty of asking questions.

I have noticed that you criticize "Operators" for punching and scratching change-over marks in film. I am NOT defending such practices, because we (my buddy and I) have quite sufficient trouble cutting these marks out, and preparing cue sheets.

Concerning this matter, however, I inclose several (19 of them) clippings of punch marks put in the films by the exchange. THESE WERE ALL TAKEN FROM ONE FEATURE. DON'T YOU REALLY THINK THIS IS A VERY POOR EXAMPLE FOR AN EXCHANGE TO SET FOR PROJECTIONISTS AND OPERATORS—particularly a man who is just beginning and has plenty to learn, without having cue sheets added to his troubles?

It is my opinion that it is the beginner who does the most of the mutilation, and not the projectionist. WHY NOT CRITICIZE THE FILM EXCHANGES A BIT FOR THEIR EFFORTS TO "DECORATE" THE FILMS WITH PUNCH MARKS, WITH ABOUT SEVENTY FIVE (75) HOLES PER EACH "DECORATION"—and 19 decorations to the one feature?

Second Question

And now a second question. Is there really any good reason why films might not be sent out on 2,000 foot reels, instead of on the smaller ones? The only answer we ever had to this question is that the cost of the new reels would be too high, and a number of the smaller theatres do not have projectors with magazines large enough to accommodate 2,000-foot-reels.

As to the reel cost, I wonder, if they ever figured the saving there would be in film replacements? By this I mean the saving in the inevitable wasteage which occurs at the end of every reel, which would then only occur, in effect, on every alternate reel. Then too, there would be a saving of the cost of trailers and end titles, which would be reduced by one half; also any punching, scratching, etc., which occurs would of course be reduced by one half. Hope all this does not bore you.

Nothing Helpful Bores

Nothing bores me which is intended to be helpful to the profession, Brother Hile. You failed to mention the fact that while the 2,000 foot reels would cost more, there would be only half as many of them.

You certainly have not read the department very regularly, or else not very long, for I've roasted exchanges many, many times for outraging their own films in the same manner they raise so much lleh about when the machine operators (I insist that no Projectionist does such a thing—for if he does he then and there automatically ceases to have the right to call himself by that title) do exactly the same thing. In the nineteen exchange punch "decorations" clipped from ONE FEATURE, there is a total of about 1,500 punch holes—and the exchange has the GAUL to kick about from one to ten put in by the machine operator.

Well, the operator is in mighty poor business when he imitates the exchange in such a thing as this, even thus feebly. Because an exchange outrages the films, the theatre, the projectionist and machine operator by punching fifteen hundred holes in one feature, is absolutely no excuse for the men putting in even one hole, to say nothing of eight or ten.

As To Reels

As to the reels—well, I believe the sending out of film on 2,000 foot reels will come in time, but perhaps not quite yet. It is true that not all theatres could use them; also it is true that the rough handling received in shipment, is a thing to be considered when we propose shipping on 2,000 foot reels. That last is, however, not by any manner of means an unsurmountable objection. It would merely require more careful packing, and perhaps a somewhat more substantial reel. My own view is that that end of it will be solved by substantial shipping cases having separate compartments for each reel. Not a necessarily very costly or a very heavy thing to make, if gone about intelligently.

I believe it is time the exchange gave the matter very serious consideration. Modern practice calls for the use of 2,000 foot reels in projection, and it is a bit silly to double up and "undouble up" the films at every theatre. Don't you think so?

Film Damage?

(Continued from Page 734)

MANAGEMENT, ACCOMPANIED BY A BILL THEREFORE, THE PRACTICE WOULD STOP, AND STOP REAL PRONTO. The projectionist does, and the machine attendant (operator) CAN get along without punching, or otherwise ruining the film, IF HE WANTS TO. But that is the EASY way, and so long as Mr. Lazyman, Don't Care Adam, is allowed to get away with it, having no pride in his profession—well, he probably will continue to do it. In fact to this type of man projection is NOT a profession. It is not even a trade. It is merely a thing to get a living at with the least possible effort. So to screen results—oh, so long as the boss (who is always about on a par with him, else he would not tolerate such crudities as punch marks, scratch marks etcetra on his screen) don't kick, he should worry. He has NO pride in his work. His only fear is getting fired, and his only concern is to "get by."

Harsh words. Yes, but VERY mild compared with what I feel like saying when I look at some of the "change-over signals" submitted to me by projectionists who have clipped them from supposed-to-be inspected films received from an exchange.

Get Your Copy of RICHARDSON'S
BLUEBOOK OF PROJECTION
NOW!
Don't Hesitate
Edition Is Selling Rapidly.
Postage Prepaid
Price $6.00

Chicago Wakes Up

The Chicago men, I have been informed, have, through Local Union 110, Chicago Motion Picture Projectionists I. A. T. S. E. & M. P. M. O., won a 7½ per cent. advance on their already excellent scale.

But that fact is of very minor importance to another piece of information sent me, in the form of a newspaper clipping, from Manchester, New Hampshire. This clipping is about the most crude bit of wording I have yet seen mis-applied to the profession of motion picture projection, and the teaching of projection problems by a Chief Cinematographer of a news bureau is almost absurd enough to be funny, still there is nothing at all amusing about it at all, if it is true, because it tells us that even the great and powerful local union No. 110 has at last begun to blink its eyes, and is waking up to the desirability and NECESSITY of learning something besides the mere operation of a mechanism.

Have Roasted 110

I have myself roasted local union 110 many times in the past. I have printed a few letters, and have suppressed hundreds upon hundreds of others roasting projection in Chicago. IN ALL THIS THERE HAS NOT BEEN ONE PARTICLE OF MALICE OR ANIMOSITY. I have simply felt very badly that the organization of the second city in size in this whole land should refuse, absolutely and unequivocally, to have anything whatsoever to do with the work I have been trying to carry forward—the work of education in projection. This was the more deplorable because of the fact that conditions in Chicago had made it possible for the men of that city to secure one of the highest scales in the country, which ought, in common justice and decency, to demand high grade work.

Yet my own observations, backed by the reports of many, many competent judges, have shown that projection in Chicago was not up to the standard, and that local 110 was making absolutely no appreciable effort to improve it.

Please understand clearly that by this I most emphatically do NOT mean Chicago had no high class men or high class projection. On the contrary, Local 110 contains some as high grade projectionists as can be found anywhere; also Chicago has some as high grade projection as you will find anywhere. I speak of the conditions in that city as a whole, and as a whole it was distinctly bad—which ought not to be the case in a city having one of the highest minimum wage scales in all North America.

Exhibitors are slowly awaking to the fact that high class EFFICIENCY in the projection room does pay. Slowly they are beginning to be at least fairly willing to pay for it, BUT the exhibitor resents, and RIGHTLY RESENTS any attempt to compel him to pay high remuneration for inefficient, or just plain punk service.

The Clipping

In part the clipping reads:

The picture operators of Chicago (might include studio men, photographers and theatre operators under that.—Ed.) through their union have planned a series of educational lectures that will, it is expected, make them the most proficient and expert operators in the country. The plan that is now being completed by Tom Malloy, president of the union, will embrace a number of speeches and demonstrative lectures by (Get this—it's good.—Ed.) Norman W. Alley, Chief Cinematographer of the Central Division of the International News, each lecture of which is designed to teach the operator (Operator of pictures?—Ed.) just a little more about electricity and lighting than he needs to know as an operator. In this way it is hoped to pull the picture operators of Chicago to a new level, and one that will make them valuable to their employers, not only as operators, but because they will always be ready to meet any emergency that may arise in their line. "Know more than you need to on the job" will be the slogan of the new educational campaign, original with the Chicago local.

Original

Well, I'll say that latter is original allrighty right. Most of us are well satisfied if we can even know a large percentage of what we need to know on the job of projecting motion pictures. But anyhow that slogan is not a step, but a broad jump in the right direction, and this department is tickled pink if it is all true. Chicago will, after a few months of real study, begin to have some inkling of how VERY much there is to know before we know what we ought to know "on the job."

This department earnestly and sincerely congratulates Local Union 110, and its President Tom Malloy, whom the editor knows very well personally. It unreservedly offers to the Chicago men any aid it can possibly give in this, its new endeavor. Local Union 110 is one of the most powerful in the country. It ought to set and maintain the highest standard of service, and I hope and trust that such a standard will be established in the Queen City by the Lakes.

Get Maximum Screen Results

Send for the Brand New

LENS CHART

By JOHN GRIFFITHS

Here is an accurate chart which belongs in every projection room where carbon arcs are used. It will enable you to get maximum screen results with the equipment you are now using.

The new Lens Chart (size 15" x 20") printed on heavy Ledger Stock paper, suitable for framing, will be sent to you in a strong mailing tube, insuring proper protection. Get it NOW!

Price $1.00

Postpaid

Chalmers Publishing Co.

516 Fifth Avenue New York City

DIXIE Service yields a revenue to the House.

DIXIE CUPS IN EVERY KEITH THEATRE

In the equipment of Keith Houses, nothing is omitted that will contribute to the comfort and convenience of their patrons. Throughout performance and intermission alike, DIXIE Penny Vendors provide pure-white, sturdy DIXIES—one at a time.

To drink from DIXIES is delightful—and safe. And your patrons know it.

Individual Drinking Cup Co., Inc.

Original Makers of Paper Cups

EASTON, PA. NEW YORK, N. Y.

With Branches at Philadelphia, Chicago, Baltimore, Los Angeles.

DIXIE INDIVIDUAL CUPS

EASTMAN POSITIVE FILM

The identification "Eastman" and "Kodak" in black letters in the transparent margin leaves no room for doubt.

You don't assume, a glance assures you that you are projecting the film that carries quality from studio to screen—Eastman Film.

EASTMAN KODAK COMPANY
ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The New Fotoplayer Pit Pipe ORGAN

Console of Style 49

A Permanent Musical Feature

A Musical, Artistic and Structural Achievement making it possible for the "Average Exhibitor" to offer his Patrons the highest type of Performance . . .

Does Not Require High Priced Organist

Can be played Manually or with ordinary 88 Note Music Rolls.

Can be installed in any theatre — either in the Orchestra Pit or divided

Mail Coupon to nearest office today for

NEW SELLING PLAN

The Photo Player Co.

New York 150 W. 46 ~ Chicago 845 So. Wabash

Berkeley, Calif.

GENUINE DEAGAN PERCUSSIONS USED

The Photo Player Co.

Send me without obligation full details of your New Selling Plan

Name .....

Theatre .....

Seating Capacity .....

City and State .....

A Mack Sennett Comedy

Two Reels

"Honeymoon Hardships"

The Only Two-Reel Comedy Unanimously Voted "Great"

Fifteen hard-boiled critics who know pictures, live them, talk them, see them, every day of their lives, saw "Honeymoon Hardships."

Some of them dare a picture to make them laugh; some of them had sooner pan than praise. They were asked to grade this picture with one of four ratings. They saw "Honeymoon Hardships" and were conquered.

Every one of them gave it the highest rating.

Most of them said it was the greatest two-reel comedy they ever saw.

We invite you to see a PERFECT two-reel comedy. We dare you to look at it without yelling!

Pathécomedy

TRADE MARK

First in the Field!

Moving Picture WORLD

Vol. 72, No. 8 FEBRUARY 21, 1925 PRICE 25 CENTS

ERICH VON STROHEIM'S

GREED

—A Sensation at the Capitol (N.Y.)
—Broke Records at Metropolitan (Brooklyn)
—Broke Records Loew's American (N.Y.)
—Broke Records Imperial (San Francisco)
—Broke Records Strand (Eureka, Cal.)
—Broke Records Regent (So. Norwalk, Conn.)

NOT ONLY in Big Theatres but also in Smaller Theatres—

—It's a Clean-up Everywhere!

Metro Goldwyn

Member Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, Inc.—Will H. Hays, President

Published by CHALMERS PUBLISHING COMPANY 516 FIFTH AVE. NEW YORK CITY

Entered as second class matter June 17, 1906, at the Post Office at New York, N. Y., under the act of March 3, 1879. Printed weekly. $3 a year.

Get your share!

Free Prize offer for exploitation stunts on ADVENTURE PICTURES

CASH IN
on the tremendous success of these serials

"THE GHOST CITY"
Universal's Galloping Thriller. Starring Pete Morrison, with Margaret Morris. Directed by Jay Marchant. Fifteen Episodes of Two Reels Each.

"THE STEEL TRAIL"
The Mightiest of all railroad Thrillers. Starring William Duncan, supported by Edith Johnson and a great cast. Fifteen Episodes of Two Reels Each. Directed by William Duncan.

"BEASTS OF PARADISE"
An absorbing Thriller of Savage Beasts and Brave Men. Starring William Desmond and Elieen Sedgwick. Directed by Wm. J. Craft. Fifteen Episodes of Two Reels Each.

"THE IRON MAN"
The Internaticnal Serial Sensation. Featuring the Creator of Thrills—Albertini, supported by Margaret Morris, Jack Daugherty and Joe Bonomo. Directed by Jay Marchant. Fifteen Episodes of Two Reels Each.

"THE FAST EXPRESS"
Written by the famous Saturday Evening Post Writer—Courtney Ryley Cooper. Starring Wm. Duncan, supported by Edith Johnson. Directed by Wm. Duncan. Fifteen Episodes of Two Reels Each.

"WOLVES OF THE NORTH"
The Stupendous Innovation Chapter Play of the Far North. Starring William Duncan. Directed by William Duncan. Ten Episodes of Two Reels Each.

"THE RIDDLE RIDER"
The Wild-Riding Western Serial. Starring William Desmond and Eileen Sedgwick, supported by Hughie Mack, Helen Holmes, and Claude Payton. Directed by William Craft. Fifteen Episodes of Two Reels Each.

"THE FIGHTING RANGER"
